

New CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA of NAMES

R
031
N536

R
031
N536n

6838

REFERENCE BOOK
LIMITED CIRCULATION
SEE RULES

Archbishop Mitty High School Library

5000 Mitty Way
San Jose, California 95129

DISCARD

RULES

1. Books may be kept two weeks and may be renewed once for the same period, except 7-day books

at ARCHBISHOP MITTY LIBRARY

be [REDACTED]
No [REDACTED] fir [REDACTED]

charged on each
o the above rule, incurring such a

7215

2. All injuries to books beyond reasonable wear and all losses shall be made good to the satisfaction of the Librarian.

4. Each borrower is held responsible for all books drawn on his card and for all fines accruing on the same.

8889

R
031
NEW
06838

The New
CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA
OF Names

The New
CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA
OF Names

EDITED BY

Clarence L. Barnhart

with the assistance of

William D. Halsey

and a staff of more than 350 consulting scholars, special editors, and other contributors

Mother Butler Memorial
High School Library
500 S. BATEMAN AVE. San Jose
VOLUME THREE

Nala—Zyryanians

&

APPENDICES

APPLETON-CENTURY-CROFTS, INC.
NEW YORK

ARCHBISHOP MATEO HIGH SCHOOL
JAN 1971
500 BATTY AVENUE
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA 95127
DISCARD

88880

Copyright, 1954, by
APPLETON-CENTURY-CROFTS, INC

All rights reserved. This book, or parts thereof, must not be reproduced in any form without permission of the publisher.

Library of Congress Card Number: 52-13879

PRINTED IN U.S.A.

CONTENTS OF VOLUME I

	PAGE
PREFACE	vii
HOW TO USE THE NEW CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA OF NAMES . . .	xi
EDITORIAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE	xv
CONSULTING EDITORS	xvi
SPECIAL CONSULTANTS	xix
PRONUNCIATION EDITORS AND CONSULTANTS	xxv
SPECIAL WRITERS	xxv
OFFICE STAFF	xxv
ABBREVIATIONS	xxvi
KEY TO PRONUNCIATION	xxviii
CYCLOPEDIA OF PROPER NAMES (A-EMIN PASHA)	1-1440

CONTENTS OF VOLUME II

CYCLOPEDIA OF PROPER NAMES (EM'LY-NAKURU)	1441-2880
---	-----------

CONTENTS OF VOLUME III

CYCLOPEDIA OF PROPER NAMES (NALA-ZYRYANIANS)	2881-4228
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF WORLD HISTORY	4229-4261
LISTS OF RULERS, CHIEFS OF STATE, AND OTHER NOTABLES, BY COUNTRY	4263-4288
STATES OF THE UNITED STATES AND OF THE CONFEDERACY . . .	4289
GENEALOGICAL CHARTS	4291-4294
MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS	4295
TABLE OF POPES	4297-4298
GEOLOGICAL TABLE	4299
LIST OF PRENAMES USED IN THIS WORK, WITH PRONUNCIATIONS	4301-4342

06200

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2012

<http://archive.org/details/newcenturycyclop03barn>

PREFACE

The New Century Cyclopedia of Names is a unique reference work consisting solely of information about proper names having importance in the English-speaking world. We give the most frequently used English and native spellings and pronunciations, as well as the essential facts, about more than 100,000 proper names of every description—persons, places, historical events, plays and operas, works of fiction, literary characters, works of art, mythological and legendary persons and places, and any other class of proper names of interest or importance today. The only condition of insertion has been that the name should be one about which information would be likely to be sought.

The original Century Cyclopedia of Names was for over fifty years the chief English-language source of information about all kinds of proper names. Benjamin E. Smith, the editor of the original work, wrote on September 1, 1894, that "it is entirely independent in subject and use, . . . primarily a dictionary of proper names, giving their orthography and pronunciation and such explanation of them as is necessary for their identification; and, secondarily, a condensed encyclopedia in its . . . treatment of several thousands of the more important articles." So well were the high editorial standards of the original book maintained that the original cyclopedia was still used fifty-eight years after its original publication, to obtain information about proper names entered in no other generally available reference work. For many years there has been a persistent demand by librarians and scholars that the original Century Cyclopedia of Names be brought up to date. In 1947 the publisher acceded to this demand, and work was begun on the modernization and revision of the Century Cyclopedia of Names.

Because of the wide extent of modern knowledge the editor formed an Editorial Advisory Committee (see page xv) of eminent scholars in various fields of knowledge or in the making and use of reference books to assist in the framing of basic policies. The scope of the original cyclopedia was unchanged but its size was greatly enlarged so that all useful names might be included. Two world wars and the closer linking together of distant parts of the world have greatly expanded the range of human interests and knowledge, and hence the number of names with which everyone comes in contact. In order to include the proper names important to the modern reader, we made the present work over twice as large as the original one. Even so the selection of names to be included was one of the first and most important problems before the Committee. In order to evaluate properly names for inclusion we decided, on the advice of this Editorial Advisory Committee, to enlist the help of additional scholars in a wide range of special fields. Before we could know where our chief problems lay, and in which fields we would be likely to encounter the greatest amount of difficulty, we analyzed the names in the original Century Cyclopedia of Names against a variety of special and general sources, and undertook a classification of all the names being considered for entry in the new work. We divided our master list of over 500,000 proper names into 1,248 categories, and the terms contained within each of these categories were subjected to further analysis against standard textbooks in each field, and other special works. On the recommendation of members of the Committee or of the Consulting Editors immediately responsible, systematic checks were made against a wide range of authoritative sources to ensure completeness and accuracy of the facts included. As a result, many important facts which have not hitherto been available in any general reference work have been added.

At the same time we turned to scholars recommended by members of the Editorial Advisory Committee for help in writing articles on the names in all the most difficult categories (see list of Consulting Editors beginning on page xvi). In still other cases, there were single names which were in themselves of such great importance as virtually to comprise separate categories; for these we obtained the help of nearly 200 Special Consultants (see list beginning on page xix).

In the New Century Cyclopedia of Names the reader will, so to speak, "find each name where it belongs"—which is simply to say that he will find it where experience has taught him to expect it. We use a system of entry based on those found in the two reference books which are probably most familiar to the greatest possible number of people, the telephone book and the dictionary. By combining the conventions of entry used in these two reference works we believe we have been able to produce an order-of-entry system with which most readers will already be completely familiar.

We have given precise and detailed facts instead of general information as a matter of policy. All dates have been carefully checked. In addition, exact places and dates of birth and death are given wherever they could be ascertained. Population, area, height and other comparable statistics are cited and dated from official sources; where no adequate official source could be obtained, the reader is clearly informed that the information given is an approximation, even though many of these approximations have been derived from documents of considerable authority. Readers interested in a fuller discussion of this highly technical matter are referred to the section "How to Use the New Century Cyclopedia of Names," beginning on page xi.

The bulk of the names in this work are entered as we believe they are most likely to be spelled by the greatest number of American readers. Such items as "Washington, D.C.," or "John Adams" present no problems. The more obscure American place names or those that have been changed (as "Governors Island," now written without an apostrophe) are entered according to the decisions of the U.S. Board on Geographic Names or the spellings used by the Bureau of the Census; personal names now in some doubt follow the spellings in the Dictionary of American Biography or the Dictionary of National Biography.

Entries on people or places of foreign countries using Roman alphabets are given in native spellings except where American usage is overwhelmingly against this practice, and the accents or diacritics of these alphabets are used. Thus we give as a main entry "Braşov," a city in Rumania, not "Brashov" as it was formerly often spelled to approximate the pronunciation, nor yet "Stalin," now its official designation but not well known. However, we prefer "Bucharest" to "Bucureşti," "Prague" to "Praha," and "Rome" to "Roma," all these first-named being manifestly the more familiar forms in the United States.

Names transliterated from non-Roman alphabets are presented as simply as possible, with almost no use of accented letters or diacritical marks, since most such marks (largely used to indicate pronunciation, which we give following the entry word) are puzzling in ordinary texts. So far as we could ascertain it, we have thus endeavored to follow the mandate of usage by literate Americans.

The letters of the alphabet are directions to say sounds, but the directions are often confusing since one letter or a combination of letters may represent more than one sound. Therefore, we use a system of diacritics to make the directions more precise. We use the pronunciation key of the New Century Dictionary, which is known to the hundreds of thousands of the users of that book. Such a pronunciation key, based upon the usual English sound-values of the letters, is one to which most of us are most accustomed and is therefore one which enables English-speaking consulters of a reference work to reproduce with a fair degree of accuracy the sounds indicated.

We provide the educated speaker of American English with standard pronunciations of names drawn from nearly every known language and every period of history. English names, of course, present no special difficulty. Moreover, many familiar American names are of non-English origin. Names of this latter type are "foreign" in origin only; they are anything but foreign in their application to present-day American people or places. Furthermore, many unquestionably "foreign" names (for instance, Caesar, Nineveh, Balboa, Tokyo, Pravda) are established words in our speech and have an established pronunciation among us. This established pronunciation may fall entirely within patterns of speech that are normal for English words, thus: (sē'zar, nin'e.ve, bal.bō'a, tō'ki.ō, prāv'da). In some details, however, we often imitate the native pronunciation of a foreign name; thus, educated speakers usually pronounce Bach, the name of the German composer, as (bäch), employing a sound which does not occur in English. It is possible, too, for the English pronunciation of a foreign name to vary from rather complete imitation, as in Versailles (ver.säy', approximating the French pronunciation), through Anglicization partially imitating the foreign pronunciation (in our example, vēr.sī'), to a complete Anglicization suggested by the written form (here, vēr.sälz', which is, of course, the regular pronunciation of this name when applied to places in America).

There remain many foreign names for which there is no established English pronunciation, but which nevertheless occur frequently in atlases, histories, translated literature, current news dispatches, and the like. In the absence of a traditional English pronunciation of these names, a work such as this must supply pronunciations according to some general principle, either respelling them with sounds suggested to Americans by the written forms, or imitating, so far as the resources of the English sound-system permit, the pronunciation of the original. The former practice was very commonly followed until recent times and unfamiliar names were freely Anglicized according to the spelling. At the present time, however, the tendency to approximate the native pronunciation is very strong, particularly in the United States, and the respellings in this volume reflect that fact. The closeness of the approximation naturally depends to some extent on the certainty (for Americans) of the pronunciation represented by the written form; this is quite exact in case of languages such as French and German, written in our Latin alphabet, rather less so for names transliterated from less familiar languages employing other alphabets or other forms of writing, and still less so for names recorded by European observers from native speech in remote parts of the world; in the less certain instances, the indicated pronunciation is what may be considered a reasonable spoken equivalent of the written form in which the name reaches us. The closeness of approximation varies, of course, with the degree of difference between American English speech patterns and those of the language imitated; thus, it is relatively easier for us to imitate most German names than it is to imitate most French names.

Preface

This work has been, in the truest possible sense, a coöperative effort by scholars, editors, and publisher. Without the invaluable policy-making advice of the nine members of the Editorial Advisory Committee many of the most valuable features of the work would never have come into being. Equally important, but with reference to particular fields of knowledge or particular individuals in history, was the work of the many consulting editors and consultants who gave so generously of their time for a period of several years in order to be sure that the information we gave would be the very best we could possibly obtain. Two persons on the staff deserve special mention: Mr. W. D. Halsey, the managing editor, who has devoted many long hours to detailed editing and has also participated in planning the cyclopedia, and Mr. R. A. Goodwin, who has spent much time on problems of transliteration and pronunciation. Invaluable assistance was also obtained from Mr. George Sarton, who generously made available to us all of the authoritative materials contained in his monumental Introduction to the History of Science. Finally, great thanks are due to Mr. W. Morgan Shuster and Mr. Dana Ferrin, of Appleton-Century-Crofts, without whose patience and understanding this work would certainly never have been possible. Much credit is due also to Mr. Joseph Giebel, of Appleton-Century-Crofts, and to the many people at the H. Wolff Book Manufacturing Company who were involved in work on the book, for solutions to a vast number of very difficult problems of composition and manufacture.

Clarence L. Barnhart

HOW TO USE THE NEW CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA OF NAMES

It is the belief of the editors of this work that the mechanics of its use—where and how to find particular entries, and the like—will be, for all practical purposes, self-explanatory. However, to those users who may be interested in knowing the technical details of its organization, the following sections may be of some interest.

Order of Entries

Perhaps the first thing to bear in mind in a discussion of this matter is that the term "strict alphabetical order," in the sense in which it is understood by most people, cannot be applied in any work as complex as this one. By their nature, dictionaries have been able to come somewhat closer to applying it than encyclopedias, and the result is that dictionaries are somewhat easier for many people to use than most encyclopedias. Realizing the great difficulties involved, we have nevertheless done our utmost in this work to achieve a blending of dictionary techniques with others desirable in such a work as this. A few examples may make it easier for the user of the book to understand what is meant by this. The sequence is simple, and there are no two ways of alphabetizing it; if this work were a simple glossary there would be no problem. But where in that sequence would one look for the entry "Albert the Bear"? In a telephone book it would be second in the sequence, in a dictionary third; in an encyclopedia or the index to a historical text it might be either place according to the convention adopted by the editors of the book. This question of arrangement can become complex indeed where the editor is faced with such a long list, for example, as that under Charles in this work: first, how to arrange the many kings, princes, and literary characters known only as "Charles"; second, how to arrange the many names containing the element "Charles," whether they are single words (Charleston) or phrases (Charles the Bold). In a biographical dictionary or a gazetteer the kinds of names are relatively few. Yet even in biographical works the ways of distinguishing among the persons known as Charles may be various and intricate (as for example emperors before kings, kings before dukes, dukes before earls, and so on—helpful provided the reader remembers that dukes rank higher than earls). And even in the indexes to two different atlases one may find Charles Town and Charleston next to each other or separated by a column or two.

Albert
Alberta
Albertville

We have kept the system of placement simple and easy to use by combining the conventions of those reference books which are probably most familiar to most readers, the telephone book and the dictionary. The primary principle of arrangement in the telephone book is what is called "directory style," i.e., that people's names are entered in reverse, surname followed by prename. The comma between these two elements, though not printed in many directories, is strictly taken into account, and the user will not find Alberts, Andrew before Albert, William. It might be said that the primary system of ordering is based on what precedes the comma (assumed or actual): the Albert group comes before the Alberts group; and secondary ordering goes by what follows the comma: within the Albert group Albert, Charles precedes Albert, Daniel. This is also our principle. The comma between the elements of a reversed or "directory-style" name is rigidly observed, and primary and secondary ordering go according to what precedes and what follows the comma:

Andersen, Hans Christian Andersen, Karl Andersen Nexg, Martin
Anderson
Anderson, Adam

Finally, for the user of this work, which contains many multiple-word entries, it is important to have a convention that enables him easily to find an item (as Charles Town or Charlestown) even if he does not know whether it is written with or without a space. In this we follow dictionary style, which is familiar to most readers and easily used by them, though they may not be aware that the spaces between words are ignored. In a dictionary alphabet

alphabetize
alphabet noodles

would be found in that order. To return to the simple "glossary" sequence cited above and add to it the troublesome phrase, we have

Albert
Alberta
"Albert the Bear" (placed the same as if it were written "Albertthebear")
Albertville

These three simple principles of the glossary, the directory, and the dictionary cover the ordering of the great majority of entries in this work, and the treatment of any sequence of items involving the same name may be summarized as follows:

- I. the name alone: Albert
before
- II. the name as a surname: Albert, Heinrich or as other main element of a reversed or directory-style name: Albert, Lake before
- III. the name as part of a longer name, whether several words: Albert Avogadro
"Albert the Bear" or one word: Albertville

Under these classes of entry there are sometimes enough cases otherwise identical as to need ways of distinguishing. Given several items the names of which are all simply "Albert," the arrangement is:

- (1) people (biographical entries):

Albert (al'ber). [Called "l'Ouvrier Albert," meaning "Albert the Worker"; original name, Alexandre Martin.] b. at Bury, Oise, France, April 27, 1815; d. at Mello, Oise, France, May 28, 1895. French politician. . . .

Albert (al'bert). Prince. [Full name, Albert Francis Charles Augustus Emmanuel of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.] b. at the Rosenau, near Coburg, Germany, 1819; d. at Windsor Castle, 1861. Husband of Queen Victoria and prince consort of England. . . .

before

- (2) places (geographical entries):

Albert (al'ber). [Former name, Ancre.] Town in N France. . . .

before

- (3) things (entries neither biographical nor geographical):

Albert (al'bért). In Goethe's Sorrows of Werther, a young farmer. . . .

Albert. [Title, Count of Geierstein.] Character in Sir Walter Scott's novel Anne of Geierstein. . . .

(It will be noted that neither the lightface title, in this case "Prince," nor the boldface variant names given in brackets have any bearing on order of main entry.)

Within categories 1 and 3 (people and things) the order is chronological: Albert born in 1815 precedes Albert born in 1819; because of earlier publication date the character from Goethe's work precedes the one from Scott's.

Within category 2 (places) the order is:

(a) alphabetical by place of location, which is the largest meaningful and well-known unit. (By "meaningful" is meant that we do not locate by the units United States, Canada, or Europe, since these are too large to make any distinction, in many cases, among places of the same name.) We use states of the United States, provinces of Canada, and countries elsewhere (further distinguishing, where there are two or more places of the same name in one country, by the name of the next unit in size thereunder, such as a county or department). The name of the locating unit appears close to the beginning of the entry, where it may be easily spotted:

Paris. City in N Arkansas.

Paris. City in N France.

Paris. City in E Illinois.

Paris. City in N Kentucky.

Paris. Town in SW Maine.

Paris. Town in Ontario, Canada.

(b) by size, when the difference is specifically known and the reader may be expected to use this as a guide:

Quebec. . . . Largest province of the Dominion of Canada.

Quebec. . . . City in SE Quebec.

(c) chronological:

Israel. Kingdom of the northern tribes of the Israelites who seceded during the 10th century B.C. from the southern tribes. . . .

Israel. Independent Jewish state in W Asia, formed from the N, W, and S parts of the former mandated territory of Palestine on May 14, 1948. . . .

In a small proportion of entries there are enough identical names to need still further means of distinction and thus of ordering. Probably most numerous is the list of Charleses, many of them kings, who cannot be spotted quickly even by the numerals that accompany many of the names. To arrange these simply in order of date would be to make a hopeless jumble as to numbers and to lead the reader interested in a dynasty, for instance, through many pages in his effort to trace the monarchs of one country. Therefore we have introduced, where it is needed, a phrase in parentheses designating the country or empire (in italic type) most familiarly associated with the ruler in question:

Charles I (of England).

This name, used as a secondary element in alphabetical order just as the prename is in common directory style, keeps the rulers of one country together and makes possible chronological order within each such group:

Charles I (of England).

Charles II (of England).

Charles I (of France).

. . .

Charles X (of France).

Charles I (of the Holy Roman Empire).

The numeral is regarded only as a plus element, in that name-plus-numeral (in the absence of country-designation) follows name alone:

Charles.

Charles (of Anjou).

Charles (of England), Prince.

Charles I.

Charles I (of England).

(Since the order of numerals parallels chronological order, they need not be considered as affecting sequence in themselves.)

Variant Names

All variant forms are given that have considerable usage, either in current reading matter or in historical sources. These are divisible generally into other spellings and other names. Where another spelling is virtually interchangeable with the one preferred it is presented in this style:

Manicheans or Manichaeans.

Most other spellings and other names now (or until recently) current are entered, however, in brackets after the main entry, preceded by the word "also":

Mahanadi. [Also, Mahanuddy.]

Magyars. [Also, Hungarians.]

There are other names of various special kinds, chief of which are the following (note that all are labeled as to kind):

1. Former names, whether:

(a) recent:

Malaya, Federation of. [Former name, Union of Malaya.]

(b) or ancient:

Málaga. [Ancient name, Malaca.]

(c) original names of persons or places whose names have been changed:

Mackenzie, Alexander Slidell. [Original name, Alexander Slidell.]

Mansfield, Katherine. [Maiden name, Beauchamp. . . .]

(d) or of persons better known by their titles:

Marlborough, 1st Duke of. [Title of John Churchill.]

(e) or of persons or places whose names are now commonly shortened:

Malraux, André. [Full name, Georges André Malraux.]

(Full names are also indicated by parentheses in the main entry where alphabetical order is not affected, thus: Markham, Edwin (Charles).)

2. Names current in modern languages other than that of the entry, including:

(a) Native forms where the English or Anglicized form has been used as main entry:

Magellan, Strait of. [Spanish, Estrecho de Magallanes.]

(b) Names in the languages of adjoining countries or countries of which a place has been part or with which a person was associated:

Mariánské Lázně. [German, Marienbad.]

(c) Names in other languages official or widely used in the same country, as are French, German, Italian, and Romansh in Switzerland, French and Flemish in Belgium, English and Irish in Ireland, and English and French in parts of Canada:

Matterhorn. [French, Mont Cervin; Italian, Monte Cervino.]

(d) Titles in other languages, if they have current or contemporary usage, of operas, books, and the like:

Nozze di Figaro, Le. [English title, The Marriage of Figaro.]

3. Additional names, assumed or conferred, as:

(a) Pseudonyms:

Marston, John. [Pseudonym, W. Kin-sayder.]

(b) Nicknames or epithets:

Magnus I (of Denmark and Norway).
[Called Magnus the Good.]

(c) Titles:

Mancini, Hortense. [Title, Duchesse de Mazarin.]

Cross References

The user of this work will find that a great deal of space has been given to cross references. This has been done in recognition of the number of names by which a person or place may be known (or have been known), and of the great variety of forms or spellings under which a name may be encountered by a reader whose range includes old works as well as new or the publications of regions and countries other than his own.

A suggestion of the kinds of variants included has been given in the section on Form of Entry. All of these are cross-referred if there is a reasonable possibility of their being looked up. Exceptions are: (1) spellings so close to that of the main entry that there is no likelihood of the desired article being overlooked (as Biloly for Bitola), and (2) names or forms given as useful or interesting information but unlikely to be found in most reading (as Bermingham, the Middle English form of Birmingham).

Cross references are pronounced, like main entries, unless they are proper names derived from common words (such as White Mountain). Noncross-referred forms under category (1) of the preceding paragraph are pronounced unless pronunciation is identical with that of the preferred spelling or easily ascertainable from it. Most "information" variants are not pronounced.

In addition to cross references for variant forms the reader will find placement cross references, especially for:

(1) Middle names which may be confused with surnames:

Acuña de Figueroa, Francisco. See Figueroa, Francisco Acuña de.

(2) Multiple surnames:

Alexis, Pierre Nord. See Nord Alexis, Pierre.

(3) Surnames unconventionally used:

Brooke-Popham, Sir Henry Robert Moore. See Popham, Sir Henry Robert Moore Brooke.

(4) "Switches," i.e., entries which might reasonably be looked for under more than one element:

East Africa, British. See British East Africa.

(5) Unfamiliar geographical generic words (such names being usually entered straight, not reversed as the more familiar "Lake" or "Mount" names are):

More, Ben. See Ben More.

Generic terms, particles, and other subordinate elements in foreign languages, which may appear only in variants or be treated as secondary parts of entries, are in many cases covered by general cross references explaining their uses and how to find names containing them. Among these are the particles Abd and Al, the geographical terms Cabo, Laguna, Wadi, and many others.

Entry of Pronunciations

1. Ordinarily, only the part of a name preceding the comma is pronounced. Thus:

Smith (smith), Adam.

Prenames are pronounced in a separate list in the back of the book. However, such elements as l', d', and dell', pronounced as parts of the name, are included in the pronunciation. Thus:

Abbadie (dā.bā.dē), Antoine Thomson d'.

Abbate (del.lāb.bā.tā), Niccolò dell'.

2. Generic geographical terms (in English) and other unequivocally generic words used in a literal sense are not pronounced. Thus:

Andaman Islands (an'da.man).

Brother Jonathan (jon'a.than).

Good Hope, Cape of.

Otherwise, all names are pronounced. Thus:

Roan Mountain (rōn).

White (hwit), Alma.

3. When a name occurs with identical pronunciation in two or more successive entries, it is pronounced only at the point of first entry. Thus:

Cumberland (kum'bər.land).

Cumberland, Richard.

Cumberland Gap.

When successive entries have the same spelling but different pronunciations, as in Adam (English, ad'am; as a German surname, a'dām; as a French surname, ā.dā), the pronunciation is given at every point of change from one pronunciation to another, and omission of any pronunciation indicates that the name is pronounced the same as the closest preceding entry where pronunciation was given.

4. When a name which has been pronounced is repeated (without change of pronunciation) as part of a successive entry, unhyphenated, only the new part of the compound entry is pronounced. Thus:

López (lō'pes), Carlos Antonio.

López Contreras (kōn.trā'rās), Eléazar.

For hyphenated names, the full pronunciation is given, except that if each part of the compound has a primary accent, the repetition of the first element may be indicated by a hyphen. Thus:

Åbenrå (ō'bən.rō).

Åbenrå-Sønderborg (-søn'nér.börg).

Handling of Statistics

Figures for populations, areas, elevations above sea level, and the like, have been obtained from official sources wherever possible, and elsewhere from the most reliable unofficial ones available to us. Populations are dated in all cases where official sources have been used. A general prefatory statement, to the effect that latest census figures are cited, has not been considered sufficient; if no census has been held since 1930 on a certain South Pacific island, the reader should be so informed as he reads the entry. Therefore, the great majority of our population statistics are dated, even though they must occasionally bear old dates.

Every plain date, such as "(1951)" or "(1948)," means that an official census figure for that year is given. An official estimate is indicated by the abbreviation "est." preceding the date. For example:

Aerschot. Town in C Belgium. . . 10,589 (1947).

Afghanistan . . . Pop. ab. 12,000,000 (est. 1946).

In cases where the unit may be expected to have a focal point (or capital) and area, as well as population, all of this information is ordinarily supplied:

Åğrı. Il (province or vilayet) in E Turkey. . .

Capital, Doğubayazıt; area, 5,142 sq. mi.; pop. 155,545 (1950).

In cases where the name applies to two legally different units, one of which may entirely encompass the other, an effort has been made to provide exact statistics for each:

East Hampton. Town (in New York the equivalent of township in many other states) and village in SE New York. . . Pop. of town, 6,325 (1950); of village, 1,737 (1950).

In certain other cases, where a significant population change may have taken place in recent years, two dated figures are often given in order that this important fact may be made adequately clear to the reader:

Mexico City. City in S central Mexico. . .

1,448,422 (1940); 2,113,451 (1950).

How to Use the New Century Cyclopedia of Names

Consistent use is made of the abbreviation "ab." (for "about") with all statistics not confirmable in detail (for example, round numbers for populations, areas computed from the metric or some other system of measurement, or elevations of mountain peaks where two or more equally reliable surveys have produced different figures or where no exact measurement is known to have been made).

Distances between places are given only as rough guides, chiefly for the location of points on the map. There are too many variables (such as changes in the routes of connecting roads or railroads and relocation of city lines or even of the "center of town") for accurate reporting of these mileages. Therefore such figures are frankly labeled "ab." and exactness is not implied where it cannot be established.

The lengths of rivers are among the most debatable of statistics, since all change their courses more or less, many are unnavigable and not yet reached by aerial surveys, and some even have never been accurately mapped. Here also the qualification "ab." is freely used wherever the reader should be informed that figures are open to any doubt.

In the case of biographical entries, a comparable effort has been made to provide the reader with vital statistics which are both detailed and precise:

Ahlwardt, Christian Wilhelm. b. at Greifswald, Prussia, Nov. 23, 1760; d. there, April 12, 1830.

Exceptions occur in all cases where such precise information could not be adequately confirmed or was not available in the sources at our disposal:

Ahumada y Villalon, Agustín de. b. c1700; d. at Mexico City, Feb. 6, 1760.

EDITORIAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Professor W. Cabell Greet, Chairman

Department of English

Barnard College, Columbia University

Professor I. Bernard Cohen

Harvard University

(and Editor of Isis)

Professor George B. Cressey

Department of Geography

Syracuse University

Professor Ralph Linton

Institute of Human Relations

Yale University

Professor Dumas Malone

Department of History

Columbia University

Mr. Paul North Rice

Chief of the Reference Department (now retired)

New York Public Library

Professor T. V. Smith

Department of Philosophy

Syracuse University

Professor Mark Van Doren

Department of English

Columbia University

Professor Harry R. Warfel

Department of English

University of Florida

CONSULTING EDITORS, WITH THEIR SPECIAL FIELDS

Burt W. Aginsky

Chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology
City College of New York
WESTERN AND CENTRAL EUROPEAN ETHNOLOGY

Edward D. Andrews

Dean of Students and Head of the Department of History
Scarborough School Author: The Community Industries of the Shakers
SHAKER HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY

Martin S. Allwood

Director of the Institute of Social Research
Mullsjö, Sweden
MODERN SWEDISH LITERATURE

Ralph C. Altman

INDONESIAN ARCHAEOLOGY

John C. Archer

Hoover Professor of Comparative Religion (1932-50)
Yale University
POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY
OF MODERN INDIA, PAKISTAN, AND AFGHANISTAN

C. Rankin Barnes

Secretary of the General Convention and of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church Author: The General Convention: Offices and Officers, 1785-1950
EPISCOPAL HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY

William R. Bascom

Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology
Northwestern University
Author: The Sociological Role of the Yoruba Cult Group
AFRICAN ETHNOLOGY

Robert H. Bass

Instructor in History (1949-51)
Mount Holyoke College
MODERN CZECHOSLOVAKIAN POLITI-CAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Cyril E. Black

Associate Professor, Department of History
Princeton University
Author: Establishment of Constitutional Government in Bulgaria
POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY
OF THE BALKANS IN MODERN TIMES

H. Boeschstein

Professor of German
University of Toronto
MODERN SWISS LITERATURE

Carl B. Boyer

Professor of Mathematics
Brooklyn College
Author: The Concepts of the Calculus
MODERN MATHEMATICS AND MATHE-MATICIANS

Edwin G. Burrows

Professor of Anthropology
University of Connecticut
Author: Western Polynesia; Hawaiian Americans
ETHNOLOGY OF OCEANIA

Werner J. Cahnman

EUROPEAN GEOGRAPHY

Shepard B. Clough

Professor of European History
Columbia University
Author: France, 1789-1939, A Study in National Economics; The Rise and Fall of Civilization
MODERN FRENCH POLITICAL BIOG-RAPHY AND HISTORY

A. P. Coleman

President of Alliance College
POLISH LITERATURE

Carleton S. Coon

Professor of Ethnology and Curator of the University Ethnology Museum
University of Pennsylvania
Author: *Tribes of the Rif; The Rifian;
Measuring Ethiopia; Southern Arabia:
A Problem for the Future; Cave Explorations in Northern Iran*
NORTH AFRICAN AND NEAR EASTERN
ETHNOLOGY

George B. Cressey (See Editorial Advisory Committee)

Maxwell Professor of Geography
Syracuse University
Author: China's Geographic Foundations; Asia's Lands and Peoples; The Basis of Soviet Strength
RUSSIAN AND ASIATIC GEOGRAPHY

Taraknath Das

Lecturer in the Department of History
Columbia University;
Adjunct Professor of Public Affairs
New York University
Author: *India in World Politics;
Sovereign Rights of Indian Peoples;
The War Comes to India; Status of Hyderabad Before and After the British Rule in India*

MODERN INDIAN POLITICAL BIOG-RAPHY AND HISTORY

John DeFrancis

Assistant Professor of International Relations
Walter Hines Page School
The Johns Hopkins University
Author: Nationalism and Language Reform in China
MODERN CHINESE POLITICAL BIOG-
RAPHY AND HISTORY

Robert E. Dickinson

Professor of Geography
Syracuse University
Author: Germany: A General and Regional Geography; The West European City
EUROPEAN GEOGRAPHY

John F. Embree (deceased)

Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, and Director of Southeast Asia Studies
Yale University
Author: The Japanese Nation; Bibliography of the Peoples and Cultures of Mainland Southeast Asia (in collaboration)
JAPANESE AND INDONESIAN ETH-NOLOGY

José Fadamas

MODERN BRAZILIAN AND PORTU-GUESE LITERATURE

Pedro Villa Fernandez

Professor of Spanish
University of Florida
MODERN SPANISH LITERATURE

Josef Frejlich

MODERN POLISH POLITICAL BIOG-RAPHY AND HISTORY

Wilbur M. Frohock

Professor of French
Wesleyan University
Author: André Malraux and the Tragic Imagination
MODERN FRENCH LITERATURE

Iago Galdston

Executive Secretary of the Medical Information Bureau of The New York Academy of Medicine and Lecturer at the New York Medical College, Flower and Fifth Avenue
Hospitals
MEDICAL HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY

John W. Gassner

Associate Professor of English
Queens College

Consulting Editors, with Their Special Fields

Author: Masters of the Drama; Producing the Play; A Treasury of the Theatre; Our Heritage of World Literature
 Senior Contributing Editor, Theatre Arts Magazine
 MODERN EUROPEAN THEATRE

William J. Gibbons

Associate Editor of America (1945-48)
 ROMAN CATHOLIC HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY

Alexander Gode-von Aesch

Lecturer in Germanics and Linguistics
 Barnard College, Columbia University
 Author: National Science in German Romanticism
 GERMAN LITERATURE

Eugene Golomshtok

RUSSIAN AND SIBERIAN ARCHAEOLOGY

C. Hartley Grattan

Carnegie Corporation Fellow in Australia (1937-38)
 Author: Introducing Australia
 POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND IN MODERN TIMES

André von Gronicka

Associate Professor of Germanic Languages and Literatures
 Columbia University
 MODERN AUSTRIAN LITERATURE

Robert W. Habenstein

MODERN SOCIOLOGY

Robert S. Harper

Assistant Professor of Psychology
 Knox College PSYCHOLOGY

Einar Haugen

Thompson Professor of Scandinavian Languages
 University of Wisconsin
 Author: The Norwegian Language in America
 MODERN DANISH, NORWEGIAN, AND ICELANDIC LITERATURE

Rufus S. Hendon

Director of the Indonesia Project
 Center for International Studies
 Massachusetts Institute of Technology
 JAPANESE AND INDONESIAN ETHNOLOGY

E. H. Hespelt

Professor Emeritus of Spanish
 New York University
 Chief Editor: An Outline History of Spanish American Literature; An Anthology of Spanish American Literature
 LATIN AMERICAN LITERATURE

Hajo Holborn

Randolph W. Townsend Professor of History
 Yale University
 Author: The Political Collapse of Europe
 MODERN INTERNATIONAL HISTORY

Fred W. Householder, Jr.

Associate Professor of Classics
 Indiana University
 MODERN GREEK POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Arthur W. Hummel

Chief of the Division of Orientalia
 Library of Congress
 Editor: Eminent Chinese of the Ch'ing Period
 CHINESE ETHNOLOGY

Benjamin Hunningher

Queen Wilhelmina Professor of the History, Literature, and Language of The Netherlands
 Columbia University
 MODERN DUTCH, FLEMISH, AND SOUTH AFRICAN LITERATURE

Bernard Jaffe

Chairman of the Physical Science Department
 James Madison High School, Brooklyn, New York
 Author: Crucibles, the Story of Chemistry; New World of Chemistry; Chemical Calculations; New World of Science
 CHEMISTRY

Preston E. James

Professor of Geography (Chairman of Department)
 Syracuse University;
 United States Member, Commission on Geography of the Pan American Institute of Geography and History Author: An Outline of Geography; Latin America; A Geography of Man
 LATIN AMERICAN GEOGRAPHY

Henry M. Kendall

Professor of Geography (Chairman of Department)
 Miami University
 NORTH AMERICAN GEOGRAPHY

Hibberd V. B. Kline, Jr.

Associate Professor of Geography
 Syracuse University;
 Consultant to the Dependent Areas Branch of the Mutual Security Agency AFRICAN GEOGRAPHY

Bertram S. Kraus

Professor, Department of Anthropology
 University of Arizona
 Editor: The Prehistory of Japan, by G. Groot
 JAPANESE ARCHAEOLOGY

Ursula Lamb

Barnard College, Columbia University
 MODERN SPANISH POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Bruno Lasker

Consultant on Southeast Asia, Social Affairs Department, United Nations Author: Standards and Planes of Living in the Far East; New Forces in Asia; Asia on the Move; Peoples of Southeast Asia
 POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY OF INDONESIA AND SOUTHEAST ASIA

John Lotz

Associate Professor of General and Comparative Linguistics
 Columbia University
 MODERN HUNGARIAN LITERATURE

D. G. Mandelbaum

Professor of Anthropology
 University of California
 INDIAN ETHNOLOGY

M. F. Ashley Montagu

Professor of Anthropology (Chairman of Department)
 Rutgers University
 Editor: Atlas of Human Anatomy
 ANATOMY

Dana Gardner Munro

Professor of Latin American History and Affairs;
 Director of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs
 Princeton University
 Author: Five Republics of Central America; The U. S. and the Caribbean Area; Latin American Republics: A History
 MODERN LATIN AMERICAN POLITICAL ARCHAELOGY AND HISTORY

Ants Oras

Former Professor of English Language and Literature
 University of Tartu (Estonia);
 Professor of English
 University of Florida
 MODERN LATVIAN, LITHUANIAN, AND ESTONIAN LITERATURE

John A. Pope

Assistant Director of the Freer Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.
 CHINESE ARCHAEOLOGY

Hugh W. Puckett

Professor of German Literature
 Barnard College, Columbia University
 GERMAN LITERATURE

Irving Rouse

Associate Professor of Anthropology and Associate Curator of the Peabody Museum of Natural History
 Yale University
 NORTH AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY

Thomas A. Sebeok

Assistant Professor of Linguistics
 Indiana University
 LINGUISTICS

Consulting Editors, with Their Special Fields

Demitri Shimkin

Research Associate, Russian Research Center;
Assistant Curator of Siberian Ethnology of the Peabody Museum
Harvard University

RUSSIAN AND SIBERIAN ETHNOLOGY

George N. Shuster

President of Hunter College

Author: The Germans; Strong Man Rules; Like a Mighty Army; Germany: A Short History

MODERN GERMAN POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

David B. Stout

Associate Professor of Anthropology
University of Iowa

NORTH AMERICAN AND LATIN AMERICAN ETHNOLOGY

John W. Streeter

Assistant Director of the Fels Planetarium
The Franklin Institute, Philadelphia

Author: Understanding the Stars
ASTRONOMY

Theo Suranyi-Unger

Professor of Economics
Syracuse University

MODERN HUNGARIAN POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

R. Stanley Thomson

Head of the Department of History and Government
Russell Sage College

POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY OF BELGIUM, LUXEMBOURG, AND THE NETHERLANDS SINCE 1900

John H. Wuorinen

Professor of History
Columbia University

Author: Nationalism in Modern Finland; Finland and World War II

MODERN SCANDINAVIAN POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Avrahm Yarmolinsky

Chief of the Slavonic Division
New York Public Library

MODERN RUSSIAN LITERATURE

J. H. Young

Assistant Professor, Department of Classics
The Johns Hopkins University

MODERN GREEK LITERATURE

SPECIAL CONSULTANTS, WITH THE SUBJECTS OF THEIR ASSISTANCE

Nabia Abbott

Professor of Islamic Studies
University of Chicago
Author: Aishah, The Beloved of Mohammed
MOHAMMED

Martin Ray Adams

Professor of English (Chairman of Department)
Franklin and Marshall College
Author: Political Radicalism in England, 1789-1799; Studies in the Literary Backgrounds of Political Radicalism in England
WILLIAM GODWIN

Frederick Lewis Allen

Editor in Chief of Harper's Magazine
Author: The Great Pierpont Morgan
JOHN PIERPONT MORGAN

Gay Wilson Allen

Professor of English
New York University
Author: Walt Whitman Handbook; American Prosody; Masters of American Literature (in collaboration)
WALT WHITMAN

Fulton H. Anderson

Professor of Philosophy (Head of Department)
University of Toronto
Author: The Philosophy of Francis Bacon
FRANCIS BACON

A. Joseph Armstrong

Professor of English (Head of Department)
Baylor University
Editor: Letters of Robert Browning to Isa Blagdon; Browning the World Over; Browning's Testament of Hope
ROBERT BROWNING

Newton Arvin

Professor of English
Smith College
Author: Herman Melville
HERMAN MELVILLE

Brooks Atkinson

Drama Critic of the New York Times
Author: Henry Thoreau, the Cosmic Yankee Editor: Walden and Other Writings of Henry David Thoreau
HENRY DAVID THOREAU

John Bakeless

Author: Daniel Boone, Master of the Wilderness; Fighting Frontiersman; Eyes of Discovery
DANIEL BOONE

Robert Cecil Bald

Professor of English
University of Chicago
Author: Donne's Influence in English Literature
JOHN DONNE

William Thomas Bandy

Professor of French
University of Wisconsin
Author: Baudelaire Judged by His Contemporaries; A Word Index of Baudelaire's Poems
CHARLES PIERRE BAUDELAIRE

Theodore Howard Banks

Professor of English
Wesleyan University
Author: Milton's Imagery
JOHN MILTON

Eugene Campbell Barker

Professor of American History
University of Texas
Author: Life of Stephen F. Austin; Mexico and Texas, 1821-1835
Editor: The Austin Papers, 1765-1836
STEPHEN F. AUSTIN

Jacques Barzun

Professor of History
Columbia University
Author: Bertioz and the Romantic Century
HÉCTOR BERLIOZ

Paul Franklin Baum

Professor of English
Duke University
Editor: Rossetti's The House of Life; Dante Gabriel Rossetti—An Analytical List of Manuscripts in the Duke University Library, with Hitherto Unpublished Verse and Prose; Rossetti's Letters to Fanny Cornforth
DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI

Adelaide Brooke Baylis

JOAN OF ARC

John Yokum Beaty

Author: Luther Burbank, Plant Magician
Editor: Luther Burbank's Autobiography
LUTHER BURBANK

Arthur Eugene Bestor, Jr.

Professor of History
University of Illinois
Author: Backwoods Utopias: A History of Communitarian Socialism in America; Education and Reform at New Harmony; Correspondence of William Maclure and Marie Duclos Fretageot, 1820-1833
ROBERT OWEN

Bernard Bloch

Professor of Linguistics and Chairman of the Department of Indic and Far Eastern Languages and Literatures
Yale University
LEONARD BLOOMFIELD

Marguerite Beck Block

Associate in Religion, Department of Philosophy and Curator of the Bush Collection in Religion and Culture
Columbia University
Author: The New Church in the New World: A Study of Swedenborgianism in America
Managing Editor: Review of Religion, Columbia University
EMANUEL SWEDENBORG

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Richmond Pugh Bond

Professor of English
University of North Carolina
JOSEPH ADDISON

Catherine Drinker Bowen

Author: John Adams and the American Revolution
JOHN ADAMS (in collaboration with John H. Powell)

Frederick Edward Brash

Consultant in Bibliography
Stanford University;
Consultant in History of Science (1944-48)
Library of Congress
Editor: Sir Isaac Newton 1727-1927 (memorial volume); Portfolio of Newton's Portraits and Statues
SIR ISAAC NEWTON

Crane Brinton

Professor of History (Chairman of Department)
Harvard University
Author: The Lives of Talleyrand
TALLEYRAND

S. H. Brockunier

Professor of History
Wesleyan University
Author: The Irrepressible Democrat: Roger Williams
ROGER WILLIAMS

Robert B. Brown

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Geoffrey Bruun

Visiting Professor of History
Cornell University
Author: Clemenceau; Saint-Just, Apostle of the Terror
CLEMENCEAU, SAINT-JUST

Storm Bull

Professor of Music and Head of the Division of Piano of the College of Music
University of Colorado
JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH

Kenneth Walter Cameron

Assistant Professor of English
Trinity College
Author: Emerson the Essayist; Ralph Waldo Emerson's Reading
RALPH WALDO EMERSON

Carl Carmer

LATTER-DAY SAINTS

Edward Hallett Carr

MICHAEL BAKUNIN

Thomas Caldecot Chubb

Author: Aretino; Scourge of Princes
PIETRO ARETINO

Paul S. Clarkson

Author: A Bibliography of William Sydney Porter (O. Henry)
RUFUS CHOATE,
THOMAS DE QUINCEY,
LUTHER MARTIN,
WILLIAM SYDNEY PORTER (O. HENRY)

Cyril Clemens

Editor: Mark Twain Quarterly
SAMUEL LANGHORNE CLEMENS

Reginald L. Cook

Professor of American Literature and Director of the Bread Loaf School of English Middlebury College
ROBERT FROST

Edward Samuel Corwin

McCormick Professor (Emeritus) of Jurisprudence
Princeton University;
Lecturer on Constitutional Law and History
The New School
Author: The Doctrine of Judicial Review; John Marshall and the Constitution; Court over Constitution
JOHN MARSHALL

Richard N. Current

Associate Professor of History
Mills College
Author: Old Thad Stevens
PHILETUS SAWYER,
CHRISTOPHER LATHAM SHOLES,
THADDEUS STEVENS

David Daiches

Formerly Professor of English
Cornell University;
University Lecturer in English
Cambridge University, England
Author: The Place of Meaning in Poetry; New Literary Values: Studies in Modern Literature; Poems in English 1930-1940; Poetry and the Modern World
T. S. ELIOT

Dominic de la Salandra

VASCO NUÑEZ DE BALBOA

René Jules Dubos

Author: Louis Pasteur—Free Lance of Science
Editor: Journal of Experimental Medicine
LOUIS PASTEUR

Clement Eaton

Professor of History
University of Kentucky
Author: Freedom of Thought in the Old South; A History of the Old South
ALEXANDER HAMILTON STEPHENS

Alfred Einstein (deceased)

Professor of Music
Smith College
Author: Mozart, His Character, His Work
WOLFGANG AMADEUS MOZART

David Ewen

Author: Haydn: A Good Life
JOSEPH HAYDN

DeLancey Ferguson

Chairman of the English Department
Brooklyn College
RUDYARD KIPLING

Louis Filler

Associate Professor of American Civilization and Literature
Antioch College
Author: Crusaders for American Liberalism
WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON

Paul Abraham Freund

Charles Stebbins Fairchild Professor of Law
Harvard Law School
LOUIS DEMBITZ BRANDEIS

Claude Moore Fuess

Headmaster (1933-47)
Phillips Andover Academy
Author: Calvin Coolidge, The Man from Vermont
CALVIN COOLIDGE

Leo Gershoy

Professor of History
New York University
NAPOLEON I

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Lawrence Henry Gipson

Research Professor of History
Lehigh University
Author: The Great War for the Empire; The American Revolution as an Aftermath of the Great War for the Empire and Other Essays in American Colonial History; The British Empire in the Eighteenth Century

THE FRENCH AND INDIAN WARS

Louis Gottschalk

Professor of History
University of Chicago
Author: Lafayette Comes to America; Lafayette Joins the American Army; Lady-in-Waiting—The Romance of Lafayette and Aglaé de Hunolstein; Lafayette and the Close of the American Revolution; The Letters of Lafayette to Washington; Lafayette between the American and the French Revolution (1783–1789)

MARQUIS DE LAFAYETTE

Garland Greever

Professor Emeritus of English
University of Southern California;
Visiting Professor of English
George Pepperdine College
Author: Facts and Backgrounds of Literature, English and American (in collaboration)
Editor: Tiger-Lilies and Southern Prose

SIDNEY LANIER

Elizabeth Hazelton Haight

Professor Emeritus of Latin
Vassar College
Author: Horace and His Art of Enjoyment

HORACE

Lewis Francis Haines

Professor of Humanities and Director of the University Press
University of Florida

CHARLES READE

Abram L. Harris

Professor of Economics and Professor of the Social Sciences in the Division of the Social Sciences
University of Chicago

KARL MARX

Seale Harris

Author: Banting's Miracle
SIR FREDERICK BANTING

Lodwick Hartley

Professor of English (Head of Department)
North Carolina State College
Author: This Is Lorence: A Narrative of the Reverend Laurence Sterne

LAURENCE STERNE

Paul Harold Heisey

Professor of Bible and Religious Education
Newberry College
Author: Three Essays on Luther

MARTIN LUTHER

Robert Selph Henry

Author: The Story of the Confederacy; "First With the Most" Forrest

NATHAN BEDFORD FORREST,
ROBERT E. LEE

William Best Hesseltine

Professor of History
University of Wisconsin
Author: Ulysses S. Grant

ULYSSES S. GRANT

Eldon Cleon Hill

Associate Professor of English
Miami University
Author: A Biographical Study of Hamlin Garland 1860–1895

HAMLIN GARLAND

David Hinshaw

Author: Herbert Hoover, American Quaker

HERBERT HOOVER

Fletcher Hodges, Jr.

Curator of the Foster Hall Collection
University of Pittsburgh

STEPHEN COLLINS FOSTER

Stanley F. Horn

Author: The Army of Tennessee
THOMAS JONATHAN JACKSON

Mark DeWolfe Howe

Professor of Law
Harvard University
Editor: Holmes Pollock Letters (Correspondence of Mr. Justice Holmes and Sir Frederick Pollock, 1874–1932); Touched with Fire (Civil War Letters of O. W. Holmes Jr.); Holmes Laski Letters (Correspondence of Mr. Justice Holmes and Harold J. Laski, 1916–1935)

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES

Allan F. Hubbell

Assistant Professor of English
University of Denver
Editor: American Speech

ENGLISH

William Thomas Hutchinson

Professor of American History and Chairman of the Department of History
University of Chicago

Author: Cyrus Hall McCormick: Seed-Time (1809–1856); Cyrus Hall McCormick: Harvest (1856–1884)

CYRUS HALL MCCORMICK

Clyde Kenneth Hyder

Professor of English
University of Kansas
Author: Swinburne's Literary Career and Fame

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE

Marquis James

Author: Andrew Jackson, The Border Captain; Andrew Jackson: Portrait of a President

ANDREW JACKSON

Frederick Lafayette Jones

Professor of English
University of Pennsylvania
Author: An Examination of the Shelley Legend (in collaboration)

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY

Henry Donaldson Jordan

Professor of English History
Clark University

RICHARD CODBEN

Harnett Thomas Kane

Author: Louisiana Hayride; The American Rehearsal for Dictatorship

HUEY LONG

Sheila Kaye-Smith

Author: Speaking of Jane Austen (in collaboration with G. B. Stern); More about Jane Austen (in collaboration with G. B. Stern)

JANE AUSTEN

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Abraham C. Keller

Associate Professor of French
University of Washington
FRANÇOIS RABELAIS

Dayton Kohler

Associate Professor of English
Virginia Polytechnic Institute
WILLA CATHER

Author: Plato's Theory of Ethics; Plato's Theory of Education; Plato's Theory of Art
PLATO

Eric Philbrook Kelly

Professor of Journalism
Dartmouth College
Author: Helen Modjeska
HELENA MODJESKA

Louis Knott Koontz

ROBERT DINWIDDIE

Louis Eleazer Lord

Professor Emeritus of Classics
Oberlin College
Author: Aristophanes
ARISTOPHANES

Fred C. Kelly

Author: George Ade—Warmhearted Satirist
Editor: The Permanent Ade
GEORGE ADE

Laurence J. Lafleur

Head of the Department of Philosophy
University of Akron
Author: Bentham's Principles of Morals and Legislation
JEREMY BENTHAM

Robert Phillips Ludlum

President of Blackburn College
JOSHUA REED GIDDINGS

Geoffrey Keynes

Consulting Surgeon
St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London
Author: Bibliography of William Harvey
WILLIAM HARVEY

Wheaton Joshua Lane

Former Instructor in History
Princeton University
Author: Commodore Vanderbilt
CORNELIUS VANDERBILT

Gerstle Mack

Author: Paul Cézanne; La Vie de Paul Cézanne (translation by Nancy Bouwens)
PAUL CÉZANNE

Pearl Kibre

Associate Professor of History
Hunter College
ALBERTUS MAGNUS

Lewis Leary

Professor of English
Columbia University

Malcolm Lorimer MacLeod

Associate Professor of English
University of Florida
Author: A Concordance to the Poems of Robert Herrick; An Analysis of Herrick's Vocabulary
ROBERT HERRICK

Willard Leroy King

Author: Melville Weston Fuller
MELVILLE WESTON FULLER

Paul F. Leedy

Professor of English
Bowling Green State University
ALEXANDER POPE

Kemp Malone

Donovan Professor of English Literature
The Johns Hopkins University
Author: The Thorkelin Transcripts of Beowulf
ALFRED (THE GREAT),
BEOWULF

Lewis Mansfield Knapp

Professor of English (Chairman of Department)
Colorado College
Author: Tobias Smollett, Doctor of Men and Manners
TOBIAS SMOLLETT

Wilmarth Sheldon Lewis

Editor: A Selection of the Letters of Horace Walpole; Horace Walpole's Fugitive Verses; Yale Edition of Horace Walpole's Correspondence, 16 Volumes, to be completed 1965 in 50 Volumes
HORACE WALPOLE

Bernhard Knollenberg

Associate Fellow
Saybrook College
Yale University
Author: Washington and the Revolution: A Re-Appraisal
GEORGE WASHINGTON

Watt Pearson Marchman

Director of the Hayes Memorial Library
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES

Edwin B. Knowles

Professor of English
Pratt Institute
MIGUEL DE CERVANTES

David Alexander Lockmiller

President of the University of Chattanooga
Author: Sir William Blackstone
SIR WILLIAM BLACKSTONE

Helen Edith Marshall

Professor of Social Science
Illinois State Normal University Author: Dorothea Dix: Forgotten Samaritan
DOROTHEA LYNDE DIX

Rupert Clendon Lodge

Visiting Professor
Long Island University

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

John Sedberry Marshall

Professor of Philosophy
University of the South

ARISTOTLE

Bernard Mayo

Professor of American History
University of Virginia

Author: Henry Clay, Spokesman of the New West

HENRY CLAY

Walter Flavius McCaleb

Fellow in History
University of Chicago

Author: The Aaron Burr Conspiracy

AARON BURR

George Leslie McKay

Author: A Bibliography of Robert Bridges

ROBERT BRIDGES

Silas Bent McKinley

Author: Old Rough and Ready

ZACHARY TAYLOR

James G. McManaway

Consultant in Literature and Bibliography
The Folger Shakespeare Library

Editor: Shakespeare Quarterly

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

John Robert Moore

Professor of English and Library Consultant in Augustan Literature
Indiana University

Author: Daniel Defoe and Modern Economic Theory; Defoe in the Pillory and Other Studies; Defoe's Sources for "Robert Drury's Journal"

Editor: Defoe's Essay on the Regulation of the Press

DANIEL DEFOE

Glenn R. Morrow

Adam Seybert Professor of Moral and Intellectual Philosophy and Dean of the College
University of Pennsylvania

Author: The Ethical and Economic Theories of Adam Smith

ADAM SMITH

George Henry Nettleton

Lampson Professor (Emeritus) of English
Yale University

Author: English Drama of the Restoration and Eighteenth Century; The Major Dramas of Richard Brinsley Sheridan; British Dramatists from Dryden to Sheridan

RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN

Roy Franklin Nichols

Professor of History and Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences
University of Pennsylvania

Author: Franklin Pierce

FRANKLIN PIERCE

Russell Blaine Nye

Professor of English (Head of Department) and Director of Language and Literature
Michigan State College

Author: George Bancroft: Brahmin Rebel; Fettered Freedom: Civil Liberties and Slavery

GEORGE BANCROFT

Whitney J. Oates

Andrew Fleming West Professor of Classics (Chairman of Department) and Chairman of the Special Program in the Humanities
Princeton University

Author: The Stoic and Epicurean Philosophers

EPICURUS

Charles W. Olsen

Author: John Brown

JOHN BROWN

Howard Rollin Patch

Professor of English
Smith College

Author: The Tradition of Boethius

ANICIUS BOETHIUS

Rembert W. Patrick

Professor of American History and Social Sciences and Chairman of the Department of History
University of Florida

Author: Jefferson Davis and His Cabinet

JEFFERSON DAVIS

Donald Culross Peattie

Author: Singing in the Wilderness: A Salute to John James Audubon; Forward the Nation

JOHN JAMES AUDUBON, SACAJAWEA

Kenneth Wiggins Porter

Author: John Jacob Astor, Businessman

ABRAHAM,
JOHN JACOB ASTOR,
COACOCOCHEE,
SAMUEL GORTON, OSCEOLA

Levi Arnold Post

Professor of Greek
Haverford College;

Editor of the Loeb Classical Library

Translator: Menander—Three Plays

MENANDER

Frederick A. Pottle

Sterling Professor of English
Yale University

Author: The Literary Career of James Boswell

Editor: Boswell's London Journal, 1763-1763; Boswell in Holland, 1763-1764

JAMES BOSWELL

John H. Powell

Research Librarian
Free Library of Philadelphia

JOHN ADAMS (in collaboration with Catherine Drinker Bowen)

Lawrence Clark Powell

Director of the William Andrews Clark Memorial Library
University of California

Author: An Introduction to Robinson Jeffers; Robinson Jeffers, the Man and His Work

ROBINSON JEFFERS

Julius William Pratt

Professor of American History and Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences University of Buffalo

JAMES MONROE

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Robert A. Pratt

Professor of English
University of North Carolina

Author: Sources and Analogues of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales (in collaboration)

GEOFFREY CHAUCER

Benjamin Quarles

Dean of Instruction
Dillard University

Author: Frederick Douglass
Assistant Editor: The Journal of Negro History

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

J. G. Randall (deceased)

Professor of History
University of Illinois

Author: The Civil War and Reconstruction; Lincoln the President; Lincoln and the South; Lincoln the Liberal Statesman

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Fannie Elizabeth Ratchford

Director of Rare Book Collections
University of Texas

Author: The Brontës' Web of Childhood; The Legends of Angria

BRONTË FAMILY

Gordon Norton Ray

Professor of English (Head of Department)
University of Illinois

Author: The Letters and Private Papers of William Makepeace Thackeray; The Buried Life: a study of the relation between Thackeray's fiction and his personal history

WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY

Thomas Middleton Raysor

Professor of English
University of Nebraska

Editor: Coleridge's Shakespearean Criticism; Coleridge's Miscellaneous Criticism

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE

Richard Ashley Rice

Professor of English Literature
Smith College

Author: Studies of Wordsworth and Byron; The Best of Byron

GEORGE GORDON NOEL BYRON

Lawrence Melville Riddle

Professor Emeritus of French
University of Southern California

Author: Sources of Pierre Corneille's Tragedies from Médée to Pertharite

Editor: Corneille's Cinna

PIERRE CORNEILLE,

JEAN ROTROU

Frank Humphrey Ristine

Professor Emeritus of English Literature
Hamilton College

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER

William J. Roach

Professor of Romance Languages
University of Pennsylvania

Author: The Continuations of the Perceval of Chrétien de Troyes

CHRÉTIEN DE TROYES

Roy Marvin Robbins

Professor of History and Political Science (Head of Department)
Butler University

Author: Our Land's Heritage: A History of the Public Domain, 1776-1936

HORACE GREELEY

Charles Alexander Robinson, Jr.

Professor of Classics
Brown University

Author: The Ephemerides of Alexander's Expedition; Alexander the Great

ALEXANDER THE GREAT

George Washington Robinson

Author: Errata in Cotton Mather's Magnalia

COTTON MATHER

Charles Alfred Rochedieu

Associate Professor of History
Vanderbilt University

JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Frederick William Roe

Professor Emeritus of English
University of Wisconsin

Author: Carlyle as a Critic of Literature; Social Philosophy of Carlyle and Ruskin

Editor: Ruskin—Selections and Essays; Carlyle—Sartor Resartus

THOMAS CARLYLE,

JOHN RUSKIN

Woodburn O. Ross

Professor of English
Wayne University

W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM

Kenneth R. Rossman

Professor of History (Chairman of Department)
Doane College

Author: Chester A. Arthur and the Civil Service Reform; Thomas Mifflin and the Politics of the American Revolution

CHESTER A. ARTHUR,

THOMAS MIFFLIN

William Hobart Royce

Founder and President of The Balzac Society of America

Author: A Balzac Bibliography

HONORÉ DE BALZAC (in collaboration with N. E. Saxe)

Una Bernard Sait

Former Professor of Philosophy
Scripps College

Author: Implications of Bergson's Philosophy

HENRI LOUIS BERGSON

N. E. Saxe

Chairman of the Division of Humanities and Head of the Department of Modern Languages
Washburn University

HONORÉ DE BALZAC (in collaboration with William Hobart Royce)

J. Salwyn Schapiro

Professor Emeritus of History
The City College of New York

Author: Condorcet and the Rise of Liberalism

CONDORCET

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Ferdinand Schevill

Former Professor of Modern History
University of Chicago
Author: History of Florence
MACHIAVELLI

Paul Arthur Schilpp

Professor of Philosophy
Northwestern University
ALBERT EINSTEIN

Martha Hale Shackford

Professor Emeritus of English Literature
Wellesley College
Author: E. B. Browning, R. H. Horne—Two Studies; The Brownings and Leighton
Editor: Letters from Elizabeth Barrett to B. R. Haydon
ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

Robert Shafer

Professor of Literature
University of Cincinnati
GEORGE GISSING

Samuel Shellabarger

CHEVALIER DE BAYARD

Clifford Kenyon Shipton

Custodian of Archives
Harvard University
Author: Isaiah Thomas
ISAIAH THOMAS

Roger Vernon Shumate

Professor of Political Science
University of Nebraska
HENRY ADAMS

Charles Southward Singleton

Professor of Romance Languages
Harvard University
BOCCACCIO

St. George L. Sioussat

Professor of American History
University of Pennsylvania (1920-38);
Honorary Consultant in American Historiography
Library of Congress
ANDREW JOHNSON

Emily Ellsworth Ford Skeel

Author: Mason Locke Weems, His Work and Ways (in collaboration)
MASON LOCKE WEEMS

Donald Smalley

Professor of English
Indiana University
Editor: Domestic Manners of the Americans . . . with a History of Mrs. Trollope's Adventures in America
FRANCES TROLLOPE

Charles G. Smith

Professor of English
Baylor University
Author: Spenser's Theory of Friendship
EDMUND SPENSER

Herman Dunlap Smith

President of the Chicago Historical Society
Author: War Journals of Henry Dearborn, 1773-1783, with Biographical Essay
HENRY DEARBORN

Theodore Clarke Smith

Professor Emeritus of American History
Williams College
Author: Life and Letters of James Abram Garfield
JAMES ABRAM GARFIELD

Harold Edwin Blame Speight

Former Professor of Biography
Dartmouth College
Author: Life and Writings of John Bunyan
Editor: Creative Lives
JOHN BUNYAN

Benjamin Townley Spencer

Professor of English
Ohio Wesleyan University;
Visiting Professor of English
(1952-53)
Universities of Uppsala and Stockholm
Author: Seventeenth Century Studies (in collaboration)
Editor: The Bondman
PHILIP MASSINGER

Robert E. Spiller

Professor of English
University of Pennsylvania
Author: Fenimore Cooper, Critic of His Times

Editor: A Descriptive Bibliography of James Fenimore Cooper (in collaboration); James Fenimore Cooper, Representative Selections
JAMES FENIMORE COOPER

Matthew Spinka

Waldo Professor of Church History
Hartford Theological Seminary
Author: John Hus and the Czech Reform
JOHN AMOS COMENIUS,
JOHN HUS

William Edward Bloomfield Starkweather

Assistant Professor of Art and Lecturer on Spanish Art
Hunter College
Author: Drawings and Paintings of Francisco Goya in the Collection of the Hispanic Society of America
GOYA

Herbert Willmarth Starr

Assistant Professor of English
Temple University
Author: Gray as a Literary Critic
THOMAS GRAY

Vincent Starrett

Book Columnist of the Chicago Tribune
Author: Ambrose Bierce
AMBROSE GWINETT BIERCE

Lawrence D. Steefel

Professor of History
University of Minnesota
OTTO VON BISMARCK

Jack M. Stein

Assistant Professor of German
Columbia University
RICHARD WAGNER

Kate Steinitz

Librarian of the Elmer Belt Library of Vinciana
Author: Leonardo da Vinci's Manuscripts (in collaboration)
LEONARDO DA VINCI

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Randall Stewart

Professor of English
Brown University
Author: Nathaniel Hawthorne: A Biography
NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE

George Winchester Stone, Jr.

Professor of English Literature
The George Washington University
Author: The Journal of David Garrick, 1763
DAVID GARRICK

Dirk J. Struik

Professor of Mathematics
Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Author: Yankee Science in the Making
ASA GRAY

Frank Sullivan

Professor of English
Loyola University
SIR THOMAS MORE

Carl Brent Swisher

Thomas P. Stran Professor of Political Science
The Johns Hopkins University
Author: Roger B. Taney
ROGER B. TANAY

Robert Emmett Taylor

Professor of Business Law and Accounting
University of Cincinnati
Author: The Story of Robert Emmet
ROBERT EMMET

Charles Dewey Tenney

Vice-President and Provost, and Professor of Philosophy
Southern Illinois University
GEORGE MEREDITH

Adelaide Eve Thein

Former Chairman of the English Department
Doane College
WILLIAM COWPER

Helen Lewis Thomas

JOHANN KEPLER

Samuel M. Thompson

Professor of Philosophy (Head of Department)
Monmouth College
IMMANUEL KANT

Clarence DeWitt Thorpe

Professor of English
University of Michigan
Author: The Mind of John Keats
Editor: The Complete Poems and Selected Letters of John Keats
JOHN KEATS

Lewis Paul Todd

HORACE MANN

William Troy

Lecturer in Comparative Literature
The New School
HENRY JAMES

Berthold Louis Ullman

Kenan Professor of Classics (Head of Department)
University of North Carolina
Author: The Identification of the MSS. of Catullus
CATULLUS

Carl Van Doren (deceased)

JONATHAN SWIFT

Mark Van Doren (See Editorial Advisory Committee)

JOHN DRYDEN

Albert Tangeman Volwiler

Professor of History (Chairman of Department)
Ohio University
Editor: Correspondence between Benjamin Harrison and James G. Blaine BENJAMIN HARRISON

Ira Owen Wade

Professor of Modern Languages (Chairman of Department)
Princeton University

Author: The Clandestine Organization and Diffusion of Philosophic Ideas in France from 1700 to 1750; Voltaire and Mme. du Châtelet; Studies in Voltaire
VOLTAIRE

Edward Wagenknecht

Professor of English
Boston University
Author: The Man Charles Dickens: A Victorian Portrait; An Introduction to Dickens
CHARLES DICKENS

Eva Ingersoll Wakefield

Editor: The Letters of Robert G. Ingersoll
ROBERT G. INGERSOLL

Gerald Groveland Walsh (deceased)

Professor of Medieval Cultural History
Fordham University
DANTE

Harry R. Warfel (See Editorial Advisory Committee)

Author: Noah Webster: Schoolmaster to America; Charles Brockden Brown: American Gothic Novelist
CHARLES BROCKDEN BROWN,
NOAH WEBSTER

Carl J. Weber

Roberts Professor of English Literature and Curator of Rare Books
Colby College
Author: Hardy's Lost Novel; Hardy of Wessex; Hardy in America; New Light on Hardy's "Woodlanders"; Hardy and the Lady from Madison Square
THOMAS HARDY

Stanley T. Williams

Sterling Professor (Emeritus) of English
Yale University
Author: Washington Irving
WASHINGTON IRVING

Special Consultants, with the Subjects of Their Assistance

Wayne Cullen Williams

Author: The Life of William Jennings Bryan

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Ione Stuessy Wright

Associate Professor of Hispanic American History University of Miami
JOSÉ DE SAN MARTÍN

Casimir Douglass Zdanowicz (deceased)

Professor of Romance Languages
University of Wisconsin
MOLIÈRE

Barnie F. Winkelman

Author: John D. Rockefeller

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

Morton Dauwen Zabel

Professor of English
University of Chicago
Editor: The Portable Joseph Conrad
JOSEPH CONRAD

Donald Joseph Zinn

Assistant Professor of Zoölogy
University of Rhode Island
ALEXANDER AGASSIZ,
LOUIS AGASSIZ

PRONUNCIATION EDITORS AND CONSULTANTS

W. Cabell Greet

(See Editorial Advisory Committee)

R. A. Goodwin

(Editor in Charge)

Special Assistants:

Harriet Cassell

R. A. Hall, Jr.

Professor of Linguistics
Cornell University

Special Consultants:

Fang-Kuei Li

Professor of Far Eastern and Slavic Languages and Literatures
University of Washington

Joseph K. Yamagiwa

University of Michigan

SPECIAL WRITERS, WITH THEIR FIELDS

George T. Beck

MODERN POLITICAL GEOGRAPHY AND HISTORY OF INDIA

Bruno Blau

EUROPEAN GEOGRAPHY

Imre Cholnoky

MODERN HUNGARIAN LITERATURE

Henry W. Dearborn

BRITISH PHYSICAL AND SOCIAL GEOG-RAPHY

Dora Edinger

MODERN GERMAN BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Richard N. Fried

MODERN FINE ARTS OF EUROPE AND THE UNITED STATES

Helen Hause

Lecturer in Anthropology
Northwestern University

NORTH AFRICAN AND NEAR EASTERN
ETHNOLOGY

Robert E. Huke

RUSSIAN AND ASIATIC GEOGRAPHY

Lionel F. Jaffe

MODERN CHEMISTRY

Edward J. Miles

Instructor in Geography and Economics
University of Maryland

GEOGRAPHY OF THE ARCTIC AND ANTARCTIC, CANADA, AFRICA, AUS-TRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AND THE ISLANDS OF THE PACIFIC

Walter M. Mosse

Instructor in Theological German
Princeton Theological Seminary
MODERN EUROPEAN BIOGRAPHY

Hoh-Cheung Mui

Social Science Analyst of the United States Department of State

MODERN JAPANESE POLITICAL BIOG-
RAPHY AND HISTORY

Jerome P. Pickard

Instructor in Geography
University of Maryland

SPECIAL PROBLEMS IN GEOGRAPHY

Curt Proskauer

Consultant to the Library of the New York Academy of Medicine; Consulting Editor of the Journal of the History of Medicine and the Allied Sciences

MEDICAL BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

Herbert H. Rowen

Assistant Professor of History
State University of Iowa

MODERN FRENCH AND SCANDINA-VIAN BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY

OFFICE STAFF

Editors: Harriet Cassell, Jerome Fried,
W. M. Frohock, R. A. Goodwin,
William Greenleaf, Maria Leach,
Frances Murlin, Herbert Spencer
Robinson, Grace G. Shaw

Associate Editors: Caroline Brady,
Harry Freeman, Natalie Frohock,
Charles Goodrich, Leo Hamalian,
Anne Heffner, Ruth Hein, Winifred
M. Irwin, Celia Koron, Margaret
Madden, Shaemas O'Sheel,
Ethel M. Ryan, Elizabeth St. Vincent,
Pamela Taggard, Katherine

Theda, Frederick Tozer, Irving
Weiss, Carolyn D. Werley, Phyllis
Ruckgaber Winant

Editorial Assistants: W. T. Atwood, Martha H. Decrouez, Barbara Fair-berg, Ramona Grayson, Herbert J.
Landar, Ellen L. Nelson, N. Bryce
Nelson, Mary Guion Randel, John
Wasley, Roger Williams

Office Assistants: Vincenta P. Adams,
Helen Reinoff, Elizabeth Ballard, Helen Barlow, Anna-Luise Bart-ling, Marshall Brigham, Leroy

Brightman, Joan Carvon, Danny-delle W. Dandridge, Filomene
Della Donne, Dorothy Alma Drusschen, Pat Ferrara, Thomas Ger-lardi, Esther Golden, Angelina
Guido, William S. Hemingway,
Jane E. Herrick, Emma Jean Huff,
Jean G. Loftwich, Nancy Mastro,
Mary F. Noble, Catherine T. Piacentino, James W. Porter, Cynthia
A. Rogers, Harriette Roseth, Agnes Seaman, Sophie Shupin, Jaime
Burnet Spencer, Janet Stone, Ruth
C. Vickery, Marjorie C. Waldo

ABBREVIATIONS USED GENERALLY IN THESE VOLUMES

ab.	about	M.D.	Doctor of Medicine
A.D.	year of our Lord (anno domini)	mi.	miles
A.M.	before noon (ante meridiem)	M.S.	Master of Science
b.	born	N	north, northern
B.A.	Bachelor of Arts	N.	north latitude
b.c.	before Christ	NE	northeast, northeastern
B.S.	Bachelor of Science	NW	northwest, northwestern
C	central	Ph.D.	Doctor of Philosophy
c	about (circa, circiter, or circum)	P.M.	after noon (post meridiem)
ch.	chapter	pop.	population
d.	died	S	south, southern
E	east, eastern	S.	south latitude
E.	east longitude	Sc.	Scottish
ed.	edition	SE	southeast, southeastern
Eng. trans.	English translation	sq.	square
est.	estimated	SW	southwest, southwestern
etc.	and so forth (et cetera)	UN	United Nations
et seq.	and afterward (et sequens)	U.S.	United States
F.	French	U.S.S.R.	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
fl.	flourished (floruit)	v.	verse
ft.	feet	vol.	volume
i.e.	that is (id est)	vols.	volumes
kw.	kilowatt	W	west, western
M.A.	Master of Arts	W.	west longitude

ABBREVIATIONS FOR STATES

Ala.	Alabama	N.C.	North Carolina
Ariz.	Arizona	N.D.	North Dakota
Ark.	Arkansas	Neb.	Nebraska
Calif.	California	Nev.	Nevada
Colo.	Colorado	N.H.	New Hampshire
Conn.	Connecticut	N.J.	New Jersey
D.C.	District of Columbia	N.M.	New Mexico
Del.	Delaware	N.Y.	New York
Fla.	Florida	Okla.	Oklahoma
Ga.	Georgia	Ore.	Oregon
Ill.	Illinois	Pa.	Pennsylvania
Ind.	Indiana	R.I.	Rhode Island
Kan.	Kansas	S.C.	South Carolina
Ky.	Kentucky	S.D.	South Dakota
La.	Louisiana	Tenn.	Tennessee
Mass.	Massachusetts	Tex.	Texas
Md.	Maryland	Va.	Virginia
Me.	Maine	Vt.	Vermont
Mich.	Michigan	Wash.	Washington
Minn.	Minnesota	Wis.	Wisconsin
Miss.	Mississippi	W.Va.	West Virginia
Mo.	Missouri	Wyo.	Wyoming
Mont.	Montana

ABBREVIATIONS FOR BOOKS OF THE BIBLE

Gen.	Genesis	Zech.	Zechariah
Ex.	Exodus	Mal.	Malachi
Lev.	Leviticus	Mat.	Matthew
Num.	Numbers	Rom.	Romans
Deut.	Deuteronomy	1 Cor.	I. Corinthians
Josh.	Joshua	2 Cor.	II. Corinthians
1 Sam.	I. Samuel	Gal.	Galatians
2 Sam.	II. Samuel	Eph.	Ephesians
1 Chron.	I. Chronicles	Phil.	Philippians
2 Chron.	II. Chronicles	Col.	Colossians
Neh.	Nehemiah	1 Thes.	I. Thessalonians
Ps.	Psalms	2 Thes.	II. Thessalonians
Prov.	Proverbs	1 Tim.	I. Timothy
Ecl.	Ecclesiastes	2 Tim.	II. Timothy
Cant.	Canticles (Song of Solomon)	Phile.	Philemon
Isa.	Isaiah	Heb.	Hebrews
Jer.	Jeremiah	Jas.	James
Lam.	Lamentations	1 Pet.	I. Peter
Ezek.	Ezekiel	2 Pet.	II. Peter
Dan.	Daniel	Rev.	Revelation
Hos.	Hosea
Obad.	Obadiah	Eclues.	Ecclesiasticus
Hab.	Habakkuk	Bar.	Baruch
Zeph.	Zephaniah	1 Mac.	I. Maccabees
Hag.	Haggai	2 Mac.	II. Maccabees

The New
CENTURY CYCLOPEDIA
OF Names

KEY TO PRONUNCIATION

a as in fat, man, pang, parrot.

ā as in fate, mane, dale.

ā as in far, father, palm, guard.

ā as in ask, fast, ant

ā as in fare, hair, bear

e as in net, pen, bless.

ē as in me, meet, meat.

ê as in her, fern, herd, hurt.

i as in pin, it, biscuit.

ī as in pine, fight, file.

o as in not, on, gloss, forest, dog, god (a variable sound: in the speech of some, or in some words, approaching ā; in other cases, approaching ô).

ô as in note, poke, floor.

ô as in move, spoon, room.

ô as in nor, song, off.

u as in up, son, blood.

ū as in mute, few, lute, tube (in many words, after l, t, etc., replaced in common speech by ô).

û as in pull, book, could.

oi as in oil, joint, boy.

ou as in out, proud, now.

A single dot under a vowel in an unaccented syllable indicates shortening and lightening, without absolute loss of the distinctive quality. Thus:

ā as in aviary, prelate, captain.

ē as in elect, ablegate, episcopal.

ō as in agony, abrogate, democrat.

ō as in into, injury.

ū as in unite, singular, educate.

Two dots under a vowel in an unaccented syllable indicate that its sound is obscured. Thus:

a as in errant, publican, rural.

e as in ardent, prudence, towel.

o as in actor, valor, idiot.

ū as in nature, feature, natural.

ch as in chip, much.

g as in go, bag.

s as in say, yes, vice.

th as in thin.

th as in then.

y as in you, yet.

A mark (-) under the consonants d, s, t, z, indicates that they are variable to j, sh, ch, zh. Thus:

đ as in arduous, educate.

ş as in nausea, appreciation.

ţ as in nature, adventure.

z as in aphasia, usury.

o as in French cloche, German schloss (a short or medium open o-sound, intermediate in character between ô and ô: not an English sound).

ü as in French menu, German kümmel, Müller.

ch as in Scotch loch, German ach.

ñ nasal n, as in French bonbon.

B as in Spanish Habana, Córdoba (sounded almost like v).

H as in Spanish jacal, gitana (a strongly aspirated, guttural h-sound).

' as in French faille, Swedish Strindberg (to indicate an obscure vowel-sound following a consonantal y-sound).

' denotes a primary accent, " a secondary accent. (A secondary accent is not ordinarily marked if it occurs at its regular interval of two syllables from the primary, or from another secondary.)

In the pronunciation of French words (except such as are regarded as at least partially Anglicized) no accents are indicated. This is the usage of French dictionaries, and is better suited to the light, nearly uniform accentuation of French words than the use of marks customarily denoting the heavier tonic accent of English words.

Nala (nā'la). In Hindu mythology and legend, a monkey chief who had the power of making stones float on water. The Ramayana describes how he built a bridge from the SE tip of India to Ceylon, over which Rama passed with his army to rescue his wife Sita. The 30-mile series of shoals now known as Adam's Bridge (or Rama's Bridge) are by tradition the remains of this.

Nala. In Hindu literature, king of Nishadha, and husband of Damayanti. The episode of Nala and Damayanti is one of the most celebrated of the Mahabharata. It has been translated into English by Milman, and by Sir Edwin Arnold in his Indian Idylls.

Nalagarh (nā'la-gār; -gur). [Also, Hindur.] Former state, now merged into the Patiala and East Punjab States Union, Union of India, ab. 130 mi. E of Lahore, Pakistan; wheat and rice. Area, 276 sq. mi.; pop. 52,737 (1941).

Nalchik (nāl'chik). City in the U.S.S.R., capital of the Kabardinian Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic, in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in the N foothills of the Caucasus Mountains. It has been for some years a vacation resort and health center, and is now important also for the manufacture of hydroelectric equipment and other types of industrial machinery. It was occupied in World War II for about three months by the Germans. Pop. ab. 48,000 (1939).

Nalkowska (nāl.kōf'skă), Zofja. b. at Warsaw, Poland, 1885—. Polish novelist, reformer, and playwright. A keen student and partisan of social reform, she became identified, after World War II, with the radical wing of Polish socialism which collaborated with the Communist government. Her works, all of which bear the stamp of the sociologist, include the novels The Jackdaw (1927), Unwholesome Love (1928), Walls of the World (1930), The Boundary Line (1931), and The Impatient Ones (1939), and two plays, House of Womenfolk (1930) and The Day of his Return (1931).

Nalodaya (nā.lō'da.ya). [Eng. trans., "Nala's Rise."] Sanskrit poem ascribed to Kalidasa (but probably not the great poet of that name) and describing especially the restoration of the fallen Nala to prosperity.

NAM. Abbreviation of National Association of Manufacturers.

Nama (nā'mā). [Also, Namaqua (nā.mā'kwa).] Hottentot subgroup, inhabiting the S part of South-West Africa and the NE part of the Union of South Africa.

Namaland (nā'mā.land), German. Name given by the German Colonial Society for South-West Africa to the S part of that region (under German control until World War I), now known as Great Namaqualand.

Namaland, Great and Little. See Namaqualand, Great, and Namaqualand, Little.

Namangan (nā.mān.gān'). [Also, Namagan (nā.mā.gān').] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Uzbek Soviet Socialist Republic, C Asia, situated in the Fergana valley, near the Syr-Darya: cotton and silk textile and cotton-processing industries. It is an important trade center in an irrigated region producing cotton, wine grapes, fruits, and vegetables. 77,351 (1939).

Namaqualand (nā.mā'kwa.land), Great. [Also, Great Namaland.] Region in the S part of South-West Africa, from about Walvis Bay to the border of the Union of South Africa.

Namaqualand, Little. [Also, Little Namaland.] Region in S Africa, in the W part of Cape of Good Hope province, Union of South Africa, S of the Orange River.

Namare (nā.mār'ē). Latin name of Melk, Austria.

Nambe (nam'bē). Small Pueblo Indian village in New Mexico near Santa Fe. The inhabitants are Tewa Indians, are called Nambe, after their village, and speak Tewa, a language in the Tanoan family.

Namen (nā'men). Flemish name of Namur.

Nameoki (nām.ē.ō'ki). Former village in SW Illinois, in Madison County, annexed (1949) to Granite City. Pop. of former village area, 4,048 (1950).

Namhoi (nām'hoi'). [Mandarin Chinese, Nanhai; former name, Fatshan or Fachan.] City in SE China, in the province of Kwangtung, ab. 10 mi. SW of Canton: industrial center, river port, and fishing and trading center. 163,311 (1931).

Namib (nā'mib). Name including several central Bushman groups of S Africa, among them the Geinin, Ohanen, Koma, Ganin, and Iluinin, occupying a desert along the coast of South-West Africa.

Nam II (nām'ēl'). b. in North Korea, 1913—. Korean general. He taught school in North Korea and, after spending some years in Russia, became (1945) deputy chief of the education department in North Korea. In 1946 he became a member of the legislature and in 1949 vice-minister of education. Soon after the Korean War began he was made chief of staff at the North Korean army headquarters with the rank of lieutenant general; he led the delegation from the north at the truce conferences at Kaesong and Panmunjom (1951 et seq.).

Namnam (nām'nām). See Nadbam.

Namnetes (nām.nē'tēz). An ancient name of Nantes.

Namouna (nām.nō.nā). Narrative poem by Alfred de Musset, published in 1833.

Nampa (nām'pa). City in SW Idaho, in Canyon County, in an agricultural and dairying area; seat of Northwest Nazarene College. 16,185 (1950).

Nampula (nām.pō'la). Town in SE Africa, in Mozambique, on the railway W of Lumbo (opposite the city of Mozambique) to the interior. It is the administrative center of the province of Niassa. Pop. ab. 3,500.

Namslau (nāms'lou). German name of Namysłów.

Namsos (nām'sōs). Seaport in N central Norway, in the fylke (county) of Nord-Trøndelag, on the Namsen Fjord; shipping point and rail terminus serving the surrounding area. It has fish canneries and lumber mills and is a shipping port for pyrites mined in the interior. It was occupied (April-May, 1940) by the British during the unsuccessful Allied attempt to repulse the German attack on Norway in World War II, and was devastated by German bombing attacks. The town has been reconstructed. 4,047 (1946).

Namtaru (nām.tā'rō). In Babylonian mythology, the messenger of Allatu (goddess of death and the underworld). At her bidding Namtaru dealt out death to men through the medium of one or more of the 60 diseases of which he was lord.

Nam Tso (nām' tsō'). See Tengri Nor.

Namuchi (nām.mō'chē). In Hindu mythology, in the Vedas, a demon overcome by Indra. Indra told Namuchi he would kill him not with hand or fist, bow or spear, neither by night nor by day. When Indra killed Namuchi it was dim morning light, and he killed him with the foam of the sea. This was not a strange weapon for the god of sky and weather to use since according to Hindu belief all Indra's power could be concentrated in the foam.

Namur (nā.mār'; French, nā.mür). [Flemish, Namen.] Province of Belgium, bounded by Brabant on the N, Liège on the NE, Luxembourg on the E, France on the S, and Hainaut on the W. It is traversed by the Meuse and Sambre rivers and their tributaries, with soils of notable fertility in these river valleys. It includes the E third of the Charleroi coal basin, and has important metal and other industries. There are iron mines and slate quarries. The population is composed chiefly of French-speaking Walloons. Capital, Namur; area, 1,413 sq. mi.; pop. 356,090 (1947).

Namur. [Flemish, Namen.] City in S central Belgium, the capital of the province of Namur, situated at the junction of the Sambre and Meuse rivers, SE of Brussels. A center of the Belgian cutlery industry, it also manufactures brass and iron ware, machinery, glass, and leather goods. The site of the ancient citadel, above the city, is now occupied by a hotel and a park. Namur is the seat of a bishopric, and has a library and archaeological museum. The Cathedral of Saint Aubain dates from the 18th century, the Church of Saint Loup from the 17th century. Namur was the residence of Don John of Austria in the 16th century; the French under Louis XIV took it in 1692; Vauban renewed the defenses; William III of Orange took the town from the French in 1695; the French held it again in 1702-12 and 1794-1814. The outlying fortifications were constructed after 1895. In World War I, the Germans took Namur after heavy fighting on Aug. 24-25, 1914. It was also the scene of fighting in World War II; considerable damage was done. The German drive in the "Battle of the Bulge" was partly aimed at Namur, but did not succeed in reaching it. 31,444 (1947).

Namur, County of. Medieval county of the Netherlands, largely comprised in the present province of Namur, Belgium. It was conquered during the years 1421-29 by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, in the period when Burgundy was the most powerful of the smaller European states. It was one of the 17 provinces of the Netherlands.

Namur and Charleroi (shâr'le.roi; French, shâr-le.rwâ).

Battle of. Military operation on the Western Front during the early period of World War I. It began when the fortress city of Namur on the Meuse and Sambre rivers, protecting the Belgian-French border, was occupied (Aug. 22, 1914) by the German Second Army under General von Bülow. In the following two days, von Bülow defeated the French Fifth Army in the Battle of Namur and Charleroi, and advanced into N. France.

Namysław (nă.mis'łôf). [German, Namslau.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Opole, formerly in German Silesia, situated on the Weide River ab. 29 mi. E of Wrocław. The parish church dates from the 15th century, the castle and town hall from the 14th century. It came under Prussian rule in 1772; part of Poland since 1945. Pop. 8,194 (1939), 4,095 (1946).

Nan (nan). The Tragedy of. Drama (1909) by John Masefield.

Nana (nă.nă). Novel by Émile Zola, one of the Rougon-Macquart series, published in 1880. A commentary on social corruption, it is the story of Nana, an actress, who infatuates men and dissipates their fortunes.

Nana (nan'ă). Dog who serves, in a manner of speaking, as nurse for the Darling children, Wendy, Michael, and John, in Peter Pan (1904), the fairy play by Sir James M. Barrie.

Nannā (nă.nă'ă). [Also: Nana, Nanai.] Ancient Babylonian goddess of Elymais, identified with Ishtar, whose chief seat of worship was at Erech (the modern Warka), where she had a sanctuary called E-an-na, meaning "house of heaven." The Assyrian king Assurbanipal (c668-626 B.C.) relates in his annals (645) that he restored the image of the goddess to her ancient seat at Erech, from which it had been carried away some 1,600 years before by the Elamites.

Nanabozho (nan.ă.bô'zô). See Manabozho.

Nanai (nă.ni). See Nanai.

Nanaimo (nă.ni'mô). Seaport on the E coast of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Canada, N of Victoria and opposite the city of Vancouver: ships coal and lumber; herring fisheries. 7,196 (1951).

Nanak (nă.nak). b. at Talwandi, near Lahore, in what is now Pakistan, 1469; d. Oct. 10, 1538. Founder of the Hindu sect of the Sikhs. Originally a Hindu in belief as in birth, he was influenced by the surrounding Mohammedans so far as to denounce what he considered to be idolatry in the religious practices of most Hindus. He wishes to unite Hindus and Mohammedans on the ground of a belief in one God, though his creed was rather pantheistic than monotheistic.

Nana Sahib (nă.nă sâ'hîb). [Original name, Dandhu Panth.] b. c.1825; d. probably c.1860. Peshwa (ruler) of the Marhattas, and one of the leaders in the Sepoy mutiny (1857) in India. He directed the massacre at Cawnpore in 1857, and continued the war (1857-59) in Oudh and elsewhere.

Nanchang (năn'chăng'). City in E central China, the capital of the province of Kiangsi: an important road junction and the chief trading center of the province; manufactures cloth. Nanchang is an ancient city, surrounded by a wall. In World War II it was captured by the Japanese in March, 1939, and remained in their possession until the end of the war. Area of municipality, ab. 59 sq. mi.; pop. 203,101 (1946).

Nanchang Uprising. Revolt staged Aug. 1, 1927, in China, by the 20th Army under Ho Lung and Yeh T'ing after the previous purge of Chinese Communists from the Kuomintang by Chiang Kai-shek. It marked the beginning of the Chinese Communists' armed struggle for power.

Nancréde (nan.kred'), Charles Beylard Guérard de. b. at Philadelphia; Dec. 30, 1847; d. at Ann Arbor, Mich., April 12, 1921. American surgeon. He was graduated

(M.D., 1869) from the University of Pennsylvania, and also received (1883) a medical degree from the Jefferson Medical College. He established his practice at Philadelphia, lectured at the University of Pennsylvania, and became (1882) professor of general and orthopedic surgery at the Philadelphia Polyclinic. He was named (1887) lecturer on surgery at Dartmouth College, where he served (1900-13) as professor of surgery. He was (1889-1921) professor of surgery and clinical surgery and chief of the surgical service of the hospital and clinic at the University of Michigan. Author of Essentials of Anatomy (1888) and Lectures upon the Principles of Surgery (1899).

Nancy (nan'si; French, nă.nsê). City in NE France, the capital of the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle, situated on the Meurthe River and near the Marne-Rhine Canal. The seat of a bishopric and of a university, it is also a commercial and industrial center, with cotton, woolen, glass, pottery, metal, and leather and shoe industries. Architecturally the center of the city has preserved the character of the 17th century. The main buildings, the Hôtel de Ville, the episcopal palace, the theater, and others are centered around the Place Stanislas. The Pépinière is a park, laid out in the 18th century. The cathedral was begun in 1703, after plans by Hardouin-Mansart. There are an art museum and a historical museum of Lorraine. Nancy was the capital of the old duchy of Lorraine. Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, was defeated here and slain by the Swiss in 1477. The French took Nancy in 1633 but returned it to Lorraine in 1661; it flourished under Duke Leopold and particularly under Stanislas Leszczyński, dethroned king of Poland, who reigned at Nancy from 1737 to 1766. After his death, the city fell to France. The university was transferred to Nancy from Pont-à-Mousson in 1768. The city developed industrially after 1871 when many Alsatian manufacturers immigrated to it. Nancy was under bombardment during World War I, but suffered little damage in World War II. 113,477 (1946).

Nancy (nan'si). In Charles Dickens's Oliver Twist, the mistress of Bill Sikes, who brutally murders her.

Nanda (nun'dă, nan'dă). In Indian history, a king or dynasty that reigned at Pataliputra, overthrown by Chandragupta the Maurya c.315 B.C.

Nanda. In Hindu mythology, the name of a cowherd who was the foster father of Krishna. Nanda substituted his own infant daughter for the infant Krishna, in an attempt to deceive the uncle of Krishna, who was determined to kill the young god.

Nanda Brookenham (nan'dă brük'en.ham). See Brookenham, Nanda.

Nanda Devi (nun'dă dă'vî). Mountain in the Himalayas, in Uttar Pradesh, N. Union of India. It was climbed by an Anglo-American expedition in 1936. Elevation, 25,645 ft.

Nander (năn'dér). Town in Hyderabad, Union of India, ab. 150 mi. NW of the city of Hyderabad. It is a trading center noted for the oranges grown in the area. Pop. ab. 35,000.

Nandi (năn'dô). Nilotic-speaking people of E Africa, occupying an area in W Kenya S and E of Mount Elgon. Their population is estimated at ab. 45,000 (by I. Schapera, Some Problems of Anthropological Research in Kenya Colony, 1949). Their political organization resembles that of the Masai, and the medicine man who serves as their chief is himself of Masai origin. In other respects, their culture is similar to that of the Kipsigis, to whom they are historically related. Their principal foods are millet and eleusine.

Nanga Parbat (nung'gă par'bat). Mountain in the Himalayas, in NW Kashmir, ab. 85 mi. N of Srinagar. Its summit was first attained on July 4, 1953, by a member of a German expedition. Elevation, 26,660 ft.

Nangis (năn.zhê). Small town in the department of Seine-et-Marne, France, ab. 36 mi. SE of Paris. Here on Feb. 17, 1814, Napoleon I defeated the Allies. 3,169 (1946).

Nanhai (năn'hi'). See Namhoi.

Nanine, ou le préjugé vaincu (nă.nên ô le pră.zhû.zhă vâ.nô.kû). [Eng. trans., "Nanine, or Prejudice Conquered."] Comedy by Voltaire, played in 1749. It is taken from Richardson's Pamela.

Nanini (nā.nē.nē) or Nanino (-nō), Giovanni Maria. b. at Tivoli, near Rome, c1545; d. at Rome, March 11, 1607. Italian singer, teacher, and composer. He sang at Santa Maria Maggiore and the Papal Chapel at Rome, was maestro at San Luigi de' Francesi, Santa Maria Maggiore (1579 et seq.), and the Sistine Chapel (1604 et seq.). He was also the founder of a public music-school at Rome, and composer of motets, madrigals, psalms, and canzonets.

Nankana (nāng.kā.nā). See Nakansi.

Nanking (nān'king'; Chinese, nān'jīng'). [Eng. trans., "Southern Capital"; former names: Kiangning-fu, Kinling.] City in E China, surrounded by, but not a part of, the province of Kiangsu, situated on the Yangtze River. It was once a considerable literary center, and was long noted for its porcelain tower (built in the 15th century, destroyed in 1853). It was a royal residence from 1368 to 1411. Invested by the British in 1842, it was taken by the Taipings in 1853, and retaken in 1864. It was the capital of China until the war with Japan (1937 et seq.) compelled the removal of the Chinese government of Chungking; in 1945 the capital was again established at Nanking, where it remained until the city fell to the Chinese Communist army in 1949. It is the seat of a national university. The city has heavy industry (including munitions) and an important trade along the Yangtze. Area of municipality, ab. 180 sq. mi.; pop. 1,020,000 (1950).

Nanking, Treaty of. Treaty between Great Britain and China, concluded at Nanking in 1842. By it Hong Kong was ceded to Great Britain; Canton, Amoy, Shanghai, Fuchow, and Nongpo were opened to British commerce; and China agreed to pay a considerable indemnity to Great Britain.

Nankivell (nān.kiv'el), Frank Arthur. b. at Maldon, Australia, Nov. 16, 1869—. American cartoonist and painter who was a pioneer experimenter with animated cartoons in full color for motion pictures. He studied art in Japan from 1891 to 1894, the year in which he came to San Francisco. There he published and illustrated Chic and made drawings for the San Francisco Call, Examiner, and Chronicle. He moved to New York in 1896 and worked for the daily papers; later he joined the staff of Puck. In addition, he studied portrait painting at New York and London, and did portraits in mezzotint and lithograph. His prominent sitters included Mark Twain, Chief Justice Hughes, and Justices Brandeis and Cardozo. Nan Matal (nān.mā.tāl'). Ruin on the E reef of Ponape island in the central Carolines, nicknamed "Venice." It consists of artificial islets walled with basalt, which occurs naturally in hexagonal columns not unlike logs. The spaces left between these islets form natural canals. On the islands are ruins of buildings of impressive size, with walls as high as 40 ft.

Nanna (nān'nā). In Old Norse mythology, the goddess of flowers and vegetation; wife of Balder. When Balder died, Nanna died of grief and accompanied him to Hel. When Balder returned to earth, Nanna remained in the underworld, but sent flowers to carpet the earth.

Nannar (nān'ar). See Sin.

Nanni (nān'nē), Giovanni. Original name of Annius of Viterbo.

Nanning (nān'ning'). [Also, Yungning.] City in S China, capital of the province of Kwangsi, on the Si-Kiang; rice, nuts, bamboo, and opium crops. It is a former treaty port, and a road junction and trading center. Area of municipality, ab. 300 sq. mi.; pop. 202,720 (1946); pop. of city, 88,852 (1936).

Nanping (nān'ping'). [Former name, Yenping.] City in SE China, in the province of Fukien, on the Min River; long famous for its pottery. Rice, tea, hemp, and rapeseed are the important crops. There is a copper mine just outside the city. 130,000 (1929).

Nansei-shoto (nān.sā.shō.tō). Japanese name of the Ryukyu Islands.

Nansen (nān'sen), Fridtjof. b. near Christiania (now Oslo), Norway, Oct. 10, 1861; d. at Lysaker, Norway, May 30, 1930. Norwegian arctic explorer. He entered (1880) the University of Christiania, where he devoted himself to the study of zoology. He was appointed (1882) curator in the Natural History Museum at Bergen, Norway, after having made in the same year a voyage to the Jan Mayen and Spitsbergen seas, and the sea between Iceland and Greenland, in a sealing ship, for the purpose of observing animal life in high latitudes. He took his degree at the university in 1888, crossed S Greenland from E to W on snowshoes in 1888, and was appointed (1889) curator of the Museum of Comparative Anatomy at the University of Christiania. He sailed (June, 1893) from Christiania at the head of an arctic expedition, intending to drift in a specially constructed vessel, the Fram, from the Siberian coast across the North Pole to the coast of Greenland. He returned in 1896, having reached with sledges lat. 86°14' N., two degrees and 50 minutes further than Lockwood's furthest and the northernmost point reached by man up to that time. Active in the establishment (1905) of a Norwegian government independent of Sweden, he was in 1905 appointed his country's first minister (and later, ambassador) at the Court of St. James, retiring in 1908. He served as professor of oceanography at the university from 1908 and was a member (1910-14) of oceanographic expeditions to the North Atlantic. He was awarded (1922) the Nobel peace prize for his efforts to repatriate (1918 et seq.) prisoners of war and for his steps toward alleviating (1921-23) the Russian famine. He wrote Farthest North (1897), The Norwegian North Polar Expedition 1893-96: Scientific Results (with others, 1900 et seq.), Norway and the Union with Sweden (1905), In Northern Mists (1911), Russia and Peace (1923), Hunting and Adventure in the Arctic (1925), Armenia and the Near East (1928), and others.

Nansen International Office for Refugees. Office founded on Sept. 30, 1930, by a resolution of the Assembly of the League of Nations. It carried on the work initiated by Fridtjof Nansen, the first League of Nations high commissioner for refugees. Located at Geneva, Switzerland, the office was responsible for helping with the political, legal, and financial questions arising from refugee relocations and homelessness which involved many thousands of Russian refugees scattered throughout Europe and Asia, and many German refugees after 1933. It was partly financed by League grants, partly by private donations and legacies, and by the sale of Nansen stamps. The office was dissolved in 1938.

Nan Shan (nān' shān'). Mountain system in N central China, in the provinces of Kansu and Tsinghai. It reaches a peak elevation of ab. 20,870 ft. In the NW it joins the Altyn Tagh system. Length, ab. 500 mi.

Nansouty (nān.sō.tō), Étienne Marie Antoine Champion, Comte de. b. at Bordeaux, France, May 30, 1768; d. at Paris, Feb. 6, 1815. French cavalry general, who achieved distinction in the Napoleonic wars.

Nanterre (nān'ter). Town in N France, in the department of Seine: a northwestern suburb of Paris. It has a chapel dedicated to Sainte Geneviève, the patron saint of Paris, and is a river port. 41,860 (1946).

Nantes (nānts; French, nānt). [Ancient names, Condivicnum, Namnetes.] Capital of the department of Loire-Inférieure, France, on the Loire River near its mouth. The famous Edict of Nantes was issued (1598) here by Henry IV. It has shipbuilding industries, and manufactures sugar and tobacco. It was the ancient capital of the Namnetes; resisted the Vendéens in 1793; and was the scene of the notorious "Noyades" (drownings during the Reign of Terror, 1793-94). 200,265 (1946).

Nantes, Edict of. Edict issued by Henry IV of France on April 13, 1598. It temporarily ended the religious wars of the country (see also Revocation of the Edict of Nantes). The Edict put the Huguenots on an equality with the Catholics in political rights, and certain classes of nobles and citizens of certain towns were allowed freedom of worship, although this was prohibited in Paris and its neighborhood and in episcopal cities. Military and judicial concessions were also made to the Huguenots.

Nanticoke (nān'ti.kōk). North American Indian tribe whose language was of the Algonquian family, formerly occupying E Maryland and a part of Pennsylvania.

Nanticoke. City in E Pennsylvania, in Luzerne County, on the Susquehanna River, in an area of anthracite coal production: manufactures of textiles and cigars. Incorporated as a city in 1926, it occupies the site of a former Nanticoke Indian village. 20,160 (1950).

Nanticoke Junction. A former name of Ashley, Pa.

Nantua (nān.tū.ä). Village in the department of Ain, France, ab. 29 mi. W of Geneva, Switzerland. It has a remarkable old church.

Nantucket (nan.tuk't). Town (in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in SE Massachusetts. The town includes the island of Nantucket and adjacent small islands and is coextensive with Nantucket County: summer resort and yachting center. The village was settled in 1659, was ceded to Massachusetts in 1693, was famous as a whaling center in the 18th century and the beginning of the 19th, and was nearly destroyed by fire in 1846. Pop. of town, 3,484 (1950); of village, 2,901 (1950).

Nantucket Island. Island in SE Massachusetts, in the Atlantic Ocean, included within Nantucket town. Area, ab. 44 sq. mi.

Nantucket Shoals. Group of dangerous shoals in the Atlantic, SE of Nantucket.

Nantucket Sound. That part of the Atlantic Ocean which lies between Nantucket Island on the S and Barnstable County, Mass. (Cape Cod) on the N.

Nantung (nān'tūng'). [Former name, Tungchow.] City in E China, in the province of Kiangsu, on the Yangtze River: river trade and fishing industry; silk, cotton, and poultry products. 133,396 (1955).

Nantwich (nant'wich, nant'ich). Urban district and market town in W England, in Cheshire, on the river Weaver ab. 4 mi. SW of Crewe, ab. 162 mi. NW of London by rail. The town is situated on the Cheshire salt field and has medicinal brine baths. It is also a marketing place for hides and skins, and manufactures shoes and clothing. Here on Jan. 25, 1644, Sir Thomas Fairfax defeated the Royalists under Lord Byron. 8,840 (1951).

Nanty-Glo (nan'ti.glō'). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Cambria County; bituminous coal mining. It was established in 1888; the name means "coal brook" in Welsh. 5,425 (1950).

Nantyglo and Blaina (nant'i.glō', blī'nä'). [Also, Nant-y-glo and Blaina.] Urban district in W England, in Monmouthshire, ab. 2 mi. E of Ebbw Vale, ab. 154 mi. W of London by rail: coal mining and metal industries. 11,427 (1951).

Nanumba (nā.nōm'bā). Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting the NE part of Northern Territories of the Gold Coast. Their language is related to that of the Dagomba. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is millet. They are non-Mohammedan.

Nanumea (nā.nō.mā'ī). Coral atoll in W central Pacific, northernmost of the Ellice Islands. It was occupied by U.S. Marines in 1943.

Nanyuki (nān.ū'ki). Town in Kenya colony, British East Africa, situated on the W slopes of Mount Kenya, at the end of a 146-mi. branch line from Nairobi of the Kenya-Uganda Railway. The town has an excellent climate and there is much European settlement in the area.

Naogeorgus (nā.ō.jōr'gus; German, nā'ō.gā.ōr'gūs). [Original name, Thomas Kirchmaier.] b. at Hubelschmeiss, Germany, 1511; d. at Wiesloch, Germany, Dec. 29, 1563. German writer of plays in Latin, a supporter of Luther, and an implacable foe of the papacy. His most famous play, Pammachius (1538; German, Vom Papsttum, 1539), in which the Pope is portrayed as the Antichrist, was one of the most powerful polemics of Protestantism. His comedy, Mercator seu judicium (1540; German, Der Kaufmann, 1540), was a favorite for many years. He also wrote a satirical poem, Requiem papisticum (1553).

Naoise (nā'shē). [Also: Naisi, Noise.] In Old Irish legend, one of the three sons of Usnach, lover and husband of Deirdre, and one of the best warriors of Ulster. Naoise came upon Deirdre in the forest, where she had been secluded by Conchobar, king of Ulster, so that no man might behold her. The two fell in love, Naoise and his two brothers carried Deirdre off to Scotland, and Conchobar officially banished them forever. Later he sent for them to return with promise of full pardon. But on the first night of their return Conchobar treacherously had Naoise and his two brothers slain.

Naomi (nā.ō'mī, -mī; nā.ō'mī, -mī). [Also, in Douay Version, Noemi.] In the Bible, the widow of Elimelech, a "certain man of Bethlehem-judah," whose story is told in the Book of Ruth. She was the mother-in-law of Ruth.

Naón (nā.ōn'), Rómulo S. b. 1874; d. 1941. Argentine diplomat and jurist, at one time professor of philosophy at the Colegio Nacional de Buenos Aires. He served (1914 et seq.) as Argentina's first ambassador to the U.S., and was subsequently a delegate to numerous inter-American conferences.

Naooroji (nou.rō.jē), Dadabhai. b. 1825; d. 1917. Indian political leader, first Indian member (1892-95) of the British House of Commons. He obtained admission of Indians to the civil service in 1870. A politician of the moderate school, he was an outstanding figure in the early nationalist movement and was president (1896, 1905) of the Indian National Congress. While serving in the British legislature, he founded the London India Society and the East India Association. He advocated admission of Indians to the civil services and obtained the appointment of a royal commission to investigate expenditures of the Indian government, charging that Indian poverty was caused by Britain's drain of India's wealth. Author of Poverty and Un-British Rule in India (1901).

Naos (nā'os). The 2½-magnitude star γ Argus.

Napa (nap'a). City in C California, county seat of Napa County, ab. 36 mi. NE of San Francisco; processing marketing center for a grape-growing and poultry and cattle raising area. Manufactures include leather and gloves. 13,575 (1950).

Napanea (nap'a.nē). Town in E Ontario, Canada, the county seat of Lennox and Addington County, situated on the main highway between Belleville and Kingston. 3,897 (1951).

Napata (nā.pā'ta). In ancient geography, a city in Ethiopia, situated on the Nile near what is now the hill of Barkal in N Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. On the site is a temple of Amenhotep III.

Naperville (nā'pér.vil). City in NE Illinois, in Du Page County; manufactures of upholstered furniture. It is the seat of North Central College. 7,013 (1950).

Naphthali (nā'f'ta.li). [Also, in Douay Version, Nephtali.] One of the Hebrew patriarchs; a son of Jacob and Bilhah. Gen. xxx. 8.

Naphtali. One of the tribes of Israel. Its territory was situated in Galilee, between the Jordan and the Sea of Galilee on the E and the tribe of Asher on the W. Num. i. 15, 43.

Napier (nā'pi.ēr). Seaport on the E side of North Island, New Zealand, situated on Hawke Bay ab. 165 mi. NE of Wellington. Wool and meats are the principal exports. 24,538 (1951).

Napier (nā'pi.ēr, nā'pi.ēr'), Sir Charles. b. at Merchiston Hall, near Falkirk, Scotland, March 6, 1786; d. Nov. 6, 1860. British admiral; cousin of Sir Charles James Napier (1782-1853). He entered the navy in 1799, became lieutenant in 1805, and commander in 1807. In 1814 he served in the Potomac expedition in America. In 1833 he took command of the Portuguese fleet. He defended Lisbon in 1834, and was created Count Cape St. Vincent in the peerage of Portugal. He was elected member of Parliament for Marylebone in 1842, and made rear admiral in 1846, vice-admiral in 1853, admiral in 1858. He commanded the Baltic fleet during the Crimean War, but was much censured for refusing to storm Kronstadt, the Russian fortress and naval base on the Gulf of Finland. He wrote The War in Syria (1842).

Napier, Sir Charles James. b. at Whitehall, London, Aug. 10, 1782; d. at Portsmouth, England, Aug. 29, 1853. British general; son of George Napier (1751-1804) and cousin of Sir Charles Napier (1786-1860). In 1803 he was aide-de-camp to General Fox in Ireland. He served under Lord Cathcart in Denmark in 1807, and on his return was ordered to Portugal, where he served under Sir John Moore in the retreat to La Coruña, where he was captured. He fought in Wellington's Peninsular campaigns, and was present at Cambray but not at Waterloo. In 1814, being on half pay, he entered the military college at Farnham. From 1822 to 1830 he was military resident and governor of Cephalonia, at which time he became acquainted with Byron and is said to have been offered command of the Greek army against the Turks. He was made major general in 1837 and knighted in 1838. In 1842 he undertook the conquest of Sind, which was completed by the victory of Hyderabad on March 24, 1843. He was governor of Sind until 1847. He superseded Lord Gough as commander in chief after the battle of Chillianwala, and in 1851 returned finally to England. He wrote various works on military and colonial affairs.

- Napier, Sir Francis. [Titles: 9th Baron Napier, 1st Baron Ettrick.] b. Sept. 15, 1819; d. Dec. 18, 1898. English statesman. He was British minister at Washington (1857-58) and governor of Madras (1866-72).
- Napier, George. b. at Edinburgh, March 11, 1751; d. at Clifton, near Bristol, England, Oct. 13, 1804. English army officer; father of Sir Charles James Napier (1782-1853). He was educated under David Hume, the Scottish philosopher, and entered (1767) the army. He served on Sir Henry Clinton's staff in America, and was superintendent of the laboratory at the Woolwich Arsenal, where he wrote (1788) a paper on the composition of gunpowder, which was translated into several languages.
- Napier, Sir George Thomas. b. 1784; d. 1855. English army officer and administrator; son of George Napier (1751-1804) and brother of Sir Charles James Napier (1782-1853). He was governor and commander in chief (1837-43) of the Cape of Good Hope colony, where he enforced the abolition of slavery.
- Napier, Henry Edward. b. March 5, 1789; d. Oct. 13, 1853. English author; brother of Sir Charles James Napier (1782-1853). He wrote Florentine History (1846-47) and others.
- Napier or Neper, John. [Title, Laird of Merchiston.] b. at Merchiston, near Edinburgh, 1550; d. there, April 4, 1617. Scottish mathematician, the inventor of logarithms. He was the eldest son of Archibald, the seventh Napier of Merchiston, hereditary justice-general of Scotland. He matriculated at St. Salvador's College, at St. Andrews, in 1563, and probably completed his education at the University of Paris. His Mirifici logarithmorum canonis descriptio, in which his discovery was announced, appeared in 1614. Napier's bones or rods, constructed to simplify multiplication and division, were introduced in the Rabdologia (1617). The Constructio, or method by which the canon was constructed, was published in 1619 by his son Robert, edited by Henry Briggs.
- Napier, Sir Joseph. b. at Belfast, Ireland, Dec. 26, 1804; d. Dec. 9, 1882. Irish political leader. He prepared (1849) and carried through the House of Commons the ecclesiastical code, bearing his name, which gave a substantial boon to Protestants in Ireland.
- Napier, Macvey. b. at Kirkintilloch, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, April 11, 1776; d. at Edinburgh, Feb. 11, 1847. Scottish author and editor. In 1829 he succeeded Jeffrey as editor of the Edinburgh Review, and he was editor (1830-42) of the 7th edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica.
- Napier, Robert Cornelis. [Title, 1st Baron Napier of Magdala.] b. in Ceylon, Dec. 6, 1810; d. at London, Jan. 14, 1890. British general. He was educated at the military college at Addiscombe and entered the Bengal Engineers in 1826. In the Sepoy mutiny (1857) he was chief engineer of Sir Colin Campbell's army. He served in the Chinese war in 1860. He commanded the expedition to Ethiopia and stormed the heights at Magdala (April 13, 1868). He was commander in chief in India (1870-76), governor of Gibraltar (1876-83), and field marshal (1883).
- Napier, Sir William Francis Patrick. b. near Dublin, Dec. 17, 1785; d. at Clapham Park, London, Feb. 10, 1860. British military historian and general; son of George Napier (1751-1804) and brother of Sir Charles James Napier (1782-1853). He was with Sir John Moore in the retreat to La Coruña, and served in the Peninsular campaigns. He entered the military college at Farnham with his brother Charles, and commanded a regiment in the occupation of France until 1819. Retiring on half pay, he began his literary career in 1821. In 1823 his History of the War in the Peninsula was begun; it was published between 1828 and 1840. In the years 1844-46 he published A History of the Conquest of Scinde, in 1851 A History of the Administration of Scinde, and in 1857 The Life and Opinions of his brother, Sir Charles James Napier.
- Naples (nā'plz). [Italian, Napoli; ancient names, Neapolis, Parthenope.] City and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, the capital of the province of Napoli. It is the third largest city and one of the chief seaports of Italy. Pop. of commune, 865,913 (1936), 1,027,800 (1951); of city, 709,298 (1936).

Commerce and Industry. Naples has long been the chief Italian embarkation point for overseas emigration. However, in mercantile shipping it ranks after the great ports of northern Italy. The chief imports are foodstuffs and raw materials, while the somewhat smaller export volume comprises various agricultural and industrial products. Industrial activity is concentrated in the metal and foodstuff industries: there are iron and steel mills, shipyards and repair docks, and manufactures of railroad materials, airplanes, and machines for the food industry. Among the food industries, canneries and macaroni factories are the most numerous, with olive-oil presses and distilleries following; there are also textile, garment, porcelain, paper, leather, and chemical manufactures. There is a lively commerce in agricultural products and a stock exchange. The city has extensive airport and railroad facilities, and a naval station and arsenal.

Description; Cultural Institutions. Naples' five castles include the Castel dell'Ovo, at the entrance to the harbor, considered a marvel of strength in the Middle Ages; the Castel Sant'Elmo overlooking the city; and the Castel Nuovo, in the center of the city, erected by Charles of Anjou in the 13th century. There are broad avenues along the seashore, but much of the inner town consists of narrow alleys through overcrowded slum districts (many of these quarters are now being replaced by new developments). Naples is the seat of one of the largest universities of Italy; the zoological station, marine aquarium, and laboratory are outstanding. There are many other educational institutions, including veterinary, vulcanological, technical, nautical, commercial, art, musical, and other academies and vocational schools. The Museo Nazionale contains one of the most important collections of antiquities in the world; the Museo Civico Filangeri contains sculpture and paintings; the Museo di Capodimonte contains Neapolitan porcelain; the National Library has large stocks of books and many incunabula and manuscripts. Naples has more than 500 churches. The cathedral dates from the 13th century; other medieval churches are Santa Chiara (containing the tomb of Charles of Anjou), San Lorenzo, San Giovanni Carbonara, Santa Maria del Carmine, Santissima Annunziata; others, like SS. Francesco a Paola and San Paolo Maggiore, are of later periods; the interior of most of the churches is in the lavish Neapolitan baroque style. There are a number of palaces of the Renaissance and baroque periods. The Teatro San Carlo is one of Italy's largest opera houses. The Neapolitan schools of painting, sculpture, and music flourished mainly in the 16th to 18th centuries and show all the characteristics of the baroque style, aiming chiefly at decorative beauty in the arts and the melodious line of the bel canto in music; the hilarious opera buffa originated here. The surroundings of Naples are rich in natural beauty and historical sites; particularly deserving of mention are the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum, the Catacombs of San Gennaro, Mount Vesuvius, the Phlegraean Plain, and the islands of Ischia and Capri.

History. Naples, the ancient Neapolis, was founded by refugees from the Greek colony of Cumæ c600 B.C., and conquered by the Romans in the 4th century B.C. Successively under Ostrogothic, Lombard, and Byzantine rule in the early Middle Ages, it was threatened by the Saracens, coveted by the German emperors, and finally incorporated into the Norman domain in Italy. This was subsequently taken over by the Hohenstaufen family, which was, in turn, defeated and succeeded by Charles of Anjou, the military head of the papal party. Thereafter, Naples shared the fate of the Kingdom of Naples and the Two Sicilies under the houses of Anjou, Aragon, and Bourbon (1268-1860). The city was under Napoleonic domination from 1799 to 1815, then returned to the Bourbons. It was incorporated into the modern state of Italy in 1860. The city, including the harbor installations and many historic buildings, was badly damaged during World War II, both by Allied air raids and by the retreating Germans. It was entered by the Allies on Oct. 1, 1943, and reconstruction proceeded rapidly. In the plebiscite of 1947 which created the Italian republic, Naples was a stronghold of the monarchists, and there were sporadic street riots.

Naples, Bay of. Arm of the Mediterranean, on the coast of Campania, Italy, celebrated for the beauty of its shores. Length, ab. 20 mi.

Naples, Duchy of. Duchy founded in the 6th century, dependent on the Byzantine Empire. It became independent in the beginning of the 8th century, and was conquered by the Normans in the 11th and 12th centuries.

Napo (nă'pō). River in E Ecuador, flowing SE to the Amazon. Length, ab. 600 mi.

Napoleon (nă.pō'lē.ŋn). City in NW Ohio, county seat of Henry County; marketing center for an agricultural area. It is the site of an annual Schützenfest (target-shooting contest). 5,335 (1950).

Napoleon I (nă.pō'lē.ŋn; French, nă.pō.lă.ŋn). [Also:

Napoleon Bonaparte; French, Napoléon Bonaparte; Italian, Napoleone Buonaparte (or Bonaparte); called le Petit Caporal, meaning "the Little Corporal," and "the Corsican."] b. at Ajaccio, Corsica, Aug. 15, 1769, or, according to some, at Corte, Jan. 7, 1768; d. at Longwood, St. Helena, May 5, 1821. Emperor of the French (1804-14). He was the son of Charles Marie Bonaparte and Letizia (or Laetitia) Ramolino, and Aug. 15, 1769, is the commonly accepted date of his birth, Jan. 7, 1768, being that of his brother Joseph. It has been said, but without good reason, that these dates were interchanged at the time of Napoleon's admission to the military school of Brienne in 1779, no candidate being eligible after 10 years of age. After his studies at Brienne (1779-84), he attended the military school at Paris (1784-85), and received a lieutenant's commission in the French army in 1785. At first sympathetic, he later opposed the patriot movement under Paoli in Corsica (1792-93), from which he fled; and he commanded the French artillery in the attack on Toulon, which had hoisted the flag of the Bourbons, in the same year. He was promoted to the rank of general in 1794, but was imprisoned shortly thereafter during the Thermidorian reaction. He was soon released, however, and served briefly as an artillery general in Italy. Dropped for insubordination, he received a new appointment as second in command to Barras and subdued the revolt of the sections at Paris in October, 1795, with "a whiff of grape-shot," thus saving the revolutionary government. He married Josephine de Beauharnais on March 9, 1796. Toward the close of this month (March 27) he assumed command at Nice of the French forces in Italy, which he found opposed by the Austrians and the Sardinians. He began his electrifying campaign on April 10, and, after first defeating the Austrians, turned rapidly against the Sardinians, whose defeats forced them to sign the separate convention of Cherasco (April 29). In the following month he began an invasion of Lombardy, and by a brilliant series of victories, including those of Lodi (May 10) and Arcole (November 15-17), expelled the Austrians from their possessions in the north of Italy, receiving the capitulation of Mantua, their last stronghold, on Feb. 2, 1797. Before crossing the Alps into Austrian territory he encouraged nationalist and democratic uprisings in northern Italy, and then dictated preliminaries of peace on April 18. The definitive peace of Campo Formio followed (October 17). By the treaty of Campo Formio northern Italy was reconstituted in the interest of France, which furthermore acquired the Austrian Netherlands and received a guarantee of the left bank of the Rhine. Campo Formio destroyed the coalition against France and put an end to the revolutionary war on the Continent. The only enemy that remained to France was England. At the instance of Bonaparte the willing Directory adopted the plan of attacking the English in India, which involved the conquest of Egypt and raised the vision of a French conquest of the Near and Middle East. Placed at the head of an expedition of about 35,000 men, Bonaparte set sail from Toulon on May 19, 1798, occupied Malta (June 12), disembarked at Alexandria (July 2), and defeated the Mamelukes in the decisive battle of the Pyramids (July 21). He was master of Egypt, but the destruction of his fleet by Nelson in the battle of the Nile (August 1) cut him off from France and doomed his expedition to failure. Utilizing the Sultan's declaration of war, he thereupon undertook the subjugation of Syria, and stormed Jaffa on March 7, 1799. Repulsed at Acre, the defense of which was supported by the English, he commenced a retreat to Egypt on May 21. He inflicted a final defeat on the Turks at Aboukir (July 25), transferred the command in Egypt to Kléber (August 22), and, setting sail with two frigates, arrived in the harbor of Fréjus (October 9). During his absence a new coalition, which included Russia, had been formed against France, and the Directory for a time saw its armies defeated both on the Rhine and in Italy. But before Bonaparte returned the most pressing military danger was over. With the assistance of his brother Lucien, and of Sieyès and Roger-Ducos, he executed the coup d'état of Brumaire, whereby he abolished the sorely discredited Directory and virtually made himself monarch under the title of first consul, holding office for a term of 10 years. He crossed the Alps through the Great St. Bernard Pass in May, 1800, and restored the French ascendancy in Italy by the victory of Marengo (June 14), which, with that won by Moreau at Hohenlinden (December 3), brought about the peace of Lunéville (Feb. 9, 1801). The treaty of Lunéville with the Austrians, which was based on that of Campo Formio, destroyed the coalition and restored peace on the Continent. He concluded the peace of Amiens with England on March 27, 1802. After the peace of Lunéville he returned to the task of the legislative and administrative reconstruction of France, the public institutions of which had been thrown into confusion during the Revolution. To this period belong the ending of the schism and restoration of the Roman Catholic Church by the Concordat (concluded July 15, 1801), the reorganization of education which was to culminate in the erection of the Imperial University (1808), and the establishment of the Legion of Honor (May 19, 1802). The Civil Code became law in 1804, and work continued on the other codes. Meantime, he was made consul for life (Aug. 2, 1802), had the innocent Duc d'Enghien executed (March 21, 1804), was proclaimed hereditary emperor of the French on May 18, 1804 (the coronation ceremony took place Dec. 2, 1804), and was crowned king of Italy (May 26, 1805). In the meanwhile, however, England had been provoked into declaring war (May 18, 1803), and a new coalition consisting of England, Russia, Austria, and Sweden was formed against France in 1805; Spain was allied with France. The victory of Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar (Oct. 21, 1805) followed the failure of the projected invasion of England. Breaking up his camp at Boulogne, Napoleon invaded Austria, occupied Vienna, and defeated (Dec. 21, 1805) the allied Russians and Austrians at Austerlitz. The Russians retired from the contest under a military convention; the Austrians signed the peace of Pressburg (Dec. 26, 1805); and the coalition was destroyed. Fresh intervention in Germany brought about the abolition of the Holy Roman Empire (June, 1806) and the establishment of the Confederation of the Rhine on July 12, 1806. This confederation, which was placed under Napoleon's protection, ultimately embraced nearly all the states of Germany except Austria and Prussia. Its creation, together with other provocation, caused Prussia to mobilize its army in August, and Napoleon presently found himself opposed by another coalition, with Prussia, Russia, and England as its principal members. He crushed the Prussian army at Jena and Auerstädt (October 14), entered Berlin (October 27), fought the Russians and Prussians in the drawn battle of Eylau (Feb. 7-8, 1807), defeated the Russians at the battle of Friedland (June 14), and compelled both Russia and Prussia to conclude peace at Tilsit (July 7 and 9, 1807, respectively). By a secret treaty, Russia now became the ally of France; by the open treaty, Prussia was deprived of nearly half her territory; and Napoleon was now, perhaps, at the height of his power. The imperial title was no empty form. He was the head of a great confederacy of states. He had surrounded the imperial throne with subordinate thrones occupied by members of his own family. His stepson Eugène de Beauharnais was viceroy of the kingdom of Italy in northern and central Italy; his brother Joseph was king of Naples in southern Italy; his brother Louis was king of Holland; his brother Jerome was king of Westphalia; his brother-in-law Murat was grand duke of Berg. The Confederation of the Rhine existed by virtue of his protection, and his troops occupied dismembered Prussia. He directed the policy of most of Europe. England alone, mistress of the seas, appeared to stand between him and universal dominion. England was safe from invasion, but she was vulnerable, he reasoned (though erroneously), through her commerce. Napoleon undertook to bring her to her knees by closing the ports of the Continent to her maritime trade. This policy became known as "the Continental system," and was rationalized by the Berlin decree in 1806 and the Milan decree in 1807. To further this policy of self-blockade he resolved to seize the maritime states of Portugal and Spain. His armies expelled the house of Braganza from Portugal, and on Nov. 30, 1807, the French entered Lisbon. Under pretense of guarding the coast against the English, he quartered 80,000 troops in Spain, then in 1808 enticed Ferdinand VII and his father Charles IV (who had recently abdicated) to Bayonne, extorted from both a renunciation of their claims, and placed his brother Joseph on the Spanish throne. An uprising of the Spaniards took place, followed by a popular insurrection in Portugal, movements which found response in Germany and especially in Austria. The seizure of Spain and Portugal proved in the end a fatal error. The war which it kindled, known as the Peninsular War, drained him of his resources and placed an enemy in his rear when northern Europe rose against him in 1813. The English in 1808 landed an army in Portugal, whence they expelled the French, and penetrated into Spain. Napoleon, hoping to secure himself against Austria, sought to strengthen the alliance with Czar Alexander at Erfurt (concluded Oct. 12, 1808). He then hastened in person to Spain with 250,000 men, drove out the English, and entered Madrid (Dec. 4, 1808). He was recalled by rumors of trouble in Paris and by the threatening attitude of Austria, against which he precipitated war in April, 1809. He occupied Vienna (May 13), was defeated by Archduke Charles at Aspern and Essling (May 21-22), but defeated him at Wagram (July 5-6), and concluded the peace of Schönbrunn (Oct. 14, 1809). He then divorced Josephine (Dec. 16, 1809), and for reasons of state married Maria Louisa of Austria. He annexed the Papal States in 1809 (the Pope being carried prisoner to France), and Holland in 1810. The refusal of Czar Alexander to carry out strictly the Continental System, which Napoleon himself evaded by the sale of licenses, was the final rift which brought on war with Russia. He crossed the Niemen (June 24, 1812), won the victory of Borodino (September 7), and occupied Moscow (September 14). His proffer of truce was rejected by the Russians, and he was forced by the approach of winter to begin a tardy retreat (October 8). He was overtaken by the harsh winter, and his army dwindled before the cold, hunger, and the enemy. He left the army in command of Murat (December 4) and hastened to Paris. Murat recrossed the Niemen (December 13) with 100,000 men, the remnant of the Grand Army of 600,000 veterans. The loss sustained by Napoleon in this campaign encouraged the defection of Prussia, which formed an alliance with Russia at Kalisch (Feb. 28, 1813). Napoleon defeated the Russians and Prussians at Lützen (May 2) and at Bautzen (May 20-21). Austria declared war (August 12), and Napoleon presently found himself opposed by a coalition of Russia, England, Sweden, Prussia, and Austria, of which the first three had been united since the previous year. He won his last great victory at Dresden (August 26-27), but lost the decisive battle of Leipzig (October 16, 18, and 19). Rejecting moderate peace terms from the Allies, he fought on, at Laon (March 9-10, 1814) and Arcis-sur-Aube (March 20-21), but on March 31 the Allies entered Paris. Napoleon was compelled to abdicate at Fontainebleau (April 11) but was allowed to retain the title of emperor and received the island of Elba as a sovereign principality, and an annual income of two million francs. He arrived in Elba on May 4. The Congress of Vienna convened in September, 1814, for the purpose of restoring and regulating the relations between the powers disturbed by Napoleon. Encouraged by the quarrels which arose at the Congress between the Allies, Napoleon escaped from Elba (Feb. 26, 1815), landed at Cannes (March 1), and entered Paris (March 20), the troops sent against him, including Ney with his corps, having joined his standard. At the return of Napoleon the Allies again took the field. He was finally overthrown at Waterloo (June 18, 1815) and the Allies entered Paris a second time (July 7). After futile attempts to escape to America, he surrendered himself to the British admiral Hotham at Rochefort (July 15). By a unanimous resolve of the Allies he was transported as prisoner of war to St. Helena, where he arrived on Oct. 16, 1815, and where he was detained for the rest of his life. In 1840 Louis Philippe ordered his remains to be moved to the Hôtel des Invalides, Paris. One of the most remarkable military leaders the world has ever seen, he was also a highly talented administrator, and his conquests had a profound effect on the character of Europe as well as France.

Napoleon II. [Full name, François Charles Joseph Napoléon Bonaparte, Duc de Reichstadt; called l'Aiglon, meaning "the Eaglet."] b. at Paris, March 20, 1811; d. at Schönbrunn, near Vienna, July 22, 1832. Titular king of Rome and emperor of the French; son of Napoleon I and Maria Louisa. He was created duke of Reichstadt in 1818 by his grandfather, Francis I of Austria, at whose court he resided after the overthrow of his father.

Napoleon III. [Full name, Charles Louis Napoléon Bonaparte; known as Louis Napoleon; called Carbano and Napoléon le Petit.] b. at Paris, April 20, 1808; d. at Chiselhurst, near London, Jan. 9, 1873. Emperor of the French (1852-70). He was the son of Louis Bonaparte, king of Holland, and Hortense de Beauharnais, and the nephew of Napoleon I. He lived in exile at Arenenberg and Augsburg (1815-30), joined in an unsuccessful revolt (1830-31) against the Pope in the Romagna, made an unsuccessful attempt (1836) to organize a revolution among the French soldiers stationed at Strasburg, made a descent on France near Boulogne in 1840, was captured, and was imprisoned at Ham until 1846, when he escaped. He was made a member of the National Assembly after the fall of Louis Philippe in 1848, was elected president of the republic (December, 1848), executed the coup d'état of Dec. 2, 1851, was chosen president for 10 years in December, 1851, and after a plebiscite in November, 1852, was proclaimed emperor (Dec. 2, 1852). He married Eugénie de Montijo, a Spanish countess, on Jan. 30, 1853, took part in the Crimean War (1854-56), fought with Sardinia against Austria in 1859, and was present at the battles of Magenta and Solferino, waged war in Mexico (1862-67), declared war against Germany in July, 1870, was taken prisoner at Sedan (September 2), and was imprisoned at Wilhelmshöhe, near Kassel (1870-71). He was later permitted to go to England, where he lived at Chiselhurst (1871-73). He was the author of various political and military works, including Histoire de Jules César (1865-66).

Napoléon Louis. [Full name, Prince Napoléon Louis Jérôme Victor Emmanuel Léopold Marie Bonaparte.] b. at Brussels, Jan. 23, 1914. Member of the house of Bonaparte; son of Prince Napoléon-Victor Bonaparte (1862-1926).

Napoleonic Code. English name of the Code Napoléon. Napoléon le Petit (ná.pò.lä.ón le pté). [Eng. trans., "Napoleon the Little."] Satire by Victor Hugo, directed against Napoleon III, published in 1852.

Napoléon-Vendée (ná.pò.lä.ón.vän.dä) and Napoléonville (ná.pò.lä.ón.vel). Former names of La-Roches-sur-Yon.

Napoli (ná'pò.lë). Province in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania. Capital, Naples; area, ab. 1,206 sq. mi. (1936); pop. 2,192,245 (1936); area, ab. 452 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 2,070,865 (1951).

Napoli. Italian name of Naples.

Napo-Pastaza (ná'pò.pás.tä.sä). Province in NE Ecuador, established in 1925. With Santiago-Zamora province, it forms Oriente, or the 'Oriental Region.' Capital, Tena; area, ab. 33,237 sq. mi.

Nappanee (nap'ä.në). City in N Indiana, in Elkhart County; manufactures of furniture. Farms in the vicinity specialize in onions and mint. 3,393 (1950).

Nappeckamak (nap'ek.kä.mak'). Name of Indian village upon the site of which Yonkers was founded.

Nápravník (ná'práv.něk), Eduard. b. at Beißt, in Bohemia, in August, 1839; d. in November, 1915. Bohemian composer and conductor. He was assistant conductor (1863-67), second conductor (1867-69), and conductor (1869 et seq.) of the Imperial Russian Opera at St. Petersburg. His works include operas, symphonies and Naples, Bay of. Arm of the Mediterranean, on the coast of Campania, Italy, celebrated for the beauty of its shores. Length, ab. 20 mi.

Naples, Duchy of. Duchy founded in the 6th century, dependent on the Byzantine Empire. It became independent in the beginning of the 8th century, and was conquered by the Normans in the 11th and 12th centuries.

Napo (nă'pō). River in E Ecuador, flowing SE to the Amazon. Length, ab. 600 mi.

Napoleon (na.pō'le.ŋn). City in NW Ohio, bounty seat of Henry County; marketing center for an agricultural area. It is the site of an annual Schützenfest (target-shooting contest). 5,335 (1950).

Napoleon I (na.pō'le.ŋn; French, nă.pō.lă.ôñ). [Also: Napoleon Bonaparte; French, Napoleon Bonaparte; Italian, Napoleone Buonaparte (or Bonaparte); called le Petit Caporal, meaning "the Little Corporal," and "the Corsican."] b. at Ajaccio, Corsica, Aug. 15, 1769, or, according to some, at Corte, Jan. 7, 1768; d. at Longwood, St. Helena, May 5, 1821. Emperor of the French (1804-14). He was the son of Charles Marie Bonaparte and Letizia (or Laetitia) Ramolino, and Aug. 15, 1769, is the commonly accepted date of his birth, Jan. 7, 1768, being that of his brother Joseph. It has been said, but without good reason, that these dates were interchanged at the time of Napoleon's admission to the military school of Brienne in 1779, no candidate being eligible after 10 years of age. After his studies at Brienne (1779-84), he attended the military school at Paris (1784-85), and received a lieutenant's commission in the French army in 1785. At first sympathetic, he later opposed the patriot movement under Paoli in Corsica (1792-93), from which he fled; and he commanded the French artillery in the attack on Toulon, which had hoisted the flag of the Bourbons, in the same year. He was promoted to the rank of general in 1794, but was imprisoned shortly thereafter during the Thermidorian reaction. He was soon released, however, and served briefly as an artillery general in Italy. Dropped for insubordination, he received a new appointment as second in command to Barras and subdued the revolt of the sections at Paris in October, 1795, with "a whiff of grape-shot," thus saving the revolutionary government. He married Josephine de Beauharnais on March 9, 1796. Toward the close of this month (March 27) he assumed command at Nice of the French forces in Italy, which he found opposed by the Austrians and the Sardinians. He began his electrifying campaign on April 10, and, after first defeating the Austrians, turned rapidly against the Sardinians, whose defeats forced them to sign the separate convention of Cherasco (April 29). In the following month he began an invasion of Lombardy, and by a brilliant series of victories, including those of Lodi (May 10) and Arcore (November 15-17), expelled the Austrians from their possessions in the north of Italy, receiving the capitulation of Mantua, their last stronghold, on Feb. 2, 1797. Before crossing the Alps into Austrian territory he encouraged national and democratic uprisings in northern Italy, and then dictated preliminary terms of peace on April 18. The definitive peace of Campo Formio followed (October 17). By the treaty of Campo Formio northern Italy was reconstructed in the interest of France, which furthermore acquired the Austrian Netherlands and received a guarantee of the left bank of the Rhine. Campo Formio destroyed the coalition against France and put an end to the revolutionary war on the Continent. The only enemy that remained to France was England. At the instance of Bonaparte the willing Directory adopted the plan of attacking the English in India, which involved the conquest of Egypt and raised the vision of a French conquest of the Near and Middle East. Placed at the head of an expedition of about 35,000 men, Bonaparte set sail from Toulon on May 19, 1798, occupied Malta (June 12), disembarked at Alexandria (July 2), and defeated the Mamelukes in the decisive battle of the Pyramids (July 21). He was master of Egypt, but the destruction of his fleet by Nelson in the battle of the Nile (August 1) cut him off from France and doomed his expedition to failure. Utilizing the Sultan's declaration of war, he thereupon undertook the subjugation of Syria, and stormed Jaffa on March 7, 1799. Repulsed at Acre, the defense of which was supported by the English, he commenced a retreat to Egypt on May 21. He inflicted a final defeat on the Turks at Aboukir (July 25), transferred the command in Egypt to Kléber (August 22), and, setting sail with two frigates, arrived in the harbor of Fréjus (October 9). During his absence a new coalition, which included Russia, had been formed against France, and the Directory for a time saw its armies defeated both on the Rhine and in Italy. But before Bonaparte returned the most pressing military danger was over. With the assistance of his brother Lucien, and of Sieyès and Roger-Ducos, he executed the coup d'état of Brumaire, whereby he abolished the sorely discredited Directory and virtually made himself monarch under the title of first consul, holding office for a term of 10 years. He crossed the Alps through the Great St. Bernard Pass in May, 1800, and restored the French ascendancy in Italy by the victory of Marengo (June 14), which, with that won by Moreau at Hohenlinden (December 3), brought about the peace of Lunéville (Feb. 9, 1801). The treaty of Lunéville with the Austrians, which was based on that of Campo Formio, destroyed the coalition and restored peace on the Continent. He concluded the peace of Amiens with England on March 27, 1802. After the peace of Lunéville he returned to the task of the legislative and administrative reconstruction of France, the public institutions of which had been thrown into confusion during the Revolution. To this period belong the ending of the schism and restoration of the Roman Catholic Church by the Concordat (concluded July 15, 1801), the reorganization of education which was to culminate in the erection of the Imperial University (1808), and the establishment of the Legion of Honor (May 19, 1802). The Civil Code became law in 1804, and work continued on the other codes. Meantime, he was made consul for life (Aug. 2, 1802), had the innocent Duc d'Enghien executed (March 21, 1804), was proclaimed hereditary emperor of the French on May 18, 1804 (the coronation ceremony took place Dec. 2, 1804), and was crowned king of Italy (May 26, 1805). In the meanwhile, however, England had been provoked into declaring war (May 18, 1803), and a new coalition consisting of England, Russia, Austria, and Sweden was formed against France in 1805; Spain was allied with France. The victory of Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar (Oct. 21, 1805) followed the failure of the projected invasion of England. Breaking up his camp at Boulogne, Napoleon invaded Austria, occupied Vienna, and defeated (Dec. 21, 1805) the allied Russians and Austrians at Austerlitz. The Russians retired from the contest under a military convention; the Austrians signed the peace of Pressburg (Dec. 26, 1805); and the coalition was destroyed. Fresh intervention in Germany brought about the abolition of the Holy Roman Empire (June, 1806) and the establishment of the Confederation of the Rhine on July 12, 1806. This confederation, which was placed under Napoleon's protection, ultimately embraced nearly all the states of Germany except Austria and Prussia. Its creation, together with other provocation, caused Prussia to mobilize its army in August, and Napoleon presently found himself opposed by another coalition, with Prussia, Russia, and England as its principal members. He crushed the Prussian army at Jena and Auerstädt (October 14), entered Berlin (October 27), fought the Russians and Prussians in the drawn battle of Eylau (Feb. 7-8, 1807), defeated the Russians at the battle of Friedland (June 14), and compelled both Russia and Prussia to conclude peace at Tilsit (July 7 and 9, 1807, respectively). By a secret treaty, Russia now became the ally of France; by the open treaty, Prussia was deprived of nearly half her territory; and Napoleon was now, perhaps, at the height of his power. The imperial title was no empty form. He was the head of a great confederacy of states. He had surrounded the imperial throne with subordinate thrones occupied by members of his own family. His stepson Eugène de Beauharnais was viceroy of the kingdom of Italy in northern and central Italy; his brother Joseph was king of Naples in southern Italy; his brother Louis was king of Holland; his brother Jerome was king of Westphalia; his brother-in-law Murat was grand duke of Berg. The Confederation of the Rhine existed by virtue of his protection, and his troops occupied dismembered Prussia. He directed the policy of most of Europe. England alone, mistress of the seas, appeared to stand between him and universal dominion. England was safe from invasion, but she was vulnerable, he reasoned (though erroneously), through her commerce. Napoleon undertook to bring her to her knees by closing the ports of the Continent to her maritime trade. This policy became known as "the Continental system," and was rationalized by the Berlin decree in 1806 and the Milan decree in 1807. To further this policy of self-blockade he resolved to seize the maritime states of Portugal and Spain. His armies expelled the house of Braganza from Portugal, and on Nov. 30, 1807, the French entered Lisbon. Under pretense of guarding the coast against the English, he quartered 80,000 troops in Spain, then in 1808 enticed Ferdinand VII and his father Charles IV (who had recently abdicated) to Bayonne, extorted from both a renunciation of their claims, and placed his brother Joseph on the Spanish throne. An uprising of the Spaniards took place, followed by a popular insurrection in Portugal, movements which found response in Germany and especially in Austria. The seizure of Spain and Portugal proved in the end a fatal error. The war which it kindled, known as the Peninsular War, drained him of his resources and placed an enemy in his rear when northern Europe rose against him in 1813. The English in 1808 landed an army in Portugal, whence they expelled the French, and penetrated into Spain. Napoleon, hoping to secure himself against Austria, sought to strengthen the alliance with Czar Alexander at Erfurt (concluded Oct. 12, 1808). He then hastened in person to Spain with 250,000 men, drove out the English, and entered Madrid (Dec. 4, 1808). He was recalled by rumors of trouble in Paris and by the threatening attitude of Austria, against which he precipitated war in April, 1809. He occupied Vienna (May 13), was defeated by Archduke Charles at Aspern and Essling (May 21-22), but defeated him at Wagram (July 5-6), and concluded the peace of Schönbrunn (Oct. 14, 1809). He then divorced Josephine (Dec. 16, 1809), and for reasons of state married Maria Louisa of Austria. He annexed the Papal States in 1809 (the Pope being carried prisoner to France), and Holland in 1810. The refusal of Czar Alexander to carry out strictly the Continental System, which Napoleon himself evaded by the sale of licenses, was the final rift which brought on war with Russia. He crossed the Niemen (June 24, 1812), won the victory of Borodino (September 7), and occupied Moscow (September 14). His proffer of truce was rejected by the Russians, and he was forced by the approach of winter to begin a tardy retreat (October 8). He was overtaken by the harsh winter, and his army dwindled before the cold, hunger, and the enemy. He left the army in command of Murat (December 4) and hastened to Paris. Murat recrossed the Niemen (December 13) with 100,000 men, the remnant of the Grand Army of 600,000 veterans. The loss sustained by Napoleon in this campaign encouraged the defection of Prussia, which formed an alliance with Russia at Kalisch (Feb. 28, 1813). Napoleon defeated the Russians and Prussians at Lützen (May 2) and at Bautzen (May 20-21). Austria declared war (August 12), and Napoleon presently found himself opposed by a coalition of Russia, England, Sweden, Prussia, and Austria, of which the first three had been united since the previous year. He won his last great victory at Dresden (August 26-27), but lost the decisive battle of Leipzig (October 16, 18, and 19). Rejecting moderate peace terms from the Allies, he fought on, at Laon (March 9-10, 1814) and Arcis-sur-Aube (March 20-21), but on March 31 the Allies entered Paris. Napoleon was compelled to abdicate at Fontainebleau (April 11) but was allowed to retain the title of emperor and received the island of Elba as a sovereign principality, and an annual income of two million francs. He arrived in Elba on May 4. The Congress of Vienna convened in September, 1814, for the purpose of restoring and regulating the relations between the powers disturbed by Napoleon. Encouraged by the quarrels which arose at the Congress between the Allies, Napoleon escaped from Elba (Feb. 26, 1815), landed at Cannes (March 1), and entered Paris (March 20), the troops sent against him, including Ney with his corps, having joined his standard. At the return of Napoleon the Allies again took the field. He was finally overthrown at Waterloo (June 18, 1815) and the Allies entered Paris a second time (July 7). After futile attempts to escape to America, he surrendered himself to the British admiral Hotham at Rochefort (July 15). By a unanimous resolve of the Allies he was transported as prisoner of war to St. Helena, where he arrived on Oct. 16, 1815, and where he was detained for the rest of his life. In 1840 Louis Philippe ordered his remains to be moved to the Hôtel des Invalides, Paris. One of the most remarkable military leaders the world has ever seen, he was also a highly talented administrator, and his conquests had a profound effect on the character of Europe as well as France.

Napoleon II. [Full name, François Charles Joseph Napoléon Bonaparte, Duc de Reichstadt; called 'l'Aiglon', meaning "the Eaglet."] b. at Paris, March 20, 1811; d. at Schönbrunn, near Vienna, July 22, 1832. Titular king of Rome and emperor of the French; son of Napoleon I and Maria Louisa. He was created duke of Reichstadt in 1818 by his grandfather, Francis I of Austria, at whose court he resided after the overthrow of his father.

Napoleon III. [Full name, Charles Louis Napoléon Bonaparte; known as Louis Napoleon; called Carbano and Napoléon le Petit.] b. at Paris, April 20, 1808; d. at Chislehurst, near London, Jan. 9, 1873. Emperor of the French (1852-70). He was the son of Louis Bonaparte, king of Holland, and Hortense de Beauharnais, and the nephew of Napoleon I. He lived in exile at Arenenberg and Augsburg (1815-30), joined in an unsuccessful revolt (1830-31) against the Pope in the Romagna, made an unsuccessful attempt (1836) to organize a revolution among the French soldiers stationed at Strasburg, made a descent on France near Boulogne in 1840, was captured, and was imprisoned at Ham until 1846, when he escaped. He was made a member of the National Assembly after the fall of Louis Philippe in 1848, was elected president of the republic (December, 1848), executed the coup d'état of Dec. 2, 1851, was chosen president for 10 years in December, 1851, and after a plebiscite in November, 1852, was proclaimed emperor (Dec. 2, 1852). He married Eugénie de Montijo, a Spanish countess, on Jan. 30, 1853, took part in the Crimean War (1854-56), fought with Sardinia against Austria in 1859, and was present at the battles of Magenta and Solferino, waged war in Mexico (1862-67), declared war against Germany in July, 1870, was taken prisoner at Sedan (September 2), and was imprisoned at Wilhelmshöhe, near Kassel (1870-71). He was later permitted to go to England, where he lived at Chislehurst (1871-73). He was the author of various political and military works, including Histoire de Jules César (1865-66).

Napoléon, Louis. [Full name, Prince Napoléon Louis Jérôme Victor Emmanuel Léopold Marie Bonaparte.] b. at Brussels, Jan. 23, 1914—. Member of the house of Bonaparte; son of Prince Napoléon-Victor Bonaparte (1862-1926).

Napoleonic Code. English name of the Code Napoléon. Napoléon le Petit (ná.pō.lā.ōň.lē pē). [Eng. trans., "Napoleon the Little."] Satire by Victor Hugo, directed against Napoleon III, published in 1852.

Napoléon-Vendée (ná.pō.lā.ōň.vāň.dā) and Napoléonville (ná.pō.lā.ōň.vēl). Former names of La-Rochesur-Yon.

Napoli (ná.pō.lē). Province in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania. Capital, Naples; area, ab. 1,206 sq. mi. (1936); pop. 2,192,245 (1936); area, ab. 452 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 2,070,865 (1951).

Napoli. Italian name of Naples.

Napo-Pastaza (ná.pō.pās.tā.sā). Province in NE Ecuador, established in 1925. With Santiago-Zamora province, it forms Oriente, or the "Oriental Region." Capital, Tena; area, ab. 33,237 sq. mi.

Nappanee (nap'a.nē). City in N Indiana, in Elkhart County: manufactures of furniture. Farms in the vicinity specialize in onions and mint. 3,393 (1950).

Nappeckamak (nap'ek.kā.mak'). Name of Indian village upon the site of which Yonkers was founded.

Nápravník (ná.práv.něk), Eduard. b. at Beišť, in Bohemia, in August, 1839; d. in November, 1915. Bohemian composer and conductor. He was assistant conductor (1863-67), second conductor (1867-69), and conductor (1869 et seq.) of the Imperial Russian Opera at St. Petersburg. His works include operas, symphonies and other orchestral compositions, chamber music, and songs and choruses.

Naquet (nä.ke). Alfred Joseph. b. at Carpentras, France, Oct. 6, 1834; d. 1916. French chemist and socialist politician. He was professor of chemistry at the technical institute of Palermo (1863-65), and was a member of the French senate (1882-89). His chief work is usually considered to be Principes de chimie (1865).

Nar (när). Ancient name of the Nera.

Nara (nä.rä). Inland city in S Honshu, Japan, ab. 25 mi. S of Kyoto. It is a resort city with many parks famous for their tame deer, and a noted center of handicraft industries producing lacquer ware, writing brushes, and carved wooden products. It was the capital of Japan in the 8th century. A colossal statue of Buddha seated in the temple here is remarkable as the largest known bronze casting. It dates from 739, and is formed of several pieces skillfully soldered together. The god sits on the symbolic lotus flower, with the right hand open and raised, and the extended left hand resting on his knee. The height, without the pedestal, is ab. 53 ft. 77,866 (1950).

Naram-Sin (nä.räm'sin'). fl. c2800 B.C. King of Babylon; supposed to have been the son of Sargon I of Agade. In accordance with a notice of the annals of Nabonidus, in which this Babylonian king states (c550 B.C.) that while repairing the sun temple at Sippar he discovered the foundation cylinders of that edifice laid by Naram-Sin, the son of Sargon, 3,200 years before, Assyriologists have assumed 3750 B.C. as the date of Naram-Sin, but later research has suggested as more probable the approximate date given first above.

Narasinha (nä.rä.sin'hä). Fourth avatar or incarnation of Vishnu; the man-lion incarnation. He assumed the half-man-half-lion incarnation to deliver the world from a tyrant who had obtained as a boon from Brahma that he should be slain neither by god, nor man, nor animal, and so was able to usurp the dominion of the three worlds, even appropriating the sacrifices of the gods. When his pious son praised Vishnu, the father tried to destroy the boy, whereupon Vishnu appeared suddenly out of a pillar in a shape neither god, man, nor animal, and tore the tyrant to pieces.

Narayan (nä.rä.yän), Jayaprakash. b. in Bihar state, India, 1901—. Indian politician. A leader of the Socialist Party in India (formerly the Congress Socialist Party), he took a prominent part in the independence movement. After extended studies (1922-29) in the U.S., he served as general secretary (1930-32) of the Congress Party, was imprisoned (1939-46) for civil disobedience, and served as a member (1946-47) of the Congress Working Committee.

Narba (nä.r'ba). See Nabha.

Narbada (nä.r'bud'a). [Also: Narmada, Nerbudda.] River in C and W Union of India, rising in N Madhya Pradesh, and flowing generally W through its valley between the Vindhya and Satpura ranges to the Gulf of Cambay. Length, ab. 800 mi.

Narberth (nä.r'berth). Residential borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Montgomery County, near Philadelphia. 5,407 (1950).

Narbo (nä.r'bō) or Narbo Martius (nä.r'shus). Latin names of Narbonne.

Narbonensis (nä.r'bō.nen'sis). [Also, Gallia Narbonensis.] Province of the Roman Empire, occupying the S and SE parts of Gaul. It extended from the Alps SW along the Mediterranean to the Pyrenees. The N border was near the line of the Cévennes, the Rhone, and the Lake of Geneva. Its leading cities were Tolosa, Narbo, Nemausus, Arleat, Massilia, and Vienna. Early settlements were made by the Romans in the province at the end of the 2nd century B.C., at Narbo in 118 B.C., and at Tolosa at about the same time.

Narbonne (nä.r'bon'; French, nä.r'bon). Former district surrounding the city of Narbonne, in S France. It was governed by viscounts in the Middle Ages, and was united with the crown of France in 1507-08. It formed part of Languedoc. The name Narbonne is sometimes given to the ancient Septimania or Gothia.

Narbonne. [Latin, Narbo or Narbo Martius.] City in S France, in the department of Aude, ab. 5 mi. from the Étang de Bages, a lagoon bordering on the Mediteranean Sea. The city has chemical and food industries, and is a center for trade in wine and honey. The city flourished in Gallic and Roman times and again as capital of the Visigoths; in the Middle Ages it was famous as the seat of Jewish academies. The city fell to the crown of France in 1607. It suffered some damage through bombing in World War II. 29,975 (1946).

Narbonne-Lara (nä.r'bon.lä.rä), Louis, Comte de. b. at Colono, near Parma, Italy, 1755; d. at Torgau, Germany, 1813. French general and diplomat.

Narbrough (nä.r'b'rō), Sir John. b. 1640; d. 1688. English naval officer. He fought against the Dutch off the Downs in June, 1666, and in 1669 sailed on a voyage of discovery to the Strait of Magellan. In 1672 he fought in the battle of Southwold Bay, and a few years later suppressed the pirates of Tripoli.

Narcissa (nä.r'sis'a). Name given by Pope in his Moral Essays to Anne Oldfield (1683-1730), a well-known actress.

Narcissa. Beautiful woman whose early death is commemorated in the third night of Edward Young's Night Thoughts. She is identified with a Miss Lee who married Henry Temple, son of Lord Palmerston, and was the daughter of Young's wife by her first husband. She died in fact in France but the account in the Night Thoughts is unfactual in stating that she was refused burial because she was a Protestant. After the translation of Young's book into French, the belief sprang up that she was buried at midnight in the Botanic Garden at Montpellier. Her supposed grave was discovered, was visited by strangers, and became one of the sights of the town. But in fact Mrs. Temple died at Lyons, and was buried in the Protestant cemetery there.

Narcissus (nä.r'sis'us). Killed 54 A.D. Freedman of the Roman emperor Claudius, over whom he acquired a complete ascendancy. He assisted the empress Messalina in procuring the death of C. Appius Silanus and numerous others. Afterward he was the chief instrument in bringing about the execution of Messalina herself. He was put to death on the accession of Nero.

Narcissus. fl. latter part of 2nd century. Roman athlete who strangled Commodus in 192 A.D.

Narcissus. In Greek mythology, a beautiful youth who was metamorphosed into a flower. He was indifferent to the love of the wood nymph, Echo, and for this insensibility he was caused by Nemesis to fall in love with his own image reflected in water. Unable to grasp this shadow, he pined away and became the flower which bears his name.

Narda (nä.r'dä). See Arta, city.

Nardini (nä.r'd'ne), Pietro. b. at Fibiana, Tuscany, Italy, 1722; d. at Florence, May 7, 1793. Italian violinist and composer for the violin. He was a pupil of Tartini at Padua and was solo violinist at the court at Stuttgart (1753-67). He returned to Italy in 1767 and was made director of music at the court of the Duke of Tuscany in 1770.

Nardò (nä.r'dō'). [Ancient name, Neretum.] Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Lecce, situated on the Salentina peninsula ab. 34 mi. S of Brindisi: agricultural trade center. It has a 13th-century cathedral. After the decay of the Roman Empire in the West, it was the center of Byzantine influence in SE Italy until it was conquered by the Saracens in 901 A.D. Later under Norman and Hohenstaufen rule, it fell to Hungary in 1400, and was taken by the Turks in 1480. It passed later under Bourbon overlordship as a dependency of the Aquaviva family. Pop. of commune, 21,714 (1936); of town, 17,665 (1936).

Narenta (nä.ren'tä). Italian name of the Neretva.

Nares (nä.rz), Edward. b. at London, 1762; d. at Biddenden, Kent, England, Aug. 20, 1841. English scholar, clergyman, and miscellaneous writer. He was educated at Oxford (Christ Church) and took orders in 1792. He married a daughter of the Duke of Marlborough in 1797. He was regius professor of modern history (1813-41) at Oxford.

Nares, Sir George Strong. b. near Abergavenny, Monmouthshire, England, April 24, 1831; d. Jan. 15, 1915. British explorer; grandnephew of Edward Nares (1762-1841). He commanded the Challenger expedition (1872-74) to the Antarctic, and the Arctic exploring expedition of the Alert and Discovery in 1875-76 (sledge expedition reached lat. 83°20' N.). He was knighted in 1876. He was the author of The Naval Cadet's Guide (1860), Reports on Ocean Soundings and Temperature (in the Challenger; 1874-75), The Official Report of the Arctic Expedition (1876), and others.

Nares, James. b. at Stanwell, near London, 1715; d. Feb. 10, 1783. English composer of church music. From 1757 to 1780 he was master of the Children of the Chapel Royal. He published several series of harpsichord lessons, morning and evening services, and other compositions.

Nares, Robert. b. at York, England, June 9, 1753; d. at London, March 23, 1829. English clergyman and author; son of James Nares. He was educated at Oxford (Christ Church) and took orders in 1778. He was assistant librarian at the British Museum (1795-1807), and aided in founding British Critic, which he edited from 1793 to 1813.

Narew (ná'ref). [Russian, Narev (ná'rif).] River in E central Europe, rising in extreme W Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic of the U.S.S.R., and flowing W across N Poland to join the Bug ab. 19 mi. N of Warsaw. Length, over 250 mi.

Nariman (ná're.mán'). In the Shahnamah, a warrior of Faridun, killed in his attack upon Samand, and avenged by Rustam, his great-grandson.

Nariño (ná're.nyó). Department in SW Colombia. Capital, Pasto; area, 11,548 sq. mi.; pop. 363,630 (est. 1950).

Nariño, Antonio. b. at Bogotá, Colombia, 1765; d. at Leiva, Colombia, Dec. 13, 1823. New Granadan (Colombian) patriot. He was a noted orator and writer, and held important offices under the Spanish viceroys, but in 1795 was imprisoned for publishing a Spanish translation of the Droits des hommes, and did not finally obtain his freedom until the South American revolution against Spain in 1810. He at once joined the revolutionists, and, as president of Cundinamarca department, was leader of the centralist republicans in the civil wars of 1811-13. In the latter year he gained several victories over the Spaniards in the south, but was finally defeated at Pasto, Colombia, captured, and sent to Spain, where he remained a prisoner (1816-20). He was vice-president and senator in 1822.

Narmada (ná'mud'a). See Narbada.

Narni (ná'ne). [Ancient names, Nequinum, Narnia (ná'ria).] Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Umbria, in the province of Terni, situated on the Nera River ab. 43 mi. N of Rome. It is an agricultural trade center, with electrical power development, and a modest chemical industry. It has a cathedral of the 12th century with additions of the 15th century, and Gothic and Renaissance palaces. Except for its medieval bridge, which was destroyed by the Germans, Narni suffered no damage during World War II. Pop. of commune, 17,660 (1936); of town, 4,306 (1936).

Naro (ná'ró). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Agrigento, ab. 13 mi. E of Agrigento: an agricultural commune. There are a number of sulfur mines in its vicinity. Pop. of commune, 18,057 (1936); of town, 14,401 (1936).

Naro (ná'ró). Latin name of the Neretva.

Narodnaya (ná'rod.na.ya). [Also, Naroda (ná'ro.da).] Mountain peak in U.S.S.R., in the N Urals, ab. 575 mi. N of Sverdlovsk: highest peak in the Urals. Elevation, ab. 6,178 ft.

Naron (ná'rón). See Aikwe.

Narova (ná'ró.va). See Narva, and Narva River.

Narraganset (nar.a.gan'set). North American Indian tribe formerly occupying Rhode Island W of Narragansett Bay. The language, now extinct, was of the Algonquian family. They became a very powerful group in the early 17th century, when remnants of other tribes wiped out by epidemics joined with them. They sold Roger Williams the land for his settlement, and sided with the Massachusetts colonists in the Pequot Indian war, but their number was sharply reduced during King Philip's War (1675) and the survivors migrated northward. A few later returned to Rhode Island, but by the 19th century there were fewer than 100 Narraganset Indians left.

Narragansett Bay (nar.a.gan'set). Inlet of the Atlantic Ocean, indenting the SE coast of Rhode Island. It contains the island of Rhode Island and others. Length, ab. 28 mi.

Narragansett Pier. Seaside resort in S Rhode Island, in Washington County, ab. 11 mi. SW of Newport, 1,247 (1950).

Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym, of Nantucket (ár'ther gôr'don pim'; nan.tuk'et), The. Novlette by Edgar Allan Poe, published in 1838.

Narrenschrift (ná'ren.shif), Das. [Eng. trans., "The Ship of Fools."] Satirical poem by Sebastian Brant, published in 1494. It is illustrated with woodcuts by well-known artists of the time. Alexander Barclay's translation (1508) was published in 1509.

Narrows (nar'ôz). Town in SW Virginia, in Giles County, situated on the New River, 2,520 (1950).

Narrows, the. Strait joining New York Harbor with the lower bay, and separating Staten Island from Long Island. Width, ab. 1 mi.

Narzes (ná'séz). b. in Persarmenia, c478; d. at Rome, c573. General of the Byzantine Empire, joint commander in Italy with Belisarius (538-539). He was a eunuch. He led an army to Italy against the Goths in 552, totally defeating them in the battles of Taginae in 552 and Mons Lactarius in 553, and defeated the Alamanni and Franks at Casilinum in 554. He was prefect of Italy from 554 to 567.

Narutowicz (ná.rô.tô'vêch), Gabriel. b. March 30, 1865; assassinated at Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 16, 1922. Polish civil engineer and statesman; first president of the Polish republic established after World War I. He studied engineering at the Polytechnic Institute at Zurich, where he served (1908-20) as professor, and gained a great reputation as constructor of hydroelectric works in Switzerland, Italy, and Spain. After returning to Poland, he was minister of public works and reconstruction (1920) and of foreign affairs (1921), and was elected (Dec. 9, 1922) head of the Polish state by the national assembly. A week after being chosen, he was assassinated.

Narva (ná'va). [Also, Narova.] Town in Estonia, on the Narva River ab. 86 mi. SW of Leningrad: cotton-textile mills. In a battle here, on Nov. 30, 1700, the Swedes (ab. 8,400) under Charles XII defeated the Russian forces (ab. 40,000) of Peter I (Peter the Great). The place was taken by storm by Peter, on Aug. 20, 1704. Pop. 24,200 (1938).

Narváez (ná'râ'éth), Pánfilo de. b. at Valladolid, Spain, c1478; drowned somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico, in November (some authorities have suggested October), 1528. Spanish conquistador. He early went (c1498) to America, was prominent in the conquest of Cuba (1511), and settled on that island. Hernando Cortés having thrown off the authority of Diego Velásquez, governor of Cuba, the latter appointed Narváez captain general of the newly discovered lands in Mexico, with orders to imprison Cortés (1520). Narváez, heading a large expedition, landed at Veracruz in April, but on May 28 was defeated by Cortés at Cempoala, wounded, captured, and held prisoner until 1521. He was released, went to Spain, and in 1526 obtained a grant to conquer and govern Florida. Sailing from Cuba in March, 1528, with five vessels and 400 men, he landed, apparently at Apalachee Bay, took possession of Florida in the name of the Spanish king, and proceeded on an unsuccessful search for treasure. He marched inland, lost half his men, and finally, returning to the coast, could not find his ships. Building boats, he made his way for some distance along the coast, and was shipwrecked and drowned with nearly all his men. Álvaro Núñez Cabeza de Vaca and three others of the expedition made their way overland, reaching Mexico in 1536, the only survivors of Narváez's party.

Narváez, Ramón María. [Title, Duke of Valencia.] b. at Loja, Spain, Aug. 5, 1800; d. at Madrid, April 23, 1868. Spanish statesman and general. He served against the brigands and Carlists, landed at Valencia in the interests of Maria Christina in 1843, helped in the overthrow of Baldomero Espartero, and was premier (1844-46, 1847, 1849-51, 1856-57, 1864-65, and 1866-68).

Narva River (ná'va). [Also, Narova.] River in NW U.S.S.R., forming the boundary between the Leningrad oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic and Estonia. It flows from Lake Peipus N to the Gulf of Finland. Length, ab. 48 mi.

Narvik (när'vik). [Former name, Victoriahavn.] City in N Norway, in the fylke (county) of Nordland, situated on the Ofot Fjord, E of the Lofoten Islands. It is a port and the W terminus of the electrified railroad line from Sweden; the chief place of export for Swedish iron ore. The harbor is ice-free. In World War II, Narvik was occupied by the Germans on April 9, 1940; naval engagements took place here on April 10–13 in which two British destroyers and all German ships were sunk. A combined British, French, and Polish amphibious force landed on April 14; after bitter fighting, Narvik was wrested from the Germans on May 28 and held until June 9, 1940, when a combination of German air attacks and increasing pressure on the ground made it necessary for the Allied force to withdraw. Most of the town was destroyed during these operations but it has been rebuilt. 10,281 (1946).

Naryn (nä'ri'n). River in the U.S.S.R., in C Asia, rising in the Tien Shan and flowing generally W through the Kirghiz Soviet Socialist Republic and into the Uzbek Soviet Socialist Republic, where it unites in the NE part of the Fergana Valley with the Kara River to form the Syr Darya. It is generally considered the chief headstream of the Syr Darya. Length, ab. 450 mi.

Nasby (náz'bi), Petroleum V. Pseudonym of Locke, David Ross.

Nasca (nas'ká). See Nazca.

Nasapi (nas.ká'pé). Tribe of North American Indians inhabiting Labrador. They speak an Algonquian language.

Naseby (náz'bi). Village ab. 12 mi. N of Northampton, England, notable as the scene of the decisive battle of the English Civil War. Here the Parliamentarians under Thomas Fairfax and Oliver Cromwell defeated (June 14, 1645) the Royalists under Charles I and Prince Rupert. Each side numbered ab. 11,000. The battle was decided by Cromwell's cavalry. About 5,000 Royalists were captured, and the Royalist army was eliminated as an effective military force.

Nash (nash), Abner. b. in Amelia County (now Prince Edward County), Va., c1740; d. at New York, Dec. 2, 1786. American politician; brother of Francis Nash. He settled (1762) in North Carolina, where he was active as a lawyer and politician at Halifax and then at New Bern. He served (1764, 1765, 1770, 1771) in the North Carolina House of Commons, was a delegate (1774–76) to the provincial congresses, was a member (1775, 1776) of the provincial council, and served as the second governor under the North Carolina state government. He was elected (1782, 1783, 1785) to the Continental Congress.

Nash, Beau. See Nash, Richard.

Nash, Francis. b. in Amelia County (now Prince Edward County), Va., c1742; d. in Pennsylvania, Oct. 7, 1777. American Revolutionary soldier; brother of Abner Nash. Making his home at Chidsburg (later Hillsboro), N.C., he became (1763) justice of the peace and clerk of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, served (1764 et seq.) in the North Carolina House of Commons, and was judge (1774, 1775) of the court of oyer and terminer in Hillsboro district. He became (1775) a lieutenant colonel of Continental troops and was promoted (1777) to the rank of brigadier general. He died of wounds incurred at the battle of Germantown.

Nash, George K. b. in York township, Medina County, Ohio, Aug. 14, 1842; d. Oct. 28, 1904. American politician and lawyer, governor (1900–04) of Ohio.

Nash, John. b. at London, 1752; d. May 13, 1835. English architect. In London he designed Regent Street, the Haymarket, the terraces in Regent's Park, and others.

Nash, John Northcote. b. at London, April 11, 1893—. English painter, draftsman, and wood engraver; brother of Paul Nash. He was assistant master at the Ruskin Drawing School, Oxford. His work is found in various English galleries. Among the many books he has illustrated are Directions to Servants, Poisonous Plants, The Nouveau Poor, and Bats in the Belfry.

Nash, Joseph. b. Dec. 17, 1809; d. 1878. English watercolor painter, particularly noted for architectural subjects.

Nash, Ogden. b. at Rye, N.Y., Aug. 19, 1902—. American writer of humorous verse. He is noted for his verse, usually satirical, in which far-fetched rhyme is used in lines of unequal scansion. Author of Hard Lines (1931), Free Wheeling (1931), Happy Days (1933), The Primrose Path (1935), I'm a Stranger Here Myself (1938), Good Intentions (1942), Many Long Years Ago (1945), Versus (1949), Family Reunion (1950), The Private Dining Room (1953), and other books. He was coauthor of the musical comedy One Touch of Venus (1943) and wrote the lyrics for Two's Company (1952).

Nash, Paul. b. at London, May 11, 1889; d. July 11, 1945. English painter, engraver, and designer for the theater, noted for his surrealist landscapes; brother of John Northcote Nash. In 1917–18 he was an official British war artist. After the war he designed the scenery and costumes for productions of King Lear, A Midsummer Night's Dream, and other plays. He also did illustrations for Seven Pillars of Wisdom, by T. E. Lawrence, and other books. He helped to organize "Unit One," a group of painters, sculptors, and architects with advanced ideas. Most of his paintings are in private collections in England, France, and the U.S. Among his principal works are Northern Adventure, Mansions of the Dead, and Sunset at Worth Maltravers. His publications include Places, Room and Book, and Genius Loci.

Nash, Richard. [Called Beau Nash and the "King of Bath."] b. at Swansea, Wales, Oct. 18, 1674; d. at Bath, England, Feb. 3, 1762. English leader of fashion and master of ceremonies (1705 et seq.) at Bath. He was educated at Oxford (Jesus College), and studied law at the Inner Temple. He conducted the pageant at an entertainment given by the Inns of Court to William III. Much of the success of Bath as a resort of fashionable society was due to his efforts. He was a professional gambler until Parliament enacted (1745) a law against gaming. Goldsmith wrote his life in 1762.

Nash or Nashe (nash), Thomas. [Pseudonym, Pasquil.] b. at Lowestoft, England, 1567; d. c1601. English satirical pamphleteer, poet, and dramatist. He took the degree of B.A. at Cambridge (Saint John's College) in 1585. His earliest work is a preface to Robert Greene's Menaphon (1589); the Anatomy of Absurdity appeared in 1589. Using his pseudonym, he entered (1589) the Martin Marprelate controversy on the side of the bishops, and is generally credited with writing A Counterfeite to Martin Junior, Martins Month's Minde, and Pasqualls Apologie, though no definite ascription is possible. In 1591 he was edited, without authorization, Philip Sidney's poems, and the next year began his long and scurrilous "paper war" with Gabriel Harvey in Pierce Penniless, his supplication to the Devil. In it he attacked Richard Harvey for criticizing Menaphon; Greene's death in degraded circumstances gave fuel to the Harveys' side of the conflict and the ensuing years saw publication by Nash, in answer to attacks by Harvey, of Strange Newes of the intercepting certaine Letters (1592), Christs Teares over Jerusalem (1593), a conciliatory effort followed by a renewal of the attack in a new edition in 1594, and Have with You to Saffronwalden, or Gabriell Harveys Hunt is Up (1596). The whole affair was ended by the intervention (1599) of John Whitgift, archbishop of Canterbury, who officially suppressed it. Nash wrote a pioneering realistic novel of adventure, The Unfortunate Traveller, or the Life of Jack Wilton (1594), a satirical masque, Summers Last Will and Testament (1592), and Lenten Stuffe (1599, a tongue-in-cheek praise of Yarmouth and the red herring). He is thought to have completed (1596) Christopher Marlowe's play Dido Queen of Carthage; the lost play The Isle of Dogs (1597), written in collaboration with others, contained material considered seditious and slanderous, for which he was sentenced to the Fleet prison, but he does not appear to have served his sentence.

Nash, Walter. b. at Kidderminster, England, Feb. 12, 1882—. New Zealand statesman. He has been a Labour member of the New Zealand Parliament (1929 et seq.) and has served as deputy prime minister (1940–49), minister of social security (1938), and minister of marketing (1936–41). He was New Zealand minister to the U.S. (1942–44), and as such served as a member of the Pacific war council and led the New Zealand delegation to the Bretton Woods monetary conference (1944).

Nashua (nash'g.u.a). City in S New Hampshire, a county seat (with Manchester) of Hillsboro County, at the junction of the Nashua and Merrimack rivers, ab. 40 mi. NW of Boston: manufactures of cotton goods and blankets, shoes, paper, barber tools, machinery, and bricks. The city was incorporated in 1853. Pop. 34,669 (1950).

Nashua River. River in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, a tributary of the Merrimack. Total length, ab. 80 mi.

Nashville (nash'vil). City in SW Arkansas, county seat of Howard County: peaches, cotton, corn, alfalfa, and vegetables are grown in the area. 3,548 (1950).

Nashville. City in S Georgia, in Berrien County, in a tobacco-growing and lumbering area. 3,414 (1950).

Nashville. City in C Tennessee, capital of the state and county seat of Davidson County, on the Cumberland River; second largest city in the state. Its principal industries are flour milling, meat packing, printing and publishing, and manufactures of fertilizer, aircraft, shoes, boots, hardwood flooring, furniture, clay products, rayon, cellophane, and knit goods. It is a market for tobacco, livestock, and agricultural produce. It is the seat of Vanderbilt University, the George Peabody College for Teachers, Scarritt College, Ward-Belmont College, David Lipscomb College, Fisk University, Meharry Medical College, and the Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial State Teachers College. It was the home of Andrew Jackson and James K. Polk, and also of William Walker, notorious for his 19th-century filibustering activities in Central America. It was settled in 1780, has been the capital since 1826 (legally since 1843), and was evacuated by the Confederates under A. S. Johnston and occupied by Union forces in February, 1862. Pop. of city, 167,402 (1940), 174,307 (1950); of urbanized area, 258,887 (1950).

Nashville, Battle of. Victory gained near Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 15 and 16, 1864, by Union forces under G. H. Thomas over the Confederates under J. B. Hood. The result of the battle and the pursuit was the breaking up of Hood's army as a fighting force. Union loss, 400 killed, 1,740 wounded; Confederate total loss, 15,000.

Nashville Convention. [Also called the Southern Convention.] Two gatherings (1850) at Nashville, Tenn., called by the more radical of the Southern leaders to consider what action should be taken on the Compromise of 1850, and to draft a program of Southern rights. At the first convention (June 2-12, 1850), during the period when the Compromise was under consideration, at which representatives of nine slave states were present, the Democratic delegates outnumbered the Whigs, but the moderates were from the beginning in control of the proceedings, and from the viewpoint of its original sponsors it was a fiasco. An address to the people of the South attacked the Clay resolutions later enacted as the Compromise of 1850. After the enactment of the measures known as the Compromise, a second convention (Nov. 11-18, 1850), attended by only a handful of delegates, drew up resolutions denouncing the Compromise and reasserting the right of secession. But the hotspurs went virtually unheard, for sentiment in the South was almost solidly behind the Compromise.

Nasir (nā.zyā), Alcofrības. Pseudonym of Rabelais, François.

Nasik (nā'sik). [Also, Nassick.] District in the state of Bombay, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. NE of the city of Bombay: oranges, cotton, millet, wheat, and teakwood. Capital, Nasik; area, ab. 6,050 sq. mi.; pop. 1,429,916 (1951).

Nasik. [Also, Nassick.] Capital of the district of Nasik, Bombay, Union of India, on the Godavari River ab. 107 mi. NE of Bombay: trading center. It is a sacred Hindu city. 52,386 (1941).

Nasir ed-din al-Tusi (nā.sir' ed.dēn' āl.tō.sē'), Mohammed ibn-Mohammed ibn al-Hasan. [Also, Nasir Eddin.] b. at Tus, in Khurasan, 1201; d. 1274. Arab mathematician and scientist, one of the most important of his time. He wrote on trigonometry, geometry, and astronomy, being best known for his formulation of the law of sines in oblique triangles and for his attempt to prove the Euclidean parallel postulate.

Nasiriya (nā.sē.rē.yā). [Also, Nāsiiriya.] City in S Iraq, capital of the liwa (province) of Muntafiq, on the Euphrates River, ab. 10 mi. NE of the ruins of the ancient city of Uruk. It is a trade center in a region producing rice, millet, wheat, and dates. In World War I the city was taken (July 25, 1915) from the Turks by the British. Pop. ab. 45,000.

Naskov (nā'skou). See Nakskov.

Nasmith (nā'smith), Alexander. b. at Edinburgh, Sept. 9, 1758; d. there, April 10, 1840. Scottish portrait painter; father of James and Patrick Nasmith. He became Allan Ramsay's assistant, and went with him to London. He returned to Edinburgh in 1778, and visited Italy in 1782. The portrait of Burns in the Scottish National Gallery is by him. (The surname Nasmith (also Nesmith) is a contraction of "nailsmith.")

Nasmith, James. b. at Edinburgh, Aug. 19, 1808; d. at London, May 7, 1890. British engineer, inventor, and astronomer; son of Alexander Nasmith and brother of Patrick Nasmith. He invented the steam hammer in 1839, but did not patent it until June, 1842. His foundry at Bridgewater, near Manchester, was noted for its machine tools, many of which he invented or improved, including a machine plane, a nut-shaper, and a hydraulic punch.

Nasmith, Patrick. b. at Edinburgh, Jan. 7, 1787; d. at London, Aug. 17, 1831. British landscape painter; son of Alexander Nasmith and brother of James Nasmith. He was a pupil of his father, and a student of Claude and Richard Wilson.

Nás na Ríogh (nós' na r'é). Irish name of Naas.

Nasoreans (nas.o.ré'anz). See Mandaean.

Nasr-ed-Din (nā'sér.ed.dēn'). [Also, Nasr-ed-Din.] b.

April 24, 1831; killed near Tehran, Persia, May 1, 1896. Shah of Persia (1848-96); eldest son of Shah Mohammed, whom he succeeded Sept. 10, 1848. He was at war with England (1856-57). He visited various European countries in 1873, 1878, and 1889 and was the first shah of Persia to make such journeys to foreign countries. His reign was marked by early attempts at reform under Mirza Taki Khan, his chief minister, by vigorous suppression of the mystical Babist movement, and by Russian encroachments in the north and expanding British interests in the south.

Nass (nas). River in NW British Columbia, Canada, flowing generally S and SW through the Coast Mountains to Portland Inlet, a fjord arm of the Pacific. Length, ab. 236 mi.

Nassau (nas'ó). City on New Providence island, Bahama Islands, ab. 191 mi. SE of Miami, Fla.: capital of the Bahamas, world famous as a tourist resort. 29,391 (1943).

Nassau (nas'ó; German, nās'ou). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated on the Lahn River ab. 10 mi. SE of Koblenz: resort; has agricultural markets and small industries. It contains the 17th-century castle of Baron H. F. K. vom Stein, Prussian minister, adversary of Napoleon, and proponent of German unity; the ruins of the original Castle Stein and of Castle Nassau are in the vicinity. 2,164 (1946).

Nassau, Elisabeth von. See Elisabeth von Lothringen.

Nassau-Dillenburg (-dīl'en.bürk), Count Louis of. [Called Louis of Nassau.] b. Jan. 20, 1538; killed at the battle of Mooker Heath, 1574. Brother of William I of Nassau and a partisan of the Dutch against the Spaniards. Louis and his younger brother Henry died in the battle against the Spanish forces.

Nassau-Siegen (nās'ou.zē'gen'), Joan Mauritz van. See John Maurice of Nassau.

Nassau-Siegen, Prince Karl Heinrich Nikolaus Otto von. b. Jan. 5, 1745; d. at Tynna, in Podolia, April 22, 1808. Adventurer and naval commander in the French and Spanish service, and later a Russian admiral against the Turks and Swedes.

Nassick (nas'ik). See Nasik.

Nässjö (nesh'shē). Town in S Sweden, in the län (county) of Jönköping, SE of Jönköping. It is a railroad junction, and has lumber and textile industries and agricultural markets. 15,166 (1949).

Nasr-ed-Din (nā'sér.ed.dēn'). See Nasr-ed-Din.

Nast (nast), Condé. b. at New York, March 26, 1874; d. there, Sept. 19, 1942. American publisher. Publisher and president (1909 et seq.) of Vogue, he founded (1922) Condé Nast Publications, Inc. his publications included Vogue, House and Garden, and Glamour.

Nast, Thomas. b. at Landau, Bavaria, Germany, Sept. 27, 1840; d. at Guayaquil, Ecuador, Dec. 7, 1902. American caricaturist. He worked (1855 et seq.) as an illustrator for Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper and Harper's Weekly. He went to England in 1860 for the New York Illustrated News and then to Italy to cover the war for the Illustrated London News. During the Civil War period and afterward he contributed many cartoons to Harper's Weekly. By far his best-known work was his series of cartoons attacking the Tweed Ring at New York; combined with the evidence of graft unearthed by the New York Times, these cartoons aroused sufficient public anger to oust W. M. Tweed from his position of political control at New York City, and eventually to identify Tweed so that he might serve out his jail sentence (he was recognized and arrested in 1876 at Vigo, Spain, through a caricature of him by Nast). Nast was responsible also for the invention of the Democratic donkey, the Republican elephant, and the Tammany tiger, symbols still used by political cartoonists. He was appointed (1902) U.S. consul at Guayaquil, where he died.

Nast (nast; German, năst), William. b. at Stuttgart, Germany, June 15, 1807; d. at Cincinnati, Ohio, May 16, 1899. American clergyman and editor, founder of the first German Methodist church in the U.S. (at Cincinnati).

Naströnd (năst'rönd). In Old Norse mythology, a huge hall in Niflheim, the cold afterworld, dripping with venom, set aside for the punishment of murderers.

Natal (nat'al). Province of the Union of South Africa, bounded by the Transvaal on the N, Mozambique on the NE, the Indian Ocean on the SE, the province of Cape of Good Hope on the SW, and the Orange Free State on the W. The surface is mostly hilly, with the Drakenberg mountains in the W. Durban is the largest city and chief seaport. The majority of the inhabitants are Zulus. The government is in the hands of an administrator, assisted by a provincial council of 25 members, elected for three years; there is an executive council of four members. Natal sends eight senators to the Union Senate and 16 representatives to the House of Assembly. The province exports corn, dyestuffs, hides, and wool; sugar, cotton, and tobacco are grown. There are extensive forests and valuable coal fields. The province possesses several hundred miles of government-owned railroads. Natal was discovered by Vasco Da Gama in 1497. Settlement was begun by the Boers in 1837. It became a British colony in 1843, and was made independent of Cape Colony in 1856. Zululand province was annexed in 1897. Capital, Pietermaritzburg; area (including Zululand, 10,427 sq. mi.), 35,284 sq. mi.; pop. 2,202,392, including 236,697 Europeans (1946).

Natal (nat'al). Seaport city in NE Brazil, capital of the state of Rio Grande do Norte; sugar, cotton, and allied industries. It has an important international airport serving transatlantic routes to Africa and Europe. 97,736 (1950).

Natalie (of Serbia) (nat'a.lē). b. at Florence, Italy, May 14, 1859; d. at Paris, May 8, 1941. Queen of Milan I of Serbia. She was the daughter of Colonel Pierre Ivanovich Kechko, and married Milan (then Prince of Serbia) Oct. 17, 1875. Her husband procured (October, 1888) from the metropolitan Theodosius a divorce which was pronounced illegal by the Holy Synod, inasmuch as it was granted without consultation with that body. The couple became reconciled in January, 1893. After the assassination of her son Alexander, the last of the Obrenovich dynasty, in 1903, she lived in France.

Natanya (nă.tăn'ya). See Nathanya.

Natashquan (nat.ash.kwon', nă.tash'kwan, -kwon). [Also, Natashkwan.] River in S Labrador and E Quebec, Canada, flowing S from the interior highland to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Length, ab. 241 mi.

Natchez (năch'ez). Tribe of North American Indians once occupying a number of towns in the area near what is now the city of Natchez, Miss. The languages and dialects of this group formed an independent linguistic family, called Natchez, and are now classified as a subfamily in the Natchez-Muskogean family.

Natchez. City in SW Mississippi, county seat of Adams County, on the Mississippi River. A shipping point for cotton and cattle, it also has textile mills and woodworking plants. It is famous for its mansions dating from the pre-Civil War era. A fort built here by the French in 1716 was destroyed by Natchez Indians (for whom the city is named) in 1729, but soon rebuilt. It passed to the British in 1763, to Spain in 1779, and to the U.S. in 1798. It was the capital of the territory (later the state) of Mississippi until 1820. 22,740 (1950).

Natchez (năch'ez), Les. Romance by Chateaubriand, published in 1826. It belongs to the group, with Atala and Rene, of novels written from his experiences among the Indians in America.

Natchez-Muskogean (năch'ez.mus.kō'gē.an). North American Indian linguistic stock of which Natchez comprises one subfamily, and Muskogean (having Eastern and Western groups of languages) comprises the other.

Natchitoches (năk'tōsh). City in C Louisiana, parish seat of Natchitoches Parish, on the Red River ab. 103 mi. W of Natchez, Miss.: first French settlement in Louisiana. It is a marketing center for cotton, and seat of a state teachers college. 9,914 (1950).

Natesan (nă.te.săn'), G. A. b. 1873; d. 1949. Indian politician and publisher, head of G. A. Natesan and Company, publishers of the Indian Review. He was joint secretary (1922) of the National Liberal Federation and a member (1923-33) of the council of state. He visited Canada as a member of the empire parliamentary delegation (1928), was a member (1933) of the Indian tariff board, and served (1938) as sheriff of Madras. He compiled and edited speeches of public men, including such collections as What India Wants and Autonomy within the Empire.

Nath (nath) or El Nath (el.nath). Second-magnitude star β Tauri, in the tip of the N horn of the bull.

Nathan (nă'than). Hebrew prophet in the time of David, a counselor and reprover of the king for his part in the death of Uriah and the stealing of Bathsheba. He was the instructor of Solomon, and is said to have been his, as well as David's, historiographer. 2 Sam. vii. 1-17.

Nathan, George Jean. b. at Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 14, 1882—. American editor, author, and drama critic. He was drama critic of Snarl (1908-23), Judge (1922-35), The American Mercury (1924-30, 1940 et seq.), Vanity Fair (1930-35), King Features National Syndicate (1943 et seq.), and other publications. He was a founder (1924) and editor (1924 et seq.) with H. L. Mencken, and contributing editor (1925-30) of The American Mercury, a founder (1932) and one of the editors (1932 et seq.) of The American Spectator. Author of The Eternal Mystery (1913), Another Book on the Theatre (1916), The Critic and the Drama (1922), The New American Credo (1927), Passing Judgments (1934), The Morning After the First Night (1938), Encyclopedia of the Theatre (1940), The Entertainment of a Nation (1942), Beware of Parents (1943), The Theatre Book of the Year (1943 et seq.), and other books.

Nathan, Isaac. b. at Canterbury, England, 1791; d. in Australia, Jan. 15, 1864. English composer of songs and operas, for whom George Gordon, Lord Byron, wrote the text for Hebrew Melodies. He also composed music to many other poems by Byron, for the operetta Sweethearts and Wives (1823), and several comic operas.

Nathan, Maud. b. at New York, in October, 1862; d. there, Dec. 15, 1946. American reformer, noted for her activities in the women's suffrage movement and in campaigns to improve women's working conditions.

Nathan, Robert. b. at New York, Jan. 2, 1894—. American novelist. Author of Peier Kindred (1919), Autumn (1921), Youth Grows Old (1922), The Fiddler in Barty (1926), The Bishop's Wife (1928), One More Spring (1933), Road of Ages (1935), Winter in April (1937), Journey of Tapiola (1938), Portrait of Jennie (1940), They Went on Together (1941), The Sea-Gull Cry (1942), Journal for Josephine (1943), Mr. Whittle and the Morning Star (1947), The Innocent Eve (1951), and other books. He published Selected Poems (1935), the ballad Dunkirk (1942), and other volumes of poetry.

Nathanael (nă.than'ā.ēl). In the Bible, one of the disciples of Jesus, generally identified with the apostle Bartholomew. John. i. 45-51.

Nathan der Weise (nă'tān dēr vī'ze). [Eng. trans., "Nathan the Wise."] Drama by G. E. Lessing, published in 1779; so called from the name of its principal character. Its theme is religious tolerance, especially in the episode of the three rings, which was taken from Boccaccio.

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, inē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pull; ʔh, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Nathan shows some resemblance to Lessing's friend Moses Mendelssohn.

Nathaniel (nā.than'yel), Sir. Curate in Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost.

Nathaniel Winkle (wing'kl). See Winkle, Nathaniel.

Nathanya (nā.tān'yā). [Also: Natanya, Nathania.] Town in W Israel, on the Mediterranean coast ab. 18 mi. N of Tel Aviv. It was founded in 1929, and is one of Israel's most rapidly growing industrial towns, with manufactures of electric light bulbs, radios, furniture, auto parts, textiles, metal products, and foods and beverages. It also has a seashore resort, with several hotels. 23,000 (1950).

Nathorst (nāt.hōrst), Alfred Gabriel. b. at Väderbrunn, near Nyköping, Sweden, Nov. 7, 1850; d. at Stockholm, Jan. 20, 1921. Swedish geologist, paleobotanist, and explorer of Spitsbergen, Greenland, and other arctic countries. He served (1885 et seq.) as director of the state museum of natural history at Stockholm. Author of Jordens historia (1888-94), Sveriges geologi (1894), Två somrar i Norra Ishafvet (1900-01), Polar forskningen (1902), and Svenska värtnamn (1904).

Natick (nā'tik). Group of North American Indians of Algonquian stock, called "praying Indians" from the fact that they were converted to Christianity by John Eliot and organized by him into a village (Natick) in 1651. This was the first of the seven famous Indian "praying towns" of E Massachusetts. The Naticks were practically wiped out by other Indians and the British during King Philip's War (1675), and by 1680 there were only about 300 survivors.

Natick. Town in E Massachusetts, in Middlesex County, ab. 16 mi. SW of Boston. It has manufactures of shoes and paper boxes. It was founded (1651) by John Eliot, missionary to the Natick Indians, whom he converted to Christianity, and called from this fact a "praying town." 19,838 (1950).

Nation (nā'shon), Carrie Amelia. [Also, Carrie Nation; maiden name, Moore.] b. in Garrard County, Ky., Nov. 25, 1846; d. at Leavenworth, Kan., June 9, 1911. American temperance agitator. Her first husband, whom she married in 1867, was Dr. Charles Gloyd, an alcoholic who left her a widow with a young child. She married (1877) David Nation, who divorced her in 1901. She first came to prominence as a prohibitionist in Kansas, where she founded a branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and undertook a vigorous campaign to eliminate the saloon. She first used a hatchet, the weapon that became indissolubly linked to her as a national figure, when she destroyed the fixtures of saloons at Wichita, Kan. She was later active as a lecturer and also made many stage appearances on behalf of the temperance cause. Her autobiography is The Use and Need of the Life of Carry A. Nation (1904), and she brought out such temperance vehicles as The Home Defender, The Smasher's Mail, and The Hatchet.

Nation, The. Weekly journal at New York founded by Edwin Lawrence Godkin in 1865 and edited by him until 1881. The publication discusses contemporary affairs, literature, science, and art. Among its editors have been Oswald Garrison Villard, Max Lerner, and Freda Kirchwey. Its literary editors have included Ludwig Lewisohn, Joseph Wood Krutch, John Macy, and Carl and Mark Van Doren.

National Academy of Design. Organization with headquarters at New York, instituted in 1826 and incorporated in 1828. Its object is the cultivation of the fine arts. The Society of American Artists united with it in 1906. It maintains the Art School of the National Academy at New York.

National Academy of Sciences. American institution incorporated by act of Congress, March 3, 1863, for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon any matter of science or art that may be referred to it by the national government. Its membership, at first restricted to 50, is now set at 450 resident members, with not more than 50 foreign associates. It is divided into sections on mathematics and astronomy, chemistry, geology, anthropology and psychology, zoology, and anatomy, and other fields of science. Its headquarters are at Washington, D.C.

National Assembly. In French history, the first of the Revolutionary assemblies, existing from 1789 to 1791. The States-General, elected in 1789, were opened May 5, 1789, and in June the third estate assumed the title of National Assembly and absorbed the two remaining estates. Its chief work was the formation of the constitution; hence it is also called the Constituent Assembly. The legislatures organized in France in 1848 (after the February Revolution) and in 1871 (after the overthrow of the Second Empire), both of which, like the Assembly of 1789-91, established constitutions, for the Second and Third Republics respectively, are also known as National Assemblies.

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. [Called the NAACP.] Organization formed in 1909-11 for the purpose of protecting the legal and political rights of the U.S. Negro. Its publication is the Crisis. In 1948 the NAACP had a membership of 500,000.

National Association of Audubon Societies. See Audubon Societies, National Association of.

National Association of Manufacturers. [Called the NAM.] Organization established at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1895 for the purpose of promoting the industrial interests of the U.S., the fostering of the domestic and foreign commerce of the U.S., and the betterment of relations between employers and employees. Its membership is composed of individuals, companies, and corporations engaged in manufacturing. It maintains headquarters at New York and has branch offices at Washington, D.C., and San Francisco.

National City. City in S California, in San Diego County: a southern residential and industrial suburb of San Diego. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 10,344 (1940), 21,199 (1950).

National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement. Official title of the Wickersham Commission.

National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc. Organization, established in 1928, to study and moderate tensions and prejudices among Protestants, Roman Catholics, and Jews. Its membership (1950) was ab. 100,000.

National Conservation Association. Organization formed at Washington, D.C., in February, 1909, as a result of inquiries made by the National Conservation Commission, instituted in May, 1908, by President Theodore Roosevelt and the various state governors. Its original object was to obtain an inventory of the natural resources of the U.S. The aim of the association is to secure wise development of the country's natural resources.

National Consumers' League. Society in the U.S., incorporated (Jan. 22, 1902) for the purpose of securing adequate investigation of the conditions under which goods are made, and of educating public opinion and promoting legislation when expedient, in behalf of the workers, while at the same time securing for the consumers protection from the dangers attaching to goods produced under unwholesome conditions. The headquarters of the league are at New York.

National Convention. In French history, the sovereign assembly which sat from Sept. 21, 1792, to Oct. 26, 1795, and governed France after abolishing royalty. The National Convention ruled during the Reign of Terror; Louis XVI was tried before it and condemned to death. In the latter days of the Convention Napoleon Bonaparte was in command of its troops. It was succeeded by the Directory.

National Covenant. In Scottish history, the bond or engagement, subscribed in 1638, based upon the covenant or oath for the observance of the Confession of Faith drawn up in 1581 (preceded by a similar one in 1557), which was signed and enjoined upon all his subjects by James VI (afterward James I of England), and renewed in 1590 and 1596. Its object was the maintenance of the Presbyterian or Reformed religion against Roman Catholicism, and its immediate cause was the attempt of Charles I to force a liturgy upon Scotland. At the restoration of the episcopacy in 1662, the National Covenant and the Solemn League and Covenant were proscribed, and liberty of conscience was not regained in Scotland until after the revolution of 1688.

National Defense Act. Act of the U.S. Congress passed in 1916 as part of the "preparedness" program instituted during the latter part of President Wilson's first administration. It authorized increases in the regular army and National Guard, established training facilities, and created a military reserve structure. It did not, however, initiate universal military service, which was sanctioned by the Selective Service Act of 1917. The National Defense Act has been revised by subsequent legislation.

National Democratic Party. Czechoslovak political party founded in 1918 from several smaller groups. It had a strong anti-Austrian tradition, and advocated a determined nationalism and a program of Slavic solidarity, which placed it in opposition to the League of Nations policy of E. Beneš. It gave strong support to the army, opposed socialism in any form, and was even against universal suffrage. It drew its support from industrial, financial, and bureaucratic quarters.

National Democratic Union. Brazilian political party noted for its opposition to the Dutra and Vargas governments.

National Education Association of the United States. Organization founded at Philadelphia in 1856 and incorporated under its present title in 1906, which is devoted to advancing the interests of the teaching profession and the cause of public education in the U.S. It maintains headquarters at Washington, D.C., and publishes a monthly Journal and Research Bulletins (quarterly).

National Era. Antislavery journal published from 1847 to 1860 and edited at Washington, D.C. Uncle Tom's Cabin, by Harriet Beecher Stowe, was serialized (1851-52) in its pages.

National Gallery. Picture gallery on the N side of Trafalgar Square, London, founded in 1824 by the purchase for the government of the Angerstein collection. The present building was opened in 1838. It was designed by Wilkins, and is in the Greek classical style; its façade is ab. 460 ft. in length. The buildings were altered and enlarged in 1860, 1876, 1887, and 1911. Many important collections have been added, among them the Vernon (1847), Turner (1856), and Peel (1871) collections. The Royal Academy of Arts occupied part of the building for a long time previous to its removal to Burlington House in 1869.

National Gallery of Art. Institution at Washington, D.C., established in 1937 and opened in 1941, which includes more than 16,000 works of art, among them items in the Mellon, Rosenwald, Kress, Dale, and Widener collections. It is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution.

National Gazette. Newspaper of the Democratic Republican Party, published from 1791 to 1793 and edited by Philip Freneau.

National Geographic Society. Organization founded in 1888 for the purpose of increasing and disseminating geographical knowledge. It sponsors expeditions and maintains a service for making available geographic material for classroom and reference use. It awards the Hubbard Medal and the National Geographic Society Special Medal. At its headquarters at Washington, D.C., there is maintained a library of 18,000 volumes on geography and allied subjects. The society publishes the National Geographic Magazine (monthly) and the Geographic News Bulletin (weekly).

National Guard. Organized militia, created by the Dick Act of 1903, which is subject to federal call in time of national emergency. It is administered by the National Guard Bureau of the U.S. Department of the Army, operates on a state and territorial basis, and is composed of civilian volunteers who receive federal compensation for peacetime military training and instruction conforming to regular army standards. Additional legislation in 1908 made the National Guard subject to use outside the continental limits of the U.S., and in 1920 it became part of the Army of the U.S. Guard divisions served in World Wars I and II.

National Industrial Conference Board, Inc. Organization founded at Boston in 1916 for the purpose of promoting the sound development of productive enterprise by means of diffusing knowledge among management, labor, and government. It maintains headquarters at New York, has a library of more than 10,000 volumes on industrial economics, and publishes Road Maps of Industry (weekly), Conference Board Records (monthly), and American Affairs (quarterly).

National Industrial Recovery Act. [Called the NIRA.] Act of the U.S. Congress passed in 1933, one of the chief measures adopted by the early New Deal in its efforts to stimulate American economic activity. Its primary objectives were the elimination of unfair competitive practices, the recognition of the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively, and the increase of purchasing power and employment. It provided for the enforcement of fair competition by trade codes which enjoyed the status of law when approved by the president. The act, which was administered by the National Recovery Administration, was invalidated by the U.S. Supreme Court's unanimous decision in the case of Schechter Poultry Corp. v. U.S. (1935), when the court held that the act was an unconstitutional delegation of legislative powers to the executive and that the federal government could not legislate on intrastate commerce.

National Institute of Arts and Letters. Society organized in 1898 by men nominated and elected by the American Social Science Association. Its aim is the advancement of art, music, and literature. Its qualification for membership (limited to 250) is notable achievement in art, music, or literature. The 50 members of the American Academy of Arts and Letters are selected from the membership of the Institute. Its headquarters are at New York.

National Intelligencer and Washington Advertiser (wosh'ing.ton). Newspaper published at Washington, D.C., from 1800 to 1870. Originally a triweekly, it later became a daily. The journal was not published between 1866 and 1869. It was an organ of the Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe administrations, and until 1825 was the sole printed account of Congressional proceedings and debates.

Nationalist Party. In British politics, the Irish party formed for the advocacy of Home Rule.

National Jewish Welfare Board. Association, founded in 1917, of Jewish community centers, training personnel for the purpose of leading recreational and consultative programs in the several communities. Its member organizations comprise ab. 500,000 members.

National Labor Board. U.S. body established on Aug. 5, 1933, for mediating, conciliating, or arbitrating labor disputes originating under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery Act (NIRA) of 1933. It was authorized to set up local or regional boards and to supervise collective bargaining elections.

National Labor Relations Act. [Called the Wagner Act.] Act of the U.S. Congress passed in 1935 which guaranteed to employees engaged in interstate commerce "the right to self-organization, to form, join, or assist labor organizations to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities, for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection." The act, sponsored by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, was designed to replace the labor section of the invalidated National Industrial Recovery Act (NIRA). The Wagner Act prohibited interference by employers with workers' rights to self-organization and collective bargaining and established the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), for investigating and eliminating such interference. It forbade employers' refusal to bargain collectively with chosen employee representatives and prohibited employers from promoting company unions. Several provisions of the Wagner Act were revised by the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947.

National Labor Relations Board. [Called the NLRB.] In the U.S., a three-man independent and quasi-judicial body established by the National Labor Relations Act of 1935. It is empowered to investigate and rule upon unfair labor practices under the terms of the act, to issue cease-and-desist orders where such practices are found, to petition any circuit court of appeals in enforcing the order, to supervise workers' elections of labor representatives, and to certify the collective bargaining unit chosen by majority vote of employees.

National Labor Relations Board v. Fansteel Metal Corp., 306 U.S. 240 (1939) (fan'stél). U.S. Supreme Court decision declaring that the National Labor Relations Act of 1935 did not afford protection to individuals engaging in "sit-down" strikes, even in instances where the employer had violated provisions of the act.

National Labor Relations Board v. Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., 301 U.S. 1 (1937) (jónz; lof'lin). U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of the National Labor Relations Act of 1935 and validating the power of the national government to regulate labor relations in establishments engaged in interstate commerce. The majority opinion was notable for its wide departure from the strict interpretation of the commerce clause in Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States (1935) and in Carter v. Carter Coal Co. (1936).

National League of Women Voters. Association established in 1920, the year in which the Nineteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified. Its original purpose was to aid American women in the intelligent exercise of their newly sanctioned voting privileges. It has since become active in promoting the cause of good government.

National Liberal Club. London political club (Liberal), established in 1882.

National Liberal Federation. Indian political organization, serving as a focus for political groups advocating orderly progress toward Indian self-government through peaceful and constitutional means. It was formed in 1918 by dissident moderates of the National Congress, when the parent organization passed into control of more radical elements.

National Liberals. In German politics, a party which, before the creation of the German Empire in 1871, advocated, along with progressive measures of reform, the completion of governmental unity in Germany. After that time until 1879 it embraced those persons who, though of liberal antecedents, continued in support of the later policy of Bismarck. After the separation of the antiprotectionist members (Secessionists) in 1880, the strength of the party in the Reichstag diminished.

National Liberation Front. See EAM.

National Military Establishment. Executive agency established by the military unification bill passed by the U.S. Congress on July 25, 1947. The act unified the armed forces of the U.S., created a secretary of defense (with cabinet rank) as head of the establishment, and set up a Department of the Air Force having equal rank with the Army and Navy departments. The secretary of each department, however, does not possess cabinet rank. The subdivisions of the National Defense Establishment include the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the War Council, the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Council, and the National Security Resources Board. The first secretary of defense was James V. Forrestal, who resigned in 1949.

National Monetary Commission. U.S. body established under the terms of the emergency Aldrich-Vreeland Act of 1908 for the purpose of studying the history and operations of foreign fiscal and banking systems with the aim of suggesting desirable changes in the national banking structure of the U.S. The immediate cause governing its creation was the financial panic of 1907. The 18-man body, headed by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, submitted its comprehensive report to Congress in 1912. Many of its proposed remedies were incorporated in the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

National Non-Partisan League. Agrarian pressure group which was established in North Dakota in 1915 and remained active in that and other states until 1924. Its immediate aim was the dissolution of the grain trade monopoly in spring wheat, and its outstanding leaders were A. C. Townley, the League's chief founder, and Lynn J. Frazier, who was elected governor of North Dakota in 1916 after the League captured the Republican state primaries. Its program, which soon spread to other states in the U.S. Northwest, called for state grain inspection, tax reform, hail insurance, and credit banks, and for state-owned grain elevators, grain mills, and packing plants.

National Parks Association. Organization founded in 1919 for the purpose of protecting and preserving American parks. It maintains headquarters at Washington, D.C., and issues the National Parks Magazine (quarterly).

National Party. See Greenback Party.

National Planning Board. U.S. body established by the Public Works Administration (PWA) on July 20, 1933, for the purpose of undertaking investigations and submitting reports on the planned integration of industrial production, technological improvement, and natural resources. It was abolished on June 30, 1934, and replaced by the National Resources Board.

National Prohibition Act. See Volstead Act.

National Recovery Administration. [Called the NRA.] U.S. agency established by executive order on June 16, 1933, for preparing, administering, and enforcing the trade codes of fair competition authorized by the National Industrial Recovery Act of 1933. Its first administrator was Hugh S. Johnson, who served until September, 1934, and was succeeded by Donald Richberg. The familiar emblem of the NRA was the "blue eagle." The agency was reorganized several times and, following the U.S. Supreme Court decision in the case of Schechter Poultry Corp. v. U.S. (1935), was officially terminated by an executive order of Dec. 21, 1935. It was abolished on April 1, 1936. During its existence its operations affected approximately 22 million U.S. workers.

National Republican Party. See Colorado Party.

National Research Council. Organization established (1916), under Congressional charter, by the National Academy of Sciences for the purpose of furthering national preparedness. In keeping with an executive order issued by President Wilson in 1918, the council was continued as a permanent organization for promoting research in the physical and biological sciences and the application of scientific knowledge in the interests of the nation. Membership is composed largely of representatives of national scientific and technical societies, research institutions, and government agencies. The council maintains headquarters at Washington, D.C., and publishes a Bulletin and Annual Report.

National Resources Board. U.S. government unit created (June 30, 1934) to replace the National Planning Board, whose research and advisory functions it assumed. It was abolished on June 7, 1935, and was succeeded by the National Resources Committee.

National Resources Committee. U.S. government agency, established in 1935 to replace the National Resources Board, which was charged with research and advisory responsibilities in connection with the more effective integration of U.S. natural, industrial, and technological resources. In 1939 it was replaced by the National Resources Planning Board.

National Resources Planning Board. U.S. executive agency created by presidential authority on Sept. 8, 1939, for the purpose of investigating and reporting on the planned integration and development of American industrial and natural resources. This board replaced the National Resources Committee and was itself dissolved in July, 1943.

National Revolutionary Party. Coalition of political groups, chiefly conservative, brought about in Argentina by President Juan Perón after his election in 1946.

National Road. See Cumberland Road.

National Safety Council, Inc. Organization founded in 1913 for the purpose of educating the public in the best means of preventing accidents and of protecting health in industry. It maintains headquarters at Chicago, has a library of 75,000 books, pamphlets, and other material, and publishes eight magazines and 30 news letters monthly. The council makes safety awards to states, cities, industries, schools, and other organizations for meritorious safety activities.

National Security League. U.S. organization established in 1915 which promoted the cause of military preparedness. It was influential in affecting the Wilson administration's defense policy before the U.S. entry into World War I.

National Security Resources Board. [Called the NSRB.] U.S. government agency established by an act of the U.S. Congress approved on July 26, 1947, which is charged with the formulation of industrial and civilian policies assuring the effective mobilization and employment of national manpower resources in the event of war. Other duties assigned to it include the strategic relocation of industries and the unification of essential federal agencies in the event of a national emergency.

National Silver Party. Name used by a group of dissidents within the Republican Party who withdrew from the national convention of 1896 and supported the Democratic presidential candidate, William Jennings Bryan, on a platform of free silver coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1.

National Socialist German Workers' Party. See Nazi Party.

National Tuberculosis Association. Organization founded in 1904 for the purpose of studying tuberculosis in all its forms with a view toward encouraging its prevention and scientific treatment and coordinating the activities of other antituberculosis and health agencies. Its Committee on Medical Research makes grants to projects undertaken by universities and institutes. The medical section of the association is known as the American Trudeau Society and publishes The American Review of Tuberculosis (monthly). The association, which maintains headquarters at New York, issues a Bulletin and Transactions.

National Union for Social Justice. In the U.S., a group with a nativist political orientation established on April 25, 1935, by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, a Roman Catholic priest and radio orator of Royal Oak, Mich. Its declared goal was the elimination of "exploitation by powerful vested interests." During the national campaign of 1936 it supported the Union Party's candidate, William Lemke, and soon afterward was officially dissolved. Although various local units of the National Union for Social Justice continued to function, these vanished by 1941. The organization's weekly publication was Social Justice.

National War Labor Board. 1. U.S. government agency manned by employer, employee, and public representatives which was established in 1918 for the purpose of unifying the direction of American wartime labor administration and securing the voluntary and cooperative adjustment of labor disputes affecting war industries. Its operations terminated in 1919. 2. U.S. government agency, composed of a total of 12 employer, employee, and public representatives, established on Jan. 12, 1941, for the purpose of arbitrating or mediating industries' disputes affecting national defense in instances not susceptible to direct negotiation or to settlement by the conciliation commissioners of the U.S. Department of Labor. This unit, successor to the National Defense Mediation Board, was empowered with jurisdiction over wage rates.

National Woman's Party. Organization set up in 1917 which originated as the Congressional Union, a dissident body which seceded from the National American Woman Suffrage Association in 1914. It pursued militant agitation in behalf of an amendment to the U.S. Constitution sanctioning women's suffrage. Following the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment, the party crusaded for women's equal rights.

National Youth Administration. [Called the NYA.] U.S. agency established under the Works Progress Administration on June 26, 1935, for the purpose of sponsoring works projects furnishing part-time employment opportunities and job training for school youth and for young men 16 to 24 years of age whose families were receiving relief. It was terminated in 1943.

National Zoological Park. Institution at Washington, D.C., established in 1889 by U.S. congressional appropriation for the advancement of science and the instruction and recreation of the American people. It is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution, occupies a site of 175 acres, has a collection of 2,550 animals, and maintains a library of more than 4,000 volumes on wild life.

Native American Party. Later name of the American Republican Party.

Native Son. Novel by Richard Wright, published in 1940. It was dramatized in collaboration with Paul Green and produced in 1941.

NATO (nā'tō). See North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Natoma (na.tō'ma). Opera in three acts by Victor Herbert, with a libretto by Joseph D. Redding, first fully performed at Philadelphia on Feb. 25, 1911. The heroine, Natoma, is an Indian girl.

Natorp (nā'tōrp), Paul Gerhard. b. at Düsseldorf, Germany, Jan. 24, 1854; d. at Marburg, Germany, Aug. 17, 1924. German educator and Neo-Kantian philosopher, next to Hermann Cohen the most important representative of the so-called Marburg school. He served (1885 et seq.) as professor at the University of Marburg. Author of Sozialpädagogik (1899), Platos Ideenlehre (1903), Die logischen Grundlagen der exakten Wissenschaften (1910), Kant und die Marburger Schule (1915), and Vorlesungen über praktische Philosophie (1925).

Natrona (na.trō'na). Unincorporated industrial community in W Pennsylvania, in Allegheny County, on the Allegheny River NE of Pittsburgh; manufactures of chemicals. Pop. including adjacent Natrona Heights, 13,933 (1950).

Natron Lakes (nā'trōn). See Nitria.

Natty Bumpo (nat'f bump'ō). See Bumpo, Natty.

Nature. Essay by Ralph Waldo Emerson. Originally published as an unsigned piece in 1836, it appeared in his Nature, Addresses and Lectures (1849). The essay expresses Emerson's belief in the universality of the divine mind and the transcendent character of the world of nature. It is regarded as the basic statement of the principles of New England Transcendentalism.

Nau (nō), Jacques Jean David. See L'Olonnois, François.

Nau, John Antoine. [Original name, André Torquet.] b. at San Francisco, Calif., 1873; d. at Trébois, France, 1918. French poet and novelist. Author of verse collections, including Hiers bleus (1904) and Poèmes triviaux et mystiques (1925); of novels, including Cristobal le poète (1912); and of various travel books.

Naucratis (nō'kra.tis). In ancient geography, a city in Egypt, situated on the Nile in the Delta, about midway between Cairo and Alexandria. It is believed to have been founded by Milesian colonists not later than the 7th century B.C., and was described by Athenaeus and Herodotus as celebrated for its potters and florists. The site remained unknown till it was discovered by W. M. Flinders Petrie in 1884. The very extensive and important remains that have been excavated, especially under the direction of Petrie and of E. A. Gardner, include ruins of the famous Hellenion (a temple owned by the Greeks in common), temples of Zeus, Hera, and Aphrodite (all known from historical accounts), and pieces of pottery in great variety and profusion.

Naudé (nō.dā), Gabriel. b. at Paris, Feb. 2, 1600; d. at Abbeville, France, July 30, 1653. French scholar and librarian. As librarian to Cardinal Mazarin, he was the assembler of the Mazarin Library.

Naudet (nō.de), Joseph. b. at Paris, Dec. 8, 1876; d. there, Aug. 13, 1878. French historical scholar.

Nauen (nou'ən). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, ab. 24 mi. NW of Berlin. Formerly (until the end of World War II) it had an important German radio station. It has a harbor, and machine, soap, and sugar industries. 13,106 (1946).

Nauen, Heinrich. b. at Krefeld, Germany, June 1, 1880—. German expressionistic painter, engraver, and lithographer. He did a mosaic in the Düsseldorf Planetarium, decorated the Duisburg Hof, and has illustrated many books. His lithographs include landscapes, portraits, and interior scenes.

Naufragium Joculare (nō.frā'ji.um jok.ū.lā'rē). Latin academic comedy by Abraham Cowley, acted at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1638.

Naugard (nou'gärt). German name of Nowogard.

Naugatuck (nō'ga.tuk). Borough in W Connecticut, in New Haven County, ab. 15 mi. NW of New Haven; manufactures of cameras, plastics, wire goods, chemicals, and rubber goods. 17,455 (1950).

Nauhcampatepetl (nou'kām.pā.tā'pet.l). Nahuatl name of Perote, Cofre de.

Nauheim (nou'hīm). [Also, Bad Nauheim.] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the province of Upper Hesse, free state of Hesse, situated in the Taunus Mountains ab. 26 mi. N. of Frankfurt on the Main; a popular health resort, with ferruginous saline springs. It also has ceramics, furniture, paper, and metal industries, 13,019 (1950).

Naulilaa Incident (nou'li.lä). Border incident (1915) on the frontier of the Portuguese colony of Angola and German Southwest Africa, in which three Germans were killed. The International Court at The Hague ruled that the fracas arose from a misunderstanding; nevertheless, in reprisal, the Germans attacked several Portuguese posts, and stirred up a native insurrection against the Portuguese. A subsequent arbitral award was in Portugal's favor, and is considered by specialists in international law to have been a signal ruling on issues of reprisal.

Naumann (nou'män), Emil. b. at Berlin, Sept. 8, 1827; d. at Dresden, Germany, June 23, 1888. German composer and writer on music; son of M. E. A. Naumann. Among his works is an illustrated history of music. His compositions include the opera Judith (1848), oratorios, and sacred music.

Naumann, Friedrich. b. at Störnthal, Germany, March 25, 1860; d. at Travemünde, Germany, Aug. 24, 1919. German politician, a free-lance writer for Christliche Welt, and a leader of the Evangelist-Socialist Congress. A liberal with imperialistic tendencies, he was a close associate of the editor and political leader Theodor Barth, and was a member of the Reichstag (1907-12). He set forth his program, envisioning a central European empire embodying the pan-German concept, in Mitteleuropa (1915). In 1917 he established the Political Academy at Berlin. Naumann was a cofounder of the Democratic Party (1918) and its first chairman; the bill of rights in the Weimar constitution was drafted by him. His most important works, in addition to Mitteleuropa, are Asia (1899), Die politischen Parteien (1911), and Kaiser und Volksstaat (1917). A collection of essays published in his periodical Welt were edited in 1913 under the title Das Blaue Buch von Vaterland und Freiheit.

Naumann, Hans. b. at Görlitz, Germany, May 13, 1886—. German folklorist. He served (1919 et seq.) as professor at the universities of Jena, Frankfurt on the Main, and Bonn. Author of Grundzüge der deutschen Volkskunde (Characteristic Features of German Folklore, 1922), and Deutsche Nation in Gefahr (The German Nation in Danger, 1932).

Naumann, Johann Friedrich. b. at Ziebigk, near Köthen, Germany, Feb. 14, 1780; d. there, Aug. 15, 1857. German ornithologist.

Naumann, Johann Gottlieb. [Name in Italy, Giovanni Amadeo Naumann.] b. at Blasewitz, near Dresden, Germany, April 17, 1741; d. at Dresden, Oct. 23, 1801. German composer of operas and sacred music. His chief operas are Amphion (1776), Cora (1780), Gustav Wasa (1780), and Orpheus (1785).

Naumann, Karl Ernst. b. Aug. 15, 1832; d. 1910. German director and organist (1860-1906) at Jena University, where he was professor (1877 et seq.). He composed chamber works and an orchestral pastorate; son of Karl Friedrich Naumann.

Naumann, Karl Friedrich. b. at Dresden, Germany, May 30, 1797; d. there, Nov. 26, 1873. German mineralogist and geologist; son of Johann Gottlieb Naumann. He wrote Lehrbuch der Geognosie (1850-53) and others.

Naumann, Moritz Ernst Adolf. b. at Dresden, Germany, Oct. 7, 1798; d. at Bonn, Germany, Oct. 19, 1871. German physician; son of Johann Gottlieb Naumann.

Naumburg (noum'bürk). [Also, Naumburg an der Saale (än der zä'le).] City in C Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Saale River near its junction with the Unstrut River, ab. 27 mi. SW of Leipzig. Until World War II it was important for its textile, paper, soap, plastics, and toy industries. Its old buildings include the Dom (cathedral), a partly Romanesque, partly Gothic structure of the 12th century, one of the foremost medieval buildings of central Germany, containing many outstanding sculptures. The Gothic Wenzelkirche of 1517 contains paintings by Lucas Cranach; the Rathaus (town hall) is a Gothic building of the 16th century. The city was founded by the margraves of Meissen, became the seat of the bishopric of Zeitz-Naumburg in 1028, and was a member of the Hanseatic League in the 13th century. It passed to Saxony in 1564 and to Prussia in 1815. The population increased in the period 1939-46 by 21.9 percent, 41,379 (1946).

Naunyn (nou'nén), Bernhard Julius. b. at Berlin, Sept. 2, 1839; d. at Strasbourg, 1925. German pathologist. He worked on pathological chemistry and experimental pathology (icterus, fever, diabetes), and described carcinoma of the liver.

Naupactus (nó.pak'tus) or Naupaktos (náf'pák.tós).

See Navpakto.

Nauplia (nó'pli.a). [Also: Naflion, Nauplion (nó'pli.on), Navplion.] Town in S Greece, the capital of the nomos (department) of Argolis and Corinthia, situated at the head of the Gulf of Nauplia, ab. 25 mi. SW of Corinth. It was the port of ancient Argos, and was the seat of the Greek government from 1824 to 1834. Pop. 8,456 (1951).

Nauplia, Gulf of. [Also: Gulf of Argolis (or Argos); Greek, Argolikos Kolpos; Latin, Argolicus Sinus.] Arm of the Aegean Sea, indenting the E coast of the Peloponnesus, Greece. Length, ab. 30 mi.

Nauru (nä'ö'rü). [Former name, Pleasant Island.] Coral island in W central Pacific Ocean, ab. 37 mi. S of the equator and over 400 mi. W of the Gilbert Islands. It is administered by Australia under a joint British-Australian-New Zealand agreement. Phosphate is the principal export product; approximately a million tons were mined and exported in 1949-50. Nauru was discovered in 1798, annexed by Germany in 1888, and occupied by Australian forces in 1914. It was administered under a League of Nations mandate, and has been since World War II under a United Nations trusteeship. The Japanese occupied Nauru on Aug. 26, 1942, and held it until the end of World War II. Area, ab. 8 sq. mi.; pop. 3,432 (1950), including: Europeans, 278; Asiatics, 1,491; Nauruans, 1,582; other Pacific islanders, 81 (1950).

Nausée (nő.zä'), La. Novel (1938; Eng. trans., Nausea, 1949) by Jean Paul Sartre. Critics call the book a fictional presentation of the existentialist metaphysics.

Nauset (nő'set). Tribe of North American Indians of Algonquian stock, formerly living on Cape Cod. They became merged with the Wampanoags of Narragansett Bay; both groups have been extinct since the 15th century.

Naushon (nő.shon'). Largest of the Elizabeth Islands, off SE Massachusetts, NW of Martha's Vineyard.

Nausicaa (nő.sik'ä.a). In the Odyssey, the daughter of Alcinoüs, king of the Phaeacians. When Odysseus was shipwrecked on the Phaeacian shore, Nausicaa found him and took him to her father's court.

Nautilus (nő'ti.lus). U.S. submarine, designed as the first submarine to be powered by an atomic pile. The keel was laid on June, 1952.

Nauvoo (nő.vö'). [Former name, Commerce.] City in W Illinois, in Hancock County, on the Mississippi River ab. 42 mi. N of Quincy. It was settled in 1839 by the Mormons, who were expelled in 1846. 1,242 (1950).

Nava (nä'vä'). Latin name of the Naho.

Navaho (nav'a.hö'). [Also, Navajo.] Tribe of North American Indians, originally nomadic, who wandered down from the north and established themselves in the American Southwest. In the early 17th century they were in NE Arizona, from which region they preyed first upon the Pueblo peoples, then the Spanish, and finally the Americans in New Mexico. Punitive and constraining measures against the Navaho all failed until Kit Carson destroyed (1863-64) their sheep and 3,000 of their fruit trees. Many then went into E New Mexico; many others were imprisoned. In 1868 they were given a reservation of 16 million acres of desert and arid lands in NE Arizona, NW New Mexico, and SE Utah, where today ab. 61,000 of them follow their ancient ways of agriculture, sheep-herding, weaving, and metalworking. Navaho religion is a complex, mystical religion expressed in dramatic ritual. The famous Night Way Chant (performed to bring rain, effect cures, and promote general communal well-being) is probably the best known of their ceremonies to white outsiders. The Navaho language belongs to the Western branch of the Apachean group of the Athapascan family of North American Indian languages.

Naval Academy, U.S. [Commonly called Annapolis.] Government training institution for officers in the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps, founded (Oct. 10, 1845) at Annapolis, Md., by Secretary of the Navy George Bancroft. It was originally called the "Naval School" and received its present designation in 1850. Candidates for the school are drawn from every state in the Union. Each member of Congress is apportioned four appointees, while others may be appointed from the ranks of the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Naval Reserve, and the Marine Corps Reserve, or may be nominated by the president. Candidates must be U.S. citizens between the ages of 17 and 21. They are admitted as midshipmen, receive 780 dollars a year (supplemented by 75 cents a day for rations), and undergo a four-year training course leading to the B.S. degree and qualified commissions as Navy ensigns or Marine Corps second lieutenants. Total enrollment is usually 3,000. Diplomas and commissions are awarded at Annapolis during the colorful "June Week" ceremonies.

Naval Agreement of 1935, Anglo-German. See Anglo-German Naval Agreement of 1935.

Naval Conference, London. See London Naval Conference.

Naval Gun Factory, U.S. Government establishment at Washington, D.C., created in 1800 as part of the Washington Navy Yard. Up to the period before World War I, the gun factory provided virtually all of the naval ordnance used by the U.S. Most of the heavy guns mounted on large U.S. naval vessels since 1800 have originated in its works. During World War II it had more than 23,000 workers.

Naval Observatory, U.S. Government establishment created in 1842 and situated since 1893 at Washington, D.C. It became (1866) a branch of the Bureau of Navigation, and has been under its authority except for the years between 1889 and 1910, when it was under the Bureau of Equipment. The observatory studies heavenly bodies and records pertinent data, supplies radio signals giving the official daily time, and administers the Nautical Almanac Office. It disseminates information on navigation and astronomy, and publishes the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac.

Naval War College. U.S. government institution established in 1884, for the study, by officers, of naval strategy, tactics, and international law. Commodore S. B. Luce, U.S.N., was the first president, and under his direction Captain Alfred T. Mahan, who was subsequently president, took up the historical studies which led to his works on sea power. The navy regulations of 1905 coordinated the college with the general board of the navy for general staff work in addition to its original purpose. The school is situated at Coaster's Harbor Island, near Newport, R.I., and is administered by the Bureau of Navigation, Department of the Navy.

Navan (nav'an). [Irish, An Uaimh.] Urban district and market town in Leinster province, Irish Republic, in County Meath, situated at the confluence of the rivers Blackwater and Boyne, ab. 27 mi. NW of Dublin, 4,273 (1951).

Navanagar (ná.vā.nu'gār). See also Jamnagar.

Navanagar. [Also: Nawanagar, Novanagar, Nowanagur.] Former native state now incorporated into Saurashtra, Union of India, ab. 170 mi. SW of the city of Ahmedabad. Its people are for the most part subsistence farmers, but there are some dairy products produced for shipment. Former capital, Jamnagar; area, ab. 3,791 sq. mi.; pop. 504,006 (1941).

Navarraise (ná.vā.rez), La. [Eng. trans., "The Girl of Navarre."] Opera in one act by Jules Massenet, with a libretto by Jules Claretie and H. Cain, first performed at the Covent Garden Theatre, London, on June 20, 1894.

Navarino (ná.vā.rē'nō; Anglicized, nav.ə.rē'nō). See Pylos, Greece.

Navarino, Battle of. Battle fought Oct. 20, 1827, in which the English, French, and Russian fleets, united for the protection of Greece, entering the harbor of Navarino (Pylos) under the command of Sir Edward Codrington, annihilated the Turkish-Egyptian fleet.

Navarra (ná.bär'rá). [French, Navarre (na.vär'; French, ná.vär').] Province in NE Spain, bounded by France on the N, Huesca and Zaragoza on the E and SE, Logroño on the S, and Álava and Guipúzcoa on the W; the western part belongs to the Basque region. The province is largely mountainous, comprising the SW slopes of the Pyrenees. The Ebro River forms the S border. Forestry and the raising of livestock prevail over agriculture; there are a number of industries. Capital, Pamplona; area, 4,056 sq. mi.; pop. 383,333 (1950).

Navarra y Rocafull (ná.bär'rá ē rō.kā.fōl'), Melchor de. [Title, Duke of La Palata.] b. in Aragon, Spain; d. at Portobelo, Panama, April 13, 1691. Spanish administrator, vice-chancellor of Aragon and president of the royal council during the minority of Charles II. From Nov. 20, 1681, to Aug. 15, 1689, he was viceroy of Peru.

Navarre (na.vär'; French, na.vär) [Spanish, Navarra (ná.bär'rá).] Ancient kingdom which comprised the modern province of Navarra in Spain and part of the department of Basses-Pyrénées in France. It arose c900, and under Sancho III (1000-35) comprised also Aragon and Castile. On its death his dominions (Navarre, Castile, and other holdings) were separated. Navarre was later united to Aragon, and later still to France, from which it was separated in 1328. The part S of the Pyrenees was acquired by Spain in 1513. The part N of the Pyrenees was united with France under its king, Henry IV (Henry of Navarre), in 1589.

Navarre, Pierre. b. at Detroit, Mich., March 28, 1790; d. near Toledo, Ohio, March 20, 1874. American scout in the War of 1812. Operating from his home near the mouth of the Maumee River, he was active as a fur trader and during the War of 1812 was a scout for General James Winchester and for the forces under William Henry Harrison. Resuming fur trading after the war, he appears to have worked for the St. Joseph's and Kankakee branches of the American Fur Company. His later years were passed on a farm near Toledo.

Navarrete (ná.bär.rā'tā), Domingo Fernández. b. in Spain, c1610; d. in Santo Domingo, 1689. Spanish missionary, author of a work on China (Tratados históricos, 1676). He was archbishop of Santo Domingo from 1678.

Navarrete (ná.bär.rā'tā) or Navarete (ná.bär.rā'tā), Juan Fernández. [Surname El Mudo, meaning "the Mute."] b. at Logroño, Spain, 1526; d. c1579. Spanish painter of religious subjects.

Navarrete, Martín Fernández de. b. at Avalos, Logroño, Spain, Nov. 8, 1765; d. at Madrid, Oct. 8, 1844. Spanish naval officer and historian. He attained the rank of captain in 1796, and subsequently held high offices in the department of marine. In 1789-92 he was commissioned to collect documents relating to the history of the Spanish navy. From 1823 he was director of the hydrographic department, and from 1824 director of the Madrid Academy of History. His principal works are Colección de los viajes y descubrimientos que hicieron por mar los Españoles desde fines del siglo XV (7 vols., 1825-65) and Biblioteca marítima española (posthumous, 1851). He planned and edited the first four volumes of the great collection of documents relating to Spanish history.

Navas de Tolosa (ná.vās dā tō.lō'sā), Las. See under Bailén.

Navasota (nav.ə.sō'tā). [Former name, Nolansville.] City in E Texas, in Grimes County, NW of Houston: cotton gins and cottonseed-oil mills. It was established in 1858. It is believed that the explorer La Salle was killed (1687) in this vicinity. 5,188 (1950).

Navesink Hills (nav'ē.singk). See Highlands of Navesink.

Navez (ná.vā), François Joseph. b. at Charleroi, Belgium, 1787; d. 1869. Belgian painter. He studied at Paris with David. He was director of the Royal Academy of Beaux-Arts at Brussels, and professor of painting there, and also at the École Normale. Among his pictures are Hagar in the Desert, Meeting of Isaac and Rebecca, and Resurrection of Lazarus.

Navicert System (nav'is.ért). Arrangement announced by Great Britain and the U.S. on Nov. 21, 1939, by which British observers were privileged to examine and approve in U.S. ports the exports to neutral countries of Europe. The system was established in order to avoid the inspection and diversion of U.S. ships in British blockaded waters, which had caused so much ill feeling in World War I.

Naville (nā.vēl), Henri Édouard. [Called Édouard Naville.] b. at Geneva, Switzerland, June 14, 1844; d. there, Oct. 17, 1926. Swiss Egyptologist. He made (1883 et seq.) numerous archaeological expeditions to Egypt. Among his works on Egyptian antiquities is his monumental edition of the Book of the Dead. Author of Archaeology of the Old Testament (1913) and The Text of the Old Testament (1916).

Naojao (nā.bō.nō'ā). City in NW Mexico, in Sonora state, 11,009 (1940).

Navpaktos (nāf'pāk.tōs). [Also: Lepanto, Naupaktos; Latin, Naupactus.] Small town in the nomos (department) of Aetolia and Acarnania, Greece, abt. 15 mi. NE of Patras; seat of a bishopric. It was an Athenian military station in the 5th century B.C. The Venetians lost it to the Turks in 1499. Pop. 5,586 (1940).

Navyion (nāf'pīē.ōn). See Nauplia.

Navy, U.S. Department of the. U.S. government department, one of three under the National Military Establishment created in 1947 (the other two are the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force). It is headed by the secretary of the navy, who does not have cabinet status and is responsible to the secretary of defense. Before unification of the armed forces was achieved, the Navy Department had separate status as an executive department, and its head enjoyed cabinet rank. Unification did not, however, affect the status of naval aviation, which still remains a part of the navy. The commander in chief of the navy is the President of the United States; the executive head of the navy is the chief of naval operations. Both the secretary of the navy and the chief of naval operations are members of the War Council. The chief functions of the navy are to assure ability to carry out prompt and sustained combat operations at sea (except for such land operations as may be specifically assigned), to gain and maintain general sea supremacy, to control vital sea areas, and to protect vital sea lines of communication. The U.S. Marine Corps is under the authority of the Navy Department. General naval policy is recommended by the navy general board, with headquarters at Washington, D.C. The navy has 16 naval districts in charge of naval activities in the U.S. and its possessions; each district is under a commandant who exercises authority over activities in shore-based establishments and in waters adjacent to the district. The combat craft of the navy include aircraft carriers, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, destroyer escorts, submarines, PT boats, and motorboats. The navy is itself divided into two major units, the Pacific Fleet and the Atlantic Fleet, each of which, under the command of an admiral, has subfleet organizations. The subfleets are in turn divided into task forces, of which the subdivisions are task groups and task units consisting of ships of the same type. The navy maintains units and shore establishments including the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Seabee (construction) battalions, navy yards, naval supply depots, naval operating bases, naval and air training stations, naval aircraft, gun, and powder factories, the Naval War College, the Naval Academy, and the Naval Observatory. The women's branch of the navy is the WAVES; naval enlistment for U.S. women dates back to World War I, when more than 10,000 served; in World War II there were more than 84,000 enrollments. The peacetime navy draws its recruits chiefly from volunteers, although the Selective Service Act of 1948 authorizes the use of the draft to help meet the navy's requirements. Individual ratings among enlisted men range from nonrated seaman to chief petty officer. Commissioned officers of the regular navy and naval reserve are divided into three classifications known as line, staff, and warrant officers. Line officers (denoted by a star above the sleeve stripe) exercise command functions; their grades range from ensign to admiral, and most of them are drawn from the U.S. Naval Academy and the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Staff officers (organized in the Navy Staff Corps) include chaplains, civil engineers, and medical, dental, and supply officers. Warrant officers, divided into warrant and chief warrant classifications, comprise the lowest officer grade. The peacetime reserve of the U.S. Navy is the U.S. Naval Reserve, consisting of the Fleet Reserve, the Organized Reserve, the Merchant Marine Reserve, and the Volunteer Reserve. The U.S. Navy had its inception during the American Revolution, when a naval committee was established (Oct. 13, 1775) by the Continental Congress, but formal organization of the Navy Department came with the creation of the national government in 1789. The present two-ocean navy policy was adopted under the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. World War II saw the employment by the U.S. of the largest fleet in world history. At the close of the war the navy had in service 1,397 vessels, exclusive of auxiliary and small combat types of craft.

Navy Range. See Colbert Range.

Navy Yard City. Unincorporated community in W Washington, in Kitsap County; a southwestern suburb of Bremerton, 3,030 (1950).

Nawa (nā.wā). See Naha.

Nawanagar (nā.wa.nug'ar). See Navanagar.

Naxos (nak'sōs). [Also, Naxia (nak'si.ā).] Island in the Aegean Sea, belonging to the nomos (department) of Cyclades, Greece. It is the largest and most fertile of the Cyclades, and is celebrated for its wine, olives, fruit, and vegetables. It was a member of the Confederacy of Delos, and revolted, but was subdued by Athens c467 B.C. Near it Athens won a naval victory over Sparta in 376 B.C. It was conquered by the Venetians in 1207, and was the center of a duchy until 1566. It was under Turkish supremacy after 1537 and became Turkish property in 1579. In 1829 it passed to Greece. Area, 170 sq. mi.; pop. 31,114 (1940).

Naxos. [Also, Naxia.] Chief town of the island of Naxos, Greece, in the nomos (department) of Cyclades, situated on the NW coast; seat of a Greek and a Roman Catholic bishopric. 2,487 (1940).

Naxos. [Also, Naxus.] In ancient geography, a seaport in Sicily, abt. 26 mi. NE of Catania. It was the earliest Greek colony in Sicily (founded by Chalcis in 735 B.C.), and was destroyed (403 B.C.) by Dionysius the elder, tyrant of Syracuse.

Naxuana (nak.sū.ā'na). Ancient name of Nakhichevan.

Naxus (nak'sūs). See Naxos, Sicily.

Nayarit (nā.yā.rēt'). [Also, Nuevo Toledo.] State in W Mexico, bordering on the Pacific and including the islands of Les Tres Marias, Isabela, and San Juanico. Mining, lumbering, and agriculture are the chief industries. Mexico's youngest state, it was occupied by the Spanish in the 16th century, formed (c1824-84) part of Jalisco state, then was included in the territory of Tepic, and achieved statehood in 1917. Capital, Tepic; area, 10,547 sq. mi.; pop. 292,343 (1950).

Nayarits (nā.yā.rēt's). Collective term for several Indian tribes of the mountainous region in the Mexican states of Nayarit, Jalisco, and Zacatecas. They were not completely conquered until 1722, and since then have maintained a large degree of cultural independence.

Nayler (nā'ler), James. b. at Ardsley, Yorkshire, England, c1617; d. in Huntingdonshire, England, 1660. English Puritan fanatic. He served as quartermaster in the Parliamentary army in 1642, and in 1651 became a Quaker. He gradually gathered about him a band of personal followers, however, and under the delusion that he was a reincarnation of Christ, he entered Bristol in October, 1656, on horseback, in imitation of Christ's entry into Jerusalem. On Dec. 16, 1656, he was convicted of blasphemy by Parliament. The punishment to which he was subjected (whipping, branding on the forehead with B for blasphemer, pillorying, having his tongue bored through with a hot iron, and being imprisoned) brought about a public confession in 1659.

Nazaré (nā.za.rē'). [Former name, Nazareth.] City in E Brazil, in the state of Bahia, 11,661 (1950).

Nazarene (naz'a.rēn). Inhabitant of Nazareth, a town in Galilee, Palestine; a name given (in contempt) to Jesus (with the definite article), and to the early converts to Christianity (Acts, xxiv. 5); hence, a Christian.

Nazarenes. Sect of Jewish Christians which continued to the 4th century A.D. They observed the Mosaic ritual, and looked for a millennium on earth. Unlike the Ebionites, they believed in the divinity of Christ.

Nazareth (naz'a.rēth). [Arabic, En Nasira.] Town in Galilee, Palestine, now in N Israel. It is celebrated as the dwelling place of Jesus during his childhood and early manhood. The Church of the Annunciation was founded by the empress Helena, mother of Constantine I, but ruined in the Middle Ages, and rebuilt later. In the crypt is the traditional place of the Annunciation. Pop. 20,000 (1950), entirely non-Jewish.

Nazareth. Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Northampton County, ab. 56 mi. N of Philadelphia; manufactures of cement and textiles. It was the second Moravian settlement in the state. 5,830 (1950).

Nazaribagh Mountains (nā.zē'ri.bāg). [Also, Hazaribagh Mountains.] Range of mountains in E Union of India, chiefly in Bihar. They extend NE to SW for ab. 175 mi. and reach a height of 4,018 ft. In this range are found some of the best reserves of iron ore and coal yet located in the Union of India. These materials feed the steel plant at Jamshedpur.

Nazarites (nāz.'ar.its). [Also, Nazirites.] Among the ancient Hebrews, religious devotees, set apart to the Lord by a special vow the terms of which are carefully prescribed in Num. vi. They included entire abstinence from wine and other intoxicating liquors, from all cutting of the hair, and from all approach to a dead body. The vow might be taken either for a limited period or for life. They first appear in the time of the Philistine oppression.

Nazas (nā.'sis). River in N Mexico, in the state of Durango, flowing E into the Laguna district.

Nazca (nās.'ka). [Also, Nasca.] Valley on the central Peruvian coast noted for great figures outlined by pebbles on the ground, such as converging arrows, squares, and designs of monsters, which can only be seen from the air. One can only speculate as to their purpose. Evidence of the Tiahuanaco culture is also found here. Nazca civilization was contemporary with the Tiahuanaco culture, but independent of it until after 900 A.D. Nazca culture was agricultural; there are shell mounds; the ceramic and textile arts were of a high level, as exemplified by findings in the burial pits, but there are no extant village remains.

Naze (nāz). the. Cape in SE England, at the eastern extremity of Essex, ab. 5 mi. S of Harwich, ab. 64 mi. NE of London. It projects into the North Sea.

Naze, the. English name of Lindenes.

Nazhivin (nā.zhē'vin), Ivan Fyodorovich. b. at Moscow, 1874; d. 1940. Russian novelist. Some of his numerous tales deal with the life of his compatriots who, like himself, had escaped from Russia after the revolution. Three of his novels available in English are Rasputin (1929), A Certain Jesus: the Gospel According to Thomas (1930), also published under the title According to Thomas, and The Dogs (1931).

Nazianzus (nā.zi'an.'zus), Saint Gregory of. See Saint Gregory of Nazianzus.

Nazimova (nā.zē'mō.vā, nā.zim'ō.vā), Alla. b. at Yalta, in the Crimea, Russia, June 4, 1879; d. at New York, July 13, 1945. Russian stage and screen actress. By 1904 she was a leading actress at St. Petersburg. That year she joined Paul Orleneff's Company and went on tour, visiting London in January, 1905, and that March performing in Russian at New York. She made her English-speaking debut the next season in Hedda Gabler (1906). She followed this with an Ibsen series, playing A Doll's House (1907) and The Master Builder (1907). In 1916, Nazimova began a notable motion-picture career which lasted until 1923, starring in such films as War Brides (1916), Camille (1918), and Madonna of the Streets (1924). She returned to the New York stage in Dagmar (1923). She went to London to play in Woman of the Earth (1928), and on her return joined the Civic Repertory at New York, performing in Anton Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard (1929) and Leonid Andreyev's Katerina (1930). Then came her greatest role, as Christine in Eugene O'Neill's Mourning Becomes Electra (1931). Subsequently she appeared in a dramatization of The Good Earth (1932), Dr. Monica (1933), and G. B. Shaw's Simpleton of the Unrepeated Isles (1935), and gave one of her most distinguished performances as Mrs. Alving in a production of Ibsen's Ghosts which she took to many cities in the U.S.

Nazimuddin (nā.zē.mūd.dēn'), Al-Haj Khwaja. b. July 19, 1894. Pakistani statesman. He served as chief (1922-29) of the municipal council at Dacca and as a member (1934-37) of the executive council of Bengal. From 1937 to 1941 he was minister of home affairs and, as a prominent member (1942 et seq.) of the Moslem League, he headed the opposition before becoming (1943) chief minister. He went (1945-46) to the U.S. as a member of the Indian delegation seeking to alleviate the acute food shortage in India. In 1947 he became premier of East Pakistan and from 1948 to 1951 served as governor general of Pakistan. When Liaquat Ali Khan was assassinated in 1951, Nazimuddin became premier. His government fell in April, 1953, when it failed to find the solution to an acute national food shortage.

Nazi Party (nā.'tsi, nat.'si). [Popular appellation of the National Socialist German Workers' Party; abbreviation, NSDAP, from the German Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei.] German political party, founded in 1920 and dominant in Germany from 1933 to 1945 under the leadership of Adolf Hitler. Its program, marking the peak of European totalitarianism as it developed between the two world wars, was based on an extreme nationalism and the embodiment of the principle of leadership (Führerprinzip), the exploitation of the desires and frustrations of large segments of the German population searching for a leader who would bring them some measure of hope out of the despair that followed World War I. The origins of National Socialism are found in World War I and its immediate aftermath. The French policy of revanche, tempered to some extent by Woodrow Wilson's moderation, had stripped Germany of much of its industrial strength; and instead of the prewar monarchy Germany now found itself directed by a fairly weak semi-socialistic democratic government. The discontent that found expression in the Spartacist movement and the Kapp Putsch led also to the formation of many small political groups interested in pushing their own systems of reform.

The Formation of the Party. One such group was the German Labor Party, formed in Munich under the leadership of Gottfried Feder; its program was one of state control of land and banks and of resistance to the Versailles Treaty and the government that accepted it. Into this group came, as member number 7, an ex-corporal of the German army, the Austrian-born Adolf Hitler. The party discovered that Hitler was a fine orator; and he, by repeating constantly the message that the Germans had been stabbed in the back and had not lost the war in the field, and that Germany's evil days had been caused by the Socialists, the Jews, the bankers, the government, soon swelled the list of party members. By 1923, the party, recruiting its members principally from among the lower middle class, had grown tremendously. Its appeal was not so much to the working man, whose assets were his ability to work and his skills, nor to members of the upper or upper middle class, who had substantial businesses to fall back upon, nor to the farmers, who had livestock and land upon which to live; rather its appeal was to the small professional man, the civil service worker, the white-collar worker, the small business man, whose savings and means of livelihood were wiped out in the inflationary spiral that wrecked the German economy. To these people Hitler led forth the scapegoats for the evil that had fallen upon them: the Jews, who were called international bankers, war profiteers, socialists, and degraders of German unity, all at the same time; the Communists, whose growth as a political party seemed to threaten any chance of a return to the comfortable life these people had known; the government, ruling under the Weimar constitution, accepting the onerous Versailles Diktat (in the eyes of the Hitlerites not really a treaty but an imposed peace to be denounced as soon as the opportunity presented itself). The early days of the party saw attracted to it such figures as Hermann Goerring, Rudolf Hess, Alfred Rosenberg, Paul Joseph Goebbels, Julius Streicher, and others whose names were to become world-known; it was largely supported, as were most other anti-Communist groups, by the large industrialists, not so much because of its ideological appeal, as for its possibilities as a force against possible future Communist domination of the government. As its symbol, the party adopted the swastika, already infamous in Russia as the sign of anti-Semitism, and possessing a universal appeal as the ancient sign of fertility, the sweeping wheel of the sun: this symbol, placed within a white circle on the red flag of socialist revolution, became the banner of the Nazis; swastikas as armbands, as standards, were used to distinguish members, as were later the brown shirts, belts, daggers, and boots of the S.A. (Sturmabteilung), the party's private army. By 1923 the party had attracted to it the war hero General Erich Ludendorff, ex-chief of staff to Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

The Beer-Hall Putsch. In January, 1923, the French had occupied the Ruhr because of failure of German reparations payments, and the growing resentment of the Germans, their despair at the deepening depression and rising inflation, made it seem possible to Hitler and his followers that a sudden coup might topple the government. During a political meeting in a Munich beer-hall on Nov. 8, 1923, the Nazi storm troopers suddenly appeared and, led by Hitler who leaped on a table and called for revolution and a march on Berlin, cowed the persons at the meeting into agreeing to their plans. Among those acquiescing under duress were Bavarian Premier Gustav von Kahr, Reichswehr commander for Bavaria Otto von Lossow, and Bavarian police chief Hans von Seisser. The next day, assured that he would meet with no resistance, Ludendorff headed a parade of some 3,000 Nazis. The officials, however, had recanted once they were free of the Nazis, and the parade was met by the armed Reichswehr. Ludendorff marched through the military lines unscathed but the remainder of the Nazis were met by rifle fire; 14 died and many were wounded. Hitler fled, only to be arrested and sentenced to five years' imprisonment at Landsberg. He served only 13 months of the term, but used the time of his imprisonment in writing Mein Kampf, an outline of his political philosophy; in this he was aided by his fellow prisoner Rudolf Hess. Mein Kampf, the basic book of the Nazi movement, is, philosophically, a mélange of nationalist, racist, and pseudo-socialist belief. According to Hitler's statements, the Germans had lost the war because of the socialists behind the front, aided by Jewish profiteers. Therefore, the Jews must be driven from Germany. Germany would then come to a new life, its blood purified of the Semitic strain. Hitler repeated the arguments of Houston Stewart Chamberlain and others, who had held up the so-called Nordic as the highest type of humanity, as the exemplars of the "Aryan race" (at bottom a meaningless phrase, since Aryan specifically was a linguistic and not an ethnological or cultural term, but emotionally appealing as a rallying point for those who needed to feel solidarity with some group in a time of chaos). Once the Jews had been extirpated, the Volk, a throwback to the unity of the Germanic peoples of old, could again assert itself. Communism would be defeated; France would again, as she had in the days of Bismarck, be forced to her knees. Throughout his book Hitler extolled the value of propaganda: the important thing was to get the people to believe something, whether true or not; once they believed they could be led; the war was lost, among other reasons, because the German propaganda was inferior to the Allies'. The program outlined in Mein Kampf, as was to be pointed out gleefully by the Nazis in later days, was that actually followed by Hitler: getting to power in Germany by constitutional means; destroying the constitutional democracy and substituting a totalitarian government; rebuilding German military might; unifying all Germans all over the world within a pan-German state; obtaining world leadership for Germany. Each of these steps, including partial realization of the last, was taken by Hitler.

The Nazis' Rise to Power. Released late in 1924, Hitler began rebuilding the party. Slowly it grew until, by the time the depression of the 1930's struck, it had become a recognized factor in German politics, with several members in the Reichstag. The Wall Street collapse of 1929 had the immediate effect of cutting off German credit; loans could not be obtained and the national economy was far too weak to stand on its own. The period that followed was chaotic, but in the 1930 election the Nazis suddenly became the second strongest party in the Reichstag, with 107 members. Despite this the Nazi uniform was forbidden by Chancellor Brüning and the S.A. was ordered dissolved. The advent of the von Papen ministry early in 1932, when the Nazis won 37 percent of the vote, saw them again permitted to appear in public in uniform. Brown shirts were everywhere and acts of terrorism multiplied. Pitched battles between the Nazis and the Communists, sporadic during the preceding years, grew more numerous; beatings of Jews by the Brown Shirts increased. Another election, held late in 1932, gave the Nazis only 32 percent of the vote, a decline in strength. At this juncture, the Nazis were joined by the German National People's Party, led by Alfred Hugenberg; together they controlled by far the largest segment of the Reichstag membership, but they were short of a majority. Nevertheless, Hitler was appointed chancellor by President von Hindenburg on January 30, 1933; according to report, the senile president was in favor of once more appointing von Papen, a member of the upper class, instead of the upstart corporal, but von Papen, believing he could control Hitler, induced von Hindenburg to name the Nazi chancellor. A new election was called for March 5, since the government did not have a working majority. At this juncture, on Feb. 27, 1933, the Reichstag mysteriously caught fire and was destroyed. Hitler charged that the fire was the result of Communist sabotage and demanded suppression of the radical movement; the constitutional guarantees of free speech and a free press were suspended, and this, combined with the control of the police by the Nazis (who were thus able to intimidate opposition), led to a victory at the polls. The National Socialists won nearly 44 percent of the vote; the Nationalists won eight percent. With this working majority, and with the aid of the Center Party, the Nazis' first act when the new Reichstag met later in March was to exclude the 81 elected Communist deputies on the ground that the party was outlawed as a result of the Reichstag fire. The Nazis now had an absolute majority in the legislature.

The Nazi Control. On March 23 the Reichstag and Reichsrat passed the Enabling Act, which suspended the constitution and gave the government dictatorial power for four years. Hitler now proceeded to carry into force his program of establishing a complete dictatorship in Germany. Political opposition was quickly eliminated: the Socialists were outlawed in May, 1933; the Catholic parties were banned in July; and on July 14, 1933, the National Socialist Party was named the only political party in Germany. An election held in November, 1933, with only Nazi candidates on a ballot to be marked "Ja" or "Nein," resulted in a 95 percent vote for the Nazis; some three million ballots were declared invalid, undoubtedly a protest vote. Hitler's party was now fully in control; the whispers of the earnest Socialists who had joined the party were stilled with the elimination from the party of the Strasser brothers in 1932, and on June 30, 1934, the remnant of the Socialist wing of the party was wiped out in the great Blood Purge. Among the victims of the sudden assassinations were Ernst Röhm, one of the principal Nazis and leader of the Brown Shirts, Gregor Strasser, former chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, and Erich Klausener, a leader of the Catholic movement. The excuse was an alleged plot to overthrow Hitler, for which allegation no evidence was adduced, and the immorality of several of those killed; according to Hitler's own statement 74 were killed, but it is more likely that nearly 1,000 were murdered that night and the next day. One explanation sometimes adduced is that Röhm and the other high-ranking Nazis objected to the growth of influence of the S.S. (Schutzstaffel) or Black Shirts, the elite corps of Hitler's personal guards, at the expense of the S.A. Later this corps was combined by Heinrich Himmler with the Gestapo (Geheimstaatspolizei) in the S.D. (Sicherheitsdienst) or security police. The sudden raids of this group, their ubiquitous presence, their cruel methods with prisoners, made the Gestapo the feared organ of the government. The S.A., apart from its attendance at the huge political rallies, fell into a kind of limbo between the active party members and non-party members. On Aug. 2, 1934, von Hindenburg died, and on August 19, Hitler became, as the result of a plebiscite, sole leader of the Germans. He chose to be known as the Führer (leader) rather than as president. The revolution was now complete: the Reichstag met to put its stamp of approval on measures dictated by the supreme head of the state. The Reichsrat had been abolished (Jan. 30, 1934) and each of the several states was ruled technically by a Statthalter, but actually by a Gauleiter, or party district representative. In May, 1934, the judicial system was revolutionized with the institution of the People's Court, a court meeting in secret session before which crimes against the state (defined rather loosely and capable of interpretation at pleasure) were tried; this court was supreme, only the Führer himself might review cases. Political and racial prisoners were gathered into several concentration camps, without trial, and suffering whatever tortures their guards could think of; the most notorious of these was the camp at Dachau.

Jewish Persecution. Persecution of the Jews began almost simultaneously with the Enabling Act. Jews were barred from state employment (April 7, 1933); Jewish businessmen and professional men were prevented from earning a living; businesses were sold forcibly to "Aryans," and doctors and lawyers were forbidden to practice. The Nuremberg Laws of Sept. 15, 1935, took citizenship away from all Jews, and a Jew was defined as anyone who had one Jewish grandparent. By this one decree the assimilation of Jews to German national life, a process that had proceeded as far in Germany as anywhere in the world, was ended; no Jew might marry a non-Jew, no Jew might have a servant girl who was German, no Jewish schoolchild might sit next to a German child. In part this virulence was due to the obscene ravings of Julius Streicher, publisher of Der Stürmer, whose journal, featuring caricatures in drawing and in prose of alleged typical Jewishness, was widely read; Streicher dealt in the sensational, luridly sexual propaganda that was calculated to strike fear of racial contamination into the German heart. No opportunity to publicize the ancient canards against the Jews was missed; even The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, proved a forgery, was circulated as an embodiment of the Jewish plan to rule the world. The anti-Semitism of the Nazis seemed to reach a peak in November, 1938, when a German aide at the Paris legation was killed by a Polish Jew. Riots occurred throughout Germany; shops were smashed and looted, synagogues were burned, and Jewish homes were broken into and their inhabitants attacked. The Jews of Germany were fined a billion marks by the government, an amount sufficient to wipe out all personal holdings above 5,000 marks. The exodus of Jews from Germany was to some extent aided by the German government, but restrictions on the amount of money that might be taken out of the country made it impossible for many to emigrate. Those remaining were herded into ghettos and restricted in their movements outside the areas. The culmination of the persecution was reached during World War II, when the Jews of Europe were subject to systematic extermination by the Nazis in so-called death camps. Of a prewar European population of over six million Jews, less than a million and a half survived; Germany's prewar population of Jews was about 500,000, and after the war, including many thousands brought into Germany as slave laborers, only 275,000 remained.

Other Measures. Christian groups, too, suffered from the Nazis. Led by Alfred Rosenberg as their principal philosopher, who saw in Christianity a creation of Judaism, the Nazis encouraged the growth of neopaganism, a return to the ancient Germanic religion of Odin and Thor, or of the new German Christian Church, which denied all of the Old and much of the New Testament, equated Jesus with Hitler, and added the swastika to the cross as a symbol of its religious belief. The Protestant churches were placed under the leadership of a Nazi-appointed bishop, Ludwig Müller, and later under control of Hans Kerrl, minister of church affairs. Opposition to this government interference was led by Pastor Martin Niemöller, who was arrested and put into a concentration camp (1937). Despite a concordat with the Vatican, the Nazis did not permit freedom to the Roman Catholics either. Charges of immorality leveled against monasteries and priests combined with pressure on parents to enter their children in the Hitler Jugend (Hitler Youth) rather than in parochial schools caused protests from the Roman Catholic hierarchy. Led by Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber of Munich they resisted Nazi encroachment. Both the Lutherans and the Roman Catholics, despite persecution, managed to avoid outright suppression. The Nazis, feeling that in time the youth of Germany would forget the old religions, did not press the point. The socialism of the Nazis, tempered by the ties of Nazi leadership to the big business interests of Germany and by the elimination from the party of its more earnest socialist members, was nevertheless real to a great extent. Despite the world-wide depression, unemployment was cut down to a very small fraction of the population, principally by the establishment of labor camps and by a great public works program. Workers were enabled to obtain vacations and other recreation through the Strength through Joy (Kraft durch Freude) organization. A Four-Year Plan, instituted Oct. 19, 1936, was aimed at establishing German autarchy, making the nation reliant only on itself for essential materials in case of war. However, strikes were barred (1933), workers' political parties were dissolved and a National Labor Front under Nazi control was established (1934), and control passed into the hands of the employers, who were technically under the supervision of industrial trusts and a series of courts to determine disputes. In this, as in the governmental establishment, the Nazi principle was followed: "Authority downward, responsibility upward." The Nazi economy from the first was based on the probability of war. Basic to the entire philosophy of Nazism was the concept of Lebensraum, room in which the German race of supermen might expand, at the expense of what they considered lesser and less fit peoples. After the consolidation of the German minorities in Europe with the German national state, Germany would have to wage war for its growing population. And the duty of the Germans was to expand. Women were, therefore, to be considered primarily as mothers, and the woman's world was to be in essence Kinder, Kirche, Küche (children, church, kitchen). To justify this expansionist policy, and to invest the inevitable war with Communist Russia with what seemed to them a plausible reason, the Nazis adopted the geopolitical concepts of Karl Haushofer. In this view, world control depended on control of the great world "heartland," occupied by Russia. This would eventually involve an armed conflict; thus the Nazis instituted the Four-Year Plan and the public road-building projects that constructed great military roads in Germany. In 1933 Hitler withdrew from the League of Nations and from participation in the disarmament talks, and in 1936 formally denounced the Locarno Treaty and reoccupied the Rhineland. In 1935 Germany, until then building an army under the guise of labor corps, announced that she was rearming, and instituted compulsory military service. Progress was extremely rapid; by 1938 Germany's air force was the best in the world, her army was well equipped, and her naval strength was growing. In the latter year also, the western frontier, facing the French Maginot Line, was fortified. German expansion, accompanied by the constant threat of war, was accomplished without a real struggle. The Saar returned to Germany in 1935; in 1938 Austria was annexed to Germany. In May and again in September, 1938, crises over German demands for annexation of the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia brought a European war near, but the Munich Pact of September, 1938, seemed to abate the danger. The suppression of the remainder of Czechoslovakia as the German protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia in March, 1939, made it apparent, even to the most obtuse of Western diplomats, that the danger still existed and would continue to exist as long as the Nazi appetite for new territory was not satisfied, and the realization came that satisfaction was impossible. In 1936 the formation of the Rome-Berlin "Axis" had linked the two fascist dictatorships in an anti-Communist, or colonial-revision, alliance; in the same year Japan had been welcomed into the alliance. The Spanish totalitarian regime, in revolt against the constitutional government, was recognized, and then aided, by the Axis powers. The world waited for the explosion. The Nazis, completely successful up to this point in everything they had attempted, from elimination of the Jews from their national life to terrorizing the rest of the world with threats, suddenly reversed their basic tenet and signed (Aug. 20-21, 1939) a treaty with Communist Russia. Thus the nationalistic aspect of the movement completely drowned out the hitherto essential program of opposition to Communism. The war began within two weeks, Germany invading Poland and crushing her in the month between September 1 and September 29, when the country was divided between Germany and the U.S.S.R. The initial successes of German arms in World War II, climaxed by the fall of France (1940) and the attack on Russia (1941), soon were offset by the continued resistance of Great Britain and the U.S.S.R. backed by the U.S. The Allied invasion of France in June, 1944, marked the end of German leadership on the Continent. The European war ended in May, 1945, with Hitler, Himmler, and Goebbels dead in the ruins of the Third Reich, the nation the Nazis had boasted would last 1,000 years. The principal Nazis were rounded up and put on trial for their crimes. Some were executed, some imprisoned for longer or shorter terms. Nazism officially was dead; German courts were set up to de-Nazify Germany under Allied occupation, but to some extent Nazism, in the form of anti-Semitism and a nationalism that refuses to admit a real defeat, may still be found in Germany.

Nazirites (naz'ir'its). See Nazarites.

Nchumburu (en.chôm.bô'rô). See Ntwumuru.

Ndau (en.dou'). [Also: Vandau, Wandau.] Subgroup of the Shona, a Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa. They inhabit Mozambique, in the neighborhood of Sofala.

Ndebele (en.dā'bā.lā). [Also: Amandebele, Matabele, Tebele.] Two offshoots of the Nguni, a Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa. 1. The Transvaal Ndebele, who left Zululand several centuries ago to settle among Sotho peoples, and whose N subgroups have been markedly influenced by the Sotho. 2. The Rhodesian Ndebele, who fled (1817) from the Zulu under the leadership of one of Chaka's favorite generals, Mzilikazi, who refused to surrender all his booty to Chaka. After remaining in Transvaal until 1836, they fled to Matabeleland in W Southern Rhodesia, where they conquered the Shona. Their kingdom was broken by Cecil Rhodes's British South Africa Company during the reign of Lobengula, but elements of Zulu language and culture have survived.

Ndengi (en.deng'gē). See under Kalou wu.

Ndenie (en.dā'nē.ā). [Also: Idenie, Ndenge (en.deng'gā).] One of the Sudanic-speaking Anyi peoples of W Africa, inhabiting a region in SE Ivory Coast.

Ndlambe (en.dlām'bā). [Also, Amandlambe.] Subgroup of the Xhosa, a Bantu-speaking people of S Africa.

Ndola (en.dō'lā). Town in Northern Rhodesia, in S central Africa, situated in the copper belt, just S of the Belgian Congo and ab. 776 mi. N of Bulawayo by rail. It is the commercial and administrative center for the copper-mining region and handles all its exports and imports for the mining region. Its location and function make it a rapidly growing center of considerable importance. It has several small industries, including a sawmill, woodworking factory, and soap factory. Pop. ab. 8,000.

Ndonge (en.dōn'dā). [Also: Wadonde, Wandonde.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting an area in SE Tanganyika. Culturally and linguistically they resemble the Mwera, but display a patrilineal emphasis.

Ndonga (en.dōng'gā). [Also: Ngola, Ovandongā.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting NW Angola, near Luanda, on the N bank of the Cuanza River. They were united into a kingdom with its capital at Luanda, until they were driven inland by the Portuguese. The kingdom had three provinces: Ndonga proper, Matamba, and Ndanji. It is from the title of their king, Ngola, that present-day Angola today takes its name. The Ndonga are agricultural and pastoral people whose dialect is Kimbundu. They are not to be confused with the Ndonga of S Angola, a subgroup of the Mbo.

Ndonga. [Also: Ondonga, Ovandongā.] One of the largest subgroups of the Mbo, a Bantu-speaking people inhabiting S Angola, in SW Africa. They are not to be confused with the Ndonga (Ngola) of NW Angola.

Ndorobo (en.dō'rō'bō). See Dorobo.

Ndulu (en.dō'lō). [Also: Andulu, Ondulu, Ondura.] One of the 13 independent kingdoms of the Mbundu, a Bantu-speaking people of SW Africa. They inhabit C Angola.

Ndundulu (en.dōn.dō'lō). [Also, Bandundulu.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting the extreme W part of Northern Rhodesia. Culturally and linguistically they have been assimilated to the Lozi, the rulers of the Rotse kingdom, of which the Ndundulu formed a part. Their number ab. 20,000.

Neaera (nē.ē'ra). Name of a maiden in classical Latin pastoral poetry. Milton uses the name in Lycidas:

To sport with Amaryliss in the shade,

Or with the tangles of Neaera's hair. . . .

Neagh (nā), Lough. Lake in Ulster province, Northern Ireland. It is situated between Counties Antrim, Down, Armagh, Tyrone, and Londonderry, ab. 13 mi. W of Belfast. Lough Neagh is the largest lake in the British Isles. Its outlet is by the river Bann into the North Channel. Length, ab. 18 mi.; width, ab. 11 mi.; area, 153 sq. mi.

Neagle, In, re 135 U.S. 1 (1890) (nē'gl). U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the release of David Neagle, a deputy U.S. marshal who shot to death a man attempting to assault U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Field.

Neagle was taken into custody by California officials and charged with murder. The court, ruling that Neagle had been arrested for "an act done in pursuance of a law of the United States," ordered his release in a ruling notable for its affirmation of national supremacy over state power.

Neal (nē), Daniel. b. at London, Dec. 14, 1678; d. there, April 4, 1743. English historian. He was educated at the Merchant Taylors' School and at the universities of Utrecht and Leiden. In 1706 he settled as an independent clergyman at London. He wrote History of New England (1720) and, his chief work, History of the Puritans (4 vols., 1732-38).

Neal, David Dolloff. b. at Lowell, Mass., Oct. 20, 1837; d. May 2, 1915. American figure painter. He resided principally at Munich. Among his works are The First Meeting of Mary Stuart and Rizzio (1876), Oliver Cromwell Visits John Milton (1883), and several portraits.

Neal, John. b. at Portland, Me., Aug. 25, 1793; d. there, June 20, 1876. American novelist, poet, and journalist. Among his novels are Keep Cool (1817), Seventy-Six (1823), Logan (1823), and The Down-Easters (1833).

Neal, Joseph Clay. b. at Greenland, N.H., Feb. 3, 1807; d. at Philadelphia, July 17, 1847. American humorist. He edited (1831-44) the Pennsylvanian at Philadelphia. His works were collected in Charcoal Sketches (1837, 1849) and Peter Ploddy and other Oddities (1844).

Neale (nē), Edward Vansittart. b. at Bath, England, April 2, 1810; d. Sept. 16, 1892. English Christian Socialist. He founded the first cooperative stores at London and assisted in the establishment of various industrial enterprises on a cooperative basis. He wrote The Characteristic Features of Some of the Principal Systems of Socialism (1851), The Analogy of Thought and Nature Investigated (1863), A Manual for Coöperators (1879), and others. In 1890 a scholarship at Oriel College for the sons of coöperators was founded in his honor.

Neale, John Mason. b. at London, Jan. 24, 1818; d. at East Grinstead, England, Aug. 6, 1866. English hymnologist and ecclesiastical historian. He belonged to the extreme High Church party, and was burned in effigy in 1857. He founded (1855) the nursing sisterhood of Saint Margaret. His contributions to modern hymnology are notable. He wrote An Introduction to the History of the Holy Eastern Church (1850), Mediaeval Hymns and Sequences (1851), Hymns of the Eastern Church (1863), and others. He also translated the medieval hymn De contemptu mundi by Bernard of Cluny, in several parts, beginning "Brief life is here our portion," "Jerusalem the Golden," and others.

Neal's Station (nēlz). A former name of Parkersburg, W.Va.

Neander (nē.ān'dēr; German, nā.ān'dēr), Jochim. b. at Bremen, Germany, c1650; d. there, 1680. German hymn writer. The Neanderthal, from which was derived Neanderthal Man, was named for him.

Neander, Johann August Wilhelm. [Original name, David Mendel.] b. at Göttingen, Germany, Jan. 16, 1789; d. at Berlin, July 14, 1850. German Protestant church historian and theologian, professor of theology at Berlin from 1813. His chief work is Allgemeine Geschichte der christlichen Religion und Kirche (General History of the Christian Religion and Church, 6 vols., 1825-52). Among his other works are Geschichte der Pflanzung und Leitung der christlichen Kirche durch die Apostel (1832-33) and Das Leben Jesu (Life of Jesus, 1837).

Neanderthal Man (nē.ān'dēr.tāl, -thol; German, nā.ān.dēr.tāl). Type of prehistoric man, some of whose skeletal remains were found (1856) in the Neanderthal, a small valley near Düsseldorf, Germany. From extensive study of these and other remains found scattered over Europe, in Palestine, C Asia, and N and SE Africa, he is considered to be a forerunner of modern man, though not a direct ancestor, being of a different species of the genus Homo. He was extremely dolichocephalic, short-statured (average height 5 ft. 3 inches), stooped; he had beetling brows, protruding teeth, and a chinless lower jaw. Whether or not he was hairy is conjectural, although most of the restorations show him so. He had a cave, hunting, and flake-tool culture (his tools show a degree of skilled workmanship). The group of Neanderthals called Mousterian had fire, buried their dead, and seem to have had some concept of a life after death. Anthropologists have classified Neanderthal Man into four sub-groups, a classification now commonly accepted: (1) the Rhodesian group, named for fossil finds unearthed in Northern Rhodesia. Rhodesian Man is believed to be more closely allied to the autropoids than the following groups, and is still regarded by a few as a transitional phase, rather than true Neanderthal in type; (2) the Mousterian or Spy group, represented by skulls or skeletons found at Gibraltar (1848), Spy, Neanderthal, La Chapelle, Krapina, and Le Moustier. The Gibraltar skull was not classified as Neanderthal until the type was scientifically established; (3) the Ehringsdorf group, which shows a slight advance over the Mousterian; (4) the fourth group is the closest to modern man, and is known to have been practically contemporary with Cro-Magnon man (possibly the direct antecedent of the modern species). This fourth group is classified from a skull found at Galilee and other discoveries of the 1920's.

Neapolis (nē'ap'ō'lis). In ancient geography, the name of various cities: 1. The modern Naples. 2. In Palestine, the modern Nablus. 3. In Macedonia, the seaport for Philippi, near what is now Kavalla. 4. See also Leptis Magna.

Nearchus (nē'ār'kus). b. in Crete; fl. in the second half of the 4th century B.C. Macedonian officer, a friend of Alexander the Great. He was admiral of the fleet in its voyage (325-324 B.C.) from the mouth of the Indus to that of the Euphrates. An account of his voyage is given by Arrian in his India.

Near East. Term sometimes used to designate that part of Asia included in the countries on the E Mediterranean, S of the U.S.S.R., and W of the Indian peninsula: the Arabian peninsula, Cyprus, Turkey, Iran, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Israel, Egypt, and Jordan. Greece and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan are sometimes included.

Nearer India. See India, Hither.

Nearing (nī'ring). Scott. b. at Morris Run, Pa., Aug. 6, 1883—. American sociologist. He was professor of social science and dean of the college of arts and sciences at Toledo University (1915-17), lecturer (1916 et seq.) at the Rand School of Social Science, New York, chairman (1917-18) of the People's Council of America, and Socialist candidate (1919) for Congress from New York. Author of Social Adjustment (1911), Poverty and Riches (1916), Education in Soviet Russia (1926), War (1931), Must We Stumble? (1932), Soviet Union as a World Power (1945), War or Peace (1946), and other books.

Near v. Minnesota, 283 U.S. 697 (1931) (nir; min-ē-sō'ta). U.S. Supreme Court decision declaring unconstitutional a Minnesota law which provided for the suppression of a "malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper, magazine or other periodical." The court held that the statute violated the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Neath (nēth). Municipal borough, river port, and market town in S Wales, in Glamorganshire, ab. 4 mi. N of Aberavon, ab. 183 mi. W of London by rail. It was a copper-smelting center in the 16th century, and had a tin-plate industry in the 19th century; site of a 12th-century abbey. 32,305 (1951).

Néau (nā.ō). French name of Eupen.

Neba (nā'ba). Jebel. Modern name of Nebo, Mount.

Nebbia v. New York, 291 U.S. 502 (1934) (neb'iā; nū yōrk). U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding a New York law establishing a state milk control board authorized to fix maximum and minimum retail prices for milk. The court ruled that the law did not violate the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The case is notable for the majority opinion, delivered by Justice Owen J. Roberts, affirming and extending the doctrine of "public interest."

Nebo (nē'bō). [Also, Nabu.] In Assyrian and Babylonian mythology, the god of learning, and therefore patron of priests and scribes; he is called the "creator of tablet writing," the "wise god," the "god of open ears and wide mind." His principal sanctuary was Ezida, "the eternal house," at Borsippa (the temple described by Herodotus as that of Bel), but for the annual New Year festival, the image of Nebo was carried in procession from his own temple at Borsippa to the great temple of Marduk in Babylon. Nebo may originally have been identical with Marduk.

Nebo, Mount. [Modern name, Jebel Neba.] In Biblical geography, a summit in Moab, ab. 7 mi. NE of the Dead Sea, now in Jordan. It was from this summit that Moses looked into the Promised Land before his death. Elevation, ab. 2,643 ft.

Nebraska (nē.bras'ka). North American Indian culture found in the area of what is now E Nebraska and NE Kansas during the late prehistoric period (1400-1650 A.D.). The villages usually consisted of single lines of large, semisubterranean earth lodges strung along the tops of the Missouri River bluffs. Their inhabitants were agricultural, and manufactured globular pots with handles or modeled lugs.

Nebraska. [Called the "Cornhusker State"; also, the "Tree Planters' State."] State of the C United States, bounded by South Dakota (partly separated by the Missouri River) on the N, Iowa and Missouri (separated from both by the Missouri) on the E, Kansas and Colorado on the S, and Colorado and Wyoming on the W.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Nebraska is divided for administrative purposes into 93 counties. It sends four representatives to Congress, and has six electoral votes. It is the only state in the Union with a one-chamber legislature (established 1937). Leading cities are Grand Island, Hastings, Lincoln, and Omaha. Capital, Lincoln; area, 76,653 sq. mi. (77,237 sq. mi., including water); pop. 1,325,510 (1950), an increase of 0.7 percent over that of 1940. The state ranks 15th in area and 33rd (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The W part of the state lies in the high plains E of the Rocky Mountains, the highest point in the state being 5,340 ft., in the extreme W. In the NW a section extending into the state from South Dakota, characterized by steep eroded hills is known as the Bad Lands. East of the Bad Lands and mainly in the N and C are some 15,000 sq. mi. of low, grassy sand hills. Bordering the sand-hill areas on the E are rolling prairie lands. The S central and S parts of the state are largely level lands of the Platte valley and the prairies; in the SE is a rolling, hilly region bordering the Missouri valley. The principal rivers, in addition to the Missouri, are the North Platte and the South Platte, which unite near the city of North Platte to form the Platte, which flows E into the Missouri; the Niobrara, which flows E from Wyoming and across the N part of the state into the Missouri in NE Nebraska; the Republican, which flows E from Colorado across the S part of the state, and then into Kansas; and the Loup, which originates in the sand hills and flows into the Platte at Columbus. The climate is continental, characterized by cold winters and hot summers. Insufficient rainfall in the W has made extensive irrigation necessary for agriculture.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Meat packing and other food industries, particularly the manufacture of butter, are also important occupations in Nebraska. Omaha leads all the cities of the world in making butter, and is a leading national meat-packing center, a grain market, and the chief commercial and industrial city in the state. Agriculture, the leading industry of the state, produces corn, wheat, oats, sugar beets, hay, and potatoes; swine, and cattle for meat and dairy products are raised in great numbers. The state lacks great mineral wealth but has deposits of clay, stone, sand, and gravel. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 874 million dollars; from manufacturing, as high as 274 million.

History. French explorers traveled the Platte some years before Nebraska passed (1803) to the U.S. as part of the Louisiana Purchase. Later, Americans, notably Meriwether Lewis and William Clark (1804), explored the region. It was included in the territory of Orleans, and later in the Missouri Territory; organized (1854) as a territory under the Kansas-Nebraska Act, which virtually set aside the Missouri Compromise and permitted the settlers to exercise their choice concerning the status of slavery. The original Nebraska Territory included area from 40° N. to Canada and as far W as the Rocky Mountains; given its present boundaries in 1861. Nebraska was admitted to the Union (as the 37th state) on March 1, 1867, as a free state.

Culture. Nebraska's population is somewhat more rural than urban (46.9 percent urban in 1950), the E half of the state being more thickly settled than the W. A small percentage of the total is foreign-born (mostly German). Omaha is the seat of the Joslyn Memorial, a cultural center (opened in 1931) containing ten art galleries, an art library, a concert hall, and a floral court. The city is an educational center. Lincoln is also an educational center. McCook was the home of Senator George W. Norris, the author of the "lame duck" amendment (the 20th Amendment) to the federal Constitution, and father of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Other notable residents of Nebraska have been William Jennings Bryan, J. Sterling Morton, and John J. Pershing. The institutions of higher learning in the state include the state-supported University of Nebraska, at Lincoln; Creighton University, at Omaha; Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln. The state motto is "Equality Before the Law." The state flower is the goldenrod.

Nebraska City. City in SE Nebraska, county seat of Otoe County, on the Missouri River ab. 40 mi. S of Omaha; manufactures of clothing and cigars; fruit and vegetable canneries, 6,872 (1950).

Nebraska River. See Platte.

Nebuchadnezzar (neb.ū.kad.nez'ar). [Also: Nebuchadnezzar II, Nebuchadrezzar (neb.ū.kad.rez'ar); Babylonian, Nabu-kuduri-uṣur, meaning "Nebo protect the boundary."] King of Babylonia (605-562 b.c.), the chief ruler of the New Babylonian Empire, and one of the greatest monarchs of the ancient world. He distinguished (605) himself as a general, while still crown prince, in the battle of Carchemish against the Egyptian king Necho. On his return from this campaign his father, Nabopolassar, died, and he was proclaimed king. He conquered Jerusalem (597 b.c.) and Judea and carried the Jewish king Jehoiachin into captivity. He established Zedekiah as his puppet, but when Zedekiah revolted (588 b.c.) Nebuchadnezzar besieged and took (586 b.c.) Jerusalem, destroyed the city, and carried the Jews into captivity. Tyre he took after a siege of 13 years (585-572). He invaded (572) Egypt, defeated Hophra (Apries), and set Amasis on the throne in his place; an inscription of Nebuchadnezzar informs us that four years afterward he had to subdue a rebellion of Amasis. Unlike most of the Assyrian conquerors, Nebuchadnezzar devoted his energies to the consolidation of his empire. The mighty canals and walls with which he surrounded Babylon, his magnificent palace (represented by the modern ruins of al-Kasr, "the castle"), the so-called Hanging Gardens of Semiramis or Hanging Gardens of Babylon, which he constructed for his Median wife Amytis (Amitu), his restoration of many temples, especially Esagila in Babylon and Ezida in Borsippa, were among his major accomplishments. A full description of the buildings he constructed is given by himself in a long inscription comprising 620 lines. There is no mention in the cuneiform inscriptions of Nebuchadnezzar's insanity and eating of grass as related in the Book of Daniel (iv. 26 ff.), but it has a certain parallel in the narrative of Abydenus (preserved by Eusebius), according to which the king once ascended the citadel of his palace and, inspired by a god, announced the fall of his empire.

Nebushazban (neb.ū.shaz'ban). In the Bible, the name of the captain of the eunuchs of Nebuchadnezzar, mentioned in Jer. xxxix. 13.

Nebuzaradan (neb.ū.zar'a.dan). [Babylonian, Nabuzer-iddina, meaning "Nebo has given offspring."] fl. 6th century B.C. Captain of the bodyguard of Nebuchadnezzar who in 586 b.c. was left by him in Judea to finish the work of destruction. According to Jer. lli. 30, he went to Judea again in 582 and carried away 745 more Judean captives.

Necessity, Fort. See under Fort Necessity Battlefield Site.

Nechako (nē.chak'ō). River in C British Columbia, Canada, flowing generally NE and E from its source in Tweedsmuir Provincial Park to join the Fraser at Prince George. Length, ab. 287 mi.

Necham (nek'am), Alexander. See Neckam, Alexander.

Neches (nech'ez). River in E Texas which flows into Sabine Lake. Length, ab. 280 mi.

Necho (nē.kō). [Also: Neco, Neckau, Nehco, Nekau, Nekaw.] d. 663 b.c. Ruler of Sais, Egypt; father of Psamtik I (d. 609 b.c.), and grandfather of Necho (d. 593 b.c.). He is thought not to have been a pharaoh, but he was effective ruler in the Nile delta as deputy of the Assyrian King Esarhaddon. Once he plotted, or was accused of plotting, rebellion against the Assyrian overlordship, and was taken captive to Nineveh, but was later reinstated in authority at Sais.

Necho. [Also: Necho II, Neco, Neckau, Nehco, Nekau, Nekaw; in the Bible Pharaoh-Nechoh or Pharaoh-Necoh; in Assyrian inscriptions, Neku or Niku.] d. 593 b.c. Egyptian king (609-593 b.c.) of the XXVIth dynasty; son of Psamtik I, and grandson of Necho (d. 663 b.c.). He invaded Palestine and defeated Josiah at Megiddo (609 b.c.) but was in turn defeated by Nebuchadnezzar at Carchemish in 605. Thus foiled in his attempt to control the fertile crescent, he attempted to dig again the old canal (built during the XIIth dynasty) from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea. Herodotus says that he sent a Phoenician expedition to circumnavigate Africa from east to west, but many scholars doubt the story.

Nechtransmere (nēh'tanz.mir). Place near Dunnichen, Angus, Scotland. Here, in 685, the Picts totally defeated the Northumbrians under Egrif.

Neckam (nek'am), Alexander. [Also, Necham.] b. at St. Albans, Hertfordshire, England, in September, 1157; d. at Kempsey, Worcestershire, England, 1217. English scholar; foster brother of King Richard I. He was educated at St. Albans. In 1180 he was distinguished as a professor at Paris; in 1188 he became an Augustinian canon at Cirencester; and in 1213 he was elected abbot. He wrote scientific and grammatical treatises, Latin poems, theological works, commentaries on Aristotle, and others. In his writings is found the earliest European mention of the magnetic needle as an aid to navigation. His name was punned upon as Nequam, meaning "useless" or "wicked."

Neckar (nek'ar). Former Kreis (government district or "circle"), one of four, of Württemberg, Germany, situated in the NW part. Area, 1,286 sq. mi.

Neckar River. [Latin, Nicer.] River in SW Germany. It is one of the chief tributaries of the Rhine, which it joins at Mannheim, and is noted for its romantic scenery and for the production of wines in its valley. Heidelberg and Tübingen are on it. Length, ab. 228 mi.; navigable for large craft to Heilbronn.

Nekau (nek'ou). See Necho.

Neckel (nek'el), Gustav. b. 1878—. German professor of linguistics and literary history, especially Old Norse and Scandinavian, at the University of Berlin.

Necker (nek'er; Anglicized, nek'er), Anne Louise Germaine. See Staël, Mme. de.

Necker, Jacques. b. at Geneva, Sept. 30, 1732; d. at Coppet, Switzerland, April 9, 1804. French statesman and financier; father of Madame de Staël. After apprenticeship (1747 et seq.) in a banking house, he established (1762) his own London and Paris banking business, and by speculation and loans to the government soon made a fortune. In 1764 he married a Swiss girl, Suzanne Curchod; her ambitions to make him an important figure led to his becoming a director of the French East India Company and to her establishing their home as a Friday meeting place for the important political, financial, and literary figures of the day. In 1775 an attack on Turgot's policies brought him into prominence and in 1776 he was named director of the treasury. The following year he became director general of the finances and in this position he spent the next four years attempting to correct the abuses that had all but wrecked the French financial system. His efforts to get the court to retrench, to some extent at least, brought him many enemies in high places, not the least of whom was the queen, Marie Antoinette, whose extravagant plans he hindered. In 1781 he published a Compte rendu au roi, setting forth the financial difficulties France found herself in, and he was dismissed from office. His wife's circle of friends, numbering some of the best writers in France, carried on a campaign to have him reinstated, and in 1788 he became again director general of finances, with a great popular following. The meeting of the States-General of 1789 was suggested by him as a means of obtaining a grant of money, and he looked upon that body, even after it had transformed itself into the Revolutionary Legislative Assembly, as primarily a source of money. When the meeting of the estates got out of hand, and he did nothing to prevent the entire body from meeting as a whole, he was again dismissed (July 11, 1789). The popularity of the minister was such that his dismissal was the signal for the storming of the Bastille (July 14) by the Paris populace. He was recalled by the king without having actually left office. His inability to conceive of the tremendous reforms necessary in administration as well as in his field of finance led to his loss of popularity, and in September, 1790, he resigned and retired to his estate near Geneva. Among his writings are a eulogy on Colbert (1773), Essai sur la législation et le commerce des grains (1775), De l'administration des finances de la France (3 vols., 1784), Sur l'administration de M. Necker par lui-même (1791), Du pouvoir exécutif dans les grands états (2 vols., 1792), De la révolution française (4 vols., 1797), and Dernières vues de politique et de finance (1802).

Necker, Suzanne. [Maiden name, Curchod.] b. at Crassier, Switzerland, 1739; d. at Coppet, Switzerland, in May, 1794. French writer; wife of Jacques Necker, and a leader in literary circles. She was at one time engaged to the historian Edward Gibbon. She was the mother of Mme. de Staël.

Neco (nē'kō). See Necho.

Nedbal (ned'bāl), Oskar. b. at Tábor, in Bohemia, March 26, 1874; d. at Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Dec. 24, 1930. Czech violinist, conductor, and composer. He was a member of the Bohemian String Quartet, and the conductor (1896 et seq.) of the Czech Philharmonic, at Prague. Among his compositions are the operettas Die Keusche Barbara (1910) and Das Wälderfest (1917). He also composed chamber music, songs, ballets, and an opera.

Nederland (nē'dēr.land). City in E Texas, in Jefferson County, NE of Houston, in a truck-gardening and dairying area; petroleum refining, 3,805 (1950).

Nederland (nā'dēr.lānt) or Nederlanden (nā'dēr.lān-den). Dutch name of the Netherlands.

Nedić (nē'dich), Milan. b. in Serbia, 1882; d. there, 1946. Yugoslav military and political figure, staff officer during the Balkan wars (1912-13) and World War I, minister of war (1938-41), and prime minister (1941-44) of German-occupied Serbia. He died in prison while awaiting trial for treason.

Nedim (nē'dēm'). fl. in the early 18th century. Turkish poet.

Nedjed (nej'ded). See Nejd.

Nedjef (nej'ef). See An Najaf.

Ned McCobb's Daughter (ned məkobz'). Play by Sidney Howard, produced and published in 1926.

Ned Myers (mī'ērēz). Novel by James Fenimore Cooper, published in 1843.

Nedham (nēd'am). Town in E Massachusetts, in Norfolk County; a southwestern residential suburb of Boston. 16,313 (1950).

Nedham, James George. b. at Virginia, Ill., March 18, 1868—. American naturalist.

Needles (nē'dlz). City in SE California, in San Bernardino County NE of Los Angeles, in the Black Mountains, on the Arizona-California border, which here is the Colorado River. Its name is derived from the pinnacles of granite and porphyry in the vicinity. 4,051 (1950).

Needles, the. Group of three pointed chalk rocks in the English Channel, off the coast of S England, SW of the Isle of Wight, ab. 5 mi. SW of Yarmouth. There is a lighthouse.

Neefe (nā'fē), Christian Gottlob. b. at Chemnitz, Germany, Feb. 5, 1748; d. at Dessau, Germany, Jan. 26, 1798. German musician, instructor of Beethoven at Bonn.

Neembucú (nēm'bü.kō'). Department in SW Paraguay, opposite Argentina. Capital, Pilar; area, ab. 3,353 sq. mi.; pop. 51,009 (est. 1945).

Neenah (nē'nā). City in E Wisconsin, in Winnebago County; twin city of Menasha; manufactures of paper, cellulose, cotton, and knit goods. 12,437 (1950).

Neenah River. See Fox, in C and NE Wisconsin.

Neepawa (nē'pā.wā, -wā). Town in SW Manitoba, Canada, county seat of Neepawa County, ab. 65 mi. by road NW of Portage la Prairie; distributing center for the surrounding wheat-growing region. 2,895 (1951).

Neer (nār), Aart van der. b. c1619; d. after 1692. Dutch landscape painter.

Neer, Egon Hendrik van der. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, 1643; d. at Düsseldorf, Germany, May 3, 1703. Dutch painter; son of Aart van der Neer.

Neergaard (nār'gār), Niels Thomasius. b. at Ugilt, Denmark, June 27, 1854; d. at Copenhagen, Sept. 2, 1936.

Danish political leader, who served twice (1908-09, 1920-24) as premier in coalition governments. He was four times (1908-09, 1910-13, 1920-24, 1926-29) finance minister. Originally on the extreme left in his politics, he swung toward a moderate position in his later career.

Neerwinden (nār'vin'den). Village in E Belgium, in the province of Liège, ab. 31 mi. SE of Brussels. It is noted for two battles; that of July 29, 1693, in which the French under the Duc de Luxembourg defeated the Allies under William III of England (this is also called the battle of Landen); and that of March 18, 1793, in which the Austrians under the Prince of Coburg defeated the French under C. F. Dumouriez, as a result of which defeat Dumouriez deserted to the Austrians.

Nees von Esenbeck (nās' fon 'zēn.bek), Christian Gottfried. b. in the Odendwald, in Hesse, Germany, Feb. 14, 1776; d. at Breslau, March 16, 1858. German botanist and zoologist. He became professor of botany at Erlangen in 1818, at Bonn in 1819, and at Breslau in 1831. For political reasons he was deprived of his office in 1852. Among his works are Handbuch der Botanik (1820-21), and works on entomology, philosophy, and others.

Nef (nēf), John Ulric. b. at Herisau, Switzerland, 1862; d. at Carmel, Calif., 1915. American organic chemist. He contributed especially to the chemistry of bivalent carbon and of the nitroparaffins.

Nefertiti (nē.fēr.tē'tē). [Also, Nofretete.] Egyptian queen; wife of Amenhotep IV (Ikhnaton). She is thought to have been of Hittite origin and is generally considered as the great influence in her husband's attempted religious reforms. A colored limestone bust of the queen is one of the best-known of all Egyptian antiquities.

Nefi (nē.fē'). d. 1635. Turkish poet whose satiric writing led to his execution by Murad IV.

Negapatam (neg.ā.put'am). Seaport in the district of Tanjore, Madras, Union of India. Steamers anchor two miles off shore and are serviced by lighters. Much cargo for the Federation of Malaya passes through this port. The chief exports are nuts, colored cotton cloth, tobacco, and fresh vegetables. Nagore is included within the city limits. 52,937 (1941).

Negaunee (nē.gō'nē). City in the C part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, in Marquette County, ab. 11 mi. W by SW of Marquette, in an iron-mining region. It was the first (1844) iron-ore mining town of the Marquette Range. 6,472 (1950).

Negeb (neg'eb) or Negev (-ev). Desert region in S Israel, occupying that portion of the country S of ab. lat. 31° N., or approximately half the total area of Israel. Since the establishment of the state of Israel in 1948 there has been considerable exploration and settlement in the N fringe of the desert. Large-scale mining of phosphate rock was being developed in 1952; it is planned to export phosphate fertilizers. Copper, iron ore, manganese ore, glass sand, and ceramic clay deposits have been discovered. A road traverses the Negeb from Beersheba to Elath, the new Red Sea port of Israel.

Neghelli (nă'gěl'lē), Marchese di. Title of Graziani, Rodolfo.

Negley (neg'li), James Scott. b. Dec. 22, 1826; d. Aug. 7, 1901. American general in the Civil War. He defeated the Confederates at Lavergne, Tenn., Oct. 7, 1862, and took part in the battle of Chickamauga.

Negoi (ne'goi'). Mountain peak in C Rumania, ab. 110 mi. NW of Bucharest: highest summit in the Transylvanian Alps. Elevation, ab. 8,346 ft.

Negrillos (nă'grē'lyōs). See Pygmies.

Negrín (nă'grē'n'), Juan. b. at Tenerife, in the Canary Islands, 1887—. Spanish physician, politician, and statesman. Becoming known for his work in medicine, he received the chair of physiology at the University of Laguna and later at Madrid. As a member of the Socialist Party he fought on the extreme left for the establishment of the Spanish republic. He became (1931) the leader of the leftist Socialists and obtained (October, 1936) the post of minister of finance in the Largo Caballero cabinet. He succeeded (May, 1937) Francisco Largo Caballero as prime minister and during the Civil War moved the government first to Valencia, then to Barcelona, and back again to Madrid in 1939. On March 5 of that year he flew to Paris with his foreign minister, Álvarez del Vayo, in order to plead for recognition of his government by France. He fought the legitimacy of the Spanish republican government in exile (in Mexico) through his own organization called España Combatiente, but officially resigned to José Giral in 1945. He was thereafter at the center of activities of Spanish exiles in London.

Negri Sembilan (nă'grē'sēm.bē'lān). State in the Federation of Malaya, situated on the SW side of the Malay Peninsula. It is a confederation of small native states formerly under British protection. This confederation was one of the Federated Malay States but in February, 1948, it became a member of the Federation of Malaya. The area produces much rubber, rice, and tin. Capital, Seremban; area, ab. 2,580 sq. mi.; pop. 267,668 (1947).

Negrito (nă'grē'tō). In SE Asia, peoples characterized by woolly hair, chocolate-brown to black skin, and broad noses, but round-headed and of pygmy stature (under 5 ft.). Predominantly Negrito tribes are found in the Andaman Islands (Andamanese), the Malay Peninsula (Semang), and the Philippine Islands (Aeta).

Negro (nē'grō). A generally recognized race of man, with brown skin (commonly characterized as "black" to contrast with the "white" (actually pinkish) skin of the white race of man), dolichocephaly (long-headedness), above-average height, broad flat nose, kinky or woolly hair, thick lips, dark eyes with yellowish cornea, and prominent jaw. The name is sometimes restricted to the groups of this description living in Africa between the Congo River and the Sahara Desert, i.e., Wolof, Serer, Toucouleur, Mandingo, Kru, Fantî, Ashanti, Yoruba, Songhai, and other groups. Generally, however, the term includes also the Negrillos, Bushmen, Hottentots, and Bantu (comprising the Swahili, Basuto, Bechuana, Zulu, Xhosa, Herero, and other groups) of Africa and the Negritos of the Indian Ocean and western Pacific. The population of Africa, south of the line of Semitic-Hamitic settlement, i.e., the southern edge of the Sahara, is predominantly Negro. As a result of the trade in slaves from the 16th through the 19th century, many Negroes are found, often as a minority people, in the Western Hemisphere.

Negro (nă'grō), Río. River in SE Argentina, rising in the Andes and flowing E by SE to the Atlantic. Most of its course lies within the territory of Río Negro. Length, ab. 650 mi.

Negro (nă'grō), Río. River in South America. It rises in NW Brazil, flows through N Brazil, and joins the Amazon ab. 75 mi. W of the mouth of the Madeira River. In its upper course it is called the Guainá. It communicates by the Cassiquiare with the Orinoco. The chief tributaries are the Uaupés and Branco. Length, ab. 1,400 mi.; navigable for 600 mi., and, after passing 20 mi. of rapids, for a long distance beyond.

Negro (nă'grō), Río. River in W Uruguay, flowing W to the Uruguay River. Length, ab. 350 mi.

Negro brasileiro (nă'grō bră.zē.lă'rō), O. See O Negro brasileiro.

Negropont (neg'rō.pōnt). English name of Euboea, and of Chalcis.

Negros Occidental (nă'grōs ôk'wē.nen.tāl'). Province in W central Philippine Islands, occupying all of the N and most of the W part of Negros island. It is bounded by the Visayan Sea on the N, the Strait of Tañon (separating it from Cebu) and Negros Oriental on the E and the S, the Sulu Sea on the SW, and the Sulu Sea and Guimaras Strait (separating it from Guimaras and Panay) on the W. There are many rivers, most of them unimportant for navigation. Coal, gold, and iron are found. The mountains are covered with forests. The lowlands and coasts are fertile and produce large crops of rice and sugar cane, and hemp, pineapples, bananas, betel nuts, corn, and sweet potatoes. Capital, Bacolod; area, ab. 2,989 sq. mi.; pop. 1,038,758 (1948).

Negros Oriental (nă'grōs ôryen.tāl'). Province in C Philippine Islands, occupying the S and most of the E part of Negros island and including Siquijor and several other small islands. It is bounded by the Strait of Tañon (separating it from Cebu) on the E, the Sulu Sea on the S, and Negros Occidental on the W and N. The highest mountains of the island are within Negros Oriental. The best harbors are Port Bombon on the S and South Bais Bay on the E coast, both well sheltered and safe in all weather. There are many small rivers. The mountains are densely wooded, but the broad strip of coastal lowland is used for the raising of sugar cane and other products including rice, bananas, mangos, coconuts, corn, sweet potatoes, and hemp, of which last the yield is very large. Deposits of coal are found. Capital, Dumaguete; area, ab. 2,053 sq. mi.; pop. 443,461 (1948).

Negus (nē'gus), Francis. d. at Dallinghoo, Suffolk, England, Sept. 9, 1732. English soldier, inventor of "negus," a mildly alcoholic compound of wine, water, spices, and sugar.

Nehavend (ne.hă.vend'). Place in Iran, ab. 50 mi. S of Hamadan, noted for the battle (641) in which the Saracens totally defeated the Persians and overthrew the Persian kingdom.

Nehco (nē'kō). See Necho.

Nenheim-Hüsten (nă'm.hüs'ten). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, situated on the Ruhr River ab. 23 mi. SE of Dortmund; metal, machinery, electrical, chemical, knitwear, and leather industries. 29,130 (1950).

Nehemiah (nē.e.mī'a). Hebrew cup-bearer of Artaxerxes I of Persia, appointed governor of Judea in 444 B.C. He rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, and restored the national worship. The authorship of a part of the Book of Nehemiah is ascribed to him.

Nehemiah, Book of. Book of the Old Testament, written probably in part by Nehemiah.

Neher (nă'ēr), Bernhard von. b. at Biberach, Germany, Jan. 16, 1806; d. at Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 17, 1886. German historical painter.

Nehru (nē'rō), Pandit Jawaharlal. b. at Allahabad, India, Nov. 14, 1889—. Indian statesman, nationalist leader, and author, first prime minister of independent India and minister for external affairs (1947 et seq.); son of Pandit Motilal Nehru. He renounced a career at the bar for politics, joined the noncooperation movement in 1920, and became an associate of Gandhi. He subsequently played a prominent role in the nationalist, peasant, and labor movements. After 1927 his interests turned more to international developments. Influenced by Marxist sympathies, he headed the left wing of the Indian National Congress and advocated socialism at home and an anti-imperialist stand in world affairs. President (1929, 1936, 1937, 1946) of the Indian National Congress, he was known as an advocate of complete independence for India, and was imprisoned (1942-45) for his firm stand against India's participation in World War II unless Indian independence was granted. He served as the vice-president of the viceroy's executive council of the Indian interim government in September, 1946. Author of Eighteen Months in India (1936), the autobiographical Toward Freedom (1936), Glimpses of World History (1939), The Discovery of India (1945), and Independence and After (1950).

Nehru, Pandit Motilal. b. in Agra, India, May 6, 1861; d. at Lucknow, India, Feb. 6, 1931. Indian nationalist leader, lawyer, and publisher, legislative leader (1924-26) and president (1925) of the Swaraj Party. A Kashmiri Brahman, he was the father of Jawaharlal Nehru and Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit. President (1919) of the Indian National Congress, and founder of the newspaper Independent (Allahabad, 1919-22), he withdrew from a successful law career to join the noncooperation movement in 1920. During the following decade he was one of the leaders of the National Congress and headed the nationalist faction in the Indian legislature. He served as chairman (1925, 1928) of the All-Parties Conference; the draft constitution drawn up for India in 1928 became known as the "Nehru Report." It envisaged a strong central government for India united to the British Empire as a self-governing dominion, but failed to please Indian Muslims, who objected to its provisions for centralized power. He was elected (1928) president of the National Congress Party, and served (1930) as leader of the party in the legislative assembly.

Neidhart von Reuenthal (ni't'härt fon roi'en.täl). fl. in the 13th century; d. at Vienna. Middle High German lyric poet. He was a Bavarian knight, took part in the crusade (1217-19) of Leopold II of Austria, and subsequently lived at Vienna at the court of Duke Frederick. His principal poems are dance songs. He was the founder of the popular lyric poetry of the courts, poetry, namely, that found its material in the rude life and manners of the peasants, who were held up to the ridicule of the nobles.

Neiges (nezh). Piton des. See under Réunion.

Neighbor Jackwood (jak'wud). Antislavery novel by John Towns and Trowbridge, published in 1856 and reissued in revised form in 1865.

Neighbors (ni'hörz). Robert Simpson. b. in Virginia, Nov. 3, 1815; d. at Fort Belknap, Tex., Sept. 14, 1859. American pioneer and Indian agent.

Neighbor Town. Former name of Newcomerstown.

Neihardt (ni'härt), John Gneisenau. b. at Sharpsburg, Ill., Jan. 8, 1881—. American poet. He lived (1901-07) among Omaha Indians. He was named poet laureate of Nebraska (1921) by act of the state legislature, and served as professor of poetry (1923 et seq.) at the University of Nebraska, literary editor (1926-38) of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and director of information (1944-46) of the Office of Indian Affairs. Author of The Divine Enchantment (1900), The Lonesome Trail (1907), Man-Song (1909), The River and I (1910), The Song of Three Friends (1919), The Song of the Indian Wars (1925), The Song of the Messiah (1933), The Song of Jed Smith (1941), A Cycle of the West (1943), and other books of poetry.

Neilgherry Hills (nēl'ger'z). See Nilgiri Hills.

Neill (nēl), Charles Patrick. b. at Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 12, 1865; d. at Washington, D.C., Oct. 3, 1942. American political economist, who served (1905-13) as U.S. Commissioner of Labor. He investigated (1906) conditions in Chicago's meat-packing industry at the request of President Theodore Roosevelt, and served as umpire (1906-29) for the Anthracite Conciliation Board.

Neill, Edward Duffield. b. at Philadelphia, Aug. 9, 1823; d. at St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 26, 1893. American historian. Author of English Colonialism of America (1871) and other works on American colonial history, Concise History of Minnesota (1887), and others.

Neill, James George Smith. b. near Ayr, Scotland, May 27, 1810; d. near Lucknow, India, Sept. 25, 1857. English army officer, distinguished during the Sepoy Mutiny. He organized and reformed (1854 et seq.) the Turkish contingent in the Crimean War, insisting upon discipline and making plunder a punishable offense. He completely crushed (1857) the mutiny of the 37th native infantry and a Sikh regiment during the course of their three charges at Benares. He was chosen by Sir Henry Havelock to lead the right wing of the force during the march from Cawnpore to Lucknow, in the assault of which he was killed in action.

Neillsville (nēlz'vil). City in C Wisconsin, county seat of Clark County; marketing and processing center for dairy products and peas. 2,663 (1930).

Neilson (nēl'son), James Beaumont. b. near Glasgow, June 22, 1792; d. at Queen's Hill, Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland, Jan. 18, 1865. British engineer and inventor. He invented the use of the hot blast in smelting furnaces.

Neilson, John. b. in Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland, July 17, 1776; d. at Quebec, Canada, Feb. 1, 1848. Canadian journalist and politician. He came to Canada in 1790, and served (1796 et seq.) as editor of the Quebec Gazette. He was a member (1818-34, 1841 et seq.) of the Lower Canada (Quebec) assembly for Quebec city, becoming speaker in 1844. In 1823, 1828, and 1835, he was in England as a member of a delegation representing the interests of Lower Canada. Neilson is now remembered chiefly for his opposition to the union of Lower and Upper Canada (a union established in 1840-41), and to the 1837-38 rebellion led by the French Canadian Louis Papineau.

Neilson, John Shaw. b. at Penola, South Australia, Feb. 22, 1872; d. at Melbourne, Australia, May 12, 1942. Australian lyric poet. He attended school for only 30 months, and worked all his life as a common laborer. He nevertheless wrote a group of lyrics which assures him a high place among Australian writers. He published Collected Poems (1934).

Neilson, Lilian Adelaide. [Also known as Lizzie Bland; original name, Elizabeth Ann Brown.] b. at Leeds, Yorkshire, England, March 3, 1848; d. at Paris, Aug. 15, 1880. English actress. At the age of 17 she made her debut as Juliet. In 1870 she made a conspicuous success as Amy Robsart at London, and by 1878 she was acknowledged queen of the English stage. In 1872 she performed for the first time in America at Niblo's Theater in New York. She made four visits to America, her last appearance being on May 24, 1880.

Neilson, Samuel. b. at Ballyronney, County Down, in September, 1761; d. at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Aug. 29, 1803. Irish politician, a founder with Wolfe Tone and others of the Society of United Irishmen. Originally an owner of one of the largest wool warehouses in Belfast, he turned (1790) politician. The Society was formed (1791) first for the purpose of bringing about parliamentary reform and later of uniting all Irishmen of all religious persuasions, with the end ultimately of establishing an independent Irish republic. He was the first editor (1792) of North Star, the organ of the Society, and became (1794) its sole proprietor. For these activities Neilson was arrested (1796) and the paper suppressed (1797). Released in 1798, he again became active and was arrested shortly afterwards. Transported to Fort George, Scotland, he was set at liberty (1802). After a short visit in Ireland, he sailed to the U.S., where he died in the midst of preparations to start another newspaper.

Neilson, William Allan. b. at Doune, Scotland, March 28, 1869; d. at Northampton, Mass., Feb. 13, 1946. American educator and author, president (1917-39) of Smith College. He was an English instructor at Bryn Mawr (1898-1900), Harvard (1900-04), and Columbia (1904-06), and professor of English (1906-17) at Harvard. He introduced the honors system and "junior year abroad" plan at Smith. His books include Essentials of Poetry (1912), The Facts about Shakespeare (with A. H. Thorndike, 1913), Robert Burns (1917), and A History of English Literature (1920). He was editor in chief of Webster's New International Dictionary, Second Edition (1934), and editor of an edition of Shakespeare's works (1906).

Nein (nān). See Nain, Palestine.

Neipperg (nē'perk), Count Adam Adalbert von. b. April 8, 1775; d. Feb. 22, 1829. Austrian general and diplomat. He married Marie Louise after the death of Napoleon (1821).

Neisse (nē'se). [Also: Lausitzer Neisse, Göltzter Neisse; Polish, Nysa Łużycka.] River in Silesia, rising in N Czechoslovakia, forming (since 1945) part of the German-Polish border, and joining the Oder abt. 26 mi. S of Frankfurt on the Oder. Length, abt. 140 mi.

Neisse. German name of Nysa, and of the Nysa River, Poland.

Neisser (nē'sēr), Albert Ludwig Siegmund. b. at Schweidnitz (now Świdnica), near Breslau, Jan. 22, 1855;

d. at Breslau, July 30, 1916. German physician. He discovered (1879) the bacillus which produces gonorrhea, named it (1882) gonococcus, and gave the final proof of the specific nature of this organism. He worked on the development of the diagnosis, therapy, and prophylaxis of gonorrhea, and recommended the use of protargol for the disease. He directed researches in biology, histology, protozoology, bacteriology, x-ray, and Finsen light, spent much time in Norway and Spain in the study of the etiology and pathological anatomy of leprosy, and confirmed and extended much of G. Hansen's work on the leprosy bacillus. He went to Java, where he inoculated apes with syphilis and discovered the spirochaeta pallida, the cause of syphilis, at the same time as F. Schaudinn and P. E. Hoffman. He joined his assistant, Carl Bruck, and August von Wassermann in the research which produced the Wassermann test for syphilis. A syringe is named after him, as well as certain coccaceae.

Neisser, Max. b. at Legnice (Liegnitz), in Silesia, June 19, 1859; d. at Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, Feb. 25, 1938. German bacteriologist. He introduced a stain for the differential diagnosis of the diphtheria bacillus (1897) and of the staphylococci. He noted the deviation of complement (1901), called the Neisser-Wechsberg phenomenon, and devised a test for living and dead cells (1900).

Neith (né'ith). [Also, Net.] In early Egyptian mythology, a personification of the female principle, called mother of the gods. She was the mother of the sun god, Ra, but herself unbegotten. She was the chief divinity of the city of Sais, single, supreme, self-existent and self-producing. In some interpretations of her function she was thought to personify parthenogenesis. Identified by the Greeks with Athena, she was represented as a woman wearing the crown of Lower Egypt.

Neithardt (nit'härt), August Heinrich. b. at Schleiz, Thuringia, Germany, Aug. 10, 1793; d. at Berlin, April 18, 1861. German bandmaster and conductor. His works include an opera (1843), piano compositions, songs, and military music.

Neithardt von Gneisenau (fon gn'ze.nou), Count August. Full name of Gneisenau, Count August.

Neitzel (nit'sel), Otto. b. at Falkenburg, Germany, July 6, 1852; d. at Cologne, Germany, March 10, 1920. German pianist, composer, conductor, and musicologist. He was the author of Führer durch die Oper der Gegenwart (3 vols., 1890-93) and Saint-Saëns (1898), and the translator of opera texts. Among his compositions are the operas Angela (1887) and Dido (1888). He also composed cantatas, piano selections, and violin and orchestral works.

Neiva (nä'vä). [Also, Neyva.] Town in SW Colombia, capital of Huila department, on the Magdalena River, ab. 125 mi. SW of Bogotá; rice, cattle, coffee, and Panama hats. 15,096 (1938).

Nejd (nejd). [Also: Najd, Nedjed.] Viceroyalty of Saudi Arabia, comprising a large plateau region in C Arabian peninsula and including politically the lower lands N to Jordan and Iraq, E to Hasa on the Persian Gulf, S to the great desert N of Aden, and W to the Hejaz. It is partly very dry desert and partly steppe-desert, but there are several large and important oases. It is inhabited chiefly by Wahhabi tribes, whose chief occupation is nomadic herding. Petroleum is the principal export; dates, hides, and wool are also produced. Capital, Riyadh; area, ab. 415,000 sq. mi.; pop. ab. three million.

Nejdek (nä'dek). [Also: Nigdek, Nydek; German: Neudeck, Neudek.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Karlovy Vary, in NW Bohemia, situated on the Bohlava River, on the S slope of the Krusné Hory, NW of Karlovy Vary. There are ironworks, a worsted-spinning mill, a paper factory, and lumber industries. It is also a summer resort. 5,748 (1947).

Nejedlý (né'yed.lé), Zdeněk. b. in Bohemia, 1878—. Czechoslovak scholar, notable as a historian of music. He became a professor at Charles University, at Prague, in 1908, and was long the nation's leading musicologist. In 1939 he fled to the U.S.S.R. to become vice-chairman of the All-Slav committee (1939-45) and professor of Slavic studies at the University of Moscow (1942-45). On his return to the republic he was minister of social welfare (1946-48) and of education (1945-46, 1948 et seq.). He is president of the Czech Academy and author of Bibliography of Czech History, History of Czech Music, General History of Music, Bedřich Smetana (4 vols.), T. G. Masaryk (5 vols., incomplete), History of Opera in the National Theater (2 vols.), Lenín (2 vols.), and others.

Nejef (né'ef). See An Najaf.

Nejlin (nye'zhin). See Nezhin.

Nekau or Nekaw (né'kō). See Necho.

Nekayah (né'k'a.ya), Princess. Sister of Rasselas, in Samuel Johnson's work of that name.

Nekhet (né'het). See under Buto.

Nekkras (né'kar). See Nakkar.

Nekrasov (nyé'kri'sof), Nikolay Alekseyevich. b. Nov. 22, 1821; d. at St. Petersburg, Dec. 27, 1877. Russian poet. He was editor of The Contemporary and The Annals of the Fatherland. In 1840 he published Dreams and Elves, a small volume of poems. Among his poems are Red-necked Frost (1863), Who Can Be Happy and Free in Russia? (the last canto of which, forbidden by the censor, was not published till 1881), and Russian Women.

Neku (né'kō). See Necho.

Nelan (né'lan), Charles. b. at Akron, Ohio, April 10, 1859; d. 1904. American cartoonist.

Nélaton (ná.lá.tón), Auguste. b. at Paris, June 17, 1807; d. there, Sept. 21, 1873. French surgeon, professor (1851-67) on the medical faculty of the University of Paris. His chief work was Éléments de pathologie chirurgicale (Elements of Surgical Pathology, 1844-60).

Neleus (né'lūs, -lūs). In Greek mythology, a son of Poseidon, founder and king of Pylus in Messenia. He was the father of Nestor.

Nelidov (nily'dof), Count Aleksandr Ivanovich. b. 1838; d. Sept. 18, 1910. Russian diplomat. He took part in the Congress of Berlin, and became ambassador to Turkey in 1883, to Italy in 1897, and to France in 1903. In 1907 he was a delegate to the second Hague conference.

Nell (nel), Little. See Little Nell.

Nell, William Cooper. b. at Boston, Dec. 20, 1816; d. May 25, 1874. American Negro author. As a young man he became identified with the antislavery cause in Massachusetts, where he was also active in behalf of reforms eliminating segregation in the public schools. He aided (1851) Frederick Douglass in bringing out the North Star, and wrote Services of Colored Americans in the Wars of 1776 and 1812 (1851) and The Colored Patriots of the American Revolution (1855).

Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model (nel'i). Melodrama by Owen Davis.

Nellore (né.lör'). [Also, Nellur (né.lör').] District in Madras, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. N of the city of Madras; rice, cattle, millet, and oilseeds. Capital, Nellore; area, ab. 7,942 sq. mi.; pop. 1,795,632 (1951).

Nellore. [Also, Nellur.] Capital of the district of Nellore, Madras, Union of India, on the Penner River ab. 109 mi. N of Madras; small river port and trading center. 56,315 (1941).

Nelson (nel'son). Town in SE British Columbia, Canada, situated on the Kootenay River in the Kootenay silver-mining district, ab. 20 mi. W of Lake Kootenay, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It has smelting works and machine shops. Although mining was formerly the chief occupation of the district, lumbering and fruit growing are now more important. 6,772 (1951).

Nelson. Municipal borough and textile-manufacturing town in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 4 mi. NE of Burnley, ab. 215 mi. NW of London by rail. It has cotton and rayon manufactures. 34,368 (1951).

Nelson. Seaport at the N end of South Island, New Zealand, situated on Tasman Bay ab. 200 mi. N of Christchurch. Iron ore is mined near the town. 20,497 (1951).

Nelson, Aven. b. in Lee County, Iowa, March 24, 1859—. American botanist and educator. He served (1887-1940) as professor of botany at the University of Wyoming, of which he was president from 1917 to 1922. Among his works are Report on the Flora of Wyoming (1896), The Trees of Wyoming and How to Know Them (1899), and Spring Flora of the Intermountain States (1910).

Nelson, Cleland Kinloch. b. near Colham, Va., May 23, 1852; d. Feb. 13, 1917. American Protestant Episcopal clergyman.

Nelson, Donald Marr. b. at Hannibal, Mo., Nov. 17, 1888—. American business executive and government administrator. He was associated (1912-42) with Sears, Roeback and Company, serving (1939-42) as executive vice-president and chairman of the executive committee. He was acting director of procurement (1940) for the U.S. Treasury, executive director of the U.S. Supply Priorities and Allocation Board, director of priorities for the Office of Production Management (1941), and chairman (January, 1942-October, 1944) of the War Production Board. He was the personal representative (1943-44) of President F. D. Roosevelt to China and Russia. He was president (1945-47) of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers.

Nelson, Edward William. b. at Amoskeag, near Manchester, N.H., May 8, 1855; d. May 19, 1934. American naturalist. He was associated (1890-1929) with the Bureau of Biological Survey in the Department of Agriculture as head field naturalist (1907-12), chief (1916-27), and head biologist (1927-29).

Nelson, Horatio. [Title, Viscount Nelson.] b. at Burnham Thorpe, Norfolk, England, Sept. 29, 1758; d. on board the Victory at the battle of Trafalgar, Oct. 21, 1805. English admiral. He entered the navy in 1770, and was made post captain, i.e., captain in rank, at the age of 21, serving in the American Revolutionary War in the West Indies and in Canada. In 1787 he married Frances Nisbet, a widow with a small son. At the declaration of war with France in 1793, he was made captain of the Agamemnon in the Mediterranean, serving first under Samuel, Viscount Hood and afterward under Admiral William Hotham. At Calvi (1794), he lost his right eye. In 1793 he conveyed troops from Naples to Toulon, under attack by Napoleon, and while at Naples met Emma Hamilton, wife of the English envoy at Naples. He later (1794) was present at the occupation of Corsica. On Feb. 14, 1797, under Admiral John Jervis (later Earl of St. Vincent), he fought in the battle off Cape St. Vincent, the victory being in large measure due to Nelson's initiative. He had become a commodore (1796) and now was appointed rear admiral (1797). On July 24, 1797, he ventured on a foolhardy attempt to capture Santa Cruz de Tenerife with only a limited crew; the attack failed, and Nelson, his right elbow shattered, lost his arm in a desperate operation. He was invalided home, and rejoined the fleet late in April, 1798. In May, 1798, he was sent by Lord St. Vincent to intercept Napoleon's expedition to Egypt. He failed to catch the French at Toulon but scoured the Mediterranean for them; he found them at last and destroyed the French fleet at anchor in the harbor of Abukir, August 1-2, in the engagement called "the battle of the Nile." He retired to Naples, where he became involved in an intrigue with Emma Hamilton, and through her was induced to use his naval power as a means of restoring the Neapolitan royal family. He became completely a tool of Mrs. Hamilton and was swept into the cesspool of Bourbon politics. He was under orders to aid the Neapolitan king, but so far exceeded his orders as to refuse to obey the orders of his superior officer. In 1800 he returned to England in the company of the Hamiltons and was made vice-admiral and a peer. He had, however, estranged English society by his conduct at Naples and by bringing Emma Hamilton to live in the same house as his wife, who then left him (1801) for good. The battle of Copenhagen was fought April 2, 1801, in order to destroy the coalition of the northern powers known as the (second) Armed Neutrality. During the battle, his superior officer, Sir Hyde Parker, gave the order to retire; Nelson, recognizing it as a maneuver leading to defeat, put his telescope to his blind eye and said he could see no such signal. Nelson was made a viscount after Copenhagen. When the war with France broke out again (1803), he was placed in command in the Mediterranean. He kept Toulon blockaded for two years. The French fleet under Admiral P. C. de Villeneuve left Toulon in March, 1805, and sailed to the West Indies with the intention of drawing off the English fleet and returning to support Napoleon's projected invasion of England. Nelson followed, and, after Napoleon's plan had been thwarted by the hesitancy of Villeneuve, fought the French-Spanish fleet off Cape Trafalgar, Oct. 21, 1805. He hoisted the signal "England expects that every man will do his duty" at the beginning of this fight. During the fight a musket ball from the French Redoutable struck him in the chest and broke his spine; he was carried below, but before he died heard the news that his opponents were destroyed. He was buried at St. Paul's Cathedral, London. In 1849 the monument to him was erected in Trafalgar Square; the lions at the base, by Sir Edwin Landseer, date from 1867. He left one child, a daughter, Horatia, born in 1801 to Emma Hamilton.

Nelson, John. b. 1654; d. Nov. 15, 1734. New England fur trader and statesman. The nephew of Sir Thomas Temple, proprietor and governor (1656-70) of Nova Scotia, he became active in the fur trade in the Kennebec region during the late 1670's. During an expedition (1691) to Nova Scotia undertaken for the Massachusetts colony, he was captured by the French and imprisoned in France for several years. Paroled, he went to London, where he advised the English concerning their imperial designs in relation to the French in North America. Following the peace of Ryswick (1697), he again took up residence at Boston, where he carried on his work as a proponent of the consolidation of British power in North America.

Nelson, Julius. b. at Copenhagen, March 6, 1858; d. Feb. 15, 1916. American biologist. He served (c1888-1916) as biologist of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station and professor of biology at Rutgers College. His notable studies of oyster life and culture were instrumental in developing the New Jersey oyster industry.

Nelson, Samuel. b. at Hebron, N.Y., Nov. 10, 1792; d. at Cooperstown, N.Y., Dec. 13, 1873. American jurist. He was associate justice of the supreme court of New York (1831-37) and chief justice (1837-45), associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1845-72), and a member of the joint high commission to settle the Alabama claims in 1871.

Nelson, Thomas. b. at Yorktown, Va., Dec. 26, 1738; d. in Hanover County, Va., Jan. 4, 1789. American patriot, signer of the Declaration of Independence in 1776 as delegate to Congress from Virginia. He served in the Revolutionary War, and became governor of Virginia in 1781.

Nelson, Thomas. b. at Stirling, Scotland, 1780; d. 1861. Scottish publisher, founder of the publishing house of Thomas Nelson and Sons; father of William Nelson (1816-87) and Thomas Nelson (1822-92). In 1798 he went into business for himself, and was joined by William in 1835 and by Thomas in 1839. Under his direction the house specialized in readers, gift books, and religious and juvenile literature.

Nelson, Thomas. b. at Edinburgh, Dec. 25, 1822; d. there, Oct. 20, 1892. Scottish publisher; son of Thomas Nelson (1780-1861) and brother of William Nelson (1816-87). He entered his father's firm in 1839, and opened a London branch of Thomas Nelson and Sons in 1844. He invented (1850) a rotary press, and was responsible for other improvements in the printing and publishing of books. He initiated (1870) the successful and soon widely imitated Royal Readers. Author of atlases of the world (1859) and of ancient geography (1867).

Nelson, William. b. near Yorktown, Va., 1711; d. Nov. 19, 1772. Virginia merchant, planter, and colonial official. He served (1742-44) in the Virginia House of Burgesses, was a member (1744-72) of the Virginia council, of which he was president, and was acting governor (1770-71). A prominent merchant and landowner, he served (1759 et seq.) on the committee of correspondence of the Virginia assembly.

Nelson, William. b. at Edinburgh, Dec. 13, 1816; d. there, Sept. 10, 1887. Scottish publisher; son of Thomas Nelson (1780-1861) and brother of Thomas Nelson (1822-92). He became a member of his father's publishing house in 1835. By restoring buildings and structures, he did much to improve the beauty of Edinburgh.

Nelson, William. b. at Maysville, Ky., Sept. 27, 1824; killed at Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29, 1862. American general in the Civil War.

Nelson, William Rockhill. b. at Fort Wayne, Ind., March 7, 1841; d. April 13, 1915. American journalist. He became (1878) part owner of the Fort Wayne Sentinel and founded (1880) the Kansas City (Mo.) Evening Star, which he edited until his death. In 1901 he became owner of the Kansas City Times.

Nelson Monument. Corinthian column of granite, 145 ft. high, on a square pedestal, standing in Trafalgar Square, London. It bears a statue of Horatio Nelson, 17

ft. high, and on the sides of the pedestal are bronze reliefs portraying his chief exploits. Around the column are placed four colossal reposing lions in bronze, by Landseer.

Nelson River. River in Manitoba, Canada, which flows from Lake Winnipeg into Hudson Bay. Length, ab. 395 mi.

Nelsonville (nĕl'son.vil). [Former name, Englishtown.] City in S Ohio, in Athens County, in a coal-mining and clay-producing area. Manufactures include shoes, wood products, tile, and brick. 4,845 (1950).

Neman (nem'an). See also Morrigan.

Neman (nem'an; Russian, nye'man). [Polish, Niemen; Lithuanian, Nemunas; German name, in its lower course, Memel.] River in W U.S.S.R., forming the border between the Kaliningrad oblast (region) and the Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republic for over 50 mi. and having its source in the W part of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic. It empties by several mouths into the Kurisches Haff ab. 50 mi. NE of Kaliningrad (Königsberg). Length, ab. 582 mi.

Nemausus (nĕ.mō'sus). A Latin name of Nimes.

Nemea (nĕ.mĕ'a, nĕ.mĕ'a). In ancient geography, a valley in Argolis, Greece, ab. 11 mi. SW of Corinth. It is noted as the site of the Nemean Games, and in legend as the haunt of the Nemean lion, choked to death by Hercules as the first of his 12 labors.

Nemean Games (nĕ.mĕ'an or nĕ.mĕ'an). One of the four great national festivals of the ancient Greeks (the others being the Olympian, Pythian, and Isthmian games). These games were celebrated at Nemea in the second and fourth years of each Olympiad, near the temple of the Nemean Zeus, some (Doric) columns of which are still standing. They are said to have been instituted in memory of the death from the bite of a serpent of a young hero as the expedition of "the Seven against Thebes" was passing through the place. The victor's garland at the Nemean Games was made of parsley (parsley being sacred to the dead in ancient Greece).

Němický Brod (nye'mĕts.kĕ brót). Former name of Havříčkův Brod.

Nemedians (nĕ.med'i.ǵnz). See under Tuatha De Danann.

Nemesianus (nĕ'mĕ.sĭ.ǵnus), Marcus Aurelius Olympius. b. probably at Carthage; fl. at the close of the 3rd century. Roman poet. Fragments of his Cynegetica have been edited by Haupt (1838).

Nemesis (nem'e.sis). In Greek mythology, a goddess of law and justice, personifying especially divine retribution for violations of law and justice. Sometimes Nemesis was represented as winged, with the wheel of fortune, or borne in a chariot drawn by griffins. By extension she is popularly regarded as a goddess of the inevitable.

Nemesius (nĕ.mĕ.shi.us, -zhi.us). fl. last part of the 4th century A.D. Christian theologian, bishop of Emesa (now Homs), Syria. He was the author of a Greek treatise On the Nature of Man.

Nemetacum (nem.ǵ.tǵ.kum). A Latin name of Arras.

Nemetes (nĕ.mĕ.tĕz). Ancient Germanic tribe, first mentioned by Caesar as being in the army of Ariovistus, king of the Suevi. The Nemetes were situated at the left side of the middle Rhine, east of the Vosges, in the region about Speyer, where they still remained after the defeat (58 B.C.) of Ariovistus.

Németh (nā'met), László. b. at Nagybánya, Hungary (now Baia-Mare, Rumania), 1901—. Hungarian novelist, essayist, and critic. He wrote several essays on the younger generation and produced a periodical, Tanít, devoted to the problems of its members. He had great influence on the development of the younger literary generation in Hungary.

Nemetocenna (nem'ǵ.a.tō.sen'a). A Latin name of Arras.

Nemi (nĕ.mĕ), Lake. [Italian, Lago di Nemi; Latin, Nemorensis Lacus.] Small lake ab. 17 mi. SE of Rome, noted for its beauty. It occupies an extinct crater in the Alban Mountains.

Nemirovich-Danchenko (nĕ.mĕ.rō'vĕch.dān'elin.ko). Vasily Ivanovich. b. 1848; d. 1936. Russian journalist, author of travel books, and a prolific novelist.

Nemirovich-Danchenko, Vladimir Ivanovich b. at Tiflis (Tbilisi), Russia, 1858; d. April 25, 1943. Russian playwright and stage director, cofounder with Konstantin Stanislavsky of the Moscow Art Theatre. His reminiscences have been published in English under the title My Life in the Russian Theatre (1936).

Nemo (nĕ.mō). Signature of Hablot Knight Browne to the first two of his plates illustrating Charles Dickens's Pickwick Papers, which he afterward changed to "Phiz."

Nemorensis Lacus (nem.ō.ren'sĭs lā'kus). Latin name of Nemi, Lake.

Nemours (nĕ.mōr'). Port in Oran department, Algeria, in NW Africa, near the French Moroccan border; the westernmost port in Algeria, serving parts of neighboring Morocco as well as W Algeria. It is an outlet for the export of coal, manganese, and livestock. An important fishing port, especially for sardines, it is the chief fish-curing point of Algeria. Pop. of commune, 7,515 (1936); of town, 3,269 (1936).

Nemours. Town in N France, in the département of Seine-et-Marne, situated on the Canal du Loing, ab. 45 mi. SE of Paris. The capital of the old region of Gâtinais, it has preserved its castle from the 12th century and a church from the 15th and 16th centuries. 5,419 (1946).

Nemours, Duc de. [Title of Gaston de Foix.] b. 1489; d. at Ravenna, Italy, April 11, 1512. French general, He was the son of Jean de Foix, Vicomte de Narbonne, and Marie d'Orléans, sister of Louis XII. He was created Duc de Nemours in 1505. In 1512 he conducted a brilliant campaign against the Spaniards in Italy, and was killed in the pursuit after a great victory won by him at Ravenna on April 11, 1512.

Nemours, Duc de. [Title of Prince Louis Charles Philippe Raphaël d'Orléans.] b. at Paris, Oct. 25, 1814; d. at Versailles, France, June 25, 1896. Second son of King Louis Philippe of France. He served as a general in the French army, and took part in the expeditions (1836-37) against Constantine, Algeria. From 1848 to 1870 he lived in England, and from 1870 to 1886 in France. He was expelled from the army in 1886 and lived subsequently in Belgium.

Nemours, du Pont de. See du Pont de Nemours.

Nemours, Edict of. Treaty concluded in 1585 at Nemours, France, between King Henry III of France and the chiefs of the Holy League, revoking the concessions won by the Huguenots in the earlier religious wars.

Nemunas (nĕ.mū.nās). Lithuanian name of the Neman.

Nen (nen). See Nene.

Nenagh (nĕ'nā). [Irish, An Aonach.] Urban district and market town in Munster province, Irish Republic, in County Tipperary (North Riding), ab. 23 mi. NE of Limerick. 4,410 (1951).

Nene (nĕn) or Nen (nen). River in C England, rising in Northamptonshire and flowing through Huntingdonshire, Cambridgeshire, and Lincolnshire to the Wash, ab. 9 mi. NW of King's Lynn. It has many canal connections. Length, ab. 90 mi.

Nenets National Okrug (nyi.nyets'). National okrug (territory) in NW U.S.S.R., occupying the NE mainland portion of the Arkhangelsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. It was established in 1929 as the national territory of the Nentsy, a nomadic people similar to the Lapps, who live by reindeer herding and hunting. The area is largely tundra and bush tundra; there are fisheries along the coast; industries include fish canning, and lumbering (using logs floated down the Pechora system), at Naryan-Mar, the capital. Area, ab. 82,800 sq. mi. (1937); pop. ab. 28,125 (1937).

Nenni (nen'nĕ), Pietro. b. at Faenza, Italy, Feb. 9, 1891—. Italian statesman. He became (1914) coeditor of the communist weekly Settimana Rossa, and directed (1923 et seq.) the daily Avanti. He was expropriated (1926) and moved to France. He served (1931-39) on the executive committee of the International Socialist Party, and fought (1936-38) in Spain during the civil war. Imprisoned (1943) by the Gestapo, he was sent to Italy, where he was set free. He was elected vice-president (1945) of the council, deputy (1946) to the constitutional assembly, and minister (1946) of foreign affairs.

Nennius (nen'i.us). Reputed Welsh author of the Historia Brittonum, written late in the 8th or early in the 9th century. Whether Nennius was a compiler of earlier works or a reviser of a still earlier history of the Britons is a matter of dispute, as is his actual text, since none of the extant manuscripts are earlier than c1000 A.D. and may be corrupt. The story of King Arthur (in Nennius simply a war leader) first appears here.

Neocastro (nē.ō.kās'trō). See Pylos, Greece.

Neodesha (nē.ō.de.shā'). City in SE Kansas, in Wilson County, in an oil-producing region. 3,723 (1950).

Neo-Indians (nē.ō.in'di.ānz). Modern Indians of the New World, including particularly those who have practiced agriculture and made pottery. Physically, these Indians are distinguished from the Paleo-Indians, who arrived here during the Pleistocene era, by a tendency toward broad-headedness.

Neolithic Period (nē.ō.lith'ik). [Also, New Stone Age.] Period in the development of mankind, characterized by the use of polished stone implements, but more important as marking the change from the hunting and gathering stage of culture to the agricultural. In this period, beginning perhaps even earlier than the 5th millennium B.C. in the Middle and Near East and more than a thousand years later in Europe, grain first became a staple of food; cattle, sheep, and pigs were domesticated; and more or less fixed, though flimsy, structures were erected as homes. Metal was not used, except for ornament and for small objects, and pottery, weaving, and other domestic handicrafts were either invented or became widespread. The urban Bronze Age succeeded the Neolithic, being in full sway in the East before the Neolithic Period actually had begun in Europe.

Neoplatonists (nē.ō.plā'tō.nists). Believers in a system of philosophical and religious doctrines and principles which originated in Alexandria with Ammonius Saccas in the 3rd century, and was developed by Plotinus, Porphyry, Iamblichus, Hypatia, Proclus, and others in the 3rd, 4th, and 5th centuries. The system was composed of elements of Platonism and Oriental beliefs, and in its later development was influenced by the philosophy of Philo, by Gnosticism, and by Christianity. Its leading representative was Plotinus. His views were popularized by Porphyry and modified in the direction of mysticism by Iamblichus. Considerable sympathy with Neoplatonism in its earlier stages was shown by several eminent Christian writers, especially in Alexandria, such as Saint Clement, Origen, and others. The last Neoplatonic schools were suppressed in the 6th century.

Neoptolemus (nē.ōp.tol'e.mus). [Also, Pyrrhus.] In Greek legend, a son of Achilles: one of the heroes of the Trojan War. He was one of the band which was concealed in the wooden horse by means of which Troy was captured, slew Priam, hurled the child Astyanax over the wall, and carried off to slavery Andromache, the wife of Hector. He went later to Epirus, where he carried off a granddaughter of Hercules, and plundered the temple of Apollo at Delphi. He married Hermione. At Delphi he was worshipped as a hero, and was said to have protected that shrine from the Goths.

Neoptolemus. Killed c321 B.C. Macedonian general in the service of Alexander the Great.

Neos Dionysius (nē.ōs di.ō.n'is.us). A surname of Ptolemy XI.

Neosho (nē.ō.shō). City in SW Missouri, county seat of Newton County; processing point for flour, fruits, and dairy products. 5,790 (1950).

Neosho River. [In Oklahoma, also, Grand River.] River in SE Kansas and NE Oklahoma, which joins the Arkansas near Muskogee. Several power and flood-control dams have been built in the river. Length, ab. 460 mi.

Neot (nē.ōt, nēt), Saint. British ecclesiastic, said to have been a monk of Glastonbury Abbey and a councillor of King Alfred. He retired to a hermitage in Cornwall, and there had a number of disciples. According to tradition his body was transferred some years after his death to the newly founded monastery of Saint Neots in Huntingdonshire.

Nepal (nē.pōl'). [Also: Nepaul, Nipal.] Independent kingdom in Asia, situated mainly on the S slope of the Himalayas. It is bounded by Tibet on the N, Sikkim on the E, and the Union of India on the S and W. Most of Nepal is very mountainous; the chief centers of population are the elevated valleys and basins in the C part of the country which lie between the Himalayas and the Siwalik Range. The S part of the country, bordering on the Indian Union, is occupied by a swampy jungle area known as the terai. The chief crops are rice, grains, cotton, sugar cane, oilseeds, fruits, and tea. Foreign trade consists chiefly of the export of agricultural products in exchange for imported manufactured goods. The only railroad in Nepal, linked to the Indian system, is a branch line, from which there is a road and aerial cableway route to Katmandu. There is also an airport at Katmandu. Nepal is governed by a maharajah and prime minister. The ruling people are the Gurkhas. The religion is Buddhism (blended with Hinduism) and Hinduism. Nepal was conquered by the Hindus in the 14th century, and by the Gurkhas in the 18th century, and was at war with the British in 1814-15. Capital, Katmandu; area, ab. 54,000 sq. mi.; pop. 6,282,000 (1941).

Neper (nā'pēr), John. See Napier or Neper, John.

Nephele (nē'fē.lē). In Greek legend, the wife of Athamas and mother of Phrixus and Helle. It was she who, after her death, sent the ram with the golden fleece to save the two children from the murderous plot of their stepmother, and take them to Colchis.

Nephi (nē'fi). City in C Utah, county seat of Juab County; shipping point for livestock and grain. Settled in 1851, it was named for a patriarch in the Book of Mormon. 2,990 (1950).

Nephtali (nē'f.tā.li). See Naphtali.

Nepomuk (nē.pō.mōk), Saint John of. See Saint John of Nepomuk.

Nepos (nē'pos, nep'os), Cornelius. b. probably at Verona, Italy; fl. in the 1st century B.C. Roman historian, a friend of Cicero. He was the author of love poetry, a three-book Chronica, anecdotes, and lives of Cicero and Cato, all lost. His only extant work, De Excellentibus Ducibus Etrurum Gentium, is a section from the De Viris Illustribus, a larger work of his now lost.

Nepos, Julius. Killed at Salona, in Dalmatia, 480. Roman emperor of the West (474-475). He was appointed emperor by Leo I, Emperor of the East. He was defeated and deposed by the general Orestes, who raised his own son Romulus Augustulus to the throne, Romulus being the last of the western emperors.

Nepos, Quintus Caecilius Metellus. See Metellus Nepos, Quintus Caecilius.

Neptune (nēp'tūn). In Roman mythology, the god of the sea. He was originally a water god and rain giver, and thus associated with the growth of vegetation; but he came to be identified by the Romans with the Greek Poseidon. In art Neptune is usually represented as a bearded man of stately presence, with the trident as his chief attribute, and the horse and the dolphin as symbols.

Neptune. Planet revolving between Uranus and Pluto at a mean distance from the Sun of 2,796,700,000 mi. in an orbit with the low eccentricity of 0.0086 in a period of 164.79 years. Its magnitude of 7.7 makes it far too faint to be seen by the naked eye. Even in moderate-sized telescopes, it differs little from a star and was discovered in 1846 by Johann Galle of Berlin only after its existence was predicted and its approximate position calculated by U. J. J. Leverrier in France, and John Couch Adams in England, independently, as a result of its gravitational influence on Uranus, which it resembles closely. It has a diameter of 31,000 mi., a mass of 1.14 times 10²⁶ tons, and a density of 1.61 times that of water. It has a diameter four times that of the Earth, but it consists largely of less dense matter. The period of rotation is 15.8 hours, with the equator inclined 29.6 degrees to the plane of the orbit. Its atmosphere, in which methane is conspicuous, reflects 52 percent of the light received from the Sun. Neptune is accompanied by two satellites, Triton, discovered by William Lassell in 1846, and a smaller one discovered by G. P. Kuiper in 1948.

Neptune, Father. See Father Neptune.

Neptune City. Borough in E New Jersey, in Monmouth County, just SW of Asbury Park; summer resort and residential community. 3,073 (1950).

Nequimum (nē.kwīn'ū.m). Ancient name of Narni.

Nera (nā'rā). [Ancient name, Nar.] Small river in C Italy, a tributary of the Tiber. Terni is situated on it.

Nérac (nā.rāk). Town in SW France, in the department of Lot-et-Garonne, situated on the Baïse River, ab. 65 mi. SE of Bordeaux. Once one of the seats of French Protestantism (Huguenots), it was captured by Louis XIII and its fortification dismantled. It has a ruined castle. It produces agricultural (wine-making) machinery and is a center for trade in wine corks and wines, 5,987 (1946).

Nerbudda (nĕr.bud'ə). See Narbada.

Nerchinsk (nyer'chinsk). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Chita oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. It is on the Trans-Siberian Railroad and is a food-processing center. The treaty of Nerchinsk, regulating the boundary between China and Russia, was signed here in 1689. Pop. 15,300 (1937).

Nerchinski Zavod (nyer'chinski ză.vôt'). Mining town in the U.S.S.R., in the Chita oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in Siberia, situated near the Argun River (here the Manchurian border), ab. 140 mi. E of Nerchinsk. It produces silver, lead, and zinc. Pop. ab. 3,000.

Nereid Friezes (nir'ē.id). Four friezes from the Nereid monument at Xanthus in Lycia, now in the British Museum. The widest frieze represents a battle between Greeks and Asians; the others represent episodes of war, the chase, banquet, and sacrifice.

Nereids. In Greek mythology, sea nymphs, the 50 daughters of Nereus (whence the name) and Doris. The most famous among them were Amphitrite, Thetis, and Galatea. The Nereids were beautiful maidens helpful to voyagers, and constituted the main body of the female, as the Tritons did of the male, followers of Poseidon. They were imagined as dancing, singing, playing musical instruments, wooed by the Tritons, and passing in long processions over the sea seated on hippocamps and other sea creatures. Works of ancient art represent them lightly draped or nude, in poses characterized by undulating lines harmonizing with those of the ocean, and often riding on sea monsters of fantastic forms.

Neretum (nĕr.ĕ'tum). Ancient name of Nardō.

Neretva (nĕr.ĕt.vă). [Italian, Narenta; Latin, Naro.] River in Yugoslavia, which flows into the Adriatic Sea ab. lat. 43° N. Length, ab. 150 mi.

Nereus (nir'ōs, nir'ē.us). In Greek mythology, a sea god; son of Pontus and Gaia, husband of Doris, and father of the 50 Nereids.

Nergal (nĕr'gāl, -gāl). One of the 12 great gods of the Babylonians and Assyrians, mentioned in 2 Kings, xvii. 30 as the deity of Cuthah, a statement fully confirmed by the cuneiform inscriptions. He is primitively a sun god, especially in its burning, midsummer, destructive aspect. Nergal is the Hebrew form developed from Ner-gal, "lord of the great city," i.e., the land of the dead. He was also a god of war, pestilence, and the chase. Nergal was represented under the symbol of colossal lions, which guarded the entrance of the Assyro-Babylonian temples and palaces.

Nergalshazer (nĕr'gāl.shă.zĕr'). Babylonian king who ruled (560-556 B.C.) between Evil-Merodach and Nabonidus. He was son-in-law of Nebuchadnezzar.

Nergalshazer. In the Bible, the name of a Babylonian general (Jer. xxxix. 3) and of a chief of the Magi (Jer. xxxix. 13).

Nergilos (nĕr'gĭ.los). See Sharezer.

Neri (nă'rĕ), San Filippo de'. [English, Saint Philip Neri; original name, Filippo Romolo Neri.] b. at Florence, July 22, 1515; d. at Rome, May 26, 1595. Italian ecclesiastic, founder (1564) of the Congregation of the Oratory (whence the word "oratorio" since used to describe a type of religious music). In 1533 he went to Rome, cutting all ties with his family and arriving penniless. At Rome he engaged in tutoring for 17 years, studied philosophy and theology, and, when he had acquired what he thought was sufficient knowledge, sold his books and donated the money to the poor. He then began to visit hospitals and to walk in the public places, exhorting his hearers to turn to religion. He attracted a group of disciples and in 1548, with the aid of his confessor, he founded the Confraternity of the Most Holy Trinity to aid pilgrims and convalescents. In 1551 he finally became a priest and lived at San Girolamo at Rome. At the church he spent his mornings hearing confessions and his afternoons with groups of men and boys, meeting in his rooms for discussion or traveling about Rome urging them to enjoy themselves. His teaching, far from the asceticism of many religious teachers, attracted many people to religion, and Rome was for a time, and due directly to his efforts, pervaded with a religious sense such as it had not known for many years. He became (1564) rector of San Giovanni in addition to his other duties and gathered there a small group of priests to aid him. In 1575 this community was recognized by Pope Gregory XIII as the Congregation of the Oratory. He was canonized in 1622.

Néricaut (nă.rĕ.kô), Philippe. Original name of Destouches, Philippe.

Nerissa (nĕr'is). Character in Shakespeare's play The Merchant of Venice; the clever companion and attendant of Portia, who mimics her mistress with a good deal of adroitness.

Nerium Promontorium (nir'ium prom.ōn.tō'ri.ium). Latin name of Finisterra, Cape.

Nernst (nĕrnst), Walther Hermann. b. at Briesen (Wabrzeńno), in West Prussia, June 25, 1864; d. at Muskau, Germany, Nov. 18, 1941. German physical chemist. He won (1920) the Nobel prize in chemistry. He postulated (1901) the Nernst heat theorem or third law of thermodynamics (the entropy change in reactions at absolute zero between pure crystals is zero). In some cases this has allowed chemical equilibrium constants to be calculated from purely thermal data, and it has been of considerable industrial importance. He is known also as the inventor of an incandescent electric lamp which employs a bar of magnesia. He headed (1933 et seq.) the institute for physics at Berlin University.

Nero (nĕ'rō, nir'ō). [Full name, Nero Claudius Caesar Drusus Germanicus; original name, Lucius Domitius Ahenobarbus.] b. at Antium, Italy, Dec. 15, 37 A.D.; committed suicide near Rome, June 9, 68. Roman emperor (54-68); son of the consul Domitius Ahenobarbus and Agrippina (daughter of Germanicus Caesar). He was adopted by his stepfather, the Emperor Claudius, in 50, and in 53 married Octavia, the daughter of Claudius by Messalina. In 54 Claudius was poisoned by Agrippina, who caused her son to be proclaimed to the exclusion of Britannicus, the son of Claudius, who was Nero's ward. His former tutors, the philosopher Seneca and Burrus, commander of the pretorian guards, were placed at the head of the government, and the early years of his reign were marked, on the whole, by clemency and justice. He caused his rival, Britannicus, to be removed by poison in 55. In 59 he procured the assassination of his mother, of whose control he had become impatient. Burrus died in 62, whereupon Seneca retired from public life. Freed from the restraint of his former advisers, he gave free rein to a naturally tyrannical and cruel disposition. He divorced Octavia in order to marry Poppaea, who had been his mistress for several years, and shortly afterward put Octavia to death (62). Poppaea ultimately died from the effects of a kick administered by her brutal husband. Having been accused of kindling the fire which in 64 destroyed a large part of Rome, he sought to divert attention from himself by ordering a persecution of the Christians, whom he accused of having caused the conflagration. Traditionally Peter and Paul both died in this persecution. Legend states that Nero, having set the fire, watched it spread while playing music on his lyre; undoubtedly the legendary picture fits Nero's personality, but the legend has taken root in the tradition of Christians, to whom Nero was a monstrous personage. Among others, he put Seneca to death in 65 for his supposed complicity in a plot to replace Nero, and visited (67-68) Greece, where he competed, and was thoroughly victorious, for the prizes as a musician and charioteer in the religious festivals. He was overthrown by a revolt under Galba, and stabbed himself to death with the assistance of his secretary.

Nero, Caesar Tiberius Claudius. See Tiberius.

Nero, Gaius (or Caius) Claudius. Roman consul in 207 B.C. He marched against Hasdrubal, and (with Marcus Livius Salinator) defeated him in the decisive battle of the Metaurus in 207.

Nero (nă'rō), Monte. See Sila.

Nero Claudius Drusus (nĕ'rō, nir'ō klōd'ius drō'sus). See Drusus, Nero Claudius.

Nero Deep (nĕ'rō, nir'ō). Oceanic depression SE of Guam, in the W Pacific Ocean, which is one of the deepest soundings of this area (31,614 ft.).

Nero, Emperor of Rome. Tragedy by Nathaniel Lee, produced in 1675.

Nerone (nă.rō'nă). Unfinished opera by Arrigo Boito, first performed at La Scala, Milan, on April 30, 1924. The original version contains five acts, of which the last was not set by the composer.

Nerthus (nēr'thus). [Also, Hertha.] Ancient Germanic goddess of fertility and growth; the earth mother, mentioned by Tacitus as being worshiped by seven northerly Germanic tribes. The seat of her worship was an ocean island (which has not been identified).

Neruda (nă.rō'ru.dă), Pablo. [Pseudonym of Neftalí Reyes.] b. at Parral, Chile, July 12, 1904— . Chilean poet, considered by many to be one of the most gifted contemporary Latin-American writers. He was a consul after 1927, in Argentina, Mexico, France, and the Far East. His poems, which are permeated by despair, have been likened to those of Federico García Lorca. Author of Crepusculario (1923), Veinte poemas de amor y una canción desesperada (1924), Residencia en la tierra (1933), España en el corazón (1937), and others.

Neruda (nē.rō.dă), Wilma. (Original name, Wilhelmina Neruda; married name, Norman.) b. at Brünn (Brno), in Moravia, March 21, 1839; d. at Berlin, April 15, 1911. Violinist. She married (1864) Ludwig Norman, a Swedish musician, and in 1888 married Sir Charles Hallé.

Nerva (nēr'vă). Town in S Spain, in the province of Huelva, ab. 35 mi. NE of Huelva: mining and manufacturing town; copper mines, metalworking plants. 14,932 (1940).

Nerva (nēr'vă), Marcus Cocceius. b. c.30 A.D.; d. Jan. 27, 93. Roman emperor (96-98). He was consul with Vespasian in 71 and with Domitian in 90, and was raised to the throne after the latter was murdered. He was a mild and just ruler and accomplished reforms in laws, taxation, and expenditures. He was unable, however, to rule the Praetorian Guard and therefore adopted (97) Trajan as his successor.

Nerval (nēr'văl), Gérard de. [Pseudonym of Gérard Labrunie.] b. at Paris, May 22, 1808; committed suicide there, Jan. 25, 1855. French poet and translator. He was the author of Scènes de la vie orientale (1848-50), Contes et fables (1852), and Les Illuminés (1854), and translated Goethe's Faust. He is considered a forerunner of the symbolist movement.

Nervi (nēr've). Town in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Liguria, in the province of Genova, situated on the Gulf of Genoa ab. 6 mi. E of Genoa. It is popular, because of the mildness of its climate, as a winter resort. Pop. ab. 4,000.

Nervii (nēr'vī). Ancient warlike people of the Belgic Gauls, dwelling in the neighborhood of the Sambre River. They opposed the Romans but were defeated (57 B.C.) by Julius Caesar.

Nervo (nēr'vō), Amado. b. 1870; d. at Montevideo, Uruguay, 1919. Mexican modernist poet, essayist, and diplomat. An editor (1898-1903) of the Revista Moderna, he later served as secretary (1905-18) to the Mexican legation at Madrid and as minister (1919) to Argentina and Uruguay. Author of Poemas (1902), Serenidad (1914), and La Amada inmóvil (1939).

Nervo, Luis Padilla. See Padilla Nervo, Luis.

Nesbit (nēs'bit), E. Pen name of Bland, Edith Nesbit.

Nesbit, Nora. In W. Somerset Maugham's novel Of Human Bondage (1915), a writer, one of the women in love with the central character, Philip Carey.

Nesbitt (nēs'bit), William. Kate's husband, and father of Lydia, Mabel, Dora, and Janet, the hero of E. H. Young's novel William (1925).

Nesiotés (nes.iō'téz, nē.shé-). See the entry Critius and Nesiotés.

Nesle (nēl). Village in the department of Somme, France, ab. 28 mi. SE of Amiens. It was important in former times under the sieurs de Nesle. Pop. ab. 2,000.

Nesle, Blondel de. See Blondel.

Nesoi (nē'sō). Greek word for "islands" (plural of nesos): for geographical entries of this kind, see the distinguishing element of the name.

Nesquehoning (nes.kwē.hō'ning). [Formerly called "Hell's Kitchen."] Unincorporated community in E Pennsylvania, in Carbon County: anthracite coal mining.

Pop., including the adjoining community of New Columbus, 4,186 (1950).

Ness (nes), Loch. Lake in N Scotland, in Inverness-shire, ab. 6 mi. SW of Inverness. It lies in Glen More nan Albin and is drained by the river Ness into Moray Firth. Length, ab. 23 mi.; width, ab. 1 mi.

Nesselrode (nes'el.rōd; Russian, nvi.sil.rō'dyi), Count Karl Robert. b. at Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 14, 1780; d. at St. Petersburg, March 23, 1862. Russian statesman and diplomat. He directed the foreign policy of Russia (nearly all the time as minister of foreign affairs) in the period 1813-56. He conducted the negotiations of 1813-15, signed the peace of Paris in 1814, and was at the congresses of Vienna (1814-15), Aix-la-Chapelle (1818), Laibach (1821), and other meetings during the time that the "Metternich system" controlled European international politics. He was made chancellor in 1844, and concluded the peace of Paris in 1856 at the end of the Crimean War.

Nessler (nes'ler), Julius. b. 1827; d. 1905. German agricultural chemist. He introduced an important method for qualitatively determining ammonia (Nessler's reagent, an aqueous solution of K₂HgI₄).

Nessler, Victor E. b. at Baldeheim, in Alsace, Jan. 28, 1841; d. at Strasbourg, May 28, 1890. German composer and conductor. Among his operas are Dornröschen Braut (1868), Irmingard (1876), Der Rattenfänger von Hameln (1879), Der wilde Jäger (1881), Der Trompeter von Säckingen (1884), and Otto der Schütz (1886).

Nessus (nes'us). In Greek legend, a centaur slain by Hercules. He carried Deianira, Hercules's wife, across the river Evenus; but when he attempted to abduct her, Hercules shot him with a poisoned arrow. Dying, Nessus declared to Deianira that his bloody shirt would preserve her husband's love, and she took it with her. Later she sent the shirt to Hercules, hoping to speed his return home. Hercules donned it to offer sacrifice; the garment clung to his flesh, which was torn off with it. The messenger, Lichas, who brought the shirt, was cast by the raging hero into the sea, and Deianira hanged herself. Hercules built and ascended a pyre, had it set on fire, and was carried off from it to Olympus.

Nest of Nobles, A. Novel by Ivan Turgenev, published in England under the name of Liza.

Neston (nes'ton). [Former name, Neston and Parkgate (părk'găt).] Urban district, comprising several villages and parishes, in W England, in Cheshire, situated on the estuary of the river Dee, ab. 10 mi. NW of Chester, ab. 191 mi. NW of London by rail. 9,727 (1951).

Nestor (nes'tor). In Greek legend, a king of Pylus; son of Neleus. He was one of the heroes of the Argonaut expedition, and helped hunt the Calydonian boar. He was the wisest and oldest counselor of the Greeks before Troy.

Nestorians (nes.tō'ri.anz). Followers of Nestorius. They denied the hypostatic union of two natures in one person in Christ, holding that he possesses two distinct personalities, the union between which is merely moral. After the Council of Ephesus the Nestorians obtained possession of the theological schools of Edessa, Nisibis, and Seleucia, and were driven by imperial edicts into Persia, where they firmly established themselves. Later they spread to India, Bactria, and as far as China. The greater part of their churches perished (c1400) under the persecutions of Tamerlane, and in the 16th century a large part of the remainder joined the Roman Catholics. These latter are called Chaldeans.

Nestorians. Christian group in Iran and Turkey, the remnant of the once powerful Nestorian denomination. They number ab. 140,000, are subject to a patriarch (the patriarch of Urmia) and 18 bishops, recognize seven sacraments, administer communion in both kinds, and have many fasts.

Nestorius (nes.tō'ri.us). b. in Syria; d. in Egypt, 451. Patriarch of Constantinople (428-431). He was deposed (431) for heresy by the Council of Ephesus, specially called to decide the conflict between him and Cyril of Alexandria over the nature of Jesus.

Nestos (nes'tos). Greek name of the Mesta.

Nestus (nes'tus). Latin name of the Mesta.

Net (net). See Neith.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pîne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔ, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Netherlands (neth'ér.landz). [Sometimes called Holland; Dutch, Nederland, Nederlanden; German, Niederlande; French, Pays-Bas; official Dutch name, Koninkrijk der Nederlanden.] Country in NW Europe, bounded on the N, NW, and W by the North Sea, on the S by Belgium, and on the E by Germany. There are no natural land frontiers. It is a constitutional monarchy. Capitals, Amsterdam and The Hague; area, 13,025 sq. mi. excluding water, 15,765 sq. mi. including water; pop. 9,625,499 (1947), 10,200,280 (est. 1951).

Terrain and Climate. Geographically, the Netherlands consist of three parts: the dunes, the lowland, and the eastern uplands. The sand wall of the dunes runs along almost the entire W coast, from Hoek van Holland to Den Helder and is continued on the NW and N by the dunes which protect the outer edges of the Frisian islands. The lowland, or polderland, most of which is below sea level, lies behind the dunes and occupies most of the provinces of Zeeland, South Holland, and North Holland. The flat surface is drained by ditches toward pumping stations which pump the excess water into drainage canals, from which it may be pumped back at dry seasons. Dikes protect these lowlands from the waters of the IJsselmeer, and from the two branches of the Rhine River. The larger part of the former area of the Zuider Zee is now being added to this region, which in large part was inundated swampland in the Middle Ages. The polderland, the richest and most fertile part of the country, owes its continued existence and maintenance entirely to human effort. Most of the larger cities of the country are located here. The eastern uplands, varying in elevation from slightly above sea level to over 300 ft., consist of sand hills and moors, dissected by river valleys with clayey soils. This region contains beautiful scenery but is less fertile and was not densely populated until the 19th century. Artificial fertilizer and industrialization, particularly in the provinces of Overijssel and North Brabant, have changed the picture. The S part of the province of Limburg, stretching far S into the Maas (Meuse) valley, is an exceptionally hilly region, with elevations of over 1,000 ft. This area has important stone quarries and coal fields. The climate of the Netherlands is marine in character, with warm summers and cool winters. Rainfall occurs throughout the year, and there is some snowfall in winter.

Agriculture. Agriculture in the lowland differs from that in the uplands. In the lowland region, but also along the Frisian coast, permanent grass is the predominant feature, sustaining large herds of high quality cattle and creating one of the most highly developed dairy industries of the world; in Friesland the production of meat cattle exceeds that of milk cattle. The stretch of the lowland bordering on the dunes contains the centers of Dutch market gardening and horticulture, producing fruits, vegetables, flowers, and nursery stock; near Haarlem are the famous bulb fields. Early grapes and tomatoes are grown in hothouses. In Zeeland and Friesland, grain, sugar beets, and fodder are grown. Dairying is also the main feature of agricultural pursuits in the upland, but pig and poultry raising and the growing of grain, potatoes, and sugar beets are also important. This region has forests. Fishing, particularly for herring, is carried on on a large scale at various points of the coast. With all this, less than one fourth of the population is engaged in agriculture and related pursuits, making the Netherlands predominantly an industrial and commercial nation.

Industry. Among the industries, the manufacture of building materials, including brick, cement, glass, and ceramic products, occupies many workers, as do the food-stuff industries including creameries, cheese factories, canneries, and chocolate factories. Textile industries and the manufacture of steel, metal products, machinery, chemicals, and superphosphates have developed rapidly in recent decades. Three Dutch industrial concerns have reached world importance: the Philips concern producing radios, incandescent lamps, and other electrical equipment; the oleomargarine industry, particularly the van den Bergh group, the chief partners of the European oleomargarine cartel, and forming together with the British firm of Lever Brothers the Unilever combination which controls the oleomargarine business of the British Empire; and the petroleum industry, represented by the Royal Dutch Company, which in combination with the English Shell Company controls properties in all major oil-producing countries of the world. Many other industries are represented in the country, however, such as shipbuilding, paper manufacture, tobacco manufacture, woodworking, printing, and the clothing industry. Diamond cutting was a specialty at Amsterdam, but it fell from its former dominant position in the world market after World War I and has further declined since World War II. The Netherlands are poor in mineral fuels except coal, of which there are considerable deposits in the province of Limburg. Petroleum has been produced in Drenthe province since 1947 but production supplies only about one third of the national requirements. Salt is produced at Boekelo in Overijssel in large quantities.

Commerce. The Netherlands is among the leading commercial nations of the world. This is in part due to the development of Dutch seapower in the 16th and 17th centuries, the acquisition of the rich empire of the East Indies, and the considerable share of Dutch commerce in the trade with the Americas, and in part to the location of the Netherlands at the mouth of the Rhine River, which makes it the outlet for the industries of western Germany, Alsace, and Switzerland as well as the point of entry for the raw materials which are absorbed by them. The former function is more strongly concentrated at Amsterdam, the latter at Rotterdam. Rotterdam leads as far as total bulk of commerce is concerned, particularly since the construction of the New Waterway leading seaward from Rotterdam on one of the Rhine branches; the North Sea Canal and the Merwede Canal have aided Amsterdam. Inland traffic uses waterways in addition to highways and railways.

Early History. The Romans found, on the territory of the present Netherlands, Batavian and Frisian tribes. In the early Middle Ages, the region was conquered by the Franks. After the dissolution of the Frankish Empire, there arose a number of independent principalities among which the county of Holland developed most vigorously under the loose supervision of the German emperor. Count William III (1285-1337) was a son-in-law of one of the emperors, Louis IV (Louis the Bavarian); the heiress, Jacobaea of Bavaria, had to cede sovereignty to Duke Philip the Good of Burgundy in 1428. On account of the marriage of Mary, the daughter of Charles the Bold of Burgundy, with Maximilian I of Austria, the Burgundian territories fell to the house of Hapsburg; this was in the second half of the 15th century. While at this time the southern Netherlands, particularly Flanders and Brabant, were farther developed than the northern part which now forms the kingdom of the Netherlands, the northern part nonetheless had participated in the conspicuous economic advance which made the entire region the most prosperous part of Europe at the end of the Middle Ages. Many of the towns had been members of the Hanseatic League and enjoyed considerable self-government. Arts and crafts, even industrial activities, were outstanding.

Religious Wars. This development reached a peak at the period when Europe was rent by the religious cleavage. Most of the northern provinces of the Netherlands embraced Protestantism, while the Spanish Hapsburgs were the protagonists of the Roman Catholic Church. Besides, the love of independent institutions and the commercial inclinations of the Netherlands clashed with the authoritarianism and the crusading spirit of the Spaniards. In the reign of Charles V (in the Netherlands as in Spain, Charles I), himself a born Netherlander, the controversy was kept in a precarious balance. The storm broke when Charles's successor, Philip II, attempted to extirpate the new faith by force. The first phase of the bloody fighting lasted from 1566 (Compromise of Breda) to 1579, when the seven northern provinces (Holland, Zeeland, Utrecht, Geldern, Overijssel, Friesland, Groningen) combined in the Union of Utrecht; on July 26, 1581, they severed their ties with Spain and the house of Hapsburg. The Republic of the United Netherlands was born. The second phase lasted from 1581 to 1648 and is filled with the struggle of the new country under the leadership of William of Orange and Maurice of Nassau against Spain. The southern provinces remained under Spanish rule and with the Roman Catholic faith; the northern provinces were recognized in the armistice of 1609. Finally, the peace of Westphalia in 1648 brought international recognition of the new and meanwhile territorially enlarged sovereignty. It consisted now of the original Protestant provinces, represented by the States-General, and the attached Roman Catholic territories of Drenthe, Brabant, and Flanders.

17th-18th Centuries. In this period the Netherlands became the richest country of the world. The Dutch East India Company was founded in 1602, the West India Company in 1621. A colonial empire, with many trading stations, was acquired. The Dutch merchant fleet was the largest in Europe; the Bank of Amsterdam held more deposits in gold and silver than all other banking institutions of the time combined. Religious and political tolerance attracted Protestants from Antwerp and other adjacent territories of the Spanish Netherlands and of Germany, Jews from Spain and Portugal and later from central Europe, and Huguenots from France. The jurist Hugo Grotius formulated new ideas about international law; the philosopher Baruch Spinoza stood for freedom of thought; Simon Stevin, Christian Huygens, and others spearheaded the development of the natural sciences; medical and linguistic studies flourished in spite of the turn toward legalism and dogmatism which was taken at the same time by Dutch Calvinism. Dutch painting was at its height, as the names of Frans Hals, Rembrandt, Steen, Hooch, Ostade, Metsu, and Terborgh testify; it was in the Netherlands that the modern spirit began to manifest itself in the new art of landscape painting as practiced by van Goyen, van de Velde, Cuyt, Hobbema, and the Ruysdaels. At the same time, the 17th and the beginning of the 18th century were filled with the struggle for supremacy at sea between the Netherlands and the new England which emerged with Oliver Cromwell. Large parts of the overseas possessions and trade were lost. Soon the Netherlands found themselves in alliance with England and other European countries as they were confronted with the expansionism of France under Louis XIV; in 1672 the country was saved only by the opening of the dikes. In the peace treaties of Nijmegen (1678), Rijswijk (1697), and Utrecht (1713) the country succeeded in maintaining its independence, but the political power had shifted to France and the commercial supremacy was lost to England. In 1794-95 the armies of the newly founded French republic occupied the country, which they held until 1814, first under the name of the Batavian Republic, then as part of the French empire; in the same period the Cape Province and Ceylon were occupied by England.

19th-20th Centuries. The liquidation of the Napoleonic epoch added to the Netherlands, through the Peace of Paris, the Protocol of London, and the decisions taken at the Congress of Vienna (1814-15), those territories which had been formerly under Hapsburg rule and also the territory of the former bishopric of Liège and the duchy of Luxembourg, but religious as well as linguistic controversies led to the revolt of 1830 which resulted in the independence of Belgium, definitely recognized on Feb. 4, 1839. The second half of the 19th and the first decades of the 20th century brought to the Netherlands a new period of prosperity. Important waterways and harbor installations were either newly created or thoroughly modernized; shipping and industry developed; especially Rotterdam's growth as the principal seaport for the gigantic industries of the Rhine and Ruhr districts in Germany was phenomenal. The winning of new land from the sea was continued on a larger scale than ever before: the 19th century saw the creation of the Haarlemmer Polder, the 20th century the erection of the North Holland-Wieringen barrage and the creation of four huge polders, together comprising more than 475,000 acres of land in the area of the former Zuider Zee.

World War II. The Netherlands managed to remain neutral in World War I; it was overrun by the German armies in five days at the beginning of World War II (May, 1940). The country remained under German occupation until 1945. The damage done by opening the dikes, ground fighting, aerial bombing, administratively ordered destruction, dismantling and looting of property was tremendous. The loss of heavy machinery was 45 percent, of electrical equipment 60 percent, of chemical plants 60 percent, of motor vehicle manufacturing 65 percent, of textile manufacturing 85 percent, of pharmaceutical plants 90 percent, and of railway rolling stock and equipment 60 percent. The entire war damage was estimated by experts as amounting to almost six billion dollars. The equipment of the Tokker Aircraft works, of the Philips electrical and radio equipment factories, of most of the textile factories in the Twente district, and of numerous other industries was carried away to Germany. Most of the bridges and harbor installations were destroyed. Many Netherlandsers were imprisoned or deported. The process of reconstruction proceeds slowly. A Dutch government-in-exile was carried on at London during the war years. The independence of Indonesia was recognized in 1949.

Government. The first Dutch constitution was promulgated in 1814 but has been frequently revised and amended since. The central executive power rests with the Crown; the legislative power is vested in the Crown, and in parliament, the latter, called the States-General, consisting of an upper chamber, elected by the members of the provincial states, and a lower chamber the deputies of which are elected directly. The electoral system is based on universal suffrage of men and women and proportional representation. The government as well as the lower chamber may introduce new bills which the upper chamber can only approve or reject. The sovereign has the power to dissolve both chambers and call for new elections. The provinces have their own representative bodies. The provinces are divided into municipalities or communes, which also have self-government under municipal councils.

Culture. The birthrate exceeds the deathrate by far, so that the country is faced with overpopulation and the need for emigration outlets. The increase of the Roman Catholic population has been more rapid than that of the Protestants, with the result that only little more than half of the total population are now of the Protestant faith. The Dutch Reformed Church and the Roman Catholic Church are about equally strong. The remainder are mainly other Protestant sects. There are about 20,000 Jansenists and about 20,000 Jews; more than 100,000 Dutch Jews perished during the Nazi period. However, over a million Netherlandsers profess "no religion." There is one cardinal-archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church and four bishops. The country has four public universities (Leiden, Utrecht, Groningen, Amsterdam), two voluntary universities (Calvinist University at Amsterdam and Roman Catholic University at Nijmegen). Elementary schools are on a high level. Orderliness and neatness, sometimes amounting to pedantic stubbornness, have long been considered the main traits characterizing the culture of the Netherlands, but the methodical persistence which enabled the Netherlands not only to maintain themselves against the encroachments of the sea but even to conquer large stretches of land from the sea, have won the admiration of other peoples.

Netherlands, Austrian. Name given to the Spanish Netherlands after their cession to Austria in 1713-14. There was an unsuccessful revolt in 1789-90. The provinces were conquered by France in 1794, and ceded to France in 1797.

Netherlands, Spanish. Name given to the provinces (nearly corresponding to the present Belgium) retained by Spain in the Dutch war of liberation. They were ceded to Austria in 1713-14.

Netherlands Antilles (an.til'ēz). See Curaçao, former Dutch colony.

Netherlands Guinea (gē.ā'nā). See Surinam.

Netherlands New Guinea (gin'f). [Also: Dutch New Guinea; Dutch, Nederlandsche Nieuw-Guinea.] Overseas territory of the Netherlands, comprising the W half of the island of New Guinea and adjacent islands. The N and C parts of the territory are generally mountainous or hilly, with coastal lowlands; the high mountains of the Nassau Range (part of the Snow Mountains) are snow-covered, culminating in Mount Carstensz (16,503 ft.). The S part of the territory is a vast swampy lowland. The climate is very hot and humid in the lowlands; there is a winter dry season in the S (June-October). Nearly all of the interior of the country is now inaccessible and undeveloped; the chief trade centers and fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lōte, pūll; ƒ, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; settlements lie along the coast. There is an oil field in the NW, near Sorong, whence crude petroleum is exported (259,000 metric tons in 1950); other exports include copra, crocodile hides, gum, and nutmeg. There are fisheries along the coast. The native inhabitants are Papuans, living in a Stone Age culture, excepting where they have contact with the outside world (coastal areas). The natives are superstitious and organized in small tribal units. Nearly all transport is by water; there are only ab. 300 mi. of passable road. First settled in the 19th century by traders, the area was claimed by the Netherlands in 1828; it was a part of the Dutch East Indies; since the independence of Indonesia it has been a separately administered territory. During World War II the Japanese invaded the area in 1942 and established air and naval bases; U.S. and Allied forces attacked and occupied the principal installations at Hollandia and other points, in 1944. Capital, Hollandia; area, ab. 159,300 sq. mi.; pop. 1,000,000 (est. 1950), including: Europeans, 5,500; Indonesians, 10,500; natives under administration, 300,000 (est. 1950).

Netherlands Timor (tê-môr'). See under Timor.

Nethersole (nê'th'ér-sôl). Olga. b. at London, 1870; d. Jan. 9, 1951. English actress, theater manager, and public health official. She made her debut at London in 1888. She played in Camille, Carmen, Romeo and Juliet, and other productions at New York, and starred in Clyde Fitch's Sapho, closed (1900) at New York by the police and later reopened. She was known also for the part of Paula in A. W. Pinero's Second Mrs. Tanqueray, and created the title role in Maurice Maeterlinck's Mary Magdalene (1910) at New York. She was manager of Her Majesty's Theatre (1898), Adelphi Theatre (1902), and Shaftesbury Theatre (1904). She joined (1916) the British Red Cross, and founded (1917) the People's League of Health. She served as a member (1941 et seq.) of the consultative council of the Ministry of Food.

Néthou (nê-tô). Pic de. French name of Aneto, Pico de. Netley (nê'tl). Ecclesiastical district and village in S England, in Southampton county, ab. 3 mi. SE of Southampton city, ab. 82 mi. SW of London by rail. It is noted for its military hospital and ruined abbey.

Neto (nê'tô). Henrique Maximiano Coelho. See Coelho Neto, Henrique (Maximiano).

Netscher (nêch'ér), Kaspar (or Caspar). b. at Heidelberg, Germany, 1639; d. at The Hague, Netherlands, Jan. 15, 1684. Dutch genre and portrait painter, a pupil of Koster and Gerard Terborch. He lived at The Hague from the time of his marriage in 1659.

Nets to Catch the Wind. Volume of poems by Elinor Wylie, published in 1921.

Nettement (nê'tmân). Alfred François. b. at Paris, July 22, 1805; d. there, Nov. 15, 1869. French historian and publicist.

Nettleship (nê'tl'ship). Henry. b. in Northamptonshire, England, May 5, 1839; d. at Oxford, England, July 10, 1893. English educator and writer; brother of Richard Lewis Nettleship. He was assistant master at Harrow from 1868 to 1873 and classical lecturer (1873) at Christ Church, Oxford. He was elected professor of Latin literature at Oxford in 1878.

Nettleship, Richard Lewis. b. Dec. 17, 1846; d. in Switzerland, Aug. 25, 1892. English educator, a fellow and classical tutor of Balliol College, Oxford; brother of Henry Nettleship. He was well known as an athlete, and died from exposure to a storm encountered while climbing Mont Blanc.

Nettleton (nê'tl-ŧon). Alfred Bayard. b. in Berlin township, Ohio, Nov. 14, 1838; d. Aug. 10, 1911. American soldier, journalist, and financier. He served in the Civil War, rising from private to the rank of brevet brigadier general. His work in journalism led him to his association with the financier Jay Cooke, for whom he performed publicity work in connection with the Northern Pacific Railroad. He became (1885) coproprietor of the Daily Minnesota Tribune and served (1890 et seq.) as assistant secretary of the U.S. Treasury and director of the U.S. Immigration Bureau.

Nettleton, Walter. b. at New Haven, Conn., June 19, 1861; d. there, July 28, 1936. American landscape painter, known for his scenes of Brittany and New England. He became an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1905. Among his principal works are December Sunshine (New Haven, Conn.), The Beloved Physician (Stockbridge, Mass.), and Walddämmerung (Poughkeepsie, N.Y.).

Nettuno (nê't-tô'nô). Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Latium, in the province of Roma, adjoining Anzio, situated on the Tyrrhenian Sea ab. 31 mi. S of Rome; seaside resort; stone quarries; fortress of the 15th century. A treaty between Italy and Yugoslavia was signed here in 1925. In World War II, it was the scene of fighting in connection with the operations around the Anzio beachhead; it was occupied by American forces Jan. 22, 1944. Pop. of commune, 17,134 (1936); of town, 8,598 (1936).

Netum (nê'tum). Ancient name of Noto, Italy.

Netzahualcoyotl (nê't.sâ.wâl.kô.yô'tl) or Nezahualcoyotl (nêz.â-). b. c.1403; d. c.1470. Indian chief of Texcoco, Mexico; son of Itxlihochochtli. In his youth the chieftainship was overthrown and his father killed by the Tepanecs. After many remarkable adventures Netzahualcoyotl, aided by the Mexicans and others, recovered (1429) his place in 1430, killing Maxtla, the usurping chief. He restored Texcoco to a prominent position among the Mexican states and instituted an important religious revival about the supreme god, Tloque Nahuaque.

Netze (nê'tse). German name of the Noteé.

Neuber (nô'ber), Karoline. [Called "Die Neuberin"]

(dê nô'ber.in); maiden name, Weissenborn.] b. at Reichenbach, Germany, March 9, 1697; d. Dec. 30, 1760. German actress, known for her collaboration with J. C. Gottsched in his reform of the German drama. As manager of a troupe (1725 et seq.) at Leipzig she is considered by many to have contributed as much to this reform as Gottsched. After they disagreed and separated (1743), neither had any further considerable success. Frau Neuber presented Lessing's first play, Der junge Gelehrte, in 1748.

Neuberg (nô'berk), Carl Alexander. b. at Hanover, Germany, July 29, 1877—. German biochemist. He was professor of biochemistry and experimental therapy (1919-38) at the Agricultural Academy of Berlin, and director (1913-38) of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Biochemistry at Berlin-Dahlem. His studies in biochemistry and in the experimental therapy of cancer are widely known. He devised a method for the preparation of osazone (1902) and a test for levulose (1901).

Neubeuthen (nô'boi'ten). German name of Nowy Bytom.

Neubrandenburg (nô'brân'den.bûrk). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Mecklenburg, situated on the Tollensesee, ab. 72 mi. N of Berlin. It is a resort, and has a trade in horses, cattle, and wool. There are manufactures of agricultural machinery, chemicals, and building materials. It is architecturally interesting for its well-preserved medieval town walls (14th century), and its 15th-century town gates in the brick-Gothic style. Neubrandenburg received town privileges in 1248, and passed to Mecklenburg in 1292. A concentration camp was maintained here during World War II. 20,446 (1946).

Neuburg (nô'burk). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, situated on the Danube River ab. 28 mi. NE of Augsburg. There are chalk works, lumber mills, and textile and other manufactures. Neuburg belonged to the house of Wittelsbach from the early Middle Ages, became in 1505 a part of Pfalz-Neuburg, and was reunited with Bavaria proper in 1799. Pop. 13,966 (1951).

Neuburger (nô'bür.gér), Max. b. at Vienna, Dec. 8, 1868—. Austrian neurologist and historian of medicine. He served (1917-38) as professor of the history of medicine at Vienna, where he founded the Institute of the History of Medicine, which included an exemplary museum. He went (1939) as a refugee to London, where he was a staff member of the Wellcome Historical Medical Museum until 1948. Author of Die historische Entwicklung der experimentellen Gehirn- und Rückenmarkspathologie von Flourens (1897), Die Anschauungen über den Mechanismus der spezifischen Ernährung (1900), Schiller's Beziehungen zur Medizin (1905), Geschichte der Medizin (1906-11; Eng. trans., History of Medicine, 1910-25), Entwicklung der Medizin in Österreich (1918), Die Medizin in Flavius Josephus (1919), Das alte medizinische Wien (1921), Die Wiener medizinische Schule im Vormärz (1921), Hermann Nothnagel (1922), and Die Lehre von der Heilkraft der Natur im Wandel der Zeiten (1926). He was coeditor of the Handbuch der Geschichte der Medizin (1902-05) and Meister der Heilkunde (1921-24).

Neuchâtel (nê.shâ.têl). [Former name, Neuchâtel; German, Neuenburg.] Canton of Switzerland, bounded by Bern on the NE, France on the NW, Vaud on the S, and the Lake of Neuchâtel (separating it from Fribourg and Vaud) on the SE, and is traversed by the Jura Mountains. It is noted for the manufacture of watches and lace, and related products. It sends six members to the Swiss national council. The prevailing language is French; the prevailing religion, Protestant. Neuchâtel was ceded to Prussia in 1707, and was given to Napoleon's marshal L. A. Berthier as a principality in 1806. It became in 1815 a canton of the Swiss Confederation (but remained at the same time a principality under the suzerainty of Prussia; it revolted from Prussia in 1848). Capital, Neuchâtel; area, 312 sq. mi.; pop. 128,152 (1951).

Neuchâtel. City in W Switzerland, the capital of the canton of Neuchâtel, situated on the Lake of Neuchâtel. It has a university, a castle, and an art museum. The Collegiate Church, from the 13th century, was restored in the period 1867-75. There are various industries, particularly lace and watch manufactures. 23,799 (1941).

Neuchâtel, Lake of. [French, Lac de Neuchâtel; German, Neuenburgersee; Latin, Lacus Eburodunensis.] Lake in W Switzerland, bordering on the cantons of Neuchâtel, Bern, Fribourg, and Vaud. It receives the Orbe River and has its outlet by the Thièle (Zihl) into the Aare (and thence to the Rhine). Elevation, ab. 1,417 ft.; length, ab. 25 mi.; greatest breadth, ab. 6 mi.; greatest known depth, ab. 502 ft.; area, ab. 83 sq. mi.

Neudeck or Neudek (noi'dêk). German name of Nejdek. Neudorf (noi'dôrf). A German name of Spisská Nová Ves.

Neue Freie Volksbühne (noi'ê frî'ê folks'bû'ne). See under Volksbühne.

Neuenahr (noi'ên.âr). [Also, Bad Neuenahr.] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, SW of Cologne; a health resort. There are ruins of a medieval castle. 5,322 (1947).

Neuenburg (noi'ên.bûrk). German name of Neuchâtel. Neuenburgersee (noi'ên.bûr.gêr.zâ'). German name of Neuchâtel, Lake of.

Neuendorff (noi'ên.dôrf). Adol. b. at Hamburg, Germany, June 13, 1843; d. at New York, Dec. 4, 1897. American composer. He was a pianist and violinist, and conducted various orchestras in the U.S., including those of the New York Philharmonic (1878) and the Metropolitan Opera (1897). He wrote several comic operas, two symphonies, cantatas, overtures, songs, and others.

Neuenkirchen (noi'ên.kir.chên). See Neunkirchen. Neuenstadt (noi'ên.shât). German name of Neuveville.

Neue Rundschau (noi'ê rint'shou). Die. German magazine, appearing originally at Berlin, and representing modern tendencies in literature, art, and science; now published at Amsterdam. It was founded by Otto Brahm in 1889 as a weekly under the name Freie Bühne für modernes Leben, but changed its title in 1893 to Neue Deutsche Rundschau, and in 1904 to Neue Rundschau.

Neufchâteau (nê.shâ.tô). Town in E France, in the department of Vosges, at the junction of the Mouzon and Meuse rivers, ab. 25 mi. SW of Nancy. It manufactures furniture. The Church of Saint-Christophe dates from the 13th-15th centuries, the Hôtel de Ville (town hall) from 1597. Pop. 4,116 (1946).

Neufchâteau, François de. See François, Nicolas Louis.

Neufchâtel (nê.shâ.têl). [Also, Neufchâtel-en-Bray (-ân.brâ).] Town in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, situated on the Bêthune River ab. 25 mi. NE of Rouen. It is the chief center of an agricultural region which is mainly reputed for its cheeses. The central part of the town, including the Church of Notre-Dame, was severely damaged in World War II. 3,777 (1946).

Neuchâtel. Former name of Neuchâtel.

Neufeld (noi'fêlt), Fred (or Ferdinand). b. at Neuteich (now Nowy Staw), in West Prussia, Feb. 17, 1869—. German bacteriologist. He described and named bacteriotropins (1904) and introduced the pneumococcus coagulation test and reaction called after him.

Neufville (nê.vêl), François de. See Villeroi, Duc de.

Neufville, Nicolas de. See Villeroi, Seigneur de.

Neugebauer (noi'gê.bou.êr), Otto. b. at Innsbruck, Austria, May 26, 1899—. American archaeological mathematician, the leading authority on the history of Babylonian mathematics. He taught at Göttingen (1930-34) and Copenhagen (1934-38) before he emigrated to the U.S., where he taught at Brown University (1939 et seq.). He was one of the leaders in deciphering Babylonian cuneiform tablets, and his results have been published in a number of important books, including Über vorgriechische Mathematik (1929), and Mathematical Cuneiform Texts (with A. Sachs, 1945).

Neugersdorf (noi'gêr.dôrf). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, situated near the border of Czechoslovakia, ab. 35 mi. SE of Dresden. It has cotton textile and metal industries. 12,526 (1946).

Neuhaldensleben (nei.hâl'dens.lä.ben). Town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Ohre River ab. 14 mi. NW of Magdeburg. It has sugar refineries, canneries, and manufactures of gloves and of pottery. The population increased in the period 1939-46 by 21.6 percent. 22,010 (1946).

Neu Hannover (noi.hä.nô'vêr). Former German name of Lavangai.

Neuhaus (noi'hous). German name of Jindřichův Hradec.

Neuhäusel (noi'hô'zêl). German name of Nové Zámky. Neuhausen am Rheinfal (noi'hou.zênâm.rîn'fâl). [Also, Neuhausen.] Village in N Switzerland, in the canton of Schaffhausen, on the right bank of the Rhine River. Has an arms and a railroad-car factory; center of wine-growing region. 7,402 (1941).

Neuhof (noi'hôf), Baron Theodor Stephen von. [Also, Theodore I (of Corsica).] b. at Metz (now in France), c1686; d. at London, Dec. 11, 1756. German adventurer. He aided the Corsicans (1735-36) with money and weapons obtained from Turkey and the bey of Tunis, was crowned king of Corsica (as Theodore I) in 1736, and was driven out by the Genoese in 1738. An attempt to reestablish his power in 1743 failed.

Neuilly (nê.yê), Foulques (or Fulc) de. See Foulques de Neuilly.

Neuilly, Treaty of. Treaty signed at Neuilly-sur-Seine, near Paris, which formally ended hostilities between Bulgaria and the Allied powers in World War I. Signed on Nov. 27, 1919, its chief provisions were: (1) Yugoslavia received almost all of Macedonia and some land in Bulgaria proper; (2) Greece was given Western Thrace; (3) Rumania was awarded the Dobruja area; (4) a Bulgarian economic outlet was promised on the Aegean Sea; (5) the Bulgarian army was limited to 20,000 men and Bulgaria was to pay an indemnity of 450 million dollars over a period of 37 years.

Neuilly-Plaisance (nê.yê.plê.zâns). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, situated on the border of the department of Seine, E of Paris. It is an individual town belonging to the metropolitan region of Paris; known for manufactures of electrical equipment and machinery for various uses. 11,812 (1946).

Neuilly-sur-Marne (nê.yê.sûr.mâr). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, situated on the Marne River E of Paris. It belongs to metropolitan region of Paris, and has metalworking plants and other factories. 10,541 (1946).

Neuilly-sur-Seine (nê.yê.sûr.sên). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, a western suburb of Paris, immediately outside the W city limits, E of the Seine River and N of the Bois de Boulogne. It was once a favorite residence of the Orléans family; it is now important for the manufacture of automobiles. 60,172 (1946).

Neu-Isenburg (noi'z'en.bûrk). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hesse, American Zone, formerly in the province of Starkenburg, Hesse, ab. 5 mi. S of Frankfurt on the Main. It has canneries, and ceramics, leather, and other manufactures. 17,112 (1950).

Neukomm (noi'kom), Sigismund von. b. at Salzburg, Austria, July 10, 1778; d. at Paris, April 3, 1858. Austrian composer. He was a pupil of Michael and Joseph Haydn, and an all but legally adopted son of the latter. After the death of Haydn he went to Paris, and became one of a brilliant set of musicians there. He was intimate with Talleyrand, and accompanied him later to the Congress of Vienna. In 1816 he went to South America, and was musical director at the court of Dom Pedro I at Rio de Janeiro till 1821, when he returned with Dom Pedro to Europe and rejoined Talleyrand. He went to England in 1829, and lived partly there and partly in France until his death. He is said to have left over 1,000 compositions, mostly church music.

Neu-Lauenburg (noi'lou'en.bürk). Former German name of the Duke of York Islands.

Neumann (noi'män), Alfred. b. at Lautenburg, Germany, Oct. 15, 1895; d. at Lugano, Switzerland, Oct. 3, 1952. German writer. His first novel, Der Teufel (The Devil, 1926), based on France at the time of Louis XI, won the Kleist prize. This was followed by other historical novels (Rebellen, 1927; Guerra, 1928; Königin Christine von Schweden, 1932). His play Der Patriot (1926) had some success in its day. His protest against Nazi tyranny, which caused him to flee to the U.S., is found in Neuer Caesar (1934) and Kaiserreich (1936).

Neumann, Angelo. b. at Vienna, Aug. 18, 1838; d. at Prague, Dec. 20, 1910. Austrian operatic singer and manager. He made his concert debut (1859) as tenor, sang (1862-76) with the court opera at Vienna, and managed the Leipzig opera (1876-82), the Bremen opera (1882-85), and the Prague German opera (1885 et seq.).

Neumann, Carl. b. at Mannheim, Germany, July 1, 1860; d. at Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, Oct. 9, 1934. German historian in the fields of art and culture, notable for his Byzantine studies. He served as professor (1903 et seq.) at the universities of Göttingen, Kiel, and Heidelberg. Author of Die Weltstellung des byzantinischen Reichs vor den Kreuzzügen (The World Position of the Byzantine Empire Prior to the Crusades, 1894), Rembrandt (1902), and Byzantinische Kultur und Renaissance Kultur (Byzantine Culture and Renaissance Culture, 1903).

Neumann, Carl Gottfried. b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, May 7, 1832; d. at Leipzig, Germany, March 27, 1925. German mathematician, noted in particular for his work on electrodynamics and Abelian functions.

Neumann, Ernst Richard. b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, Nov. 9, 1875—. German mathematician; nephew of Carl Gottfried Neumann. Author of books on the potential theory and of Vorlesungen zur Einführung in die Relativitätstheorie (Introductory Lectures on the Principle of Relativity, 1922).

Neumann, Heinrich. b. at Héthárs, Hungary, June 10, 1873; d. at New York, Nov. 5, 1939. Austrian surgeon, an ear, nose and throat specialist. He is known for his method of opening the labyrinth of the ear (called Neumann's operation).

Neumann, Isidor von. b. at Misslitz, in Moravia, March 2, 1832; d. at Vöslau, near Vienna, Aug. 31, 1906. Austrian dermatologist. He described (1875) a rare disease of the skin, porokeratosis, and also described (1886) the pemphigus vegetans, called after him.

Neumann, John Nepomucene. b. at Prachatitz (Prachatitz), in Bohemia, March 28, 1811; d. Jan. 5, 1860. American Roman Catholic bishop. He was consecrated (1852) bishop of Philadelphia.

Neumann, John Von. See Von Neumann, John.

Neumann, Karl Eugen. b. at Vienna, Oct. 18, 1865; d. there, Oct. 18, 1915. Austrian translator of Buddhist writings; son of Angelo Neumann. His works included Die Lieder der Mönche und Nonnen Gotama Buddha (Songs of the Monks and Nuns of Gautama Buddha, 1899) and Die letzten Tage Gotama Buddha (The Last Days of Gautama Buddha, 1911).

Neumann, Karl Friedrich. [Original surname, Bamberger.] b. at Reichmannsdorf, near Bamberg, Bavaria, Germany, Dec. 28, 1798; d. at Berlin, March 17, 1870. German Orientalist and historian. He traveled in the Orient, and made an extensive collection of Chinese books

(which are now at Munich). From 1833 to 1852 he was professor of Armenian and Chinese at Munich, losing his position as a consequence of his sympathy with the philosophy of revolution then prevalent in Europe. He translated from Armenian and Chinese, and published a history of the British empire in Asia (1857), of the U.S. (1863-66), and other works.

Neumann, Robert. b. at Vienna, May 22, 1897—. Austrian prose writer. Many of his works, including Sinfut (1929; Eng. trans., Flood, 1930), Struensee (Eng. trans., The Queen's Doctor, 1936), Passion (1932), Ship in the Night (1932), Zaharoff (1935), and others, have been translated into English.

Neumark (noi'märk), Georg. b. 1621; d. at Weimar, Germany, July 8, 1681. German poet and musician. He kept the collection of sacred and secular songs known as Musikalisch-poetischer Lustwald (1657). He wrote the words to Wer nur den lieben Gott lässt walten.

Neumarkt (noi'märkt). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Upper Palatinate, ab. 21 mi. SE of Nuremberg. It has metal, chemical, paper, lumber, and knitwear industries, and a cement works. There are churches in the Romanesque and Gothic styles, dating from the 15th century; the Rathaus (town hall) dates from the 14th century; the castle of the former dukes and palaces of Neumarkt dates from the 16th century. 12,177 (1950).

Neumayer (noi'mi'er), Georg von. b. at Kirchheimbolanden, Bavaria, Germany, June 21, 1826; d. May 24, 1909. German geophysicist. He attended the University of Munich, and from 1857 to 1864 was in Australia, where he established the Flagstaff geophysical observatory at Melbourne. He promoted several expeditions to the south polar regions. He served as director (1876-1903) of the Marine Observatory at Hamburg.

Neu Mecklenburg (noi mek'len.bürk). See New Ireland.

Neumünster (noi'mün.ster). [Also, Neumünster in Holstein (in hol'shtin); former name, Wippendorf.] City in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, on the Schwale River ab. 36 mi. N of Hamburg. A railroad junction, it has important manufactures of woolen cloth, knitwear, shoes, leather goods, paper, machinery, and chemicals. There are also canneries, and hog and cattle markets. Many East German refugees settled here after World War II; the population increased in the period 1939-46 by 28.1 percent. The center of the town suffered some damage during the war. 66,185 (1946), 73,481 (1950).

Neunkirchen (noi'n'kir.chen). [Also, Neuenkirchen.] Town in E Austria, in the province of Lower Austria, a station on the Südbahn railroad line, situated on the Schwarza River ab. 36 mi. SW of Vienna. It has an important iron foundry, a screw factory, a cotton mill, paper factories, and printing establishments. 9,700 (1946).

Neunkirchen. Town in the Saar territory, NE of Saarbrücken. It has coal mines, iron, steel, and aluminum works, machine factories, and distilleries. 39,351 (1939).

Neuquén (nä.o.kän'). Territory in SW Argentina, lying E of Chile. Most of the surface is mountainous, with livestock and agricultural products raised in the fertile valleys. Capital, Neuquén; area, 36,429 sq. mi. pop.; 86,836 (1947).

Neuquén. Town in W Argentina, capital of Neuquén territory, ab. 600 mi. SW of Buenos Aires. 7,498 (1947).

Neuquén River. [Also, Diamante River.] River in W Argentina, flowing SE to the Limay River. Length, ab. 310 mi.

Neurath (noi'rät), Baron Konstantin von. b. at Klein-Glatbach, Germany, Feb. 2, 1873—. German diplomat and administrator. He was ambassador to Turkey (1914), minister to Denmark (1919), and ambassador to Italy (1922) and Great Britain (1930). Minister of foreign affairs in von Papen's cabinet (1932), he retained this office under Hitler until 1938, when he was made reichsprotektor of Bohemia and Moravia, Joachim von Ribbentrop succeeding him. Hitler considered him too lenient in Czechoslovakia and replaced him (1941) with Reinhard Heydrich. He was sentenced (1946) to 15 years' imprisonment by the international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg.

Neureuther (noi'roiter), Eugen Napoleon. b. at Munich, Germany, Jan. 15, 1806; d. there, March 23, 1882. German historical painter and illustrator. He assisted in the decorations of the Glyptothek and the Königsbau at Munich, but is specially noted as an illustrator of German ballads, legends, and romances, particularly those of Goethe.

Neurin (noi'rín). See Aneurin.

Neurode (noi'ró'dé). German name of Nowa Ruda.

Neuruppin (noi.rú.pén'). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, situated on the Ruppiner Lake, ab. 38 mi. NW of Berlin. It is a vacation resort, and has also lumber mills, printing establishments, and chemical, leather, and textile industries. Medieval town walls, a Gothic church of the 13th century, and numerous houses of the 18th century are preserved. Pop. 26,040 (1946).

Neusalz (noi'záłts). German name of Nowa Sól.

Neu-Sandez (noi.zín'dets). German name of Nowy Sącz.

Neusatz (noi'záts). German name of Novi Sad.

Neuse (nús). River in North Carolina which flows to Pamlico Sound by a broad estuary ab. 30 mi. E of New Bern. Length, ab. 260 mi.

Neusiedler Lake (noi'zéd.lér). [German, Neusiedlersee (noi'zéd.lér.zé'w); Hungarian, Fertő tó.] Shallow lake in NW Hungary and E Austria, ab. 30 mi. SE of Vienna. It communicates with the Rába River by a swamp. Its depth has varied from time to time; it was dry in 1865, and has recently been receding. It has been proposed to drain it by a canal. Length, ab. 23 mi.; area, ab. 125 sq. mi. under average conditions.

Neusohl (noi'zól). German name of Banská Bystrica.

Neuss (nois). [Ancient name, Novesium.] City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Ert Canal (with ample port facilities) near the Rhine River, ab. 4 mi. SW of Düsseldorf. It has oil and flour mills, distilleries, machine and tool factories, and textile, paper, chemical, and furniture factories. The cathedral, a Romanesque building of the 13th century, was damaged during World War II. The Rathaus (town hall) and the Zeughaus (arsenal), both Renaissance structures of the 17th century, as well as other monuments, were destroyed. Originally a Celtic and a Roman settlement, Neuss became the seat of a Benedictine monastery in the 9th century; in 1074 it came under the sovereignty of the archbishopric of Cologne. The city was vainly besieged by Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, in 1474, and conquered by Alessandro Farnese of Parma in 1586. In World War II, Allied troops entered it on March 2, 1945. Pop. 63,478 (1950).

Neustadt (noi'shtát). [Also, Neustadt im Schwarzwald (im shvárts'vált).] Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Baden, French Zone, formerly in the free state of Baden, situated in the Black Forest, ab. 18 mi. E of Freiburg im Breisgau; summer and winter resort. It has lumber mills, and paper, watch, and toy manufactures. 5,131 (1946).

Neustadt. Former town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia. It is now a northern part of Magdeburg.

Neustadt. [Also, Neustadt in Holstein (in hol'shtín).] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, situated on the Baltic Sea ab. 18 mi. NE of Lübeck. It has a port, handling a considerable grain trade. There are also lumber mills and cement works. 15,102 (1950).

Neustadt. German name of Villeneuve; also of Wejherowo.

Neustadt an der Aisch (än dér ish). [Also, Neustadt.] Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Middle and Upper Franconia, situated on the Aisch River ab. 23 mi. NW of Nuremberg. At the center of an important hops-producing district, it has breweries, dairies; and manufactures of tools, musical instruments, and bricks. There is a Gothic church of the 14th century, a castle of the 16th century, and a Rathaus (town hall) of the 18th century. 12,813 (1950).

Neustadt an der Hardt (hárt). [Also, Neustadt.] City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhenish Palatinate, Bavaria, situated on the Speyerbach and the slopes of the Hardt Mountains, ab. 14 mi. W of Speyer. It has a wine trade, and metal, machine, cloth, knitwear, leather, and paper manufactures. There is a Gothic church of the 14th century, and a Rathaus (town hall) from the 18th century. The community received town privileges in 1275, was occupied by the Spaniards in 1622, by the Swedes in 1631, and by the French in 1644 (the French also held the city from 1688 to 1697, and 1793 to 1795). It passed to Bavaria in 1815. In World War II, Allied troops reached the city on March 22, 1945. Pop. 26,764 (1950).

Neustadt an der Orla (ór'li). [Also, Neustadt.] Town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Thuringia, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Thuringia, situated on the Orla River ab. 26 mi. SE of Weimar. It has textile, leather, furniture, and metal manufactures. There is a church of the 16th century. 10,484 (1946).

Neustadt in Oberschlesien (in ó.bér.shlá'zēn). German name of Prudnik.

Neustettin (noi.sh'tē.tēn'). German name of Szczecinek.

Neustrelitz (noi.strá'lits). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Mecklenburg, situated on the Zierker Lake ab. 59 mi. N of Berlin. It has a grain and lumber trade, various agricultural industries, and an iron foundry. 24,692 (1946).

Neustria (nūs'tri.a). Western division of the Carolingian kingdom of Italy, corresponding to the later Lombardy.

Neustria. In the times of the Merovingians and Carolingians (6th-9th centuries), the western kingdom of the Franks, as opposed to Austrasia, the eastern kingdom. It extended from the mouth of the Schelde to the Loire; later it was restricted to the region between the Seine and the Loire. The inhabitants were mainly Romanic. It developed after the treaty of Verdun (843) into the kingdom of France.

Neutitschein (noi.tē'ehin). German name of Nový Jičín.

Neutra (noi'trá). German name of Nitra.

Neutral (noi'trál) or Neutrals (-trálz). [Also, Neutral Nation.] North American Indian tribe whose language was of the Iroquoian family, occupying various areas at different times in the St. Lawrence valley and N of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. The tribe was thus named because it held aloof from the wars between the neighboring Iroquois and Hurons. Later, however, the Neutral Indians were almost entirely destroyed by the Iroquois Confederacy.

Neutral Ground. During the Revolutionary War, that part of New York (in Westchester County) which lay between the British lines (at New York City and elsewhere) on the S and the American lines on the N. The scene of Cooper's novel The Spy is laid here.

Neutrality Act. 1. Act of the U.S. Congress approved on Aug. 31, 1935, making illegal the sale or transportation from the U.S. of munitions or other articles of war to belligerents after presidential proclamation of a state of war between foreign nations. The president was also empowered to forbid travel on vessels of belligerent governments. 2. Act of the U.S. Congress passed in February, 1936, which amended the act of 1935. Its chief provision forbade loans to belligerent nations. 3. Act of the U.S. Congress approved on May 1, 1937, which extended the Neutrality Acts of 1935 and 1936, set up a national control of the export of munitions in time of war and peace, and gave the president discretionary powers to allow the purchase of raw materials by belligerents on a "cash and carry" basis. The period for the latter provision was limited to two years. The act also applied to civil wars. 4. Act of the U.S. Congress approved on Nov. 4, 1939, which lifted the arms embargo of earlier neutrality legislation and authorized the purchase by foreign belligerent nations of implements of war on a "cash and carry" basis. It authorized the declaration of war danger zones and permitted American vessels to carry certain classes of goods to belligerent ports in designated areas.

Neu-Ulm (noi.ül'm'). City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, situated on the Danube River opposite Ulm; marketing center for a horticultural district. It has metal, tool, machine, jewelry, textile, and furniture manufactures. 14,866 (1950).

Neuveville (né.vël). [German, Neuenstadt.] Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Bern, on the Lake of Bienna; seat of a number of boarding schools. 2,441 (1941).

Neuville (né.vël), Alphonse Marie de. b. at St-Omer, France, May 31, 1836; d. at Paris, May 19, 1885. French battle painter. He was a pupil of Picot. His best-known works are scenes in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71, including Last Cartridges (1873), Defence of Le Bourget (1879), Panorama of the Battle of Champigny (with De-taille, 1881).

Neuville, Jean Nicolas Buache de la. See Buache de la Neuville, Jean Nicolas.

Neuwert (noi'vert). A pseudonym of Nowaczyński, Adolf.

Neuwied (noi.vët'). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Rhine River ab. 7 mi. NW of Koblenz. It is a river port, and has metal, machine, chemical, and textile industries. Neuwied was founded in 1653 as the capital of the principality of Wied; it passed to Prussia in 1815. Pop. 24,284 (1950).

Neuwied, Prince Maximilian Alexander Philipp von. b. at Neuwied, Germany, Sept. 23, 1782; d. there, Feb. 3, 1867. Prussian traveler and naturalist. He attained the rank of major general in the Prussian army, but after 1815 devoted his time mainly to scientific pursuits. He traveled in Brazil (1815-17), and in the western part of North America in 1833. His publications include Reise nach Brasilien (1820), Beiträge zur Naturgeschichte brasilien (1824-33), Reise durch Nord-Amerika (1838-43), and others. His collection of mammalia is now in the American Museum of Natural History, at New York.

Neuzen (nē'zēn). [Also, Terneuzen.] Town in W Netherlands, in the province of Zeeland, situated on the S shore of the Schelde River estuary, ab. 25 mi. W of Antwerp. It has a port serving much of the Belgian hinterland. There are also shipyards, concrete and brick works, and a chemical industry. 11,494 (1939).

Neva (nē'vā; Russian, nyl.vā'). River in the U.S.S.R., in the Leningrad oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. It issues from Lake Ladoga, flows S and W through Leningrad, and empties by several mouths into the Gulf of Finland. It receives the drainage of Lakes Onega, Ilmen, and others. The Neva and Volga rivers are connected by the Mariinsk System, closed to navigation in winter. Length, ab. 46 mi.

Nevada (nē.vad'ā, -vā'dā). [Called the "Sagebrush State"; also, the "Silver State."] State of the W United States, bounded by Oregon and Idaho on the N, Utah on the E, Arizona on the SE, and California on the W and SW.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Nevada is divided for administrative purposes into 17 counties. It sends one representative to Congress, and has three electoral votes. Leading cities are Las Vegas and Reno. Capital, Carson City; area, 109,802 sq. mi. (110,690 sq. mi., including water); pop. 160,083 (1950), an increase of 45.2 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks sixth in area, and 48th (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The greater part of the state is a high plateau, lying at elevations above 4,000 ft., and crossed by numerous ranges, forming a series of interior basins which have no drainage to the sea. The highest point in the state is Boundary Peak (13,145 ft.) on the W boundary. Among the principal rivers of the state is the Humboldt, which rises in the NE and formerly flowed W and SW into Humboldt Lake; since the construction of Rye Patch Dam, nearly all of the water is used for irrigation, and very little reaches the lake bed. This lake formerly overflowed occasionally into Carson Sink, a salt marsh. Another important river is the Colorado, which forms part of the boundary with Arizona in the extreme SE; in this river (ab. 25 mi. SE of Las Vegas) is situated Hoover Dam (formerly Boulder Dam), the nation's highest dam, used for power, irrigation, flood control, and river control, and forming Lake Mead, largest artificial reservoir and lake in the world. The region immediately surrounding the dam has become a great recreational area. Among the large natural lakes in the state are Pyramid Lake, in the W; Walker Lake, in the SW; Lake Tahoe, lying on the California-Nevada boundary, is the site of many tourist resorts. Mud Lake, in the NW, is a large dry lake. There are numerous other lakes which, in the summer, dry up almost entirely, forming mud lakes or salt flats. In the NW is the Black Rock Desert, an area of lava beds of some 1,000 sq. mi. The climate of Nevada is characterized by continental extremes of heat and cold; winters are cold, with snowfall generally over the N half of the state and in the mountains; summers are hot. The SE portion of the state has very hot summers and mild winters, with a climate resembling that of the Arizona desert. The climate of the state as a whole is that of a dry grassland or desert; only in the higher mountains of Nevada are scrub woodlands of piñon pine and juniper found.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Nevada is primarily a mining state, producing sizable amounts of gold, silver, copper, lead, and zinc; gypsum and mercury are also found. Farming is dependent largely upon irrigation; alfalfa, wheat, potatoes, barley, melons, and fruits are the chief crops. Sheep and cattle raising are more important than crop production, and the state produces considerable quantities of wool and beef; horses, poultry, and hogs are also raised. Manufacturing is confined chiefly to milling and smelting ore, but meat packing, lumbering, and the manufacture of dairy products are also carried on. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 46 million dollars; from mineral output, as high as 52 million; from manufacturing, as high as 21 million.

History. A Franciscan friar, Francisco Garcés, is believed to have been the first European to visit (1775) the state. John C. Frémont explored the region between 1843 and 1845, while en route to California. Nevada was part of the region ceded (1848) to the U.S. by Mexico. The discovery of gold in California led many immigrants to pass through Nevada on the way west, and some, mostly Mormons, remained to settle in Nevada. The first permanent settlement was made (1851) at Mormon Station, now Genoa. Gold was found in Nevada as early as 1849, but the discovery of the Comstock Lode, a gold and silver lode, did not occur until 1859. On its site Virginia City, now a live "ghost town," sprang up; more than a billion dollars in gold and silver was mined here. Nevada was organized as a separate territory in 1861, having been included in Utah Territory since 1850; admitted (Oct. 31, 1864) to the Union as the 36th State.

Culture. Nevada is now more urban than rural in development (population in 1950 being 57.2 percent urban; previously the rural figure had been the higher). There is a considerable Indian population; the state is the site of several Indian reservations. Each year Nevada receives a large transient population as the result of its laws permitting divorce after six weeks' residence in the state. Legalized gambling also attracts visitors. Reno is a center for obtaining rapid divorces and is known also for its gambling facilities. Las Vegas has become known in recent years for divorces and gambling, also as a distributing center and a year-round vacation spot. The University of Nevada is located at Reno. The state motto is "All For Our Country"; the state flower is the sagebrush, Artemisia tridentata.

Nevada. City in C Iowa, county seat of Story County, in a farming region. It was founded in 1853, and was the birthplace of William Ashley (Billy) Sunday, 3,763 (1950).

Nevada. City in SW Missouri, county seat of Vernon County; principal shipping point for hay, poultry, livestock, corn, and wheat. It is the seat of Cottey College. 8,009 (1950).

Nevada, Emma. [Stage name of Emma Wixom.] b. at Alpha, Calif., 1862; d. 1940. American operatic soprano. She made her first appearance at London in 1880, and sang at Paris and in Italy and the U.S. (1884).

Nevada, Sierra. See Sierra Nevada.

Nevada City. [Former names: Beer Creek Diggings, Caldwell's Upper Store, Nevada.] City in N California, county seat of Nevada County, ab. 55 mi. NE of Sacramento. Gold mining has been the principal industry since 1850. Pop. 2,505 (1950).

Nevada de Mérida (nā.nā'rhā dā mā'rē.thā), Sierra. See Sierra Nevada de Mérida.

Nevada de Santa Marta (sā'n'tā mār'tā), Sierra. See Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta.

Nevada Fall (nē.vad'g, -vā'da). Cataract in the Merced River, Yosemite Valley, E California. Height, ab. 600 ft.

Nevado (nā.bā'thō). [Plural, Nevedos (-thōs).] Spanish word for "snow-capped mountain": for geographical entries of this kind, see the distinguishing element of the name.

Neve (nēv), John Le. See Le Neve, John.

Neve, Peter Le. See Le Neve, Peter.

Nevers (nē.vēr). [Latin, Noviodunum.] Town in C France, the capital of the department of Nièvre, situated at the junction of the Nièvre and Loire rivers. Nevers has remarkable old buildings, such as the Cathedral of Saint-Cyr-et-Sainte-Juliette (with a Romanesque part and a Gothic part), the Romanesque Church of Saint-Étienne, the ducal palace, and others. It has iron and steel foundries, construction works, machine industries, and a renowned manufacture of faience earthenware and pottery. The town, including the cathedral, was damaged in World War II. 34,036 (1946).

Nevers, County of. Medieval county and later duchy in France, in Nivernais, near the city of Nevers. It was purchased by Cardinal Mazarin in 1659, and granted to the Mancini family.

Neversink (nēv'ēr.sink), Highlands of. See Highlands of Navesink.

Neves (nā'vēs). City in SE Brazil, in the state of Rio de Janeiro. 53,052 (1950).

Neveu de Rameau (nē.vē dē rā.mō), Le. [Eng. trans., "The Nephew of Rameau."] Work by Denis Diderot, written c1760 but not published until much later. It was translated (1805) into German by Goethe; Jules Janin wrote (1860) a sequel in which he explains the somewhat enigmatical hero, a brilliant Bohemian hanger-on.

Neveux (nē.vē), Pol Louis. b. at Reims, France, Aug. 25, 1865—d. French essayist and critic. Author of Golo (1897), La Douce Enfance de Thierry Seneuse (1916), Le Souvenir de Marc Lafargue (1929), Charles Hirschauer (1930), and others.

Nevigés (nā'vī.gēs). [Also, Hardenberg-Nevigés.] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, ab. 9 mi. S of Düsseldorf: metal, textile, and ceramics industries. 15,119 (1950).

Neville (nev'īl), Constance. One of the principal female characters in Oliver Goldsmith's comedy She Stoops to Conquer. She is in love with Hastings.

Neville, George. b. c1433; d. June 8, 1476. English archbishop; younger brother of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick. He became bishop of Exeter in 1458 and was lord chancellor (1460-67). He was archbishop of York (1464 et seq.) and supported in turn Edward IV and Henry VI, whose chancellor he was during his brief restoration (1470-71). He surrendered, with Henry, to Edward, but was arrested for treason in 1471 and held prisoner in France until 1475.

Neville, John. [Titles: Marquis of Montagu, Earl of Northumberland.] b. c1430; d. April 14, 1471. English soldier in the Wars of the Roses; third son of Richard Neville (1400-60), 1st Earl of Salisbury, and brother of George Neville (c1433-76) and Richard Neville (1428-71), Earl of Warwick. He fought in the conflicts between the Nevilles and the Percy family in Yorkshire in 1453 and 1457, when he carried off the leader of the rival clan, Lord Egremont. Imprisoned at York by Margaret of Anjou after the second battle of St. Albans, he was liberated (1461) by the new king, Edward IV, after the battle of Towton. He defeated (1464) the Lancastrians at Hexham, where most of the vanquished were taken prisoner, joined the Lancastrians in protest against the restoration to Henry Percy of the estates and earldom of Northumberland, and was slain at Barnet with Warwick while fighting on the Lancastrian side.

Neville, Richard. See Warwick, Earl of.
Neville, Wendell Cushing. b. at Portsmouth, Va., May 12, 1870; d. July 8, 1930. American marine-corps officer. He was graduated (1890) from the U.S. Naval Academy, received (1892) his commission as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps, served in the Spanish-American War, the Boxer campaign, the Veracruz expedition, and in World War I, when he commanded the 5th regiment of marines and then the 4th brigade (2nd division) in France and was promoted (1918) to the rank of brigadier general. In 1929 he was named commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Neville Landless (land'les). See Landless, Neville.

Neville's Cross. Place near Durham, England. Here the English defeated (Oct. 17, 1346) the Scots under David II, who was captured. The battle is sometimes called the Battle of Durham.

Nevin (nev'in), Arthur Finley. b. at Edgeworth, Pa., April 27, 1871; d. 1943. American composer; brother of Ethelbert Nevin. His works consist of songs, piano and orchestral works, and the operas Poia (produced at Berlin in 1910) and The Twilight (1911).

Nevin, Ethelbert Woodbridge. b. at Edgeworth, Pa., Nov. 25, 1862; d. at New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17, 1901. American composer and pianist; brother of Arthur Finley Nevin. His works are chiefly songs and piano pieces, some of which have had great popularity. Among them are Narcissus, Water Sketches, and The Rosary.

Nevin, John Williamson. b. in Franklin County, Pa., Feb. 20, 1803; d. at Lancaster, Pa., June 6, 1886. American clergyman of the German Reformed Church, acting president of Marshall College (1841-53) and president of Franklin and Marshall College (1866-76). Among his works are The Mystical Presence (1846), The History and Genius of the Heidelberg Catechism (1847), and others.

Nevins (nev'inz), Allan. b. at Camp Point, Ill., May 20, 1890—. American journalist and historian. He was a member of the editorial staff of the New York Evening Post (1913-23), The Nation (1913-18), and the New York World (1925-31), and has been professor of American history (1931 et seq.) at Columbia. His books include The Gateway to History (1938), Frémont—Pathmarker of the West (1939), John D. Rockefeller (1940), America in World Affairs (1942), and Sail On (1946). He received Pulitzer prizes for Grover Cleveland—A Study in Courage (1932) and Hamilton Fish—The Inner History of the Grant Administration (1936). He was awarded the ten-thousand-dollar Scribner prize for Ordeal of the Union (2 vols., 1947). He edited the diaries of Philip Hone (1927), John Quincy Adams (1928), James K. Polk (1929), and George Templeton Strong (1952), and the letters of Grover Cleveland (1933). With Jeannette Mirsky he wrote The World of Eli Whitney (1952).

Nevinson (nev'in.sən), Christopher Richard Lynne. b. at London, Aug. 13, 1889—. English painter, etcher, and lithographer, noted for his expressionistic war scenes emphasizing the brutality of combat. His work hangs in museums at London, Dublin, Liverpool, New York, Ottawa, and Paris, among others. His principal paintings include Twilight-Carrying in the Wounded and The Doctor.
Nevinson, H. W. [Full name, Henry Wood Nevinston.] b. at Arcadia, Leicestershire, England, 1856; d. at Chipping Campden, Gloucestershire, England, Nov. 9, 1941. English journalist, essayist, and biographer. He was on the staffs of the Daily Chronicle (1897-1903), the Nation (1906-23), the Manchester Guardian, the Daily News, and other journals, reporting wars over a period of three decades, and was wounded (1915) at the Dardanelles. He visited Greece, Crete, Africa (where he exposed the brutalities of the slave trade), Russia, Morocco, India, Spain, Palestine, Berlin, France, Gallipoli, Salonica, Egypt, and the U.S. Author of Neighbors of Ours (1895), In the Valley of Tophet (1896), The Thirty Days' War (1898), Life of Schiller (1899), Ladysmith (1900), Books and Personalities (1905), A Modern Slavery (1906), The Dawn in Russia (1906), The New Spirit in India (1908), Essays in Freedom (1909), Peace and War in the Balance (1911), The Growth of Freedom (1912), Essays in Rebellion (1913), and The Dardanelles Campaign (1918); Original Sinners, short stories (1920); Changes and Chances (1923), More Changes, More Chances (1925), Last Changes, Last Chances (1928), and Running Accompaniments (1936).

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pīne; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pūll; zh, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; autobiography; The English (1928), England, Voice of Freedom (1929), Rough Islanders, or the Natives of England (1930), and Goethe—Man and Poet (1931), biography and criticism.

Nevis (nev'is, nev'is), Ben. See Ben Nevis.

Nevrokop (nev'rō.kōp). Town in S Bulgaria, in the department of Plovdiv, on the Mesta River ab. 70 mi. SW of Plovdiv. It is the seat of an archbishopric. 11,061 (1946).

Nevski (nev'ski, nyef'-), Alexander. See Alexander Nevski.

Nevyansk (nĕv'yānsk'). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Sverdlovsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, situated in the Urals, ab. 51 mi. NW of Sverdlovsk. An old iron-smelting center, it has the oldest machinery works in the Urals (founded in 1701) which manufactures guns, mortars, and other armaments; mining equipment and cement are also manufactured at Nevyansk. This town is not shown on some recent Russian maps, presumably because of its importance as an armaments center. 24,300 (1935).

New (nū), Clarence Herbert. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Nov. 14, 1862; d. Jan. 8, 1933. American writer. His Adventures of a Diplomatic Free Lance (1909-31) is one of the world's longest series centering on the same character. He was author also of The Peculiar Resources of Pennington White (1924), The Grigys (1925), and the war novel The Unseen Hand (1918).

New, Harry Stewart. b. at Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31, 1858; d. at Baltimore, May 9, 1937. American politician and journalist, U.S. postmaster general (1923-29) under Harding and Coolidge. He was associated (1893-1903) with the Indianapolis Journal as reporter, editor, and publisher. He was a member of the Indiana state senate (1896-1900) and of the U.S. Senate (1917-23), where he served on the military affairs and foreign relations committees and fought bitterly against U.S. membership in the League of Nations. As postmaster general he established airmail service on a private-contract basis, extended it to South America, and inaugurated day-and-night transcontinental service. He was U.S. commissioner (1933-34) at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition.

New, John Chalfant. b. at Vernon, Ind., July 6, 1831; d. June 4, 1906. American banker and lawyer. He was appointed treasurer (1875) and assistant secretary of the treasury (1882) of the U.S., and was named (1889) U.S. consul general at London.

New Aberdeen (ab.ēr.dēn'). See under Aberdeen, Scotland.

New Albany (ŏl'ba.ni). City in SE Indiana, county seat of Floyd County, on the Ohio River ab. 2 mi. below its falls, opposite the NW part of Louisville, Ky., with which it is linked by a highway and rail bridge. Manufactures include veneer, plywood, prefabricated houses, metal products, clothing, leather, fertilizer, and furniture. It was chartered in 1838. Between 1830 and 1860 it was one of the chief Western centers for the construction of river craft. 29,346 (1950).

New Albany. City in NE Mississippi, county seat of Union County, on the Tallahatchie River; marketing center for a dairying, cotton-producing, and lumbering area. 3,680 (1950).

New Albany. A former name of Beloit, Wis.

New Albion (al'bion). Name given by Francis Drake to that part of the Pacific coast now included in N California, Oregon, and the region northward.

Newall (nū'al), Sir Cyril Louis Norton. [Title, 1st Baron Newall.] b. Feb. 15, 1886—, British air officer and colonial administrator. He served (1914-19) in World War I. He was deputy director (1919-22) of personnel at the air ministry, and deputy chief (1926-31) and chief (1937-40) of air staff. He served as governor general and commander in chief (1941-46) of New Zealand.

New Almaden (al ma.dēn). Former name of Almaden, Calif.

New American Practical Navigator, The. Full title of American Practical Navigator.

New Amsterdam (am'stĕr.dam). Dutch city founded (1625-26) by the Dutch East India Company on Manhattan Island, on the site of what is now the downtown part of New York City. Incorporated as a city in 1653, it was captured (1664) by the English, who renamed it

New York after the Duke of York. Recaptured (1763) by the Dutch for a brief period, it was named by them New Orange after the Prince of Orange. In 1674 it was ceded as part of New Netherland to the English, who again named it New York.

New Amsterdam. [Former name, Berbice.] City in NE British Guiana, South America, capital of Berbice county, on the Berbice River. Pop. ab. 9,600.

Newark (nū'ark). City in N Delaware, in New Castle County, SW of Wilmington; manufactures of paper, vulcanized fiber, and canned vegetables. It is the seat of the University of Delaware. 6,731 (1950).

Newark. [Also: Newark-on-Trent, Newark-upon-Trent (trĕnt').] Municipal borough, market town, and manufacturing center in N central England, in Nottinghamshire, situated on the river Devon near the river Trent, ab. 17 mi. NE of Nottingham, ab. 120 mi. N of London by rail. Newark is noted for the manufacture of a special type of plaster, and also has manufactures of wood-working machinery. The town is located in a rich fruit-raising district and is the place where King John died in 1216, supposedly from eating too many peaches. Newark was besieged three times in the English Civil War, and finally surrendered to the Scots in 1646. It has a Gothic church and the ruins of a castle. 22,909 (1951).

Newark. City in NE New Jersey, county seat of Essex County, on the Passaic River ab. 4 mi. from Newark Bay and ab. 9 mi. W of New York; largest city in the state. An important railway and insurance center, its manufactures include electric light bulbs, dentifrices, dynamos, jewelry, beer, leather goods, machinery, cutlery, clothing, and foodstuffs. It is the seat of the University of Newark, Dana College, and Newark Academy. It is the site of Newark Airport. It was settled by Puritan colonists from Connecticut in 1666. It became a city in 1836. Pop. 429,760 (1940), 438,776 (1950).

Newark. Village in W New York, in Wayne County, ab. 28 mi. SE of Rochester. It is in a farming region, and has rose nurseries, canneries, and furniture, kitchenware, cosmetic, and paper factories. 10,295 (1950).

Newark. City in C Ohio, county seat of Licking County, on the Licking River ab. 31 mi. NE of Columbus; manufactures of rubber, tires, glass, insulating wool, stoves, and lighting fixtures. It was platted in 1802 on the site of ancient mounds and was named for Newark, N.J. In the pre-Civil War era it was an important shipping point along the Ohio and Erie Canal. 34,275 (1950).

Newark, 1st Baron. Title of Leslie, David.

Newark Bay. Inlet of the Atlantic Ocean in NE New Jersey, N of Staten Island. It receives the Passaic and Hackensack rivers, and connects with Upper New York Bay through the Kill van Kull and with Raritan Bay through Arthur Kill. The cities of Newark, Jersey City, and Elizabeth border on it.

New Atlantis (at.lan'tis) The. Allegorical romance by Francis Bacon; so called from its scene of action, an imaginary island in the ocean. It was written before 1617.

New Barbadoes (bār.bā.dōz). See under Hackensack, N.J.

New Bath Guide. Satirical poem by Christopher Anstey, published 1766.

New Bedford (bed'ford). City in SE Massachusetts, a county seat (with Fall River) of Bristol County, on the estuary of the Acushnet River on Buzzards Bay; manufactures of cotton goods, machinery, rubber goods, clothing, boats, and electrical equipment. Now an important fish-shipping center, it was long the chief American whaling center, succeeding Nantucket; this industry was at its height in 1854, but has since greatly declined. It was separated from Dartmouth in 1787, and became a city in 1847. Pop. of city, 110,341 (1940), 109,189 (1950); of urbanized area, 125,495 (1950).

Newberg (nū'běrg). City in NW Oregon, in Yamhill County; manufactures of wooden utensils. It is the seat of Pacific College. The city was named for Nauberg, Germany, in 1869. Pop. 3,946 (1950).

New Bern (bĕrn). City in E North Carolina, county seat of Craven County, at the confluence of the Neuse and Trent rivers; woodworking mills and tobacco warehouses. It was settled in 1710, and was the capital of North Carolina in the 18th century. In the Civil War, on March 14, 1862, Union forces under Ambrose Burnside defeated the Confederates here, 15,812 (1950).

Newberry (nū'ber'ē). Village in the C part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, county seat of Luce County, on the Taquamenaw River: trading point for celery; woodworking, 2,802 (1950).

Newberry. Town in N South Carolina, county seat of Newberry County, ab. 40 mi. NW of Columbia. It is the seat of Newberry College. The surrounding area produces cotton, dairy products, granite, and lumber, 7,546 (1950).

Newberry, John Strong. b. at Windsor, Conn., Dec. 22, 1822; d. at New Haven, Conn., Dec. 7, 1892. American geologist. He was secretary of the western department of the U.S. Sanitary Commission in the Civil War, served as professor of geology (1866-92) at the school of mines, Columbia College, and was appointed (1869) state geologist of Ohio. He published numerous books and papers relating to geology, paleontology, botany, and zoology.

Newberry, Oliver. [Called the "Admiral of the Lakes."] b. at East (now South) Windsor, Conn., Nov. 17, 1789; d. July 30, 1860. American merchant, shipbuilder, and shipowner; brother of Walter Loomis Newberry. He served in the War of 1812, established a mercantile business at Buffalo, N.Y., and in 1826 founded a general store at Detroit. He subsequently became an agent for the American Fur Company, built lake craft at Newport (now Marine City), Mich., and in 1833 set up a regular Detroit-to-Chicago steamship line. The operator of a large shipping business, he constructed the Michigan, in its day the largest Great Lakes steamship. He also built the first lightsail at Mackinac Strait.

Newberry, Truman Handy. b. at Detroit, Mich., Nov. 5, 1864; d. at Grosse Pointe Farms, near Detroit, Oct. 3, 1945. American industrialist and politician, U.S. secretary of the navy (1908-09) under Theodore Roosevelt. He was active (1885 et seq.) in the railway and steel businesses, and in banking, in the Detroit area. He was appointed (1905) assistant secretary of the navy, and served as secretary of the navy from Dec. 1, 1908, to March 6, 1909. He was elected (1919) U.S. senator from Michigan, defeating Henry Ford. Tried and convicted (1920) in the Michigan courts for corrupt practices in obtaining the nomination, and following a U.S. Supreme Court dismissal of the case (May 2, 1921), he was exonerated (1922) by the U.S. Senate committee on privileges and elections. He resigned (November, 1922) from office.

Newberry, Walter Loomis. b. at East (now South) Windsor, Conn., Sept. 18, 1804; d. at sea, Nov. 6, 1868. American merchant, banker, and philanthropist; brother of Oliver Newberry. Together with his brother, he was active in the mercantile business at Buffalo, N.Y., and at Detroit. He served as adjutant general (1829-31) of the territory of Michigan and an alderman (1832) at Detroit. His investments in real estate, particularly at Chicago, brought him a large fortune which he supplemented by proceeds from various banking and commission business enterprises at Chicago, where he settled in 1833. A founder and the first president (1841) of the Young Men's Library Association at Chicago, he willed more than two million dollars to the establishment of what became the Newberry Library at Chicago.

Newberry Library. Free public reference library at Chicago, endowed by Walter Loomis Newberry. It contains approximately 600,000 volumes.

Newberry v. United States, 256 U.S. 232 (1921). U.S. Supreme Court decision involving the extent of Congressional power to regulate elections. The case arose over the contested election of Truman H. Newberry of Michigan to the U.S. Senate. The court held that national legislative power did not embrace the regulation of primaries. Among the results of the decision was the enactment of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act of 1925.

Newbery (nū'ber'ē). John. b. 1713; d. Dec. 22, 1767. English publisher, the friend of Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, and Tobias Smollett. He settled at London in 1714, and was the first publisher of small storybooks for children. Among the famous children's books published by him, some of which he may have written, were Little Giddy Two Shoes, Giles Gingerbread, and Mother Goose's Nursery Rhymes. In 1758 he started the Universal Chronicle or Weekly Gazette, in which Johnson's Idler essays appeared. The Public Ledger was commenced in 1760. The Newbery Medal (1922 et seq.), named in his honor, is awarded each year to an American author who has published an outstanding book for children.

Newbiggin-by-the-Sea (nū'big'in, nū'big'in). Urban district and seaside resort in NE England, in Northumberland, situated near the mouth of the river Wansbeck ab. 7 mi. NE of Morpeth, ab. 291 mi. N of London by rail, 9,727 (1951).

Newbold (nū'bōld), William Romaine. b. at Wilmington, Del., Nov. 20, 1865; d. at Philadelphia, Sept. 26, 1926. American philosopher, psychologist, and Orientalist. He served as lecturer in philosophy (1892-94), as assistant professor (1894-1903) and then professor (1902-07) of philosophy, as dean (1896-1904) of the graduate school, and as Adam Seybert professor of intellectual and moral philosophy (1907-26) at the University of Pennsylvania. For a time he was active in the Society for Psychological Research, and he was the author of works on philosophical and psychological subjects, as well as of articles on Oriental studies.

Newbolt (nū'bōlt), Sir Henry John. b. at Bilton, Staffordshire, June 6, 1862; d. April 19, 1938. English editor, author, and poet. He was admitted to the bar in 1887, and practiced law until 1899. In 1900 he founded the Monthly Review, of which he was editor until 1904. From 1911 to 1921 he was professor of poetry at Oxford. Among his publications are Taken from the Enemy (1892), Mordred, A Tragedy (1895), Admirals All (1897), The Island Race (1898), The Sailing of the Long-ships (1902), Songs of the Sea (1904) and Songs of the Fleet (1910), both with music by Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, The Year of Trafalgar (1905), The New June (1909), Songs of Memory and Hope (1910), A Naval History of the Great War (1920), and Studies Green and Gray (1926). Newbolt's patriotic sea poems and his scholarly history of Trafalgar made his reputation as a historian of the empire; in 1923 he was appointed official naval historian and under his direction was published the five-volume Naval Operations (1920-31), a history covering World War I.

New Boston (bōs'ton). City in S Ohio, in Scioto County: manufactures of steel. It was established in 1891. Pop. 4,754 (1950).

New Boston. Town in NE Texas, in Bowie County: agricultural trade center; cotton, lumber, 2,688 (1950).

New Braunfels (brōun'felz). City in S central Texas, county seat of Comal County, SW of Austin on the Guadalupe River. It has hydroelectric power plants, and manufactures textiles, hosiery, clothing, furniture, flour, and metal products, 12,210 (1950).

Newbridge (nū'brīj). See Pontypridd.

New Brighton (brī'ton). Residential section of S New York, situated in New York City on N Staten Island (or Richmond), on the Kill van Kull. It is the site of Sailors' Snug Harbor, a home for retired American sailors, the home having been founded under the will of Captain Robert Richard Randall and opened Aug. 1, 1853. New Brighton was formerly a fashionable summer resort community.

New Brighton. Borough in W Pennsylvania, in Beaver County, on the Beaver River ab. 25 mi. NW of Pittsburgh: manufactures of metal products and pottery products, 9,335 (1950).

New Britain (brī'tan). City in C Connecticut, in Hartford County, ab. 9 mi. SW of Hartford. It is a leading center for manufactures of hardware, 73,726 (1950).

New Britain Archipelago. Former name of Bismarck Archipelago.

New Brunswick (brunz'wik). Maritime province of the Dominion of Canada. It is bounded by Quebec on the NW and N, Chaleur Bay on the N, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Northumberland Strait on the E, Nova Scotia on the SE, the Bay of Fundy on the S, and the state of Maine on the W. The surface is generally rolling or hilly (particularly hilly in the NW and N). The chief rivers are the St. John, Miramichi, and Restigouche. The province has very modest mineral resources. The chief product is bituminous coal; however, New Brunswick produces only about two percent of Canadian coal output. The fisheries of New Brunswick have been a leading industry since early colonial times, and there is a large catch of cod, haddock, herring, salmon, and shellfish. Agriculture has progressed rapidly in recent years, and the chief specialties are now dairying, fruit (especially apples), potatoes, and fur farming. Also, food and the total area of the province is wooded, and lumber, pulp, and paper mills are the principal manufacturing industry; the food-processing industries (including fish canning) are also important. The province is governed by a lieutenant governor and a legislative assembly (of 48 members); it is represented in the Dominion Parliament by ten senators and ten members of the House of Commons. It has 15 counties. It was settled by the French in 1604 (it formed part of Acadia) and was ceded to the British in 1713 and 1763. It was colonized by Scottish settlers in 1764 and by Tories from the U.S. in 1783, was separated from Nova Scotia in 1784, and became a province of Canada in 1867. Capital, Fredericton; largest city, St. John. Area, 27,985 sq. mi. (including 512 sq. mi. of water); pop. 515,697 (1951).

New Brunswick. City in C New Jersey, county seat of Middlesex County, on the Raritan River ab. 28 mi. SW of New York; manufactures of pharmaceuticals, harmonicas, garments, linoleum, rugs, chemicals, cigars, and cigar boxes. It is the seat of Rutgers University, and the New Brunswick Theological Seminary. It was the birthplace of Joyce Kilmer. 38,811 (1950).

Newburg (nū'berġ). A former name of Toronto, Ohio.

Newburgh (nū'berġ). City in SE New York, in Orange County, on the W bank of the Hudson River, ab. 55 mi. N of New York City. Manufactures include metal products, clothing, rugs, and textiles. It was once an important whaling port and is now a river port and shipbuilding center. It was the headquarters of Washington during part of the Revolutionary War. The American army disbanded here in 1783. Pop. 31,956 (1950).

Newburgh Addresses. Two anonymous letters to the Revolutionary Army, written from Newburgh, N.Y., by Major John Armstrong, Jr., in 1783, setting forth the grievances of the officers, chief among which was the arrears of pay. Washington's firm and tactful action resulted in the adoption of resolutions by the officers in disapproval of the addresses.

Newburgh Heights. Village in NE Ohio, in Cuyahoga County, near Cleveland. 3,689 (1950).

Newburn (nū'bern). Urban district in NE England, in Northumberland, on the river Tyne ab. 5 mi. NW of Newcastle, ab. 274 mi. N of London by rail; coal mining and various industries. Here the Scots defeated (Aug. 28, 1640) the English. 21,943 (1951).

Newbury (nū'ber'ī, -bērī). Municipal borough and market town in S England, in Berkshire, on the river Kennet ab. 17 mi. SW of Reading, ab. 53 mi. SW of London by rail; marketing center for a farming region; manufactures. Two battles were fought here during the English Civil War: on Sept. 20, 1643, an indecisive contest between the Royalists under Charles I and the Parliamentarians under Robert Devereux, 3rd Earl of Essex; and on Oct. 27, 1644, a victory of the Parliamentarians under Edward Montagu, 2nd Earl of Manchester, and Sir William Waller over the Royalists under Charles I. 17,772 (1951).

Newburyport (nū'ber'ī.pōrt'). City in NE Massachusetts, a county seat (with Lawrence and Salem) of Essex County, on the Merrimack River, near its mouth, ab. 33 mi. NE of Boston; manufactures of cotton, shoes, iron and steel products, silverware, and cigars. It was formerly a shipping and shipbuilding center. It was the birthplace of William Lloyd Garrison. 14,111 (1950).

New Caledonia (ka.lē.dō'ni.ā). Name given to the Scottish Darien Colony, formed in 1698.

New Caledonia. [French, Nouvelle Calédonie.] French overseas territory and island in SW Pacific Ocean, situated ab. 800 mi. NE of the coast of Queensland, Australia. The territory includes the Loyalty Islands, Wallis Archipelago, and several other outlying islands. The island of New Caledonia extends ab. 250 mi. from NW to SE, with an average width of ab. 35 mi.; it is largely mountainous or hilly, with peaks reaching over 5,000 ft. in elevation. Unlike most of the South Pacific islands, which are of volcanic origin, New Caledonia is composed of continental rocks of metamorphic and sedimentary types. Dense jungle covers much of the island. Fishing and agriculture support the native population; under European management, copra is produced for export. The outstanding mineral resources include chrome, nickel, and iron ores, gold, manganese, lead, copper, and other metals; chrome and nickel ores are the chief export of New Caledonia. A considerable labor force of Asiatics has been imported to work in the mines. The chief town and port is Nouméa. Capital, Nouméa; area of territory, ab. 9,400 sq. mi.; pop. 61,250 (1947 est.), of which 30,034 Melanesians, 18,510 Europeans, and 12,706 Asiatics; area of island, 8,548 sq. mi.

New Canaan (kā'nān). Town in SW Connecticut, in Fairfield County; residential community. 8,001 (1950).

New Castle (kas.tēl'). [Spanish, Castilla la Nueva.] Official name given in 1529 to that portion of Peru which was granted to Francisco Pizarro for conquest and government. By the terms of the grant it extended from the Santiago River (probably the Mira, in N Ecuador) southward for 200 leagues. The name was soon supplanted by Peru. Later (1538-45) the name New Castle was applied to a province immediately N of Peru, corresponding to what is now the SW coast region of Colombia, and sometimes including a part of the Isthmus of Darien.

New Castle. See also under Castile.

Newcastle (nū'kás'l'). Seaport in SE Australia, the second largest city in the state of New South Wales, situated on the coast at the mouth of the Hunter River, ab. 104 mi. NE of Sydney. It is the port for the chief coal centers of the commonwealth and the site of the largest iron and steel works in the Pacific area. The Newcastle coal field was opened in 1804 and today covers an area of 16,550 sq. mi., extending N and S of Newcastle along the coast. 134,580 (est. 1950).

New Castle (nū'kás'l, nū'kás'l'). City in N Delaware, in New Castle County, on the Delaware River S of Wilmington; manufactures of steel, aircraft, and rayon. It was the site of a convention (Sept. 21, 1776) to form the "Delaware State." 5,396 (1950).

Newcastle (nū'kás'l'). [Also, Newcastle-upon-Tyne (-tīn'); Latin, Pons Aelii.] City, county borough, market town, seaport, and shipbuilding and manufacturing center in NE England, in Northumberland, situated ab. 10 mi. from the mouth of the river Tyne, ab. 125 mi. SE of Edinburgh, and ab. 269 mi. N of London by rail. It is important as a coal-shipping port, having begun shipping "sea coal" to London in the 13th century (the distance is ab. 314 mi. by sea). Newcastle is important as a shipbuilding center, and has a large iron and steel industry. It is also important as a center of the lead and brass industries. There are several flour mills located here. The Norman castle, built in 1080 and rebuilt by Henry II, was long a noted stronghold. Newcastle was a Roman and Saxon town, was taken by the Scots in 1640 and 1644, and long played an important part in border warfare. 291,723 (1951).

New Castle. City in E Indiana, county seat of Henry County, ab. 18 mi. S of Muncie; manufactures of steel products and automobile accessories. Wilbur Wright was born near here. 18,271 (1950).

Newcastle (nū'kás'l'). Town in New Brunswick, Canada, county seat of Northumberland County, situated on the N bank of the Miramichi River near its mouth; shipbuilding, lumbering, and sport-fishing center. It is connected by rail and road with points in Nova Scotia and central Canada. 4,248 (1951).

New Castle (nū'kás'l, nū'kás'l'). City in W Pennsylvania, county seat of Lawrence County, on the Shenango River ab. 45 mi. NW of Pittsburgh; railroad center in a coal-mining region; manufactures of cement, metal products, explosives, beer, and clothing, and hotel chinaware. It occupies the site of a former capital of the Delaware Indians and was named for Newcastle, England. 48,834 (1950).

Newcastle (nū'kás'l'). City in NE Wyoming, county seat of Weston County; shipping point for livestock. 3,395 (1950).

Newcastle (nū'kás'l'), 1st Duke of. [Title of Sir Thomas Pelham-Holles; original surname, Pelham.] b. in July, 1693; d. 1768. English statesman. He was secretary of state (1724-54), first lord of the treasury (1754-56, 1757-62), and lord privy seal (1765-66).

Newcastle. Duchess of. Title of Cavendish, Margaret.

Newcastle, Duke of. Title of Cavendish, William (1592-1676).

Newcastle, 5th Duke of. Title of Clinton, Henry Pelham Fiennes Pelham.

Newcastle-under-Lyme (-līm'). [Also: Newcastle-under-Lyne (-līn'), Newcastle-under-the-shadow-of-the-Pennines (-pen'inz').] Municipal borough and market town in C England, in Staffordshire, situated in the Potteries on Lyme Brook, ab. 16 mi. NW of Stafford, ab. 148 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a residential town and market center; manufactures include clothing and paper. 70,028 (1951).

Newchwang (nū'chwāŋ'). See Yingkow.

New College. [Former name, College of St. Mary Winton.] College of Oxford University, founded by William of Wykeham, bishop of Winchester, in 1379. The buildings were begun in 1380. Much of the quaint and picturesque architecture dates from the time of the foundation. The chapel is among the earliest of the complete buildings in the Perpendicular style.

Newcomb (nū'kom). Simon. b. at Wallace, Nova Scotia, March 12, 1835; d. at Washington, D.C., July 11, 1939. American astronomer. He ran away (1853) from home to the U.S., became a school teacher in Maryland, and a computer (1857) for the American Nautical Almanac. He became professor of mathematics in the U.S. navy in 1861, being assigned to duty at the Naval Observatory at Washington, D.C., and also held (1884-93) a professorship of mathematics and astronomy at the Johns Hopkins University. He was director of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac (1887-97), resigning in the latter year when he retired from the navy. His works include Popular Astronomy (1877), Principles of Political Economy (1886), Elements of Astronomy (1900), His Wisdom the Defender (1900), The Stars (1901), Astronomy for Everybody (1902), Reminiscences of an Astronomer (1933), Compendium of Spherical Astronomy (1906), Side Lights on Astronomy (1906), and many shorter scientific papers. Newcomb was a great mathematical astronomer and spent his best energies in establishing accurate tables from which other astronomers might work without loss of time in recomputing certain measurable constants. His tables of the planets, worked out for Neptune (1866) and Uranus (1873), and for Mercury, Venus, Earth, and Mars (published at various times but combined in 1895), were supplemented by the work of G. W. Hill on Jupiter and Saturn: the work was adopted as standard in many parts of the world. Newcomb also published an exhaustive study of the perturbations of the lunar orbit that enabled much more accurate prediction of the moon's motion than had previously been possible. He supervised the construction of the 28-inch Naval Observatory telescope and took charge of it from 1873. Among the other subjects he wrote on, besides his popularizing books on astronomy and economics, were the asteroids and their orbits and possible origin, transits of Venus and Mercury he had observed, solar eclipses, and the motion of Hyperion, a satellite of Saturn whose eccentric orbit and time of revolution make it an interesting problem for astronomers. Newcomb was prominent (1896) in the movement to adopt a standard set of constants in astronomy and to establish basic stars for use in compiling the several national ephemerides; the resulting tables were in use from 1899.

Newcomen (nū'kum'en). Thomas. b. at Dartmouth, England, 1663; d. in August, 1729. English inventor. With John Cawley (or Calley) and Thomas Savery, he invented the atmospheric steam engine, patented in 1705, and used to pump water.

Newcomerstown (nū'kum.ērz.toun'). [Former name, Neighbor Town.] Village in E Ohio, in Tuscarawas County, near the Tuscarawas River; manufactures of brick and tile. Settled in 1815, it occupies the site of what was once a chief settlement of the Delaware Indians. Pop. 4,514 (1950).

Newcomes (nū'kumz). The. Novel by William Makepeace Thackeray, published in 1855.

New Creek. A former name of Keyser, W. Va.

New Cumberland (kum'bér.land). [Former name, Haldeman's Town.] Borough in S Pennsylvania, in Cumberland County, at the confluence of Yellow Breeches Creek and the Susquehanna River; manufactures of hosiery, wool textiles, boxes, and tobacco products. Settled in 1810, it occupies the site of a former Shawnee village. 6,204 (1950).

New Deal. Term used by Franklin D. Roosevelt in broadly characterizing his personal views as presidential candidate on the occasion of his Chicago acceptance speech (July 2, 1932) before the Democratic national convention. During the subsequent campaign he elucidated the term in light of his proposed program of economic and social rehabilitation. Although the primary aim of the New Deal was the restoration of American economic stability, the term has since been applied to describe generally the successive Roosevelt administrations or the body of relief and reform legislation enacted under them, particularly during the period 1933-38.

New Decatur (dē.kā'tēr). Former city in Morgan County, Alabama, ab. 1 mi. S of Decatur. It was merged (1927) with Decatur.

New Delhi (dē'lī). Seat of the government of the Union of India and formerly the seat of the government of British India (Dec. 12, 1911-Aug. 15, 1947). It is a new city built by the British when they moved the capital here from Calcutta. It lies on the W bank of the Jumna River just SE of the old city of Delhi. It is a planned city with wide streets and beautiful modern buildings. During the hottest months of the summer, after the monsoon, the capital moves to Simla. 93,733 (1941), 276,314 (1951).

Newdigate (nū'dī.gāt), Sir Roger. b. at Arbury, Warwickshire, England, May 30, 1719; d. there, Nov. 23, 1806. English scholar and antiquary, the founder (1805) of the annual Newdigate prize (for English verse) at Oxford. He was a member of Parliament (1741-47 and 1750-80).

New Dongola (dōng'gō.lā). See Dongola.

New Durham (dūr'am). Unincorporated community in NE New Jersey, in Hudson County. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 5,583 (1940).

Newell (nū'el), Edward Theodore. b. at Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 15, 1886; d. at New York, Feb. 18, 1941. American numismatist. Author of Reattribution of Certain Tetradrachms of Alexander the Great (1912), The Seleucid Mint of Antioch (1918), The Octobols of Histiæa (1921), and The Coinage of the Eastern Seleucid Mints (1938).

Newell, Frederick Haynes. b. at Bradford, Pa., March 5, 1862; d. at Washington, D.C., July 5, 1932. American hydrographer and civil engineer. He was with the U.S. Geological Survey (1888-1902) and was its chief engineer (1902 et seq.). He was director (1907-14) of the U.S. Reclamation Service. He headed (1915-20) the department of civil engineering at the University of Illinois.

Newell, Robert Henry. [Pseudonym, Orpheus C. Kerr.] b. at New York, Dec. 13, 1836; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., in July, 1901. American journalist and humorist. He wrote The Orpheus C. Kerr Papers (1862-68), Versatilities (1871), and The Wailing Doll, or the Astors and Disasters of Society (1872).

New England (ing'glānd). Name given to the NE section of the U.S., comprising the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island. The section formed part of the "North Virginia" grant made (1606) by James I of England to the Plymouth Company. The name New England was given (1614) to it by Captain John Smith. Area, ab. 63,200 sq. mi.

New England, The Flowering of. See Flowering of New England, The.

New England Anti-Slavery Society. [Also called the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society.] Body established (1831) at Boston and dedicated to accomplishing the immediate and uncompensated abolition of Negro slavery. Its constitution was drawn up in part by William Lloyd Garrison. Although extremist in doctrine, the society was opposed to the employment of violence in achieving its ends. It was the predecessor of the American Anti-Slavery Society founded at Philadelphia in 1833, and as one of the auxiliary bodies of that organization was subsequently known as the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society.

New England Confederation. [Formal name, The United Colonies of New England.] Union effected by the colonies of Massachusetts Bay, Plymouth, Connecticut, and New Haven in 1643, to meet the need of a common defense against the Dutch and the Indians. It was discontinued in 1684.

New England Conservatory of Music. Music school established (1867) at Boston by Eben Tourjée.

New England Emigrant Aid Company. Settlement and colonization company incorporated (1854) by Eli Thayer for the purpose of facilitating the movement of free-state settlers to Kansas. It played an important role in the "bleeding Kansas" episode which preceded the Civil War, and went out of existence in 1866.

New England Nun, and Other Stories. A. Collection of 24 short stories by Mary Wilkins Freeman, published in 1891.

New England Primer. Small elementary book of religious instruction, containing various verses, the Westminster Shorter Catechism, and others. It was compiled by Benjamin Harris and published (c1683) by him at Boston.

New English Art Club. Society founded at London in 1885 by a group of artists who wished opportunities for exhibition not granted by the established galleries. The work of the British impressionists was largely shown under its direction.

Newfield (nū'fēld). Former name of Bridgeport, Conn.

New Forest. Royal forest in the SW part of Hampshire, England. The tract was forcibly afforested by William the Conqueror, and used as a hunting demesne. It still contains ab. 144 sq. mi., in part belonging to the crown. It was the scene of the mysterious death of William II.

Newfoundland (nū.fund.land', nū'fund.land). [Original name, New-found land; French, Terre Neuve, meaning "New Land."] Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence off the E coast of Canada, of which it forms, with Labrador, the tenth province. It is bounded on the N by the Strait of Belle Isle (separating it from Labrador), on the E and S by the Atlantic Ocean, and on the W by the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It contains the peninsulas of Avalon in the SE and Petit Nord in the N. The coast is greatly indented, the surface generally elevated and hilly, and there are many lakes; the highest point on the island is 2,673 ft., near the W coast. Fishing is the chief occupation; the island has the largest cod fisheries in the world, and has also seal, herring, salmon, and lobster fisheries. The chief mineral resource now exploited is the iron ore deposit of Wabana, on Bell Island; 1,657,000 tons were mined and exported in 1949; other minerals produced include zinc, lead, copper, and fluorspar. The forests which cover a considerable part of the province supply pulpwood for several pulp and paper mills, which export nearly all of their production. Agriculture is a relatively minor occupation, because of the short and cool summers; the two principal agricultural areas are the valleys of the Humber and Codroy rivers in W Newfoundland. There is a railroad across the S and S central parts of the island, linking Port-aux-Basques near the SW corner with St. John's in the SE, and there is also a major international airport at Gander, the chief point of departure and arrival for commercial transatlantic flights. Newfoundland formed with Labrador, until 1934, a dominion of the British Commonwealth; from that date until 1949 it was a crown colony, with a governor and council. On April 1, 1949, after a popular referendum, Newfoundland and Labrador became the tenth province of Canada, with a government consisting of a lieutenant governor and a popularly elected house of assembly. Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497, the cod fishery commenced in the beginning of the 16th century, and the first important settlement was made by the English under Calvert in 1621. There were feuds between English and French fishermen, and by the treaty of 1713 Newfoundland was ceded to England. Representative government was granted in 1832. Capital, St. John's; area, 42,734 sq. mi.; pop. 361,416 (1951).

New Found Land. Poems by Archibald MacLeish, published in 1930.

New France (frans). Region in North America, in large part originally settled by France. By 1650 it included the basins of the St. Lawrence River and of the Great Lakes, with Labrador and the present Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and part of Maine, Quebec and Montreal were the chief settlements. By 1750 New France, with Louisiana added, comprised the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes basins, with the Mississippi basin, though settlements were confined to a few points on the lakes and rivers (Acadia had been ceded to England in 1713). The result of the treaty of 1763 was the cession of all the region E of the Mississippi to England, and that W of the Mississippi to Spain.

New Freedom. Name given by Woodrow Wilson to the economic and political program urged by him during his campaign for the presidency in 1912. His speeches were published (1913) in book form under that title. In outline, the New Freedom constituted a return of government to the voters with the initiative for reform resting with them. Wilson argued against the paternalistic state embodied in Theodore Roosevelt's New Nationalism and advocated a return to competition as an antidote to corporate economic power.

Newgate (nū'gāt). Western gate of London wall by which the Watling Street left the city. It was at first called Westgate, but later Chancellor's Gate. In the reign of Henry I Chancellor's Gate was rebuilt and called Newgate. At about the same time the county of Middlesex was given to the citizens of London, and Newgate was used for prisoners from that county. The use of this locality for a prison continues until the present day, although now only a house of detention is located here. Newgate always had an unsavory reputation, and resisted all efforts at reform. These began as early as the time of Richard Whittington, lord mayor several times in the period 1397-1420, who left a large sum for its improvement. The prison was burned during the Gordon riots in 1780, and was rebuilt in 1782. It was pulled down in 1902.

Newgate Calendar. Biographical record (1773 et seq.) of the most notorious criminals confined in Newgate prison.

New Georgia (jōr'jā). Island group in C Solomon Islands, SW Pacific, including the islands of New Georgia, Rendova, Vangunu, Gizo, and others. The islands are of volcanic origin, mountainous, and heavily forested; they have a tropical climate. In 1943 they were occupied by U.S. forces who attacked the Japanese bases established there; fighting was particularly severe in the vicinity of Munda airfield. Area of group, ab. 2,500 sq. mi.; of New Georgia island, ab. 1,300 sq. mi.

New Georgia. Former name for Vancouver Island and the Pacific coast opposite it.

New Glasgow (glās'gō, -kō). Town in N Nova Scotia, Canada, in Pictou County; port and shipping center for coal mined in the area; shipyards; metalworking, wood-working, and clay products industries. 9,933 (1951).

New Goa (gō'ā). See Nova Gôa.

New Granada (gra.nā'dā). [Spanish, Nueva Granada.] Earlier name of the South American country now called Colombia. It was given by the conqueror Gonzalo Jiménez de Quesada (1538), in remembrance of his native province of Granada; at that time the term included only the highlands about Bogotá. Under the colonial presidents (1564-1718) and viceroys (1719-1810) it embraced nearly the present territory of Colombia, except from 1710 to 1722, when Quito (the present Ecuador) was annexed to it. The official title under the viceroys was Nuevo Reino de Granada (New Kingdom of Granada). After the revolution New Granada was retained as a collective name for the provinces composing the old viceroyalty, though they were merged in the republic of Colombia (including also Venezuela and Quito) from 1819 to 1830. In the latter year Venezuela and Quito separated, and the Republic of New Granada was formed in 1831. In 1861, on the adoption of a federal constitution, the name was changed to United States of Colombia (now Republic of Colombia).

New Guatemala (gwā.tē.mā'lā). See Guatemala, city.

New Guinea (gin'i). [Also, Papua; Indonesian, Irian.] Large island of Malay Archipelago, situated N of Australia; the second largest island of the world. It is divided among three political subdivisions: Netherlands (or Dutch) New Guinea, the Territory of New Guinea, and the Territory of Papua. The island lies entirely S of the Equator, though near it, and has extensive mountainous highlands in the interior; there are hot coastal lowlands in the S, and more restricted lowland areas bordering the N coast. Length, ab. 1,500 mi.; area, ab. 305,000 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 2,000,000 (est.).

New Guinea, British. Former name of Papua territory.

New Guinea, Dutch (or Netherlands). See Netherlands New Guinea.

New Guinea, Territory of. Australian-mandated territory comprising the NE part of the island of New Guinea together with the islands of the Bismarck Archipelago and part of the Solomons (chiefly Bougainville and Buka) to the NE and E. The main part of the territory (ab. 69,700 sq. mi.) is the NE part of the island. The interior is largely mountainous or hilly (peaks on the Huon Peninsula reach over 13,000 ft.), and jungle-covered, with coastal lowlands and several broad interior valleys. The chief rivers are the Sepik and the Ramu. There are coconut plantations along the coast, and gold is mined in the interior in the vicinity of Wau; gold export in 1948 was 126,092 ounces. Before World War II the gold fields were served only by air transport, but a road has since been built to the coast. Until 1914, this territory formed the major part of the German possessions in the Pacific. In 1920 Australia was given a mandate over it and since then it has been governed by the commonwealth in close association with the territory of Papua to the S. The Japanese occupied the territory during World War II and many American and Australian troops saw action on the islands and on the mainland as the Japanese were gradually driven out. In 1945-46 the territories of New Guinea and Papua were placed under the control of one provisional administration. The capital used to be Rabaul on New Britain island but in 1941 plans were announced to move the capital to Lae on the mainland. This had not been done by the time the Japanese attacked; today the provisional seat of administration is at Port Moresby, in Papua. Area of New Guinea territory, 93,000 sq. mi.; pop., indigenous, 684,836 (1941, counted) plus 300,000 (est.); nonindigenous, 9,439 (1947) including: Europeans, 5,954, non-Europeans, 2,409, half-caste, 1,076 (1947).

Newhall (nū'hōl). Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County ab. 25 mi. NW of downtown Los Angeles. 2,527 (1950).

New Hampshire (hamp'shir). [Called the "Granite State."] State of the NE United States, bounded by the Canadian province of Quebec on the N, Maine on the E, the Atlantic Ocean on the SE, Massachusetts on the S, and Vermont (separated by the Connecticut River) on the W; a New England State, and one of the 13 original states of the American Union.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. New Hampshire is divided for administrative purposes into ten counties. It sends two representatives to Congress, and has four electoral votes. Leading cities are Concord, Manchester, and Nashua. Capital, Concord; area, 9,024 sq. mi. (9,304 sq. mi., including water); pop. 533,242 (1950), an increase of 8.5 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks 43rd in area, and 45th (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The surface of New Hampshire is mountainous in the N and W, and generally hilly elsewhere, excepting in the SE where the coastal lowland is flat or gently rolling; this is the best farming area of the state. In the N central sections are the White Mountains. In these mountains is the Presidential Range, containing Mount Washington (6,288 ft.), the highest point in the state and in the NE U.S. Flanking the Presidential Range are Pinkham Notch on the E and Crawford Notch. The W range of the White Mountains are the Franconia Mountains overlooking Franconia Notch; in this range is Profile (or Cannon) Mountain, which bears on its SE side a formation (sometimes called the Old Man of the Mountain) resembling a human profile (written about by Nathaniel Hawthorne in The Great Stone Face), and on its NE side a cannonlike formation. The entire White Mountain region comprises the loftiest elevations of the NE U.S., although there are many picturesque valleys. Drainage in the state is principally by the Merrimack River, which rises in the C White Mountains and flows S to Massachusetts. The Connecticut River, on the W boundary, has its source in the Connecticut Lakes in the N. The Salmon Falls and the Piscataqua rivers lie along the SE boundary; the Merrimack in the S and C area flows into Massachusetts; the Saco rises W of Mount Washington and flows SE into Maine; the Androscoggin rises in Umbagog Lake on the Maine-New Hampshire boundary, and flows SE in New Hampshire before turning E into Maine. Largest lake in the state is Lake Winnepesaukee, a summer resort area. Sunapee, Newfound, Winnisquam, and Squam Lakes are also resort areas. The state has cold winters with considerable snow, and pleasant, cool summers.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. New Hampshire is chiefly a manufacturing state, producing cotton and woollen goods, boots and shoes, paper and pulp, electrical equipment, and machinery in considerable quantities. Portsmouth, once a shipping city, is a center for shipbuilding and manufacturing; it derives considerable income from the Portsmouth Navy Yard which is located on Seavey's Island (a part of Kittery, Me.) nearby. Nashua and Manchester are also manufacturing centers. Sand, gravel, feldspar, mica, building stone, and clay are found. Concord is noted for its granite quarries. Agriculture is limited, much of the land being too rocky or sandy for farming. Poultry raising and dairying are the most important agricultural pursuits. Apples and other fruits, potatoes, hay, truck crops, and maple products are major products. Grapes, vegetables, corn, oats, buckwheat, and barley are also grown. The state is heavily forested. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 63 million dollars; from manufacturing, as high as 307 million; from mineral output, as high as 2,716,355; from resort or vacation business, as high as 120 million.

History. Pring explored (1603) the coast of New Hampshire as did (1605) Champlain. New Hampshire was visited (1614) by Captain John Smith; included in the region granted (1622) by James I to John Mason and Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and later (1629) in a grant to Mason alone. The first permanent settlements were made (1623) near Portsmouth and Dover. The region was under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts from 1641 to 1679, when it became a royal province; united at times again with Massachusetts; often disturbed by Indian wars; finally separated from Massachusetts in 1741. New Hampshire claimed Vermont until 1741, adjusting its boundary dispute with that state in 1782. A provisional independent government was established in 1776, the first constitution being adopted that same year. In the Revolutionary War many of its residents participated (1777) in the battle at Bennington, Vt., which resulted in a British defeat. New Hampshire was the ninth state to ratify (June 21, 1788) the federal Constitution. The quarrel between the state legislature and Dartmouth College (founded 1769), concerning the legislature's rights over the college board of trustees, resulted in the famous Dartmouth College case in which the U.S. Supreme Court rendered (1819) a decision upholding the rights of the college as granted in its charter. Daniel Webster, a Dartmouth graduate, defended the institution in this important case upholding private corporations.

Culture. New Hampshire is more urban (57.5 of the 1950 population) than rural in development. It has a sizable foreign-born population, the majority of this group comprising Canadians. There are very few Negroes. The state is a popular vacation area not only by virtue of its summer sports facilities but for its winter skiing. Notable residents of the state have been Josiah Bartlett, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Daniel Webster, Franklin Pierce, General John Stark, John G. Winant, and Winston Churchill (the novelist). At Peterborough in the S are the grave of the American composer Edward MacDowell and the MacDowell Colony for musicians and other artists. At Manchester is the Currier Art Gallery with fine collections including Italian Renaissance art, and 19th-century French wallpaper (taken from a house in Vermont). New Hampshire is the site of Phillips Exeter Academy, at Exeter, and St. Paul's School, at Concord, both widely known preparatory schools. Institutions of higher learning in the state include the state-supported University of New Hampshire, at Durham; Dartmouth College, at Hanover, possessing the famous murals by José Clemente Orozco; St. Anselm's College, at Manchester; New England College at Henniker; Mount Saint Mary's College, at Hooksett; Rivier College, at Hudson. The state motto is "Live Free or Die." The state flower is the purple lilac; the state tree is the white or paper birch.

New Hampshire. Poem in blank verse by Robert Frost, published in 1923 as the title piece of a volume for which he was awarded the Pulitzer prize in 1924.

New Hampshire Grants. Name given to Vermont in its earlier history.

New Hampton (hamp'ton). [Former name, Chickasaw Center.] City in NE Iowa, county seat of Chickasaw County, 3,323 (1950).

New Hanover (han'ô'ver). Former name of Lavongai.

New Harbough Glacier. See Ferrat Glacier.

New Harmony (hâr'môni). Town in SW Indiana, in Posey County, on the Wabash River ab. 22 mi. NW of Evansville. Founded (1814-15) by George Rapp and his followers, it was purchased in 1825 by Robert Owen, who developed the New Harmony colony as an experiment in Utopian socialism. Dissension and secession to new colonies of the dissenting groups led to the breaking-up of the experiment; Owen left in 1828. Before the Civil War, it was one of the scientific and cultural centers of the U.S. 1,360 (1950).

New Haven (hâ'ven). Puritan colony in New England, established in 1638 and united with Connecticut in 1662. Its government was rigidly theocratic. It comprised a few adjoining towns besides New Haven.

New Haven. [Called the "Elm City."] City in S Connecticut, a county seat of New Haven County, near Long Island Sound. Manufactures include firearms, clocks, tools, machinery, textiles, rubber goods, hardware and other metal products, paper, and toys. It is the seat of Yale University. It was settled by English colonists under John Davenport and Theophilus Eaton in 1638, became a city in 1784, and was the state capital alternately with Hartford from 1701 to 1873, when Hartford was made sole capital. Pop. of city, 160,605 (1940), 164,443 (1950); of urbanized area, 244,836 (1950).

Newhaven (nû.hâ'ven, nû'hâ'ven). Urban district and seaport in NE England, in East Sussex, situated on the English Channel at the mouth of the river Ouse, ab. 9 mi. E of Brighton, ab. 57 mi. S of London by rail. It is the terminus of a steam-packet line to Dieppe, France. 7,785 (1951).

New Hebrides (heb'ri.dêz). [French, Nouvelles Hébrides.] Island group in the SW Pacific, NE of New Caledonia and W of the Fiji Islands. The islands are largely mountainous and heavily forested; the lowland climate is hot and humid. The chief export product is copra; there are numerous coconut plantations. Other exports include cacao, coffee, and timber. The native inhabitants are Melanesians. The islands were discovered in 1606 by a Portuguese captain, and were visited and named by Captain Cook in 1774. Both the French and British claimed the group, and finally in 1906 a condominium was established, with both British and French resident commissioners. Area, ab. 5,700 sq. mi.; pop. 47,890 (1946), including: natives, 44,750; Indo-Chinese, 2,037; French, 839; British, 266.

New Helvetia (hel.vê'shâ). A former name of Sacramento, Calif.

New Holland (hol'and). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Lancaster County, NE of Lancaster, 2,602 (1950).

New Holland. Former name of Australia.

New Home—Who'll Follow? or Glimpses of Western Life. A Collection of sketches dealing with life on the Michigan frontier by Caroline Kirkland, published in 1839 under the pseudonym Mrs. Mary Clavers.

New Hope Church. Locality in Paulding County, Ga., ab. 4 mi. NE of Dallas. In the Civil War it was the scene of a series of skirmishes on May 25-28, 1864, between Union forces under W. T. Sherman and the Confederates under Joseph E. Johnston, the former losing 2,400 men, the latter 3,000.

New Hyde Park (hid pârk). Residential and manufacturing village in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island, 7,349 (1950).

New Iberia (îbir'î.a). City in S Louisiana, parish seat of Iberia Parish, on the Bayou Teche: shipping point for cotton and sugar; manufactures of condiments, milled rice, canned vegetables, and canned seafoods, 16,467 (1950).

Newington (nû'ing.ton). Town (in Connecticut the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in C Connecticut, in Hartford County: suburb of Hartford. Pop. of town, 9,110 (1950); of village, 6,034 (1950).

Newington. District of London, in Southwark metropolitan borough, SE London, situated on the S side of the river Thames near Lambeth metropolitan borough.

New Inn, or the Light Heart, The. Comedy by Ben Jonson, first played by the King's Servants in 1629, entered on the Stationers' Register in 1631, and published the same year.

New Ireland (îr'land). [Former German name, Neu Mecklenburg.] Island of the Bismarck Archipelago, belonging to the Territory of New Guinea, situated in the W Pacific Ocean, ab. 400 mi. NE of New Guinea. The interior is largely mountainous, with a peak elevation of ab. 7,050 ft.; the chief export is copra. Kavieng, situated near the NW tip of the island, is the chief town, and the capital of the administrative district including the island. Area of district, ab. 3,340 sq. mi.; pop. (native), 37,951 (1947); area of island, ab. 3,000 sq. mi.; pop. (native), 34,953 (est. 1950); (nonindigenous), 527 (est. 1950).

New Israelites (iz'îr.ē.lits). See Southcottians.

New Jersey (jêr'zi). [Called the "Garden State."] State of the E United States, bounded by New York on the N, New York (separated by the Hudson River, Kill van Kull, Arthur Kill and Lower New York Bay) and the Atlantic Ocean on the E, Delaware Bay on the SW, and Pennsylvania, Delaware (both separated by the Delaware River), and Delaware Bay on the W: a Middle Atlantic State, and one of the 13 original states of the American Union.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. New Jersey is divided for administrative purposes into 21 counties. It sends 14 representatives to Congress, and has 16 electoral votes. Leading cities are Atlantic City, Camden, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Newark, Paterson, and Trenton. Capital, Trenton: area, 7,522 sq. mi. (7,836 sq. mi., including water); pop. 4,835,329 (1950), an increase of 16.2 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks 45th in area, and eighth (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The greater part of the state lies within the Atlantic coastal plain; this area is partly wooded "pine barrens" with sandy soil, and partly fertile farm land. In the NW are the Kittatinny and Highland ranges of the Appalachian system. The highest point in the state is High Point (1,801 ft.) in the Kittatinny Mountains and in the N tip of the state. The Hudson, flanked on its W bank by the Palisades, a line of ridges extending S from New York State, and the Delaware are the chief rivers; the numerous smaller rivers include the Raritan, in the N and C section, flowing E into Raritan Bay; the Toms River, in the E, flowing E into Barnegat Bay; the Great Egg Harbor River, in the S, flowing SE into Great Egg Inlet and Great Egg Bay; the Maurice, in the SW, flowing into Delaware Bay; the Hackensack, flowing S into Newark Bay from New York; the Passaic, in the NE, flowing S, E, and N, before turning S at Paterson (here are situated the scenic Falls of the Passaic River, 70 ft. high), and down to Newark Bay. The Atlantic coast of the state is irregular, the largest projections being Cape May, at the S tip of the state, one of the oldest summer resorts on the coast; and Sandy Hook, a 6-mi. peninsula in the NE (only a few mi. S of Long Island, N.Y.), the site of Fort Hancock as well as the oldest operating lighthouse in the U.S. The state shares with New York in the Port of New York Authority, which controls bridge and tunnel traffic affecting the two states, and with Pennsylvania in the Delaware River Joint Commission for the ownership and operation of the Camden-Philadelphia bridge. New Jersey's climate is fairly typical of that found in the NE United States, but varies somewhat from N to S, the annual mean temperature in the S being slightly higher than that of the N; the coast is cooled in summer by frequent sea breezes.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. New Jersey is a leading manufacturing state. The production of textiles (particularly silks and silk goods), paints, soap, chemicals, electrical machinery, iron and steel products, and pottery, as well as petroleum refining, copper smelting, and meat packing are all important industries. Manufacturing is located chiefly in the NE part of the state, Paterson, Hoboken, Passaic, Newark, Jersey City, and Elizabeth being among the leading industrial cities there; Trenton, on the W boundary, and Camden, in the SW, are the major industrial cities in other sections. The state's extensive waterways, highways, and railroads provide numerous thoroughfares for the export of its products. Agriculture is specialized in truck farming and considerable quantities of tomatoes, potatoes, sweet corn, apples, peaches, and dairy and poultry products are produced. Dairying, poultry raising, and vegetable freezing or canning are notable occupations. New Jersey has extensive fisheries; oysters are the major catch; clams, shad, bluefish, cod, and menhaden are also found. Zinc is the state's most important mineral, New Jersey being a leader, with Idaho, Arizona, and Oklahoma, in its production. Other valuable natural resources are iron, clay, gravel, and sand. Seashore resorts with excellent sandy beaches line the Atlantic coast from Long Branch to Cape May; they attract great numbers of vacationers in the summer from the great cities of the Northeast. Atlantic City is the principal resort city. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 253 million dollars; from manufacturing, as high as four billion; from mineral output, as high as 32 million.

History. New Jersey was first settled (c1617) by the Dutch in what are now Bergen and Hudson counties. Swedish settlement occurred along the Delaware River at about the same time, but the Swedes were soon forced to submit (1655) to Dutch authority administered by General Peter Stuyvesant. As a part of New Netherland the New Jersey region was given up to the English monarch Charles II; he granted it to the Duke of York, who in turn granted it to Lord John Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. It was known as Nova Caesarea after the Isle of Jersey (anciently called Caesarea), of which Carteret had been lieutenant governor. The region was reconquered by the Dutch in 1673 but was soon restored (1674) to England, which sold West Jersey (W and S New Jersey) in 1674 to Quakers (William Penn and associates), and East Jersey (N and E New Jersey) to them in 1682. Proprietary government ceased in 1702 when New Jersey became a royal province; administered under the same governor as New York until 1738, when each colony received its own governor. During the Revolutionary War the state was in the forefront of the struggle for independence and was the scene of the battles of Trenton, Princeton, and Monmouth. Morristown National Historic Park, at Morristown, commemorates the site of General George Washington's Continental Army headquarters during the winters of 1776-77 and 1779-80. New Jersey was the third state to ratify (Dec. 18, 1787) the federal Constitution; adopted its own first constitution in 1844; adopted in 1947 a new constitution including a "Bill of Rights" specifically permitting labor to organize and to bargain collectively, and also prohibiting segregation in public schools or the state militia.

Culture. More than 86 percent of New Jersey's population was urban in 1950. A considerable percentage of residents is foreign-born (chiefly Italian, German, Polish, and Russian, with a liberal representation from other countries). The Negro population is sizable. Large, attractive suburbs of Newark, such as Montclair, Orange, East Orange, South Orange, West Orange, Maplewood, and Bloomfield, are the homes of many businessmen who commute daily to New York City. Newark itself is an educational center, as are New Brunswick and Princeton. At Weehawken Alexander Hamilton was fatally wounded (1804) in a duel with Aaron Burr. Near Wrightstown is Fort Dix Military Reservation, where thousands of recruits were processed in both World Wars. At Lakehurst is a U.S. naval air station where the Graf Zeppelin began and completed (1929) its 21-day flight around the world and where the Hindenburg was destroyed (1937) by fire. Paterson's textile mills were the scene of labor conflicts in 1828, 1910, and 1933. Jersey City, scene of the World War I Black Tom explosion, was for many years known for its Democratic political machine headed by the mayor Frank Hague; he retired from office in 1947. Notable residents of the state have been Alexander Hamilton, who attended school there, Philip Freneau, Joseph Bonaparte, Thomas A. Edison, Joyce Kilmer, Thomas Nast, Bret Harte, Henry van Dyke, Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson, and Albert Einstein. Among the state's many institutions of higher learning are the state-supported Rutgers University (including New Jersey College for Women), at New Brunswick, with branches at Newark; the Institute for Advanced Study, at Princeton; Newark College of Engineering, at Newark; Princeton Theological Seminary, at Princeton; Seton Hall College, at South Orange; Stevens Institute of Technology, at Hoboken. The state motto is "Liberty and Prosperity." The state flower is the violet; the state tree, the red oak.

New Kensington (ken'sington). City in W Pennsylvania, in Westmoreland County, on the Allegheny River ab. 14 mi. NE of Pittsburgh; manufactures of aluminum products and glass. It was incorporated in 1934. Pop. 25,146 (1950).

New Kilmainham (kil-mān'am). See Kilmainham.

New Lanark (lan'ark). Small village in S Scotland, in Lanarkshire, on the river Clyde ab. 1 mi. S of Lanark. A manufacturing settlement was made there in connection with the philanthropic schemes of Robert Owen.

New Lancaster (lang'kas.ter). Former name of Lancaster, Ohio.

Newland Archer (ār'cher). See Archer, Newland.

Newlands (nū'landz), Francis Griffith. b. at Natchez, Miss., Aug. 28, 1848; d. Dec. 24, 1917. American politician, Democratic senator (1903-17) from Nevada. He was instrumental in the passage (1913) of the Newlands Act for mediation and conciliation of labor disputes and active in establishing (1914) the Federal Trade Commission. As a member (1893-1903) of the House of Representatives, he became a leader in shaping Democratic economic policy, including plans for tariff revision and regulation of interstate commerce. The U.S. Reclamation Service came into being as the result of passage of the Reclamation Act of 1902, also called the Newlands Act.

Newlands Act. See Reclamation Act of 1902.

New Laws. [Spanish. Nuevas Ordenanzas.] Code of Spanish laws promulgated at Madrid in 1542, and having for their special object the protection of American Indians. They were the outcome of the efforts of Bartolomé de Las Casas and were originally written by him, but were published with some changes. These laws provided that all Indian slaves should be freed unless a legal title to them could be produced by their masters. Repatriamientos or grants of Indian labor were greatly restricted and could not be inherited; civil and ecclesiastical officers were forbidden to hold them. The treatment of slaves was regulated, inspectors were appointed to watch over them, and provision was made for their religious instruction. At the same time some of the old audiences were suppressed and others were created. The new laws were vehemently opposed by the colonists, who declared that they would be impoverished. The viceroy of Mexico was forced to suspend them, but later (1551) they were enforced by Luis de Velasco, and 150,000 male slaves alone were freed. In Peru an attempt to enforce the laws resulted in the rebellion of Gonzalo Pizarro. They were suspended as to that country in 1547, and by 1560 had become practically ineffective.

New Lexington (lek'sington). Village in S Ohio, county seat of Perry County, in a coal-mining area; manufactures of pottery and tile; distributing point for coal. 4,233 (1950).

New Lights. See Campbellites.

Newlin (nū'lin), Katharine. Maiden name of Burt, Katharine.

New Lisbon (liz'bon). Former name of Lisbon, Ohio.

New Liskeard (dis.kārd'). Town in N Ontario, Canada, situated at the NW corner of Lake Timiskaming, ab. 325 mi. N of Toronto and ab. 110 mi. N of North Bay; sawmills. 4,215 (1951).

New Liverpool (liv'er.pōl). A former name of Wilington, N.C.

New London (lun'don). City in SE Connecticut, a county seat (with Norwich) of New London County, on the Thames River ab. 3 mi. from Long Island Sound. It has shipyards and manufactures of silk, textile machinery, garments, and printing presses. It has considerable commerce, is a summer resort, and was formerly noted for its fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pīne; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pūll; ʔh, then; ʔ, d or j; ʃ, s or sh; t, t or ch; whale fisheries (next to New Bedford). It was captured by the British under Benedict Arnold in 1781. It is the seat of a U.S. submarine base, of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, and of Connecticut College, 30,551 (1950).

New London. City in E Wisconsin, in Outagamie and Waupaca counties, on the Wolf River; lumber center. 4,922 (1950).

New Machiavelli (mak'ia.vel'i), The. Novel by H. G. Wells, published in 1911.

New Madrid (mad'rid). City in SE Missouri, county seat of New Madrid County, on the Mississippi River ab. 46 mi. SW of Cairo, Ill. A violent earthquake in 1811 caused much destruction here. In the Civil War the city was besieged (1861) by Union forces under General Albert A. Pope. 2,726 (1950).

New Malton (mōl'ton). See under Malton.

Newman (nū'man), Allen George. b. at New York, Aug. 28, 1875; d. Feb. 2, 1940. American sculptor who executed the Henry Hudson monument at New York and the Joel Chandler Harris monument at Atlanta, Ga. Among his other works are medals and portrait figures.

Newman, Christopher. Hero of The American (1877), novel by Henry James.

Newman, Ernest. b. at Liverpool, England, Nov. 30, 1868—. English music critic. He was a reviewer for the Birmingham Post (1906-19) and the London Times (1920-39). Author of Gluck and the Opera (1895), Hugo Wolf (1907), Wagner as Man and Artist (1924), The Unconscious Beethoven (1927), Fact and Fiction about Wagner (1931), The Life of Richard Wagner (4 vols., 1933-46), and Wagner Nights (1949; American title, The Wagner Operas).

Newman, Francis William. b. at London, June 27, 1805; d. at Weston-super-Mare, England, Oct. 4, 1897. English scholar and miscellaneous writer; brother of John Henry Newman. In 1826 he was graduated from Oxford (Worcester College), and was made fellow of Balliol. In 1840 he was made classical professor in Manchester New College, and was professor (1846-69) of Latin in University College, London. He was a rationalist and opposed in principle to his brother's stand. He was much criticized for his Contributions chiefly to the Early History of Cardinal Newman (1891). He wrote Phases of Faith (1850), History of the Hebrew Monarchy (1847), The Soul (1849), Regal Rome (1852), Theism (1858), Handbook of Modern Arabic (1866), Libyan Vocabulary (1882), Politica (1889), Economica (1890), translations from Horace and Homer, and others.

Newman, Horatio Hackett. b. near Seale, Ala., March 19, 1875—. American zoologist. Author of The Biology of Twins (1917), Readings in Evolution, Genetics, and Eugenics (1921), Evolution Yesterday and Today (1932), The Phylum Chordata (1939), Multiple Human Births (1940), and other works.

Newman, John Henry. b. at London, Feb. 21, 1801; d. at Edgbaston, near Birmingham, England, Aug. 11, 1890. English Anglican divine and Roman Catholic cardinal. His father was a banker and young Newman took his degree at Oxford (Trinity College) in 1820. He was elected fellow of Oriel College in 1822. He became curate (1824) of St. Clement's, Oxford, and was tutor (1826) at Oriel. In 1828 he was vicar of Saint Mary's, the university chapel, and in 1831-32 preached before the university. He resigned (1832) his tutorship after a quarrel with the provost over his opposition to religious liberalism and ended a period in which he had come into contact with E. B. Pusey, John Keble, and Richard Hurrell Froude. In 1833 he published The Ariens of the Fourth Century and in that same year went on an extended trip to the Mediterranean with Froude. There he wrote Lead, Kindly Light and other poems which were published (1834) in Lyra Apostolica, to which Froude also contributed. He returned to England less than a week before Keble delivered his famous sermon (July 14, 1833) on National Apostasy, considered the beginning of the Oxford Movement. Newman soon became the acknowledged leader of the movement, meant to restore the doctrine of apostolic succession. He soon began writing the Tracts for the Times, a series attempting to establish a foundation of doctrine for the Church of England, normally split between High (ceremonial) Church and Low (liberal) Church, these writings gave to the Oxford Movement its alternative name, the Tractarian Movement. The tracts reached their climax in 1841 with the publication of Tract XC, in which Newman adopted the position that the Thirty-Nine Articles, the basic creed of the Church of England, was not in conflict with the basic tenets of Roman Catholicism, but was rather an attempt to correct abuses of those common bases. The tract raised a storm in Oxford, and the Bishop of Oxford ordered the series ended. Newman soon resigned the position he had held (1833-41) as editor of the British Critic, and went into seclusion. In 1843 he published a retraction of all criticism he had made of the Roman Catholic Church and resigned his vicarship. He published (1845) Essay on the Development of Christian Doctrine and that year was admitted to the Roman Catholic Church. In 1847, at Rome, he was ordained a priest as a member of the Oratorian order, the order founded by Saint Philip (Filippo) Neri. He returned (1847) to England to found, near Birmingham, a branch of the Oratorian Congregation. He attacked (1851) an ex-priest named Achilli in his Lectures on the Present Position of Roman Catholics, with the result that he was sued for libel; Newman proved the factual basis of his allegations but was nevertheless found guilty and assessed 100 pounds damage and costs of 12,000 pounds. The entire sum, and more, the surplus being donated to charity, was received in the form of gifts within a short time. In 1854 he went to Dublin to become rector of a Catholic University there, but the position was uncongenial and he returned to England in 1858. He revised a series of lectures he had given at Dublin and published them as one of his most popular and enduring works, The Idea of a University Defined (1873); in it he holds that the university's work is not to provide factual knowledge but rather to train the mind. In 1858 he also broached the idea of a Roman Catholic school at Oxford, but the opposition of other members of his church, among whom was H. E. Manning, caused him to drop the idea. In December, 1863, Charles Kingsley reviewed in Macmillan's Magazine the History of England by J. A. Froude, younger brother of Newman's old friend; in the review Kingsley attacked what he believed to be Newman's stated disregard of the principle of the truth. Newman answered with what is generally considered his greatest work, the Apologia pro vita sua, or a History of My Religious Opinions (1864), a beautifully written history of Newman's spiritual life. The result was a tremendous popular acclaim, from both sides, for his brilliant exposition. In 1866 he published his most popular poem, A Dream of Gerontius, and in 1870 his logical approach to belief, A Grammar of Assent. At this period he was involved in a widespread misunderstanding of his position when he opposed the enunciation of the doctrine of papal infallibility, a matter that was splitting the Roman Catholic Church into warring camps. Newman had no doubt of the correctness of the doctrine, but he questioned the wisdom of its publication at that time; the resultant controversy widened the gap between him and the more liberal Roman Catholic clergy. One result of the quarrel was to cause Pope Pius IX. to look askance at Newman. When Newman wrote (1877) an answer to W. E. Gladstone's attack on the church, he addressed it to the Duke of Norfolk, the principal Roman Catholic layman in the country. The letter was brought to the attention of the Vatican, and when Leo XIII. ascended the papal throne, Newman was appointed (1879) Cardinal of Saint George in Velabro; because of his age he was allowed to remain in England. He was at the same time appointed honorary fellow of his own college, Trinity, an honor hitherto unknown there. Newman retired to Edgbaston to live out his remaining years. Newman, more than any other man, has been credited with the growth of Roman Catholicism in Protestant England and the U.S.; not only his personal appeal but his writing lives on and is responsible for many conversions to Roman Catholicism.

Newman Nogg (nogz). See Noggs, Newman.

Newmarket (nū'mār'ket). Urban district in C England, in West Suffolk, situated W of the East Anglian Heights (a range of chalk hills) ab. 14 mi. E of Cambridge, ab. 70 mi. NE of London by rail. Horse races have been run annually on Newmarket Heath since the reign of James I. 10,184 (1951).

Newmarket. Town in SE New Hampshire, in Rockingham County; manufactures of shoes and rayon. 2,709 (1950).

New Market (nū' mār'ket). Unincorporated community in C New Jersey, in Middlesex County, near New Brunswick. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 4,512 (1940).

Newmarket (nū'mār'ket). Manufacturing town in SE Ontario, Canada, ab. 26 mi. N of Toronto. 5,356 (1951).

New Martinsville (mār'tinz.vil). Town in NW West Virginia, county seat of Wetzel County, in a petroleum area. It was platted in 1838. Pop. 4,084 (1950).

New Mexico (mek'si.kō). [Called the "Sunshine State"; also: the "Land of Enchantment," the "Spanish State."] State of the SW United States, bounded by Colorado on the N, Oklahoma and Texas on the E, Texas and Mexico on the S, and Arizona on the W.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. New Mexico is divided for administrative purposes into 32 counties. The state sends two representatives to Congress, and has four electoral votes. Leading cities are Albuquerque and Santa Fe. Capital, Santa Fe; area, 121,511 sq. mi. (121,665 sq. mi., including water); pop. 681,187 (1950), an increase of 28.1 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks fourth in area, and 40th (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. New Mexico is almost square in shape, being irregular on the S boundary only. Its surface is elevated and is traversed by ranges of the Rocky Mountains and by the Rio Grande, both running from N to S. Highest point in the state (13,151 ft.) is Wheeler Peak in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, in the N; the Sacramento Mountains, lying in the S, extend into Texas. Running N and S, between the W boundary of New Mexico and the Rio Grande, is the Continental Divide, which is the line of Rocky Mountain peaks separating the waters flowing N or E from those flowing W. Second to the Rio Grande in importance is the Pecos River, which has its source in the N and C area and flows SE into Texas. In the SW is the Gila River, which flows into Arizona. In the SE and extending into Texas is the Llano Estacado (or Staked Plain), a vast plateau with an elevation ranging between 3,000 and 5,000 ft. The state has a pleasant dry climate considered particularly healthful for persons with pulmonary and respiratory ailments.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. New Mexico is principally agricultural, although the scanty rainfall makes large-scale irrigation necessary. Cotton, wheat, beans, hay, vegetables, fruits, and cereals are the main crops. Vast grassy acres provide much pasture land and have fostered a tremendous livestock industry; sheep are raised extensively, producing considerable quantities of wool; cattle are raised for meat and dairy products. The state has many thousands of forested acres, and timber is an important commercial product. Industry is confined chiefly to flour and grist milling and other food processing, lumbering, and Indian arts and crafts. The state is rich in minerals, many of its resources being still unexploited, and mining is a major occupation. Petroleum, potash, copper, natural gas, zinc, silver, gold, natural gasoline, coal, and lead are mined. It is estimated that the state has vast undeveloped resources of gypsum and coal. An important source of revenue to the inhabitants of the state is the enormous travel industry. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 121 million dollars; from mineral output, as high as 117 million; from manufacturing, as high as 26 million; from the tourist industry, as high as 150 million.

History. In prehistoric times New Mexico was the home of Indians who had achieved a high degree of civilization. The Gila Cliff Dwellings National Monument (160 acres; established 1907), Chaco Canyon National Monument (ab. 240 acres; established 1906), and Bandelier National Monument (ab. 27,048 acres; established 1916) all contain cliff dwellings or ruins of cliff dwellings; Aztec Ruins National Monument (ab. 27 acres; established 1923) is the site of a prehistoric pueblo, and Gran Quivira National Monument (ab. 450 acres; established 1909) contains pueblo ruins. The first European known to have visited (1536) New Mexico saw adobe and stone cities of the Zuni Indians. His exaggerated stories of having seen cities rich in gold and gems led Francisco Vasquez de Coronado to explore (c1540-42) the region. The first permanent settlement by Spaniards was made (1598) near what is now San Juan Pueblo, by Don Juan Onate and a group of several hundred. Santa Fe, ab. 30 mi. SE, was founded in 1610 as the capital of the region; it is the oldest capital city in the U.S. Franciscan missions soon sprang up in the region, and the efforts of the missionaries to stamp out the Indian religious practices and the authoritarian methods of the Spanish administrators brought on a revolt (1680) of the Pueblo Indians, who murdered hundreds of Spaniards and drove the remainder S to a point near what is now El Paso, Tex. Santa Fe was not reconquered until 1692. After Mexico received (1821) its independence, New Mexico was governed by it. In 1846 General Stephen W. Kearney captured much of New Mexico. By the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848, New Mexico was ceded by Mexico to the U.S.; organized (1850) as a territory including Arizona and part of Colorado; enlarged (1853) by a strip of land in the S gained through the Gadsden Purchase. During the Civil War New Mexico adhered to the Union cause. An act providing for its admission as a state of the Union was signed on June 20, 1910, but considerable conflict arose over the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as a single state or as two states, and it was not until Jan. 6, 1912, that New Mexico was admitted alone as the 47th state. In 1912 the state entered upon a historic role when Los Alamos, a town atop a mesa in the Jemez Mountains, was selected as the site of an atomic bomb laboratory; here the first atomic bomb was assembled. The Los Alamos laboratory is still engaged in atomic research, with much of the work being done there by the University of California.

Culture. New Mexico's population is slightly more urban (50.2 percent of the 1950 population) than rural in development. Many of its inhabitants are of Spanish descent as well as Spanish-speaking. About 50,000 inhabitants are Indians living on reservations. Architecture in the state reflects the Spanish Colonial and Pueblo tradition. Taos, ab. 60 mi. NE of Santa Fe, is the home of an art colony, as are Santa Fe and Albuquerque. At Santa Fe are the Museum of Navajo Ceremonial Art with exhibits including sand paintings, and the Museum of New Mexico, located in the Palace of the Governors, which dates from c1609. White Sands National Monument (ab. 140,247 acres; established 1933) contains white gypsum sand dunes rising as high as 50 ft.; White Sands Proving Grounds (ab. 125 mi. long, SW of the national monument, is the U.S. testing ground for guided missiles. Carlsbad Caverns National Park (71 sq. mi.; established 1930) contains huge limestone caves (the world's largest series of caves), in which are found great stalagmites, stalactites, and other stone formations. Leading institutions of higher education in the state include the state-supported University of New Mexico, at Albuquerque. The state motto is Crescit Eundo, meaning "It Grows as It Goes." The state flower is the yucca.

New Milford (mil'ford). Town (in Connecticut the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in W Connecticut, in Litchfield County, on the Housatonic River ab. 32 mi. NW of New Haven; trading point for dairy products. Pop. of town, 5,799 (1950); of village, 2,673 (1950).

New Milford. Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County, near Paterson. 6,006 (1950).

New Mills (milz). Urban district and manufacturing town in C England, in Derbyshire, situated on the river Goyt ab. 12 mi. SE of Manchester, ab. 174 mi. NW of London by rail. It has a large textile-printing industry, and is an important hiking and climbing center for the Peak District. 8,473 (1951).

New Model Army. In English history, the name given to the Parliamentary army from the time of its reorganization in 1645. It was commanded by Sir Thomas Fairfax, and later by Oliver Cromwell.

New Munster (mun'ster). Former name of South Island, New Zealand.

Newnan (nū'nan). City in W Georgia, county seat of Coweta County, in an agricultural region. It has lumber and textile mills, and is a marketing center for horses and mules. 8,218 (1950).

New Nationalism. Name used in describing the political program and philosophy of Theodore Roosevelt, particularly in relation to the campaign of 1912, when he was the presidential candidate of the Progressive ("Bull Moose") Party. Used as a slogan against the New Freedom of Woodrow Wilson's first presidential campaign, the New Nationalism stressed social, political, and economic reforms and the strengthening of national powers to extend popular government and the concept of the general welfare.

Newnes Glacier (nūnz). See Frank Newnes Glacier.
New Netherland (nērŋ'ērland). Dutch colony which eventually became the state of New York. It was settled (1613) along the Hudson River, and later along the Delaware River. Taken (1664) by the British, it was granted to the Duke of York, who renamed it New York.

Newnham College (nūn'ām). College for women at Cambridge, England, but not formally connected with Cambridge University (although it has access to all necessary university facilities). It was founded in 1871. The college consists of five halls: Old Hall (originally Newnham Hall), Sidgwick Hall, Clough Hall (so called after its first principal, Anne J. Clough, sister of Arthur Hugh Clough), Peile Hall, and College Hall, used chiefly for dining and for college concerts and debates.

New Norwegian (nōr.wē'jan). See under Landismaal.

New Orkney (ōrk'nī). See South Orkney Islands.

New Orleans (ōr'lēanz, ōrlanz, ōrlanz'). Called the "Crescent City." City in SE Louisiana, parish seat of Orleans Parish, on the N bank of the Mississippi, ab. 107 mi. from the Gulf of Mexico. It is the largest city of Louisiana and the chief seaport of the Mississippi valley. New Orleans lies on flat land between Lake Ponchartrain on the N and the Mississippi River on the S. Though most of the city is above sea level, its elevation is so slight that the level of the Mississippi is higher than the ground, and the city is protected from flood by high levees, and by an emergency diversion spillway W of New Orleans. Originally the area was swampy and drainage was so poor that several canals were constructed in the city; later these were covered and furnished space for parkways and wide avenues. New Orleans is one of the two leading commercial centers in the SE U.S. It has manufactures of refined sugar, textiles, clothing, furniture, foodstuffs, chemicals, and petroleum products. New Orleans was founded by the French under Bienville in 1718, passed to Spain in 1763, to France in 1800, and to the U.S. in 1803. It was incorporated in 1805. In the Civil War it was seized by the Confederates in 1861, and was recaptured by Union forces under General Benjamin F. Butler in 1862. From 1868 to 1880 it was the state capital. It was the scene of political riots in 1877, and of the lynching (1891) of 11 Italians who were suspected of complicity in the murder of the chief of police. A famous Mardi Gras is held here annually. Pop. of city, 494,537 (1940), 570,445 (1950); of urbanized area, 659,768 (1950).

New Orleans, Battle of. Victory near New Orleans, Jan. 8, 1815, gained by the Americans (ab. 6,000) under Andrew Jackson over the British (ab. 12,000) under Sir Edward Pakenham (killed in the battle). The loss of the British was over 2,000; that of the Americans, who were sheltered by breastworks, eight killed and 13 wounded. The battle occurred two weeks after the Treaty of Ghent, which ended the war, had been concluded (but word of this had not reached New Orleans at the time of the battle).

New Paltz (pōlts). Village in SE New York, in Ulster County; summer resort. It contains the remains of a settlement made by Huguenots in 1677. It is the seat of a state teachers college. 2,285 (1950).

New Philadelphia (fil.ə.del'fi.ə). City in E Ohio, county seat of Tuscarawas County; manufactures of beer and metal products. It was established in 1804, and became county seat in 1808. Pop. 12,948 (1950).

New Philippines (fil'ipēnz). See under Caroline Islands.

New Place. House of William Shakespeare's residence and death at Stratford-upon-Avon, England. The foundations still remain. It is now believed to have been built c1490. Shakespeare bought it in 1597, paying 60 pounds for it in that year, and a second 60 pounds in 1602. At that time the house was thought to be the best in the town, and there were two barns, two gardens, and two orchards belonging to it. Shakespeare afterward enlarged the gardens. It is not known in what year he retired there permanently from London, but it was his home in 1598. The house was torn down in 1759; the site was bought by subscription in 1861.

New Plymouth (plīm'uth). Seaport in New Zealand, on the W shore of North Island, ab. 150 mi. NW of Wellington. 24,923 (1951).

New Ponca (pong'ka). Former name of Ponca City, Okla.

Newport (nū'pōrt). City in NE Arkansas, county seat of Jackson County; commercially important as a railroad intersection and for the shipping of pecans. 6,254 (1950).

Newport. Municipal borough and market town in S England, county seat of the Isle of Wight, on the river Medina ab. 5 mi. S of Cowes. Near it is Carisbrooke Castle. 20,426 (1951).

Newport. County borough, seaport, market town, and industrial center in W England, in Monmouthshire, situated on the river Usk ab. 3 mi. SW of Caerleon, ab. 134 mi. W of London by rail. It has iron and steel manufactures, especially of iron pipe and tubing. Formerly it was an important, wooden shipbuilding center. The town exports coal (mainly to Argentina) and iron and steel products. There are zinc refineries nearby. Newport is situated on the South Wales coal field. The town has the ruins of an old castle, dating from the 11th century, and there is a museum containing many interesting Roman relics from nearby Caerleon. 105,285 (1951).

Newport. City in N Kentucky, a county seat of Campbell County, on the Ohio River opposite Cincinnati, and at the mouth of the Licking River opposite Covington; residential suburb of Cincinnati; manufactures include refrigerators, truck bodies, galvanized sheet metal, and other metal products. It was settled in 1790, made county seat in 1796, and incorporated as a city in 1835. Pop. 31,044 (1950).

Newport. Town (in New Hampshire the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in C New Hampshire, county seat of Sullivan County; resort; manufactures of shoes, woolen goods, and soap. Pop. of town, 5,131 (1950); of village, 3,062 (1950).

Newport. City in W Oregon, in Lincoln County, on the Pacific coast; resort and lumbering center. 3,241 (1950).

Newport. City in SE Rhode Island, county seat of Newport County, on Narragansett Bay; notable as a wealthy and fashionable summer resort, with many estates. It has a fine harbor. U.S. naval establishments in and near the city include a U.S. naval training station, a U.S. naval torpedo station, a naval war college, and a U.S. naval hospital. Founded in 1639 and incorporated as a city in 1789, its early industries included commercial fishing, shipbuilding, distilling, and sugar refining; it is not now an important manufacturing center. 37,564 (1950).

Newport. Town in E Tennessee, county seat of Cocke County, on Pigeon River; vegetable canneries. 3,892 (1950).

Newport. City in NE Vermont, county seat of Orleans County, on Lake Memphremagog; summer resort and port of entry; formerly a lumbering center. It was settled in the 18th century. 5,217 (1950).

Newport. A former name of Parkersburg, W.Va.

New Port (nū'pōrt). Original name of Port-Glasgow, Scotland.

Newport (nū'pōrt), Christopher. b. c1565; d. at Bantam, East Indies, 1617. English navigator. He commanded the expedition that included Captain John Smith and which founded Jamestown, in Virginia, in 1607, and led expeditions to Virginia in 1608 and 1610-11 to bring supplies of men and goods. Another voyage (1609) brought shipwreck on Bermuda with George Somers and Thomas Gates. He sailed on his 5th voyage to America in 1611. Newport was in the service of the East India Company on several voyages, and died in the East Indies.

Newport, Treaty of. Name given to negotiations at Newport, Monmouthshire, between Charles I and the English Parliament, September to November, 1648. The king made great concessions, but apparently only for the purpose of gaining time.

Newport Beach. City in S California, in Orange County, on the Pacific Ocean S of Los Angeles; yachting and resort community. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 4,438 (1940), 12,120 (1950).

Newport Mercury. Second newspaper in Rhode Island, founded in 1758.

Newport News. Independent city in SE Virginia, on the N shore of Hampton Roads, ab. 11 mi. NW of Norfolk; shipbuilding center with large drydocks; important for coal exports. 42,358 (1950).

New Providence (prov'idents). Borough in NE New Jersey, in Union County ab. 15 mi. W of Newark. 3,380 (1950).

Newquay (nū'kē'). Urban district and seaside resort in SW England, in Cornwall, situated on Watergate Bay, on the N Cornish coast, facing the Atlantic Ocean. It is one of the principal seaside resorts of Cornwall, and exports kaolin and building stone. In Roman times Newquay was a lead-producing center. 9,928 (1951).

New Quebec (kwē'bek'). See under Ungava.

New Realism, The. Critical work by Stephen Spender, published in 1939.

New Republic, The. Liberal political weekly founded by Herbert Croly in 1914. The original purpose of the publication as articulated by Croly was to make readers examine and reorganize their beliefs. Among its contributors and editors have been Edmund Wilson, Walter Lippmann, Malcolm Cowley, Robert Morss Lovett, and Henry A. Wallace.

New Richmond (rich'mond). City in NW Wisconsin, in St. Croix County; flour and feed mills; dairy-products, vegetable-canning, and cheese industries. 2,886 (1950).

New River. See under Kanawha.

New Roads. Town in S central Louisiana, in Pointe Coupee Parish. 2,818 (1950).

New Rochelle (rō'shel'). [Former name, La Rochelle.] City in SE New York, in Westchester County, on Long Island Sound, ab. 17 mi. NE of New York; residential and manufacturing community. It was settled (c1689) by Huguenot refugees. It is the seat of Iona College and the College of New Rochelle; Fort Slocom is nearby. It was the home (1804-06) of Thomas Paine. 59,725 (1950).

New Romney (rom'nī). See Romney.

New Ross (ros). [Irish, Ros Mhic Thriúin.] Urban district, market town, and river port, in Leinster province, Irish Republic, in County Wexford, situated on the river Barrow ab. 21 mi. W of Wexford. It was the scene of a defeat of the Irish insurgents on June 5, 1798, by loyalist troops. The rebels were successful at first, but were ultimately routed with a loss of ab. 2,000, that of the loyalists being ab. 230. Pop. 4,911 (1951).

Newry (nū'ri). Urban district, customs station, market town, and seaport in Northern Ireland, in Ulster province, in County Down, situated ab. 5 mi. from the head of Carlingford Lough, ab. 34 mi. SW of Belfast. The town has manufactures of iron and brass articles and cotton and woolen textiles. 13,100 (est. 1949).

New Salem (sā'lem). Former name of Salem, W.Va.

New Sallee (sā'lē'). See Rabat.

New Sarum (sār'um). See Salisbury, England.

New Scotland (skot'land). See Nova Scotia.

New Shoreham (shōr'am). See Shoreham-by-Sea or Shoreham.

New Siberia (sī'bir'iā). [Russian, Novaya Sibir; English, also, New Siberian Island.] Easternmost of the New Siberian Islands. It is part of the Yakutsk Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic of the U.S.S.R., and is situated between the East Siberian Sea and the Arctic Ocean.

New Siberian Islands (sī'bir'iān). [Russian, Novosibirskkiye Ostrova.] Group of islands N of Siberia. It is part of the Yakutsk Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic of the U.S.S.R., and is situated between the East Siberian Sea and the Laptev Sea in the Arctic Ocean. Area, ab. 12,200 sq. mi.

New Site. Former name of Andalusia, Ala.

New Smyrna Beach (smēr'nā). [Former name, New Smyrna.] City in E Florida, in Volusia County, on the Atlantic Ocean SE of Jacksonville. 5,775 (1950).

Newsome (nū'som). Chad. Character in the novel The Ambassadors (1903), by Henry James.

New South Wales (wālz). State of the Commonwealth of Australia, in the SE part. It is bounded by Queensland on the N, the Pacific Ocean on the E, Victoria on the S, and South Australia on the W. The region was named by James Cook in 1770 from a fancied resemblance to the northern (Welsh) shores of the Bristol Channel. The W and C parts of the state are part of the great interior lowland of the Murray-Darling drainage basin; this area is rather dry, becoming a desert in the extreme NW. Stock raising (chiefly sheep) is the chief occupation; there is also a great zone of wheat farming in the E section of the lowland, and there are citrus orchards and vineyards in the S. The E central portion of New South Wales is traversed by the Great Dividing Range, a system of high, rounded mountains culminating in Mount Kosciuszko (7,328 ft.). Lumbering, stock raising, and resorts are the chief activities here. The E part of New South Wales, bordering on the Pacific, consists of the mountain foothills and intervening small valleys. The major seaports of the state are located here; the region is devoted to dairy farming, the growing of corn, truck, and fruit crops, and lumbering. In the port cities of Newcastle and Port Kembla (the latter now a part of Wollongong), the Australian iron and steel industry is concentrated, based on New South Wales coal and on iron ore chiefly from South Australia. Sydney is the metropolis of the state and of Australia, and its leading port and commercial and financial center. The most significant mineral product is coal, mined at several localities in the Great Dividing Range and its coastal foothills; Broken Hill in the W is a center for production of lead, zinc, and silver. Copper, gold, and tin are also produced in the state. The agricultural and mining activities, coupled with the great manufacturing plants of the state, make it the wealthiest and most populous state in the commonwealth. Administration is vested in a governor, appointed by the government of Great Britain, and an executive council composed of the cabinet ministers. The legislative power is vested in a parliament of two houses, called the legislative council (which was changed in 1934 from a house of a variable number of members appointed for life to a house of 60 members to serve without remuneration for a term of 12 years, one quarter retiring every third year) and the legislative assembly (elected), consisting of 90 members. It is represented in the federal Parliament by six senators and 28 representatives. A penal settlement was established at Botany Bay in 1788. The development of the wool industry commenced (c1810-20) under Governor Macquarie. Gold, though known in 1823, was not worked until 1851. The coal of the Newcastle region was worked as early as 1804. The transportation of convicts ceased in 1853. Capital, Sydney; area, excluding Australian Capital Territory, 309,433 sq. mi.; pop. 2,985,838 (1947), 3,278,026 (est. 1950).

New Spain (spān). [Spanish, Nueva España.] Colonial name of the country now called Mexico. It was first applied by Juan de Grijalva (1518) to Yucatán and Tabasco, and was extended by Cortés to all his conquests. Under the viceroy's the name was also used for a much larger territory but New Spain proper, or the kingdom of New Spain, corresponded to the district under the jurisdiction of the audience (audiencia) of Mexico, or what is now southern Mexico, embracing (nearly) the modern states of Yucatán, Campeche, Tabasco, Veracruz, Hidalgo, Guanajuato, Michoacán, Colima, México, Morelos, Tlaxcala, Puebla, Guerrero, and Oaxaca.

New Spain, Viceroyalty of. Region governed by the viceroy of Mexico. The first viceroy, Antonio de Mendoza, took possession in 1535. Under him and for some time after, the viceroyalty, in its broadest sense, embraced all the Spanish possessions in Central and North America, from the southern boundary of Costa Rica, besides the West Indies and the Spanish East Indies, that is, the five audiences (audiencias) of Mexico, Guadalupe, Confinces, Santo Domingo, and Manila, and the captaincy-general of Florida. But, except in the first two, the viceroy's powers were very limited, and were soon practically restricted to military defense and a few other matters of general importance. During the 18th century the East Indies and Guatemala or Central America were completely separated. The region generally called New Spain, in which the viceroy had complete authority, consisted for a long time of the three kingdoms of New Spain, New Galicia, and New León, corresponding to modern Mexico and the undefined territories of New Mexico, Texas, and California, now included in the U.S. In 1793 the northern provinces were separated, and thereafter the viceroyalty corresponded nearly to the Mexico of today, excluding southern Coahuila, Durango, Sinaloa, Chihuahua, and Sonora, but including Upper and Lower California. The name Mexico finally supplanted that of New Spain in 1822.

New Spirit in Literature, The. Essays by Harold Nicolson, published in 1931.

New State Ice Co. v. Liebmann, 285 U.S. 262 (1932) (Feb. 28). U.S. Supreme Court decision invalidating an Oklahoma law requiring state licensing for persons engaging in the ice business. The Oklahoma statute, which held that the manufacture and sale of ice was clothed with a public interest, was declared unconstitutional on the ground that it violated due process of law. The case is notable for the dissenting opinion by Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who held that such judicial restriction of state police power was a denial of the right to undertake social and economic experiments.

Newstead Abbey (nū'stēd). Building in Nottinghamshire, England, ab. 9 mi. N of Nottingham, in ancient times an abbey. It was founded by Henry II as an atonement for Thomas à Becket's murder in 1170, and was the home of the family of George Gordon, Lord Byron, obtained by Sir John Byron, his ancestor, at the dissolution of the monasteries by Henry VIII in 1540. Numerous relics of Lord Byron are preserved in the house. He undertook to keep it up in 1809, with what remained of his fortune, but was obliged to sell it in 1818.

New Stone Age. See Neolithic Period.

New Style Calendar. See Gregorian Calendar.

New Sweden (swē'den). Swedish colony in Delaware, founded in 1638. It was conquered by the Dutch in 1655.

New Territories. See under Hong Kong.

New Testament. The specifically Christian portion of the Bible, being a collection of 27 books relating the life of Jesus Christ, reporting his sayings, interpreting his teachings, and chronicling some of the acts of his apostles and other early disciples. The word "testament" is a translation of a Greek term which is perhaps more exactly rendered as "covenant," and in this connection has the meaning usually attached to the latter word. Fundamentally, therefore, the New Testament may be said to be the record of the new covenant made by God with the world; this appears most clearly in the words of Christ as he blessed the wine at the Last Supper, saying "this is my blood of the new testament," as reported in Matt. xxvi. 28. The 27 books are attributed to eight authors, namely the apostles Matthew, John, Paul, James, Peter, and Jude, and the disciples Mark and Luke, and fall into three categories: historical, comprising the four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles; didactic, being the Epistles; and one prophetic book, the Apocalypse. In the Christian view, the authors in writing these works were divinely inspired; but, working independently, they had no plan or purpose of composing between them a great sacred book. These 27 documents were a portion only of the numerous epistles, prophecies, and accounts of the life and teachings of Jesus, written and circulated in the first two centuries of the Christian era; many other writings were long of equal repute, but by the end of the 4th century the canon was fixed in the Western Church, though not in the Eastern until the Quinisextine Council, or Trullan Synod, an extension of the Third Council of Constantinople, in 692. During the first decades after the Resurrection there was little incentive toward writing down anything concerning Jesus, because his second coming was thought to be imminent; it is supposed, however, that one account at least of the lineage, birth, and early years of Jesus was composed in those years, and this lost document, known to scholars as "Q," is detected as a source of the first chapters of the Gospels of Matthew and Luke. These two evangelists also drew upon the Gospel according to Saint Mark, the first deliberate narrative of the Incarnation, written at the request of numbers of the faithful while, as tradition tells, Mark was serving as Saint Peter's assistant at Rome, and was therefore in a position to relate what Peter related to him. The lost "Q" may antedate the Epistles of Saint Paul known as 1 and 2 Thessalonians, but the latter are generally supposed to be the earliest of the surviving writings included in the canon; it is thought that they date from 50 or 51 A.D. The Pauline Epistles were letters to specific congregations or to individuals; 2 and 3 John are also directed to individuals; James and Jude are specifically known as Catholic Epistles, and the two Epistles of Peter as well as 1 John are also of the nature of general exhortations, intended for circulation among the spreading Christian communities. In recent times the opinion was widespread that most of the books of the New Testament were written in the 2nd century A.D., but scholars of the Roman Catholic and most other churches now believe that the tradition of their composition in the second half of the 1st century has been vindicated. Theologians make the point also that the canonicity of any part of the New Testament is not affected by any doubt as to the authenticity of its generally supposed authorship, since canonicity arises from belief in the divine inspiration of the writing, regardless of any human error concerning the identity of the writer.

New Theatre. Former theater at New York City, opened in November, 1909. It was designed as the permanent home of a stock company acting the best classic and modern plays. The project had the financial support of a body of New Yorkers, called the "founders," who desired to establish a theatrical organization conducted, largely, like the Comédie Française. Winthrop Ames was the first director. The first building dedicated to this purpose, designed by J. M. Carrère and Thomas Hastings, was situated at 62nd and 63rd streets and Central Park West. It was finished in 1909 and was occupied by the New Theatre Company for two seasons. It was considered notable in architectural design and decoration, and the revolving stage and equipment of electric lighting made rare scenic effects possible; but the auditorium was found to be too large. The building was accordingly leased, at the close of the season in 1911, to other managers, who renamed it The Century. A large apartment house was erected on the site in 1931.

New Timon (tī'mon). The. Satire by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1847.

Newton (nū'tŏn). City in SE Illinois, county seat of Jasper County, on the Embarras River: wood products. 2,780 (1950).

Newton. City in C Iowa, county seat of Jasper County: manufactures of washing machines. It was incorporated in 1857. Pop. 11,723 (1950).

Newton. City in E Kansas, county seat of Harvey County, ab. 24 mi. N of Wichita: division point for the Santa Fe Railway; flour mills and bakeries. It is the seat of Bethel College. 11,590 (1950).

Newton. City in E Massachusetts, in Middlesex County, on the Charles River: a western residential suburb of Boston. It is the seat of Andover Newton Theological School. 81,994 (1950).

Newton. Town in E central Mississippi, in Newton County: lumber and cotton processing. 2,912 (1950).

Newton. Town in N New Jersey, county seat of Sussex County: marketing center for a dairying community. 5,781 (1950).

Newton. Town in W North Carolina, county seat of Catawba County: textile manufactures. 6,039 (1950).

Newton. A former name of Ashley, Pa.

Newton, Alfred. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, June 11, 1829; d. at Cambridge, England, June 7, 1907. English zoologist, first professor of zoology and comparative anatomy (1866-1907) in the University of Cambridge. He published The Zoology of Ancient Europe (1862) and an edition of Yarrell's British Birds (1871-82), and wrote many papers on zoological and especially on ornithological subjects. His Dictionary of Birds, an expansion of his articles in the ninth edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, was published in 1893-96.

Newton, Alfred Edward. b. at Philadelphia, Aug. 26, 1863; d. there, Sept. 29, 1943. American bibliophile, collector of first editions, and authority on Samuel Johnson. He was engaged (1890-1931) in the manufacture of electrical equipment at Philadelphia. Author of The Amenities of Book-Collecting and Kindred Affections (1918), The Greatest Book in the World and Other Papers (1925), This Book-Collecting Game (1928), Derby Day and Other Adventures (1934), and the play Doctor Johnson (1933).

Newton, Sir Charles Thomas. b. at Bredwardine, Herefordshire, England, Sept. 16, 1816; d. at Margate, England, Nov. 28, 1891. English archaeologist. He graduated at Oxford (Christ Church), in 1837, and was appointed assistant curator of antiquities in the British Museum in 1840. He became vice-consul at Mytilene in Asia Minor in 1852, discovered the site of the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, one of the famed "seven wonders of the ancient world," in 1856, and later excavated at Chidus and Branchidae. In 1860 he was appointed British consul at Rome, and from 1861 to 1885 was keeper of Greek and Roman antiquities at the British Museum. In 1880 he was appointed professor of archaeology at University College, London. He wrote A History of Discoveries at Halicarnassus, Chidus, and Branchidae (1862), Travels and Discoveries in the Levant (1865), essays on art and archaeology (1880), and others, and translated Panofka's Manners and Customs of the Greeks from the German in 1849.

Newton, Henry Jotham. b. at Hartleton, Pa., Feb. 9, 1823; d. at New York, Dec. 23, 1895. American manufacturer and inventor, developer of the dry-plate photographic process. He retired (1858) from the piano business to pursue his interest in photography. Tutored by the publisher of the American Journal of Photography, Charles A. Seely, he subsequently experimented with various photographic processes, improving the dry-plate process. He also devoted himself to interests involving spiritualism and theosophy.

Newton, Hubert Anson. b. at Sherburne, N.Y., March 19, 1850; d. at New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12, 1896. American mathematician and astronomer. He was graduated (1850) from Yale, became (1853) professor of mathematics at Yale and later head of the department, and after a year's study at Paris under Michel Chasles resumed his duties at Yale, where he also did work in astronomy. Among his publications is The Metric System of Weights and Measures (1868).

Newton, Sir Isaac. b. at Woolthorpe, near Grantham, Lincolnshire, England, Dec. 25, 1642; d. at Kensington, now a borough of London, March 20, 1727. English mathematician and natural philosopher. His father, Isaac Newton, was a small freehold farmer, somewhat weak and carefree, who died before his son was born. He matriculated at Cambridge (Trinity College) on June 5, 1661, was elected to a scholarship on April 28, 1664, and graduated in January, 1665. At the university he was especially attracted by the study of Descartes's geometry and Kepler's optics. The method of fluxions first occurred to him in 1665. Newton was a minor fellow of Trinity in 1667, but a few months later, on March 16, 1668, he was admitted as a major fellow. On July 7 of the same year he was created a master of arts. He was made Lucasian professor at Cambridge in October, 1669. He became a fellow of the Royal Society in January, 1671.

Scientific Achievement. There is no example of greater achievement in the history of science than that of Newton who, as a youth during the years 1665-66 in the peaceful village of Woolthorpe, unaided made the following three great fundamental discoveries in the realm of the physical sciences: first, the mathematical method of fluxions, which is the basis of all modern mathematics and the instrument by which all physical problems involving force and motion are now solved; second, the law of the composition of light, from which he later constructed a real science of optics; third, the law of universal gravitation. Newton's attention was drawn to the subject of gravitation as early as 1665. The story of the fall of the apple was first told by Voltaire, who had it from Mrs. Catharine Barton Conduitt, Newton's niece. This observation merely suggested to Newton that the same law which caused the apple to fall would hold for the moon. Kepler had established the laws of the planetary orbits, and from these laws Newton proved that the attraction of the sun upon the planets varies inversely as the squares of their distances. Measuring the actual deflection of the moon's orbit from its tangent, he found it to be identical with the deflection which would be created by the attraction of the earth, diminishing in the ratio of the inverse square of the distance. The hypothesis that the same force acted in each case was thus confirmed. The success of Newton's work really depended on the determination of the length of a degree on the earth's surface by Jean Picard in 1671 and the universal law of gravitation was completely elaborated by 1685. Albert Einstein's theory of relativity offers a certain degree of refinement to the classical law of gravitation as formulated by Newton.

Publication of the Principia. The first book of the Principia or Philosophiæ Naturalis Principia Mathematica was presented to the Royal Society on April 28, 1686, and the entire work was published in 1687. The Principia was published in three different editions during Newton's lifetime and has also been translated into seven different languages. Edmund Halley, who bore the expense of the printing of the Principia, is known as the discoverer of Newton. In 1689 Newton sat in Parliament for Cambridge University, and at this time was associated with John Locke; in 1701 he was reelected. When his friend Charles Montague (afterward Lord Halifax) was appointed chancellor of the exchequer, Newton was made warden of the mint, and in 1699 master of the mint. The reformation of English coinage was largely his work. He was knighted by Queen Anne in 1705.

Method of Fluxions and Work in Optics. The method of fluxions, which Newton had discovered, was employed in part in the calculations for the Principia, but did not appear until 1693, when it was published by Wallis. It also appeared as a supplement in 1704 to the first edition of the Optics. This work also appeared in four different editions and was translated into foreign languages. Newton discovered that the rays of light when passed through a prism were composed of various colors, known as a spectrum, arranged according to the refrangibility of their wave length. His minor works which were published after his death are The Chronology of Ancient Kingdoms Amended, Observations upon the Prophecies of Daniel and the Apocalypse of St. John, and Arithmetica Universalis. Newton was all his life interested in alchemy and chemistry. On Feb. 21, 1699, he was elected a foreign associate of the French Academy of Sciences and in 1703 he was elected president of the Royal Society, an office which he held until his death. Newton lies buried in Westminster Abbey, final resting place of England's honored great. In 1946 (four years late due to World War II) the Royal Society of London, Cambridge University (Trinity College), and the Royal Mint commemorated the tercentenary of Isaac Newton's birth. Newton has had a great many interpreters or protagonists, and hence a larger number of commentaries have been issued on his works than on those of any scientist of modern times. See Memoirs of the Life, Writings and Discoveries of Isaac Newton, by Sir David Brewster (2 vols., 1855), Isaac Newton (1642-1727), by W. J. Greenstreet (1927), Isaac Newton, by L. T. Moore (1934), and Welfare der Erkenntnis, Leben und Werk Isaac Newton, by Friedrich Dessauer (Zürich, 1945). See also publications for the History of Science Society and the Royal Academy on the occasions, respectively, of a bicentenary evaluation of his work (1927) and of the Newton Tercentenary (1942 and 1946).

Newton, John. b. at London, July 24, 1725; d. there, Dec. 21, 1807. English clergyman and religious poet. His father was governor of York Fort in Hudson Bay. Newton served in his father's ship before 1742, and was afterward in the navy as an impressed seaman and then a midshipman, and in the slave trade, until 1755, when he was made tide surveyor at Liverpool. Taking up the study of Greek and Hebrew, he was ordained priest in June, 1764, and became curate of Olney, where William Cowper settled c1767. They published the Olney Hymns together in 1779. In 1780 he was made rector of Saint Mary Woolnoth, London. Besides many well-known hymns, he wrote Cardiphonia (1781) and other religious works, and an Authentic Narrative of his early life (1764).

Newton, John. b. at Norfolk, Va., Aug. 24, 1823; d. May 1, 1895. American engineer and general. He served throughout the Civil War, attaining the rank of major general of volunteers in 1863. He was made brigadier general and chief of engineers in the regular army in 1864, was placed on the retired list in 1886, and was appointed commissioner of public works at New York in 1887, a position which he resigned in 1888 to accept the presidency of the Panama Railroad Company. His chief engineering feat was the improvement of Hell Gate channel in the East River, New York, by the blasting of Hallett's Reef on Sept. 24, 1876, and Flood Rock, Oct. 10, 1885.

Newton, Joseph Fort. b. July 21, 1880; d. Jan. 24, 1950. American clergyman. He was ordained in the Baptist ministry, and served as a pastor in nonsectarian churches at London (1916-19), New York (1919-25), and Philadelphia (1925-35). He wrote (1932-44) a syndicated daily newspaper column, "Everyday Religion." Author of Abraham Lincoln (1910), Lincoln and Herndon (1910), and the autobiography River of Years (1946).

Newton, Mount. See under Spitsbergen.

"Newton, R." See under Cave, Edward.

Newton Abbot (ab'ot). Urban district and market town in SW England, in Devonshire, situated at the head of the estuary of the river Teign ab. 14 mi. S of Exeter, ab. 194 mi. SW of London by rail. It has a railway car-works. William of Orange was here proclaimed (1688) king of England as William III. 16,393 (1951).

Newton Falls. Village in NE Ohio, in Trumbull County, near Youngstown. 4,451 (1950).

Newton-le-Willows (-le.wil'ōz) or Newton-in-Makerfield (-mā'kér.fēld). Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 15 mi. E of Liverpool, ab. 188 mi. NW of London by rail: metal, paper, and glass industries. 21,862 (1951).

Newton-Stewart (-stū'art) or Newtown-Stewart (nū'toun-). Police burgh and market town in S Scotland, in Wigtownshire, situated on the river Cree ab. 20 mi. NW of Kirkcudbright, ab. 382 mi. N of London by rail. 2,096 (est. 1948).

New Toronto (tō.ron'tō). Industrial suburb of the city of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, situated on Lake Ontario and on the main highway a few mi. W of the metropolis. It ranks as an important industrial town in Canada, manufacturing tires and rubber goods, metal products, and foodstuffs. It is part of the Toronto metropolitan area. 11,194 (1951).

Newtown (nū'toun). Town and borough in SW Connecticut, in Fairfield County. Pop. of town, 7,448 (1950); of borough, 782 (1950).

Newtown. Former town of SE New York, on Long Island, settled (1652) by the English. It became known for apple growing. In 1898 it was consolidated into the borough of Queens in New York City.

Newtown. [Welsh, Tre-Newydd.] Civil parish in N Wales, in Newtown and Llanllwchaearn urban district, in Montgomeryshire, situated on the river Severn ab. 7 mi. SW of Montgomery, ab. 187 mi. NW of London by rail. It has manufactures of flannels. Robert Owen was born and died here. 2,905 (1931).

New Town. Former name of Wadesboro, N.C.

New Town or Newton (nū'ton). Former names of Wilmington, N.C.

Newtown and Llanllwchaearn (lan.lōh.ŷ'arn). Urban district in N Wales, in Montgomeryshire, situated on the river Severn ab. 7 mi. SW of Montgomery, ab. 187 mi. NW of London by rail. It comprises the civil parishes of Newtown and Llanllwchaearn. 5,427 (1951).

Newtownards (nū.ton.árdz). Municipal borough and market town, in Northern Ireland, in Ulster province, and County Down, situated near the head of Strangford Lough, ab. 10 mi. E of Belfast. 10,650 (est. 1949).

Newtown-Barry or Newtownbarry (nū'ton.bār'ī). Market town in the Irish Republic, in Leinster province and County Wexford, situated on the river Slaney ab. 24 mi. NW of Wexford. Here on June 1, 1798, during the uprising of the United Irishmen, a force of ab. 350 repulsed an attack made by upward of 10,000 rebels. 684 (1936).

Newtown-Butler (nū'ton.bū'tler). Village in Northern Ireland, in Ulster province and County Fermanagh, ab.

16 mi. SE of Enniskillen, The village is a customs station on the Irish Republic-Northern Ireland border. Pop. ab. 400.

New Towne (town). See under Cambridge, Mass.

Newtown-Stewart (nū'toun.stū'art). See Newton-Stewart.

New Ulm (ulm). City in S Minnesota, county seat of Brown County, at the confluence of the Minnesota and Cottonwood rivers; flour milling, 9,348 (1950).

New Ulster (ul'stēr). Former name of North Island, New Zealand.

New Waterford (wō'tēr.ford, wō'tēr-). Town in Nova Scotia, Canada, on the E shore of the S peninsula of Cape Breton Island, a short distance from Sydney; coal mining. 10,423 (1951).

New Way to Pay Old Debts, A. Play by Philip Massinger, printed in 1632, and written in 1625 or 1626. In Sir Giles Overreach Massinger created one of the great dramatic figures of the English stage.

New Westminster (west'min.stēr). Third largest city in British Columbia, Canada, situated on Fraser River, ab. 12 mi. above where the river becomes salty, in the extreme SW corner of the province. It was the early capital of British Columbia. It has paper, lumber, canning, and food-processing industries. 28,639 (1951).

New Whatcom (hwot'kōn). Former city and former county seat of Wharton County, in NW Washington. In 1903 it was united with Fairhaven to form the city of Bellingham.

New Windsor (win'zor). Village in SE New York, in Orange County, on the W bank of the Hudson River. 2,754 (1950).

New Windsor. Official name of Windsor, England.

New Wonder: A Woman Never Vext, A. Comedy by William Rowley, printed in 1632.

New World. North and South America; the Western Hemisphere.

New World Symphony. Popular name of From the New World.

New Year's Day. Legal holiday celebrated on Jan. 1 to observe the beginning of a new year.

New York (yōrk). [Called the "Empire State"; also, the "Excelsior State."] State of the NE United States, bounded by Lake Ontario on the NW, the Canadian provinces of Ontario (separated by the St. Lawrence River) and Quebec on the N, Vermont (partly separated by Lake Champlain), Massachusetts, and Connecticut on the E, the Atlantic Ocean, New York Bay, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania on the S, and Pennsylvania and the Canadian province of Ontario (separated by Lake Erie and the Niagara River) on the W: a Middle Atlantic State and one of the 13 original states of the American Union. Long Island and Staten Island are included in it.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. New York is divided for administrative purposes into 62 counties. The state sends 45 representatives to Congress, and has 47 electoral votes. Leading cities include Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo, New York, Rochester, Schenectady, Syracuse, Troy, Utica, and Yonkers. Capital, Albany; area, 47,929 sq. mi. (49,576 sq. mi., including water, but exclusive of water of the Great Lakes); pop. 14,830,192 (1950), an increase of 10 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks 29th in area, and first (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The surface of the state is greatly diversified, consisting of mountains and hills in the E, a hilly plateau in the S, a rolling to level plain bordering Lakes Erie and Ontario, and extending into the St. Lawrence valley in the N, and a coastal lowland, including the flat sandy expanses of S Long Island, in the SE. The Adirondack Mountains are in the NE, Mount Marcy in this group reaching 5,344 ft., the highest point in the state. The Catskill Mountains, Shawangunk Mountains, and Taconic Mountains are in the E, as are the Highlands of the Hudson, a hilly region on both sides of the river. The state belongs chiefly to the Hudson and St. Lawrence river systems, but in part also to those of the Mississippi, Susquehanna, and Delaware. The Hudson, in the E, discharges into New York Bay at New York City. The St. Lawrence flows along much of the N boundary. The Delaware and Susquehanna rivers in the SE both have their start in the state. In the SW is the Allegheny, a tributary of the Ohio, and thus part of the Mississippi system. The Mohawk, the Niagara (on which are situated Niagara Falls), the Oswego, and the Genesee are other rivers in the state. The New York State Barge Canal, a state system of waterways ab. 525 mi. long, links the Great Lakes and Lake Champlain with the Atlantic Ocean. Among New York's many other lakes are Lakes George, Oneida, Cayuga, Seneca, Skaneateles, Chautauqua, Oswego, Otsego, and Canandaigua. Many parts of the state are known for their scenery.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Since 1825 New York has ranked first among the states in manufacturing, and manufacturing is its chief industry. Its principal manufacturing interests center on apparel, printing and publishing, chemicals, textiles, machinery including electrical machinery, iron and steel, and nonferrous metals. Other important manufacturing interests are concentrated on rugs and carpets, photographic equipment, furniture, food processing, and liquors. New York City is the first manufacturing city of the nation, known especially for its garment-making center, although its thousands of factories turn out a tremendous variety of other items as well. Among the state's numerous other manufacturing cities Utica is known for its textiles and underwear; Rochester for cameras and optical instruments; Syracuse for electronic products, soda, and machinery; Troy for textiles and men's shirts, collars, and cuffs; Corning for glass; Gloversville and Johnstown for gloves; Schenectady for electrical equipment and locomotives; Buffalo for chemicals and metal products among many others; Binghamton for shoes. The state's system of waterways and its water power as well as its highways and railroads have been major factors in its rise to industrial and commercial importance. Shipping is among the state's major occupations, and New York City is the world's most important port, with the canal system providing a route for trade with the W United States. The city is also the financial capital of the nation. Agriculture is of major importance in New York state, more than 50 percent of its land being given over to farming. Dairy farming is in the lead, producing great quantities of milk and allied products; cheese and butter making are industries of extensive scope. Poultry is widely raised for meat and eggs. Corn, wheat, barley, oats, hay, buckwheat, potatoes, beans, fruits (especially grapes, cherries, apples, peaches, and pears), and hops are among the items grown. The state ranks second in the production of maple syrup and maple products. Thriving fisheries exist in the vicinity of Long Island and on the lakes, clams, oysters, bluefish, and menhaden being among the chief catches; much of the supply is canned. New York's leading minerals are salt, gypsum, emery, garnet, limestone, petroleum, talc, natural gas, iron ore, graphite, lead, zinc, and titanium ore. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as $23 million dollars; from manufacturing, as high as $1 billion; from mineral output, as high as $11 million.

History. The bay of New York was entered by Verazano in 1524. Explorations were made in the N by Champlain in 1609, and in the S by Hudson, that same year. The first permanent settlements were made (1613 or 1614) by the Dutch on Manhattan Island. The region (called New Netherland) was ruled successively by the Dutch governors Minuit, Wouter van Twiller, Kieft, and Stuyvesant; devastated (c1641) by an Indian war; conquered (1664) by the English under Nicolls. Charles II granted it to his brother the Duke of York, who renamed it New York. New York, New Jersey, and New England were consolidated under a single administrator, Sir Edmund Andros, 1688-89. New York was the scene of many events in the French and Indian Wars; an important center of military operations associated with the Revolutionary War, despite the fact that New York City was held by the British until 1783. Ticonderoga was captured from the British by Ethan Allen in 1775. The Battle of Long Island, in which Israel Putnam was defeated (Aug. 27, 1776) by the British force of Sir William Howe, took place in Brooklyn. At White Plains Washington's retreating army clashed (Oct. 28, 1776) with Howe's troops. General John Burgoyne succeeded in retaking Ticonderoga for the British in 1777, but later that same year was forced to surrender (Oct. 17, 1777) to the Americans at Saratoga, an event marking the beginning of American superiority in the war. Stony Point was the scene of an American victory (1779) for General Anthony Wayne. The betrayal of West Point to the British was the object of the famous treason plot of Benedict Arnold in 1780. New York was the 11th state to ratify (July 26, 1788) the federal Constitution, and New York City was the first capital (1789-90) of the U.S. under the Constitution. The Hudson River counties were swept (1838-45) by anti-rent riots in which inhabitants revolted against the feudal Dutch system permitting the proprietors of the huge estates there certain manorial rights over their tenants. The constitution of 1846 abolished these feudal rights. New York State supported the Union cause in the Civil War, although New York City financial interest opposed the war at its beginning, and the city was the scene of bloody draft riots in 1863. The World's Fair was held (1939-40) on what is now the site of Flushing Meadows Park, Long Island. The administration building of the fair later became the temporary home of the United Nations. In 1946 the United Nations General Assembly voted to establish the organization's permanent headquarters at New York City.

Culture. New York's development is highly urban (85.5 percent of the 1950 population). Close to three million of its inhabitants are foreign born, being chiefly Italians, Russians, Germans, Poles, and Irish, in that numerical order. A large proportion of the state's total population are Negroes. New York City, the cultural center of the nation, is known for its skyscrapers, shops, hotels; for its Times Square theater and film district; its two great airports, International Airport (Idlewild) and LaGuardia Airport; for its Harlem section inhabited chiefly by Negroes; and for its Greenwich Village, the best-known art and literary colony in the U.S. and comparable only to the Left Bank of Paris. In the city too are located the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and the Museum of Modern Art, all owning large and valuable collections. Surrounding the city are many beautiful residential suburbs, such as Scarsdale, Bronxville, and Rye in Westchester County and Lynbrook, Cedarhurst, Roslyn, Glen Cove, and Westbury on Long Island. At Hyde Park, in the SE part of the state, the birthplace of Franklin D. Roosevelt, is the U.S.-owned Franklin D. Roosevelt Library, opened in 1941 and containing many of the late president's books, manuscripts, and related historical papers and memorabilia. Saranac Lake, in the NE, is a health resort known as the site of the Trudeau tuberculosis sanitarium. On the Ausable River is Ausable Chasm, a deep gorge of spectacular scenic beauty. Lake Placid, in the NE, is world famous as the scene of national and international winter sports events. A large area in the state has been set aside for state parks providing extensive recreation facilities. The Thousand Islands, Lake George, and Lake Champlain are well-known summer vacation areas. Among the many noted men and women who have lived or worked in the state were Lewis Morris, Gouverneur Morris, John Jay, Aaron Burr, Washington Irving, Peter Faneuil, James Fenimore Cooper, Thomas Paine, Carl Schurz, Horace Greeley, Lillian Wald, J. P. Morgan, Nicholas Murray Butler, Alfred E. Smith, John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, Henry Ward Beecher, Edgar Allan Poe, Edith Wharton, and George Gershwin. New York has more educational institutions than any other state. Among its institutions of higher learning are Adelphi College, at Garden City; Alfred University, at Alfred, with a branch at Jamestown; Bard College, at Annandale-on-Hudson; Brooklyn College of the City of New York, at Brooklyn; Colgate University, at Hamilton; the College of the City of New York, at New York City; the College of New Rochelle, at New Rochelle; Columbia University, including Columbia College, Barnard College, New York Post-Graduate Medical School, Teachers College, and the New York School of Social Work, at New York City; Cooper Union, at New York City; Cornell University, at Ithaca, with a branch at New York City; Elmira College, at Elmira; Fordham University, at New York City; General Theological Seminary, at New York City;

Good Counsel College, at White Plains; Hamilton College, at Clinton; Hunter College of the City of New York, at New York City; Jewish Theological Seminary of America, at New York City; Juilliard School of Music, at New York City; Manhattan College, at New York City; New York University, including Washington Square College of Arts and Sciences, at New York City; the New School of Social Research, at New York City; Pratt Institute, at Brooklyn; Queens College of the City of New York, at Flushing; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy; Russell Sage College, at Troy; St. John's University, at Brooklyn; St. Lawrence University, at Canton; Sarah Lawrence College, at Bronxville; Skidmore College, at Saratoga Springs; Syracuse University, at Syracuse; Union College, at Schenectady; Union Theological Seminary, at New York City; the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, at King's Point; Vassar College, at Poughkeepsie; the U.S. Military Academy, at West Point. The state motto is Excelsior, meaning "Higher." The state flower is the rose.

New York. [Also: New York City; popular name, Greater New York; sometimes called "Gotham"; original name, New Amsterdam.] City in the SE part of New York, situated at the mouth of the Hudson River, which traverses New York Bay to flow into the Atlantic Ocean. Consisting of five boroughs, each coextensive with a county, Manhattan (New York County), Richmond (Richmond County), Brooklyn (Kings County), Queens (Queens County), and the Bronx (Bronx County), New York is the largest city in the Western Hemisphere. Its beautiful harbor affords entrance to the world's busiest port and one which clears about half of the nation's foreign trade. It is the terminus of numerous steamship lines to all parts of the world, also of many coastal lines and railroads. The vast and complex transportation systems afforded by the city include subways, elevated railways, bus lines, taxicabs, and trolley lines, those facilities operated by the city constituting the largest municipal transit system in the U.S. All municipal lines charged a five-cent fare until 1948, when increases were instituted. Express highways, ferries, tunnels, and bridges link the city with adjacent areas. New York City is the largest manufacturing center (ab. 33,000 manufacturing establishments) in North America; its leading product is clothing. The city is also the financial center of the nation as well as its publishing center. New York's other major products are food products, machinery, and leather goods.

History. What is now New York City was discovered (1609) by Henry Hudson, who established on Manhattan Island a post for trading. Later the island was purchased (1626) for 24 dollars in trinkets by Peter Minuit on behalf of the Dutch West India Company. The subsequent Dutch settlement was called New Amsterdam and, branching out from Manhattan, included further development. New Amsterdam was captured (1664) during the administration of Peter Stuyvesant by the British and was renamed New York in honor of the Duke of York (afterward James II of England), to whom it was granted by his brother Charles II; recaptured (1673) for one year by the Dutch and called New Orange; restored (1674) to the British. The city was the scene of Leisler's unsuccessful insurrection, 1689-91. During the Revolutionary War the city was captured (Sept. 14, 1776) by the British and held by them until Nov. 25, 1783. New York was the state capital from 1784 to 1797, and the capital of the U.S. from 1785 to 1790. The city experienced great industrial and commercial expansion with the start (1807) of regular trips between New York and Albany by Robert Fulton's steamboat Clermont, with the development of coastwise shipping facilities, and with the completion (1825) of the Erie Canal, which provided a route for trade with the interior. The world's first horse railroad began (1832) operation on Fourth Avenue. In 1835 New York was swept by a great fire which destroyed some 650 buildings and did close to 20 million dollars' damage. Astor Place, in Manhattan, was (1849) the scene of a riot against the English actor Macready, then playing in the city, the outbreak (in which a number were killed) resulting from treatment accorded the American tragedian Edwin Forest in England in 1845. The World's Fair was held (1853) in the Crystal Palace (destroyed by fire, 1858) on the site of what had been (1822-25) Potter's Field and what is now Bryant Park. The city supported the Union cause during the Civil War although there was considerable division of opinion at the outset of the war, and was the scene of draft riots (July, 1863) in which at least 1,000 were killed in various parts of the city. A single-track, cable-operated railroad began operation from Battery Place to 13th Street in 1867. The Orange riots occurred (July 12, 1871) here; that same year misappropriation of funds by the Tweed Ring, Tammany political organization, was exposed. The Brooklyn Bridge, first span across the East River, was opened May 24, 1883. The city's first subway began operation in 1904. Mayor James J. Walker resigned (1932) under fire, thus ending a removal trial before Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor of the state. The New York World's Fair was held (1939-40) at Queens. In 1896 a law was passed providing that on and after Jan. 1, 1898, the city should comprise the counties of New York (with which it was coextensive prior to that date), Richmond (Staten Island), and Kings (Brooklyn), Long Island City, the towns of Newtown, Flushing, Jamaica, and Westchester, and parts of Hempstead, East Chester, and Pelham. By the charter adopted in 1897 this territory (359 sq. mi. in area) was divided into the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, Richmond, and Queens.

Culture. The old City Hall, located in lower Manhattan, is one of the finest examples of English Renaissance architecture in the city. The building has two stories above the basement, the central pavilion having in addition an attic and a projecting porch of eight Ionic columns above a broad flight of steps. The central pavilion and the projecting portions of the wings are ornamented with orders of pilasters that are Ionic below and Corinthian above, and with engaged arcades framing the windows. In this building are the offices of the mayor, the city council, and the board of estimate. The governor's room, provided originally for the use of the state's governor during his presence in the city, has been made into a museum, and includes a collection of historical portraits by Trumbull and others, as well as historic furniture. On the steps of this building the mayor welcomes distinguished visitors. The official residence of the mayor is Gracie Mansion, built (1799) by Archibald Gracie, a rich merchant, on the site of an American Revolutionary fort; many distinguished persons, among them John Quincy Adams, visited the mansion during the Gracie occupancy. The Stamp Act Congress met (1765) in the city, as did the Continental Congress (1785) and the first U.S. Congress (1789-91). At the instance of George Washington the Declaration of Independence was read in New York City for the first time on July 4, 1776, before a gathering of American troops. Washington was inaugurated (April 30, 1789) at Federal Hall, which was torn down in 1812 and is now the site of the U.S. Subtreasury Building. Area, 299 sq. mi.; pop. of city, 7,454,995 (1940), 7,891,957 (1950); pop. of urbanized area in New York state, 9,130,205; of entire urbanized area (including Northeastern New Jersey), 12,296,117 (1950).

New York. Former name of Clinton, Iowa.

New York, Greater. Popular name of New York City as constituted 1896 and effective 1898 when the counties of New York (with which the city had previously been coextensive), Kings (Brooklyn), and Richmond (Staten Island), Long Island City, the towns of Flushing, Jamaica, Newtown, and Westchester, and parts of Hempstead, East Chester, and Pelham were consolidated as New York City. The city charter of 1897 divided this into the five present-day boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, The Bronx, Richmond, and Queens.

New York Academy of Medicine. Organization founded in 1847 (incorporated 1851) for the purpose of promoting professional knowledge, public health and medical education, and the maintenance of a public medical library. It is situated at New York. The academy's library, the second largest medical library in the U.S., contains more than 250,000 volumes and 148,000 pamphlets. Among its publications are a Bulletin and Annual Report.

New York Academy of Sciences. Academy at New York organized (1817) originally as the Lyceum of Natural History for the purpose of advancing scientific knowledge. It assumed its present name in 1876. It maintains sections on anthropology, biology, physics and chemistry, psychology, geology and mineralogy, and oceanography and meteorology. Among its publications are Annals and Transactions.

New York American. Daily newspaper, published by Charles King from 1819 to 1845 and known as a Whig and National Republican journal. The name was adopted (1896) by William Randolph Hearst for the morning edition of the Journal, which he began soon after buying the latter newspaper.

New York Bay. Bay at the mouth of the Hudson River on which New York City is situated. It includes Upper New York Bay, the harbor formed by the union of the Hudson (North) and East rivers, NE of Staten Island, and Lower New York Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic between Staten Island and Brooklyn. The two parts of the bay are joined by the Narrows.

New York Central Railroad. Major rail transportation system of the N and E U.S., originally formed (1853) under its present name by the consolidation of the Mohawk and Hudson (the first railroad built in New York State) and nine other roads. Its eastern terminals are at New York and Boston, while those in the west are at Chicago and St. Louis. Its major development took place under the guidance of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, who was its president (1867 et seq.).

New Yorker (yŏr'kēr). The. Weekly magazine of humor and satire established and edited (1925-52) by Harold Ross. The magazine is also known for its cartoons, especially for development of the one-line caption.

New York Evening Post. Daily newspaper founded (1801) as a Federalist organ. Among its editors have been William Cullen Bryant, Carl Schurz, Edwin L. Godkin, and Oswald Garrison Villard. It is now known as the New York Post.

New York Herald. Daily newspaper founded (1835) by James Gordon Bennett, whose son, James Gordon Bennett, assumed ownership in 1872. The paper included features by such writers as Mark Twain and Richard Harding Davis. It backed H. M. Stanley's African expedition to find David Livingstone and George De Long's arctic expedition. In 1924 it was purchased by Ogden Reid; under his direction it was merged with the New York Tribune under the name New York Herald Tribune.

New York Historical Society. Organization at New York founded in 1804 for the purpose of stimulating and encouraging interest in New York history and collecting material relating to that field. It has a library of ab. 300,000 volumes, and extensive collections of manuscripts, newspapers, pamphlets, maps, and prints. Its museum contains many items relating to early New York history. The society publishes The New York Historical Society Quarterly.

New York International Airport. Official name of Idlewild.

New York Mills. Village in C New York, in Oneida County, near Utica, 3,366 (1950).

New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra. Ensemble organized (April, 1842) by Ureli Corelli Hill as the Philharmonic Society of New York. It gave its first concert on Dec. 7, 1842, and was incorporated in 1853, and has been formally known by its present title since its merger (1928) with the New York Symphony Society. Its conductors have included Anton Seidl, Emil Paur, Josef Stranský, Arturo Toscanini, John Barbirolli, Werner Janssen, and Dmitri Mitropoulos. Among the orchestras merged with the Philharmonic were the National Symphony (1921) and the City Symphony (1923).

New York Public Library. Free public reference library, founded by consolidation of the Astor, Lenox, and Tilden foundations, in May, 1895. The central library building was opened to the public in May, 1911. It contains more than 4,500,000 volumes, and has many special collections. The circulation department, comprising the New York Free Circulating Library and other independent libraries, was formed in 1900.

New York State Barge Canal. Canal system in New York, extending from the Niagara River at Tonawanda to the Hudson River at Watford, opposite Troy; the successor to the Erie Canal, though it does not follow the identical route. The canal carries a heavy traffic from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic; it serves the cities of Lockport, Rochester, Rome, Utica, Amsterdam, and Schenectady which are along its course; Syracuse and Oswego are served by branch canals. Several rivers, notably the Mohawk, are used in the canal system, and Oneida Lake is traversed. Length, ab. 525 mi.

New York Stock Exchange. See Stock Exchange, New York.

New York Sun. Newspaper founded (1833) by Benjamin H. Day. The publication gained notoriety by printing (August, 1835) the "Moon Hoax." Among its editors have been Moses Y. Beach, Charles A. Dana, his son, Paul Dana, and Edward P. Mitchell. It was merged (January, 1950) with the New York World-Telegram.

New York Symphony Society. Ensemble organized by Dr. Leopold Damrosch in 1878, when it gave its first concert. Walter Damrosch became (1885) conductor upon the death of his father. The organization was merged (1928) with the Philharmonic Society of New York.

New York Times, The. Newspaper founded by Henry J. Raymond in 1851. Under the ownership (1896 et seq.) of Adolph S. Ochs, it became a journal of world importance (known for its slogan "All the News That's Fit to Print"). Its daily circulation (1949) exceeded 500,000.

New York Tribune. Newspaper founded by Horace Greeley in 1841. Under the editorship of Whitelaw Reid the paper became an influential organ of the Republican Party. In 1924 the publication was merged with the New York Herald to form the Herald Tribune.

New York v. Miln, 11 Peters 102 (1837) (miln; pē'tērz). U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the validity of a New York statute requiring the master of every vessel arriving in New York from any other state or foreign country to report the name, age, and last legal settlement of any person who had been with him during the voyage. The New York law, which had been criticized as interfering with federal authority over foreign commerce, was aimed at keeping paupers from gaining entry to the state. The effect or at least the purpose of the decision was to preserve the police power of the states.

New-York Weekly Journal. Publication founded by John Peter Zenger and published from 1733 to 1752. It was established to oppose the political stand taken by another publication, which reflected only official views. Zenger's criticisms of local policy caused his arrest (1734) and trial (1735) on the charge of libel. His acquittal is regarded as a landmark in establishing the freedom of the press in America. Zenger edited the Journal until his death in 1746, and the paper subsequently came under the editorship of his son.

New York World. Newspaper published from 1866 to 1931, when it merged with the New York Telegram to become the World-Telegram. The original publication was a religious newspaper. It was bought (1883) by Joseph Pulitzer. Among its editors were Manton Marble, William H. Hurlburt, and Herbert Bayard Swope. The World, often considered the pioneer in "yellow journalism," was the first to print (1896) a regular cartoon series, R. F. Outcault's Hogan's Alley, featuring the "Yellow Kid."

New York World's Fair. Largest international exposition ever held (the summers of 1939 and 1940). Held at Flushing Meadows, Long Island, N.Y. It brought exhibit buildings and contributions from all major countries except Germany as well as countless exhibits by the small nations of the world, some of the states of the U.S., and foreign and domestic manufacturers. Its theme, the "World of Tomorrow," was symbolized by the Trylon and Perisphere, a pyramidal stèle and a huge globe.

New York Zoological Society. Organization incorporated in 1895 which in 1898 assumed control of the grounds of South Bronx Park for the development and maintenance of the New York Zoological Park. In 1902 it also assumed the control and administration of the New York Aquarium. The society maintains a department of tropical research, has a library of 5,600 volumes on general zoology and allied subjects, and issues Animal Kingdom and Zoologica (quarterly).

New Zealand (zē'land). [Official name, Dominion of New Zealand.] Self-governing dominion of the British Commonwealth of Nations, comprising a group of islands in the Pacific Ocean, 1,200 mi. SE of Australia. New Zealand proper includes the two main islands, North Island and South Island, and also Stewart Island, the Kermadec Islands, Campbell Island, and several minor groups. In addition, the Cook Islands, the territory of Western Samoa, and certain other Pacific islands, chiefly the Tokelau Islands and Niue, are administered by New Zealand. The North Island is somewhat mountainous, the South Island largely so (the Southern Alps culminate in Mount Cook, 12,349 ft.). New Zealand has relatively limited areas of level lowland; the Canterbury Plain of E South Island is the largest such area. There are, however, extensive areas of hill country which provide excellent pasture land under the humid climatic conditions. The climate is maritime in character; in the N, summers are warm and pleasant and winters mild; in the S winters may be quite cool and raw. Agriculture is the chief industry of New Zealand; the country has specialized to a high degree in stock raising (chiefly sheep) and dairy farming, and the major exports are wool, butter, lamb, mutton, beef, cheese, and milk products. Automobiles, gasoline and fuel oils, machinery, and other manufactured goods are the chief imports. Roughly two thirds of the foreign trade is with the United Kingdom. Lumbering is also important, but production is now limited by conservation measures. There are only relatively modest deposits of coal; these are less important today as power source than the hydroelectric plants. The four major cities, Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch, and Dunedin, are important commercial centers and ports (Christchurch is a short distance inland from its port, Lyttelton); manufacturing activity is chiefly light industry producing for the home market, and export food-processing (meat-packing plants, creameries, milk condenseries, and the like). Government is vested in a governor general appointed by the British crown, and a general assembly consisting of a legislative council of 36 members appointed for seven years and a house of representatives of 80 elected members. The islands were discovered by Tasman in 1642, and were visited by Cook. Missionary settlement was made in 1814. The early settlers were often at war with the natives (Maoris), especially in 1860-61 and 1863-66. Capital, Wellington; area, 103,723 sq. mi.; pop. 1,939,735 (1951); estimated Maori pop. 118,741 (1951).

Nexø (nek'sè), Martin Andersen. See Andersen Nexø, Martin.

Ney (nā), Michel. [Titles: Duc d'Elchingen, Prince de la Moskowa.] b. at Saarlouis (now in Prussia), Jan. 10, 1769; shot at Paris, Dec. 7, 1815. French marshal. He entered the army in 1787, and became a general of brigade in 1796. He obtained command on the Rhine in 1799. He won the victory of Elchingen, Oct. 14, 1805 (for which he was created duke of Elchingen), took part in the battles of Jena (Oct. 14, 1806), Eylau (Feb. 7-8, 1807), and Friedland (June 14, 1807), and served in Spain (1808-11). He rendered important service at Borodino, Sept. 7, 1812 (for which he was created prince of the Moskowa), and commanded the rear guard in the retreat of the Grande Armée from Russia in 1812. He served at Lützen (May 2), Bautzen (May 20-21), and Leipzig (Oct. 16-19, 1813), but was defeated by von Bülow at Dennewitz on Sept. 6, 1813. He also served in the campaign of 1814. He was made a peer by Louis XVIII after the restoration in 1814, but found that the returned émigrés looked with scorn on a cooper's son. When he heard that Napoleon had returned from Elba, he assured Louis that Napoleon would be brought back to Paris in an iron cage. He marched off at the head of troops to block Napoleon, but then suddenly went over to the side of his former chief; Napoleon's way to Paris was clear, and the rest of his journey was that of a conqueror. Ney was defeated by Wellington at Quatre-Bras (June 16, 1815), and commanded the Old Guard at Waterloo (June 18). He was arrested on August 5, was tried and condemned by the House of Peers as a traitor, and shot.

Neymarck (nā.mārk), Alfred. b. at Châlons-sur-Marne, France, Jan. 4, 1848; d. 1921. French economist and journalist.

Neyra (nā'rá), Álvaro Mendaña (or de Mendaña) de. See Mendaña de Neyra, Álvaro.

Neyva (nā'bā). See Neiva, Colombia.

Nezahualcoyotl (net.sā.wāl.kō.yō'tl). See Netzahualcoyotl.

Nezhin (nye'zhin). [Also, Nejin.] City in SW U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 75 mi. NE of Kiev, on the Oster River. It is a flour-milling and food-processing center. Pop. ab. 35,000.

Nezib (ne.zēb'). See Nizib.

Nez Percé (nā.pér.sā', nez.pér's). One of the chief North American Indian tribes. Their language, also called Nez Percé, belongs to the Sahaptian linguistic family. They were called Nez Percé ("pierced nose") by the French from their custom of wearing nose pendants. They were once numerous in what is now W central Idaho, NE Oregon, and SE Washington, but in recent decades have become reduced in numbers and remnants of the tribe are now on reservations in Washington and Idaho.

Ngala (eng.gā'lā). [Also: Bangala, Wangala.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting an area between the Congo and Ubangi rivers, N of Coquilhatville in NW Belgian Congo. Their name means "people of the small river." Before Belgian rule, the Ngala were ruled by a king and his subordinate district councils of village chiefs. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is cassava.

Ngalandi (eng.gā.lāng'gē). [Also, Gallangue.] One of the 13 independent kingdoms of the Mbundu, a Bantu-speaking people of SW Africa. They live in C Angola.

Ngami (eng.gā'mē), Lake. Marshy lake in S Africa, in N Bechuanaland, at the S end of the Okovango Basin (or Swamp), of which it is essentially a part. It was discovered by David Livingstone in 1849.

Ngangela (eng.gāng'gā'lā). [Also: Bangangela, Ovanguangela.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting the upper reaches of the Cuanza and Cubango rivers in C Angola. Culturally they resemble the Mbundu.

Nganhui or Nganhwei (ngān'hwā'). See Anhwei.

Nganjera (eng.gān.jā'rā). [Also: Ongandjera, Ovanguandjera.] Subgroup of the Bantu-speaking Mbho, inhabiting N South-West Africa.

Nganking (ngān'king'). See Hwaining.

Ngbanye (eng.bān'yā). See Gonja.

Ngere (eng.gā'rā). See Dan.

Ngindo (eng.gēn'dō). [Also, Wangindo.] Bantu-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting an area in SE Tanganyika. Culturally and linguistically they resemble the Mvra, but they display a patrilineal emphasis.

Ngoc Hoang Thuong De (nguk' hwāng' twōng' dā'). Vietnamese name for Yu Huang Shang Ti, the Jade Emperor, supreme god of Chinese Taoism. He is also revered by the Vietnamese (Annamese) as the creator of the universe and the ultimate director of human affairs. His birthday is celebrated on the ninth day of the first lunar month.

Ngok Pa (ngōk' pā'). Siamese name of Semang.

Ngola (eng.gō'lā). See Ndonga.

Ngonde (eng.gōn'dā) or Konde (kōn'dā). [Also: Khonde, Wangonde, Wankonde.] Bantu-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting the W shore of Lake Nyasa in N Nyasaland. They are not to be confused with the Makonde of SE Tanganyika, who are also known as Konde. Their population is estimated at ab. 40,000 (by G. Wilson, The Constitution of Ngonde, 1939). They are ruled by a hereditary king who is succeeded by an individual from one of two patrilineal descent groups, but not by his personal heirs; in former times all sons of the king were killed. The Ngonde practice hoe agriculture and cattle herding, with the cattle complex. They have a varied diet, based on bananas, cassava, millet, and maize.

Ngoni (eng.gō'ne). [Also: Maviti, Mazitu, Wangoni.] Bantu-speaking Nguni people scattered about Lake Nyasa in E Africa. They split off from the Zulu during the wars of the 19th century, and marched more than a thousand miles north, leaving behind a trail strewn with the wreckage of raiding and bloodshed. They then split up into a number of geographically separate subgroups, all of whom retain elements of Nguni culture. One group of Ngoni reached Lake Victoria, while the others are found on the E, W, and S shores of Lake Nyasa in Tanganyika, in Mozambique, in Nyasaland, and in SE Northern Rhodesia.

Ngornu (eng.gōr'nō). See Nguru.

Ngoyo (eng.gō'yō). See Binda.

Ngqika (eng.gē'kā). [Also: Amangqika, Gaika.] Subgroup of the Xhosa, a Bantu-speaking people of S Africa.

Nguni (eng.gō'nē). Name devised to designate an important group of Bantu-speaking peoples of S Africa who are distinguished from their neighbors by languages with consonantal "clicks" (as in the case of the Bushmen and Hottentots), by beehive huts without walls, by special forms of dress and shields, by the absence of totemism, and by the use of bones, dice, and bowls in divination. They are divided into five main subgroups: refugees from the wars of the Zulu King Chaka, who have regrouped into the Fingo, Bhaqwa, Nlangwini, and Xesibe; the southern Nguni of Cape of Good Hope Province, comprising the Xhosa, Mpondo, Mpondomise, Nqube, Qwathi, Bomvana, and Thembu; the northern Nguni, or Zulu, of Natal; the Swazi of the Swaziland protectorate; and recent offshoots of the Nguni, such as the Ngoni, Shangana, and Ndebele. Their population is estimated at ab. three million (by C. M. Doke, in I. Schapera, ed., The Bantu Speaking Tribes of South Africa, 1937).

Ngoru (eng.gō'rō). [Also: Angorno, Ngorno, Ngornu, N'Guru.] Town in W Africa, in Bornu, Nigeria, situated W of Lake Chad, near the border of Niger territory. French West Africa; an important trading center and terminus of the railway line from Kano (143 mi. to the SW).

Ngoni. [Also, Anguru.] Bantu-speaking people of N Mozambique in SE Africa, inhabiting an area E of Lake Chilwa, and closely related to the Nyanja in language and culture.

Ngwaketse (eng.gwā.kā'tsā). [Also, Bangwaketse.] Subgroup of the Tswana, or W Sotho, a people of SE Bechuanaland in S Africa. Their population is estimated at ab. 25,000 (by I. Schapera, A Handbook of Tswana Law and Custom, 1938).

Ngwato (eng.gwā'tō). [Also, Bamangwato.] Subgroup of the Tswana, or Western Sotho, a people of E Bechuanaland in S Africa. Their population is estimated at ab. 100,000 (by I. Schapera, A Handbook of Tswana Law and Custom, 1938), of which all but ab. 20,000 are non-Tswana.

Nhlanganu (en.lāng.gā'nō). See Hlanganu.

Niagara (ni.āg'ā.rā). River in North America which flows from Lake Erie N into Lake Ontario. It separates New York on the E from the province of Ontario, Canada, on the W. It descends ab. 326 ft. in rapids and cataract, of which almost exactly half is represented by Niagara Falls. Length, ab. 35 mi.

Niagara, Battle of. See Battle of Niagara.

Niagara, Fort. Fort at the mouth of the Niagara River, in W New York, established by the French in 1678, and surrendered by the British to the U.S. in 1796.

Niagara Falls. Largest cataract in North America, situated in the Niagara River ab. 17 mi. NW of Buffalo. It is divided by Goat Island into the American Falls (ab. 167 ft. high) and the Horseshoe (or Canadian) Falls (ab. 158 ft. high). The total width of the river at the brink of the fall is ab. 4,750 ft. The water power of the falls is now, in part, utilized by means of turbines set at the bottom of deep shafts and connected with a tunnel for the escape of the water, which empties below the falls. The total power harnessed at Niagara Falls is ab. 1,400,000 horse-power.

Niagara Falls. City in W New York, in Niagara County, at the American Falls of Niagara Falls, opposite Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada. Known as a tourist resort, particularly for honeymooners, it is especially important for the generation of hydroelectric power, transmitted to Buffalo and as far east as Syracuse. It has important manufactures of aluminum, carbide, silicon, graphite, chemicals, cereal foods, machinery, and other products. Prospect Point, Goat Island, Luna Island, the Cave of the Winds, and Whirlpool State Park are famous points of interest. Pop. of city, 90,872 (1950); of urbanized area, 99,620 (1950).

Niagara Falls. City in S Ontario, Canada, situated on the W side of the Niagara River, at the Horseshoe Falls, and opposite Niagara Falls, N.Y. It is known mainly as a tourist city, although it has paper, machinery, abrasive, food-processing, and other industries. The large hydroelectric power plants of the Ontario government are located at Niagara Falls. The parkways along the river and near the falls are operated by the government of Canada. 22,874 (1951).

Niamey (nyā.mā'). Capital of Niger territory, French West Africa, on the N bank of the Niger River ab. 150 mi. NW of where that river enters Nigeria. It is an administrative center, the terminus of a motor route across the Sahara desert, and an important station on the routes to the interior of the French Sudan, 7,000 (1945).

Nias (nē.ās'). Island of NW Indonesia, in the province of North Sumatra, in the Indian Ocean ab. 75 mi. off the W coast of Sumatra. It is a mountainous island of volcanic origin; the chief products are coconuts, rice, and spices; there are important fisheries. Area, ab. 1,569 sq. mi.; pop. 187,199 (1930).

Niassa or Nyassa (ni.ās'a, ni-). Province of Mozambique, SE Africa, occupying much of the N section of the colony. It is bordered on the N by Tanganyika, on the W by Nyasaland, on the S by Zambezia province, and on the E by the sea. Capital, Nampula; area, ab. 106,500 sq. mi.; pop. 1,919,737 (1945).

Nibelungenlied (nē'bēlung.en.lēt'). [Eng. trans., "Song of the Nibelungs."] Middle High German epic poem, written in its present form by an unknown author in South Germany in the first half of the 13th century. The legends, however, are much earlier, having been handed down orally. Its hero, Siegfried, is a prince who killed the possessors of the hoard of the Nibelungs (a famous golden treasure which cursed all who unrightfully seized it). He wooed Brunhild, a princess of Iceland, for the Burgundian king Gunther, whose sister, Kriemhild, became his wife. He was afterward treacherously slain, and the gold was ultimately sunk in the Rhine. The Nibelungenlied is the greatest monument of early German literature. Historical and mythical elements are mingled in it. Wagner's Ring of the Nibelungs has taken material more from the Old Norse Volsunga Saga and Elder Edda than from the German version, the Nibelungenlied.

Nibelungs (nē'bēlungz). [German, Nibelungen.] In German legend, originally a race of Northern dwarfs, so called from their king, Nibelung. The name came to be applied to the successive possessors of their fatal golden treasure; hence, to the followers of Siegfried, later to the Burgundians.

Niblack (nib'lak), Albert Parker. b. at Vincennes, Ind., July 25, 1859; d. at Nice, France, Aug. 20, 1929. American naval officer. He saw service in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine insurrection, the Boxer campaign, the Vera Cruz expedition, and World War I.

Niblo (nib'lō), William. b. in Ireland, 1789; d. Aug. 21, 1878. American theater manager, proprietor of Niblo's Garden, a combined coffee house and theater at New York. He established (1823) the Columbian Gardens, which subsequently became the Sans Souci Theatre and then Niblo's Garden (1829 et seq.). Niblo retired from business in 1861.

Niblo's Garden. Theater formerly (until 1895) on Broadway, near Prince Street, New York City.

Nicaea (ni.ēs'a). [Anglicized, Nice; Greek, Nikaia; modern Turkish name, Iznik.] In ancient geography, a town in Bithynia, Asia Minor, situated on Lake Ascania, ab. 58 mi. SE of Constantinople. It was founded in the 4th century B.C., and was one of the chief cities of Bithynia. It was the seat of the two Councils of Nicaea.

Nicaea. Ancient name of Nice, France.

Nicaea, Councils of. [Also, Nicene Councils.] Two general ecclesiastical councils which met at Nicaea in Asia Minor. The first Council of Nicaea, which was also Christianity's first general council, met in 325 A.D., condemned Arianism, and promulgated the Nicaean Creed in its earlier form. The second Council of Nicaea, which was also the seventh general council, was held in 787, and condemned the iconoclasts. The recognition of the first Council of Nicaea as ecumenical has been almost universal among Christians. It is acknowledged to the present day not only by the Roman Catholic and Greek churches, and by many Protestant churches, but by Nestorians, Jacobites, and Copts.

Nicaea, Empire of. Greek empire (1206-61), founded by Theodore I (Theodore Lascaris), which had its center at Nicaea, in Asia Minor, during the period of the so-called Latin Empire at Constantinople. It was merged in the restored Byzantine Empire in 1261.

Nicaean Creed. [Also, Nicene Creed.] Summary of the chief tenets of the Christian faith, first set forth as of ecumenical authority by the first Council of Nicaea (325 A.D.), but closely similar in wording to the ancient creeds of some Eastern churches, and specially founded upon the baptismal creed of the Church of Caesarea in Palestine.

Nicander (nik.án'dér, ní-). fl. probably in the 2nd century B.C. Greek poet, grammarian, and physician of Alexandria, author of two extant poems on venomous animals and poisons.

Nicander (ně.kán'dér). Karl August. b. at Strängnäs, Sweden, March 20, 1799; d. Feb. 7, 1839. Swedish poet. His first important work, the dramatic poem Runesvärdet (1821), has as its theme the conflict between heathenism and Christianity. Two poems, Tassos död (The Death of Tasso) and Konung Enzo (King Enzo), the former of which won the prize of the Swedish Academy, were on Italian subjects. Minnen från Södera (Reminiscences of the South), a description of his travels, appeared in 1831. This was followed by Hesperiden (The Hesperides), a volume of poems and tales. His last work was the poem Lejonet i Öken (The Lion in the Wilderness), a eulogy of Napoleon. His life to within a few years of his death, when his literary work at last yielded him an income sufficient for his needs, was almost a constant struggle with want.

Nicaragua (nik.á.rá'gwa). Republic of Central America, bounded on the N by Honduras, on the E by the Caribbean Sea, on the S by Costa Rica, and on the W by the Pacific Ocean. The W and C portion of the country is traversed by mountain chains of the Cordilleran system with elevations up to ab. 6,500 ft.; in the S these disappear, and there is the broad lowland of the Rio San Juan, which extends from Lake Nicaragua to the Caribbean. The E part of the country is a jungle-covered lowland in which rivers are the chief means of communication; no road or railroad has yet crossed the country to the Caribbean coast. Most of the population of Nicaragua is concentrated in the fertile, well-developed lowland extending from Lake Nicaragua NW to the Pacific at Corinto. Agriculture is the chief occupation; the principal food crops are maize, rice, and beans; the chief export crops are coffee, cotton, cacao, and sugar. Bananas were grown extensively on plantations in the Caribbean lowland, but in recent years plant disease has devastated the industry. There is some mining of gold and silver. Nicaragua is traversed by the Inter-American Highway; it has only ab. 400 mi. of railroads. The country was colonized by the Spanish in the 16th century, and declared its independence in 1821, after which it was a member of the Central American Confederation until 1838. It has had a stormy political history, and U.S. Marines were in Nicaragua almost continuously, 1913-33. The population is largely of mixed Spanish and Indian descent. Capital, Managua; area, 57,145 sq. mi.; pop. 1,053,189 (1950).

Nicaragua, Lake. Largest lake of Central America, in SW Nicaragua, connected with Lake Managua by the Tipitapa River. It contains the islands of Zapatera, Ometepe, and Solentiname; source of the San Juan River. During the California gold rush (1850), Cornelius Vanderbilt established a service to transport fortune seekers from New York to California via Lake Nicaragua. The boats leaving New York would enter the San Juan River, Nicaragua, proceed to Lake Nicaragua, then to Lake Managua. The passengers would then disembark and traverse the short land distance to the Pacific Ocean by pack horse, and from there take another boat to the California gold fields. It was, in large part, because of the income from this that Vanderbilt was enabled to make his first major railroad investments. Elevation, ab. 106 ft.; length, ab. 100 mi.; width, ab. 45 mi.; area, ab. 3,089 sq. mi.

Nicaragua Canal. Project for a ship canal between the Pacific Ocean and the Caribbean Sea that would, by crossing Nicaragua, utilize the natural waterway furnished by Lake Nicaragua and the San Juan River. It was much discussed during the 19th century, but finally rejected in favor of the canal through Panama. Partial surveys of the route were made by Americans in 1826 and 1837-38, and more complete ones for the U.S. government in 1872-73. In 1884 a treaty was signed for the construction of the canal by the U.S. government, but the Senate refused to ratify it. In 1887 the Nicaraguan government granted a new concession for 100 years (confirmed by Costa Rica) to a U.S. firm, and actual work was commenced at San Juan on June 3, 1889. Work practically ceased from lack of funds in December, 1892, and on Aug. 30, 1893, the construction company went into the hands of a receiver. The Nicaragua route, as compared with other proposed canal routes across the isthmus, found much favor among American engineers. The chief objection raised to it was the supposed liability of the canal to injury from earthquakes or volcanic eruptions.

Nicarao (ně.ká.rá'ó). Indian cacique (chief), whose tribe (known by his name) occupied territory near a large lake, subsequently named, for him, Lake Nicaragua (Nicaragua, meaning, "water of Nicarao").

Nicarao. [Also, Nicaraguas.] Nahuatl-speaking Indian tribe which at the time of the Spanish conquest occupied the area between Lake Nicaragua and the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. They were defeated by the Spaniards in 1522, and subsequently vanished as a distinct tribal group. It is thought to have been a migrant group from C Mexico which preceded the Pipil in their spread southward into Central America in pre-conquest times.

Nicaria (ni.kár'ia). See Icaria, island.

Nicastro (ně.kás'tró). Town and commune in SW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Catanzaro, situated near the Gulf of San Eufemia, ab. 15 mi. NW of Catanzaro. It is an agricultural trade center, with the ruins of a medieval castle. It has suffered frequently from earthquakes. Pop. of commune, 24,998 (1936); of town, 16,273 (1936).

Nicator (ni.ká'tór, -tór). See Seleucus I.

Nicator, Demetrius. See Demetrius II (of Syria).

Niccolini (ně.kó.lé'né), Giovanni Battista. b. at San Giuliano, near Pisa, Italy, Oct. 29, 1782; d. at Florence, Sept. 20, 1861. Italian poet and dramatist. He started as an imitator of Alfieri, but soon developed his own, rather heavy but impressive, style. Among his dramas are Polyxena (1811), Nabucco (1819), Antonio Foscarini (1827), and Arnaldo da Brescia (1843).

Niccolino (ně.kó.lé'nó), Messer. See Abbate, Niccolò dell'.

Niccolò ((ně.kó.ló'). Professional name of Isouard, Nicolo.

Niccolò de' Lapi (ně.kó.ló' dā lá'pé). Novel by the Marchese d'Azeglio, published in 1841.

Nice (něs). Former countyship, chiefly in what is now SE France, later a province under Sardinia. The W part was ceded to France in 1860, and comprised in the department of Alpes-Maritimes.

Nice. [Ancient name, Nicaea; Italian, Nizza.] City in SE France, the capital of the department of Alpes-Maritimes, situated on the Mediterranean coast. It is the most important resort on the French Riviera, with many hotels, promenades, entertainment establishments, and famous carnival festivities. It has an art museum, the Musée Masséna, and a casino. Imports include coal, wood, building materials; the most important exports are olive oil and olive-oil products, for which Nice is a chief center of production in France; manufactures include paper, cotton, silk, soap, leather, perfumes, dyes, and liquors. Nice was founded by the Phoenicians, then became a Greek and a Roman city. It changed hands often during the Middle Ages, belonging to Provence, to Savoy, to France, and to various Italian republics. It reverted to France in 1861. 211,165 (1946).

Nice (nis). Anglicized name of Nicaea, Asia Minor.

Nice (něs), Truce of. Truce concluded at Nice, France, in 1538, between Francis I of France and the emperor Charles V.

Nicene Councils (ni'sén, ni.sén'). See Nicaea, Councils of.

Nicene Creed. See Nicaean Creed.

Nicephorus I (ni.séf'ó.rus). b. at Seleucia, Pisidia; killed 811. Byzantine emperor (802-811). He was treasurer to the empress Irene, whom he deposed and whose place he took. After sifting a conspiracy to overthrow him, he established himself firmly as emperor. He made treaties (813, 813) with Charlemagne, setting the boundaries of their two empires. He fought (815) unsuccessfully to avoid an annual tribute to Harun-al-

Rashid. In an attempt to suppress the inroads of the Bulgarians, he was surprised and killed by their king, Krum.

Nicephorus II. [Also, Nicephorus II Phocas (fō'kās).] b. c.912; assassinated 969. Byzantine emperor (963-969). He was distinguished, both before and after his accession, as a general in wars with the Saracens. When Romanus II died, Nicephorus married his widow, Theophano, and reigned as coemperor with Romanus's sons, Basil II and Constantine VIII. His continuous wars caused him to cut expenses at court and to limit clerical expenditures, with the result that he became extremely unpopular. He was murdered by his nephew John I (John I Zimiskes), who succeeded him, first in Theophano's affections and then on the throne.

Nicephorus III. [Also, Nicephorus III Botaniates (bō.tan.i.ā'tēz).] Byzantine emperor (1078-81). A general, he overthrew Michael VII and gained the throne. After a reign filled with debauchery, he quarreled with his chief supporter, Alexius Comnenus, who overthrew him and took the crown as Alexius I.

Nicephorus Bryennius (brī.en'ius). b. at Orestias, in Macedonia; d. after 1137. Byzantine historian; husband of Anna Comnena. He wrote a Byzantine history which was completed by his wife.

Nicephorus Callistus (kāl.is'tus). d. in the middle of the 14th century. Byzantine ecclesiastical historian.

Nicephorus Gregoras (grōg'ō.rās). b. in Asia Minor, 1295; d. c1359. Byzantine historian. He wrote a Byzantine history.

Nicephorus Patriarcha (pā.tri.ār'ka, pat.ri-). b. c758; d. 828. Byzantine historian, patriarch of Constantinople (806-815). An opponent of the iconoclasts, he nevertheless permitted himself to be deposed (815) after the repressive edict of Emperor Leo V against the image worshippers. He wrote a Byzantine history, Breviarium, and a chronology.

Nicer (nī'sér). Latin name of the Neckar.

Nicetas (nī.sē'tas). See Saint Ignatius of Constantinople.

Nicetas Acominatus (ak'ō.mi.nā'tus). [Also, Nicetas Choniates.] b. in Phrygia, Asia Minor; d. at Nicaea, Bithynia, c1216. Byzantine historian.

Nice Valor, or the Passionate Madman, The. Comedy by John Fletcher and another (possibly Thomas Middleton), printed in 1647, but produced before 1624. In this play is "Hence, all you vain delights," a song which influenced Milton's Il Penseroso.

Nichol (nik'ol), John. b. Sept. 8, 1833; d. Oct. 11, 1894. Scottish writer and lecturer; son of John Pringle Nichol. He was professor of English literature in Glasgow University from 1862 to 1889. He published Fragments of Criticism (1860), English Composition (1879), Byron (1880) in the English Men of Letters series), The Death of Themistocles, and Other Poems (1881), American Literature: an Historical Review (1882), and others.

Nichol, John Pringle. b. at Brechin, Scotland, Jan. 13, 1804; d. near Rothsay, Scotland, Sept. 19, 1859. Scottish astronomer. He wrote Views of the Architecture of the Heavens (1838), The Stellar Universe (1847), The Planetary System (1848-50), and others.

Nicholas (nik'ō.las), Saint, d. (probably) Dec. 6, 345 or 352. Bishop of Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor. He has been adopted as the patron saint of Russia, and is also regarded as the patron saint of seafaring men, thieves, virgins, and children. He is a popular saint of the Greek and Roman churches, and his festival is celebrated December 6. He owes his position as Santa Claus (a corruption of the Dutch Sant Nikolaus) to the legend that he wished to preserve the three daughters of a poor nobleman from dishonor when the father, having no money for marriage portions, was about to force them to support themselves by prostitution. Saint Nicholas threw a purse of gold in at an open window for three nights in succession, thus furnishing a dowry for each daughter. From this incident is said to be derived the custom of placing gifts in the shoes or stockings of children on Saint Nicholas's eve, and attributing the gifts to Santa Claus, whose bulging pack of toys is an extension of the three bags of gold, symbol of Saint Nicholas. The custom has in the U.S. and some other countries been transferred to Christmas.

Nicholas, Grand Duke. b. July 27, 1831; d. at Alupka, Crimea, April 13, 1891. Russian general; third son of Czar Nicholas I. He commanded the army of the Danube in the war against Turkey in 1877.

Nicholas I, Saint. [Called Nicholas the Great.] b. at Rome; d. Nov. 13, 867. Pope from 858 to 867. He maintained the papal authority in dealing with the persistent attempts at divorce by Lothair, king of Lorraine, and resisted the pretentious claims of various bishops. He defended the patriarch Ignatius against the usurper Photius in the see of Constantinople, excommunicating the latter. He maintained the right of bishops to appeal to Rome over their superiors. A letter of his to Boris, king of the newly converted Bulgarians, and answering some of the questions raised by that king, is in existence. He is generally considered to have been one of the great popes of the Middle Ages.

Nicholas II. [Original name, Gerard of Burgundy.] b. at Chevon, in Savoy; d. at Florence, July 27, 1061. Pope from 1058 to 1061. He was under the influence of Hildebrand, who was later pope as Gregory VII. Nicholas deposed Benedict X, illegally elected on the death of Stephen X, and reformed the laws regulating papal elections.

Nicholas III. [Original name, Giovanni Gaetani Orsini.] b. at Rome, c1216; d. at Soriano, near Viterbo, Italy, Aug. 22, 1280. Pope from 1277 to 1280. He possessed superior talents as a diplomat, although his efforts at promoting reunion with Constantinople ultimately failed. He made several long steps toward eliminating foreign control of Rome; in July, 1278, he established a constitution barring foreigners from holding civil office in Rome. He sent Franciscan missionaries to Persia and China.

Nicholas IV. [Original name, Girolamo Masci d'Ascoli.] b. at Ascoli, Italy; d. at Rome, April 4, 1292. Pope from 1288 to 1292. The first Franciscan pope, he sent missions to the East, endeavored to launch a crusade, and granted Sicily to the House of Anjou. He was strongly influenced by the Colonna family.

Nicholas V. [Original name, Pietro Rainalducci.] b. in Corvaro, Italy; d. October, 1333. Antipope, elected with the support of Louis the Bavarian (the emperor Louis IV) in opposition to John XXII in 1328. He was deposed in 1330.

Nicholas V. [Original name, Tommaso Parentucelli.] b. at Sarzana, Italy, Nov. 15, 1397; d. at Rome, March 24, 1455. Pope from 1447 to 1455. He is noted for his encouragement of learning and art. He negotiated with the emperor Frederick III the Concordat of Vienna (1448) securing recognition of papal rights regarding bishoprics and obtained the submission of the last antipope, Felix V, whom he made a cardinal. His coronation of Frederick III at Rome in 1452 was the last such coronation. During his pontificate, Constantinople fell (1453) to the Turks and was lost to Christendom.

Nicholas I (of Montenegro). [Also, Nicholas Petrovich.] b. at Njeguš, Montenegro, Sept. 25, 1841; d. at Antibes, France, March 1, 1921. Prince (1860-1910) and king (1910-18) of Montenegro. He succeeded his uncle Danilo II as prince. He was defeated by Turkey in 1862, but in 1876 and the two years following led his troops victoriously against the Turks, securing a peace from them that almost tripled his realm; the Treaty of Berlin (1878) reduced these accessions to some extent, but Montenegro obtained recognition of its independence and obtained a seaboard. He assumed the title of king in 1910 after having had (1905) a constitution forced from him. His unpopularity grew overwhelming after the failure of Montenegro in the Balkan wars and as an ally of Serbia in World War I. He opposed the union of Montenegro and Serbia (that took place nevertheless in the new state of Yugoslavia) and was deposed (1918) by a national assembly. He wrote poetry, plays, and songs of some merit.

Nicholas I (of Russia). b. near St. Petersburg, June 25, 1796; d. at St. Petersburg, Feb. 18, 1855. Czar of Russia (1825-55); third son of Paul I. He succeeded his brother Alexander I in 1825, carried on wars with Persia (1826-28) and with Turkey (1827-29), suppressed the insurrection of Poland (1830-31), aided Austria in suppressing the Hungarian insurrection in 1849, and commenced war against Turkey in 1853, which in 1854 involved him in war also with Great Britain and France (the Crimean War). Nicholas, as one of the exponents of the extreme reactionary policy of the Metternich system, suppressed any liberalizing tendencies not only within his government but also in the economic and cultural life of his country; by the end of his reign, Russia was already far behind the rest of Europe in development.

Nicholas II (of Russia). b. at St. Petersburg, May 18, 1868; d. at Ekaterinburg (now Sverdlovsk), Russia, July 17, 1918. Czar of Russia; son of Alexander III whom he succeeded Nov. 1, 1894. He married Princess Alix of Hesse, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, Nov. 26, 1894. He initiated (1899) the first International Peace Conference at the Hague and furthered the construction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad to Vladivostok. His attempts to preserve the autocracy of the Romanovs, however, failed; the defeat of Russia by Japan (1905) and the consequent Revolution of 1905 forced him to grant a constitution allowing representative government. He replaced the temporizing Count Sergei Witte in 1905 with Peter Stolypin as premier in an attempt to restore his absolute power, and he permitted the Duma, or parliament, to die in its own ineffectiveness, while at the same time apparently instituting liberal reforms under Stolypin, albeit unwillingly. World War I widened the rift between the government and the now seething population of the Russian cities, and after Nicholas took personal charge (1915) of the armed forces and left the court and the administration of the government to the empress, who was under the influence of the charlatan Rasputin, the overthrow of the government became inevitable. The military defeats combined with a collapsing economic system to bring about the outbreak. Although he was nominally chief commander of Russian forces, the revolution found him unprotected against the uprising forces. His abdication (March 15, 1917) to a moderate government under Lvov and Kerensky came too late and could not save him from capture by the Bolsheviks, who shot him together with his entire family when Kolchak's counterrevolutionary army advanced toward Ekaterinburg.

Nicholas, Sir Edward. b. April 4, 1593; d. 1669. English statesman, secretary of state to Charles I and Charles II.

Nicholas, George. b. at Williamsburg, Va., c1754; d. in June, 1799. American soldier, pioneer, and politician brother of Wilson Cary Nicholas. He became (1781) a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and was a member of the Virginia convention of 1788, where he supported ratification. He moved (1790) to Kentucky, where he helped draft (1792) the Kentucky constitution and served as the first attorney general of the state. He played a prominent role in supporting and drafting Jefferson's Kentucky resolutions (1793).

Nicholas, Wilson Cary. b. at Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 31, 1761; d. in Albemarle County, Va., Oct. 10, 1820. American soldier and legislator; brother of George Nicholas. He was elected (1799) the U.S. Senate, remaining there until 1804, when he resigned to take the post of collector of the port of Norfolk. He was governor (1814 et seq.) of Virginia.

Nicholas Cully (kul'i), Sir. See Cully, Sir Nicholas.

Nicholas (or Nic) Frog (nik frog). See Frog, Nicholas (or Nic).

Nicholas Gimcrack (jim'krak), Sir. See Gimcrack, Sir Nicholas.

Nicholas Nickleby (nik'1.bi). Novel by Charles Dickens, first published serially during 1838-39, an excellent example of the spontaneous, loosely organized narrative technique of his early writing.

Nicholas of Cusa (ku'za). [German, Nikolaus von Cusa; Latinized, Nicolaus Cusanus; original name, Nikola Chrypsif (or Cryfts) or Krebs.] b. at Kues (Cusa), near Trier, Germany, 1400 or 1401; d. at Todi, Italy, Aug. 11, 1464. German churchman and scholar. At the troubled Council of Basel (1431-49) he worked earnestly for unity of the Christian church, and promoted reform of the calendar. Pope Eugene IV bestowed the red hat of a cardinal upon him in 1448, and in 1450 he was named bishop of Brixen (Bressanone), Italy. Eminently a diplomat, he was appointed a papal legate, and traveled widely, correcting abuses in monasteries and sees, convok-ing synods, laboring to restore discipline and doctrine, trying to compose the Hussite schism, promoting a crusade against the Turks, mediating for peace between England and France, and working to heal the great schism between the Roman and Byzantine churches. He was active in exposing the false or Isidorian Decretals. Before Copernicus he perceived that the earth moves around the sun, and his philosophy was humanistic, with pantheistic tendencies that anticipated Giordano Bruno. He wrote mathematical and philosophical treatises; his chief work was De docta ignorantia.

Nicholas of Damascus (da,mas'kus). [Latin, Nicolaus Damascenus.] b. at Damascus; fl. in the 1st century B.C. Greek historian.

Nicholas of Strasburg (stras'berg). fl. first half of the 14th century. German mystic preacher at Strasburg, Freiburg, and elsewhere. He was appointed by Pope John XXII visitor of the Dominican province of Germany. For vindicating Meister Eckhart, he was excommunicated by Archbishop Heinrich of Cologne, but was reinstated by Pope John.

Nicholas the Great. See Saint Nicholas I.

Nicholasville (nik'6.las.vil). City in C Kentucky, county seat of Jessamine County, in a farming region. It was settled in 1793. Pop. 3,406 (1950).

Nicholls (nik'olz), Francis Redding Tillou. b. at Donaldsonville, La., Aug. 20, 1834; d. Jan. 4, 1912. American Confederate general, jurist, and governor. He was graduated (1855) from West Point, resigned his army commission in 1856, was admitted to the Louisiana bar, and subsequently established his practice at Napoleonville. During the Civil War he rose from the rank of captain to brigadier general in the Confederate army, losing an arm at Winchester and a leg at Chancellorville. Returning to his law practice at Napoleonville, he became active in Democratic politics in Louisiana during the Reconstruction period, serving as governor of a de facto government set up after the contested election of 1876. He served a second term from 1883 to 1892. He was chief justice (1892-1904) of the Louisiana supreme court and was associate justice of that court from 1904 to 1911.

Nicholls, Rhoda Holmes. b. at Coventry, England, March 23, 1854; d. at Stamford, Conn., Sept. 7, 1930.

English-American water-color painter. She spent some years in South Africa and elsewhere before coming to the U.S. Among her principal works are The Scarlet Letter, Scorching the Scriptures, and Water Lilies.

Nichols (nik'olz), Anne. American playwright. She is best known as the author of the play Abie's Irish Rose. Its continuous Broadway run (1922-27) established a record for unbroken performances anywhere (2,327), later broken (1933 et seq.) by Jack Kirkland and Erskine Caldwell's Tobacco Road, and others.

Nichols, Beverley. b. 1899—. English writer. Author of Prelude (1920), Patchwork (1921), Self (1922), Crazy Pavements (1927), The Star Spangled Manner (1928), Evenings (1932; dramatized with E. Knoblock), For Adults Only (1932), Cry Havoc (1933), Green Grows the City (1939), Men do not Weep (1941), and The Stream that Slood Sall. His plays include The Stag (1929), Avalanche (1931), and Floodlight (1937).

Nichols, Edward Leamington. b. at Leamington, England, Sept. 14, 1854; d. at West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 10, 1937. American physicist, professor of physics (1887-1919) at Cornell University. He published The Galvanometer (1894), A Laboratory Manual of Physics and Applied Electricity (1895; with others), The Elements of Physics (1896; with W. S. Franklin), Outlines of Physics (1897), and others. He was founder and editor (1893-1912) of the Physical Review.

Nichols, Ernest Fox. b. at Leavenworth, Kan., June 1, 1869; d. April 29, 1924. American physicist. He was professor of physics at Colgate University (1892-98) and at Dartmouth College (1898-1903), professor of experimental physics at Columbia University (1903-09), and became president of Dartmouth College in 1909. He was especially known for his work in measuring planetary light and heat. Appointed (1920) head of the Cleveland Nela Research Laboratory, he was named shortly thereafter president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology but was forced by bad health to decline the appointment.

Nichols, Hobart. [Full name, Henry Hobart Nichols, Jr.] b. at Washington, D.C., May 1, 1869—; American landscape painter; brother of Spencer Baird Nichols. He became an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1912, and in 1920 its president. His painting Moonrise at Ogunquit is in the Corcoran Gallery at Washington, D.C.

Nichols, John. b. at Islington, near London, Feb. 2, 1745; d. Nov. 26, 1826. English printer and antiquary. He was an apprentice of William Bowyer. He was editor of and contributor to the Gentleman's Magazine from 1778 until his death. His Memoirs of Bowyer, begun in 1778, were expanded into the Literary Anecdotes and Illustrations, a literary history of the 18th century. He also wrote several volumes on the court festivities of the reigns of Elizabeth and James I.

Nichols, John Bowyer Buchanan. b. 1859; d. at Lawford, Essex, England, June 2, 1939. English poet, critic, and anthologist. He was the author of Inez de Castro, a Newdigate prize poem, delivered at the Sheldonian Theatre, Oxford, June 13, 1883, and published the same year; The Mourning Bride (1896) and Portrait of a Gentleman (1897), short stories, both contributed to the Westminster Gazette, of which he was art critic; and Poems (1943). In 1895 he published Words and Days (reprinted 1941, with a preface by Logan Persall Smith), an anthology of prose and poetry, and in 1903 edited A Little Book of English Sonnets.

Nichols, Robert. [Full name, Robert Malise Bowyer Nichols.] b. at Shanklin, Isle of Wight, Sept. 6, 1893; d. Dec. 17, 1944. English poet and dramatist; son of J. B. Nichols. Author of Ardors and Endurances (1917), The Assault (1918), Aurelia (1920), and Fisbo (1934); poems; Under the Yew (1928), a short novel; Guilty Souls (1922), Twenty Below (1927), and Wings Over Europe (1929), plays; and of The Budded Branch (1918), The Smile of the Sphinx (1920), Fantastica (1923), and Golgotha and Company (1928), prose. He edited an Anthology of War Poetry: 1914-1918 (1943). Among his best-known poems are Fulfillment, The Pilgrim, Nearer, and By the Wood.

Nichols, Spencer Baird. b. at Washington, D.C., Feb. 13, 1875; d. at Kent, Conn., Aug. 27, 1950. American muralist, portrait painter, and illustrator; brother of Hobart Nichols. He illustrated numerous books, including The Happy Prince (1923) and The Last Voyage (1930). He was a member of the National Academy of Design.

Nichols, Thomas. b. in Pembrokeshire, Wales, 1820; d. at London, May 14, 1879. English writer. He was one of the founders of the University of Wales. He published The Pedigree of the English People (1868) and others.

Nichols Hills. Town in C Oklahoma, in Oklahoma County; a northern residential suburb of Oklahoma City. 2,606 (1950).

Nicholson (nik'ol.sən), Ben. b. at Denham, England, 1894—. English painter and sculptor, a leading member of the international geometrical abstract school. The majority of his paintings and reliefs are titled merely Painting or Relief.

Nicholson, Francis. b. Nov. 12, 1655; d. at London, March 5, 1728. British colonial official. He was lieutenant governor, under Sir Edmund Andros, of the province composed of the colonies north of Chesapeake Bay (1686-89), and represented Andros at New York. He was lieutenant governor of Virginia (1690-94), and governor of Maryland (1694-98), of Virginia (1698-1705), of Acadia (1713-17), and of South Carolina (1720-25). He returned to England in 1725.

Nicholson, James. b. at Chestertown, Md., c1736; d. Sept. 2, 1804. American naval officer in the Revolutionary War; brother of Samuel Nicholson. He was named (1776) a captain in the Continental navy, subsequently becoming its top-ranking captain and senior officer. He subsequently settled at New York, where he served (1801-04) as commissioner of loans.

Nicholson, James William Augustus. b. at Dedham, Mass., March 10, 1821; d. at New York, Oct. 28, 1887. American admiral; grandson of Samuel Nicholson. He entered the navy in 1838, and served with distinction during the Civil War, having charge of the monitor Manhattan under David G. Farragut at the battle of Mobile Bay in 1864.

Nicholson, John. b. at Dublin, Dec. 11, 1821; d. after the storming of Delhi, India, Sept. 23, 1857. English soldier. He entered the service of the East India Company in 1839, and in 1840 was ordered to Afghanistan, where he was imprisoned two years later. He served in the Sikh wars in 1845 and 1848, and against the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857.

Nicholson, John. Original name of Lambert, John.

Nicholson, Meredith. b. at Crawfordsville, Ind., Dec. 9, 1866; d. at Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 21, 1947. American novelist and diplomat. He was U.S. minister to Paraguay (1933-34), Venezuela (1935-38), and Nicaragua (1938-41). Author of a volume of poetry, Short Flights (1891), and the essay collections The Provincial American (1913), The Valley of Democracy (1918), and The Man in the Street (1921). His other works include The Main Chance (1903), The House of a Thousand Candles (1905), The Port of Missing Men (1907), The Lords of High Decision (1909), A Hoosier Chronicle (1912), Blacksheep! Blacksheep! (1920), Broken Barriers (1922), The Hope of Happiness (1923), and The Cavalier of Tennessee (1928).

Nicholson, Samuel. b. in Maryland, 1743; d. at Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 29, 1811. American naval officer during the Revolutionary War; brother of James Nicholson. He was named (1776) a captain in the Continental navy, subsequently commanding the Dolphin and the Deane. In 1794, upon the formation of the new U.S. navy, he received his commission as captain and became the navy's second-ranking senior officer.

Nicholson, Seth Barnes. b. at Springfield, Ill., Nov. 12, 1891—. American astronomer. As astronomer (1915 et seq.) at Mount Wilson Observatory, Pasadena, Calif., he discovered the ninth, tenth, and eleventh satellites of Jupiter. He is a specialist in solar astronomy and stellar radiation. Coauthor of The Magnetic Polarity of Sunspots (1919), Magnetic Observations of Sunspots 1917-1924 (1938), and other works.

Nicholson, Thomas. b. at Woodburn, Ontario, Canada, Jan. 27, 1862; d. at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, March 7, 1944. American Methodist bishop, president (1921-32) of the Anti-Saloon League.

Nicholson, William. b. at London, 1753; d. there, May 21, 1815. English physicist and chemist. He published Introduction to Natural Philosophy (1781), A Dictionary of Practical and Theoretical Chemistry (1808), and others. In 1800 he discovered the decomposition of water by electrolysis. Nicholson's Journal, the earliest English journal of natural philosophy and chemistry, was begun in 1797.

Nicholson, William. b. Dec. 25, 1781; d. at Edinburgh, Aug. 16, 1844. Scottish portrait painter, one of the founders and the first secretary of the Scottish Academy. He etched portraits of Sir Walter Scott, Robert Burns, and other distinguished Scotsmen of the day.

Nicholson, Sir William. b. at Newark, Nottinghamshire, England, 1872; d. May 16, 1949. English painter and wood engraver, noted for his impressionistic portraits, his book illustrations, and his caricatures of prominent people. Among his principal works are Girl with the Tattered Gloves (Oxford) and Walter Greaves (Manchester). The books he illustrated include The Square Book of Animals (1896), An Almanac of Twelve Sports (1898), and London Types (1898).

Nicholson, Sir William Gustavus. [Title, 1st Baron Nicholson of Roundhay.] b. March 2, 1845; d. 1918. English soldier.

Nicholson's Neck. Locality in Natal, South Africa, a few miles N of Ladysmith. Here abt. 1,000 British soldiers were captured (Oct. 30, 1899) by the Boers.

Nicias (nish'ias). Executed in Sicily, 413 B.C. Athenian general and politician, after the death of Pericles (429 B.C.) chief leader of the aristocratic faction at Athens in the Peloponnesian War, opposed by Cleon. He arranged (421) the Peace of Nicias with Sparta, envisaging a 50-year truce, but broken almost immediately. He commanded the unsuccessful expedition against Syracuse (415-413), where he was captured and executed. The failure of the expedition has traditionally been laid to Nicias's extreme caution; he delayed a retreat, because of fear occasioned by an eclipse of the sun, and was stranded when the Athenian fleets were soon afterward defeated.

Nicias, Peace of. See under Nicias.

Nicias of Athens (ath'enz). Greek painter, a contemporary of Praxiteles. When Praxiteles was asked which of his works in marble he valued most, he is said to have answered, "Those on which Nicias has set his mark"; and Pliny explains this expression by the comment, "So much importance did Praxiteles attach to the circumlution (covering of color) applied by Nicias." This passage was for a long time the principal foundation for the theory that the Greeks painted their statues, which is now confirmed by the works themselves.

Nick (nik). A pseudonym of Mirabeau, Comtesse de.

Nick Bottom (nik bot'qm). See Bottom, Nick.

Nick Carter (nik kār'ter). Name of the detective hero of numerous dime novels published c1880 et seq., purportedly written by Nick Carter himself. The character is said to have been invented by John R. Coryell (1848-1924) but other writers, including T. C. Harbaugh and F. V. R. Dey, carried on the series through some 1,000 books published by Street and Smith.

Nick of the Woods; or, The Jibbenainosay (jib.e.nā'-nō.sā). Novel by Robert Montgomery Bird, published in 1837.

Nicobar (nik.ō.bār'). Great. See Great Nicobar.

Nicobarese (nik'ō.bār.ēz', -ēs'). Mongoloid people of the Nicobar Islands S of Burma; they number ab. 12,450. They are divided into 13 tribes speaking several dialects; that of the central Nicobars has been classed as a Mon-Khmer language. The Nicobarese raise pigs and coconuts, bartering the latter to traders for rice, cloth, and other necessities. One of the tribes, the Shompen, differs considerably in language and culture from the others.

Nicobar Islands. [Also, Nicobars (nik.ō.bārz').] Group of islands in the Bay of Bengal, S of the Andaman Islands, ab. 900 mi. E of Ceylon. They are a possession of the Union of India, and a dependency of the Andaman Islands. The largest island is Great Nicobar. The main export product of the islands is copra. Area, ab. 635 sq. mi.; pop. 12,452 (1941).

Nicodé (nē.kō.dā). Jean Louis, b. near Posen (Poznań), Aug. 12, 1853; d. at Dresden, Oct. 5, 1919. German pianist and composer. From 1878 to 1885 he was a teacher in the Dresden Conservatory. His best-known works are a set of symphonic variations for orchestra; Das Meer, a symphonic ode for solo, male chorus, orchestra, and organ; and Maria Stuart, a symphonic poem.

Nicodemus (nik.ō.dē'mus). In New Testament history, a member of the Sanhedrin, a disciple who visited Jesus by night as an inquirer (John, iii. 1-21). After the death of Jesus he contributed a mixture of aloes and myrrh for anointing the dead body. A Gospel of Nicodemus is among the noncanonical books called the Pseudepigraphia.

Nicodemus Boffin (bof'in). See Boffin, Nicodemus.

Nicol (nik'ol). Erskine, b. at Leith, Scotland, July 3, 1825; d. at Feltham, England, March 8, 1904. British genre painter. He studied at the Trustees Academy, Edinburgh, lived at Dublin (c1845-49), and removed from Edinburgh to London in 1863. Many of his works have been engraved.

Nicol, William, b. at Dumbarton, in Annan parish, Scotland, c1744; d. probably at Edinburgh, April 21, 1797. Scottish schoolmaster, friend of Robert Burns, and the "Willie" of Burns's well-known drinking song Willie Brew'd a Peck o' Maut (1789).

Nicol, William, b. c1768; d. at Edinburgh, Sept. 2, 1851. British inventor and physicist. In 1828 he invented the prism for polarizing light, named after him the Nicol prism, or Nicol.

Nicola (nē.kō'lā). Enrico De. See De Nicola, Enrico.

Nicola (nik'ō.lā). Enrico, b. probably in France, 1717; d. at Alexandria, Va., Aug. 9, 1807. American Revolutionary soldier, merchant, and editor. He emigrated (c1766) to Philadelphia after a military career in Europe, established himself as a merchant, and edited (1769) The American Magazine, or General Repository. During the Revolutionary War he held (1777 et seq.) the rank of colonel and performed valuable services in the training and instruction of recruits. He is remembered also for his proposal (1782) that Washington take the helm of an American monarchy.

Nicolai (nē.kō.lī), Christoph Friedrich, b. at Berlin, March 18, 1733; d. there, Jan. 6, 1811. German author and bookseller. He edited the periodical Allgemeine deutsche Bibliothek, and wrote Anekdoten von Friedrich II (1785-92); also the novel Leben und Meinungen des Herrn Magisters Sebaldus Nothanker (1773-76), which was enormously popular and established him, for all practical purposes, as the leader of the literary group opposing the Sturm und Drang movement. He directed at J. G. von Herder his Eyn Feyner Kleynen Almanach (1777-78) and thought to kill off Goethe's Werther with the parody Die Freuden des jungen Werthers (1775). Goethe retorted in the Xenien, and pilloried Nicolai in Faust as the unmentionable "Proktophantasmist." Nicolai was associated with Lessing and Moses Mendelssohn in the publication (1759-65) of the famous Literaturbriefe. Ludwig Tieck wrote stories for Nicolai's Straussfedern (1795-98). Nicolai did valuable biographical studies of some 18th-century writers, such as Ewald von Kleist (1760), Thomas Abbt (1867), and Justus Möser (1797).

Nicolai, Otto. [Full name, Carl Otto Ehrenfried Nicolai.] b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, June 9, 1810; d. May 11, 1849. German composer and conductor. He founded (1842) the Philharmonic concerts at Vienna during the period (1841-47) when he was Kapellmeister (choirmaster) of the court opera there. His chief work, a comic opera, Die lustigen Weiber von Windsor (Eng. trans., The Merry Wives of Windsor), was produced in 1849. He wrote several other operas, a mass, symphony, piano pieces, songs, and other works.

Nicolaier (nē.kō.lī'ēr), Arthur, b. at Cosel (Koźle), in Upper Silesia, Feb. 4, 1862-; German physician. He discovered (1884) the tetanus bacillus, and introduced uterופן (1894) and cinchophen (1908), using the trade name of Atophan for the treatment of gout and rheumatism.

Nicolas (nē.kō.lā), Ernest. Original name of Nicolini.

Nicolas (nik'ō.lās), Sir Nicholas Harris. [Generally known as Sir Harris Nicolas.] b. March 10, 1799; d. near Boulogne, France, Aug. 3, 1848. English antiquary and historian. He published Notitia Historica (1824; republished as The Chronology of History, 1833-38), Synopsis of the Peage of England (1825), History of the Orders of Knighthood of the British Empire (1841-42), and Despatches and Letters of Admiral Lord Viscount Nelson (1844-46).

Nicolaus Cusanus (nik.ō.lā'us kū.zā'nus). Latinized name of Nicholas of Cusa.

Nicolaus Oresmus (nik.ō.lā'us ō.rez'mus). Latinized name of Oresme, Nicôle.

Nicolay (nik'ō.lā), John George, b. in Germany, Feb. 26, 1832; d. Sept. 26, 1901. American author, private secretary (1860-65) to Abraham Lincoln and joint author with John Hay, his cosecretary, of Life of Abraham Lincoln (10 vols., 1890). He was also editor, with Hay, of Lincoln's Complete Works (1894).

Nicolet (nik'ō.lā'; French, nē.kō.lē). Town in SE Quebec, Canada, on the S bank of the St. Lawrence River, S of Three Rivers (Trois Rivières), 4,084 (1951).

Nicolet (nē.kō.lē), Jean, b. at Cherbourg, France, 1598; drowned in the St. Lawrence River, Nov. 1, 1642. French explorer, noted as the discoverer of Lake Michigan and what is now Wisconsin. Accompanying Samuel de Champlain to New France, he lived for two years among the Indians on Allumette Island in the Ottawa River. He was later sent by Champlain to live among the Nipissing Indians, for whom he became official interpreter. Subsequently he became official interpreter for Canada, establishing his headquarters at Three Rivers (Trois Rivières), Quebec. Researches which commenced in the middle of the 19th century have disclosed that on a voyage made in 1634 Nicolet became the first known white man to visit Lake Michigan and Wisconsin.

Nicolette (nē.kō.lē), Aucassin et. See Aucassin et Nicolette.

Nicolini (nē.kō.lē'nē). [Original name, Ernest Nicolas.] b. at St.-Malo, France, Feb. 23, 1834; d. at Pau, France, Jan. 19, 1898. French operatic tenor. He married Adeline Patti in 1886.

Nicol Jarvie (nik'ol jār'vī). See Jarvie, Nicol.

Nicoll (nik'ol), Robert, b. at Auchtergaven, Perthshire, Scotland, Jan. 7, 1814; d. near Edinburgh, Dec. 7, 1847. Scottish poet and editor. He was author of Il Zingaro (1833), a passionate love story in prose, and of more than 140 poems, published (1835, 1844) as Songs and Lyrics. Among his best-known poems are We are Brethren a', Thoughts of Heaven, and Death.

Nicoll, Sir William Robertson. [Pseudonym, Claudius Clear.] b. at Lumsden, Scotland, Oct. 10, 1851; d. at London, May 4, 1923. British author and editor. He was first editor (and also the founder) of the British Weekly and the Bookman in 1886, and of the British Monthly in 1900. Among his works are Literary Anecdotes of the Nineteenth Century (1895-96; with T. J. Wise), James Macdonell (1890), Letters on Life (1901), A Garden of Nuts (1905), The Key of the Blue Closet (1906), Life of Ian MacLaren (1908), and others.

Nicoll (nē.kō.le), Charles Jean Henri. b. at Rouen, France, Sept. 21, 1866; d. at Tunis, Africa, Feb. 28, 1936. French physician and bacteriologist. He became (1903) professor and director of the Pasteur Institute at Tunis. He was the first to show that serum from a patient convalescing from the measles would protect a susceptible individual from that disease and that the convalescent typhus and undulant fever serum has the same effect in those diseases. He discovered that grippé is due to a filtrable virus. He demonstrated that the blood of typhus fever patients is infectious and in 1909 indicated that typhus fever is transmitted from patient to patient by the bite of the body louse. He was awarded (1928) the Nobel prize for physiology and medicine for his work on typhus.

Nicollot (nē.kō.le), Joseph Nicolas. b. at Cluses, Savoie, France, July 24, 1786; d. at Washington, D.C., Sept. 11, 1843. French mathematician and explorer in America. Active in the study of mathematics and astronomy at Paris, he became professor of mathematics at the Collège Louis-le-Grand. He emigrated (1832) to New Orleans, subsequently became interested in exploration through his association with the Chouteau family at St. Louis, and made (1836) his first expedition, an effort to reach the headwaters of the Mississippi. He led (1838) a government expedition for surveying the upper Missouri, and a second one in 1839.

Nicolls (nik'olz), Matthias. b. at Plymouth, England, March 29, 1626; d. c.1687. English colonial administrator. He came to the American colonies in 1664, and, when New York came under British rule, was appointed provincial secretary, serving in that post until 1680 (except for the years 1673-74). He served (1671-72, 1674-75) as mayor of New York City and in 1683 was speaker of the first provincial assembly.

Nicolls, Richard. b. at Amptfield, Bedfordshire, England, 1624; d. in the battle of Southwold Bay, England, May 28, 1672. First English colonial governor of New York. He served under the royal standard in the English Civil War, and was appointed gentleman of the bedchamber to the Duke of York (later James II) at the Restoration. He was chief of the commission sent to New England to organize an attack on the colony of New Netherlands in 1664, and on the surrender of the Dutch in that year became governor of the conquered province, which he renamed New York from his patron, the Duke of York. He returned to England in 1667, and when war broke out against the Dutch served as a naval volunteer. He fell in the battle with Admiral M. A. de Ruyter on May 28, 1672.

Nicosi (nē.kō.lō'sē). Village in Sicily, at the S foot of Mount Etna: the usual starting point for ascents of Etna.

Nicolson (nik'ol.sən), Harold. b. at Tehran, Persia (now Iran), 1886-. English diplomat, writer, and critic. He married (1913) V. M. Sackville-West. He was a member of the delegation to the Peace Conference of 1919, and served in embassies at Madrid (1910) and Constantinople (1911), and at legations at Tehran (1925) and Berlin (1927). He joined the editorial staff of the London Evening Standard (1930). He served as a National Labour member of Parliament (1935-45), and was parliamentary secretary in the ministry of information (1940-41), and governor of the British Broadcasting Corporation (1941-46). Author of biographies and critical works including Paul Verlaine (1921), Tennyson (1923), Byron (1924), Swinburne (1926), The Development of English Biography (1927), Sir Arthur Nicolson, Bart., First Lord Carnock (1930; published in America under the title Portrait of a Diplomat), The

New Spirit in Literature (1931), Curzon: The Last Phase (1934), and Peacemaking, 1919 (1930). Among his novels are Sweet Waters (1921) and Public Faces (1932).

Nicolson, James Brindley. b. 1917; d. 1944. English aviator; cousin of Harold Nicolson. He was the first fighter pilot to receive the Victoria Cross in World War II (for unusual heroism in shooting down, on Aug. 16, 1940, a German airplane despite the burning of his own craft and severe wounds).

Nicomachean Ethics (nik.kom.a.kē'an). Ethical treatise by Aristotle, believed to be a series of his lectures edited by his son.

Nicomède (nē.kō.med). Tragedy by Pierre Corneille, produced in 1650 or 1651.

Nicomedia (nik.ō.mē'di.a). An ancient name of Izmit.

Nicopolis (nik.pō'lis, nī-). See also under Emmaus, Palestine.

Nicopolis. Ancient city in Cappadocia, Asia Minor, founded by Pompey to commemorate his victory there over Mithridates VI in 66 B.C.

Nicopolis. In ancient geography, a city in Epirus, Greece, situated on the Gulf of Arta. It was founded by Octavian (later the emperor Augustus) in commemoration of his victory at Actium in 31 B.C. The site contains many Roman antiquities.

Nicopolis. Ancient city near Alexandria, Egypt, founded (24 B.C.) by Augustus to commemorate his defeat of Antony.

Nicopolis. Ancient city N of what is now Trnovo, Bulgaria, founded by Trajan to commemorate his defeat of the Dacians (104-106 A.D.). The modern city of Nikopol stands on the same site.

Nicosia (nik.ō.sē'a). City in N central Cyprus, situated in the interior of the island: capital of the crown colony of Cyprus. It is the chief city and trade center of the island, and has small-scale textile industries. The city originated in ancient times, and has passed successively under Roman, Byzantine, Arab, Crusader, Venetian, Turkish, and British rule. 38,669 (est. 1951).

Nicosia (nē.kō.zē'a). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Enna, situated above the Salso River, NE of Enna: an agricultural trade center, with nearby stone quarries. It has a castle of Norman origin, and a 14th-century cathedral. In World War II, it was entered by the Allies on July 29, 1943. Repairs of bomb damage sustained in World War II have been carried out or are under way on the churches of Santa Croce, San Michele, San Salvatore, and San Vincenzo, and the Chiesa del Carmine; the cathedral was not damaged. Pop. of commune, 17,479 (1936); of town, 15,382 (1936).

Nicot (nē.kō), Jean. [Title, Sieur de Villemain.] b. at Nîmes, France, 1530; d. at Paris, May 5, 1600. French diplomat and scholar. He introduced (1560) the use of tobacco from Portugal, where he was ambassador (1559-61), into France. Nicotine and the plant genus Nicotiana were named for him.

Nicotera (nē.kō.tā.rā), Baron Giovanni. b. at San Biase, Calabria, Italy, Sept. 9, 1828; d. at Vico Equense, near Naples, Italy, June 13, 1894. Italian politician. He became in his youth a member of the Young Italy movement, participated in the rising in Calabria in 1848, and afterward served under Mazzini and Garibaldi. He was minister of the interior (1876-77, 1891-92).

Nicoya (nē.kō.yā), Gulf of. Arm of the Pacific Ocean SE of the peninsula of Nicoya, Costa Rica.

Nicoya Peninsula. Peninsula in W Costa Rica, bounded by the Gulf of Nicoya and the Pacific Ocean.

Nicteroy or Nictheroy (nē.tē.roi'). See Niterói.

Nicuesa (nē.kwā'sē), Diego de. b. at Baëza, Spain, c.1465; d. probably in March, 1511. Spanish conquistador. He went to Hispaniola in 1502, was subsequently agent of the colonists in Spain, and in 1508 was empowered to conquer and govern a region (then known as Castilla del Oro) comprising the coast of the Isthmus of Panama and Central America from the Gulf of Darien to Cape Gracias á Dios; at the same time Alonso de Ojeda received the adjoining province. Nicuesa left Santo Domingo about January, 1510, with five vessels and 650 (or, some accounts say, 785) men. He lost his larger ships, was wrecked, and endured terrible sufferings at Nombre de Dios, Panama; only 100 men survived. Colmenares, on his way with reinforcements for Nieuesa, touched at Antigua, where Ojeda's colony had been left without a commander. The colonists sent messages to Nieuesa, offering to accept him as governor, but he acted in such an overbearing manner that on his arrival at Antigua the colonists rebelled. He was forced to sail away in an unseaworthy ship, and was never heard of again.

Nidaros (nē'dā.rōs). Medieval name of Trondheim.

Nidd (nīd). Small river in C England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire. It rises near the West Riding-North Riding border and flows SE to the river Ouse.

Nidhug (nēd'hūg). [Also, Nithhogg.] In Old Norse mythology, a dragon which lies in Niflheim forever gnawing at the root of Yggdrasil, the world tree.

Nidwalden (nē't'vāld.ən). [French, Nidwald (nēd.vāld).] Half-canton of the canton of Unterwalden, in C Switzerland, comprising the NE part of the canton. Capital, Stans; area, 112 sq. mi.; pop. 19,389 (1950).

Niebuhr (nē'bōr). Barthold Georg. b. at Copenhagen, Aug. 27, 1776; d. at Bonn, Prussia, Jan. 2, 1831. German historian, philologist, and critic; son of Karstens Niebuhr. He was in the civil service of Denmark until 1806 and in that of Prussia (1806-10), lecturer at the University of Berlin, Prussian ambassador at Rome (1816-23), and lecturer at the University of Bonn (1823 et seq.). His chief work, Römische Geschichte (3 vols., 1811-32; Eng. trans., by Julius Hare and Connop Thirlwall), on the earlier history of Rome, produced a revolution in the study of Roman history; it was based on the study of institutions and relied on comparison with fact in place of traditional and distorted story. His researches among old library manuscripts brought to light the Institutes of Gaius, a formerly lost treatise on Roman law, and fragments of Cicero and Livy, among others. His Kleine Schriften were published 1828-43. See his correspondence in Lebensnachrichten (1838; Eng. trans. by Winkworth, 1832).

Niebuhr, Helmut Richard. b. at Wright City, Mo., Sept. 3, 1894-. American clergyman; brother of Reinhold Niebuhr. He has been professor of Christian ethics (1938 et seq.) at Yale Divinity School. Author of The Kingdom of God in America (1937), and other works.

Niebuhr, Karsten. b. at Lidingsworth, Germany, March 17, 1733; d. at Meldorf, Germany, April 26, 1815. German traveler in Arabia and the East (1761-67). He was the only survivor of a party of five explorers commissioned by Frederick V of Denmark. He wrote Beschreibung von Arabien (1774-78).

Niebuhr, Reinhold. b. at Wright City, Mo., June 21, 1892-. American Protestant clergyman and theologian; brother of Helmut Richard Niebuhr. Ordained (1915) in the ministry of the Evangelical Synod of North America, he was pastor (1915-28) at Detroit, Mich., and has been professor of applied Christianity (1930 et seq.) and dean (1950 et seq.) at the Union Theological Seminary. Politically a liberal of leftist tendency, he has striven, during his Detroit pastorate and afterward, for reform of political and economic abuses; he is a member of the Liberal Party of New York and prominent in Americans for Democratic Action. His religious message is opposed, however, to the liberal Protestant view. Niebuhr holds that man is by nature sinful and must work constantly and continually for redemption, which will depend finally on the goodness of God and not of man. Author of Does Civilization Need Religion? (1927), Leaves from the Notebook of a Tamed Cynic (1929), Moral Man and Immoral Society (1932), Beyond Tragedy (1937), The Nature and Destiny of Man (2 vols., 1941, 1943), The Children of Light and the Children of Darkness (1944), Discerning the Signs of the Times (1945), The Irony of American History (1952), and other books.

Niecks (nēks). Frederick. b. at Düsseldorf, Germany, Feb. 3, 1845; d. at Edinburgh, June 24, 1924. British violinist and musicologist, resident at Edinburgh, where he taught (1891-1914) at the university. He established (1901) the Musical Education Society. He wrote a Dictionary of Musical Terms (1884).

Niederbayern (nē'dér.bl.ērən). German name of Lower Bavaria.

Niederbronn-les-Bains (nē'dér.bron.lā.bān). Town in E France, in the department of Bas-Rhin, ab. 25 mi. N of Strasbourg. It is a health resort with mineral springs. The town was damaged in World War II. 3,491 (1946).

Niederdeutschland (nē'dér.doich.lānt). German name of Lower Germany.

Niedere Tauern (nē'dē.rə.tou'érn). See Tauern, Niedere.

Niederlande (nē'dér.lān.dē). German name of the Netherlands.

Niederle (nē'dér.le). Lubor. b. 1885; d. 1944. Czechoslovak scholar. Educated at Charles University, at Prague, he became an internationally recognized authority on Slavic antiquities, and was professor at Charles University from 1891 to 1929.

Niedermendig (nē'dér.men.dīh). Place in W Germany, W of Coblenz. It is noted for its quarries of basaltic lava.

Niedermeyer (nē'dér.ml.ēr). Louis. b. at Nyon, Switzerland, April 27, 1802; d. at Paris, March 14, 1861. Swiss composer of sacred music, and of melodies for the poems of Alphonse de Lamartine, Victor Hugo, Émile Deschamps, and others.

Niederösterreich (nē'dér.ēs'tēr.rīk). German name of Lower Austria.

Niedersachsen (nē'dér.zāk.sən). German name of Saxony, Lower.

Nieder Selters (nē'dér.zel'tērs). See Selters, Nieder.

Niederwäld (nē'dér.vālt). Spur of the Taunus Mountains, situated in Germany, near the Rhine, opposite Bingen. It rises to the height of 1,080 ft. above sea level. A national monument was erected on it in commemoration of the German triumph over France in 1870-71, and of the foundation of the second German Empire.

Niehaus (nē'hous). Charles Henry. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 24, 1855; d. 1935. American sculptor. Among his works are the statue of President Garfield at Cincinnati, Ohio; the Hohemann statue and monument at Washington, D.C.; statues of Moses and Gibbon in the Congressional Library, Washington, D.C.; and the equestrian statue of Saint Louis commissioned for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis in 1904.

Nieh Jung-chen (nye' jūng'chen'). b. in Szechuan, China, c1898. Chinese Communist general in North China. He studied chemical engineering (1920) in France and military science (1924) in Russia. He became (1937) commander in chief of the anti-Japanese Shansi-Chahar-Hopei border region and spearheaded the Communist capture (1949) of Peiping (Peking), becoming mayor of the city, garrison commander of the Peiping-Tientsin area, and deputy chief of staff of the Chinese Communist army.

Niel (nyel). Town in N Belgium, in the province of Antwerp, on the Rupel River S of Antwerp; agricultural trade; ceramics industry. 10,804 (1947).

Niel, Adolphe. b. at Muret, France, Oct. 4, 1802; d. at Paris, Aug. 13, 1869. French marshal. He distinguished himself in the Crimean War (particularly at the siege of Sevastopol in 1855), and in the battles of Magenta and Solferino in 1859. He was minister of war (1867-69) and attempted to carry through a program that would prepare France for the war with Prussia, which he saw as inevitable. Modifications of his program by the legislature did not permit his full conception to be brought into being, but he did have the chassepot rifle made standard equipment and saw, at least on paper, the creation of a national guard. He died before the war actually broke out.

Niel Blane (nēl blān). See Blane, Niel.

Nielsens (nēl'sen). Alice. b. at Nashville, Tenn., June 7, 1876; d. at New York, March 8, 1943. American soprano. She made her Covent Garden debut (1903) as Zelina in Don Giovanni, was a member (1909-13) of the Boston Opera Company, and made guest appearances with the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. She starred in Victor Herbert's The Fortune Teller and The Singing Girl.

Nielsen, Carl August. b. on the island of Fyn, Denmark, June 9, 1805; d. at Copenhagen, Oct. 2, 1931. Danish composer. He was conductor of the music society, and director (1914 et seq.) of the Conservatory at Copenhagen. Among his compositions are five symphonies, including The Four Temperaments; the operas Saul and David (1903) and Masquerade (1917); and the orchestral fantasy Pan and Syrinx (1926). He also composed a violin concerto, violin sonatas, string quartets, choruses, ballads, songs, and piano selections.

Niemann (ně'mán), Albert. b. at Erxleben, near Magdeburg, Germany, Jan. 15, 1831; d. at Berlin, Jan. 13, 1917. German tenor singer. He first went on the stage as an actor in 1849. His musical talent was discovered, and he was sent to Paris, through the patronage of the king of Hanover, to study with Duprez. He was successful in Wagner's operas and in heroic parts.

Niemann, Albert. b. at Berlin, Feb. 23, 1880; d. there, March 22, 1921. German pediatrician. He studied the metabolism and nutrition of nurslings and described (1914) a rare disease, marked by anemia, enlargement of liver, spleen, and lymph nodes and mental retardation, known as Niemann-Pick's disease.

Niembsch von Strehlenau (němsh' fon shtrá'lgə.nou), Nikolaus. See Lenau, Nikolaus.

Niemcewicz (nyem.tse'vích), Julian Ursyn. b. at Skoki, Lithuania, 1758; d. at Paris, April 21, 1841. Polish poet, novelist, historian, and dramatist. An aide and adviser to Thaddeus Kosciuszko, he shared his imprisonment (1794 et seq.) at St. Petersburg. He later went to the U.S., where he married Mrs. Livingston Kean of New York. Returning (1807) to Poland, he participated (1830) in revolutionary activity and was exiled. Among his works are Historical Songs of the Poles (1816) and History of the Reign of King Sigismund III of Poland (3 vols., 1819).

Niemen (nye'men). Polish name of the Neman.

Niemeyer (ně'miér), August Hermann. b. at Halle, Germany, Sept. 1, 1754; d. at Magdeburg, Germany, July 7, 1828. German theologian, sacred poet, and writer on pedagogics. He became chancellor and rector perpetuus at the University of Halle in 1808, and was made a member of the consistory at Magdeburg in 1816. Among his works are Charakteristik der Bibel (5 vols., 1775-82), Grundsätze der Erziehung und des Unterrichts (1796), and Religiöse Gedichte (1814).

Niemöller (ně'mölér), Martin. b. at Lippstadt, Germany, Jan. 14, 1892—r. German Protestant religious leader. A submarine commander in World War I, he subsequently studied theology and became (1931) minister at Dahlem, a suburb of Berlin. Though himself an ardent nationalist and an ex-member of the Nazi party, in 1933 he organized the ministers of the Confessional Church against the Nazis because of their attempts to destroy Christianity and to substitute their pagan religion. He was held (1938-45) in a concentration camp. He wrote Vom U-Boot zur Kanzel (1934; autobiography), Der Weg ins Freie (1946), and Deutsche Schuld, Not und Hoffnung (1946).

Niemzowitch (nyem.tsó'vích), Aron. See Nimzovitch, Aron.

Nienburg an der Weser (něn'bürk än dér vā'zér). [Also, Nienburg.] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, on the Weser River ab. 28 mi. NW of Hanover. It has chemical, glass, and paper industries, sugar refineries, and dairies. There is a Gothic church of the 15th century, and a Rathaus (town hall) of the 16th century. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II. 21,533 (1950).

Nienie (ně.ā.ně.gā). One of four subgroups of the Sudanic-speaking Bobo people of W Africa, inhabiting Ivory Coast. Their population is estimated at ab. 25,000 (by M. Delafosse, Haut-Sénégal-Niger, 1912).

Niepee (nyeps), Joseph Nicéphore. b. at Châlon-sur-Saône, France, March 7, 1765; d. at Gras, near Châlon, July 3, 1833. French inventor, associated with L. J. M. Daguerre in the invention of photography. He experimented (1811 et seq.) with lithographic methods and discovered (c1824) a means of making photographic prints, actually the first real photographs. His work with Daguerre aimed at perfecting this and other methods.

Nierstein (něr'shtín). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the province of Rhine Hesse, Prussia, on the Rhine River, ab. 9 mi. SE of Mainz. One of the most important viticultural communities of Germany, it produces excellent wines. 5,044 (1946).

Nies (něs), Konrad. b. at Alzey, Germany, Oct. 17, 1862; d. 1921. American lyric poet. He began as an actor and continued on the stage after he came to America in 1883, but later took to teaching and to writing. In his restless, wandering existence he gathered colorful impressions of America's cities, forests, and people, and portrayed these in verse. His works include Funken (1891), Aus westlichen Weiten (1905), and Welt und Wildnis (1921).

Niesen (ně'zən). Summit in the Bernese Oberland, Switzerland, ab. 15 mi. SW of Interlaken. Elevation, ab. 7,763 ft.

Nietzsche (ně'che), Friedrich Wilhelm. b. near Lützen, Germany, Oct. 15, 1844; d. at Weimar, Germany, Aug. 25, 1900. German philologist and philosopher. He was brought up by his widowed mother in an atmosphere of great piety (his father had been a Lutheran minister), and studied theology as well as philology at the universities of Bonn and Leipzig. Both studies were of importance to his career; the first seems to have confirmed him in an aversion to religion which was to be influential in shaping his philosophy; the second for some years (1869-80) gave him his living as professor of classical philology at the University of Basel. During his Leipzig years his thought was deeply colored by the pessimistic philosophy of Arthur Schopenhauer, but at this time also began the close personal friendship with Richard Wagner and the enthusiasm for Wagner's works and purposes which for some years were to mean much to both men. If Schopenhauer completed Nietzsche's disillusion with man as he was, and with the religious and philosophical concepts by which civilized man lived in the 19th century, Wagner confirmed the exciting hope of the rise of the Übermensch or Superman. Nietzsche's sensitivity to music had much to do with the identity of thought and purpose which prevailed for a time between the two men, and Wagner considered Nietzsche his most important adherent. But presently the younger man's ardor cooled, and with characteristic intemperance he later compared Wagner's music disparagingly with that of Bizet. Nietzsche's health was always frail; by 1879 his increasing nervous instability and his weakening eyesight led to his resignation from the faculty at Basel, and thereafter for a decade, supported by a small personal income and a small pension from the university, he traveled in vain search of a climate and an environment which would restore his health. Often in pain, he wrote doggedly until 1889, when his mind finally gave way completely. The many corruptions and hypocrisies of Western civilization may be said to have invited the attacks upon traditional religion, philosophy, and social concepts, which multiplied during the 19th century. Nietzsche was among the most outspoken of the critics, and the violence of his attack gave it an influence which in many ways proved unfortunate. Civilization, he said, had come to the end of its possibilities. It had been dominated by the ideal of the good, the true, and the beautiful, which sapped masculine vitality, and by Jewish-Christian ethics. The Jews, he said, when they first appeared in history, were a warlike, conquering people, exalting force, cruel and joyous; these things they considered good, and so did Nietzsche. But after the Jews were enslaved, they made virtues of humility, patience, charity, and peace, which Nietzsche called evil. Christianity merely spread these Jewish ideals, and Socialism threatened to impose them on all mankind. Against these virtues, against classless social and political equality, against mass rule, Nietzsche inveighed in a vigorous rhetorical style and with cryptic, prophetic, and at least apparently profound utterance. Control of society must be wrested from the masses by Superman; the poor in spirit must be ruled by the proud; the meek must not inherit the earth, but must serve the strong and the ruthless. He foretold that the 20th century would be ensanguined by terrible wars, which he hoped would lead to the rise of tyrants. These ideas naturally fascinated such men as those who a few years later tried to impose Fascism and Nazism on the world; and the detestation of Jews and Jewish influence which Nietzsche's analysis of civilization's sickness could arouse in the minds of such men, contributed to events from which he himself would almost certainly have recoiled. When it is considered that Nietzsche was a frail, sickly, frustrated, neurotic, and poverty-harassed man, Nietzscheanism appears in one aspect at least as the end-product of an extreme inferiority fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pīne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lîte, pûll; ʔt, then; ġ, d or ĵ; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; complex. Unhappily, the compensation which Nietzsche found in the realm of theory, lay all too readily at hand to be translated into action by another victim of an extreme inferiority complex, Adolf Hitler. All of Nietzsche's works have been translated into English; the most important of them are Die Geburt der Tragödie (The Birth of Tragedy, 1872), Menschliches Allzumenschliches (Human, All too Human, 1878-80), Die fröhliche Wissenschaft (Joyful Wisdom, 1882) Also sprach Zarathustra (Thus Spake Zarathustra, 1883-92), and Jenseits von Gut und Böse (Beyond Good and Evil, 1886).

Nieuhof (nōi'hōf), Johan Jacob. b. in Westphalia, Germany, c1610; d. on the Malabar Coast, probably Sept. 29, 1672. German explorer and administrator, in the service of the Dutch West India Company and later in that of the East India Company.

Nieuwenhove (nē'wēn.hō.ve), Baron Armand Marie Guislain Limnander de. See Limnander de Nieuwenhove, Baron Armand Marie Guislain.

Nieuwenhoven (nē'wēn.hō.vēn). Flemish name of Ninove.

Nieuwenhuis (nē'wēn.hois), Anton Willem. b. near Dordrecht, Netherlands, May 22, 1864—, Dutch explorer and ethnologist. He was the first to traverse (1896-97) Borneo from west to east. He became (1904) professor of ethnology at Leiden, and was editor (1909 et seq.) of the Internationale Archiv für Ethnographie.

Nieuwer-Amstel (nē'wēr.äm.stel). Town in W Netherlands, in the province of North Holland: a suburb of Amsterdam. 24,445 (est. 1951).

Nieuw Haarlem (nē'ū hār'lem). Original Dutch name of Haarlem.

Nieuwland (nū'land), Julius Arthur. b. at Hansbeke, Belgium, Feb. 14, 1878; d. June 11, 1936. American chemist and botanist. He was ordained (1903) in the Roman Catholic priesthood and served on the staff (1904 et seq.) of the University of Notre Dame. His researches led to the synthetic composition from acetylene of synthetic rubber and of Lewistite gas.

Nieuwpoort (nē'ū.pōrt). [French, Nieupoort (nyé.pōr).] Town in W Belgium, in the province of West Flanders, on the Yser River ab. 21 mi. SW of Bruges. Here on July 2, 1600, the Dutch under Maurice of Nassau defeated the Spaniards under the archduke Albert the Pious. It was the scene of heavy fighting in World War I. Pop. ab. 5,000.

Nieuwveld Range (nē'ū.fēld). Name given to a range of mountains in Cape of Good Hope province, Union of South Africa, bordering the Great Karroo on the NW.

Nièvre (nyevr). Département in C France, bounded by Yonne on the N, Côte-d'Or and Saône-et-Loire on the E, Saône-et-Loire and Allier on the S, and Cher on the W. It corresponds mainly to the old province of Nivernais. Always independent as a county, it was not united with the crown of France until 1790. It attracts tourists because of its healthful climate, its thermal baths, and its historical monuments. Agriculture is less developed than forestry and pasturage. The dairy industry is the outstanding industry of the department, but the chemical, metal, lumber, and woodenware industries are also important. Capital, Nevers; area, 2,659 sq. mi.; pop. 248,559 (1946).

Niffer (nif'ēr). See under Nippur.

Nifheim (niv'hām). [Old Norse, Nifheimr.] In Old Norse cosmogony, the cold world of fog in the north. In the midist was the spring from which flowed ten rivers. One root of the world tree, Yggdrasil, reached into Nifheim, and the dragon, Nidhug, lay there forever gnawing on it.

Nifhel (niv'hel). In Old Norse mythology, the realm of the goddess Hel; the abode of the dead, situated below the earth. A swift river, which ran over a bed of swords, surrounded it. A wall enclosed the whole realm, and Garm, Hel's watchdog, guarded it. Nifhel was originally the abode of those who died of old age or sickness. Only in late mythology was it made a place of misery and punishment for the damned.

Nigdek (nig'dek). See Nejdek.

Nigel (nī'jel). d. at Ely, England, 1169. English prelate and statesman; nephew of Roger of Salisbury. After education under Anselm at Laon, France, he was consecrated bishop of Ely (1133) and, under Henry I, was appointed "king's treasurer." Suspected by King Stephen of being in league with Pope Innocent II, he turned Ely into an island fortress and resisted him until the king himself put Nigel to rout (1139). He fled to Matilda, Stephen's rival, but, seeing the hopelessness of her cause, submitted to Stephen, who restored him to his see (1142). He was accused of partaking in Geoffrey de Mandeville's revolt in Ely, and only by surrendering his son as a hostage for future good behavior was he able to regain favor. He was requested by Henry II, upon his accession, to restore Henry I's official system and exchequer (1154). He was presiding justiciar in curia regis (c1165) and he (or his son) may have been the compiler of the Black Book of Exchequer.

Nigel. [Called Nigel Wireker.] fl. 1190. English monk and satirist. He was the author of a prose treatise, On the Corruptions of the Church (Contra curiales et officiales, c1193), and of a satirical poem attacking clerical hypocrisy and corruption, The Mirror of Pools (Speculum stultorum, c1180). The Mirror was exceedingly popular in the 14th and 15th centuries, and is cited in Chaucer's The Nun's Priest's Tale.

Nigel Olifaunt (ol'i.fant). See Olifaunt, Nigel.

Niger (nī'jēr). [French, Territoire du Niger.] Territory of French West Africa, bounded on the S by Nigeria and Dahomey, on the W by Upper Volta and the French Sudan, on the N by the southern territories of Algeria and by Libya, and on the E by Chad territory, French Equatorial Africa. The colony was formed in 1922, and was added to in 1926 and 1933 when the colony of Upper Volta was dissolved. This additional land was later returned to the reconstituted territory of Upper Volta. The N part of Niger is largely desert, while the S and C sections are relatively fertile savanna. Cattle are numerous in the S part. The chief products are millet, beans, and manioc. It is a popular area for big game hunters. The chief towns are Niamey, the capital, and Zinder. The territory is crossed by a few roads and numerous caravan routes. The administration is in the hands of a governor assisted by a privy council and a general council. It is represented in the French national assembly by one deputy, in the Council of the Republic by two councilors, and in the Assembly of the French Union by three delegates. Capital, Niamey; area, prior to the reconstitution of Upper Volta, 499,410 sq. mi.; pop. 2,168,000 (1945).

Niger Coast Protectorate. See under Oil Rivers Protectorate.

Nigeria (nī.jī'ri.ā). [Official name, Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria.] British crown colony and protectorate in W Africa. It comprises 23 provinces, divided administratively into Northern Provinces, Western Provinces, and Eastern Provinces, as well as the colony proper of Nigeria, a small area on the coast surrounding the port of Lagos. Nigeria is situated on the Gulf of Guinea, and is bounded on the N by the Niger territory of French West Africa, on the E by the trust territory of British Cameroons (which is administered in conjunction with Nigeria), on the S by the Gulf of Guinea, and on the W by the French territory of Dahomey. The country is drained by the Niger and Benue rivers and consists mostly of a low tableland with mountains on the E side. The river valleys and coastal regions are lowlands. It produces cotton, cocoa, ground nuts, palm oil and kernels, tin, iron, coal, and animal products. Total area including the Cameroons, 372,674 sq. mi.; total area without the Cameroons, 338,593 sq. mi.; area of colony, 1,381 sq. mi.; area of Northern Provinces, 251,703 sq. mi.; area of Western Provinces, 44,174 sq. mi.; area of Eastern Provinces, 45,975 sq. mi.; total pop. (including Cameroons), 21,826,389; pop. of colony, 354,387; pop. of Northern Provinces 12,476,677; pop. of Western Provinces, 3,980,301; pop. of Eastern Provinces, 5,015,024 (all 1945).

History and Government. The colony of Nigeria was obtained (1861) by Great Britain from a native king. In 1900 the protectorate of Northern Nigeria was formed out of the territories belonging to the old Royal Niger Company, and included most of the area N of the Niger and Benue rivers plus a small section S of them. In 1885 the coastal areas E of Lagos were formed into the Oil Rivers Protectorate which later (1893) was enlarged and renamed the Niger Coast Protectorate. In 1900 the latter area was increased by the addition of the remainder of the Royal Niger Company land, and was renamed the Protectorate of Southern Nigeria. In 1906 Lagos (the colony) and Southern Nigeria were united into the colony and protectorate of Southern Nigeria, and in 1914, after the addition of Northern Nigeria, the entire area became the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria under one governor. In 1920 the mandate of the British Cameroons was attached to Nigeria for administrative purposes. The governor is assisted by an executive council of officials and leading native citizens and a legislative council of officials and elected and appointed natives. In 1947 a new constitution gave Africans a majority in all bodies.

Niger River (nī'jēr). [Also (locally): Dioliba, Joliba, Kworra, Quorra, Mayo.] River in W Africa, one of the three chief rivers of Africa. The sources of the main headstreams are in the Fouta Jallon Plateau of French Guinea and Sierra Leone. The Niger flows generally NE to near Timbuktu, then E, SE, and S, and empties by a delta into the Gulf of Guinea. Its chief tributary is the Benue. It was first visited (1796) by Mungo Park. The area of its drainage basin is ab. 800,000 sq. mi.; length, ab. 2,600 mi. Niger, The. Play by Edward Sheldon, produced in 1909 and published in 1910. After becoming governor of a Southern state on a platform opposing civil liberty for the Negroes, Philip Morrow discovers that he has a Negro strain. He eventually solves the inner conflicts occasioned by this discovery and takes steps to make a public acknowledgment of his Negro ancestry.

Nigger Heaven. Novel by Carl Van Vechten, published in 1926, depicting the social hierarchy in Harlem.

Nigger of the Narcissus. Novel by Joseph Conrad, published in 1897 (it was first issued between two covers on November 30, at New York, as The Children of the Sea: A Tale of the Forecastle, and two days later at London under the title of entry). It is based on Conrad's own experiences as second mate on a sailing vessel (which actually bore the name Narcissus) in 1884; moreover, there actually was a Negro who died at sea. The book brought Conrad many new admirers, including Henry James, who considered it "the very finest and strongest picture of . . . sea-life that our language possesses."

Night and Morning. Novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1841.

Night Before Christmas, The. See Visit from Saint Nicholas, A.

Nightingale (nī'tīng'al, -ting-), Florence. [Called the "Lady with the Lamp."] b. at Florence, Italy, May 15, 1820; d. at London, Aug. 13, 1910. English philanthropist, nurse, and administrator, noted as a heroine of modern nursing. Early in life she became interested in nursing, and after 1844 she inspected schools and hospitals in England and all parts of Europe. In 1849-50 she spent several months at a Roman Catholic hospital at Alexandria, Egypt, and in 1850-51 trained as a nurse at the Institute of Protestant Deaconesses at Kaiserswerth. After that she studied further at Paris and in 1853 returned to London to take charge of a women's hospital. When news of the suffering of the wounded in the Crimean War reached England in 1854; she volunteered her services and was accepted. At the head of a group of 38 nurses, she reached Scutari in early November, 1854, soon after the battle of Balaklava, and there set up a hospital. She instituted severe sanitary measures intended to reduce the dangers of cholera, typhus, and dysentery; in this she was successful, and by 1855 the death rate had fallen from almost 50 percent to about two percent. Opposition and the inertia of a government at war did not dishearten her; she worked faithfully and hard for her charges, making her rounds at night with lamp in hand, superintending the arrival of new casualties, attending operations, ministering to the wounded and their families, performing all the administrative duties of the head of the hospitals along the Bosphorus as well; even when she herself collapsed of fever in May, 1855, she refused to be invalided home. After the war she founded (1860) with a fund donated as a testimonial to her services, the Nightingale Home at St. Thomas's Hospital, for the training of nurses; during the next 30 years she helped in the establishment of several nursing homes in England. Her health so ruined by her war service that she could not participate actively in nursing, she became a consultant on matters of sanitation and the reform of camp hospitals, village sanitary systems, and other projects now comprised in the study of public health. She was an official adviser on sanitation during the American Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War. In 1907 she became the first woman to receive the Order of Merit. She published The Institution at Kaiserswerth (1850), Notes on Hospitals (1859), Notes on Nursing (1860), Observations on the Sanitary State of the Army in India (1863), and others. Nightmare Abbey. Novel by Thomas Love Peacock, published in 1818.

Night Must Fall. Melodrama by Emyln Williams, published in 1935.

Night over Taos (tā'ōs, tous'). Three-act play in blank verse by Maxwell Anderson, produced and published in 1932.

Night Thoughts. Meditative poem in nine parts (1742-45) on religion and morality, by Edward Young. Its whole title is The Complaint, or Night Thoughts on Life, Death, and Immortality.

Night Walker or the Little Thief, The. Comedy said to have been written by John Fletcher and James Shirley, licensed in 1633, but printed in 1640 as by Fletcher only.

Night Watch, The. [Original title, Sortie of the Ban-ning Cocq Company.] Painting by Rembrandt (1642), in the Rijks Museum at Amsterdam. It represents an assembly of the civic guard (by daylight), with their officers, banner, and drummer. All the figures are portraits, as was usual with these "corporation" pictures, but in other respects Rembrandt departed radically from the conventional treatment. A shaft of strong light picks out the light-colored uniform of one officer in the foreground, his face, and the faces, plumes, or laces of a few near him; the other figures are in more or less deep shadow and facing in a variety of directions. The guardsmen, angry at not receiving equal treatment, gave the picture its now popular name in derision.

Night Way Chant. See under Navaho.

Nigra (nē'grā), Count Constantino. b. at Castellamonte, near Ivrea, Italy, 1828; d. at Rapallo, Italy, July 1, 1907. Italian diplomat. He served in 1848 as a volunteer in the Sardinian army against the Austrians, but afterward entered the diplomatic service, and acted as secretary to Cavour at the Congress of Paris in 1856. He was Italian ambassador at Paris, at St. Petersburg, at London, and at Vienna. He was also known as a student of Italian dialects, folklore, and popular poetry (Canti popolari del Piemonte).

Nigritia (nī.grish'i.ā). See Sudan.

Nihon (nē.hōn). See Nippon and Japan.

Nihongi (nē.hōng.gē). [Also, Nihon-shoki (nē.hōn.shō-kē).] Early legendary history of Japan in Chinese, compiled in 720 A.D.

Niigata (nē.ē.gā.tā). Ken (prefecture) in N central Honshu, Japan, bordering on the Sea of Japan and including the island of Sado. It is largely a mountainous region, but the level coastal plain is intensively cultivated. Rice and tea are the chief crops; there is lumbering in the mountains. Some petroleum is produced and refined. Capital, Niigata; area, ab. 4,854 sq. mi.; pop. 2,460,997 (1950).

Niigata. Seaport in Honshu, Japan, capital of Niigata ken (prefecture), situated on the W coast ab. 150 mi. N of Tokyo. There are oil-refining, machinery, textile, and metal industries. 220,901 (1950).

Niihama (nē.ē.hā.mā). City in Shikoku, Japan, on the Inland Sea: an important copper-refining center. 57,421 (1950).

Niihau (nē.ē.hā'ō). Westernmost of the principal islands of the Hawaiian Islands, situated ab. 18 mi. W of the island of Kauai. It is a low and rather dry island, partly hilly; cattle grazing is the chief occupation. Area, ab. 72 sq. mi.; pop. 222 (1950).

Nitaka-yama (nē.ē.tā.kā.yā.mā). Japanese name of Morrison, Mount, in Formosa.

Nijar (nē.nār). Town in E Spain, in the province of Almería, ab. 18 mi. NE of Almería; marketing center for an irrigated farming district. 10,071 (1940).

Nijhoff (nī'hōf), Martinus. b. 1894—. Dutch poet and essayist, also a student of law and literature. His poetry expresses the longing of modern man for harmony, sought partly in the art of living of past generations, and partly surmised in religious surrender of the self. His verse works include De Wandelaar (The Walker, 1916), Vormen (Forms, 1924), Nieuwe Gedichten (New Verses, 1934), and Het uur U (Eng. trans. The Hour Zero, in Coming After, 1939, by A. J. Barnouw).

Nijinsky (nĕzhin'ski), Vaslav. b. at Kiev, Russia, Feb. 28, 1890; d. at London, April 8, 1950. Russian ballet dancer and choreographer. Of Polish descent, he was trained at the imperial school of the ballet at St. Petersburg, made his debut (1907) at St. Petersburg, and was associated (1909 et seq.) with Sergei Diaghilev's Ballet Russe. He created noted roles in such ballets as Petrouchka, La Spectre de la rose, Le Sacre du printemps, Les Sylphides, and L'Après-midi d'un faune. A mental collapse brought his career to an end and he was subsequently confined to a sanitarium in Switzerland, but passed his last years in England, under the care of his wife.

Nijkerk (nĭ'kerk). Town in E Netherlands, in the province of Gelderland, on the De Have River near its influx into the IJsselmeer, ab. 5 mi. NE of Amersfoort: livestock, egg, and vegetable markets. 10,818 (1939).

Nijmegen (nĭ'mā'gen; Dutch, nĭ'mā'ēhen). [Also: Nijmegen, Nymegen; German, Nimwegen; Latin, Noviomagus.] City in E Netherlands, in the province of Gelderland, on the Waal River ab. 12 mi. S of Arnhem. It is a river port, with considerable commercial activities, and manufactures of hosiery, nylon, paper, metal products, chocolate, beer, and tobacco. A park, named Valkhof, now marks the site of the ancient palace of the Carolingian emperors, of which only the choir of a church and the baptistery remain. Founded by the Romans, Nijmegen is one of the oldest cities in the Netherlands; a Carolingian residence in the early Middle Ages, it later became a member of the Hanseatic League. The city joined the Union of Utrecht in 1579, was taken by the Spaniards in 1585, retaken by the Dutch in 1591, and conquered by the French in 1672 and 1794. The Peace of Nijmegen was signed here in 1678-79. In World War II, Nijmegen was one of the objectives of an Allied airborne attack (September, 1944) to seize bridges and turn the German flank. The city was taken from the Germans, but attempts to link up with troops that had parachuted into Arnhem failed, and the Arnhem pocket was wiped out by the Germans. A number of buildings of interest to tourists were heavily damaged in the war, including the Groote Kerk, dedicated to Saint Stephen, consecrated in 1272, and completed in the 15th century; the town hall (1554), an architectural masterpiece of the Dutch Renaissance; and the weigh house, dated 1612. Pop. 112,799 (est. 1951).

Nijmegen, Peace of. Series of treaties concluded at Nijmegen in 1678 and 1679. With those of Westminster between the Netherlands and England (Feb. 9, 1674), of Fontainebleau between France and Denmark (Sept. 2, 1679), of Lund between Denmark and Sweden (Sept. 26, 1679), and of St.-Germain-en-Laye between Sweden and Brandenburg (1679), they put an end to the hostilities between France and the Netherlands and their allies originating with the attack on the Netherlands by Louis XIV in 1672. The treaty between France and the Netherlands was concluded Aug. 10, 1678; that between France and Spain, Sept. 17, 1678; that between the emperor on the one hand and France and Sweden on the other, Feb. 5, 1679; and that between the Netherlands and Sweden, Oct. 12, 1679. The Netherlands received all its territory back on condition of preserving neutrality; Spain ceded Franche-Comté, Valenciennes, Cambrai, St.-Omer, Ypres, Condé, Bouchain, Maubeuge, and other places to France; France restored Charleroi, Oudenarde, Courtrai, Limburg, Ghent, Puyverdre, and other places to Spain; the emperor ceded Freiburg im Breisgau to France; and Duke Charles IV of Lorraine was restored to his duchy, but on conditions which he refused to accept.

Nijnji Novgorod or Nijnji Novgorod (nĕzh'nĭ.nōv'gorōt). Former name of Gorki, city; see also Nizhni-Novgorod.

Nijvel (nĭ'vĕl). Flemish name of Nivelles.

Nika (nĕ'kā). See Manyika; also Nyika.

Nikola (nĕ'ke.ā). Greek name of Nicaea.

Nikaria (nĕ.kā.rĕ.ā). See Lcaria, island.

Nike (nĭ'kē,nĭ'kā). [Latin, Victoria.] In Greek mythology, the goddess of victory, especially victory in war. She was identified often with Athena, and by the Romans with their Victoria. She was regularly represented as a winged maiden, usually as alighting from flight, her most frequent attributes being a palm branch in one hand and a garland in the other, or a fillet outstretched in both hands; sometimes she holds a herald's staff.

Nike Apteros (ap'te.ros) or Wingless Victory, Temple of. Small Ionic amphiprostyle tetrastyle temple at Athens, measuring 18 by 27 ft., standing on a high stone platform projecting beyond the Propylaea. The columns are 13½ ft. high. The frieze is sculptured in high relief with gods on the east and with Athenian martial exploits on the other sides. The platform of this temple was surrounded with a marble balustrade on which were carved Victories, among them the famous relief of "Victory Loosing her Sandal." The temple was pulled down by the Turks, and its materials buried under the works of a battery; they were found in 1835, almost complete, by German scholars, and restored to their original positions. Niki (nĕ'ki). See Nikki.

Nikisch (nĕ'kish), Arthur. b. at Szent-Miklós, Hungary, Oct. 12, 1855; d. at Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 23, 1922. Hungarian composer and conductor. He conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra (1889-93), was Kapellmeister (choirmaster) at Budapest (1893-95), and later conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic Society.

Nikitin (nĕ'kĭ'tin), Ivan. b. at Voronezh, Russia, 1824; d. 1861. Russian poet. He wrote lyric folk songs. His life was passed in poverty, and he was obliged to keep an inn to support himself. Afterward he changed this for the more congenial occupation of bookseller.

Nikki (nĭ'ki). [Also, Niki.] Town in Dahomey, French West Africa, ab. 200 mi. N of Abomey and close to the border of Nigeria. It is connected by road with the coast. Pop., ab. 3,000.

Nikko (nĕk.kō). Town in N central Honshu, Japan, ab. 80 mi. N of Tokyo. It is a Shinto and Buddhist religious center and great place of pilgrimage, noted for its shrines. The temple of Iyeyasu is one of the most splendid sanctuaries of the Shinto cult erected in the 17th century. The sanctuary consists of a succession of courts with gates of wood and metal adorned with elaborate carving and with brilliant color. Upon the courts face a great number of buildings of different sizes and forms and various purposes; they are built of wood, but every beam and joint is a work of art. The ornamentation in metal is of the delicacy of jewelry, and that in terra cotta of equally perfect workmanship. Pop., ab. 30,000.

Nikolaev or Nikolayev (nĕ.kō.lā'yĭf). [Also, Vernoleninsk.] Seaport in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, situated at the head of the estuary of the Bug River, ab. 75 mi. NE of Odessa. It has important machine construction and tool industries, and shipyards. It is a major shipping port for wheat, and for pig iron and iron ore from Krivoi Rog. 167,108 (1939).

Nikolaevsk or Nikolayevsk (nĕ.kō.lā'yĭfsk). Town in E U.S.S.R., in the Khabarovsk Territory of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, located on the N bank of the Amur River near its mouth. Shipping and the fish-canning industry are important here. It was founded in 1851 and was the former capital of the territory. 16,500 (est. 1933).

Nikolaevski (nĕ.kō.lā'yĭf.ski). A former name of Pugachev.

Nikolai (nĕ'kō.li). German name of Mikolów.

Nikolaievsk (nĕ.kō.lā'yĭfsk) or Nikolaievskaya Sloboda (nĕ.kō.lā'yĭf.ska.ya slo.bo.dā'). Former name of Pugachev.

Nikolainkaupunki (nĭ'kō.ln.kou'pung.ki). Former name of Vaasa, city.

Nikolaistad (nĭ.kō.lĭ'stād). See Vaasa, city.

Nikolaus von Cusa (nĕ'kō.lous fon kō'za). German name of Nicholas of Cusa.

Nikolaus von Jeroschin (nĕ'kō.lous fon ye.rō'shin). See Jeroschin, Nikolaus von.

Nikolsburg (nĕ'kōls.bürk). German name of Mikulov.

Nikolskoye (nĕ.kōl'skō.ye). See under Komandorski Island.

Nikolsk-Ussuriitski (nĕ.kōl'sk'ō.sō.rĕ'ski). Former name of Voroshilov.

Nikomedeia (nik'ô.mê.dê'a). Greek name of Izmit.

Nikon (nyê'kôn). b. near Nizhni Novgorod, Russia, May 7, 1605; d. Aug. 17, 1681. Russian prelate. In 1648 he became metropolitan of Novgorod, and in 1652 patriarch of Moscow; the latter position he accepted only after obtaining an oath of obedience in ecclesiastical matters from the assembly that elected him. Recognizing the same need for reform of the church that had been seen by others before him, he convened (1654) a synod at Moscow to eliminate many of the non-Byzantine practices that had crept into the Orthodox rite. A new prayer-book was adopted and a determined effort, involving even house search, was made to destroy new-type icons. The result was a bitter controversy within the church and the formation of the schismatic sect of Raskolniks, or Old Believers, who opposed his reforms. By 1658 the opposition had grown so strong that Nikon withdrew to a monastery; a synod deposed him in 1660, and a council degraded him to the status of monk in 1666. His reforms, however, were confirmed.

Nikopol (ni.kô'pûl). Town in N Bulgaria, on the Danube N of Trnovo. It was the scene in 1396 of a victory by a Turkish army (spearheaded by the Janizaries) under Bajazet I over an army representing most of the powers of Europe. The modern community is built on the site of the ancient Nicopolis. 5,409 (1946).

Nikopol (nê.kô'pôl). City in SW U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, on the lower Dnieper River; a major center for manganese ore mining; metal and steel-tube industries. During World War II Nikopol was occupied by the Germans from August, 1941, until Feb. 8, 1944. Pop. 57,841 (1939).

Nikšić (nêk'shich). Town in SW Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Montenegro, formerly in the banovina (province) of Zetska, situated ab. 26 mi. N of Cetinje. It was besieged and taken from the Turks by the Montenegrins in 1877, and was incorporated into the kingdom of Yugoslavia in 1919. Pop. 6,686 (1948).

Niku (nê'kô). See Necho.

Nile (nîl). [Latin, Nilus.] Longest river in Africa, and one of the longest rivers in the world. It is formed by several headstreams which flow into Lake Victoria. Of these the Kagera, Siniyu, and Mara are the chief. From Lake Victoria (here called the Victoria Nile), the Nile flows NW, forming the Ripon and Murchison falls, in between which it passes through Lake Kyoga, then into Lake Albert. Thence it flows generally N (as the Bahr el Jebel, later as the White Nile or Bahr el Abyad) to the junction with the Blue Nile (Bahr el Azraq) at Khartoum, traverses the Nubian desert, passes by five cataracts into the valley of Egypt, and empties by a wide delta into the Mediterranean Sea. Its principal mouths are the Rosetta and Damietta branches. It formerly enriched much of the lower valley with its annual overflow (caused by the seasonal rains in the elevated regions drained by its headwaters) in September and October; since the construction of the Aswan and Gebel Aulia dams the flow of water is regulated. The Nile has been famous in ancient and modern times for the kingdoms on its banks, and for the attempts to discover its sources. The constantly renewed fertility of the Nile valley made it the seat of one of the earliest of human farming civilizations; by the middle of the fourth millennium B.C. the whole of Nilotic Egypt had been consolidated into one kingdom. Its chief tributaries are the Bahr el Ghazal, Sobat, Blue Nile (Bahr el Azraq), and Atbara. It receives no tributaries below Berber, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The chief places on its banks are Lado, Khartoum, Berber, Dongola, Aswan, Asyut, and Cairo. The course of the upper Nile was a mystery until comparatively recent times. James Bruce in 1770 found the source of the Blue Nile. In 1855 Lake Victoria was discovered by J. H. Speke, in 1864 Lake Albert by Samuel Baker, and in 1877 Lake Edward by H. M. Stanley. The upper basin of the Nile falls mainly within British East Africa. Total length, ab. 4,194 mi.

Nile, Battle of the. Name often given to the British naval victory of Aug. 1-2, 1798, in the Bay of Aboukir.

Nile, Blue. See Blue Nile.

Nile, White. See White Nile.

Niles (nîlz). Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County: a northwestern suburb of Chicago. 3,587 (1950).

Niles. City in S Lower Michigan, in Berrien County, on the St. Joseph River, ab. 75 mi. E of Chicago; manufacturing and marketing center in a farming region. 13,145 (1950).

Niles. [Former names: Heaton's Furnace, Nilstown.] City in NE Ohio, in Trumbull County, ab. 55 mi. SE of Cleveland; manufactures of iron and steel. It was the birthplace of William McKinley. 16,773 (1950).

Niles, Blair. [Maiden name, Rice.] b. at Coles Ferry, Va.—. American novelist and writer of travel books. Widely traveled in Central and South America and in Borneo and Burma, she is the author of travel accounts such as Casual Wanderings in Ecuador (1923), Colombia, Land of Miracles (1924), Black Haiti (1926), and Peruvian Pageant (1937). Among her novels are Condemned to Devil's Island (1928, made into one of the earliest talking motion pictures), Free (1930), Strange Brother (1931), Light Again (1933), Maria Paluna (1934), Day of Immense Sun (1936), and East by Day (1941). Among her other books are The Biography of an Unknown Convict (1928), The James (1939), Passengers to Mexico (1943), and Journeys in Time (1946).

Niles, Hezekiah. b. in Chester County, Pa., Oct. 10, 1777; d. at Wilmington, Del., April 2, 1839. American journalist. Formerly editor of the Baltimore Evening Post (1805-11), he founded (1811) at Baltimore the Weekly Register (subsequently Niles' Weekly Register and Niles' National Register) and edited it until 1836. A compendium of the political news of the day, the Register was very accurate and fair in its treatment, although Niles was strongly prejudiced against certain aspects of Jacksonian democracy.

Niles, John Milton. b. at Windsor, Conn., Aug. 20, 1787; d. at Hartford, Conn., May 31, 1856. American editor and legislator, U.S. postmaster general (1840-41) under Van Buren. He established (1817) the Hartford Weekly Times and served (1821-29) as judge of the Hartford County court. He was a member (1826) of the Connecticut legislature, served (1829 et seq.) as postmaster of Hartford, and was a member (1835-39, 1843-49) of the U.S. Senate. Works which bear his name include A Gazetteer of the States of Connecticut and Rhode-Island (1819), The Life of Oliver Hazard Perry (1820), The Connecticut Civil Officer (1823), and A View of South America and Mexico (1825; brought out in 1838 as the History of South America and Mexico).

Niles, Nathaniel. b. at South Kingston, R.I., April 3, 1741; d. Oct. 31, 1828. American politician, preacher, and inventor, credited with having devised an improved wool card and a water-power system at the factory of his father-in-law, Elijah Lathrop.

Niles Center. Former name of Skokie.

Nilstown (nîlz'toun). A former name of Niles, Ohio.

Niles' Weekly Register. See under Niles, Hezekiah.
Nilgiri (nîl'gî.rî). Former state now incorporated into Orissa, Union of India, located ab. 80 mi. NE of Cuttack; rice, millet, and nuts. Area, ab. 263 sq. mi.; pop. 73,109 (1941).

Nilgiri Hills. [Also: Neigherry Hills, Nilgiris.] Range of mountains in S Union of India. It runs N and S for ab. 150 mi. in the states of Madras and Mysore. Highest peak, Doda Betta (8,640 ft.).

Nilgiri Hills. [Also: Neigherry Hills, Nilgiris.] District in Madras, Union of India, ab. 275 mi. SW of the city of Madras, chiefly comprised in the mountain region of Nilgiri Hills. Quinine is produced here and is sold at almost every post office as a check on malaria. Rubber and tea are also produced. Area, ab. 982 sq. mi.; pop. 311,729 (1951).

Nilo-Hamitic (nî'lô.ha.mî'tîk). Group of related languages of NE Africa, spoken in S Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, NE Uganda, E Kenya, and NE Tanganyika. Nilo-Hamitic, which is sometimes considered as a subgroup of Sudanic related to Nilotic but with Hamitic influences, includes such languages as those of the Bari, Karamojong, Lotuho, Masai, Nandi, Suk, Teso, and Turkana.

Nilópolis (nê.lô'pô.lês). City in SE Brazil, in the state of Rio de Janeiro. 31,192 (1950).

Nilotic (nîl'ô'tîk). Group of related languages of NE Africa, spoken in S Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and N Uganda, and in small areas in SW Ethiopia, NE Belgian Congo, SW Kenya, and N Tanganyika. Nilotic, which is sometimes considered as a subgroup of Sudanic, includes such languages as those of the Alur, Anuak, Atuot, Bor, Burun, Dinka, Lango, Luo, Lwo, Nuer, and Shilluk.

Nilotic Kavirondo (ká.vě.rón'dó). See Luo.

Nilsson (nills'són), Christine. b. near Wexió, Sweden, Aug. 20, 1843; d. at Copenhagen, Nov. 22, 1921. Swedish soprano. She first sang in public at Stockholm in 1860, and appeared in opera at Paris in 1864. She appeared with great success at different times from 1867 to 1870 in England, and in 1870-72 in America. From 1872 to 1877 she sang in England (broken by a tour of America in 1873-74). In 1876 she made a successful tour through Scandinavia. In 1880-81 she again sang in opera in England, from which time she sang only in concerts till 1887. She retired to private life in 1888. She sang Marguerite at the opening (1883) of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

Nilsson, Sven. b. near Landskrona, Sweden, March 8, 1857; d. at Lund, Sweden, Nov. 30, 1883. Swedish naturalist and antiquary.

Nilus (nī'lūs). Latin name of the Nile.

Nimar (nē'mār'). District in Madhya Pradesh, Union of India, abt. 300 mi. NE of Bombay: cotton, wheat, millet, and tea. Area, abt. 4,228 sq. mi.; pop. 523,496 (1951).

Nimburg (nim'bürk). German name of Nymburk.

Nîmes (nēm). [Former spelling, Nismes; Latin, Colonia Nemausensis, Nemausus.] City in S France, the capital of the department of Gard, situated at the foot of the Garrigues hills, NW of Arles. The city has noteworthy Roman remains, including an amphitheater, Roman baths, Gate of Augustus, Temple of Diana, the Maison Carrée (a Corinthian temple), and the Tour Magne (an ancient tower). The cathedral of Notre-Dame-et-Saint-Castor is built on Roman foundations. Originally a Gallic town, Nîmes was greatly enlarged by Augustus. The emperor Agrippa erected the aqueduct which is now known as Pont du Gard. The city, after being plundered by Saracens, Vandals, and Visigoths, passed to the crown of France in 1285. Nîmes has important silk, cotton, and woolen industries; it also produces fine shoes and food specialties, and is a center for the wine trade of the Languedoc. 104,109 (1946).

Nimitz (nim'its), Chester William. b. at Fredericksburg, Tex., Feb. 24, 1885—, American naval officer. He was assistant chief (1935-38) of the bureau of navigation and its chief from 1939 to 1941, was promoted to rear admiral in 1938, and was commander (1938-39) of the first battleship division of the U.S. battle force. He served (1941-45) as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, taking command soon after the Pearl Harbor attack, was promoted to fleet admiral (five-star) in 1944, and in 1945 became chief of naval operations. He was chief of the United Nations mediation commission in the Kashmir dispute in 1949, and in 1951 accepted a presidential appointment to head a committee of prominent persons to investigate the problem of personal liberties in relation to internal security; the committee never obtained Congressional sanction and soon disbanded.

Nimrod (nim'rod). In the Bible, according to Gen. x, son of Cush, grandson of Ham, famous for his exploits as a hunter, at first ruler of Shinar (or Shumir, i.e., Sumer or South Babylonia), then founder of the Assyrian Tetrapolis (Assur, Nineveh, Rehoboth-ir, and Calah). Some Assyriologists identify Nimrod with Gilgamesh or Izdubar, the principal hero of the Babylonian Gilgamesh legends, the so-called Nimrod Epic.

Nimrod. Pseudonym of Apperley, Charles James.

Nimrud (nim.ród'), Birs. See under Borsippa.

Nimrud-Kallessi (-ká.les.sé'). Modern name of Aigai.

Nimwegen (nim'vá'gēn). German name of Nijmegen.

Nimzovitch (nim.tsó'vich), Aron. [Also, Niemzovitch.] b. at Riga, Latvia, Nov. 7, 1886; d. at Copenhagen, March 16, 1935. European chess master and author, a founder of the "hypermodern" chess school. His principal works, Mein System (printed 1927) and Die Praxis Meines Systems (printed 1930), had a revolutionary influence on the theory of chess. His chief tournament successes were first prize at Dresden (1926), Berlin (1928), and Karlovy Vary (1929); equal first at Mariánské Lázně with Akiba Rubinstein (1925), and with S. Tartakover at Niendorf (1927) and London (1927).

Nin (nēn). [Italian, Nona.] Township in W Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Primorska, situated near the Adriatic coast of Dalmatia, N of Zadar (Zara), 13,213 (1931).

Nin (nin), Anais. b. at Paris, 1914—. American poet, novelist, and short-story writer; daughter of Joaquín Nin y Castellano. She came to the U.S. as a child, again lived in France, and returned to America at the outbreak of World War II. Her works include The House of Incest (1936), Winter of Artifice (1939), Under a Glass Bell (1944), This Hunger (1945), Ladders of Fire (1946), and Children of the Abatross (1947).

Niña (né'nyá). One of the two smaller caravels (the Pinta was the other) of Columbus in his voyage of 1492. It was an undecked vessel, probably not over 45 ft. long. After the wreck of the Santa Maria (Dec. 24, 1492) Columbus returned in the Niña to Europe.

Nina Leeds (nī'na lēdz). See Leeds, Nina.

Ninčić (nēn'chich), Momčilo. b. 1876; d. Dec. 23, 1949. Yugoslav statesman, minister of finance (1915-19) and foreign affairs (1921), and a member (1941-43) of the Yugoslav government-in-exile at London. He wrote widely on economic and social questions. He was imprisoned (1946) in Yugoslavia by the Tito regime.

Nindemann (nin'de.mān), Wilhelm Friedrich Carl. b. at Gingst, Germany, April 22, 1850; d. 1911. American arctic explorer. He was a member (1872 et seq.) of the ill-fated Polaris expedition and drifted on an ice-floe until he was rescued (1873) seven months later by the Tigress. He was also a member of the disastrous Jeanette expedition (1879).

Nine-Power Conference. Meeting (Nov. 12, 1921-Feb. 6, 1922) at Washington, D.C., to discuss the status of China, attended by delegates from the U.S., Great Britain, Japan, China, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, and Portugal. Four agreements were made at the conference, two relating to naval disarmament, one affirming China's independence and the traditional policy of the "open door" (the Lansing-Ishii Agreement was incorporated into this part of the arrangement) and one concerning the Pacific mandated islands.

1919. Novel by John Dos Passos, published in 1932, the second part of the trilogy U.S.A. (1938), which also includes The 42nd Parallel (1930) and The Big Money (1936).

Nineteenth Amendment. Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, given final Congressional approval on June 4, 1919, and proclaimed on Aug. 26, 1920, after being ratified by the required number of states. Its provision stating that the "rights of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex" gave voting privileges to women and was the culmination of some 75 years of agitation by woman suffrage organizations in the U.S.

Ninety-Three. [French title, Quatre-vingt-treize.] Historical novel by Victor Hugo, published in 1874.

Nineveh (nin'ēv). [Latin, Ninus.] In ancient geography, an important city, for a long time the capital of the Assyrian Empire, situated on the E bank of the upper Tigris opposite what is now Mosul, and surrounded in ancient times by a shallow river (Khosr). The site, now marked by the two mounds of Kuyunjik and Nebi Yunus, was first identified in 1820 by J. C. Rich, political resident of the East India Company at Baghdad. The first attempts at excavation were made in 1842 by Paul Émile Botta, who, however, met with slight success; these were followed on a more extended scale by Sir Austen Henry Layard (1845-47, 1849-51), by Hormuzd Rassam (1854), and by George Smith (1873-76), the work being again taken up by Rassam on the death of Smith. As a result of these excavations, the general outline of the city, the remains of four palaces and numerous sculptures, and thousands of tablets (principally from the so-called library of Assurbanipal) were discovered. The greater part of these are now in the British Museum. The city had a circumference of from 7 to 8 mi., the ruins of the walls showing a height in some parts of 50 ft. It was in existence as early as the time of Hammurabi (c1950 B.C.). Shalmaneser I (1330 B.C.) built a palace at Nineveh and made it the city of his residence. Shamshi-Adad V (824-811) decorated and restored the temple of Ishtar, famous for a special phase of the cult of the goddess. Adad-nirari III (811-782) built a new palace on the site of the mound Nebi Yunus. For a time Nineveh was neglected, Sargon II (722-705 B.C.), the founder of the new dynasty, abandoning it as the capital for a new town, Dur Sharrukin (Khorsabad), which he built and made his residence. His son, Sennacherib (705-681 B.C.), was, however, a special patron of Nineveh. He surrounded it with a wall, replaced (695) the small palace at the NE wall by a large one, built another palace which he filled with cedar wood and adorned with colossal bulls and lions, and beautified the city with a park. The Old Testament (2 Kings, xix. 36, Isa. xxxvii. 37) mentions Nineveh as the residence of Sennacherib. Esarhaddon (680-668 B.C.) finished a temple, widened the streets, and beautified the city, forcing the kings whom he conquered to furnish materials for adorning the city and palaces. Nineveh succumbed (608 B.C.) to the combined attack of the Medes under Cyaxares and the Babylonians under Nabopolassar.

Nine Worthies. Nine heroes of ancient legend and medieval chivalric romance. In one of the latter, the Triumphes des neuf Preux, the author feigns that there appeared to him in a vision nine heroes, and in a second vision a tenth hero, i.e., Joshua, David, Judas Maccabaeus, Hector, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, and then Arthur, Charlemagne, Godfrey of Bouillon, and finally Bertrand du Guesclin. They charge him to undertake the description of their lives and feats, in order that Lady Triumph, who appears with them, may decide which of them has deserved her crown. The nine heroes of this romance are not infrequently mentioned in English literature. Shakespeare alludes (in Love's Labour's Lost) to the Nine Worthies. They also appear in the verses which precede the Low German history of Alexander the Great. They figure in tapestry and paintings. This selection of thrice three heroes may have originated in the Welsh Triads, where the three pagan, Jewish, and Christian trinites are enumerated as follows: Hector, Alexander, and Julius Caesar; Joshua, David, and Judas Maccabaeus; Arthur, Charlemagne, and Godfrey de Bouillon. Guy of Warwick is sometimes substituted for Godfrey.

Ninghsia (ning'shyá'). [Also, Ningsia.] Province of NW China, bordered by Outer Mongolia and the provinces of Kansu, Shensi, and Suiyuan. The SE part of the province is a dry agricultural region in which wheat, millet, and other crops are grown under irrigation; the remainder of the province is a desert region with scanty pasture, inhabited by nomads who raise sheep, camels, cattle, and horses. Capital, Yinchuan; area, ab. 106,000 sq. mi.; pop. 715,656 (1950).

Ninghsien (ning'shyen'). See Ningpo.

Ningshizida (nin.gish.zé'da). In Babylonian mythology, one of the doorkeepers of the underworld, and brother of the vegetation god, Tammuz. He was also regarded as a tutelary deity of medicine and healing.

Ningpo (ning'pó'). [Also: Ningsien, Ningpo-fu (tō').] City and river port in E China, in the province of Chekiang, situated on the Yung River. It was one of the treaty ports, and has a flourishing commerce. It is also an educational and religious center, noted for its tall tower and temple. 249,633 (1942).

Ningyuan (ning'yü.án'). See Kuldja.

Ninian (nin'i.án), Saint. fl. c.400 A.D. British missionary among the southern Picts. He built a church at Withern, or Withorn, in Galloway, Scotland, in 397, and in 420, when driven to Ireland, is said to have founded a monastery at Clonconnor.

Niño (né'nýo), Pedro Alonso. [Called "el Negro."] b. at Moguer, Spain, c.1455; d. c.1505. Spanish navigator. He was connected with several Portuguese expeditions to the West African coast, commanded a supply fleet which sailed for Santo Domingo (Hispaniola) in 1496, and was with Columbus on his third voyage in 1498. Later he was associated with Cristóbal Guerra in a trading expedition to the pearl coast (Venezuela). They left Spain about June, 1499, with a single small vessel, and returned richly laden with pearls and gold in April, 1500. This was the first financially profitable voyage to the American coast.

Ninon de Lenclos (or L'Enclos) (né.nón də lān.klō). See Lenclos or L'Enclos, Anne.

Ninove (né.nov). [Flemish, Nieuwenhoven.] Town in NW Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, on the Dender River ab. 15 mi. W of Brussels: woolen and cotton textile, and soap manufactures. 11,146 (1947).

Ninth of Ab (ab, āb). See Ab, Ninth of.

Ninth Province. See under Khorasan.

Ninus (ni'nus). In Greek legend, the eponymous founder of Nineveh and of the Assyrian Empire; husband of Semiramis, the famous Assyrian queen. She is said to have coaxed Ninus into giving her full power for five days; he did so, and on the second she had him put to death.

Ninus. Latin name of Nineveh.

Nin y Castellano (nén' ē kas.tā.lyā'nō), Joaquín. b. at Havana, Cuba, Sept. 29, 1879. Spanish pianist, composer, and writer; father of Anaïs Nin. He was appointed (1906) professor of piano at the Schola Cantorum, Paris, where he had previously studied, and toured throughout Europe and South America, giving piano recitals. Among his compositions are Suite de Valse Lyriques, Danza Ibérica (1926), En el Jardín de Lindaraja (1927), and Rapsodie Ibérienne (1930).

Nio (ni'ō). See Ios.

Niobe (ni'ō.bē). In Greek mythology, the daughter of Tantalus and wife of Amphion, king of Thebes. Proud of her numerous progeny, she boasted of them to Leto, who had but two. She was punished by seeing all her children die by the arrows of Apollo and Artemis, the children of Leto. She herself was metamorphosed by Zeus into a stone, perpetually weeping, and which is still pointed out on Mount Sipylus, near Smyrna. The story is represented in the Niobe Group, attributed to Scopas, now best known from copies in the Uffizi at Florence.

Niobe Group. Collection of 18 ancient statues, 12 of which were found at Rome in 1583, now in the Uffizi, Florence. They are good Roman copies of Greek originals, ascribed with probability to Scopas, though by some to Praxiteles, representing Niobe horror-stricken in the midst of her children, who are being struck to death by the unseen shafts of Apollo and Artemis. The existing group is incomplete; the original was probably arranged pyramidally for the decoration of a pediment.

Niobites (ni'ō.bīts). Branch of the Monophysites, founded by Stephanus Niobes in the 6th century, who opposed the views of the Severians. Niobes taught that, according to strict Monophysite doctrine, the qualities of Christ's human nature were lost by its absorption into his divine nature. The Niobites gradually modified their views and returned to the Orthodox Church.

Niobrara (ni'ō.brā'ra). River in N Nebraska which joins the Missouri ab. 34 mi. W of Yankton, S.D. Length, ab. 431 mi.

Nioniosse (né'ō.nē.ōs'sā). See Kuruma.

Niord (nyórd). See Njord.

Niort (nyór). Town in W France, the capital of the department of Deux-Sèvres, situated on the Sèvre-Niortaise River, E of La Rochelle. Niort has important leather industries and a number of other manufactures. There are remnants of a castle of the counts of Poitou. The town was founded by Henry II of England and frequently contested during the religious wars. Part of it was destroyed in World War II. 32,752 (1946).

Nipal (ni.pól'). See Nepal.

Nipawin (ni.pá.win). Town in E central Saskatchewan, Canada, on the S bank of the Saskatchewan River ab. 73 mi. E of Prince Albert: mixed farming; fur trade. 3,050 (1950).

Nipe (né'pā). See Luo.

Nipe Bay. [Spanish, Bahía de Nipe.] Arm of the Atlantic Ocean in NE Cuba, indenting Oriente province.

Nipher (ni'fer), Francis Eugene. b. at Port Byron, N.Y., Dec. 10, 1847; d. at Kirkwood, Mo., Oct. 6, 1926. American physicist. He served (1874-1914) as professor of physics at Washington University, and made notable investigations in magnetism, electricity, and wind pressure. His works include Theory of Magnetic Measurements (1886), Electricity and Magnetism: A Mathematical Treatise for Advanced Undergraduate Students (1895), and Experimental Studies in Electricity and Magnetism (1914).

Nippon (nép.hōn). See Nippon, and Japan.

Nipigon (nip'i.gon), Lake. Lake in W central Ontario, Canada, ab. 25 mi. N of Lake Superior, into which it discharges by the Nipigon River. Length, ab. 70 mi.; elevation, 832 ft.; area, ab. 1,870 sq. mi.

Nipigon River. River in W central Ontario, Canada, connecting Lake Nipigon with Lake Superior. Length, ab. 150 mi.

Nipissing (nip'i.sing), Lake. Lake in C Ontario, Canada, NE of Georgian Bay, into which it discharges through French River. Length, ab. 50 mi.; elevation, 643 ft.; area, ab. 330 sq. mi.

Nipmuc (nip'muk). [Also, Nipmuck.] Collective term for several North American Indian tribes of C Massachusetts who spoke languages and dialects of the Algonquian linguistic family. One of the early translations (John Eliot's) of the Bible into a North American Indian language was in Natick, a dialect of Nipmuc.

Nipper (nip'ér), Susan. In Charles Dickens's Dombey and Son, a young maid in charge of Florence Dombey, noted for her sharp tongue.

Nippon (nip'on, ni.pon'; Japanese, nēppōn). [Also: Nihon, Nippon.] Japanese name of Japan, often with Dai, "great," prefixed. Nippon is sometimes wrongly used by foreigners for the main island, which is known as Honshu.

Nippur (ni.pōr'). In ancient geography, a city of Babylonia, S of Babylon, midway between that place and Erech; the modern name of the site is Niffer. The site was visited by Sir Austen Henry Layard in 1851, who found there a few inscribed bricks which determined its identity. From records found in the library of Assurbanipal at Nineveh it was later ascertained that Nippur was the most ancient religious capital of Babylonia, on which account it was selected for excavation by the University of Pennsylvania expedition to Babylonia. These excavations were conducted under the immediate leadership of Dr. John P. Peters (1889-90 and 1893-96), and again (1898-1900) under Dr. John Henry Haynes as field director, with Dr. Peters and, later, Dr. H. V. Hilprecht as home or scientific director. The temple of Bel-Enlil, the great god of Nippur, was excavated sufficiently to enable the excavators to determine in general the method of construction of an old Babylonian temple, and to trace the development of city and temple from prehistoric times onward. Partial excavations were conducted also in other parts of the ruins, from which it would seem that the whole city was an appanage of the temple. Few objects of artistic interest were discovered, but great quantities of domestic utensils, funeral remains, and other objects, and an enormous mass of inscribed documents, principally clay tablets, were uncovered. The date of the earliest of these inscriptions is presumably not earlier than the middle or latter part of the 4th millennium, but the city and temple were almost if not quite twice as old. The inscriptions from Nippur which have been published up to date are almost entirely temple archives or school documents found by the first and second expeditions.

NIRA. See National Industrial Recovery Act.

Nirvana (nēr.van'ā, nīr.vā'nā). In Buddhism, the final state to which the Buddhist aspires as the highest aim and highest good. In Brahmanism, Nirvana is release from birth, suffering, death, and rebirth, a merging and absorption of the individual with and into the absolute. To Buddha the Nirvana concept was this same ancient concept, triumph over the pain of life, of release and redemption (through enlightenment) from anger, lust, delusion, and ignorance. To seek and attain the wisdom that must be attained before the individual can experience Nirvana is the essence of Buddhist idealism. To some, however, extinction of consciousness is inconceivable except in terms of annihilation of the individual: to these Nirvana means just that: release from life, extinction, annihilation. The true Buddhist maintains, however, that no matter how inconceivable, Nirvana as the supreme and final good of the individual can be reached if one follows the method.

Niš (nish, nēsh). [Also: Nish; Latin, Naissus, Naïssus, or Nissa.] City in E Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Serbia, the principal town of the former banovina (province) of Moravska, situated near the junction of the Nisava and Morava rivers. Near the ancient castle is the old Turkish quarter. Niš is a commercial center, and a railroad junction for the Belgrade-Salonika and Belgrade-Istanbul lines. It has important railroad yards and repair shops which were destroyed or dismantled by the Germans in World War II and which were reconstructed after the war. The city has manufactures of flour, liquors, furniture, textiles, and Oriental rugs. The radioactive spring of Nissa-Banja is nearby. Niš was the birthplace of Constantine the Great, and was an important town in the medieval Serbian empire. From the 14th to the 19th centuries it was under Turkish domination. In 269, the Roman emperor Claudius II defeated the Goths at Niš, and in 1689 and 1737 the Austrians defeated the Turks here. In 1809 the Serbians besieged the town unsuccessfully. It was ceded to Serbia by Turkey in 1878. Pop. 50,692 (1948).

Nisaea (nī.sā'ē). In ancient geography, a region in Media (perhaps near the Caspian Gates), famous for its breed of horses.

Nisan (nī'san, nē.sā'n'). First month of the Hebrew ecclesiastical year, and seventh in the civil calendar (except in leap years, when it is eighth), falling roughly during March and April. It was adopted, along with the names of the other months, from the Babylonian calendar after the Jewish Exile. Evidence in cuneiform tablets and in the writings of Josephus indicate that the vernal equinox fell in this month. The Passover feast occurs during Nisan.

Nisard (nē.zār'), Jean Marie Napoleon Désiré. b. at Châtillon-sur-Seine, France, March 20, 1806; d. at Paris, March 26, 1888. French historian of literature. He wrote (1826 et seq.) for the Journal des Débats and after 1830 for Le National. A conservative and an anti-Romantic, he held various educational posts. His chief work is Histoire de la littérature française (4 vols., 1844-61). He also wrote Études sur les poètes latins de la décadence (1834), Études d'histoire et de littérature (1859), and Nouvelles Études (1864).

Nisbet (niz'bet'), Robert Buchan. b. at Edinburgh, July 1, 1857; d. Aug. 15, 1942. Scottish painter, noted particularly for watercolors of his native land. Among his principal works are A Border Raid, Eyemouth Harbor, and Ploughing.

Nisbet, Robert Hogg. b. at Providence, R.I., Aug. 25, 1879—. American landscape painter and etcher. Among his principal works are The Eve of St. John (New York), Earliest Spring (Providence, R.I.), and The Emerald Robe (Youngstown, Ohio).

Niscemi (nē.shē'mē). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Caltanissetta, ab. 43 mi. SW of Catania: agricultural trade center. Pop. of commune, 20,281 (1936); of town, 19,711 (1936).

Nish (nish). See Niš.

Nishadha (nē'sha.dā). In the Hindu epic, the Mahabharata, the country of Nala, inferred to be in the valley of the Sind, which traverses Gwalior, in Madhya Bharat, C India. On the Sind is the village of Narwar, and local tradition connects this place with King Nala.

Nishapur (nē.shā.pōr'). City in NE Iran, ab. 50 mi. SW of Meshed. During the early Middle Ages it was a provincial capital, and was at one time during the 11th century for a short time actually capital of the country, but it was sacked by the Mongols under Genghis Khan in the 13th century and has never since regained its former importance. It is now notable chiefly from the fact that it was the birthplace of Omar Khayyam, who is buried here. 24,270 (1944).

Nishinomiya (nē.shē.nō.mē.yā). City in S Honshu, Japan, in Hyogo ken (prefecture), just E of Kobe: suburban industrial city on the railroad line between Kobe and Osaka, producing sake and numerous other products. 126,783 (1950).

Nist (nē'sē). Greek word for "islands" (plural of nisos): a variant spelling of nesoi (plural of nesos). See the distinguishing element of the name.

Nisib (nī.sēb'). See Nizib.

Nisibis (nī.sī'bis). [Modern names, Nisibin (nē.sībē'n'), Nusaybin.] In ancient geography, a town in Mesopotamia, situated in lat. 37° N., long. 41° 15' E. At various times an Armenian, Parthian, and Persian stronghold, it was taken by Lucullus in 68 B.C., and afterward (from the Persians) by Trajan.

Nisinan (nī'sī.nan). See under Maidu.

Nismes (nēm). Former spelling of Nîmes.

Nisqualli (niz'kwā.lē). Tribe of North American Indians formerly occupying part of what is now the state of Washington. Their culture was the typical fishing and wood-carving North Pacific Coast culture. Their language belongs to the Salishan linguistic stock. A few remain today on the Puyallup reservation in N central Washington, but most of them are independent farmers.

Nisroch (nis'rok). Assyrian deity in whose temple at Nineveh Sennacherib was murdered (2 Kings, xix, 37, Is. xxxvii, 38). The name was formerly derived from Hebrew nēser ("eagle"), and the deity is regarded as one of the eagle-headed gods frequently represented on Assyrian sculptures.

Nissa (nis'a). A Latin name of Nîs.

Nissel (nis'el). Latin. b. at Vienna, March 14, 1831; d. at Bad Gleichenberg, Austria, July 20, 1893. Austrian dramatist. Among his works are Heinrich der Löwe (1858), Perseus von Macedonien (1862), Die Zauberin am Stein (1864), and Rudolf von Erlach (1874).

Nissen (nis'en). Heinrich. b. at Hadersleben, Germany, April 3, 1839; d. at Bonn, Germany, Feb. 29, 1912. German archaeologist and historian.

Nissen, Rudolf. b. at Neisse (Nysa), in Upper Silesia, Sept. 9, 1895— . German surgeon. He was the first to perform total pneumonectomy successfully (1931), and improved the methods of cineplasty.

Nissl (nis'l). Franz. b. at Frankenthal, Germany, Sept. 9, 1860; d. at Munich, Aug. 11, 1919. German neurologist. He demonstrated (1894) the characteristic granules of the ganglion cells by his new method of staining and made detectible the degeneration of the cells of the nervous system. He upheld (1909) the theory that the gray matter is the conducting medium.

Nistru (nēs'trō) or Nistrul (nēs'tröl). Rumanian name of the Dniester.

Nisus (nis'us). In Greek legend, a king of Megara who had one purple (or golden) hair (or lock) in his head, on which his life depended. The prophecy was that if it were to be pulled out, he would die. When Nisus was attacked by King Minos of Crete, his daughter Scylla fell in love with Minos, and pulled out the hair. Thus Nisus died; or, in some versions of the legend, weakened and lost the kingdom.

Niterói (nē'te.roi'). [Also: Niteroy, Nictheroy, Niterohi.] Capital of the state of Rio de Janeiro, in SE Brazil. 174,535 (1950).

Nith (nith). River in S Scotland, in Ayrshire, Dumfriesshire, and Kirkcudbrightshire. It rises in Ayrshire, ab. 16 mi. SE of Ayr, and flows E and SE through Dumfriesshire, forming the Dumfriesshire-Kirkcudbrightshire boundary below Dumfries. It reaches Solway Firth ab. 13 mi. SE of Dumfries. Length, ab. 79 mi.

Nithard (nē'härt). fl. in the first half of the 9th century. Frankish historian; illegitimate son of Bertha, a daughter of Charlemagne. He wrote a history of the Carolingian Empire under the heirs of Louis I.

Niterohi (nē'te.roi'). See Niterói.

Nithogg (nēth'gog). See Nidhug.

Nithsdale (niths'däl). Valley of the river Nith, in S Scotland, in Dumfriesshire. It forms one (the westernmost) of the three districts of Dumfriesshire. The district was formerly called Stranith or Strathnith. Length, ab. 30 mi.

Nithsdale, Countess of. Title of Maxwell, Winifred. Nithsdale, 5th Earl of. Title of Maxwell, William (1676-1744).

Niti-Ghaut (nē'tē.gót'). Mountain pass in N India, one of the chief passes over the Himalayas from the Union of India to Tibet. It lies between Nanda Devi (25,645 ft.) and Kamet (25,445 ft.). Elevation, ab. 16,628 ft.

Nitobe (nē'tē.bā). Inazo. b. in Iwate prefecture, Japan, 1863; d. 1933. Japanese scholar, professor at the College of Agriculture, Tokyo University, from 1906. He wrote Bushido (1898; published in America as Bushido, the Soul of Japan, 1900). The Japanese Nation, and others.

Nitocris (ni'tō'kris, ni'tok'ris). Queen of Babylon from whom Herodotus ascribes many civic improvements.

Nitocris. Egyptian queen of the Vth dynasty (c2500 B.C.). According to Manetho she was the noblest and most beautiful woman of her time, and the builder of the third pyramid at Gizeh. This pyramid, which was built by Menkure of the IVth dynasty, she probably renovated and enlarged. Herodotus also relates certain legends about her.

Nitra (nē'triā). Kraj (region) of Czechoslovakia, in SW Slovakia. Capital, Nitra; area, ab. 3,076 sq. mi.; pop. 689,853 (1947).

Nitra. [German, Neutra; Hungarian, Nyitra.] Town in Czechoslovakia, capital of the kraj (region) of Nitra, in S Slovakia, N of Komárno and ab. 71 mi. NW of Budapest, Hungary. It has a number of churches and monasteries, a theological seminary, and a castle. It is the commercial center of a rich agricultural region. The remaining members of the Yeshiva (Talmudic academy) of Nitra emigrated to the U.S. and located at Mount Kisco, N.Y. 19,172 (1947).

Nitria (nit'riā). [Modern name, Natron Lakes.] In ancient geography, a region of alkaline lakes in Egypt, SW of the delta of the Nile. It was frequently mentioned by ancient writers, among them Strabo and Pliny.

Nitro (ni'trō). Town in W West Virginia, in Kanawha and Putnam counties, on the Kanawha River near Charleston; manufactures of chemicals, pencils, and rayon; formerly important for the production of explosives. 3,314 (1950).

Nitti (nēt'tē). Francesco Saverio. b. at Melfi, Italy, in July, 1868—. Italian politician and economist. After teaching (1898 et seq.) at Naples, he was appointed (1911) minister of agriculture, having been a deputy since 1904. After serving (1917-19) as minister of finance in the Orlando cabinet, he was named (1919) prime minister and served until June 15, 1920. The advent of Fascism caused him to retire abroad but he returned (1945) to Italy, where he formed (1946) with Vittorio Orlando, Benedetto Croce, and Ivanoe Bonomi the National Democratic Union. Author of Nord e Sud (1900), Il Capitale straniero in Italia (1915), Europa senza Pace (1921), The Decadence of Europe (1922), Bolshevism, Fascism, and Democracy (1927), and Meditazioni dell'esilio (1946).

Nityananda (nit.ya.nan'da). See under Chaitanya. Nitze (nit'se). Max. b. at Berlin, Sept. 18, 1848; d. there, Feb. 23, 1906. German urologist. He devised the first modern electrically lighted cystoscope (1877) for endoscopic examination of the urethra, bladder, and rectum, an instrument which formed the basis for modern urological diagnosis.

Nitze (nit'se). William Albert. b. at Baltimore, March 20, 1876—. American professor of Romance languages, professor (1908-09) at California and professor and head of the department (1909 et seq.) at Chicago. Author of The Grail Romance Perlesvaus (1902), Glastonbury and Holy Grail (1903), Arthurian Romance and Modern Poetry and Music (1940), and other works. He was coauthor with E. P. Dargan of A History of French Literature (1922).

Nitzsch (nich). Gregor Wilhelm. b. at Wittenberg, Germany, Nov. 22, 1790; d. at Leipzig, Germany, July 22, 1861. German philologist; son of Karl Ludwig Nitzsch. He wrote works on the Homeric poems, and defended the Homeric authorship of the Iliad and Odyssey.

Nitzsch, Karl Immanuel. b. at Borna, Saxony, Germany, Sept. 21, 1787; d. at Berlin, Aug. 21, 1868. German Protestant theologian; son of Karl Ludwig Nitzsch. His chief works are System der christlichen Lehre (1829) and Praktische Theologie (1847-48).

Nitzsch, Karl Ludwig. b. at Wittenberg, Germany, Aug. 6, 1751; d. there, Dec. 5, 1831. German Protestant theologian.

Nitzsch, Karl Wilhelm. b. at Zerbst, in Anhalt, Germany, Dec. 22, 1818; d. at Berlin, June 20, 1880. German historian; son of Gregor Wilhelm Nitzsch. He published works on Roman and medieval German history, and others.

Niue (nē'ūā). [Also, Savage Island.] Large island in the South Pacific Ocean, belonging to New Zealand; it is ab. 350 mi. SE of Samoa and ab. 590 mi. W of the Cook Islands, of which it was a part until 1903, when it was put under a separate administration. Its main center is Alofi. Area, ab. 100 sq. mi.; pop. 4,253 (1945).

Niu-tau (niū'tou'). See under Sanmen Bay.

Niva (nē'va). River in NW U.S.S.R., in the Murmansk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, flowing S to the Gulf of Kandalaksha. It has a fat, fâte, fâr, ask, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pull; ʔh, then; ġ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; hydroelectric power station which supplies power for the industries of the region. Length, ab. 25 mi.

Nivardus of Ghent (nī.vār'dus). fl. in the 12th century. Flemish priest, author of the Latin poem Ysengrimus (c1148), one of the early poems on the subject of Reynard the Fox.

Nivelle (nē.vēl), Robert Georges. b. at Tulle, Corrèze, France, Oct. 15, 1858; d. at Paris, March 22, 1924. French army commander, commander in chief of the French army during the unsuccessful offensive of April, 1917. Known for his bold artillery tactics in the first year of World War I, he was in command (1916) of French troops at the battle of Verdun. He was commander in chief (December, 1916–May, 1917) and ordered the April offensive over the opposition of his subordinate officers. A commission of inquiry in 1917 acquitted him of error. He commanded (1917–18) French troops in North Africa and was named, after the war, a member of the superior war council.

Nivelle de la Chaussée (nē.vēl de là shō.sā), Pierre Claude. See La Chaussée, Pierre Claude Nivelle de. Nivelle Plan (nē.vēl). Military plan of the Allies in World War I. It derived its name from Robert Georges Nivelle, who succeeded J. J. Joffre as commander of the French armies in December, 1916. The plan aimed at a quick and decisive victory in 1917 through a heavy offensive on an 85-mile front from Arras to Reims. It hoped to cut off the Germans within this area by driving quick salients through their lines. The major points of attack were proposed as Vimy Ridge and Craonne. The plan was a poorly kept secret; and the Germans were able to contain the offensive that began in April, 1917, and to prevent the quick breakthrough on which its success depended.

Nivelles (nē.vēl). [Flemish, Nijvel, Nyvel.] Town in C. Belgium, in the province of Brabant, on the Thines River ab. 17 mi. S. of Brussels; metal, paper, linen, and cotton-goods manufactures. The Church of Saint Gertrude, in Romanesque style, dating back to the 7th century, was almost completely destroyed during World War II. 11,929 (1947).

Niven (nī'ven), Frederick John. b. at Valparaíso, Chile, March 31, 1878; d. at Vancouver, British Columbia, Jan. 30, 1941. English novelist, poet, journalist, and librarian. He became a librarian, serving for many years in Glasgow and Edinburgh libraries, worked in lumber and railway camps in Canada, writing stories and sketches of his experiences for Glasgow and Dundee newspapers, and served (1914–18) in the ministries of food and information during World War I. Author of Lost Cabin Mine (1908), Island Providence (1910), A Wilderness of Monkeys (1911), Dead Men's Bells (1912), Porcelain Lady (1913), Ellen Adair (1913), Justice of the Peace (1914), The S.S. Glory (1915), Hands Up! (1915), Two Generations (1916), Cinderella of Skookum Creek (1916), Sage-Brush Stories (1917), Penny Scot's Treasure (1918), Lady of the Crossing (1919), A Tale That Is Told (1920), The Wolfers (1923), Treasure Trail (1923), Queer Fellows (1927; American title, Wild Honey), The Rich Wife (1932), Mrs. Barry (1933), Triumph (1934), Old Soldier (1936), The Maitlands (1939), Mine Inheritance (1940), and Prelude to Victory (1941), novels; Maple-Leaf Songs (1917) and A Lover of the Land (1925), poetry; and of Canada West (1930) and Color in the Canadian Rockies (1937), nonfiction.

Niven, William. b. at Belliskil, Lanarkshire, Scotland, Oct. 6, 1850; d. June 3, 1937. American mineralogist. His discoveries include the three new minerals yttrialite, thorogummite, and nivenite (1889) in Texas, and the mineral aguilrite (1891) at Guanajuato, Mexico.

Nivernais (nē.ver.nē). Region and former government of France, corresponding nearly to the modern department of Nièvre. It was bounded by Burgundy on the NE, E, and SE, Bourbonnais on the S and SW, Berry on the W, and Orléanais on the NW. The most important portion of it was the duchy of Nevers.

Nivose (nē.vōz). Name adopted in 1793 by the National Convention of the first French republic for the fourth month of the year. It consisted of 30 days, beginning in the years 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7 with December 21; in 4, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14 with December 22; and in 12 with December 23. The Gregorian Calendar again came into use after 10th Nivose, year 14 (Dec. 31, 1806).

Nixon (nik'son), John. b. at Framingham, Mass., March 1, 1727; d. at Middlebury, Vt., March 24, 1815. American army officer. His service in the American Revolution began (1775) at Lexington and Concord, where he was in charge of a company of minutemen. He took part in the fighting at Bunker Hill and Boston and participated in the fighting around New York and Saratoga.

Nixon, John. b. at Philadelphia, 1733; d. there, Dec. 31, 1808. American Revolutionary leader, merchant, and financier. Beginning in 1765, he was prominent in the patriot movement at Philadelphia, where he was a shipping merchant. He was named (1774) to the first Committee of Correspondence, became (1775) a member of the provincial Committee of Safety, and in 1776 served on the Continental navy board. He made the first public reading (July 8, 1776) of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia, and took part in several military engagements during the Revolutionary War. A director (1784 et seq.) of the Bank of North America, he served (1792–1808) as its president.

Nixon, John. b. at Barlow, Durham, England, May 10, 1815; d. at London, June 3, 1899. English mining engineer and colliery proprietor, a pioneer in the South Wales steam coal trade, introducer of the "long wall" system of coal-cutting in place of the old wasteful "pillar and stall" system, and inventor of a machine known as "Billy Fairplay" for measuring accurately the proportion between large and small coal. Nixon finally became owner of a group of collieries producing a total of 1,250,000 tons a year.

Nixon, Lewis. b. at Leesburg, Va., April 7, 1861; d. at Long Branch, N.J., Sept. 23, 1940. American naval architect. He designed (1890) the battleships Oregon, Indiana, and Massachusetts. He resigned from the navy and built (1895–1901) over 100 ships at his own Crescent Shipyard at Elizabeth, N.J. He was head (1901–02) of Tammany Hall at New York, was superintendent (1919) of New York public works, and served as public service commissioner (1919–20) of the state of New York.

Nixon, Paul. b. at Des Moines, Iowa, May 23, 1882—. American Latinist and educator. Author of A Roman Wit (1911), Martial and the Modern Epigram (1927), and translations from Plautus.

Nixon, Richard Milhous. b. at Yorba Linda, Calif., Jan. 9, 1913—. American politician. As a U.S. senator (1950 et seq.) and, earlier, as a congressman, he took a leading part in the attack on people in and policies of the government which he considered to be Communist in their sympathies or inspiration. Nixon, who was widely credited for the events leading to the conviction of Alger Hiss for perjury, was elected vice-president on the Republican ticket with Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952, after a dramatic campaign in which he appeared on a nationwide television broadcast to defend his honesty.

Nixon v. Herndon, 273 U.S. 536 (1927) (hēr'n'don). U.S. Supreme Court decision invalidating a Texas law which prohibited Negroes from participating in Democratic Party primaries. The court held that the state law impaired the liberties guaranteed in the Fourteenth Amendment. The decision was modified by the court opinion in Grovey v. Townsend (1935), which was in turn overruled by the court's position in Smith v. Allwright (1944), the latter recognizing that political parties are not private clubs.

Niza (nē'sā), Marcos de. [Also, Fray Marcos.] b. at Nice, France; d. at Mexico City, March 25, 1558. Franciscan missionary, discoverer of New Mexico. He is said to have labored successively in Peru, Nicaragua, and Mexico, and in the last-named country was provincial of his order. By order of the viceroy he penetrated northward from Culiacán in 1539 (into what is today New Mexico and Arizona), and in May of that year reached the region called Cibola (the Zuni pueblos), but he turned back. His official report is truthful and very judicious, but after his return to Mexico the viceroy caused him to circulate exaggerated reports in order to influence idlers to go to Cibola in quest of supposed treasure. This led to the expedition of Francisco Vázquez Coronado (1540), which he accompanied, to the valley of the upper Rio Grande. Their failure to find riches cost him his reputation.

Nizami (ni.zá'mē). b. at Tafrish, near Kum (Qum), Persia, 1141; d. at Ganja, Azerbaijan (now Kirovabad, U.S.S.R.), 1202. One of the seven chief poets of Persia. He wrote a divan of 28,000 distichs, and five other great poems: The Storehouse of Mysteries, The Book of Alexander, Khosrau and Shirin, Majnun and Laila, and The Seven Fair Faces, the last consisting of seven stories told by the seven wives of Bahram V (Bahram Gor) to amuse him. These five works are known as the Five Treasures of Nizami.

Nizam's Dominions (ni.zám'z', -zám'z'). See Hyderabad, state.

Nizhni (nyězh'ni). See Tunguska, Lower.

Nizhni Novgorod (nyězh'ni nóv'go.rót). [Also: Nijni Novgorod, Nijni Novgorod.] Former guberniya (government) of central Russia. It was surrounded by Kostroma, Vyatka, Kazan, Simbirsk, Penza, Tambov, and Vladimir. The surface is generally flat. This area in the U.S.S.R. is part of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in the Gorki oblast (region).

Nizhni Novgorod or Nizhnyi Novgorod (nyězh'ni nóv'go.rót). Former name of Gorki, city.

Nizhni Tagil (nyězh'ni tá.gēl'). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Sverdlovsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic: a rail junction and one of the largest metalworking centers in the Urals. There are iron and steel, copper-refining, railway-car building, machinery, bridge construction, textile, and chemical industries. 159,864 (1939).

Nizhnaya Tunguska (nyězh'ny.a.ya tún.gō's'kə). Russian name of Tunguska, Lower.

Nizib (ni.zēb'). [Also: Nezir, Nisib; Turkish, Nizip (ni.zēp').] Place in the il (province or vilayet) of Gaziantep, S Turkey, near the Euphrates River ab. 64 mi. NE of Aleppo. Here on June 24, 1839, the Egyptians under Ibrahim Pasha defeated the Turks.

Nizovoy (ně.zo.vóy'). Pavel. [Pseudonym of Pavel Georgievich Tupikov.] b. at Novosvolki, Kostroma, Russia, 1882— . Russian playwright and novelist. His novel dealing with the life of Soviet scientists in the Arctic has been published in English under the title Into the Arctic (1948).

Nizza (nět'sā). Italian name of Nice, France.

Njamus (en.já'mós). [Also: Enjamusi, Njemps.] Nilo-Hamitic-speaking people of E Africa, occupying an area in S Kenya near Lake Baringo. They are closely related to the agricultural Masai in language and culture.

Njassa (en.jás'sā). See Nyanja.

Njemps (en.jēmps'). See Njamus.

Njenji (en.jen'jē). See Barotseland.

Njord (nyórd). [Also: Niord, Njorth (nyórh); Old Norse, Njörðr (nyér'tnēr).] In Old Norse mythology, the god of the sea; father of Frey and Freya. He and his two children belonged by race to the Vanir, very ancient fertility gods who were later associated with the weather. Njord came as a hostage to Asgard after the war between the Vanir and the Aesir (the high gods). He ruled the wind and calmed the sea, and hence was the god of sailors and fishermen. Njord became identified with the ancient fertility goddess Nerthus, whose cult and characteristics became in turn identical with those of Freya.

Nkole (eng.kó'lā). [Also: Banyankole, Nyankole.] Bantu-speaking people of SW Uganda, inhabiting the Ankole plateau E of Lake Edward. Their population is estimated at ab. 150,000 (by J. Roscoe, The Banyankole, 1923), including four small states incorporated with them by the British administration. They are ruled by an autocratic king, who is the ultimate owner of all cattle. The 16 districts of the kingdom are ruled by subordinate chiefs, appointed by the king, to whom he assigns herds of cattle. The king and district chiefs belong to an aristocratic class of nomadic cattle herders known as Hima, share the cattle complex, and regard anything unconnected with cattle as beneath their dignity. Beneath them is a larger, sedentary class of peasant farmers and artisans known as Hera. The Nkole have patrilineal clans which are exogamous, except in the case of the royal clan, within which brother-sister marriage is permitted. They have no age grades and do not practice circumcision. Milk is the principal food of the Hima class, and millet that of the Hera.

Nkolonkathi (eng.kó.lón.ká'thē). [Also: Nkolonkathi, Oukolukazi.] Subgroup of the Bantu-speaking Mbo, inhabiting N South-West Africa.

Nkonya (eng.kón'yā). [Also, Nkunya.] One of the Sudanic-speaking Guang peoples of W Africa, inhabiting E Gold Coast.

Nkoransa (eng.kó.rān'sā). [Also, Koranza.] One of the Sudanic-speaking Guang peoples of W Africa, inhabiting C Gold Coast.

Nkuna (eng.kó'nā). Central subgroup of the Tonga, a Bantu-speaking people of S Mozambique in SE Africa.

Nkonya (eng.kón'yā). See Nkonya.

NLRB. See National Labor Relations Board.

No (nō). In the Old Testament, Thebes in Egypt.

Noacolly (nō.a.kol'f). See Noakhali.

Noah (nō'ā). In the Bible, a patriarch who found favor with God because of his righteousness. When God determined to destroy the world on account of its wickedness, he ordered Noah to build an ark, and take in it with him and his family two (male and female) of all living animals. God then sent the Flood, and upon its cessation Noah went forth from the ark, and from his family the world was repopled.

Noah, Mordecai Manuel. b. at Philadelphia, July 19, 1785; d. March 22, 1851. American journalist, government official, and playwright. He was named (1813) consul to Tunis for negotiating the release of American prisoners held by the pirates of Algiers, serving in this capacity until 1815. He became (1817) editor of the National Advocate at New York, was named (1822) sheriff of New York, and was admitted (1823) to the New York bar. He became the founder of the New York Enquirer (later the Morning Courier and New York Enquirer), and subsequently established (1834) the Evening Star and later edited the Union and Noah's Times and Weekly Messenger. He served (1829-33) as surveyor of the Port of New York and was associate judge (1841-42) of the New York court of sessions. His plays include Paul and Aleris (written in 1812 and produced as The Wandering Boys), She Would Be A Soldier (1819), The Siege of Tripoli (1820), Marion, or the Hero of Lake George (1821), and The Grecian Captive (1822). Author of Correspondence and Documents Relative to the Attempt to Negotiate for the Release of the American Captives at Algiers (1816) and Gleanings from a Gathered Harvest (1845).

Noah Claypole (klā'pōi). See Claypole, Noah.

Noailles (nō.ā'y'). Adrien Maurice, Duc de. b. at Paris, Sept. 29, 1678; d. June 24, 1766. French marshal. He was defeated at Dettingen on June 27, 1743, during the War of the Austrian Succession.

Noailles, Anna Elisabeth de Brancovan, Comtesse de. b. at Paris, Nov. 11, 1876; d. at Amphion, Switzerland, April 30, 1933. French poetess. Author of nine books of delicate lyrics and of an autobiography, Le Livre de ma vie (1932). Her most esteemed poetical work is Le Cœur innombrable (1901).

Noailles, Antoine de. b. 1504; d. March 11, 1562. French admiral and diplomat. He was ambassador in England (1553-56).

Noailles, Emmanuel Henri Victorin, Marquis de. b. Sept. 15, 1830; d. at Paris, Feb. 16, 1909. French writer and diplomat; son of Paul, Duc de Noailles. He was minister plenipotentiary and afterward ambassador at Rome (1873-82), and ambassador at Constantinople (1882-86), in addition to other diplomatic missions.

Noailles, Louis Maric, Vicomte de. b. 1756; d. Jan. 9, 1804. French general and politician; second son of Philippe de Noailles, Duc de Mouchy. He was the brother-in-law of the Marquis de Lafayette, and came to the U.S. as a volunteer in 1779. He was commissioned to arrange with Cornwallis the details of the British surrender at Yorktown in 1781. He was elected to the States-General in 1789. At first a supporter of the Revolution and initiator of the move to abolish the feudal privileges of the nobility, he emigrated at the beginning of the Reign of Terror. He afterward accepted a command under Rochambeau in Hispaniola, and was fatally wounded in a naval engagement with the English.

Noailles, Paul, Duc de. b. Jan. 4, 1802; d. May 30, 1885. French peer and writer. His chief work is Histoire de Madame de Maintenon (1848-58).

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, möve, nōr; up, lüte, püll; ʔn, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Noailles, Philippe de. [Title, Duc de Mouchy.] b. 1715; guillotined June 27, 1794. French marshal; son of Adrien Maurice, Duc de Noailles. He served in the War of the Austrian Succession and in the Seven Years' War, and was one of the victims of the Reign of Terror.

Noakhali (nô.a.kâ'le). [Also, Noacolly.] District in Chittagong division, East Bengal, Pakistan, bordering on the Meghna River, SE of Dacca: rice and tobacco. Area, 1,644 sq. mi.; pop. 2,217,432 (1941).

Nob (nob). In Old Testament geography, a city near Jerusalem, to the N. Its exact site is unknown.

Nobbs (nobz). Horse of Dr. Dove, the hero of Robert Southey's The Doctor.

Nobel (nô.bel'), Alfred Bernhard. b. at Stockholm, Oct. 21, 1833; d. at San Remo, Italy, Dec. 10, 1896. Swedish chemist and engineer. He was educated at St. Petersburg, and studied engineering for a number of years. Among his many inventions are those of dynamite, explosive gelatin, ballistics, and artificial gutta-percha. He acquired great wealth through the manufacture of dynamite and other explosives, and the exploitation of the Bakou oil fields. By the terms of his will, the bulk of his fortune was devoted to the establishment of a prize fund, known as the "Nobel gift," the interest of which he proposed to have divided annually into five parts and awarded to the persons who have rendered to humanity the greatest services during the preceding year (or, in exceptional cases, earlier), as follows: (1) by the most important discovery or invention in the physical sciences; (2) by the most important discovery or the greatest improvement in chemistry; (3) by the most important discovery in physiology or medicine; (4) by the most remarkable literary work of an idealistic tendency; and (5) to the person who has done most, or labored best, for the cause of fraternity among different peoples, for the suppression or reduction of standing armies, or for the formation and promotion of peace congresses. The first two prizes are awarded by the Swedish Academy of Sciences, the third by the Caroline Institute of Stockholm, the fourth by the Stockholm Academy, and the fifth by a commission of five members elected by the Norwegian Storting. The terms of the will have not been strictly observed. Statutes have been drawn up providing that only 60 percent of the income need be used for the Nobel Prizes, and that they need be awarded only once in five years. Provision has also been made for the establishment of Nobel institutes for research work and similar enterprises.

Nobel Prizes. See under Nobel, Alfred Bernhard.

Noobeoka (nô.be.ô.kâ). City in E Kyushu, Japan, a port on the Pacific coast, with an important coastwise trade. There are clothing and chemical industries, and important trade in fish and farm produce. 88,117 (1950).

Nobile (nô'bê.lâ), Umberto. b. at Lauro, Avellino, Italy, Jan. 21, 1885—. Italian army officer, aeronautical engineer, and arctic explorer. Becoming a designer of airships, he joined the war industry and built the airships Roma, Italia, and Norge. As pilot, he accompanied the Ellsworth-Amundsen flight in the Norge over the North Pole in May, 1926. Appointed to the rank of general in the Italian army, he was also named professor at the Naples Technical College. Setting out (April, 1928) in the Italia for the North Pole, he reached his goal on May 24 and crashed on May 25. After he was rescued by plane, he was held responsible for the disaster and resigned (1929) his commission. Until 1933 he served in Russia as deputy chief of Soviet airship construction, and in 1939 became head of the aeronautical engineering department at the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics, Lockport, Ill. He returned to Italy after the fall of Fascism, and was cleared (1945) of the Italia responsibility. Author of In volo alla conquista del segreto polare (1927), With the Italia to the North Pole (1930), and La Preparazione e i risultati scientifici della Spedizione Polare dell' "Italia" (1938).

Noble (nô.bl), Alfred. b. at Livonia, Mich., Aug. 7, 1844; d. April 19, 1914. American civil engineer. He was a member of the Nicaragua Canal Board in 1895, and of the U.S. board of engineers on deep waterways (1897-1900). He served on the Isthmian Canal Commission (1899-1903), and was on the board of engineers established to decide the type of canal to be dug in Panama (1905-06).

Noble, Edward. b. 1857; d. 1941. English seaman, author of novels and short stories of the sea. Author of The Edge of Circumstance (1905), Fisherman's Gal (1917); American title, The Issue, The Grain Carriers (1918), The Bottle-Fillers (1915), Outposts of the Fleet (1917), The Naval Side (1918), The Mandarin's Bill (1925), The Fire of Spring (1926), Moving Waters (1928), and Pulse of Darkness (1929).

Noble, John Willock. b. at Lancaster, Ohio, Oct. 26, 1831; d. at St. Louis, Mo., March 22, 1912. American lawyer and soldier. U.S. secretary of the interior (1889-93) under Benjamin Harrison. He served in the Civil War, emerging as a brevet brigadier general of Union troops, and in 1865 settled at St. Louis. He served (1867 et seq.) as U.S. district attorney for the eastern district of Missouri.

Noble, Sir Percy Lockhart Harnam. b. Jan. 16, 1880—. British naval officer who held (1941) the post of commander in chief of the so-called Western Approaches to Great Britain. He was head (1942-44) of the British admiralty delegation at Washington, D.C.

Noblemen and Gentlemen's Catch Club, The. See Catch Club.

Noble Order of the Knights of Labor. See Knights of Labor, Noble Order of the.

Noblesville (nô'blz.vil). City in C Indiana, county seat of Hamilton County, ab. 21 mi. NE of Indianapolis: marketing center of a horse-breeding district. It was established in 1823. Pop. 6,567 (1950).

Nobre (nô'bre), Antônio. b. at Oporto, Portugal, Aug. 16, 1867; d. at Foz, Portugal, March 18, 1930. Portuguese lyric poet, whose first book, Sô, published (1892) at Paris, exerted an enormous influence in Portugal. The verses that he wrote before that year, which were not included in Sô, were published (1921) posthumously with the title Primeiros versos. The poems written after 1892 also appeared (1932) posthumously, in a book entitled Despedidas.

Nobrega (nô.brâ'ga), Manuel de. [Called "Apostle of Brazil."] b. in Portugal, Oct. 18, 1517; d. at Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 18, 1570. Portuguese Jesuit missionary. He went to Brazil in 1549 with the first members of his order sent to South America, and was the first provincial of the Jesuits in the New World (1553-59).

Nocard (nô.kâr), Edmond Isidore Etienne. b. at Provins, France, Jan. 22, 1850; d. at Alfortville, near Paris, Aug. 8, 1903. French veterinarian and biologist. He was instructor (1878-1903) at the veterinary school at Alfortville, near Paris, and its director for four years; as assistant to Pasteur he worked on the communicable diseases of the mammalia. He discovered (1888) the virus of psittacosis (named after him Nocardiosis); described (1888) bovine farcy, the suppurative of the lymph nodes in cattle, then epidemic in Guadeloupe (also called after him Nocardiasis); made, with Roux, early studies of filtrable viruses (1898); and described a genus of fungi, sometimes known as Nocardia, but now included with the actinomycetes.

Nocera Inferiore (nô.che'râ ãn.fâ.rê.ô'râ). [Also, Noceria dei Pagani (dâ'gê pâ.gâ'ni); ancient name, Nuceria Alfaterna.] Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Salerno, ab. 20 mi. SE of Naples. It has dairies (specializing particularly in the production of Mozzarella cheese) and textile manufactures. An ancient Oscan town, it was occupied by the Romans in 307 B.C., destroyed by Hannibal in 216, sacked by the revolting slaves under Spartacus in 73, and recolonized by Augustus and Nero. Pop. of commune, 29,347 (1936); of town, 23,289 (1936).

Nocera Superiore (sô.pâ.rê.ô'râ). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Salerno, between Nocera Inferiore and Salerno, SE of Naples. During World War II the center of the dome of the 5th-century Church of Santa Maria Maggiore was broken in, apparently by the weight of volcanic ash from an eruption of Mount Vesuvius. Pop. of commune, 11,131 (1936); of town, 1,182 (1936).

Noceto (nô.châ'tô). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Parma, ab. 7 mi. W of Parma; agricultural commune. It has a castle, still intact after World War II. Pop. of commune, 10,001 (1936); of town, 1,759 (1936).

Noche Triste (nō'chā trēs'tā). [Eng. trans. "Sad (or Disastrous) Night." Name given by the Spanish conquerors of Mexico to the night of June 30, 1520, memorable for a struggle in which their forces were nearly annihilated. After the murder of Montezuma, Hernando Cortés resolved to leave Tenochtitlán (Mexico City) secretly. The movement was detected by the natives, and a terrible battle ensued on the Tacopán causeway. The Spaniards finally escaped with the loss of a great part of their small force (estimates of the loss range from 450 to 900), besides 4,000 Indian allies. Much of the plunder they had acquired was sunk in the lake, and was never recovered.

Noci (nō'chē). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Bari, between Bari and Taranto; agricultural trade center. Pop. of commune, 14,674 (1936); of town, 10,595 (1936).
Nocona (nō.kō'nā). City in C Texas, in Montague County, NW of Dallas, in a petroleum-producing area; manufactures of leather goods. 3,022 (1950).

Nocquet (no.kē), Paul Ange. b. at Brussels, Belgium, April 1, 1877; d. (of exposure after a balloon ascension) near Jones Beach, Long Island, N.Y., April 3, 1906. Belgian sculptor. He was a pupil of Lambeaux, Antonin Mercié, and Gérôme at Paris, and won the Belgian Grand Prix de Rome.

Noctes Ambrosianae (nok'tēz am.bṛō.sī.ā'nē). Series of papers in the form of dialogues on popular topics, contributed (1822-35) to Blackwood's Magazine, chiefly by John Wilson (under the pseudonym Christopher North).
Nocturne. Psychological novel by Frank Swinnerton, published in 1917.

Nod (nod). In Biblical geography, the unknown land E of Eden, to which Cain fled (Gen. iv. 16). By allusion, the state of sleep (or nodding) is often called "the Land of Nod."

Nod, Land of. See under Nod.

Noddack (nod'āk), Ida Eva. [Maiden name, Tacke.] b. at Lackhausen, near Wesel, Germany, 1896—German inorganic chemist and geochemist. She carried on much research with W. K. F. Noddack, whom she married in 1926.

Noddack, Walter Karl Friedrich. b. at Berlin, 1893—German inorganic and physical chemist. With Ida Eva Tacke and O. Berg, he discovered the element rhenium (1925).

Noddy (nod'i). See Boffin, Nicodemus.

Nodier (no.dyā), Charles Emmanuel. b. at Besançon, France, April 28, 1780; d. at Paris, Jan. 26, 1844. French novelist, grammarian, and miscellaneous author. He wrote Dictionnaire des onomatopées françaises (1808), Mélanges tirés d'une petite bibliothèque (1829); the romantic tales and novels Smarra, ou les démons de la nuit (1821), Histoire du roi de Bohême et de ses sept châteaux (1830), La Fée aux miettes (1832); and Dictionnaire universel de la langue française (1823).

Noé (no.ā), Amédée, Comte de. See Cham.

Noël (no.ē), Edmé Antoine Paul. b. at Paris, 1845; d. there, in October, 1909. French sculptor. He took the Grand Prix de Rome in 1868. Among his works are Roméo et Juliette (1875), Après le bain (1876), and Orphée (1891).

Noel (nō'ē), Roden Berkeley Wriothsley. b. Aug. 27, 1834; d. at Mainz, Germany, May 26, 1894. English poet and critic. Author of Behind the Veil (1863), Beatrice (1868), The Red Flag (1872), Livingstone in Africa (1874), Songs of the Heights and Depths (1885), A Modern Faust (1888), and Poor People's Christmas (1890), volumes of poetry; The House of Ravensburg (1877), a poetic drama; Essays upon Poetry and Poets (1886), Philosophy of Immortality (1882), Life of Byron (1890), and editions of Spenser (1887) and Otway (1888), the latter for the Mermaid series. A Little Child's Monument (1881), written in memory of his son who died at the age of five, is regarded by many as his best poem.

Noel, Thomas. b. at Kirkby-Mallory, Leicestershire, England, May 11, 1799; d. at Brighton, England, May 16, 1861. English poet. Author of The Cottage Poet (1833), Village Verse (1841), and Rymes and Roundelays (1841), he is best known for a few single poems, such as Poor Voter's Song, Pauper's Drive, A Thames Voyage, and Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep.

Noel-Buxton (-bux's(ton), Noel Edward. [Title, 1st Baron Noel-Buxton; original surname, Buxton, changed in 1930.] b. at London, Jan. 9, 1869; d. there, Sept. 12, 1948. English politician and writer; son of Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton. He was a member (1905-06, 1910-18, 1922-30) of Parliament, and served as minister (1924, 1929-30) of agriculture and fisheries. While on a mission to secure Bulgaria's neutrality in World War I, he was wounded (October, 1914) by a Turkish political assassin.

Noemi (nō'ē'mi). See Naomi.

Noether (nō'etēr), Emmy. b. at Erlangen, Germany, March 23, 1882; d. at Bryn Mawr, Pa., April 14, 1935. German mathematician; daughter of Max Noether. She made important contributions to modern abstract algebra.
Noether, Max. b. at Mannheim, Germany, Sept. 24, 1844; d. at Erlangen, Germany, Dec. 13, 1921. German mathematician. He contributed particularly to algebra and analysis.

Nœud de vipères (nè de vë.pēr), Le. Novel (1932; Eng. trans., Vipers' Tangle, 1933), by François Mauriac, on the theme of sin and repentance.

Nœux-les-Mines (nē.lā.mēn). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, ab. 4 mi. S of Béthune. It is a coal (lignite) mining town; suffered severe damage in World War I. 12,933 (1946).

Nofretete (nō.fṛe.tē'tē). See Nefertiti.

Nogaians (nō.gī'anz). [Also, Nogais (nō.gī'z).] Tartar people of NE Caucasia, whose language belongs to the Tartar or Central Turkic group of the Turkic family of languages.

Nogales (nō.gal'ēs; Spanish, nō.gā'lās). City in SE Arizona, on the Mexican border, county seat of Santa Cruz County, adjoining Nogales, Mexico; port of entry, in a cattle-raising and mining region. Spanish missions were founded in the vicinity in the 17th century. The city was incorporated in 1893. Nogales was threatened (1916) by Pancho Villa during his border raids, 6,153 (1950).

Nogales. City in NW Mexico, in Sonora state, on the Sonora-Arizona border, adjoining Nogales, Ariz.: rail junction for export of winter vegetables, cattle, and minerals. 13,866 (1940).

Nogat (nō.gāt). Eastern branch of the Vistula River, flowing into the Frisches Haff.

Nogent-le-Rotrou (no.zhān.lē.ro.trō). Town in W France, in the department of Eure-et-Loir, on the Huise River ab. 32 mi. W of Chartres. It has various medieval churches (Notre-Dame, containing the tomb of Sully; Saint-Hilaire, and Saint-Laurent) and houses from the Renaissance period. It also has horse markets. The town suffered damage in World War II. 7,798 (1946).

Nogent-sur-Marne (no.zhān.sūr.mārñ). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, on the Marne River ab. 3 mi. E of the fortifications of Paris. It is a river port; manufactures tools and chemicals. 21,547 (1946).

Nogent-sur-Oise (no.zhān.sūr.wāz). Town in N France, in the department of Oise, on the Oise River NW of Senlis. It has aluminum and copper foundries, and produces machinery for the sugar industry. The town suffered damage in World War I. 6,416 (1946).

Nogent-sur-Seine (no.zhān.sūr.sen). Town in E France, in the department of Aube, on the Seine River ab. 60 mi. SE of Paris. The church of Saint Laurent, which dates from the 14th and 16th centuries, is a beautiful building in Gothic style. Nearby is the site of the abbey founded by Peter Abélard. 3,589 (1946).

Nöggerath (nē.g'ēr.āt), Johann Jakob. b. at Bonn, Germany, Oct. 10, 1788; d. there, Sept. 13, 1877. German geologist and mineralogist.

Noggs (nogz), Newman. In Charles Dickens's Nicholas Nickleby, a man who has been at one time a gentleman, but who is reduced to serving Nickleby as clerk and menial servant. He does not, however, condone Nickleby's criminal schemes and is finally able to tell him so.

Nogi (nō.gē), Count Maresuke. b. at Tokyo, Nov. 11, 1849; killed himself there, Sept. 13, 1912. Japanese general, commander of the third army in the Russo-Japanese War (1904-05). He fought also, as a brigade commander, in the first Sino-Japanese War (1894-95). In 1904 he was promoted to full general, was placed in command of the troops besieging Port Arthur, and effected the capture of that fortress on Jan. 1, 1905. Later he played an important part in the battle of Mukden, outflanking the Russian right. He was a member of the supreme military council in the period 1905-12, and committed hara-kiri (with his wife) to memorialize his grief over the death in that year of the reigning emperor.

Noginsk (nō.gēnsk'). [Former name, Boğorodsk.] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Moscow oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 25 mi. E of Moscow: an important cotton-textile manufacturing center, 81,024 (1939).

Nogoyá (nō.gō.yā'). Town in NE Argentina, in Entre Ríos province, ab. 50 mi. SE of Paraná: rail junction, 12,051 (1947).

Noguchi (nō.gō.chē), Hideyo. b. at Inawashiro, Fukushima, Japan, Nov. 24, 1876; d. at Acera, on the Gold Coast, British West Africa, May 21, 1928. Japanese bacteriologist, on the staff (1904 et seq.) of the Rockefeller Institute. He is remembered for three outstanding contributions to medical science: (1) he was the first to obtain pure cultures of the spirochete of syphilis, and to establish the syphilitic nature of general paralysis and tabes dorsalis by demonstrating the presence and role of the organism in the cells of the central nervous system of persons dying of such diseases; (2) he devised a new test (named for him) of detecting syphilis; and (3) he discovered (1918) the parasite of yellow fever and worked out a prophylactic vaccine and a curative serum for the disease. He died of yellow fever contracted during the course of his research.

Noguchi, Yoné (or Yonejiro). b. at Tsushima, Aichi prefecture, Japan, in December, 1875; d. July 31, 1947. Japanese poet, known also as a lecturer on Japanese poetry in the U.S., Britain, India, and European countries. He served as professor of English literature at Keio University. Author of Seen and Unseen (1897), The Voice of the Valley (1898), The American Diary of a Japanese Girl (1902), Lafcadio Hearn in Japan (1911), The Spirit of Japanese Poetry (1914), Japan and America (1921), Hiroshima (1934), and Harunobu (1939).

Nogués (nō.gēs), Auguste Paul Charles. b. 1876—. French army commander. As French resident-general in Morocco during World War II he directed (November, 1942) the token French resistance to U.S. invasion forces. Named (1939) French commander in chief in North Africa, he acknowledged (1940) the sovereignty of the Vichy regime, but accepted (November, 1942) an American ultimatum to surrender and served for a short time (December, 1942-January, 1943) as deputy French high commissioner in North Africa.

Nohl (nōl), Carl Friedrich Ludwig. b. at Iserlohn, Germany, Dec. 5, 1831; d. at Heidelberg, Germany, Dec. 16, 1885. German music historian. He edited Mozart's Letters (1865), Beethoven's Letters (1865-67), and Letters of Musicians (1866). He also wrote works on Mozart, Beethoven, Gluck, Wagner, and others, many of which have been translated into English.

Noicattaro (noi.kāt'tā.rō). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Bari, ab. 8 mi. SE of Bari. It is an agricultural trade center, with a Romanesque church of the 13th century. Pop. of commune, 10,172 (1936); of town, 9,862 (1936).

Noir (nwār), Elizabeth Anne Le. See Le Noir, Elizabeth Anne.

Noir Fainéant (nwār fe.nā.āñ), Le. See Fainéant, Le Noir.

Noirmoutier (nwār.mō.tyā), île de. [Also, Noirmoutier.] Island in W France, in the department of Vendée, in the Bay of Biscay N of Fromentine. There are sardine fisheries, 3,445 (1946).

Noise (noi.shē). See Noaoise.

Noisseville (nwās.vēl). Village in Lorraine, ab. 5 mi. E of Metz. It is noted for the battle of Noisseville (also called Servigny or Ste.-Barbe), Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, 1870, in which an attempt by the French under Bazaine to break through the German lines was defeated.

Noisy-le-Grand (nwā.zē.le.grāñ). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, NE of Paris. It has metal and chemical factories, 7,050 (1946).

Noisy-le-Sec (nwā.zē.le.sek). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, E of Paris and NE of Vincennes. It is a suburb of Paris; manufactures metal products, 16,340 (1946).

Nokes (nōks), James. d. c1692. English actor, one of the most celebrated comedians of his time. His performance as the Nurse in Otway's Caius Marius, a curious amalgamation of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet and another play, was so admirable that he was called "Nurse Nokes" to the end of his life.

Nokomis (nō.kō'mis). Grandmother of Hiawatha in The Song of Hiawatha (1855), narrative poem by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The word is the Ojibwa Indian term for "grandmother," used by Longfellow as a proper name.

Nokomis. City in S central Illinois, in Montgomery County, 2,544 (1950).

Nola (nō.lā). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Napoli, ab. 15 mi. NE of Naples. It has an agricultural trade and some local industries. It was the scene of battles between Murellus and Hannibal in the first Punic War, and also the site of the death of Augustus in 14 A.D. Saint Paulinus is said to have introduced here for the first time the use of church bells. Some art treasures were destroyed here by the Germans during World War II, but the town as a whole suffered negligible damage. Pop. of commune, 18,436 (1936); of town, 10,733 (1936).

Nolansville (nō.lāns.vil). Former name of Navasota.

Nolde (nōl'de), Emil. b. Aug. 7, 1867—. German expressionist painter and illustrator, influenced at first by the impressionists. He did not finally develop his own style until 1909, when he completed The Last Supper (now in the Halle Museum). Among his better-known works are Last Supper, Masks, Death of Mary of Egypt, Indian Dancers, Farm, Boats, and Sunflowers and Roses.

Nöldeke (nēl'de.ke), Theodor. b. at Harburg, Germany, March 2, 1836; d. at Karlsruhe, Germany, Dec. 25, 1930. German Orientalist, a leading figure in 19th-century study by Europeans of the Koran. He served as professor (1864 et seq.) at the universities of Kiel and Strasbourg.

Nolhac (nō.lāk), Pierre de. [Full name, Anet Marie Pierre Giraud de Nolhac.] b. at Ambert, France, Nov. 15, 1859; d. 1936. French historian, author of numerous books on French architectural monuments and on French writers (particularly those of the Renaissance).

Noli (nō'li), Fan Stylian. b. Jan. 6, 1882—. Albanian ecclesiastic and political leader, who has long been an important figure in the Albanian community in the U.S. He served briefly as prime minister of Albania in 1924, until he was ousted by Zog. A graduate (1912) of Harvard University, he was the founder four years earlier of the Albanian Orthodox Church (also called the Christian Albanian Church) of which he has since been presiding bishop.

Nolichucky (nō'lich.uki). River in W North Carolina and E Tennessee, flowing generally NW. It has associations with John Sevier and David Crockett. Length, ab. 150 mi.

Nollekens (nōl'e.kenz), Joseph. b. at London, Aug. 11, 1737; d. there, April 23, 1823. English sculptor. He studied at Rome between 1760 and 1770, and was made a royal academician in 1772. He modeled busts of George III, Pitt, Canning, and Lords Castlereagh and Liverpool.

Nollendorf (nōl'en.dōrf). German name of Naklërov. Nollendorf, Count Friedrich Heinrich Ferdinand Emil Kleist von. See Kleist von Nollendorf, Count Friedrich Heinrich Ferdinand Emil.

Nollet (nō.le), Charles. b. at Marseilles, France, Jan. 28, 1865; d. in January, 1941. French army officer, chief (1919-24) of the inter-Allied military control mission in Germany to supervise enforcement of the Versailles Treaty. He served (1924-25) as French minister of war.

Nomansland (nō'māns'land'). Name formerly given to a district in S Africa, now comprised within Griqualand East.

Nombre de Dios (nōm'b'rā dā dyōs'). Name of two early Spanish settlements on the Caribbean coast of the Isthmus of Panama. The name was originally given to the settlement of Diego de Nicuesa, made in 1510 and soon abandoned (this seems to have been near what is now Portobelo). A second town of the same name was founded in 1519, probably on the Bay of San Blas. It became the northern emporium of the rich commerce across the Isthmus, but owing to its unhealthy situation it was abandoned in 1597.

Nome (nōm). City in W Alaska, on the S shore of the Seward Peninsula. It is the chief trading center of NW Alaska, and the site of a strategic U.S. air base. Its port is open only from May to November, but air supply has become increasingly effective in recent years. The city has been formally in existence only since 1899, when it was a boom town of the Alaska gold rush; upwards of 30,000 prospectors are said to have passed through it by the end of 1910, and its population reached a peak of ab. 17,000. Pop. 1,852 (1950).

Nome, Cape. Point on the N shore of Norton Sound, Alaska, on the S side of Seward Peninsula.

Nomentack (nō.men'tak). American Indian chief brought to London from Virginia in the time of Ben Jonson. There are allusions to him in the plays of the period.

Nompe de Champagne (nōm.pē də shān.pā.nyē). See Champagne.

Nomura (nō.mō.rā), Kichisaburo. b. in Wakayama prefecture, Japan, in December, 1887.—. Japanese naval officer and diplomat. He was Japanese naval attaché at Washington, D.C., during World War I, and thereafter advanced rapidly. In 1932, at the time of the so-called Shanghai incident, he was commander in chief of the Japanese 3rd fleet and thus actually the top tactical commander of the Japanese marines involved in the incident. He was made a supreme war counselor in 1935, and was foreign minister in 1939. As Japanese ambassador to the U.S. in 1941, he participated (with Kurosu, a special envoy for the occasion) in negotiations supposedly aimed at averting war. Both he and Kurosu were in the office of U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, when word arrived of the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor. Although Hull is said to have administered to them a tongue-lashing possibly without precedent at such a high diplomatic level (on the assumption, entirely reasonable at the time, that both Nomura and Kurosu were knowingly involved in a calculated scheme to divert U.S. attention from the possibility of a Japanese attack), Nomura has since insisted that he had not been informed of the fact that it had actually been decided to launch the attack, and that he attended the meeting in good faith.

Nona (nō'nā). In Roman religion, one of the Parcae, the Roman Fates.

Nona (nō'nā). Italian name of Nin, Yugoslavia.

Nonantola (nō.nān'tō.lā). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Modena, situated near the Panaro River. NE of Modena. The ancient abbey of Nonantola, founded in 753 A.D., contains valuable manuscripts. The present buildings are mainly of the 16th and 17th centuries, but 12th-century and even older parts have been rediscovered in the 20th century. The abbey escaped damage in World War II. Pop. of commune, 10,466 (1936); of town, 2,096 (1936).

Non-Intercourse Act. In U.S. history, an act of Congress (March 1, 1809) permitting the President of the United States, by proclamation, to reopen trade with Great Britain or France, with the proviso that either country must first withdraw restrictive measures taken in violation of U.S. rights as a neutral on the high seas. The Non-Intercourse Act was the successor to the Embargo adopted during Jefferson's administration; it expired in 1810.

Nonius (nō'ni.us), Petrus. Latinized name of Nunes, Pedro.

Non-Juror, The. Play by Colley Cibber, produced in 1717. It is an adaptation of Molière's Tartuffe, written to support the Hanoverian succession. The play was later adapted by Isaac Bickerstaffe as The Hypocrite (1768).

Nonne (nō'nē), Max. b. at Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 13, 1861.—. German neurologist. He made studies on syphilis of the central nervous system, introduced (1917) a reaction of cerebrospinal fluid (Nonne-Apelt reaction), and worked on funicular myelitis and traumatic neurosis. He was the first to describe (1891) hereditary lymphedema, and also described (1910) a group of symptoms resulting from cerebellar disease, as loss of muscular balance and speech disorder, since called Nonne's syndrome. Author of Syphilis und Nervensystem (1902; Eng. trans., Syphilis and the Nervous System, 1913), and others.

Nonni (nō'nī). River in N Manchuria, which flows generally S from headwaters in the Khingan Mountains to join the Sungari SW of Harbin. Its lower valley is a fertile farming region. Length, ab. 700 mi.

Non Nobis Domine (nō nō'bis dom'i.nē). Canon commonly credited to William Byrd, often sung in England after banquets.

Nonnus (nō'nūs). fl. early 5th century. Greek epic poet.

He was the author of an epic, Dionysiaca, and of a paraphrase of the Gospel of Saint John in Greek hexameters.

Noon (nōn), Malik Firoz Khan. b. 1893.—. Indian diplomat and politician, a delegate to the United Nations conference (1945) at San Francisco and chairman (1949) of the United Nations Far Eastern commission. He served as high commissioner (1936-41) for India in Great Britain, was a member of the governing body of the International Labor Organization, and was a delegate to numerous imperial economic conferences. Author of Canada and India (1939), Wisdom From Fools (1943), and Scented Dust (1941).

Noord-Beveland (nōrt.bē'və.lānt). Dutch name of Beveland, North.

Noord Brabant (nōrt' brā.bānt'). Dutch name of North Brabant.

Noorden (nō'den), Carl Harko von. b. at Bonn, Germany, Sept. 13, 1853; d. at Vienna, Oct. 26, 1944. German internist, known for his studies of metabolic and dietetic disorders. He introduced spectrophotometry of hemoglobin (1880), and made important studies of albuminuria (1885). Author of New Aspects of Diabetes (1912), and others.

Noord Holland (nōrt hōl'ānt). Dutch name of North Holland.

Noordoostelijke Polder (nōrt.ōs'tē.lī.kē pōl'dēr). [English, North-East Polder.] New commune in the N Netherlands, bordering on the provinces of Overijssel and Friesland, and including the former islands of Urk and Schokland. It has been reclaimed from the IJssel Meer, 7,677 (est. 1950).

Noordsee (nōrt'zē). Dutch name of the North Sea.

Noordwestelijke Polder (nōrt.wes'tē.lī.kē pōl'dēr). See Wieringermeer Polder.

Noordwijk (nōrt'wīk). Town in W Netherlands, in the province of South Holland, situated on the North Sea coast, ab. 12 mi. N of The Hague. A fashionable seaside resort, it also has market gardening and flower culture. 12,056 (1939).

Nootka (nōt'ka). [Also, Nutka.] North American Indian tribe of Vancouver Island, Canada. The language belongs to one branch of the Wakashan family of North American Indian languages; Kwakiutl belongs to the other branch. Originally the term Nootka was applied to some 20 tribes inhabiting parts of Vancouver Island and the coasts of British Columbia and Washington.

Nootka Sound. Small inlet of the Pacific Ocean, in the W coast of Vancouver Island, Canada.

No Popery Riots. See Gordon Riots.

Nora (nō'ra, nō'rā). In ancient geography, a fortress in Cappadocia, Asia Minor, situated at the foot of Mount Taurus, near Lycaonia. Eumenes was besieged (320-319 B.C.) here by the forces of Antigonos.

Nora Helmer (hel'mēr). See Helmer, Nora.

Noranda (nō.ran'da). City in SW Quebec, Canada, near the Ontario border, important for its gold mines. It is on a branch line of the Canadian National Railway. 9,672 (1951).

Nora Nesbit (nez'bit). See Nesbit, Nora.

Norba (nōr'ba). In ancient geography, a city in Latium, Italy, ab. 35 mi. SE of Rome. The site contains remains of Cyclopean architecture.

Norcia (nōr'chā). [Ancient name, Nursia.] Village in C Italy, in the province of Perugia, ab. 42 mi. SE of Perugia. It was a Sabine city.

Norco (nōr'kō). Unincorporated community in SE Louisiana, in St. Charles Parish, on the Mississippi River W of New Orleans; petroleum refining. Pop. (with adjacent Goodhope) 3,366 (1950).

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, nē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pull; th, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Nord (nôr). Northernmost department of France, bounded by the North Sea on the NW, Belgium on the E and NE, Aisne on the S, Somme on the SW, and Pas-de-Calais on the SW and W. It comprises the French part of Flanders and the former Cambr'is, Hainaut, Artois, and Verdunois. In former times it belonged variously to the duchy of the Burgundy, and to the Hapsburg domain in the Netherlands. It was joined to the French crown by Louis XIV in 1667, but there was a reshuffling of territories during the War of the Spanish Succession, and Lille, Douai, and Bouchain went definitely to France only in 1712. The department was a theater of war during the wars of the French Revolution, the wars of 1814-15, and in 1870. Devastated during World War I, the department suffered again both in the opening and closing phases of World War II. Nord ranks first among all the departments of France in agriculture and in industry. There are excellent harvests of grains, oilseeds, sugar beets, flax, and potatoes. The department also has numerous stone quarries and coal mines. There are iron and steel mills, and machine, construction, automobile, and optical industries. Of outstanding importance is the highly specialized textile industry, one of the oldest of Europe. There are also chemical, leather, and paper manufactures, potteries, sugar refineries, flour mills, breweries, and other food industries. There is a dense network of railroad communications and of commercial waterways. Capital, Lille; area, 2,229 sq. mi.; pop. 1,917,432 (1946).

Nord, Mer du. French name of the North Sea.

Nordalbingi (nôr.dal.bîn'jî). Ancient Saxon people living in Nordalbingia (now Dithmarschen in SW Schleswig-Holstein, in N Germany) where they succeeded the Cimbrians. They were conquered and Christianized by Charlemagne.

Nord Alexis (nôr.âlek.sê), Pierre. b. at Cap-Haïtien, Haiti, 1820; d. at Kingston, Jamaica, May 1, 1910. Negro general and politician, president of Haiti (1902-08). A soldier almost from his boyhood, he became Sylvain Salnave's minister of war but was banished by that president's successor, Michel Domingue. After participating (1888) in the revolution, he served (1888-1902) as General Hyppolite's governor for the northern and northwestern departments. President himself, he was forced to abdicate by a rebellion in December, 1905, and was banished.

Nordau (nôr.dou), Max Simon. b. at Pest (now part of Budapest), Hungary, July 29, 1849; d. at Paris, Jan. 22, 1923. German writer. He studied medicine, traveled, was connected with the press, and practiced medicine at Budapest until 1880, when he went to Paris. He was a leader in the Zionist movement. Among his works are Paris unter der dritten Republik (1881), Die konventionellen Lügen der Kulturmenschen (1883), Paralozie (1886), and Die Krankheit des Jahrhunderts, a novel (1889). He is chiefly remembered for Entartung (1893; Eng. trans., Degeneration), in which he attempted to prove a relationship between genius and degeneracy.

Norddeutscher Bund (nôr.doich'êr.bûnt). See North German Confederation.

Norddeutscher Lloyd (loît). See North German Lloyd.

Norden (nôr.dên). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on a canal near the North Sea, ab. 16 mi. N of Emden. It has an agricultural trade, distilleries, dairies, and chemical and tobacco manufactures. 18,012 (1950).

Nordenham (nôr.dên.hâm). [Also, Nordenham an der Weser (ân der vâ.zêr).] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on the Weser River ab. 8 mi. S of its influx into the North Sea. It has important fisheries and fish canneries, and also machine, electrical, and textile industries. 28,146 (1950).

Nordenskjöld (nôr.dên.shêld), Baron Nils Adolf Erik. b. at Helsingfors (now Helsinki), Finland, Nov. 15, 1832; d. near Lund, Sweden, Aug. 12, 1901. Swedish arctic explorer and geologist. He took part in expeditions in 1858, 1861, and 1864, explored Spitsbergen in 1868, visited Greenland in 1870, revisited Spitsbergen and vicinity in 1872-73, and explored the Kara Sea in 1875-76. In the Vega he traversed (1875-79) the Arctic Ocean along the Siberian coast through Bering Strait (thus accomplishing the Northeast Passage). He explored the interior of Greenland in 1883.

Nordenskjöld, Baron Nils Erland Herbert. b. at Ström, Sweden, July 19, 1877; d. at Göteborg, Sweden, July 3, 1932. Swedish ethnologist; son of Baron Nils Adolf Erik Nordenskjöld. He served as professor (1913 et seq.) at the University of Göteborg, and traveled extensively in South American countries. Author of The Copper and Bronze Ages in South America (1921), and others.

Nordenskjöld, Nils Otto Gustaf. b. at Sjögle, Sweden, Dec. 6, 1869; d. at Göteborg, Sweden, June 3, 1928. Swedish geologist and explorer; cousin of Baron Nils Erland Herbert Nordenskjöld.

Nordenskjöld Sea. Former name of Laptev Sea.

Norderney (nôr.dêr.nî'). Island in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, in the North Sea, NE of Emden. The third from the west of the East Frisian islands, it has a beautiful beach and is a popular seaside resort. Area, ab. 9 sq. mi.; pop. 5,068 (1946).

Nord Fjord (nôr). Fjord in W Norway, in Sogn og Fjordane fylke (county). It is the third longest fjord in Norway, and is known for its scenic beauty. Length, ab. 70 mi.

Nordhausen (nôr't.hou.zen). City in C Germany, in the Land (state) of Thuringia, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated at the base of the Harz Mountains, at the W end of the Goldene Aue district, ab. 56 mi. SW of Magdeburg. It has breweries and distilleries, cotton textile, tobacco, soap, and lumber manufactures. The Rathaus (town hall) dates from 1610. Nordhausen received town privileges in the 12th century, was a free imperial city (1253-1803), passed to Prussia in 1803, was included in the Napoleonic kingdom of Westphalia in 1807, and was returned to Prussia in 1813. Pop. 32,848 (1946).

Nordhoff (nôr'd'hof), Charles. b. at Erwitte, in Westphalia, Germany, Aug. 31, 1830; d. July 14, 1901. American journalist and author. Among his works are Secession is Rebellion (1860), Cape Cod and All Along Shore (1868), California for Health, Pleasure, and Residence (1872), Northern California, Oregon, and the Sandwich Islands (1874), Politics for Young Americans (1875), The Communist Societies of the United States (1875), The Cotton States (1876), God and the Future Life (1881), and Penninsular California (1888).

Nordhoff, Charles Bernard. b. at London, Feb. 1, 1887; d. at Santa Barbara, Calif., April 11, 1947. American writer, known as coauthor with James Norman Hall of Mutiny on the Bounty (1932) and other tales of Pacific adventure; grandson of Charles Nordhoff. Graduated (1909) from Harvard, he served (1916-19) in World War I as an ambulance driver and pilot in the Lafayette Escadrille. Author of The Fledgling (1919), Picaro (1921), The Pearl Lagoon (1924), and The Derelict (1925); in collaboration with Hall, he wrote, in addition to Mutiny on the Bounty, Men Against the Sea (1934), Picaro's Island (1934), The Hurricane (1935), Bolany Bay (1941), and High Barbaree (1945). He edited Un Yankee Windjammers (1940), containing journals of his grandfather, Charles Nordhoff.

Nordhorn (nôr't'hörn). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on the Vechte River near the Dutch border. It has manufactures of woolen and cotton textiles, flour mills, chemical and cement works, and an agricultural trade. 33,633 (1950).

Nordica (nôr'di.kä), Madame Lillian. (Original name, Lillian Norton.) b. at Farmington, Me., May 12, 1859; d. at Batavia, Java, May 10, 1914. American soprano singer. She was successful in oratorio and opera.

Nordic Race. Term first proposed by Joseph Deniker in the 19th century to distinguish the tall, dolicocephalic, fair-skinned people of N Europe from the Mediterranean and Alpine types. Even apart from the fantastically unscientific use made of it by the Nazis, it is a term which many anthropologists consider to be questionable, and by some it is repudiated completely.

Nordkapp (nôr'kâp). Norwegian name of North Cape.

Nordland (nôr'lân). Fylke (county) in N Norway, bordering on the Norwegian Sea on the NW and on Sweden on the E, bounded by the fylker (counties) of Nord-Trøndelag and Finnmark. Capital, Bodø; area, ab. 14,797 sq. mi.; pop. 215,972 (1946).

Nördlingen (nêrd'ling.ən). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, situated on the Eger River ab. 38 mi. NW of Augsburg. It is the trading center of a fertile agricultural district, and has leather, textile, and metal manufactures. It is an old town, with medieval fortifications in a fair state of preservation. 13,425 (1950).

Nordmark (nôrt'mârk). Garrisoned area (the word means "North March") established by Henry I in 928 to preserve the territories conquered from the Wends. It lay southwest of the Elbe River, round the towns of Stendal and Salzwedel, and is now in the state of Saxony, Germany. It was reduced by Otto the Great to the Oder River, but was reduced by the Wendish rising of 983 to the region west of the Elbe. Albert the Bear was made margrave of the Nordmark in 1134. In more recent times it has been known as the Altmark.

Nord-Ostsee Canal (nôrt'ôst'sä). See Kiel Canal.
Nordraak (nôr'drôk). Richard, b. at Christiania (now Oslo), Norway, June 12, 1842; d. March 20, 1866. Norwegian composer, who influenced Grieg. His works include the Norwegian national anthem, and music to Marie Stuart and Sigurd Stenbe by Bjørnson, as well as songs, piano pieces, and choral compositions.

Nordre Bergenhus (nôr'drg ber'gen.hös). Former name of Sogn og Fjordane.

Nordrhein-Westfalen (nôr'dér.hin.vest.fâ'len). German name of North Rhine-Westphalia.

Nordsee (nôrt'sä). A German name of the North Sea.

Nordsjø (nôr'shé). Norwegian name of the North Sea.

Nord Slesvig (nôr' sles'vê). Danish name of North Schleswig.

Nordsø (nôr'shé). Danish name of the North Sea.

Nordstrand (nôr'tshtrânt). Island in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, situated in the Wattenmeer, a shallow part of the North Sea, off the coast of Schleswig, W. of Husum. One of the Halligen group, it was separated from the mainland by a flood in the Middle Ages, but has now again been connected with it. Area, 19 sq. mi.; pop. 4,404 (1946).

Nord-Trøndelag (nôr' trôn'de.läg). Fylke (county) in N central Norway, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean in the W, on Sweden in the E, and on the fylker (counties) of Nordland in the N and Sør-Trøndelag in the S. Area, ab. 8,657 sq. mi.; pop. 105,679 (1946).

Nord und Süd (nôrt ûnt zût). German illustrated monthly journal of politics, art, and literature, founded (1877) by Paul Lindau.

Nore (nôr). River in the Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It rises in County Tipperary, ab. 4 mi. S of Roscrea, and flows NE, entering County Laoighis. The river flows S and SE across County Laoighis and County Kilkenny, past Kilkenny municipal borough, to a confluence with the river Barrow ab. 2 mi. N of the head of Waterford Harbour. Length, ab. 70 mi.

Nore. Sandbank in SE England, lying in the estuary of the river Thames, between Essex and Kent, ab. 4 mi. NE of Sheerness. The name is applied also to the estuary itself.

Nore, Mutiny at the. Famous mutiny of part of the British fleet at the Nore, in May-June, 1797.

Norfolk (nôr'fôk). County in E England. It is bounded on the N and E by the North Sea, on the S by Suffolk, and on the W by Cambridgeshire and Lincolnshire. The surface is generally a wide, flat plain, sloping gently to the North Sea. It contains many marshes and fens (many thousands of acres of which have been reclaimed by drainage). Norfolk is generally an agricultural county. It raises large numbers of Red Polled cattle, which are fattened for the London markets. The county also raises many turkeys and geese. Crops are barley and wheat, and market-garden vegetables, which are sent to the London and Midlands markets. The farms are generally large. Norfolk has manufactures of boots and shoes, and farm implements, among others. It has important herring fisheries, especially at Great Yarmouth. The early inhabitants (Iceni) were subdued by the Romans in 62 A.D. The region was colonized by the Angles, formed part of East Anglia, was conquered by the Danes in 870, and sided with the Parliament in the English Civil War. The chief town and county seat is Norwich. Area, ab. 2,036 sq. mi.; pop. 546,550 (1951).

Norfolk (nôr'fôk, -fôk). City in E Nebraska, in Madison County, on the N branch of the Elkhorn River, ab. 95 mi. NW of Omaha. It is in an agricultural region, and has cereal mills and livestock markets. 11,335 (1950).

Norfolk. Independent city in SE Virginia, geographically but not administratively part of Norfolk County, on the Elizabeth River; one of the largest cities in the state and the chief economic center on Hampton Roads. Important as a port and railroad terminus, it has many shipyards, railroad yards, docks, and a U.S. naval base. It has shipbuilding, fertilizer, lumber, woodworking, and food-processing industries. It is a shipping point for coal, tobacco, cotton, peanuts, and truck. Norfolk was founded in 1705, was burned by the British in 1776, and was seized by the Confederates in 1861, but regained by Union forces in 1862. Pop. of city, 144,332 (1940), 213,513 (1950); of Norfolk-Portsmouth urbanized area, 385,111 (1950).

Norfolk (nôr'fôk). Duke of. Title held (since 1453) by various members of the Howard family. The title ranks as the highest in the peerage of England, being preceded only by titles held by members of the royal family. Before the Howards, the title was held by members of the Mowbray family.

Norfolk, Earl of. Title held (during the 12th and 13th centuries) by various members of the Bigod family, who traced their tenure to the ennoblement of Hugh Bigod by King Stephen in 1136. The title lapsed in 1306 with the death of Roger Bigod, but was restored in 1312 when Edward I gave it to his half brother, Thomas of Brotherton, whence it passed to Thomas's daughter Margaret, who was created Duchess of Norfolk in 1397. Margaret's grandson, a Mowbray, was the first of his family in the male line to hold the dukedom.

Norfolk Broads. See under Broads.

Norfolk Island. Island in the S Pacific Ocean, ab. 800 mi. E of Australia. It was discovered (1774) by James Cook and was thereafter briefly used as a penal colony; it is now under Australian administration. Most of the population is descended from various of the Bounty mutineers who were settled here in 1856. Area, ab. 13 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 1,200.

Norge (nôr'ge). Norwegian name of Norway.

Noricum (nôr'i.kum). In ancient geography, a country in Europe, bounded by Germany (separated by the Danube) on the N, Pannonia on the E, Pannonia and the land of the Carni on the S, and Vindelicia and Rhaetia (separated partly by the Inn) on the W. It corresponded mainly to the later Lower and Upper Austria S of the Danube, Salzburg, Styria, Carinthia, and parts of Tirol and Bavaria. It was conquered by the Romans c15 B.C., and made a Roman province.

Norma (nôr'ma). [Original name, Norma et Regula (et reg'ûla).] Small southern constellation, introduced by Nicolas Louis de Lacaille in the middle of the 18th century, between Vulpes and Ara.

Norma. Opera in two acts by Bellini, produced at Milan in 1831 and at Paris in 1835. The work deals with Druids in England in the time of the Roman occupation and the story bears some resemblance to the Medea legend.

Normal (nôr'mâl). Town in C Illinois, in McLean County, in a farming region. It is the sister city of Bloomington and the seat of Illinois State Normal University, 9,772 (1950).

Norman (nôr'mân). [Former name, Norman Switch.] City in C Oklahoma, county seat of Cleveland County; seat of the University of Oklahoma. 11,429 (1940), 27,006 (1950).

Norman, Alfred Merle. b. Aug. 29, 1831; d. Oct. 26, 1918. English naturalist. He was honored by the French Institute for his services in the exploration of the depths of the Bay of Biscay in 1850. A catalogue of his collections of the fauna of the North Atlantic was published under the title Museum Normantanum.

Norman (nôr'mân), Fredrik Vilhelm Ludvig. b. at Stockholm, Aug. 28, 1831; d. there, March 28, 1885.

fat. fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pîne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ы, then; ð, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Swedish composer. His works include pieces for voice, orchestra, piano, chamber orchestra, violin, and cello.

Norman (nôr'man), Sir Henry. b. at Leicester, England, Sept. 19, 1858; d. June 4, 1939. English journalist and traveler, active on various international research committees during the early development of transoceanic radio. He was graduated from Harvard University, and was on the editorial staff of the Pall Mall Gazette and of the London Daily Chronicle. In 1902 he founded World's Work. He was a Liberal member of Parliament for South Wolverhampton (1900-10), and was assistant postmaster general (1910). Among his publications are The Real Japan (1892), The Peoples and Politics of the Far East (1895), All the Russias (1902), Motors and Men (1905), and others. He was knighted in 1906.

Norman, Sir Henry Wylie. b. Dec. 2, 1826; d. Oct. 26, 1904. English army officer and colonial administrator. He served against the Sikhs (1848-49) and in the Sepoy Mutiny (1857-58). He was governor of Jamaica (1883-89) and of Queensland (1889-95).

Norman, Montagu Collet. [Title, 1st Baron Norman of St. Clare.] b. 1871; d. Feb. 4, 1950. English financial expert, deputy governor (1918-20) and governor (1920-44) of the Bank of England. He played a chief part in drawing up (1922) with Stanley Baldwin, who was then chancellor of the exchequer, an arrangement for the funding of the British war debt to the U.S.

Norman (nôr'män), Wilma. Married name of Neruda, Wilma.

Normanby (nôr'man.bi). Former parish, now a ward of Eston urban district, in NE England, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, ab. 4 mi. SE of Middlesbrough, 4,122 (1931).

Normanby, 1st Marquis of. A title of Phipps, Sir Constantine Henry.

Norman Conquest (nôr'man). In English history, the conquest of England by William, Duke of Normandy (William the Conqueror). It was begun by and is usually dated from his victory at Senlac (Hastings) in 1066. The leading results were the downfall of the native English dynasty, the union of England and Normandy for a time under one sovereign, and the introduction into England of Norman-French customs and language.

Norman Conquest of England, History of the. Chief historical work of Edward A. Freeman (6 vols., 1867-79).

Normandes (nôr'mänd), Îles. A French name of the Channel Islands.

Normandy (nôr'män.di). [French, Normandie (nôr'män.dë); Medieval Latin, Normannia (nôr'män'i.a), Northmannia (nôr'män'i.a), meaning "land of the Normans or Northmen." Region and former government of France, corresponding to the departments of Seine-Inférieure, Eure, Orne, Calvados, and Manche. The chief city is Rouen. It is bounded by the English Channel on the N and W, Picardy and the Île de France on the E, Maine on the S, and Brittany on the SW. The surface is generally level or hilly, and it is traversed from SE to NW by the Seine. It contains the old districts of Caux, Vexin, Evreux, Bessin, and Cotentin. Under the Romans it was part of Lugdunensis. Later it was part of Neustria, and was then granted to the counts of Paris. It was the scene of early raids by the Northmen. Rollo, leader of the Northmen, received (c911) from the king the grant of the district between the Seine and the Epte (a northern tributary of the lower Seine), and became first duke. This was expanded under Rollo and his successors. It was Christianized in the 10th century, and became one of the chief fiefs of France. Its duke William conquered England in the period 1066-69, and Maine in 1063. Anjou, Aquitaine, and Normandy were united in 1152-54. Normandy was occupied temporarily by Edward III of England, and was conquered by Henry V in 1415-19, but was retaken finally by the French in 1450.

Normandy Invasion. In World War II, the decisive move in the reconquest of the Continent from Germany. The invasion began on June 6, 1944, when British and American troops began launching attacks from small strips of the Normandy coast. The expanding beachhead cleared the way for the landing of over two million troops and thousands of vehicles and weapons. Among the highlights of the Normandy operation were the capture by a U.S. force on June 27 of the harbor of Cherbourg, one of the war's most hazardous maneuvers, and the capture on July 9 of the important rail center of Caen by British and Canadian soldiers.

Norman Isles (nôr'män). See Channel Islands.

Norman Kings. In English history, the line of English kings beginning with William, Duke of Normandy (who ascended the English throne in 1066), and ending with Stephen, who died in 1154.

Normann (nôr'män), Eilert Adelsteen. b. at Bodø, Norway, May 1, 1848; d. at Oslo, 1918. Norwegian landscape painter. Examples of his work are in collections at Bergen, Boston, Dresden, Düsseldorf, Liverpool, Prague, Stockholm, Sydney, and elsewhere.

Normans (nôr'manz). Descendants of the Northmen or Norsemen who settled (c911) in Normandy under Rollo.

Norman Switch. Former name of Norman, Okla.

Norman's Woe. Dangerous reef near the entrance to Gloucester harbor, in E Massachusetts. The Hesperus is wrecked upon it in Longfellow's poem.

Normanton (nôr'man.ton). Urban district and railway junction in N central England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, situated near the river Calder, ab. 8 mi. SE of Leeds, ab. 187 mi. N of London by rail, 19,087 (1951).

Norman Wells (nôr'man). Oil-production center in the Mackenzie District of the Northwest Territories, Canada, situated on the right bank of the Mackenzie River, W of Great Slave Lake. The first oil well was drilled in 1920 and the field has been producing ever since that time; there is a refinery. Great interest in the oil of the region developed during World War II and the U.S. planned the Canol project to supply military needs in Alaska; the town of Norman Wells was temporarily connected with Whitehorse by a 600-mi. pipe line. The production is rather small, amounting to ab. 250,000 barrels in 1947.

Nor Many Waters. Novel by Alec Waugh, published in 1928 and issued in America under the title Portrait of a Celibate.

Norna (nôr'na). Kind of sibyl, a character in Scott's novel The Pirate. She was Ulla Troil, called Norna of the Fiftful Head.

Norns (nôrnz). In Old Norse mythology, the Fates, usually three, whose decrees were irrevocable. They were represented as three virgin goddesses who dwelt at the foot of the world-tree Yggdrasil. Their parallels in other mythologies are the Greek Moirae and the Roman Parcae.

Norouma (nôr'ôr'mä). See Nuruma.

Norrbotten (nôr'böt.en). Northernmost and largest län (county) of Sweden. Most of the area is forested, but in the NW along the Norwegian border are high, barren mountains. Most of the settlements are located along the rivers which flow into the Gulf of Bothnia. Capital, Luleå; area, ab. 40,754 sq. mi.; pop. 241,596 (1950).

Norridge (nôr'ij). Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County; a northwestern residential suburb of Chicago, 3,428 (1950).

Norris (nôr'is), Charles Gilman. b. at Chicago, April 23, 1881; d. at Palo Alto, Calif., July 25, 1945. American novelist; brother of Frank Norris and husband of Kathleen Norris. He was graduated (Ph.D., 1903) from the University of California, was art editor (1908-13) of the American Magazine, and served in the U.S. army in World War I. His novels include The Amateur (1915), Salt (1917), Brass (1921), The Last of the Philistines (1922), Bread (1923), Pig Iron (1925), Seed (1930), Test (1933), Hands (1935), and Bricks Without Straw (1938).

Norris, Frank. [Full name, Benjamin Franklin Norris, Jr.] b. at Chicago, March 5, 1870; d. at San Francisco, Oct. 25, 1902. American novelist and journalist; brother of Charles Gilman Norris. He was hired by the San Francisco Chronicle to cover the war in South Africa, was involved in Jameson's Raid (1895), and was captured by the Boers and sent out of the country. He was a staff member (1896-97) of the Wave, a San Francisco literary magazine, and then went to New York, where he worked (1898) for McClure's Magazine, at that time running its famous muckraking articles; he went to Cuba as a war correspondent for the magazine. He was connected (1899 et seq.) with the New York publishing firm of Doubleday, Page and Company. Norris was an adherent of the naturalistic school of Émile Zola, but the somber philosophy of naturalism, of man's defeat by the external pressure of forces he cannot control, is often tempered in his stories by his admiration of the strong man who can overcome the blows of fate; the result often is a story with no apparent unifying effect. Norris's best book is McClague (1899, made into a motion picture as Greed, with Erich von Stroheim), a study of the deterioration of a quack dentist obsessed by the desire for money. His most ambitious work was an incomplete trilogy, to be known as "The Epic of the Wheat," comprising The Octopus (1901), showing the struggle of the wheat farmers against the encroachments of the railroads, The Pilgrimage (1903), the story of the Chicago wheat market, and the unwritten The Wolf, which would have demonstrated the effects of famine on a village in India. Among Norris's other works are the novels Moran of the Lady Lyle (1898), Blitz (1899), A Man's Woman (1900), Vandover and the Brute (1914); a novelette, The Joyous Miracle; short stories, A Deal in Wheat and Other Stories (1903) and The Third Circle (1909), and collected essays and articles, The Responsibilities of the Novelist and Other Literary Essays (1903). His Works (10 vols.) appeared in 1928.

Norris, George William. b. in Sandusky County, Ohio, July 11, 1861; d. at McCook, Neb., Sept. 2, 1904. American statesman and legislator, instrumental in the establishment (1933) of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and passage (1932) of the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution. He was admitted (1883) to the Indiana bar and in 1885 moved to McCook, Neb., where he practiced law. After serving as county prosecutor and district judge, he was a member (1903-13) of the U.S. House of Representatives and subsequently senator (1913-43) from Nebraska. Norris, one of the leaders of the liberal Republican faction in Congress, led the coalition of Republicans and Democrats that in 1910 broke the control of Speaker of the House Joseph G. Cannon on House procedure and resulted in greater control of the legislative process by the members of the House. He opposed violently President Wilson's foreign policy, voted (1917) against U.S. entry into World War I, and later against acceptance of the Versailles Treaty and U.S. membership in the League of Nations. He consistently fought the power interests and made persistent attempts, during the Coolidge administration, to proceed with the moribund Muscle Shoals project in Tennessee. In 1933 he sponsored the bill establishing the Tennessee Valley Authority; the first dam built under TVA was called (1936) Norris Dam in his honor. He was an advocate of the extension of the principle of public power projects, if only to act as a brake on private utilities ownership, and of farm relief in general. Norris's independence of party ties led him to support Alfred E. Smith, a Democrat, in the 1928 presidential campaign; when he became a strong backer of the New Deal, as embodying his own aims, and supported President Franklin D. Roosevelt, he was thrown out (1936) of the Republican Party. He was the champion of many causes identified with liberal progressivism, campaigned for direct senatorial elections and for national primaries, and sponsored anti-poll tax legislation. He was the author of the Twentieth Amendment, the "Lame Duck Amendment" that moved up the date of the meeting of Congress in order to eliminate sessions at which defeated legislators passed on laws; the amendment also reset the date for the presidential inauguration. He also wrote the bill that gave (1934) Nebraska a one-house legislature, the only one in the U.S. He was coauthor of the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction act (1932). Norris won reelection in 1936 as an independent, but his support of the Roosevelt foreign policy and his vote in favor of U.S. participation in World War II probably were factors in his defeat by Kenneth S. Wherry in his bid (1942) for a sixth term in the Senate.

Norris, Sir Henry. [Title, 1st Baron Norris of Rycote.] b. c.1525; d. near Englefield, England, 1601. English nobleman, a favorite of Queen Elizabeth.

Norris, Henry. b. 1665; d. c.1730. English actor, a noted comedian. He had an odd squeaking voice, and was called "Jubilee Dicky" from his successful impersonation of Dicky in The Constant Couple.

Norris, Sir John. b. c.1547; d. at Mallow, Ireland, July 3, 1597. English soldier. He led (1577-85) an army of English volunteers in the Netherlands, fighting against the Spaniards, and commanded (1589) with Sir Francis Drake an expedition designed to destroy shipping on the coasts of Spain and Portugal.

Norris, John. b. at Collingbourne-Kingston, Wiltshire, England, 1657; d. at Bemerton, Wiltshire, England, 1711. English clergyman and philosopher, remembered as one of the Cambridge Platonists. He published An Idea of Happiness in 1683. The greater part of his poems appeared in 1684. In 1689 he published Reason and Religion. Locke's famous Essay on Human Understanding excited his opposition, and in the appendix to his Christian Blessedness appeared the first published critique of the essay. In 1697 he wrote An Account of Reason and Faith, and in 1701 appeared the first volume of his chief work, An Essay Towards the Theory of the Ideal or Intelligible World; the second volume appeared in 1704. It was in this work that he espoused and outlined in detail the metaphysical position of Nicolas de Malebranche (which takes as its basic doctrine the view that the mind of man is able to have external knowledge only through God) as against the materialist position of Locke and his followers.

Norris, Kathleen. b. at San Francisco, July 16, 1880—American novelist and short story writer; wife (married 1909) of Charles Gilman Norris. Author of Mother (1911), The Rich Mrs. Burgoyne (1912), Saturday's Child (1914), Sisters (1919), The Sea Gull (1927), My California (1933), Heartbroken Melody (1938), Over at the Crowleys (1943), The Secret of Hillyard House (1947), and many other books.

Norris, Tobias Crawford. b. at Brampton, Ontario, Canada, 1861; d. at Toronto, Oct. 29, 1936. Canadian politician, premier (1915-22) of Manitoba.

Norris, William Edward. b. at London, 1847; d. Nov. 19, 1925. English novelist. He was called to the bar in 1874, but never practiced. Among his novels are Heaps of Money (1877), Maletroiselle de Mersac (1880), Matrimony (1881), No New Thing (1883), My Friend Jim (1886), A Bachelor's Blunder (1886), Major and Minor (1887), The Rogue (1888), The Countess Radna (1893), The Dancer in Yellow (1896), Clarissa Furiosa (1897), The Fight for the Crown (1898), Giles Ingilby (1899), An Octave (1900), The Flower of the Flock (1900), His Own Father (1901), The Credit of the County (1902), Lord Leonard the Luckless (1903), Nature's Comedian (1904), Barham of Beltna (1905), Pauline (1908), The Perjuror (1909), Not Guilty (1910), and Trevallion (1925).

Norristown (nor'is.toun). [Former names: Norriton Plantation (nor'it'on), Mill Tract.] Borough in SE Pennsylvania, county seat of Montgomery County, on the Schuylkill River ab. 16 mi. NW of Philadelphia: shipping center for dairy and agricultural products; various manufactures. 38,126 (1950).

Norristown. Former settlement on the site of Martins Ferry.

Norrköping (nôr'ché'ping). City in S Sweden, in the län (county) of Östergötland, situated on the Motala River at its junction with the Bräven, an inlet of the Baltic Sea, SW of Stockholm. It is the fourth largest city of Sweden and one of its foremost industrial centers. It has a harbor, shipyards, a hydroelectric power plant, and large textile and paper industries, which are important particularly for the manufacture of carpets and newsprint. There are also metal, food, and lumber industries, a sugar refinery, a brewery, and stone quarries. 84,939 (1950).

Norrländ (nôr'lând). Northernmost division of Sweden, comprising the länar (counties) of Gävleborg, Väster-norrländ, Jämtland, Västerbotten, and Norrbotten. Area, 93,858 sq. mi.; pop. 1,147,178.

Norse (nôrs). Language of Norway and Iceland. Old Norse, often called Icelandic, is the language of the sagas. Modern Norwegian is also sometimes given the designation Norse. Both belong to the Northern group of the Germanic subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Norsemen (nôrs'men). People of ancient Scandinavia; the Northmen. The name was applied especially to the Vikings of the 9th and 10th centuries.

Norsey Woods (nôr'si). See under Billerica.

Norstad (nôr'stad), Lauris. b. at Minneapolis, Minn., March 24, 1907—American air officer. A graduate of West Point (1933), he was commissioned in the cavalry fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lâte, pûll; ʔn, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; but transferred to the air force. In 1940 he was attached to air force general headquarters and later, as operations officer of the North West African Air Force, supervised the planning of operations in the Sicilian and Italian invasions. He was director (1943-44) of Allied air operations in the Mediterranean area and chief of staff (1944) of the 20th Air Force. He served until 1947 as director of plans and operations on the general staff of the War Department and was air force representative in the conferences leading to the establishment of the Department of Defense. Under the new administrative organization he was deputy chief of staff for operations of the air force. He became (1950) commander of the U.S. air forces in Europe and subsequently commander of the Allied air forces in central Europe and air force adviser to SHAPE. He became a full general in 1952.

Norte (nór'tá), Río del. See Rio Grande.

Norte de Santander (nór'tá dā sán.tán.der'). [Former names: Santander del Norte, Santander Norte.] Department in N Colombia. Capital, Cúcuta; area, 8,297 sq. mi.; pop. 433,400 (est. 1950).

North (nórth), Christopher. Pseudonym of Wilson, John.

North, Sir Dudley. b. May 16, 1641; d. Dec. 31, 1691. English political economist; brother of Francis North and Roger North. He entered foreign trade, and spent several years in the Levant. He was a sheriff of the City of London in the reign of Charles II, but was resented by a great number of the citizens, and after the revolution of 1688 was called to account for alleged unconstitutional proceedings in this office. Under Charles II and James II he also administered the customs office and the treasury. His most important work, a tract entitled Discourses upon Trade (1691), anticipated the work of Adam Smith in its forthright presentation of the case for free trade.

North, Elisha. b. at Goshen, Conn., Jan. 8, 1771; d. Dec. 29, 1843. American physician, author of the first known American work on cerebro-spinal meningitis, A Treatise on a Malignant Epidemic Commonly Called Spotted Fever (1811). One of the early practitioners of vaccination in the U.S., he also founded (1812) at New London, Conn., the first eye dispensary in the U.S.

North, Francis. [Title, 1st Baron Guilford.] b. Oct. 22, 1637; d. Sept. 5, 1685. English statesman; brother of Dudley North and Roger North. He was educated at Cambridge (St. John's College), and was called to the bar in 1655. In 1675 he was made chief justice of the Common Pleas, and in 1682 lord keeper of the great seal, and became Baron Guilford in 1683.

North, Frederick. [Title: 2nd Earl of Guilford; better known as Lord North.] b. April 13, 1732; d. Aug. 5, 1792. English statesman; known by the courtesy title of Lord North till his father's death in 1790. He was educated at Eton and Oxford (Trinity College), was member of Parliament for Banbury when 22 years of age, was a lord of the treasury from 1759 to 1765, and in October, 1767, was made chancellor of the exchequer. He became prime minister in 1770, and held office in entire subservience to the will of George III. His ministry was marked by a remarkable combination of stupidity and stubbornness toward the colonists: North was chiefly responsible for that one of the so-called Intolerable Acts known as the Boston Port Bill, and was apparently unable to see how its restrictions on their commerce would infuriate the people of Boston. Most historians now believe that North perceived the futility of English policy during the Revolutionary War, but George III refused to accept his resignation and he was compelled to carry out the royal policy. He finally resigned in March, 1782, after the surrender of Cornwallis. In April, 1783, he formed a coalition with Fox, and entered the Portland cabinet as joint secretary of state with him. He retired in December, 1783.

North, Roger. b. 1653; d. 1734. English historian; brother of Francis North and Dudley North. He was attorney general to the queen (Mary, wife of James II). He wrote the abusive Examen of White Kennett's History of England (1740), and also biographies of his brothers. A Discourse on the Study of the Laws (first printed in 1824), and Memoirs of Music (first printed in 1846).

North, Simon Newton Dexter. b. at Clinton, N.Y., Nov. 29, 1848; d. at Wilton, Conn., Aug. 3, 1924. American statistician and editor, director (1903-09) of the U.S. Census Bureau.

North, Sir Thomas. b. c1535; d. c1601. English translator. His first book was The Diall of Princes (1557), originally from an Italian work by Guevara, and now notable chiefly for an ornate style foreshadowing the euphuism of Lyly. He also translated the Moral Philosophy of Doni, and an Italian version of a book of Arabian fables, Kalilah and Dimnah (1570). His translation of Plutarch (Lives of the Noble Grecians and Romans) was taken from the French version of Jacques Amyot, and first appeared in 1579 (there were added Lives in subsequent editions in 1595 and 1603). It was from this work that Shakespeare obtained much of his material for Antony and Cleopatra, Coriolanus, and Julius Caesar.

North Adams (ad'amz). City in NW Massachusetts, in Berkshire County, on the Hoosic River, ab. 33 mi. E of Albany; shoe, cotton, woolen, electrical equipment manufactures; seat of a state teachers college. 21,567 (1950).

North Africa (af'ri.kā), French. See French North Africa.

Northallerton (nór.thal'ér.ton). Urban district and market town in NE England, county seat of the North Riding of Yorkshire, situated on a tributary stream of the river Wiske, ab. 14 mi. SE of Darlington, ab. 218 mi. N of London by rail. The town, long noted for its horse fair, is now becoming industrialized. The Battle of the Standard was fought (1138) at nearby Standard Hill. 6,087 (1951).

Northam (nór'tham). Urban district in SW England, in Devonshire, ab. 200 mi. SW of London. 6,470 (1951).

North America (a.mér'i.kā). Continent of the Western Hemisphere. The northern and larger of the two continents of the hemisphere, it is the third largest of the world's six continents. It extends from the Arctic Ocean to the Isthmus of Panama. Its political divisions include the Dominion of Canada, Alaska, the U.S., Mexico, and the various countries of Central America. In addition, Greenland and the West Indies are usually classed as part of North America. Recent estimates place the total area of North America at ab. 9,300,000 sq. mi., and the population at ab. 215 million.

Physical Geography. The main physical features of North America are the Cordilleran mountain system on the W, extending from Alaska to Panama, and including the Rocky Mountains, the Coast Ranges, the Sierra Nevada, the Cascade Range, and the various Sierra Madre ranges of Mexico; the Appalachian mountain system on the E, extending from the Gulf of St. Lawrence into Alabama and including the Allegheny Mountains, the Blue Ridge Mountains, the Catskills, the White Mountains, the Green Mountains, and the Cumberland Mountains; and the great C lowland extending from the arctic regions to the Gulf of Mexico, including large portions of the drainage basins of the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes, the Mississippi, and the Nelson, and the Mackenzie rivers. Numerous volcanic peaks are found in the Cordilleran system, and in S central Mexico and Central America are major groups of volcanoes of relatively recent origin. The highest point on the continent is Mount McKinley (20,300 ft.) in Alaska; lowest point is Bad Water (280 ft. below sea level), a pool in Death Valley, Calif. The E coast is far more irregular than the W, and for nearly all of the distance from the St. Lawrence to Panama it borders on a coastal lowland; it has numerous harbors and estuaries. The W coast, on the other hand, is bordered by mountains for most of its length, and has relatively few good natural harbors. The climate of the continent is extremely varied, ranging from the severely cold winters of the interior of Alaska and N Canada to the hot, humid climate of the Caribbean lowland of Central America. The most distinctive characteristic of the climate of the C and E parts of the continent is the changeability of the weather; the absence of any mountain barrier in the C part affords easy access to either cold air from the Arctic or warm air from the Gulf of Mexico, and sudden changes of temperature and storms may result at any season. Cold waves in winter may be felt as far south as S Florida and Tampico, Mexico, and heat waves in summer may occur as far north as the Yukon valley in Alaska.

History. Extensive earthworks, copper and stone tools, and pottery found in various parts of the continent, but especially in the Mississippi valley, remain as traces of the prehistoric peoples who inhabited North America. It is believed that the Moundbuilders, to whom these remains are attributed, were ancestors of the American Indians. It is certain that North America was reached by the Northerners c1000 A.D., and it may have been visited by isolated other bands at various times before its rediscovery (1492) by Columbus. Amerigo Vespucci and John Cabot both reached the mainland in 1497. The earliest permanent European settlement in what is now the U.S. occurred (1565) at St. Augustine, Fla. The first permanent English settlement on the continent was made (May 13, 1607) at Jamestown, Va. Champlain established a French trading post at Quebec the following year, and in 1620 the English, at Plymouth, Mass., made a second settlement. Not long afterward the Dutch settled at New York, eventually absorbing the Swedish settlements in the Delaware area. Eventually Great Britain achieved supremacy in the N regions of the continent, except in Alaska, which had been discovered by the Russians in the 18th century. The S portion of the continent was controlled by Spain. In 1776 the 13 British colonies in North America declared their independence, established the United States of America, and won actual independence in a war with the mother country, later acquiring a great portion of the continent. Spain gradually lost Central America, Mexico, Cuba, and her West Indian possessions. Alaska was sold (1867) by Russia to the U.S.

Culture. When Columbus discovered America the N fringe of the continent was inhabited by the Eskimos, the C part by various nomadic and seminomadic tribes of Indians, and portions of the S part by settled Indian peoples (Aztecs, Mixtecs, Mayas, Quiché, and others). In the U.S. and Canada, Indian groups were displaced by the new settlers, and finally settled largely on reservations or in remoter areas of the frontier; in Mexico and Central America, however, a considerable portion of the Indian population was absorbed into the community by intermarriage, and in those areas of Central America which were not extensively settled by European (largely Spanish) immigrants, a nearly pure Indian stock remains. Although the descendants of Germans, Irish, English, Spanish, Scotch, and French predominate, almost all nationalities are represented, including Chinese, Japanese, and, particularly in the S part of the U.S., descendants of Africans. The smaller islands of the West Indies are European or U.S. (Virgin Islands) possessions, and have been colonized by a mixed population of various European nationalities, Negroes, and East Indians. The aboriginal population of the West Indies practically disappeared in the 16th and 17th centuries from warfare and disease.

North American Review, The. Literary, historical, and critical review, founded at Boston and published from 1815 to 1939. Among its editors were William Tudor, Jared Sparks, John G. Palfrey, Charles Eliot Norton, Henry Adams, and Henry Cabot Lodge. Its more notable contributors included Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Washington Irving, and Henry James. William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis (1817) and To a Waterfowl (1818) were first published in its pages. The publication was variously issued as a quarterly and monthly.

Northampton (nôr.thamp'ton, nôr.thamp'ton). County borough and manufacturing town, in C England, the county seat of Northamptonshire, situated on the river Nen at 22 mi. NW of Bedford, ab. 66 mi. NW of London by rail. It has important manufactures of boots and shoes (it was the original center of the industry in England). Other manufactures include shoemaking machinery, heating apparatus, and welded steel tubing. It is one of the oldest of English towns and held one of the most important English fairs during the Middle Ages. Several medieval parliaments met there, and it was frequently a site of the royal court during the 13th and 14th centuries. 104,429 (1951).

Northampton. City in C Massachusetts, county seat of Hampshire County, on the Connecticut River ab. 15 mi. N of Springfield; manufactures of hosiery, cutlery, and caskets. It is the seat of Smith College and was once the residence of Calvin Coolidge. 29,063 (1950).

Northampton. Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Northampton County, on the Lehigh River, in a quarrying region; manufactures of cement, textiles, and beer. It was settled c1739 and incorporated in 1903. Pop. 9,332 (1950).

Northampton (nôr.thamp'ton), 1st Earl of. Title of Howard, Henry (1540-1614).

Northampton, 2nd Earl of. Title of Compton, Spencer.

Northampton or Northamptontown (nôr.thamp'ton'town, nôr.thamp'ton). Former names of Allentown, Pa.

Northampton, Assize of. See Assize of Northampton.

Northampton, Battle of. Victory gained in 1460 near Northampton, England, by the Yorkists over the Lancastrians. In consequence of it Henry VI was obliged to acknowledge the Duke of York as his heir.

Northampton, John de. [Also, John de Comberton.] b. 1376; d. 1390. English draper, an adherent of John Wycliffe. He was lord mayor of London (1381-83) and a chief supporter of John of Gaunt. Arrested by his successor as lord mayor, he was condemned to be hanged for sedition, but his sentence was commuted. Released in 1387, probably through the intercession of Robert de Vere, he was restored (1390) to his position of lord mayor.

Northamptonshire (nôr.thamp'ton.shir) or Northampton (nôr.thamp'ton). [In writing often shortened to Northants (without a period).] Midland county in C England. It is bounded on the N by Leicestershire, Rutlandshire, and Lincolnshire, on the E by Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, and Bedfordshire, on the S by Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire, and on the W by Warwickshire. The surface is rolling with no high elevations. The NE part belongs to the Fen district. The chief rivers are the Nen, Welland, Avon, Cherwell, and Leam.

Northamptonshire is served by the Grand Union canal system and others. Its industries include the manufacture of boots and shoes, especially men's shoes and the higher grades of women's and children's shoes, in towns along the valleys of the rivers Nen and Ire. The Northampton Sands iron-ore field has given rise to an important iron and steel industry centered around Northampton, Kettering, and Wellingborough. This ore field was worked in Roman times and rediscovered in the 19th century. The chief agricultural pursuit is stock raising, and there are large farms worked by machinery, producing crops of wheat and barley. The finest pasture in the whole of England is located in the Market Harborough district in Northamptonshire and Leicestershire. Northamptonshire formed part of the ancient Mercia. County seat, Northampton; area, ab. 905 sq. mi.; pop. 359,550 (1951).

North and His Friends, Doctor. See Doctor North and His Friends.

North Andover (an'dô.vér). Town in NE Massachusetts, in Essex County, ab. 3 mi. SE of Lawrence; manufactures of woolen goods. 8,485 (1950).

Northanger Abbey (nôr.than.jér). Novel by Jane Austen, written in the period 1797-98, but not published until 1818, the year after the author's death. It is a parody on the Mysteries of Udolpho school of novels.

North Anna (an'a). One of the headstreams of the Pamunkey River, in Virginia, N of Richmond. Near it was fought a major battle at the end of May, 1864, between Union forces under Grant and the Confederates under Lee. The Union troops were repulsed, but the battle was followed by a Union advance.

Northants (nôr.thants'). See Northamptonshire.

North Arcot (ar'kot). [Also, North Arkat.] District in Madras, Union of India, ab. 70 mi. W of Madras; forest products, nuts, and indigo. Area, ab. 4,920 sq. mi.; pop. 2,857,157 (1951).

North Arlington (ar'ling.ton). Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County, on the Passaic River. Formerly important for copper mining, it now has various manufacturing industries. 15,970 (1950).

North Atlanta (at.lan'ta). Town in N central Georgia, in De Kalb County; a northwestern residential suburb of Atlanta. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population rose from 1,365 (1940) to 5,930 (1950).

North Atlantic Drift (at.lan'tik). Broad oceanic water movement, the terminal portion of the Gulf Stream, which fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mê, hêr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔ, then; ɔ̃, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; traverses the North Atlantic Ocean N of the Azores, and spreads out along the coasts of W Europe. Although the water is considerably cooler than the Gulf Stream farther S, it nevertheless has a distinct warming influence on the climate of Europe. The surface temperatures range from ab. 60° F. N of the Azores, to ab. 50° F. W of Ireland, and ab. 40° F. in the vicinity of the Lofoten Islands of N Norway.

North Atlantic Treaty. [Also, Atlantic Pact.] Treaty signed at Washington, D.C., April 4, 1949, by 12 nations (the U.S., Great Britain, Canada, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, France, Italy, Norway, Iceland, Denmark, and Portugal), by which it was formally decided to consider an attack on any one of the 12 adhering states as an attack upon them all. A council of all signatories, as well as a military committee, has been formed to implement the treaty. While not forcing a clear commitment to come to the assistance of a member who might be attacked, the treaty did have the effect of bringing all the free Western nations into concert on plans of military defense and strategy. This treaty also gave stimulus to the Military Assistance Program to supplement the European Recovery Program.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization. [Abbreviation, NATO.] Organization formed under the North Atlantic Treaty for the defense of the Atlantic community of nations. The treaty, signed in 1949, provided for such an organization and in 1950 Dwight Eisenhower was named to head its integrated military forces. He established his headquarters (SHAPE, or Supreme Headquarters, Atlantic Powers in Europe) outside Paris in 1951. A supreme council, which meets four times a year and comprises one member from each of the participating governments, was organized in 1951, and in 1952 a permanent council (a delegate from each nation) and a secretariat were constituted.

North Attleboro or North Attleborough (at'l.bur.ō). Town in SE Massachusetts, in Bristol County, ab. 30 mi. SW of Boston; manufactures jewelry and jewelers' supplies. 12,146 (1950).

North Augusta (ō.gus'ta). Town in W South Carolina, in Aiken County, on the Savannah River; residential suburb of Augusta, Ga. 3,659 (1950).

North Baltimore (nōl'tim.ōr). Village in NW Ohio, in Wood County, in a petroleum and natural gas producing area; machine shops. It was settled in 1834. Pop. 2,771 (1950).

North Battleford (bat'l.ford). City in the province of Saskatchewan, Canada, on the North Saskatchewan River in the W central section of the province, across the river from Battleford, ab. 83 mi. W of the Alberta boundary and ab. 102 mi. NW of Saskatoon. It is connected by road and rail with other important towns and cities of the prairies, and is a commercial and distributing center for the surrounding area. 7,473 (1951).

North Bay. City in N Ontario, Canada, capital of Nipissing district, situated on the E shore of Lake Nipissing, on the main railroad and highway from S and E Ontario to N Ontario and the prairies. The city has often been called the gateway to the north country. It is a resort center serving the excellent fishing and vacation area to the south and east. 17,944 (1951).

North Bellevernon (bel.yēr'nōn). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Westmoreland County, near Pittsburgh. 3,147 (1950).

North Bellmore (bel'mōr). Unincorporated community in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 3,519 (1940).

North Belmont (bel'mōnt). Unincorporated community in S North Carolina, in Gaston County just N of Belmont. 3,948 (1950).

North Bend. [Former name, Yarrow.] City in N Oregon, in Coos County, on Coos Bay; lumber milling, shipbuilding, and commercial fishing. 6,099 (1950).

North Bergen (ber'gen). Suburban township in NE New Jersey, in Hudson County, near Newark. 41,560 (1950).

North Berwick (ber'ik). Royal burgh and seaside resort in S Scotland, in East Lothian, situated at the entrance to the Firth of Forth, ab. 7 mi. N of Haddington, ab.

379 mi. N of London by rail. The town is a golfing resort, possessing three golf courses. 3,417 (est. 1948).

North Berwick, Lord. Title of Dairymple, Sir Hew. North Bierley (b'ēr.lē). Civil parish in C England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, ab. 9 mi. W of Leeds. It is part of Bradford county borough. 21,593 (1931).

North Borneo (nōr'nō.ō). [Also, British North Borneo.] Crown colony of Great Britain, situated in the NE corner of the island of Borneo. It was a protectorate under the British North Borneo Company (charter granted 1881) until July 15, 1946, when the company transferred its assets and sovereign rights to the British crown. The new colony also includes the island of Labuan. It produces tobacco, timber, rice, sago, coffee, and gums. Capital, Sandakan; area, ab. 29,387 sq. mi.; pop. 270,233 (1931). 333,752 (1951).

North Brabant (bra.bant'). [Dutch, Noord Brabant.] Province in S Netherlands, bounded by South Holland and Gelderland on the N, Limburg on the E, Belgium on the S, and Zeeland on the W. The N boundary of the province is marked by the Maas River; the soils along the river are very fertile, while hilly heath country prevails farther to the S. The province has much cattle and sheep raising, as well as industrial activity. Some of the newer industries of the Netherlands have developed here. The population is predominantly Roman Catholic; there are numerous convents and ecclesiastical schools. Capital, 's Hertogenbosch; area, 1,965 sq. mi.; pop. 1,267,244 (est. 1950).

North Braddock (brad'ok). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Allegheny County, ab. 8 mi. SE of Pittsburgh; steel mills. 14,724 (1950).

Northbridge (nōrth'brij). Town in S Massachusetts, in Worcester County, ab. 10 mi. SE of Worcester. Manufactures include cotton and woolen goods, cotton-mill machinery, and paper. 10,476 (1950).

North Bridgewater (brij'wō'tēr, -wō't'ēr). Former name of Brockton, Mass.

North Britain (brit'an). Name sometimes given to Scotland.

North Briton (brit'ōn). A periodical (1762-63) published at London and conducted by John Wilkes. It was noted for the violence of its attacks on the Bute ministry and (in one instance) on George III.

Northbrook (nōrth'brūk). Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County; a northwestern residential suburb of Chicago. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 1,265 (1940), 3,348 (1950).

Northbrook, Baron. Title of Baring, Sir Francis Thornhill.

Northbrook, 1st Earl of. Title of Baring, Thomas George.

North Brookfield (brūk'feld). Town (in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in N Massachusetts, in Worcester County; manufactures of rubber goods and asbestos mats. Pop. of town, 3,444 (1950); of village, 2,599 (1950).

North Canton (kan'tōn). Village in NE Ohio, in Stark County, near Canton; vacuum sweepers. 4,032 (1950).

North Cape. [Norwegian, Nordkapp.] Second northernmost promontory of Europe, situated on the island of Magerøy, off the N coast of Norway, in lat. 71°10' N. It is often visited by tourists for the view of the midnight sun. The northernmost point of Europe is Knivskjældøden, ab. 3 mi. W of North Cape; it reaches 71°11' N. The ocean at this point does not freeze even in winter, but is very stormy. Height of North Cape, ab. 970 ft.

North Carolina (kar.ō.lī'na). [Called the "Tarheel State"; also the "Old North State," the "Turpentine State."] State of the S United States, bounded by Virginia on the N, the Atlantic Ocean on the E and SE, South Carolina and Georgia on the S, and Tennessee (separated by the Great Smoky Mountains) on the W; a South Atlantic State, and one of the 13 original states of the American Union.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. North Carolina is divided for administrative purposes into 100 counties. It sends 12 representatives to Congress, and has 14 electoral votes. The ten leading cities in population are, in order: Charlotte. Winston-Salem. Greensboro. Durham. Raleigh. Asheville. Wilmington. High Point.

Fayetteville, and Rocky Mount. Capital, Raleigh; area, 49,142 sq. mi. (52,712 sq. mi., including water); pop. 4,061,929 (1950), an increase of 13.7 percent over that of 1940. The state ranks 27th in area, and tenth (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The surface of the state consists of mountains and valleys in the W. hilly and rolling land in the C section, and generally level land in the E. The Blue Ridge and Great Smoky Mountains of the Appalachian system lie in the W. the highest point in the state being Mount Mitchell (6,684 ft.) in the Black Mountain range. Among the many rivers of the state are the French Broad River, in the W., a tributary of the Tennessee; the Catawba, in the S., flowing into South Carolina; the Yadkin, in the C section, flowing S to form the Pee Dee; the Neuse, in the E, flowing E into Pamlico Sound; the Roanoke, which flows into the NE part of the state from Virginia and flows E to Albemarle Sound. Dismal Swamp (ab. 30 mi. long) in the NE is crossed by the Dismal Swamp Canal connecting Albemarle Sound with Chesapeake Bay. Cape Hatteras, Cape Lookout, and Cape Fear lie along the coast. The lowland climate is characterized by long hot summers and cool winters, which may have cold waves; some snowfall is usual in winter. The mountains enjoy a cooler summer but have severe winters, with considerable snowfall. The climate is humid at all seasons.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. North Carolina is the leading industrial state in the Southeast. It leads the nation in production of textiles, tobacco, and wooden furniture. Value of its manufactured products in 1949 was 4,079,800,000 dollars; of its agricultural production, 901 million dollars. Tobacco is the chief agricultural product of some 70 percent of the nation's cigarette tobacco. Durham and Winston-Salem are often called the "cigarette capitals of the world"; Wilson is the largest bright-leaf tobacco market of the world. Cotton, corn, peanuts, white and sweet potatoes, oats, soybeans, apples, strawberries, and peaches are also raised. There is a considerable investment in stock raising. Food processing is an important industry, as is lumbering. The state has important fisheries yielding catches of oysters, shad, turtles, and herring. It is an important source of feldspar, mica, and prophylite. Granite, gold, asbestos, zinc, lead, tin, and nickel are also found. Annual income from mineral output in 1949 was 17,300,000 dollars.

History. Unsuccessful attempts were made (1584-87) to colonize the Carolina region under the auspices of Sir Walter Raleigh. A small colony was set up (1587) on Roanoke Island and here was born Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage to be born in America. This colony, sometimes called "the Lost Colony," had vanished mysteriously by 1691. Charles II granted (1663-65) it to proprietors. A constitution framed (1669) by Shaftesbury and Locke was soon abandoned. The first permanent settlement was established (c1660) at Albemarle by a colony of Virginia dissenters. Settlers in the state were among the earliest to protest against British administration, and in May, 1775, the inhabitants of Mecklenburg County adopted what became known as the Mecklenburg Declaration, the first American declaration of independence. Much of its wording resembled that of the great Declaration of Independence of 1776, and North Carolina was the first to instruct (April 12, 1776) its delegates to support that measure for independence. The state was the scene of several battles during the Revolutionary War, the two important ones being that at Moores Creek, Feb. 21, 1776, and the Battle of Guilford Courthouse, March 15, 1781; both sites are marked by national military parks. North Carolina was the 12th state to ratify (Nov. 21, 1789) the federal Constitution, having at first rejected it because it lacked the Bill of Rights. The state seceded May 20, 1861, and was the scene of various engagements and military operations in the Civil War. Chief of these involved the capture (1862) of Roanoke Island by General Burnside's Union troops, the capture (1865) of Wilmington by Union forces after the capture of Fort Fisher, and the occupation of Raleigh by General Sherman in 1865. The state was readmitted to the Union on July 11, 1868, having nullified secession and abolished slavery in 1865; it suffered greatly during the Reconstruction era. North Carolina adopted (1911) a constitutional amendment (popularly called the "grandfather clause") giving the vote only to those who had voted before 1867 or descendants of those who had; this law, clearly discriminatory against Negroes, was declared (1915) unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court on the ground that it violated the 15th Amendment, which guarantees equal voting rights to all citizens. Negroes now vote freely. Payment of poll tax is not a requisite to voting.

Culture. North Carolina's development is chiefly rural (urban population was 33.7 percent of the total in 1950). Only a fraction of its population is foreign born. Negroes make up a sizable proportion of the total population. At Kitty Hawk, Wilbur and Orville Wright flew (1903) the first mechanical airplane, an occasion commemorated by Kill Devil Hill National Monument. Each year at Roanoke Island, from July 1 to Labor Day, the story of "The Lost Colony" is enacted in a symphonic drama of that name by Paul Green, and in the Great Smoky Mountains Unto These Hills, a drama of the Cherokee Indians, is also presented July 1 through Labor Day. Asheville is located in Buncombe County, from which the word "bunk" is derived. The largest institutions of higher learning in the state are the state-supported University of North Carolina, with divisions at Chapel Hill, Raleigh, and Greensboro, and Duke University, at Durham. The state motto is Esse Quam Videri, meaning "To Be Rather Than to Seem." The state flower is the dogwood.

North Catasaquua (kat.a.só'kwa). Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Northampton County, near Allentown. 2,629 (1950).

North Channel. Strait of the Atlantic Ocean, between NE Ireland and SW Scotland. It provides access from the Atlantic Ocean to the Irish Sea. It is everywhere of ample depth for ocean-going vessels. Length, ab. 80 mi.; width at narrowest point, ab. 14 mi.

North Charleroi (shár'le.roi). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Washington County, near the Monongahela River: coal mining. 2,554 (1950).

North Charleston (chär'lz'ton, chär'l'ston). Unincorporated community in S North Carolina, in Charleston County. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 2,522 (1940).

North Chicago (shikó'gō, -kā'-). City in NE Illinois, in Lake County, on Lake Michigan: metalworking plants. 8,628 (1950).

Northcliffe (nóth'klif), Viscount. Title of Harmsworth, Alfred Charles William.

North College Hill (kol'ej hil). Village in SW Ohio, in Hamilton County: suburb of Cincinnati. It was the home of Alice and Phoebe Cary. 7,921 (1950).

North Conway (kon'wā). Unincorporated village in N New Hampshire, in Carroll County, on the Saco River ab. 20 mi. SE of Mount Washington: summer and winter resort.

Northcote (nóth'kót), Sir Henry Stafford. [Title, Baron Northcote of Exeter.] b. Nov. 18, 1846; d. Sept. 29, 1911. English colonial official; second son of Sir Stafford Henry Northcote, 1st Earl of Idlesdeigh. He was a Conservative member of the House of Commons for Exeter (1880-99), was created a baronet in 1887, was raised to the peerage in 1900, was governor of Bombay (1899-1903), and was governor general of the Commonwealth of Australia (1903-07).

Northcote, James, b. at Plymouth, England, Oct. 22, 1746; d. at London, July 13, 1831. English historical and portrait painter and author. In 1771 he entered the studio of Joshua Reynolds, and in 1777 went to Italy. He executed pictures for the Boydell Shakespeare gallery, and painted The Death of Wat Tyler for the city of London, now in the Guildhall. He wrote a life of Reynolds (1813) and a life of Titian (1830).

Northcote, Sir Stafford Henry. [Title, 1st Earl of Idlesdeigh.] b. at London, Oct. 27, 1818; d. there, Jan. 12, 1887. English statesman. He graduated at Oxford (Balliol College), and was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in 1840. He entered Parliament in 1855, was president of the board of trade (1866-67) and secretary of state for India (1867-68), served on the joint high commission which drew up the treaty of Washington in 1871, and was chancellor of the exchequer (1874-80), first lord of the treasury (1885-86), and foreign secretary (1886-87). He succeeded his father as baronet in 1851, and was created earl of Idlesleigh in 1885. He wrote Twenty Years of Financial Policy (1862).

North Dakota (də.kŏ'tā). [Called the "Flickertail State"; also, the "Sioux State."] State of the N. United States, bounded by the Canadian provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba on the N, Minnesota on the E, South Dakota on the S, and Montana on the W; a North Central State.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. North Dakota is divided for administrative purposes into 53 counties. It sends two representatives to Congress, and has four electoral votes. Leading cities are Bismarck, Fargo, Grand Forks, and Minot. Capital, Bismarck; area, 70,054 sq. mi. (70,665 sq. mi., including water); pop. 619,636 (1950), a decrease of 3.5 percent from that of 1940. The state ranks 16th in area, and 42nd (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The E and C surface of the state consists of a rolling or flat plain. In the W is a portion of the Bad Lands. In the N, extending into the state from Manitoba, are a group of hills, the Turtle Mountains. The highest point in the state is Black Butte (3,468 ft.), an isolated peak in the SW. The principal rivers are the Missouri, which flows into the NW from Montana, proceeding E and SE across the S boundary into South Dakota, and the Red River of the North, on the Minnesota boundary, receiving the Sheyenne River. The only large body of water is Devils Lake in the NE and C section. The climate of the state is dry, although there is sufficient rainfall for agriculture excepting in dry years; the winters are clear and very cold with light snows; the summers are hot.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Agriculture is the chief industry of the state, which leads all others in the production of rye, although this crop is far smaller than the wheat crop. Barley, flax, oats, hay, and potatoes are also grown. Extensive interests are centered on cattle raising for both beef and dairy products. In the W lie deposits of lignite coal, which is produced in relatively small quantity. Natural gas, sand, gravel, clay, sodium sulfate, and bentonite are also found. Manufacturing is concentrated chiefly on flour and grist milling, farm machinery, meat packing, pottery, and dairy products. Fargo is an important distributing center. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as $20 million dollars; from mineral output, as high as five million; from manufacturing, as high as $5 million.

History. The Frenchman De la Verendrye was the first to explore (1738) the Dakota region, which was later included (1803) in the Louisiana Purchase. Meriwether Lewis and William Clark visited (1804-05) the state, building Fort Mandan there. Pembina was the site of the first trading post in North Dakota and the focus of white settlement, Lord Selkirk building Fort Daer there under the impression the region belonged to the British. The region was partly or wholly included at various times in the Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and Nebraska territories. North Dakota and South Dakota with parts of Wyoming and Montana were organized (1861) as Dakota Territory; the capital was at Yankton until 1883, when it was transferred to Bismarck. For many years the region was harassed by Indians. North Dakota in the 1860's especially. North Dakota was separated from South Dakota in 1889, joining the Union (as the 39th state) on Nov. 2 of that year.

Culture. North Dakota is chiefly rural in settlement, though the urban population (26.6 percent of the 1950 total) has grown in proportion during recent years. The percentage of foreign-born inhabitants is large, consisting chiefly of Canadians, Russians, Norwegians, and Germans. There are four Indian reservations in the state. At Medora in the W is the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park, commemorating the fact that Theodore Roosevelt lived here for some time. In the Turtle Mountain valley on the Canadian-North Dakota border lies the International Peace Garden, a tract of 2,220 acres, of which ab. 880 are in the state; dedicated in 1932, it symbolizes peace between Canada and the U.S. Institutions of higher learning in the state include the state-supported University of North Dakota, at University. The state motto is "Liberty and Union, Now and Forever, One and Inseparable." The state flower is the wild prairie rose.

North Devon (dev'ŏn). Former name of Devon Island, North Downs. Range of low chalk hills in S central England, extending E from Hampshire across Surrey, Kent, and Sussex, and terminating at Dover on the seacoast. Together with the parallel range of the South Downs they enclose the Weald, a lowland region. The North Downs have a mean elevation of 500 ft. The summits form natural pastures, and are devoted to sheep grazing. Both the N and S slopes are largely under cultivation, the N slope being devoted to market gardens and the S slope being under fruit and hop cultivation.

North East. Borough in NW Pennsylvania, in Erie County, on Sixteen Mile Creek; processing center for grapes; manufactures of cement and tiles. It is the site of an annual fair and grape carnival. It was settled in 1801. Pop. 4,247 (1950).

Northeast Administrative Area. See Manchuria.

Northeast Cape. See Chelyuskin, Cape.

Northeastern Provinces. See Manchuria.

North East Land. Second-largest island of Spitsbergen, the NE main island of the group. It is almost entirely ice-covered.

Northeast Passage. Sea passage between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans passing N of the mainland of Eurasia, along the Arctic coast. Although sought as early as the 15th century, the trip was first made by the Swedish explorer Adolf Erik Nordenskjöld in 1878-79. It is now used as the Northern Sea Route of the U.S.S.R.

Northeast Vineland (vin'land). Unincorporated community in S New Jersey, in Cumberland County. 5,646 (1950).

Northeim (nört'him). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on the Rühme River near its junction with the Leine River, ab. 48 mi. SE of Hanover. There are agricultural industries, lumber mills, and metal, tobacco, and textile manufactures. Remains of the medieval town walls may still be seen. Northeim received town privileges in 1263; it passed to Prussia in 1866. Its many noteworthy old buildings suffered no damage in World War II. 18,651 (1950).

Northern Car. Name sometimes applied to Ursa Major, the constellation of the Great Bear, commonly known in England as Charles's Wain, and in the U.S. as the Big Dipper.

Northern Ch'i (chē) and Northern Chou (jō). See under Northern Dynasties.

Northern Circars (sēr.kirz'). Nonofficial designation for five ancient circars (districts) in the N part of Madras, Union of India.

"Northern Circuit." See Dzungaria.

Northern Divna (dvē.nā'). See Divna, NW U.S.S.R.

Northern Dynasties. Collective name for the five dynasties which controlled most of north China from 386 to 581 as follows: Northern Wei (386-535), Eastern Wei (534-550), Western Wei (535-556), Northern Ch'i (550-577), and Northern Chou (557-581). A large part of the so-called Six Dynasties sculpture is actually Northern Wei in origin. This dynasty, also called To-pa (Toba) Wei after the Tartar tribe that founded it and also to distinguish it from the Wei of the Three Kingdoms, was in large measure responsible for the widespread and successful establishment of Buddhism in north China. Northern Ch'i was another producer of fine sculpture, some of it in a distinctively beautiful white marble.

Northern Ireland (ir'land). Westernmost division of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. It comprises the six parliamentary counties in the NE part of Ireland, from which fact it is sometimes known as the "Six Counties." Northern Ireland is bounded on the N by the Atlantic Ocean, on the E by the North Channel and the Irish Sea, and on the S and W by the Irish Republic. It is approximately coextensive with the ancient Irish province of Ulster. The Irish Republic has been politically separated from Northern Ireland since 1921, when the former accepted dominion status under the name of the Irish Free State. Northern Ireland chose then to remain within the kingdom. Though an integral part of the United Kingdom, of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, it possesses an independent parliament and executive branch of government. The country has until recently had representation in the British House of Commons, but this representation was eliminated by an act passed in 1948. Northern Ireland is the center of the Irish linen industry (especially at Belfast). Flax, though widely grown, is insufficient to supply the industry, and recourse to imports has been increasingly necessary. Agriculture is the most important occupation of the population. In addition to flax, other crops raised are oats, potatoes, and other root crops (especially turnips). Poultry raising is becoming increasingly important. Belfast is the nominal capital of the country, though the actual seat of the government is at Stormont, a suburb some 5 mi. outside the city. Area, ab. 5,237 sq. mi.; pop. 1,369,579 (1951).

Northern Iron, The. Novel by James Owen Hannay under the pseudonym George A. Birmingham, published in 1907. Set in Northern Ireland in 1798, it presents a realistic description of the unsuccessful Irish rebellion of May, 1798.

Northern Land. See Severnaya Zemlya.

Northern Lass, or a Nest of Fools, The. Comedy by Richard Brome, printed in 1632.

Northern Maide (mäin'dä). See under Mande.

Northern Paiute (pi'üt). See under Paiute.

Northern Province. One of the provinces of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan in NE Africa, bounded on the N by Egypt, on the W by Libya and French Equatorial Africa, on the S by Darfur and Kordofan provinces, and on the E by Kassala province. It includes most of the area known as Nubia and is traversed by the Nile River. It is almost entirely desert. Capital, Wadi Halfa; area, ab. 236,200 sq. mi.; pop. 690,605 (est. 1949).

Northern Province. Province of Uganda protectorate, British East Africa, occupying most of the area N of Lake Kioga. It was established in 1947. Capital, Gulu; land area, 33,168 sq. mi.; pop. (adult males), 184,000 (est. 1947).

Northern Rhodesia (rô.dë'zhä). British crown colony in S central Africa, bounded on the N by the Belgian Congo and Tanganyika territory, on the E by Nyasaland protectorate, on the S by Mozambique, Southern Rhodesia, and Bechuanaland protectorate, and on the W by Angola. The area was part of the territory of the British South Africa Company until 1924, when it was placed under the government of the British Colonial Office. The administration is in the hands of a governor assisted by executive and legislative councils. The colony is divided into six provinces, each administered by a provincial commissioner. Most of the country is a high plateau, between 3,000 and 5,000 ft. high, forming the watershed between the Congo and Zambezi river systems. Wheat, tobacco, coffee, and maize are raised, but the country is chiefly dependent on the mining industry for its revenue. Copper mining is the most important, although there is a large production of lead, zinc, silver, gold, vanadium, and cobalt. There is some European settlement and more is desired. The country is traversed by a rail line which connects it with the Belgian Congo and with Southern Rhodesia. It has an extensive system of internal air connections. Capital, Lusaka; area, 290,320 sq. mi.; pop. 1,364,644, including 21,809 Europeans, 1,115 Asiatics, and 1,347,720 Africans (est. 1946).

Northern Sea Route. Seaway used by the U.S.S.R., passing N of the mainland of Eurasia, along the Arctic coast, and linking the ports of Murmansk and Arkhangelsk with Arctic coastal ports of Siberia, with the great lumber shipping ports of Novy Port on the Ob and Igarka on the Yenisei, and the Pacific Ocean ports of the U.S.S.R. It was opened up in 1932, and some 20 ships made the passage in the years 1933-37. Ice breakers are used to keep open the channels, and the season of navigation varies from ab. 70 to 120 days, being shorter along the coast of NE Siberia; shipping does not normally get through excepting during the season July-October.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U.S. 197 (1904). U.S. Supreme Court decision declaring that a railroad holding company established by the Morgan-Hill and Harriman interests was an unlawful combination in restraint of trade under the terms of the Sherman Antitrust Act of 1890. The case was one of the outstanding "trust-busting" episodes originating during the first administration of President Theodore Roosevelt. The Northern Securities Company was formed in November, 1901, under the laws of New Jersey, with a capitalization of 400 million dollars. Its purpose was to acquire the controlling interest in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies, which were already virtually consolidated, and the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railway Company. It accomplished its purpose and thereby suppressed competition between these systems, creating a monopoly of the vast interstate and foreign commerce carried on by them. The suit under the Sherman Antitrust Act of 1890, seeking to dissolve the combination, was brought in March, 1902, by the U.S. The majority opinion delivered by Justice John M. Harlan was notable for its broad interpretation of the commerce power and its assertion of federal supremacy over state power. The dissenting opinion of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes is remembered for its distinction between a combination in restraint of trade and a community of interest leaving the parties without external restriction. Holmes pointed out that the court majority's interpretation of the law "would make external the bellum omnium contra omnes and disintegrate society so far as it could into individual atoms."

Northern Shan States (shän, shan). See under Shan State.

Northern Territories. The British protectorate and northernmost administrative division of the Gold Coast, W Africa. It is separated from the Ashanti protectorate to the S by the Volta and Black Volta rivers, and is bounded on the N and W by the Ivory Coast and on the E by the British trust territory of Togo. It is administered by a chief commissioner and several assistants who are responsible to the governor of the Gold Coast in Accra. Economically it is coupled with the Gold Coast colony and Ashanti. The territory is divided into six districts. In 1947 a Northern Territories council comprising chiefs and other native leaders was set up to aid in the government of the area. The country is a dry savannah, and agriculture is the chief occupation. Some gold and mica are found. There are no railways and most of the area is undeveloped. Many of the people are Moslems and are more closely related to the peoples to their north than to those in the south. Capital, Tamale; area, 30,486 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 890,000 (est. 1940).

Northern Territory. [Former name, North Australia.] Territory of N central and N Australia, bounded on the E by Queensland, on the S by South Australia, on the W by Western Australia, and on the N by the Arafura Sea, which separates it from Indonesia. The S portion of territory is a desert with several jagged mountain ranges traversing it; the N part is chiefly occupied by bush country and savannas. There are pronounced summer wet and winter dry seasons. Cattle grazing is the chief activity, and there is a little gold and copper mining. Transport is furnished by a road and rail line extending N across the territory to Darwin, and by air. In 1911 the territory was formally transferred from South Australia to the commonwealth. In 1927 it was divided into North and Central Australia; this division was abolished in 1931. Control is vested in the hands of an administrator. In 1947, the territory was given the right to elect 6 members to a newly constituted legislative council. Capital, Darwin; area, 523,620 sq. mi.; pop. 16,422 (est. 1951), excluding ab. 12,000 aborigines in Arnhem Land.

Northern Virginia (vör'jin'ya), Army of. Main Confederate army in the East during the Civil War. Under General Robert E. Lee it took part in the Peninsular campaign of 1862, in the Manassas, Antietam, and Fredericksburg campaigns of 1862, in the Chancellorsville campaign of 1863, in the invasion of Pennsylvania and at Gettysburg in 1863, and in the Wilderness campaign and the defense of Petersburg in 1864-65. It surrendered to Grant at Appomattox on April 9, 1865.

Northern War. In European history, a war between Sweden (under Charles XII) on one side and Russia (under Peter the Great), Denmark, Saxony, Poland, and finally Prussia and Hanover on the other. It was begun in fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pîne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ʔ, d or j; ʔ, s or sh; t, t or ch;

1700, and was ended by treaties (1719–21), in which Sweden ceded Bremen and Verden to Hanover, Stettin and part of western Pomerania to Prussia, and Livonia, Estonia, Ingermanland, and part of Karelia to Russia, and lost the supremacy in northern Europe.

Northern Wei (wā). See under Northern Dynasties.

Northern Zambezia (zam.bē'zha). See Zambezia, British.

Northern (nôr'niér.tôn), Ensign. Character in Henry Fielding's Tom Jones.

North Esk (esk). See Esk, North, and see under Esk, S Scotland.

Northfield (nôrth'fêld). Town in N Massachusetts, in Franklin County: seat of the Northfield Seminary, established by Dwight L. Moody (1837–99). It is the site of the first American Youth Hostel (1934, 2,246 (1950)).

Northfield. City in SE Minnesota, in Rice County, on the Cannon River: manufactures of dairy products, farm machinery, and breakfast foods. It is the seat of Saint Olaf College and Carleton College. 7,487 (1950).

Northfield. City in S New Jersey, in Atlantic County, near Atlantic City. 3,498 (1950).

Northfield. Town in C Vermont, in Washington County, ab. 9 mi. SW of Montpelier: the geographical center of the state. Manufactures include textiles, handkerchiefs, hosiery, and wood products; formerly important for its railroad shops. It is the seat of Norwich University. 4,314 (1950).

Northfleet (nôrth'flêt). Urban district and industrial town in SE England, in Kent, on the Thames ab. 22 mi. SE of London by rail. It has paper mills and is an important tin and lead refining center, since 1931 refining Australian lead ores, 18,803 (1951).

North Foreland (fôr'land). See Foreland, North.

North Friesland (frêz'land). Region in N Germany, that part of Schleswig-Holstein which comprises the North Frisian Islands and the opposite W coast of the mainland.

North Frisian (or Frisian) Islands (frê'zhan, frizh'an). See under Frisian Islands.

Northgate (nôrth'gât), Dan Michel of. See Michel of Northgate, Dan.

North German Confederation (jêr'man). [German, Norddeutscher Bund.] German union formed after the dissolution of the German Confederation in 1866, under the leadership of Prussia. It was the model for the German Empire, which took its place in 1871.

North German Lloyd (loid). [German, Norddeutscher Lloyd.] Company at Bremen, Germany, founded in 1857, for maintaining regular steamship lines between Bremen and New York, Baltimore, and other ports, and also between New York and various Mediterranean ports. It has been inactive since World War II.

North Goodwin (gûd'win). See under Goodwin Sands.

North Haledon (hâl'don). Borough in N New Jersey, in Passaic County, near Paterson. 3,550 (1950).

North Haven (hâ'ven). Town in S Connecticut, in New Haven County, on the Quinnipiac River: suburb of New Haven. It was formerly important for shipbuilding, now has truck farms and brickyards. 9,444 (1950).

North Holland (hól'and). [Dutch, Noord Holland.] Province of the Netherlands, bounded by the North Sea on the W and N, by the IJsselmeer on the E, and by Utrecht and South Holland on the S. It includes the islands of Texel and Vlieland. Apart from dunes stretching along the North Sea coast the surface is entirely level, the soil of great fertility. The countryside, most of which is below sea level, is traversed by canals and protected by dikes; agriculture, horticulture, market gardening, and dairy farming are highly developed; the population density is high. Amsterdam is the chief city, and commercial activities are outstanding; there are fisheries and a number of industries. The majority of the population is of the Protestant faith. Capital, Haarlem; area, 1,163 sq. mi.; pop. 1,874,557 (est. 1950).

North Holland Canal. Ship canal in N Netherlands, connecting Amsterdam with Den Helder, opened in 1825. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Northington (nôr'ning.tôn), 1st Earl of. Title of Henry, Robert.

North Island. [Former name, New Ulster.] Northern of the two principal islands of New Zealand, and the most populous island of the dominion. It is a fertile island, largely mountainous or hilly, and has extensive pasture lands, which because of the warm temperate and humid climate, may be grazed the year round. In addition to livestock raising, which produces meat animals and wool for export, there is considerable dairy farming, which produces butter and cheese for export, and also some market gardening and specialized fruit farming. In the C part of North Island, around Lake Taupo, there are geysers and hot springs; this region is the greatest resort area of the islands and attracts many tourists. Length, ab. 550 mi.; area, 44,281 sq. mi. (including adjacent islets); pop. 1,314,085 (1951).

North Kanara (kâ'nâ'ra). See Kanara.

North Kansas City (kan'zas). Town in NW Missouri, in Clay County, on the Missouri River: industrial suburb of Kansas City. 3,886 (1950).

North Kingstown (king's.toun). [Former names: King's Towne, Rochester.] Town in S Rhode Island, in Washington County. It was incorporated in 1674. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than tripled. 4,604 (1940), 14,810 (1950).

North Kona (kô'nâ). See under Kona.

North Korea (kô'rê'a). See under Korea.

North Lake. Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County: a western residential suburb of Chicago. 4,361 (1950).

North Las Vegas (las vâ'gas). Town in S Nevada, in Clark County: a northeastern suburb of Las Vegas. 3,875 (1950).

North Little Rock. [Former name, Argentina.] City in C Arkansas, in Pulaski County, opposite Little Rock on the Arkansas River: principal industries include railroad repair shops and cottonseed-oil, cooperage, furniture, garment, and printing plants. It is the seat of Shorter College. 21,137 (1940), 44,097 (1950).

North Manchester (man'ches'tér). Town in NE Indiana, in Wabash County: seat of Manchester College. 3,977 (1950).

North Mankato (man.kâ'tô). City in S Minnesota, in Nicollet County, on the Minnesota River near Mankato. 4,788 (1950).

Northmen (nôrth'men). Men of the north; specifically, the old vikings. They were noted for their skill and daring on the sea, and for their raiding expeditions on the coasts of northern and western Europe from the 8th to the 11th century. They founded permanent settlements in some places, as in the Orkneys and Hebrides, and in northern France (the region which became Normandy), where after acculturation, they became known as Normans. According to the Icelandic sagas, a Northman, Leif Ericson, visited the shores of Nova Scotia and New England c1000 A.D.

North Miami (mi.am'i, -â). [Original name, Miami Shores.] Town in SE Florida, N of Miami: residential suburb. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 1,973 (1940) to 10,734 (1950).

North Minch (minch). See Minch.

North Olmsted (om'sted). Village in NE Ohio, in Cuyahoga County, near Cleveland. 6,604 (1950).

North Ossetian Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic (o.sê'shan). [Also, North Ossetia (o.sê'sha).] Republic in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, centered ab. 75 mi. NW of the city of Tiflis (Tbilisi), on the N slopes of the Caucasus Mountains. Most of the area is mountainous or hilly, and the main occupation of the people is herding and the raising of grapes and other fruit crops; some lead and zinc ores are mined. Petroleum is produced at Malgobek. There is an extensive home weaving industry in the area. Capital, Dzardzhikau; area, 2,939 sq. mi. (1939), ab. 3,550 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 328,885 (1939).

North Park. Highland basin in Grand County, N Colorado: natural meadows used for grazing. Area, ab. 2,000 sq. mi.; elevation, ab. 8,500 ft.

North Pelham (pel'am). Village in SE New York, in Westchester County: residential suburb of New York. 5,046 (1950).

North Plainfield (plân'fêld). Borough in N New Jersey, in Somerset County: suburb of Plainfield; manufactures of telescopes. 12,766 (1950).

North Platte (plat). City in C Nebraska, county seat of Lincoln County, at the junction of the North Platte and South Platte rivers; railroad shops; meat-packing and food-processing industries. It is an active trade center. 15,433 (1950).

North Platte River. See under Platte.

North Pole. Northernmost point of the Earth, located in the Arctic Ocean, on a permanent ice-pack, ab. 440 mi. N of the nearest known land (Greenland). It was long the goal of polar explorers; the first man to reach the Pole was Robert E. Peary, who arrived there on April 6, 1909, with his party. Subsequently it has been visited by numerous explorers, chiefly by air.

Northport (nôth'pôrt). City in W Alabama, in Tuscaloosa County, ab. 48 mi. SW of Birmingham. 3,885 (1950).

Northport. Village in SE New York, in Suffolk County, on the N shore of Long Island; residential community. It was formerly important for shipbuilding. 3,859 (1950).

Northport. A former name of Vinton, Iowa.

North Providence (nôth'prôv'idens). Town in N Rhode Island, in Providence County; textile manufactures. 13,927 (1950).

North Quincy (kwîn'si). Unincorporated community in W Illinois, N of Quincy; residential suburb. 2,985 (1950).

North Reading (rêd'ing). Town in E Massachusetts, in Middlesex County, in an agricultural community. 4,402 (1950).

North Rhine-Westphalia (rîn.west.fâl'ya, -fâl'ia). [German, Nordrhein-Westfalen.] Land (state) in W Germany, British Zone, bounded by the Netherlands, Belgium, Rhineland-Palatinate, Hessen, and Lower Saxony. It consists of the former Prussian province of Westphalia, the government districts of Cologne (Köln), Aachen, and Düsseldorf of the former Prussian Rhine Province, and the former free state of Lippe. It is traversed by the lower Rhine River and its tributaries. It includes the huge industrial districts of the Ruhr and the Wupper, the smaller districts of Aachen, Cologne, Düsseldorf, and Bielefeld, with numerous iron and steel works, and machine, metal, chemical, textile, and other industries. There are large coal fields, and also lignite and iron mining regions. It comprises the chief industrial complex in Europe. The capital of the German Federal Republic, Bonn, is also within the borders of this Land. There are fertile agricultural regions along the lower Rhine River and in Westphalia; much of the remainder of the surface is densely forested. The population as a whole declined by 2.1 percent in the period 1939-46. However, the various government districts show a wide range from a decrease of 12.8 percent in the district of Aachen to an increase of 24 percent in the district of Detmold. North Rhine-Westphalia is the most populous Land in Germany. Capital, Düsseldorf; area, ab. 13,107 sq. mi.; pop. 13,196,176 (1950).

North Richland (rich'land). Unincorporated community in SE central Washington, N of Richland. It is a residential suburb housing numbers of people employed at the Hanford Works of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, which has its headquarters at Richland. 3,067 (1950).

North Riding of Yorkshire (nôd'ing; yôrk'shir). See Yorkshire, North Riding of.

North River. Name given to the Hudson River near its mouth; originally so named in distinction from the Delaware (or South River).

North Riverside (riv'êr.sîd). Village in NE Illinois, W of Chicago; residential suburb. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than tripled. 1,036 (1940), 3,230 (1950).

North Ronaldsay (ron'ald.sâ) or Ronaldshay (-shâ). See Ronaldsay, North.

Northrop (nôr'throp), Cyrus. b. at Ridgefield, Conn., Sept. 30, 1834; d. April 3, 1922. American educator, president (1884-1910) of the University of Minnesota. He was graduated from Yale in 1857, studied law, and was professor of rhetoric and English literature (1863-84) at Yale.

Northrop, Harry Pinckney. b. at Charleston, S.C., May 5, 1842; d. June 7, 1916. American Roman Catholic clergyman. He was consecrated (1882) bishop and transferred (1883) to the diocese of Charleston, S.C.

Northrop, John Howard. b. at Yonkers, N.Y., 1891—. American biochemist, a Nobel prize winner in 1946. Since 1916 he has been associated with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. In the course of his work he first isolated (1930) pepsin and trypsin in crystalline form. In 1946 he advanced the theory of an essential substance, which he called proteogenin, from which all proteins derive. For his work, particularly with regard to enzymes, he participated with J. N. Sumner and W. M. Stanley in the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1946. He is the author of Crystalline Enzymes (1939).

North Royalton (rô'âl.tôn). Village in NE Ohio, in Cuyahoga County; a southern suburb of Cleveland. 3,399 (1950).

North Sacramento (sak.ra.men'tô). City in C California, in Sacramento County, NE of San Francisco. 6,029 (1950).

North Schleswig (shles'wig). [Danish, Nord Slesvig; also: South Jutland, Danish, Sønderjylland.] Region in Denmark, N of Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, divided at a line between Flensburg and Tønder. Chief towns are Aabenraa, Haderslev, and Sønderborg. It came under Prussian rule, as part of Schleswig-Holstein, by the treaty of Prague in 1866. As required by the Versailles Treaty, a plebiscite was held here after World War I, as a result of which the region was ceded to Denmark (1920). The Flensburg zone voted in favor of remaining with Germany. Area, ab. 1,500 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 150,000.

North Sea. [Also: German Ocean; Dutch, Noordzee; French, Mer du Nord; German, Nordsee, Deutsches Meer; Danish, Nordsø; Norwegian, Nordsjø; Latin, Mare Germanicum, Oceanus Germanicus.] Arm of the Atlantic Ocean, lying E of Great Britain, SW of Norway, W of Denmark, and N of Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium, and France. It communicates on the E by the Skagerrak, Kattegat, and Øresund with the Baltic, on the SW by the Strait of Dover and the English Channel with the Atlantic, and on the N with the Norwegian Sea. It is noted for its general shallowness and for its fisheries. It receives the Tay, Forth, Tweed, Tyne, Humber, Ouse, Thames, Schelde, Meuse, Rhine, Ems, Weser, and Elbe. Length, ab. 600 mi.; width, ab. 400 mi.; area, ab. 222,150 sq. mi.; average depth, ab. 308 ft.; greatest depth (in the Skagerrak), ab. 2,300 ft.; least depth at sea (Dogger Bank), ab. 40 ft.

North Sea. Name commonly given, in the 16th century, to the Caribbean Sea, as being north of the Isthmus of Panama, in contradistinction to the South Sea or Pacific Ocean.

North Sea and of Brooksby (brûks'bi), 1st Earl of the. Title of Beatty, David.

North Sea Canal. [Also, Amsterdam Ship Canal.] Ship canal which connects Amsterdam with the North Sea by means of the IJ River. Length, ab. 16 mi.

North Sea Incident. Attack on the night of Oct. 21, 1904, by the Russian Baltic fleet, while on its way to the Far East during the Russo-Japanese War, upon a Hull fishing fleet which was trawling on the Doggerbank. The steam trawler Crane was sunk, other boats were damaged, two men were killed, and a number were seriously wounded. The affair was submitted, on the proposition of the czar, to an international committee of inquiry. The Russian admiral had submitted that his officers had seen two Japanese torpedo boats among the trawlers. This was disproved by the commission sitting at Paris in January-February, 1905, and Russia paid Great Britain an indemnity of 65,000 pounds, the amount of compensation due the Hull fishermen as assessed by the Board of Trade Commission.

North Shields (shêldz). Market town and seaport in NE England, in Northumberland, on the N bank of the river Tyne at its mouth, opposite South Shields, ab. 276 mi. N of London by rail. It is part of Tynemouth county borough, and the name is often applied locally to all of Tynemouth. Originally, North Shields was a separate town W of Tynemouth. It has manufactures of marine engines, ship's chandlery, and earthenware, among others.

North Smithfield (smith'fêld). Town in N Rhode Island, in Providence County; textiles. 5,726 (1950).

"North Star State." Occasional nickname of Minnesota.

North St. Paul (sânt pôl). Village in SE Minnesota, in Ramsey County; a northeastern residential suburb of St. Paul. 4,248 (1950).

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

North Sydney (sid'ni). Town in NE Nova Scotia, on NE Cape Breton Island, ab. 200 mi. NE of Halifax. It is a fishing port, and serves also as a point of export for coal produced in the vicinity. 7,354 (1951).

North Syracuse (sir'a.kūs). Village in N central New York, N of Syracuse; residential suburb. 3,356 (1950).

North Tarrytown (tār'i.toun). Village in SE New York, in Westchester County, adjoining Tarrytown; automobile assembly plants. It is the site of Philipse Castle. 8,740 (1950).

North Tonawanda (ton-a.won'da). City in W New York, in Niagara County, on the New York State Barge Canal; manufactures of musical instruments, iron and steel products, amusement park furnishings, filing cabinets, and steel files. It is in the urbanized area of Buffalo. 24,731 (1950).

North Uist (ū'ist, ō'-). Island and civil parish in N Scotland, in the Outer Hebrides, in Inverness-shire. It is separated from the Isle of Skye on the E by the Little Minch, and from Lewis Island on the N by the Sound of Harris. The coastline is irregular and deeply indented. The surface is generally level and marshy. There are numerous small lakes. The highest elevation is Ben Eaval (1,138 ft.) in the SE part. Length, ab. 18 mi.; width, 3 to 13 mi.; pop. of civil parish, 2,827 (1931).

Northumberland (nôr.thum'bër.land). Maritime county in NE England. It is bounded on the NW and N by Scotland, on the E by the North Sea, on the S by Durham, and on the W by Cumberland. The surface rises gradually from a lowland coastal plain W and NW to the Cheviot Hills. Coquet Island, Holy Island, and the Farne Islands lie a short distance off the coast. Much of the land is in permanent pasture, which is good in the coastal zone. The NW part of the county provides only rough pasture for cattle and sheep. Wheat and barley are raised in the N part, much of it for poultry feed. The Northumberland-Durham coal field is important, and has been worked since the 12th century. Lead and zinc ores are found in the SW part of the county. Important industries are shipbuilding, ship's chandlery manufactures, chemical manufactures, and pottery making. Much of the industrial development is concentrated in the lower course of the river Tyne. Newcastle is the chief town. Northumberland is the first county in England in the importance of its Roman antiquities, including the Roman Wall. It formed part of the ancient kingdom of Northumbria. It was the scene of much border warfare between the English and Scots. County seat, Newcastle; area, ab. 2,010 sq. mi.; pop. 798,175 (1951).

Northumberland. Town in N New Hampshire, in Coos County; manufactures of paper. 2,779 (1950).

Northumberland. Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Northumberland County, on the Susquehanna River; manufactures of silk textiles, clothing, canned goods, and iron products. Platted in 1772, it was the home (1794-1804) of Joseph Priestley. 4,207 (1950).

Northumberland, Duke of. A title of Dudley, John.

Northumberland, Earl of. Title of Mowbray, Robert de.

Northumberland, Earl of. A title of Neville, John.

Northumberland, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Percy family.

Northumberland, Earl of. Title of Sivard.

Northumberland Strait. Sea passage in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, separating Prince Edward Island from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Canada. Greatest width, ab. 30 mi.

Northumbria (nôr.thum'bri.a). [Also, Kingdom of Northumberland.] Former kingdom of Great Britain, at its greatest extent reaching from the Humber to the Firth of Forth, and from the North Sea W to the Celtic Strathclyde. The Anglian kingdoms of Bernicia in the N (founded by Ida in 547) and Deira (founded a few years later) were united (600) under Ethelfrith. Christianity was introduced under Edwin (d. 633). Northumbria reached its highest point in the 7th century, as the most powerful kingdom in the island. It was the center of literature in the 7th and 8th centuries. It was largely resettled by the Danes in the 9th century, nominally conquered by the Anglo-Saxons in the middle of the 10th century, and governed by practically independent Danish earls until the period of the Norman conquest. The N portion was ceded (c1000) to Scotland.

Northumbria, Earl of. Title of Tostig.

Northumbrians (nôr.thum'bri.anz). Earl of the. Title of Morcar or Morkere.

North Vancouver (van.kô'vër). City in British Columbia, Canada, situated on the N side of Burrard Inlet across from Vancouver, of which it is a suburb. 15,987 (1951).

North Vernon (vër'nøn). City in SE Indiana, in Jennings County; rail shipping center. 3,488 (1950).

Northville (nôrth'vil). Village in SE Michigan, in Oakland and Wayne counties, NW of Detroit. 3,240 (1950).

North Wales (wälz). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, ab. 20 mi. N of Philadelphia. It produces clay used by nearby potteries. 2,998 (1950).

Northward Ho! Comedy by Thomas Dekker and John Webster, written c1605 and printed in 1607.

Northwest Conspiracy. [Also called the Northwestern Confederacy Plot.] Attempt (1864) by agents of the Confederacy, in collaboration with the Sons of Liberty and other Copperhead elements in the North, to weaken the Union cause by unseating the state governments of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Missouri. The plan called for the liberation and arming of Confederate prisoners in Union camps in Ohio and Illinois, and the subsequent formation of a Northwestern Confederacy in alliance with the Confederate States of America. Some of the Copperheads pledged their aid, but their ultimate refusal to take part in the projected armed rising caused the failure of the scheme. The Confederates instead shifted their plans to the east, where they conducted raids across the Canadian border into Vermont.

North-West Frontier Province. [Also, Northwest Frontier Province.] Province of Pakistan, formerly a province of British India, created in November, 1901, and comprising the four trans-Indus districts of Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu, and Dera Ismail Khan, parts of the district of Hazara, and the political agencies Kurram, Malakand (Dir, Swat, and Chitral), Khyber, Tochi, Gomal, and Shitani. Through this area have come all of the great invasions of India (the province may be reached by several strategic passes through the mountains). It has long been known for its nomadic herders, but settled farming has now also become important. Wheat is grown, and wool is obtained from the sheep of the herders. Capital, Peshawar; area, 41,057 sq. mi.; pop. 5,699,000 (1951).

Northwest Ordinance. See Ordinance of 1787.

Northwest Passage. Sea passage between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, passing N of the mainland of North America, along the Arctic coast, and through the Canadian Arctic Archipelago. It was sought by navigators from the 16th century on, but the first successful passage was made by the Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen in 1906-09. Because of the freezing of numerous straits, and prolonged and severe winter conditions, the route is not of practical use.

Northwest Passage. Novel by Kenneth Roberts, published in 1937. The hero, Robert Rogers, leads a group of Rangers in campaigns against the Indians during the French and Indian Wars and later engages in a search for a Northwest Passage.

Northwest Polder (pôl'dër). See Wieringermeer Polder.

Northwest Provinces or Northwestern Provinces. Former lieutenant-governorship of British India, surrounded by Tibet, Nepal, Oudh, Bengal, Central Provinces, Punjab, and native states: now in Uttar Pradesh, Union of India. The region belongs to the Ganges basin, is noted for its production of wheat, and contains many famous cities. It was acquired by the British at the end of the 18th and beginning of the 19th century. It played an important part in the Sepoy Mutiny in 1857-58. Oudh was united to it in administration in 1877. In 1902 the Northwest Provinces and Oudh became the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the term Agra denoting the territories formerly known as the Northwest Provinces. The capital was Allahabad. Area with Oudh, 107,164 sq. mi.

Northwest Territories. Region in N Canada, comprising all the area of Canada which is not included in one of the ten provinces and the Yukon Territory. At one time these territories comprised most of W Canada including the territory of Rupert's Land. In 1905 the three prairie provinces were carved out of the area (the Yukon Territory had been established earlier). In 1918 the area was divided for administrative purpose into three districts: Keewatin, the E mainland district; Mackenzie, the W mainland district; and Franklin, the islands to the N. The territories are governed by a commissioner and six councilors appointed by and subject to the dominion government. Mining is the chief industry and the minerals found include gold, silver, radium, and uranium; oil is also found. Area, 1,304,903 sq. mi. (including 51,465 sq. mi. of open water); pop. 16,004 (1951).

Northwest Territory. Territory formed by act of Congress in 1787, comprising what are now Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota E of the Mississippi. Slavery was prohibited in it.

Northwest Vineland (vin'land). Unincorporated community in S New Jersey, in Cumberland County. 3,827 (1950).

Northwich (nóth'wich). Urban district, market town, and manufacturing center in W England, in Cheshire, situated at the confluence of the rivers Weaver and Dane, on the Cheshire salt field, ab. 18 mi. NE of Chester, ab. 172 mi. NW of London by rail. It is the center of an important chemical industry, begun in 1874. Northwich is noted also for its salt mines. 17,480 (1951).

North Wildwood (wild'wúd). City in SE New Jersey, NE of Cape May; summer resort on the Atlantic coast. 3,158 (1950).

North Wilkesboro (wílk'sbur.ô). Town in NW North Carolina, in Wilkes County; manufactures of leather, furniture, and metal goods; marketing center for poultry. It was chartered in 1891. Pop. 4,379 (1950).

North Yakima (yak'i.mă). A former name of Yakima, Wash.

Norton (nór'ton). City in N Kansas, county seat of Norton County. 3,060 (1950).

Norton. Town in SE Massachusetts, in Bristol County; seat of Wheaton College. 4,401 (1950).

Norton. [Former name, Prince's Flats.] Town in SW Virginia, in Wise County; trading and shipping center for a coal-mining region. It was renamed in 1890. Pop. 4,315 (1950).

Norton. See under Malton.

Norton, Andrews. b. Dec. 31, 1786; d. Sept. 18, 1853. American Unitarian theologian, professor (1819-30) at Harvard. His works include A Statement of the Reasons for not believing the Doctrines of the Trinitarians (1833) and others.

Norton, Caroline Elizabeth Sarah. [Maiden name, Sheridan.] b. 1808; d. June 15, 1877. English poet and novelist. She was one of "the three graces," daughters of Thomas Sheridan. She published The Dandies' Rout (illustrated by herself at the age of 13), The Sorrows of Rosalie (1829), and The Undying One (1830). She also wrote A Voice from the Factories (1836), The Lady of La Garaye (1862), Lost and Saved (1863), and Old Sir Douglas (1867).

Norton, Charles Eliot. b. at Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 16, 1827; d. there, Oct. 21, 1908. American author; son of Andrews Norton. He graduated from Harvard in 1846, and was an editor (1864-68), with James Russell Lowell, of the North American Review. He was professor of the history of art (1874-98) at Harvard University. He translated Dante's Divina Commedia (1892), and edited James Russell Lowell's letters in 1893.

Norton, Lillian. Original name of Nordica, Madame Lillian.

Norton, Thomas. b. at London, 1532; d. at Sharpenhoe, Bedfordshire, England, 1584. English lawyer, translator, and author. He wrote (with Sackville) the first English tragedy, Gorboduc, or Ferrex and Porrex. He published a Translation of Calvin's Institutes (1561), and translated many of the psalms in the Psalter of Sternhold and Hopkins (1561).

Norton, Thomas Herbert. b. at Rushford, N.Y., June 30, 1851; d. at White Plains, N.Y., Dec. 2, 1941. American chemist and consular representative. He was professor of chemistry (1883-1900) at University of Cincinnati.

His Dyestuff Census, issued after study of European chemical industries while U.S. consul (1906-14) at Chemnitz, Germany, was of value in the establishment of a U.S. dyestuff industry during World War I.

Norton Radstock (rad'stok). Urban district and mining town in SW England, in Somersetshire, ab. 10 mi. SW of Bath. It comprises the former urban districts of Midsomer Norton and Radstock. Coal mining is conducted at Radstock. 11,934 (1951).

Norton Sound. Inlet of Bering Sea, on the W coast of Alaska.

Norumbega (nor.um.bē'ga). Old name of a region on the Atlantic coast of North America, frequently mentioned in maps and writings of the 16th and 17th centuries. It was placed between Cape Breton and Florida, or narrowed to the N part of that region, or more definitely placed within what is now the state of Maine. Various English and French explorers made journeys to Norumbega. It is disputed whether the name is of Indian, Norse, or Spanish origin. The river of Norumbega has been often identified with the Penobscot.

Norval (nór'val). Young. In Home's play Douglas, the son of Lady Randolph by a previous marriage with Douglas. The part was a favorite one with John Kemble and others, and Macready played it to Mrs. Siddons's Lady Randolph.

Norwalk (nór'wók). Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County, SE of Los Angeles. Pop. of census tract, 18,120 (1950).

Norwalk. City in SW Connecticut, in Fairfield County, on Long Island Sound ab. 30 mi. SW of New Haven. Manufactures include hats, textiles, name tapes, tires, machinery, paper, plastics, and expansion bolts. It was settled c1640, and in the Revolutionary War was burned by the Hessians under Tryon in 1779. Pop. (including South Norwalk), 49,460 (1950).

Norwalk. City in N Ohio, county seat of Huron County, ab. 51 mi. SW of Cleveland; manufactures of wood products, furniture, auto parts, fire screens, Venetian blinds, and canned food products. It was established in 1816, and named for Norwalk, Conn. 9,775 (1950).

Norway (nór'wä). [Norwegian, Norge; French, Norvège; German, Norwegen.] Country in N Europe, bounded by the Skagerrak and the North Sea on the S and SW, by the Arctic Ocean on the N, by the U.S.S.R. and Finland on the NE and by Sweden on the E. Capital, Oslo; area, 124,556 sq. mi.; pop. 3,123,338 (1946).

Territory and Climate. It occupies the smaller, W part of the Scandinavian peninsula, including also many islands. The border with Sweden is crossed by numerous ridges of rocky wooded hills in the S, and by the rugged ranges of the Kjølen in the N. The frontier toward Finland and the U.S.S.R. is marked by forest and tundra lands; it is snow-covered the larger part of the year. The country has an elongated form; at the widest part it is 270 mi. wide, while it measures only 4 mi. across at its narrowest part; it is about 1,100 mi. long. However, the coastline is 2,150 mi. long, not measuring the numerous fjords and inlets; including these, the coastline stretches over more than 12,500 mi. The long, deep fjords (Sogne, Hardanger, Trondheim, Oslo, and others) provide beautiful scenery and sheltered harbors of the first rank; but excepting the Oslo and Trondheim fjords they have difficult communication with the hinterland and point outward toward the open ocean. The country is generally mountainous, rising to more than 8,000 ft. in its highest elevations; interspersed are extensive high, barren plateau lands. The lower mountain slopes and the hills and valleys of the SE and E part of the country are forested. The Gulf Stream flowing along the Norwegian coast makes the coastal climate mild and oceanic; moisture is plentiful; the interior climate is characterized by cold winters and cool to warm summers.

Agriculture, Industry, Commerce. Norway is largely a barren country. Of the total land area, 72 percent is unproductive, 24 percent is forest, and only 4 percent is under cultivation. Hay is more important than grains; cattle and sheep raising is widespread; dairy products are produced in abundance. There are extensive fisheries, of which herring and cod fisheries rank foremost. The extensive forests, mostly of coniferous trees, are used for the production of timber and fuel wood as well as raw mate-fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pîne; not, nôte, nôve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; th, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; rial for the paper and pulp industry. Also important are the machinery and metallurgical industries, including shipbuilding, chemical and electrochemical industries, textile and clothing industries, various food industries, and printing establishments. Hydroelectrically produced energy is used for numerous industrial purposes, especially in the chemical, metallurgical, and paper industries. Norway mines iron and copper ore, molybdenum, and sulfur pyrites. An important part of the national income is derived from shipping activities. The Norwegian mercantile marine amounted to 4,846,000 gross tons in 1939; of these ab. 50 percent were lost in World War II; in 1950 the tonnage of ships was 5,681,000 gross tons.

History. Norway entered European history dramatically in the 8th and 9th centuries, when the warlike Vikings embarked upon their harrying, plundering raids on the undefended coasts of N Germany, Holland, Scotland, England, and France, sailing up the rivermouths to loot even prosperous inland settlements. They carried rich booty home; some of them established themselves as feudal overlords in N France, in the region which after them was to be called Normandy; from there, in moves which no more belong to Norwegian history, they later set out to conquer England and Sicily; they became bearers of feudal civilization and leaders of crusades. In the 10th century Norwegian seafarers discovered and settled Iceland; around the year 1000 they discovered Greenland and it is now generally assumed that some of them reached the North American continent (called "Vinland") upon a northerly route about the same time. It was only around this time that Nordic paganism began to yield to Christianity. King Olaf Haroldson, who was killed in the battle of Stiklestad (1030) after an attempt to introduce Christianity, was after his death declared a martyr and saint. The archbishopric of Trondheim was established in 1152. Throughout the 11th and 12th centuries Norway was rent by civil wars; part of the time it was under Danish rule. A Norwegian-Swedish Union lasted from 1319-60. After the death of King Olaf V, Norway entered the Union of Kalmar with Denmark and Sweden (1397-1523). In this period the German merchants of the Hanseatic League dominated Norwegian trade. Wars broke up the Nordic union, but the union between Denmark and Norway was maintained. The Lutheran Reformation was introduced in 1536. Norway was involved in the Nordic Wars on the Danish side; Härjedalen and Jämtland were ceded to Sweden in 1645, Bohuslän in 1658. In the Peace of Kiel (Jan. 14, 1814) Norway was ceded to Sweden by Denmark; but the National Assembly elected Prince Christian Frederick of Norway; after a brief war with Sweden and the protest of the European powers, the Danish prince withdrew and union with Sweden was decided upon on Nov. 4, 1814. The union remained an unhappy alliance throughout the 19th century; after much friction it was dissolved on June 7, 1905. The Danish prince Carl was elected King Haakon VII of Norway on Nov. 18, 1905. Norway remained neutral in World War I, but was invaded by Germany in World War II, on April 9, 1940. Fighting, with the aid of hastily dispatched British aid, continued in S Norway until May 5, in N Norway until June 7. Quisling, whose name has become a byword, became prime minister under the German Commissar Terboven. A Government in Exile, under the direction of the king, was established in London. The country was liberated on May 8, 1945; the king returned on June 7, 1945. As a result of her war experiences Norway abandoned her traditional policy of neutrality, and accepted the North Atlantic Treaty.

Government. Norway is a constitutional monarchy, with succession established in direct male line and in order of primogeniture. After the repeal of the Union with Sweden, on Oct. 26, 1905, the throne was first offered to a Swedish prince, then to Prince Carl of Denmark; he took the name Haakon VII. The constitution of May 17, 1814, was variously modified at later times. The legislative power rests with the parliament (Storting), with the king exercising the veto; this can be overridden, if a law passes three Stortings formed by separate and subsequent elections. After each election the Storting divides itself into two sections; there is no Upper House. The executive power is exercised by a council of state, or cabinet, which represents the king. The ministers are entitled to be present in, and address themselves to, the Storting, but have no vote. The labor party has a majority in the Storting; there is a labor cabinet.

Culture. The Lutheran Church is established; the clergy are nominated by the king; there are nine bishoprics. There are few adherents of other religions; Jesuits are not admitted. Elementary education is compulsory. There are two universities, in Oslo and in Bergen; various technical, agricultural, commercial, and other schools. Social security legislation embraces unemployment and health insurance, workmen's compensation insurance, family allowances, old age and war disability pensions. Norway, with no native aristocracy, is even more of a peasants' and sailors' democracy than Sweden and Denmark, with whom it shares most characteristics of its culture. Norwegian sturdiness adds a somber note to Swedish correctness, Danish pliability. The Vikings are only a memory; but the old Nordic legends of Norway and its powerful modern literature are recognized as contributions to European civilization. Norway is noted for its winter sports; skiing is practically universal, and ski-jumping contests are held in all parts of the country, with a national meet in Oslo every February.

Norway. Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in SW Maine, in Oxford County: manufactures of shoes, sleds, moccasins, and skis. Pop. of town, 3,811 (1950); of village, 2,687 (1950).

Norway. City in the C part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, in Dickinson County: formerly important for iron ore mining. 3,258 (1950).

Norway, Nevil Shute. See Shute, Nevil.

Norwegian (nôr.wē'jān). See under Norve.

Norwegian Sea. Name given in recent geography to that part of the North Atlantic Ocean which lies between Norway and Greenland.

Norwich (nôr'wich). City in E Connecticut, a capital (with New London) of New London County, at the head of the Thames River, ab. 13 mi. N of New London. It has an important trade, and manufactures of textiles, clothing, thermos bottles, cutlery, metal products, and leather goods. It was settled in 1659, and incorporated as a city in 1784. Pop. 23,429 (1950).

Norwich (nôr'ich, -ij). City, county borough, and manufacturing town in E England, the county seat of Norfolk, situated on the river Wensum, ab. 115 mi. NE of London by rail. It has manufactures of boots and shoes (especially women's and children's), farm machinery, electrical equipment, tanned leather, silk, clothing, mustard, starch, and beer. Norwich has had a long history of manufacturing, being at one time the center of the English worsted industry. It is the regional capital of East Anglia. The cathedral, begun in 1096, is said to have retained its Norman plan with less alteration than any other English cathedral. The nave was completed in 1140, the clerestory of the choir nave was rebuilt in the 14th century, and the vaulting dates from the 15th, at which time the west front was modified and the tall, slender spire rebuilt. The choir terminates in a polygonal chancel, the only example of this form in an English church of the first rank. The triforium gallery is notably wide and high. The dimensions of the cathedral are 407 by 78 ft.; length of transepts, 178; height of vaulting: in nave 70, in the choir 83½; height of spire, 315 ft. The Church of Saint Peter, Mancroft, the castle, and Saint Andrew's Hall are also noteworthy. Norwich experienced serious air raids during World War II; however, the cathedral and castle escaped serious damage. Norwich was a British and Roman town, was burned by Sweyn, became the seat of the bishopric of East Anglia in 1094, was a bell-foundry center, received a colony of Flemish weavers in the 14th century, and became an important center for cloth manufactures. It was one of the leading towns in England in the 17th century. Pop. of county borough, 121,226 (1951).

Norwich (nôr'wich). City in C New York, county seat of Chenango County, on the Chenango River ab. 49 mi. SE of Syracuse: manufactures of pharmaceuticals, machinery, and dairy products. 8,816 (1950).

Norwich (nôr'ich, -ij), Earl of. Title of Goring, George. Norwich Festival. Musical festival held triennially at Norwich, England, established in 1824.

Norwichtown (nôr'wich.toun). Unincorporated community in SE Connecticut, NW of Norwich: residential suburb. 2,916 (1950).

Norwid (nôr'vét), Cyprjan. b. at Laskowo Gluchy, near Stanisławów, in Eastern Galicia, 1821; d. at Paris, 1833. Polish poet. Author of lyric verse that today is recognized as of high quality, he died neglected as an artist and destitute. One of his poems, On Chopin's Piano (1865), is well known.

Norwood (nôr'wúd). Two residential wards (South Norwood and Upper Norwood) of Croydon county borough, in SE England, in Surrey, ab. 9 mi. S of London Bridge Station, London. 38,965 (1931).

Norwood. Town in SE Massachusetts, in Norfolk County, ab. 14 mi. SW of Boston: tanneries and important printing and bookbinding industries. 16,636 (1930).

Norwood. [Former name, Sharpsburg.] City in SW Ohio, in Hamilton County, ab. 6 mi. NE of downtown Cincinnati: manufactures of laundry machinery, playing cards, cabinets, office furniture, tools, railroad equipment, washing machines, shoes, and lumber products. It was founded in the early 1800's. 35,001 (1950).

Norwood. Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Delaware County, near Philadelphia. 5,246 (1950).

Norwood, or Village Life in New England. Novel by Henry Ward Beecher, published in 1867.

Nosi Be (nô'sê bá'). See Nossi-Bé.

Noske (nos'ke), Gustav. b. at Brandenburg, Germany, July 9, 1865; d. at Hanover, Germany, Nov. 29, 1946. German Social Democratic politician. He was editor (1902-18) of the Chemnitzer Volkstimme, and a member of the Reichstag (1906 et seq.). He restored order at Kiel during the uprisings there in 1918. In 1919 he put down the Spartacus uprising at Berlin with troops loyal to the government. First republican minister of defense, he resigned (1920) after the Kapp Putsch, which he had been unable to prevent. He became provincial governor of Hanover province and published (1921) an autobiographical book, Von Kiel bis Kapp.

Noskowski (nôs'kôf'skê), Zygmunt (or Sigismund). b. at Warsaw, Poland, May 2, 1846; d. 1909. Polish composer. He invented a system of music notation for the use of the blind.

Nossarii (no'sâ'ri). See Ansarii.

Nossa Senhora do Desterro (nô'sa se.nyô'ra dô dês'ter'ró). A former name of Florianópolis.

Nossi-Bé (nô'sê.bâ'). [Also: Nosi Be, Nosy-Bé.] Island off SE Africa, NW of Madagascar, belonging to France. It was ceded to France in 1840; since 1896 it has been administratively a part of Madagascar. Principal town, Hellville; length, ab. 14 mi.; area, ab. 114 sq. mi.

Nostradamus (nos.trá.dá'mus). [Original name, Michel de Notredame (or Nostradamus).] b. at St.-Remy, France, Dec. 14, 1503; d. at Salon, near Aix, France, July 2, 1566. French astrologer and physician, noted as the author of a book of prophecies entitled Centuries (1555), which has been the subject of much controversy. It was condemned by the papal court in 1781.

Nostromo: A Tale of the Seaboard (nos.trô'mô). Novel by Joseph Conrad, published in 1904. It is a story of adventure, revolution, and buried treasure in a South American republic.

Nosy-Bé (nô'sê.bâ'). See Nossi-Bé.

Notables, Assembly of. In French history, a council of prominent persons from the three classes of the state, convoked by the king on extraordinary occasions. The institution can be traced to the reign of Charles V (14th century), but the two most famous assemblies were those of 1787 and 1788, summoned by Louis XVI in view of the impending crisis.

Notec (nô'tech). [German, Netze.] River in W Poland (and formerly in E Brandenburg, Germany), which joins the Warta near Gorzów Wielkopolski (Landsberg). Length, ab. 275 mi.

Notes of a Son and Brother. Autobiographical narrative by Henry James, published in 1914. It is a sequel to A Small Boy and Others (1913) and covers the period from the late 1850's to 1870.

Notes on the State of Virginia (ver.jin'ya). Work by Thomas Jefferson, privately published at Paris in 1784 (but dated 1782).

Nothnagel (nôt'nä'gel), Carl Wilhelm Hermann. b. at Alt-Lietzegörick, Germany, Sept. 23, 1841; d. at Vienna, July 7, 1905. German physician. He described paralysis of the facial muscles, especially in respect of movements connected with emotions, unilateral oculomotor paralysis with cerebellar ataxia and crossed paralysis (the so-called Nothnagel's syndrome), and also (1867) angina pectoris vasomotoria. Author of Epilepsy and Eclampsia (1877), Anaemia, Hyperaemia, Hemorrhage, Thrombosis, and Embolism of the Brain (1877), A Treatise on Materia Medica (1883-84), Die Erkrankungen des Darms und des Peritoneum (1895; Eng. trans., Diseases of the Intestines and Peritoneum, 1904), and others.

Nothus (nô'thus), Darius. See Darius II (of Persia).

Notitia Dignitatum (nô'tish'i.ä digni.tä'tum). Roman directory and army list, compiled c400, valuable for its historical and antiquarian information.

Notium (nô'shi.um). In ancient geography, the port of Colophon, near Ephesus. Near it the Spartan fleet under Lysander defeated (407 b.c.) the Athenians.

Notker (nôt'ker). [Called Notker Labeo (lâ'bê.ô), meaning "Notker with the large lips."] d. 1022. Monk of St.-Gall, translator of various Latin and Greek works into Old High German.

Noto (nô'tô). [Ancient name, Netum.] City and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Syracuse, ab. 15 mi. SW of Syracuse: agricultural trade. It was built near the site of the medieval town (which was on the site of the ancient Netum) after that community was destroyed by an earthquake in 1693. It is the seat of a bishopric, with a cathedral in baroque style. The cathedral was still intact after World War II. Pop. of commune, 29,992 (1936); of town, 18,923 (1936).

Noto, Fiume di. An Italian name of the Asinarus.

Notodden (nô'tôd'ên). Town in S Norway, in the fylke (county) of Telemark. It is an industrial community, with manufactures of rayon, chemical fertilizer, carbide, and various ferro-alloys. Pop. ab. 6,000.

Notre Dame (no.trê.dâm). Church at Paris, one of the most imposing and famous of cathedrals. The present structure was begun in 1163, but dates chiefly from the early 13th century. The façade, with its three large portals, its great rose windows, its gallery and arcades, and its twin square towers, is one of the two or three finest produced by Gothic architects. The transept fronts are unsurpassed in their way, and the long range of windows and flying buttresses of nave and choir is highly effective. The figure and foliage sculpture of the exterior is abundant and artistically remarkable. The graceful rood-spire was built by Viollet-le-Duc in place of the original one. The interior, with nave and double aisles continued around the choir, measures 156 by 420 ft., and 110 high. The three rose windows retain their original glass, but the remainder of the glass is modern. The choir screen is carved with interesting New Testament reliefs of the 14th century.

Notredame (no.trê.dâm), Michel de. See Nostradamus.

Notre Dame Bay (nô'trê.dâm'). Large embayment of the Atlantic Ocean, indenting the NE coast of the island of Newfoundland.

Notre Dame de Brou (no.trê.dâm.de brô). Church at Bourg, France, in the latest florid Gothic style, built by Margaret of Austria between 1505 and 1536.

Notre-Dame-de-la-Salette (de.lâ.sâ.let). Locality in France, in the Alps near Grenoble. It is noted as the scene of an alleged appearance of the Virgin in 1846. It is a place of pilgrimage.

Notre Dame de Paris (de.pâ.rê). Prose romance by Victor Hugo, published in 1831. The scene is laid at Paris in the end of the reign of Louis XI.

Notre Dame des Vertus (dâ ver.tü). Former name of Aubervilliers.

Notre Dame Mountains (nô'trê.dâm'; French, no.trê.dâm). Extension of the Appalachian Mountains in SE Quebec, Canada, S of the St. Lawrence River.

Nott (not), Abraham. b. at Saybrook, Conn., Feb. 5, 1763; d. in Fairfield District, S.C., June 19, 1830. American jurist and legislator. He was admitted (1791) to the Charleston bar, and from 1799 to 1801 was a member of Congress. He was head (1824-30) of the South Carolina court of appeals.

Nott, Eliphalet, b. at Ashford, Conn., June 25, 1773; d. at Schenectady, N.Y., Jan. 29, 1866. American educator, president (1804-66) of Union College, at Schenectady. He published Counsels to Young Men (1810), Lectures on Temperance (1847), and others.

Nott, Josiah Clark, b. at Columbia, S.C., March 31, 1804; d. at Mobile, Ala., March 31, 1873. American ethnologist; son of Abraham Nott. He wrote Connection between the Biblical and Physical History of Man (1849), and conjointly with Gliddon, Types of Mankind (1854), Indigenous Races of the Earth (1857), and others.

Nott, Samuel, b. at what is now Essex, Conn., Jan. 23, 1754; d. at Franklin, Conn., May 26, 1852. American Congregational clergyman. He was graduated (1780) from Yale College, was licensed (1781) as a preacher, and was ordained (1782) in Norwich, Conn., at Norwich West Farms (now Franklin), where he served as pastor until his death. He was president of the Norwich Foreign Missionary Society and of the Connecticut Bible Society.

Nottebohm (not'e.bõm), Martin Gustav, b. at Lüdenscheid, in Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 12, 1817; d. at Graz, Austria, Oct. 29, 1882. German music scholar and historian. He established himself at Vienna, where he made a special study of Beethoven.

Nottingham (not'ing.am). City and county borough, market town, and industrial center in N central England, county seat of Nottinghamshire, situated on the river Trent ab. 15 mi. E of Derby, ab. 124 mi. NW of London by rail. Since the 17th century it has been the center of English lace and hosiery manufacture. It also has manufactures of silk and rayon knitwear, as well as other trades associated with textile manufactures. Nottingham is situated on an important coal field and coal is mined on the N outskirts of the town. It is an important motor-car manufacturing center. Other machinery manufactures include textile machinery and electrical equipment. The city is famous for its annual Goose Fair, held in October. Nottingham Castle (now used as a museum), built by William the Conqueror, stands close to the center of town on a high and precipitous rock. It was destroyed in the English Civil War, and again by a Reform Bill mob in 1831. Here Mortimer and Queen Isabella were captured in 1330 by Edward III. Charles I raised his standard here at the beginning of the Civil War. The town was first a British settlement, then a Danish and Saxon fortress, later a Norman stronghold. It was the scene of the Luddite riots. Points of interest in the town include University College, founded in 1881, and a 12th-century inn known as "The Trip to Jerusalem." Nottingham was one of the five boroughs taken from the Danes in the 10th century by the king of Wessex. 306,008 (1951).

Nottingham, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Mowbray family.

Nottingham, 1st Earl of. Title of Finch, Heneage.

Nottingham, 1st Earl of. A title of Howard, Charles (1536-1624).

Nottingham, 5th Earl of. A title of Finch-Hatton, George William.

Nottingham and Nottingham West. Former names of Hudson, N.H.

Nottinghamshire (not'ing.am.shir) or Nottingham (not'ing.am). [In writing often shortened to Notts (without a period).] North midland county of England. It is bounded on the N, NE, and E by Lincolnshire, on the S by Leicestershire, on the W by Derbyshire, and on the NW by Yorkshire. The surface is level in the E part, rising to low rolling hills in the W. The remains of Sherwood Forest (the haunt of Robin Hood) are in the W part. The county has considerable acreage in hops, and there are numerous beet-sugar refineries. The Nottinghamshire-Derbyshire coal field is important. Gypsum is found in the county, and red molding sands (which are used in the iron foundries) are mined at Mansfield. Nottingham is the county seat and the center of industry, surrounded by numerous satellite towns. The county is a major pig-iron producer and important also in motorcar, lace, and knitwear manufactures. Area, 827 sq. mi.; pop. 841,083 (1951).

Noue (nõ), François de La. See La Noue, François de. Nougues (nõ.ges), Jean. b. at Bordeaux, France, April 25, 1876; d. at Paris, Aug. 28, 1932. French composer for the stage and films. Among his compositions are the operas Yanna (1897) and Le Roy du Papagey (1901); he also wrote ballets.

Nouméa (nõ.mě'a, -mā'a). Capital of the French colony of New Caledonia. It is situated at the extreme S end of the island and is the second largest town in the South Pacific. It is also the seat of the French high commissioner in the Pacific. Pan-American Airways uses the city as a base on its route to New Zealand. 10,466 (1946).

Noun (nõn), Cape. [Also: Cape Nun; Spanish, Cabo Noun.] Cape in Morocco, NW Africa, projecting into the Atlantic Ocean. It is situated at the boundary between French Morocco and Spanish Sahara.

Noureddin (nõ.red.dën'). See Nureddin.

Nourmahal (nõ.mā.hāl'). [Also, Nurmahāl.] Wife of the Mogul emperor Jehangir, who reigned from 1605 to 1627. Her name means "Light of the Palace." The story of his quarrel and reconciliation with her is told in Moore's poem The Light of the Harem. She was also called Nourjehan, or "Light of the World."

Nouronihar (nõ.ron.i.hār'). In William Beckford's Vathek, the daughter of Fakreddin, a mischievous girl with whom Vathek falls in love, and who accompanies him to the hall of Eblis.

Nourrit (nõ.rë), Adolphe. b. at Paris, March 3, 1802; d. at Naples, Italy, March 8, 1839. French tenor singer. He made his first appearance at Paris in 1821, and from 1826 to 1836 created all the first tenor parts at the Académie.

Nourritures terrestres (nõ.rë.tür.te.restr), Les. Essay (1893; Eng. trans., Fruits of the Earth, 1928) by André Gide. Written in lyric, ejaculatory prose, it preaches revolt against conventional morality and urges the full realization of all the potentialities of the individual.

Nourse (nërs), Elizabeth. b. at Cincinnati, 1860; d. in October, 1938. American painter, known for her group paintings of women and children. She was a member of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts. Among her principal works are Closed Shutters (Paris), First Communion (Cincinnati), and Happy Days (Detroit).

Nouveau (nõ.võ), Germain. b. at Pourrières, France, 1852; d. there, 1920. French religious poet; close friend of Verlaine and Rimbaud. A bohemian drawing teacher at Paris, he was converted to Catholicism (1877) by Verlaine's mother. He devoted the remainder of his life to incessant pilgrimages and to writing devotional poetry, none of which was published with his consent.

Nouveau-Québec (nõ.võ.kä.bek). See under Ungava.

Nouvelle Calédonie (nõ.vel.kä.lä.dõ.ne). French name of New Caledonia.

Nouvelle Héloïse (nõ.vel.ä.lõ.ëz), Julie ou la. Novel by Jean Jacques Rousseau, published in 1761. Told chiefly in the form of letters, it recounts the love of a noble young lady, Julie, for Saint-Preux, a man of low rank. A kind of afterpiece depicts Julie's married life with a respectable but prosaic freethinker, M. de Wolmar. Rousseau injects into the novel many of his social views.

Nouvelle Idole (nõ.vel.ë.dõl), La. Problem drama (1895) by François de Curel, in which a young scientist sacrifices both his own life and that of a young girl for the furtherance of scientific research.

Nouvelles Hébrides (nõ.vel.zä.brëd). French name of New Hebrides.

Nouzonville (nõ.zõn.vël). Town in N France, in the department of Ardennes, on the Meuse River ab. 5 mi. NE of Mézières. It is an industrial town, with steel mills and iron and copper foundries, and is a port on the Canal de l'Est. The town was damaged in World War II. 6,198 (1946).

Nova Acta Eruditorum (nõ.vä.ä.k'tä.ër'õ.di.tõ'rũm). See under Acta Eruditorum.

Novaesium (nõ.vë'zhi.ũm). Ancient name of Neuss.

Nova Friburgo (nõ.vä.frë.bõr'gõ). City in E Brazil, in the state of Rio de Janeiro; summer resort. 29,258 (1950).

Nova Gôa (nõ.vä.gõ'a). [Also: Gôa, New Goa, Pangim, Panjim.] Capital of the Portuguese possessions in India, near the mouth of the Mandavi River, ab. 250 mi. S of Bombay. Pop. ab. 14,000.

Nova Iguaçu (ë.gwä.sõ'). City in SE Brazil, in the state of Rio de Janeiro. 58,633 (1950).

Novák (nõ.väk), Arne. b. 1880; d. 1939. Czech critic and literary historian. He was educated at Prague and Berlin, became a lecturer at Charles University in 1906, and a professor at Masaryk University in 1920. He wrote many volumes of criticism and several monographs on Czech literary figures.

Novák, Vítězslav. b. at Kamenice, in Bohemia, Dec. 5, 1870—. Czech composer. After studies at Charles University, at Prague, he devoted himself to music, which he studied at the Prague Conservatory (where he was a professor after 1909). In his earlier years he was influenced by the whole range of European composition in the 19th century, but later he came to cultivate the folk tradition of Moravia. His works include chamber, orchestral, and operatic music.

Novaković (nô.vă'kô'vich). Stojan. b. at Šabac, in Serbia, 1842; d. at Niš, in Serbia, 1915. Serbian statesman and scholar. He served as minister at Constantinople (1886-91) and St. Petersburg (1899-1902), and as prime minister (1909) during the Bosnian annexation crisis. He wrote extensively in the field of Slavic, and particularly Serbian, literary history.

Nova Lima (nô.vă'le'mă). City in E Brazil, in the state of Minas Gerais, 17,686 (1950).

Novalis (nô.vă'lis). [Pseudonym of Georg Friedrich Philipp von Hardenberg.] b. on the paternal estate of Wiedertied, Mansfeld, Germany, May 2, 1772; d. at Weissenfeld, Germany, March 25, 1801. German lyric poet. He studied jurisprudence at Jena, Leipzig, and Wittenberg. In 1794 he received a subordinate judicial position at Tennstädt in Thuringia, which, however, he soon abandoned to take up mining engineering as offering more rapid advancement. He died at the age of 29. His lyric poems are both secular and religious. Hymnen an die Nacht are lyrics in prose evoked by the death of Sophie von Kühn, to whom he was engaged. A novel, Heinrich von Ofterdingen, is fragmentary. As a writer he belongs to the so-called older romantic school, of which he was the best lyric poet. His collected writings were published (1802) at Berlin in two volumes, to which were added a third (1846) and Eine Nachlese (1873). His correspondence with the Schlegels was published at Mainz in 1880.

Nova Lisboa (nô.vă'lezh.bô'să). [Also, Huambo.] City scheduled to become the capital of Angola, SW Africa, on the High Plateau ab. 266 mi. from the coast, on the Benguela Railway. Its climate is suitable for Europeans, and the location is central in regard to the areas suitable for European colonization.

Novara (nô.vă'ră). Province in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Piedmont. Capital, Novara; area, ab. 1,393 sq. mi.; pop. 395,730 (1936).

Novara. [Ancient name, Novaria (nô.vă'ră'a).] City and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Piedmont, capital of the province of Novara, ab. 30 mi. W of Milan. A railroad junction, it is the center of the Italian rice trade, with numerous rice mills; among its other industries the most important are chemicals and cotton and silk textiles. It is a center of the cheese trade (about four fifths of the total Italian production of Gorgonzola cheeses are marketed here), and there is also some grain trade. The city is rich in medieval monuments; the cathedral dates from the 11th century, although in its present form it is mainly a 19th-century reconstruction; the church of San Gaudenzio is of the 12th century, with Renaissance tower and interior; there are other Romanesque and Renaissance churches and a museum. A Celtic town in ancient times, it was second in importance only to Milan among the Lombard cities in the Middle Ages. The Swiss defeated the French here in 1513. The most famous battle of Novara is the one of March 23, 1848, when the Austrians under Radetzky defeated the Sardinians under Charles Albert, thus causing the latter's abdication in favor of his son Victor Emmanuel. Buildings of interest to tourists escaped damage in World War II. Pop. of commune, 62,570 (1936); of city, 52,269 (1936).

Novara Expedition. Austrian scientific expedition (1857-59) around the world in the frigate Novara.

Nova Scotia (nô.vă skô'shă). [Eng. trans., "New Scotland"; former name, Acadia.] Maritime province of the Dominion of Canada. It consists mainly of a peninsula bounded by the Bay of Fundy and New Brunswick on the NW, Northumberland Strait and the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the N, and the Atlantic Ocean on the E, S and SW. It includes Cape Breton Island, separated by the Gut of Canso from the peninsula. Its surface is generally undulating, and is traversed by several ranges of high hills. It has a long coast line. There are coal, gypsum, salt, and iron mines. The leading industries are fishing, agriculture, mining, and lumbering. About 30 percent of Canadian coal production is mined in the coalfields in the N and N central part of the province, and the chief Canadian center of pig-iron production in E Canada has developed in the Sydney area. Agriculture has specialized in livestock raising and dairy farming; apples are grown in the Annapolis-Cornwallis valley in the N central part of the province. The province has 18 counties. Government is administered by a lieutenant-governor and a legislative assembly (30 members). The province is represented in the Dominion Parliament by 10 senators and 13 members of the House of Commons. Nova Scotia was discovered by the Cabots in 1497. Unsuccessful attempts at settlement were made by the French under De Monts in 1604 and succeeding years. It was granted to Sir William Alexander in 1621, but was settled by the French later, forming part of Acadia. Nova Scotia baronets were created by Charles I. It was taken by England in 1654, given to France in 1667, and finally ceded to England in 1713. The French settlers (Acadians) were expelled in 1755. A constitution was granted in 1758. New Brunswick was separated from it in 1784; Cape Breton was separated from it in 1784, but the two were reunited in 1819. Nova Scotia joined the dominion in 1867. The port of Halifax, its capital, is the easternmost major port on the mainland and the major Canadian naval base. Area, 21,068 sq. mi. (including 325 sq. mi. of open water); pop. 642,584 (1951).

Nova Sofala (nô.vă sô.fă'la). See Sofala.

Novatian (nô.vă'shan). [Also, Novatus (nô.vă'tus).] fl. 3rd century. Roman presbyter. A schismatic and founder of the Novatian heresy, he had himself elected antipope in 251 after the death of Pope Fabian and the lawful election of Saint Cornelius. Within a few months he was rejected because of his heretical views denying the church authority to forgive the sin of idolatry by those who lapsed during persecution.

Novatians (nô.vă'shanz). In church history, a sect founded in the 3rd century by Novatian, or Novatus, a presbyter of Rome. Novatian denied that the church had power to absolve or restore to communion those who after Christian baptism had lapsed or fallen into idolatry in time of persecution; and his followers appear to have refused the grant of forgiveness to all grave post-baptismal sin, and denied the validity of Catholic baptism, considering themselves the true church. They assumed the name of Cathari, "the Pure," on the strength of their severity of discipline. In other respects they differed very little from the Catholics; and they were generally received back into communion on comparatively favorable terms. The sect continued until the 6th century.

Novato (nô.vă'tô). Unincorporated community in W California, ab. 30 mi. N of San Francisco, 3,496 (1950).

Novaya Sibir (nô.vă'ja sê.bēr'). Russian name of New Siberia.

Novaya Zemlya (nô.vă'ya zim'lyă'). Double island in the Arctic Ocean, situated N of European Russia and NW of Siberia, belonging to the Arkhangelsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic of the U.S.S.R. It is separated into two parts by a narrow channel, and is separated from the mainland by Kara Sea. The surface is elevated and mountainous, and the N island is mostly covered by permanent snow and ice. Novaya Zemlya is visited by hunters and fishermen. It was discovered by the English in the middle of the 16th century. Length, ab. 600 mi.; area, including adjacent small islands, ab. 31,900 sq. mi.; area of N island, ab. 18,600 sq. mi.; of S island, ab. 12,900 sq. mi.

Nova Zagora (nô.vă ză.gô'ră'). Town in SE Bulgaria, in the department of Stara Zagora, ab. 20 mi. E of Stara Zagora, 11,031 (1946).

Nova Zeelandia (nô.vă zē.lan'di.ă). Name given by the Dutch to their settlements on the Essequibo River, Guiana, in 1596.

Novel (nô.vəl). Character in Wycherley's comedy The Plain Dealer. He is a pert coxcomb "who, rather than not rail, will rail at the dead, whom none speak ill of; rather than not flatter, will flatter the poets of the age, whom none will flatter" (ii. 1).

Novellara (nó.vél.lá.rä). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Reggio nell'Emilia, N of Reggio nell'Emilia: agricultural commune. The Church of San Stefano and the Rocca escaped damage in World War II. Pop. of commune, 10,637 (1936); of town, 2,842 (1936).

Novello (nó.vél'lo), Clara Anastasia. b. June 10, 1818; d. March 12, 1908. English soprano singer; daughter of Vincent Novello. She studied at the Paris Conservatory in 1829, and made her first appearance at a concert in 1833. She went to Italy in 1839, studied at the stage, and made her first appearance in opera at Padua in 1841. She appeared in oratorio in England in 1851, and was even more acceptable in this than in the other two branches of her art. She ceased singing in public in 1860. Her Reminiscences, compiled by her daughter, were published in 1910.

Novello, Ivor. [Original name, Ivor Novello Davies.] b. at Cardiff, Wales, 1893 or 1894; d. at London, March 6, 1951. English actor, playwright, and composer. Associated as actor-manager with The Rial (1924); which he wrote in collaboration with Constance Collier and his own The Truth Game (1928), Symphony in Two Flats (1929), Murder in Mayfair (1934), Glamorous Night (1935), Careless Rapture (1936), Crest of the Wave (1937), and Ladies into Action (1939). After appearing (1929-31) in motion pictures in England, he came (1931) to Hollywood as a writer and actor. His musical compositions include the songs Keep the Home Fires Burning and We'll Gather Lilacs and the musical plays Tabs and The House That Jack Built.

Novello, Joseph Alfred. b. 1810; d. July 16, 1896. English music publisher; son of Vincent Novello. He opened an establishment as a regular publisher of music in 1829, later known as Novello, Ewer and Company, continuing the publications begun by his father, among them Purcell's Sacred Music. He introduced Mendelssohn's works to the English public, was prominent in furthering the interests of art and science, and also introduced a system of printing inexpensive music.

Novello, Vincent. b. at London, Sept. 6, 1781; d. at Nice, France, Aug. 9, 1861. English composer and musical editor. In 1811 he began to publish music from his private house. This was the origin of the firm known later as Novello, Ewer and Company.

Novelty Fashion (nov'él.ti fash'ón). Sir. See Fashion, Sir Novelty.

November (nó.vem'bér). Eleventh month of the year, containing 30 days.

Novempopulania (nó'vém.póp.ŭ.lá'ni.ä). See under Gascony.

Noverre (no.ver), Jean Georges. b. at Paris, April 29, 1727; d. at St.-Germain-en-Laye, France, Nov. 19, 1810. French dancing master, writer on dancing, and composer of ballets, noted for his improvements in the development of the ballet.

Noves (nov), Laure de. See Laura.

Nové Zámky (nó'vé zám'ki). [German, Neuhäusel; Hungarian, Ersekújvár.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Nitra, in S Slovakia, between Nitra and Komárno: an important railroad junction on the line from Bratislava to Budapest. It has hemp, flax, leather, and shoe industries. The Turks occupied the town from 1663 to 1685. Thereafter, until 1724, it was a border fortress against the Turks for the protection of that part of Hungary which had remained under Hapsburg influence. 19,121 (1947).

Novgorod (nóv'gór'et). Former guberniya (government) of Russia, surrounded by the former districts of St. Petersburg, Olonetz, Vologda, Yaroslavl, Tver, and Pskov. It contains the Valdai Hills in the S. The area is now in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, mostly incorporated in the Leningrad oblast (region).

Novgorod. City in the U.S.S.R., in the Leningrad oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, situated on the Volkhov River near Lake Ilmen, ab. 100 mi. S of Leningrad. It has food-processing and woodworking industries. The Cathedral of Saint Sophia, within the walls of the highly picturesque citadel, was built in the middle of the 11th century by workmen from Constantinople; and, despite several restorations, it retains in great measure its Byzantine character. The dimensions are 105 by 119 ft., and 161 ft. high to the apex of the central dome, which rests on eight quadrangular piers. There are four flanking domes, and a sixth dome over the sacristy. The cathedral abounds in tombs of artistic and historical interest, and in rich church furniture, the carved stalls of the altar and the metropolitan and the old bronze doors with reliefs being especially noteworthy. The iconostasis bears several fine old icons. Novgorod is one of the oldest cities of Russia. It invited the Varangians for Russian defense c862. In medieval times it was one of the largest cities of Russia and one of the leading commercial centers of Europe, and was the capital of an independent state. It was brought under the dominion of Moscow c1478, and was sacked by Ivan the Terrible in 1570. Since the inception of rail transportation its former commercial importance has been eclipsed by Leningrad, 46,000 (1937).

Novgorod, Principality of. Former principality in Russia, which lay around the city of Novgorod and was founded by Rurik the Varangian c862. It was thus the nucleus of the Russian monarchy. Under Rurik's successor the capital was transferred to Kiev. Novgorod continued as a "republican principality" with many privileges. Its territories included at its height Ingermannland, Karelia, part of Estonia and Livonia, Pern, Pechora, and large tracts in N Russia. It was subdued by Ivan III, grand prince of Moscow, and its existence as a separate commonwealth ended in 1478.

Novgorod-Seversk (-si.ver'sk), Principality of. Medieval principality of Russia. It was annexed by Moscow c1523.

Novgorod-Severski (-si.ver'ski). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 175 mi. NE of Kiev, situated on the Desna River, 8,516 (1935).

Novibazar (nó'vé.bä.zär'). See Novi Pazar.

Novicov (no.vé.kof), Jacques. b. in Russia, 1849; d. 1912. French sociologist and pacifist. He developed the thesis that struggle is a universal process, basic to the existence of society, but that nevertheless war and violence are not its necessary concomitants. His important works were Les Luttes entre sociétés humaines et leur phases successives (1893) and La Théorie organique des sociétés (1899).

Novi di Modena (nó'vé dē mó'dā.nä). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Modena, N of Modena: agricultural commune. Pop. of commune, 10,472 (1936); of town, 1,272 (1936).

Novikov (nó'vé.kof), Nikolai. b. in the government of Moscow, Russia, 1744; d. near Moscow, 1818. Russian journalist and promoter of education. He fell under government suspicion, was imprisoned by Catherine, and was not released till after her death.

Novikov-Priboy (nó'vé.kof.prē.boi'), Aleksey Silych. b. at Matveyevskoe, Tambov, Russia, March 12, 1877—r. Russian novelist and short-story writer. The life of the Russian seaman has been his special province. He served in the imperial navy and saw action in the Russo-Japanese War, which forms the subject of his best known work, the historical novel published in English under the title Tsushima (1936).

Novi Ligure (nó'vé lé'gō.rä). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Piedmont, in the province of Alessandria, ab. 14 mi. SE of Alessandria. It is a railroad junction and an important industrial and commercial center, manufacturing electric bulbs, metal products, textiles, and candies (torrone). It was successively under the rule of Genoa, Monferrato, Tortona, the Visconti family of Milan, France, and again Genoa and the Ligurian Republic, until it was incorporated into the kingdom of Sardinia in the 19th century. Here in 1799 the Russians and Austrians defeated the French under Joubert. Buildings of tourist interest were not damaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 21,157 (1936); of town, 17,251 (1936).

No Villain Need Be. Novel by Vardis Fisher, published in 1936. It is the final panel in the Vridar Hunter tetralogy.

Noviodunum (nó'vi.ō.dū.num). In ancient geography, a Latin name given to a town of the Bituriges, in C

Gaul (exact location unknown); also to what are now the French cities of Nevers, Noyon (also Noviodunum Veromandorum), and Soissons, and to what is now Nyon, Switzerland.

Noviomagus (nô.vi.om.ă.gus). In ancient geography, a Latin name given to Liseux and Noyon, France, to Nijmegen, Netherlands, to Speyer, Germany, and to a town of the Regni, in Britain, near Bromley, Kent.

Novi Pazar (nô.vě.pā.zăr'). [Also: Novibazar; Turkish, Yeni Bazar.] Sanjak (district) of the former Turkish vilayet of Üsküb (Skopje), comprising the valleys of the Raska and Lim rivers, both tributaries of the Drina. The district was occupied by Austro-Hungarian troops in 1878, but the S part was restored to Turkey in 1879, and the N part in 1908, after the annexation of Bosnia-Herzegovina. In the kingdom of Yugoslavia, the W part was incorporated into the banovina (province) of Zetska, the E part into the banovina of Moravska. Novi Pazar now belongs partly to the federative unit of Montenegro, partly to Serbia. The population is Serbian and Albanian; there is a Mohammedan minority.

Novi Pazar (nô.vě.pā.zăr') or Novibazar (nô.vi.bā.zăr'). [Turkish, Yeni Bazar.] Town in S central Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Serbia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Zetska, situated in a valley between Niš and Sarajevo. It is an important strategic and commercial point, connecting the federative units of Macedonia, Montenegro, and Bosnia-Herzegovina and the cities of Dubrovnik (Ragusa) and Niš. It flourished from the 15th to the 17th centuries, but declined afterward. Turks, Serbs, Austrians, Ragusans fought for the place, which has a Serbian majority and an Albanian minority. The city was occupied by Austrian troops in 1878, but was returned to Turkey in 1908. The Serbs occupied it during the first Balkan War (1912), the Austro-Hungarian forces during World War I (1915). It was incorporated into the kingdom of Yugoslavia in 1918 and was restored to the Federal People's Republic of Yugoslavia after the conclusion of World War II, 12,196 (1948).

Novi Sad (nô.vě.săd'). [German, Neusatz; Hungarian, Ujvidék.] City in N Yugoslavia, the capital of the region of Bačka in the autonomous province of Vojvodina, in the federative unit of Serbia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Dunavska, situated on the left bank of the Danube River, NW of Belgrade. It is in the center of the most fertile grain-growing region of Yugoslavia and one of the most important Danube ports. A railroad bridge on the Budapest-Belgrade line spans the river near the city, which is also a junction for several lines of local significance. There are silk mills, flour mills, distilleries, and canneries, and markets for grain, wine, fruit, and garden products. The city has a town hall, a Serb-Orthodox cathedral, a library, and a museum. Before World War I, the city was a center of Serbian nationalist organizations under the Hapsburg monarchy and also the seat of the Schwäbisch-Deutscher Kulturbund, an organization of Germans living in Hungary. The city was transferred from Hungarian to Yugoslav sovereignty after World War I, was given back to Hungary in 1941, and was restored to Yugoslavia after World War II, 77,127 (1948).

Novocherkassk (nô.vô.cher.kăsk'). [Also, Novo-Tcherkask.] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Rostov oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 23 mi. NE of Rostov. The making of alcohol and wines is important here, and there are also machine-building industries. It was founded by Cossacks in 1805, and has considerable trade, 81,286 (1939).

Novogorodievsk (nô.vô.gi.ôr.gi.yîsk'). Russian name of Međlin, Poland.

Novogrudok (nô.vô.grô.dok'). [Polish, Nowogródok.] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 75 mi. W of Minsk: food-processing center. The town was in Poland from 1919 until 1939, and passed to the U.S.S.R. in 1945. Pop. ab. 11,000.

Novo Minsk (nô.vô.měnsk'). Russian name of Mińsk Mazowiecki, Poland.

Novomoskovsk (nô.vô.mos.kôfsk'). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, on the Samara River ab. 17 mi. NE of Dnepropetrovsk: metal industries. 27,000 (1937).

Novoradomsk (nô.vô.ră.dômnsk). Russian name of Radomsko.

Novorossiisk (nô.vô.ro.sěsk'). City and seaport in the U.S.S.R., in the Krasnodar Territory of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, on the Black Sea: an important shipping port for grain, lumber, and cement. It is the largest center in the U.S.S.R. for the manufacture of cement, and also has machinery, meat-packing, and flour-milling industries. During World War II it was held by the Germans from September, 1942, until September, 1943, and suffered heavy damage. 95,280 (1939).

Novosibirsk (nô.vô.sě.běrsk'). Oblast (region) in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, centered around the Ob River in Siberia, ab. 900 mi. E of the Ural Mountains. Most of the N part is flat and swampy; the chief products of this area are forest products, and some cereals, flax, and dairy products. The C part of the oblast is traversed by the Trans-Siberian Railroad, and the C and S parts produce wheat, sunflowers, sugar beets, dairy products, and livestock. The oblast was subdivided in 1944 and thereby much reduced in area. Capital, Novosibirsk; area ab. 241,636 sq. mi. (1939), ab. 69,000 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 4,022,671 (1939).

Novosibirsk. City in U.S.S.R., capital of Novosibirsk oblast (region), on the Ob River and the Trans-Siberian Railroad: the chief city of Siberia, with manufactures of steel, cotton textiles, lumber and wood products, mining equipment, machinery, aircraft, flour, foodstuffs, and other products. The city is a major transportation center, at the junction of four rail lines; there are extensive railroad yards, and suburban growth has spread out from the old town on the E bank of the Ob, to new developments on the W side of the river. There are several educational and cultural institutions. The city developed originally in the 1890's as a railroad town, and has grown rapidly since. 405,539 (1939).

Novosibirskiy Ostrova (nô.vô.sě.běr'ski.ye os.tro.vă'). Russian name of the New Siberian Islands.

Novo-Tcherkask (nô.vô.cher.kăsk'). See Novocherkassk.

Novotna (nô.vô.tnă), Jarmila. b. at Prague, Sept. 23, 1909—. Czech operatic soprano. A member (1936 et seq.) of the Vienna Opera, she joined (1940) the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. Among the operas in which she has starred are La Traviata, The Magic Flute, The Barber of Seville, La Bohème, The Bartered Bride, Rigoletto, Tales of Hoffmann, and Madame Butterfly; her repertoire also includes the roles of Pamina, Cherubino, and Frasquita.

Novum Organum (nô.vum ôr.gă.num). Chief philosophical work of Francis Bacon, written in Latin, and published in 1620. In it he describes his new method of investigating nature.

Novy (nô.vi), Frederick George. b. at Chicago, Dec. 9, 1864—. American bacteriologist. He studied in Koch's laboratory at Berlin (1888) and at the Pasteur Institute at Paris (1897), and was professor of bacteriology (1902-35) at the University of Michigan.

Nový Jičín (nô.vě.yě.chén). [German, Neutitschein.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ostrava, in NE Moravia, SW of Ostrava. There are woolen, hat, and metal industries, 11,408 (1947).

Nový Margelan (nô.vě.măr.gelăn'). A former name of Pergana city.

Nowaczyski (nô.vă.chén'skě), Adolf. [Pseudonyms: Nowert, Przyjaciel.] b. near Kraków, Poland, 1876; d. 1944. Polish dramatist and critic. Author of many plays in which historical themes and figures are treated in unorthodox manner, including The Great Frederick (1907), Spring of Nations (1929), and Cæsar and Man (1937), in which a love interest between Lucrezia Borgia and Nicholas Copernicus is imagined. His last work was a semi-fictional reconstruction of the early life of Frédéric Chopin, The Youth of Chopin (1939).

Nowanagar or Nowanugur (nou.ă.nug'ar). See Navanagar, and also Jamnagar.

Nowa Ruda (nô.vă.rô.dă), [German, Neurode.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated near the Eulengebirge and the Czechoslovakian border, ab. 43 mi. SW of Wrocław (Breslau): coal mines; textile and pottery manufactures; printing establishments; breweries; live-fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; тн, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; stock markets. There are churches of the 16th and 18th centuries. The town came under the administration of Poland in 1945. Pop. 10,059 (1939), 11,342 (1946).

Nowa Sól (nó'vá sól'). [German, Neusalz.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Zielona Góra, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated on the Odra (Oder) River ab. 75 mi. SW of Wrocław (Breslau): river port; metal, textile, soap, and paper industries. In World War II, the town was occupied by the Russians on Feb. 15, 1945. It came under the administration of Poland in 1945. Pop. 17,326 (1939), 5,993 (1946).

Nowata (nó'wot'a). [Former name, Noweta.] City in NE Oklahoma, county seat of Nowata County, in an oil-producing region. 3,965 (1950).

Nowell (nó'el), Alexander. b. in Lancashire, England, c1507; d. in February, 1602. English ecclesiastic; brother of Robert Nowell. He was dean of Saint Paul's, and prolocutor of the convocation that met in January, 1563, with the object of church reform, when the articles were revised and reduced from 42 to 39. They became law in 1571. He compiled the Larger, Middle, and Small church catechisms, which were published separately in 1570 and 1572.

Nowell, Robert. b. in Lancashire, England, c1520; d. at Gray's Inn, London, Feb. 6, 1569. English lawyer; brother of Alexander Nowell. He is principally remembered for a fund which he established by his will for benefactions to the poor. His brothers and John Towneley were his executors, and left a list of the persons to whom money was paid. This list, which contains important facts regarding Edmund Spenser (who was one of the poor scholars benefited from time to time), was printed by Grosart in 1871.

Noweta (nó.wé'ta). Former name of Nowata, Okla.

No Wit, No Help like a Woman's. Comedy of intrigue by Thomas Middleton, acted in 1613-14. Shirley revived it, somewhat altered, in 1638 as No Wit to a Woman's. It was not printed till 1657.

Nowogard (nó.vó.gárt). [German, Naugard.] Town in NW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Szczecin, formerly in Pomerania, Germany, ab. 65 mi. NE of Stettin: agricultural industries and trade. It came under the administration of Poland in 1945. 8,148 (1939), 2,448 (1946).

Nowogródek (nó.vó.gró'dek). Polish name of Novogrudok.

Nowowiejski (nó.vó.vyá'ské), Feliks. b. at Barczewo (Wartembork), Poland, Feb. 7, 1877; d. at Poznań, Poland, Jan. 23, 1946. Polish composer. Among his compositions are the oratorios The Return of the Prodigal Son (1902) and Holy Cross (1908); he also composed operas, orchestral works, ballets, and sacred music.

Nowy Bytom (nó'vi bi'tóm). [German, Neubeuthen.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Katowice, W of Katowice: coal mines; metal industries. It passed to Poland after the plebiscite of 1920. Pop. 14,120 (1946).

Nowy Sącz (nó'vi sôncz'). [German, Neu-Sandez.] Town in S Poland, in the województwo (province) of Kraków, formerly in Galicia, Austria, situated on the Dunajec River, between the Carpathians and East Beskids, ab. 45 mi. SE of Kraków: railroad repair shops; textile, leather, chemical, metal, and lumber industries. 23,049 (1946).

Nox (noks). In Roman mythology, goddess and personification of night, identified with the Greek Nyx.

Nox, Owen. Pseudonym of Cory, Charles Barney.

Noy (noi), William. b. probably in Cornwall, England, 1577; d. Aug. 9, 1634. English jurist. He matriculated at Oxford (Exeter College) April 27, 1593, and studied law at Lincoln's Inn. He sat in Parliament from 1604 until his death. In October, 1631, he was appointed attorney general. After his death were published his On the Grounds and Maxims of the Laws of this Kingdom (1641) and The Compleat Lawyer (1651).

Noya (nó'ya). Town in NW Spain, in the province of La Coruña, on the Atlantic coast ab. 45 mi. S of La Coruña: seaport; fisheries, fish-salting plants; agricultural trade. 12,016 (1940).

Novaydes (nwá.yád). In French history, executions practiced during the Reign of Terror at Nantes toward the close of 1793 and the beginning of 1794. The prisoners, having been bound, were embarked in a vessel with a movable bottom, which was suddenly opened when the vessel reached the middle of the Loire, the condemned persons being thus precipitated into the water.

Noyers (nwá.yá), Jules Patenôtre des. Full name of Patenôtre, Jules.

Noyers de l'Altenburg (nwá.yá de lált.tán.börg), Les. Novel (1943) by André Malraux, written as the first volume of a projected trilogy, La Lutte avec l'Ange, in which the author proposed to reexamine the themes of his five previous novels. The project was later abandoned.

Noyes (noiz), Alfred. b. at Wolverhampton, Staffordshire, England, Sept. 16, 1880—. English poet. He studied at Oxford, followed the sea for a time, and then established his reputation as a writer. He was professor of modern English literature (1914-23) at Princeton University. Noyes is a professional poet, earning his living by writing poetry, and is therefore not inclined to experiment with forms not familiar to his public. His work is traditional and musical (some of it has been set to music by Samuel Coleridge-Taylor and Edward Elgar) and he has become, in his lifetime, one of the classic English poets. His works include The Poem of Years (1902), The Flower of Old Japan (1903), Poems (1904), The Forest of Wild Thyme (1905), Drake, an English Epic (1906), Forty Singing Seamen (1907), William Morris (1907), The Magic Casement (1908), The Golden Hynde (1908), Collected Poems (1910), Tales of the Mermaid Tavern (1913), and the trilogy The Torch Bearers (The Watchers of the Sky, 1922; The Book of the Earth, 1925; The Last Voyage, 1930). Best known among his single poems are The Highwayman and The Barrel Organ. He has also written short stories, novels, critical essays, and other works in prose. The Unknown God (1934) is the story of his becoming (1925) a Roman Catholic; his biography Voltaire (1936) was revised after objections from the Church.

Noyes, Arthur Amos. b. at Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 13, 1866; d. June 3, 1936. American chemist and educator, professor of theoretical chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of its research laboratory of physical chemistry. He was acting president (1907-09) of the Institute.

Noyes, Frank Brett. b. at Washington, D.C., July 7, 1863—. American editor and newspaper executive. He was president (1900-38) of the Associated Press.

Noyes, Harry Alfred. b. at Marlboro, Mass., July 7, 1890—. American research chemist. He was graduated (B.S., 1912; M.S., 1914) from the Massachusetts Agricultural College, was a research worker (1918-22) with the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research and research chemist (1923-32) for the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company, and since 1939 has been a consultant for food companies. An expert on frozen foodstuffs, he devised processes for yielding concentrates from frozen mixtures.

Noyes, Henry Drury. b. at New York, March 24, 1832; d. at Mount Washington, Mass., Nov. 12, 1900. American eye specialist. He was president (1879-84) of the American Ophthalmological Society and was the first president (1868-73) of the American Otolological Society. Author of A Treatise: Diseases of the Eye (1881), which later appeared as A Text-Book on the Diseases of the Eye (1890).

Noyes, John Humphrey. b. at Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 3, 1811; d. at Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, April 3, 1886. American social reformer and writer, noted as the founder of the Oneida Community. He was graduated (1830) from Dartmouth College and turned to the study of law at Chesterfield, N.H. A current religious revival led him to give up his studies in favor of a career in the ministry. He attended the Andover Theological Seminary and the Theological Department at Yale College, where he began to develop his perfectionist and adventist views. His beliefs led to his withdrawal (1834) from Yale and his dismissal from the free church. After a few years as an itinerant, he settled (1836) at Putney, Vt., where the "Bible School" attended by his family and friends developed into the group known as the Bible Communists dedicated to the doctrines of perfectionism. In 1837 he expressed his advocacy of free love; in 1838 he married Harriet A. Holton; in 1846 complex marriage was commenced on a community scale within the Putney circle of Noyes's followers. He was arrested on a charge of adultery, but fled to central New York, where together with other Bible Communists he founded (1848) the Oneida Community, which eventually became the most successful experiment among all of the American Utopian colonies. Its members adhered to the methods of scientific breeding and birth control specified by Noyes. In 1879 the Community abandoned its sexual habits and the members entered into legal marriages. Noyes emigrated to Canada to escape legal proceedings against him. Among his works are Bible Communism (1848), Male Continence (1848), History of American Socialisms (1870), Scientific Propagation (c1873), and Home Talks (1875).

Noyes, La Verne. b. at Genoa, N.Y., Jan. 7, 1849; d. at Chicago, July 24, 1919. American inventor and manufacturer. He patented (1878) a horse hay-fork and in 1879 founded a Chicago manufacturing plant for producing a wire dictionary-holder designed by him. He later took out patents on tractor wheels (1885), a harvester reel (1885), and a cord-knotter used in grain-binders (1889).

Noyes, William Albert. b. at Independence, Iowa, Nov. 6, 1857; d. at Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24, 1941. American chemist, professor of chemistry in the University of Illinois from 1907. He was professor of chemistry in the University of Tennessee (1883-86) and in Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Ind. (1886-1903), and was chemist of the U.S. Bureau of Standards (1903-07). He published Qualitative Analysis (1887), Organic Chemistry for the Laboratory (1897), Organic Chemistry (1903), and numerous scientific papers, and was editor of the journal of the American Chemical Society from 1902.

Noyon (nɔ.wɑ.vɔ̃n). [Latin, Noviodunum, Noviodunum Veromanduorum, Noviomagus.] Town in N France, in the department of Oise, on the Verre River ab. 58 mi. NE of Paris. The cathedral of Notre-Dame, built in the 12th and 13th centuries, shows the transition from the Romanesque style to the Gothic style. Charlemagne was crowned here in 768; Hugh Capet was chosen king here in 787. John Calvin was born at Noyon in 1509. The town was severely damaged in World War I and again in World War II. 6,160 (1946).

Nozu (nɔ.zɔ̃). Marquis Michitsura. b. in Satsuma, Japan, Nov. 30, 1840; d. at Tokyo, Oct. 16, 1908. Japanese field marshal, commander of the fourth army in the war with Russia. He fought in the Sino-Japanese War (1894-95), winning, at the head of the Hiroshima division, the battle of Pieng-an, and succeeding Yamagata in the command of the first army.

Nozze di Figaro (nɔt'sɑ̃ dɛ fɛ'gɑ̃.rɔ̃). Le. [English title, The Marriage of Figaro.] Opera buffa in two acts by Mozart, produced at Vienna on May 1, 1786. The libretto was adapted by Da Ponte from Le Mariage de Figaro by Beaumarchais. It was played at Paris with Beaumarchais's words as Le Mariage de Figaro in 1793, and as Les Nozes de Figaro, words by Barbier and Carré, in 1858.

Nquabe (ɛŋ.kwɑ̃'bɑ̃). Bantu-speaking people of the S Nguni group in S Africa, inhabiting E Cape of Good Hope province of the Union of South Africa, and resembling the Xhosa people in culture.

NRA. See National Recovery Administration.

NSRB. See National Security Resources Board.

Ntakima (ɛn.tɑ̃'kɛ.mɑ̃). [Also, Nta (ɛn.tɑ̃').] One of the Sudanic-speaking Guang peoples of W Africa, inhabiting C Gold Coast.

Ntinde (ɛn.tɛn'dɑ̃). [Also, Amantinde.] Subgroup of the Bantu-speaking Xhosa people of S Africa.

Ntum (ɛn.tɔm'). [French, Ntoum.] Subgroup of the Bantu-speaking Pangwe of C Africa, inhabiting SW Cameroun, N Río Muni, and the N part of the province of Gabon in French Equatorial Africa.

Ntwumuru (ɛn.twɔ'mɔ̃.rɔ̃). [Also, Nchumburu.] One of the Sudanic-speaking Guang peoples of W Africa, inhabiting E Gold Coast.

Nu (nɔ̃). See Nun.

Nuba (nɔ̃'bɑ̃). Sudanic-speaking people of NE Africa, inhabiting a mountainous region of the province of Kordofan in N Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. They are divided into numerous independent villages built on rocky hilltops, and display a remarkable linguistic diversification. Although it is an exaggeration to say that there are as many Nuba languages as there are hills, the languages of villages only a few miles apart may be mutually unintelligible.

The Nuba practice agriculture, using an implement resembling a spade, and their principal crop is millet. They are predominantly Negroid in physical type. The northern Nuba profess Mohammedanism.

Nubar Pasha (nɔ̃.bɑ̃r'pɑ̃ʃɑ̃). b. 1825; d. at Paris, Jan. 14, 1899. Egyptian statesman and diplomat. He served (1854) as ambassador at Vienna, minister of foreign affairs (1867-76) under Ismail Pasha, and premier (1878-79, 1884-88, and April, 1894-November, 1895).

Nubi (nɔ̃'bɛ̃). [Also: Barabra, Berabra, Berberine, Nubians.] Sudanic-speaking people of NE Africa, occupying the stretch between the first and third cataracts of the Nile in S Egypt and N Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. They are divided into four principal subgroups: the Dangala, Feyadicha, Kenuzi, and Maha. They are predominantly Caucasoid, although in both physical type and culture they are a blend of Egyptian, Beja, and Negro influences. They are Mohammedans.

Nubia (nɔ̃'bɪ.ɑ̃). Region of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in NE Africa, bounded by Egypt (from the neighborhood of Wadi Halfa) on the N, the Red Sea on the E, Eritrea on the S, and the desert on the W. It is not a political division. It was part of ancient Ethiopia, and was conquered (1820-22) by the forces of Mehemet Ali. It fell into the power of the Mahdi in 1883 and was the scene of English-Egyptian expeditions in 1883-85. The victories of the Anglo-Egyptian army under Kitchener (Dongola expedition, 1896, and Khartoum expedition, 1898) re-established the power of Egypt over Nubia. It is now mostly contained in Northern Province, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Nuble (nyɔ̃'bɪ.ɑ̃). Province in C Chile, bordering on Argentina. Capital, Chillán; area, 5,487 sq. mi.; pop. 218,490 (est. 1950).

Nuceria Alfaterna (nɔ̃.sɪr'ɪ.ɑ̃ al.fɑ̃.tɛr'nɑ̃). Ancient name of Nocera Inferiore.

Nü-chih (nɔ̃'chɛ̃) or Nü-chên (nɔ̃'chun'). See Jurchen. Nudd (nɔ̃rɪt). See Lud.

Nuddea (nɔ̃d'ɛ.ɑ̃). See Nadia.

Nueces (nɔ̃'ɛs). River in SW Texas which flows into Corpus Christi Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. Length, ab. 338 mi.

Nuer (nɔ̃'ɛr). [Also, Ikjany.] Nilotic-speaking people of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in NE Africa, inhabiting the S part of the province of Upper Nile, and a small portion of W Ethiopia. Their population is estimated at ab. 300,000 (by E. E. Evans-Pritchard, "The Nuer of the Southern Sudan," in African Political Systems, edited by M. Fortes and E. E. Evans-Pritchard, 3rd impression, 1948). They are divided into Gaajak, Gaajok, Luo, Lak, Gawaar, Bul, Dok, Leek, Thiang, Nyung, Gaagwang, Aak, Dor, Bor, Wot, Lang, and other independent subgroups. The Nuer have no true chiefs. They have exogamous patrilineal clans, and military age grades with initiation based on cicatrization of the forehead rather than circumcision. They practice herding and hoe agriculture, with the cattle complex, and their principal foods are milk and millet.

Nuestra Señora de la Asunción (nwɛs'trɑ̃ sɑ̃.nyɔ̃'rɑ̃ dɑ̃ lɑ̃.ɑ̃.sɔ̃n'yɔ̃n'). Original name of Asunción.

Nuestra Señora de los Dolores de Las Vegas (nwɛs'trɑ̃ sɑ̃.nyɔ̃'rɑ̃ dɑ̃ lɔ̃s dɔ̃.lɔ̃'rɛs dɑ̃ lɑ̃z bɑ̃'gɑ̃s). Former name of Las Vegas, N.M.

Nueva Andalucía (nwɑ̃'bɑ̃ ɑ̃n'dɑ̃.lɔ̃.sɛ̃.ɑ̃). District in NW South America ceded to Ojeda in 1508, and later to Heredia. It corresponded to the coast of Colombia from Cape Vela to the Gulf of Darien. Ancient and modern authors frequently confuse this name with Castilla del Oro.

Nueva Andalucía. Name given to the Amazon region in South America ceded to Francisco de Orellana in 1544.

Nueva Caceres (nwɑ̃'bɑ̃ kɑ̃.sɑ̃.rɑ̃s). Former name of Naga, Luzon, P.I.

Nueva Ecija (nwɑ̃'bɑ̃ ɑ̃.sɛ̃.ɑ̃). Province of the Philippine Islands, in C Luzon. It is bounded by Pangasinan and Nueva Vizcaya (separated by the Caraballos Sur) on the N, Tayabas (separated by the Sierra Madre) on the E, Bulacan and Pampanga on the S, and Pampanga Tarlac and Pangasinan on the W. Most of the province lies in the valley of C Luzon and is watered by many rivers. Tobacco, coffee, sugar cane, rice, and mangoes are among the products. Gold, copper, and gypsum are found, the first two in the S and C, the last in various parts of the province. Capital, Cabanatuan; area, ab. 2,120 sq. mi.; pop. 467,769 (1948).

Nueva España (nwā'bā es.pā'nyā). Spanish name of New Spain.

Nueva Esparta (nwā'bā es.pār'tā). State in NW Venezuela, consisting of several islands in the Caribbean Sea, known for pearl fishing. Separated (1901) from the former state of Guzmán Blanco, it is the smallest and most popular state in the country. Capital, La Asunción; area, 444 sq. mi.; pop., excluding forest Indians, 76,035 (1950).

Nueva Galicia (nwā'bā gā.lē'syā). Primary division of colonial New Spain, or Mexico, long known officially as Reino de Nueva Galicia ("Kingdom of New Galicia"). Its limits varied at different times, but during the greater part of the 17th and 18th centuries it corresponded nearly to the modern states of Jalisco, Aguascalientes, and Zacatecas, with a small part of San Luis Potosí; at an earlier period it also embraced for a time what are now Durango and Sinaloa. It was partly conquered in 1530 by Nuño de Guzmán. The audience (audiencia) of Guadalajara, created in 1548, had jurisdiction over Nueva Galicia, subject to appeal to the audience of Mexico. The governor, who was also president of the audience, was appointed by the king, but in military and treasury matters was subordinate to the viceroy of New Spain. In 1786 Nueva Galicia became the intendency of Guadalajara. After 1792 the Provincias Internas (Sonora, Sinaloa, Durango, Chihuahua, New Mexico, Coahuila, and Texas) were judicially subordinate to the audience of Guadalajara.

Nueva Granada (nwā'bā grā.nā'nyā). Spanish name of New Granada.

Nueva Rosita (nwā'bā rō.sē'tā). City in N Mexico, in Coahuila state, 25,551 (1940).

Nueva San Salvador (nwā'bā sán sāl.vā.thōr'). [Former name, Santa Tecla.] City in S El Salvador, capital of La Libertad department; balsam and coffee. 19,601 (1950).

Nueva Segovia (nwā'bā sā.gō'byā). Department in NW Nicaragua; minerals. Capital, Ocotal; area, 1,593 sq. mi.; pop. 26,975 (1950).

Nuevas Ordenanzas (nwā'bās ōr.tā.nānthās). See New Laws.

Nueva Toledo (nwā'bā tō.lā'thō). Official name of the territory in W South America granted to Diego Almagro in 1534. It corresponded nearly to N Chile, W Bolivia, and a small part of Peru. Disputes as to its boundary with the territory granted to Pizarro resulted in a civil war and the death of Almagro.

Nueva Valladolid (nwā'bā vā'yā.thō.lē'tr'). Colonial name of Comayagua, city.

Nueva Veracruz (nwā'bā bā.rā.krōs'). See Veracruz, city.

Nueva Vizcaya (nwā'bā bēs.kā'yā). Colonial division of New Spain, or Mexico, almost corresponding to the modern states of Durango, Chihuahua, Sinaloa, Sonora, and the S part of Coahuila. It was originally called Copala. Francisco de Ibarra, who conquered a part of it between 1560 and 1570, named it Reino de la Nueva Vizcaya, an appellation which it retained until after the independence. During the 17th and most of the 18th century the governor of Nueva Vizcaya was subordinate to the viceroy of Mexico only in military and treasury affairs. In 1777 this region was included in the Provincias Internas.

Nueva Vizcaya. [Also, Nueva Vizcaya.] Inland province in the Philippine Islands, in N central Luzon. It is bounded by Mountain Province on the N, Isabela on the NE, Tayabas on the E, Nueva Ecija on the S, and Pangasinan and Mountain Province on the W. The central valley, watered by the Magat and other rivers, is very fertile, and produces large crops of coffee. Capital, Bayombong; area, ab. 2,627 sq. mi.; pop. 82,718 (1948).

Nuevo de Julio (nwā'bā dā hō'l'yō). [Sometimes written 9 de Julio.] City in E central Argentina, in Buenos Aires province, ab. 120 mi. SW of Buenos Aires, 13,678 (1947).

Nuevitas (nwā.bē'tās). Port on the NE coast of Cuba, in Camagüey province; sugar and chromite, 11,303 (1943).

Nuevo Laredo (nwā'bō lā.rā'thō). City in NE Mexico, in Tamaulipas state, on the Rio Grande opposite Laredo, Tex.; cattle, cotton, and allied industries, 28,872 (1940).

Nuevo León (nwā'bō lā.ōn'). Division of colonial New Spain, or Mexico, corresponding to the present state of that name together with portions of San Luis Potosí and Tamaulipas. It was long known as the Nuevo Reino de León ("New Kingdom of León"). In 1786 it was attached to the intendency of San Luis Potosí.

Nuevo León. [Former name, Nuevo Reino de León (nwā'bō rā'nō dā lā.ōn').] State in NE Mexico, surrounded by the states of Coahuila, Tamaulipas, and San Luis Potosí. It was settled in the 16th century as a viceroyalty of Spain. Capital, Monterrey; area, 25,136 sq. mi.; pop. 743,297 (1950).

Nuevo Santander (nwā'bō sán.tān.der'). Division of colonial New Spain, or Mexico, almost corresponding to the modern state of Tamaulipas. Officially, until 1786, it was known as a colony.

Nufawa (nō.fā.wā). See Nupe.

Nufe (nō.fā). See Nupe.

Nuffield (nuff'eld), 1st Viscount. See Morris, William Richard.

Nugent (nū'jent), Baron. Title of Grenville, George Nugent.

Nugent, Elliott. b. at Dover, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1900—. American actor, director, and playwright. He starred in Without Love (1942), The Voice of the Turtle (1942-45), and other plays, and collaborated with James Thurber on The Male Animal (1940). Associated (1929 et seq.) with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as actor, scenarist, and director, he starred in such films as College Life, Not So Dumb, The Nervous Wreck, and Expressing Willie; directed The Cat and the Canary, Up in Arms, and other films.

Nugent, Sir George. b. in England, June 10, 1757; d. at Little Marlow, Berkshire, England, March 11, 1849. English soldier. He was educated at the military academy at Woolwich, served (1777-83) in the American Revolutionary War, and in Flanders under the Duke of York, and was made major general in 1796. He served in Ireland (1798), was made a baronet in 1806, became commander in chief in India in 1811, and was made field marshal in 1846.

Nugent, John Frost. b. at LaGrande, Ore., June 28, 1868; d. at Washington, D.C., Sept. 18, 1931. American legislator. He was admitted (1898) to the bar in Idaho, commenced his practice at Silver City, served as prosecuting attorney for Owyhee County, and settled at Boise, serving (1918-21) as a member of the U.S. Senate and as a member (1920-27) of the Federal Trade Commission, to which he was named toward the close of his term in the Senate. In 1907 he aided Clarence S. Darrow in defending William D. Haywood and other officials of the Western Federation of Miners, securing their acquittal on a charge of complicity in the murder of Frank Steunenberg, former governor of Idaho.

Nugent-Temple-Grenville (-tem'plēn'vil), George. See Grenville, George Nugent-Temple.

Nuginah (nug'ī.nā). See Nagina.

Nuhum (nō.hūm). Ustan. See under Khrasan.

Nuhuma (nō.hū.mā). See Nuruma.

Nuits (nwē). [Full name, Nuits-St.-Georges.] Town in E France, in the department of Côte-d'Or, on the Muzin River, ab. 14 mi. SW of Dijon. It is the commercial center of the famous wine-making region of the Côte de Nuits. It suffered some damage in World War II, 3,285 (1946).

Nuits, Les. [Eng. trans., "The Nights."] Four poems by Alfred de Musset, published in 1835-37. They were called Nuit de Mai, Nuit de Décembre, Nuit d'Août, and Nuit d'Octobre.

Nuits Blanches (nwē blānsh), Les. [Eng. trans., "Sleepless Nights."] Name given to a series of 18 pianoforte solos by Stephen Heller.

Nuits-St.-Georges (nwē.sān.shōrzh). Full name of Nuits, France.

Nuitter (nwē.tā). [Anagram of the surname of Charles Louis Étienne Truinet.] b. at Paris, 1828; d. 1899. French writer of vaudevilles and librettos, mostly for Offenbach's music.

Nuk (nōk). Native name of Godthaab.

Nukha (nō.nā). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Azerbaijan Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 170 mi. NW of Baku on the S slopes of the Caucasus Mountains; noted for its silk industry, 29,611 (1937).

Nukualofa (nō'kō.ā.ū'fā). Capital and chief port of the Tonga or Friendly Islands, in the S Pacific, situated on Tongatabu Island, in the S group of islands. It is ab. 2,000 mi. from Sydney and ab. 1,100 mi. from Auckland.

Nuku Hiva (nō'kō hē'vā). [Also, Nukuhiva.] Volcanic island of the Marquesas Islands, the largest island of the group. Formerly a well-populated island, it was almost depopulated in the 19th century. This island was claimed for the U.S. by a sea captain in 1813, but this was never ratified by the U.S. Senate, and the island was occupied by the French in the 1840's. Area, ab. 47 sq. mi.; pop. 737 (1946).

Nukus (nō.kō's). Town in U.S.S.R., capital of the Kara-Kalpak Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Uzbek Soviet Socialist Republic, C Asia: cotton-textile industry. It is situated near the Amu-Darya in the Khiva oasis. 5,000 (1935).

Nullification, Ordinance of. Ordinance passed by a State convention of South Carolina, Nov. 19, 1832, declaring void certain acts of the U.S. Congress levying duties and imposts on imports, and threatening that any attempt to enforce those acts, except through the courts in that state, would be followed by the secession of South Carolina from the Union. It was countered by the Force Act and was repealed by the state convention which met on March 16, 1833.

Numantia (nū.man'sha). In ancient geography, the capital of a Celtiberian people, the Arevaci, situated on the Douro River near what is now Soria. It was famous on account of its siege by the Romans, beginning in 134 B.C. It was taken and destroyed in 133.

Numantine War (nū.man.tin). War between the Romans and the Celtiberians of N central Spain, 143-133 B.C., ending in the destruction of Numantia in 133 B.C.

Numa Pompilius (nū.mā pom.pil'ius). According to the legends, the second king of Rome (715-673 B.C.). He was the reputed author or founder of many Roman institutions, including the pontifices, salii, flamens, fetiales, vestal virgins, worship of Terminus, and the temple of Janus.

Numazu (nō.mā.zō). City in S Honshu, Japan, a port on Suruga Bay ab. 70 mi. SW of Tokyo: fishing industry, tourist trade, and coastwise shipping trade. 101,976 (1950).

Number One. Novel by John Dos Passos, published in 1943. It is supposed to have been inspired by the career of Huey P. Long.

Numbers. Fourth book of the Old Testament; so called because it begins with an account of the numbering of the Israelites in the beginning of the second year after they left Egypt. It includes part of the history of the Israelites during their wanderings.

Numenius (nū.mē.ni.us). b. at Apamea, Syria; fl. in the second half of the 2nd century. Neo-Pythagorean philosopher, forerunner of Neoplatonism. His leading principle was the belief that Plato, who formed, as he thought, a sort of connecting bond between Pythagoras and Socrates, really preached in Greek form the revealed doctrines of Moses.

Numidianus (nū.mir.i.ā'nus), Marcus Aurelius. Roman emperor (conjointly with his brother Carinus) in 283 A.D. He accompanied his father, the emperor Carus, on an expedition against the Persians in 283, while Carinus remained behind as governor of the western provinces. The death of his father during the expedition elevated him and his brother to the throne. He died, however, while returning from the East.

Numidia (nū.mid'i.ā). In ancient geography, a country of N Africa, corresponding nearly to the modern Algeria. It was bounded by the Mediterranean on the N, the territory of Carthage on the E, the desert on the S, and Mauretania on the W. The peoples in the E and W were united in a kingdom under Masinissa. This was dismembered after the defeat of Jugurtha in 106 B.C., and the E part became a Roman province shortly after the death of its king Bocca in 46 B.C.

Numitor (nū.mi.tōr). In Roman legend, the grandfather of Romulus and Remus. Numitor was king of Alba Longa, was deposed by a younger brother, and was restored to his throne by the famous twins, who killed the uncle.

Nun (nōn). See also Oued Noun.

Nun. [Sometimes called the Nun Entrance of the Niger.] Chief mouth of the Niger River, W Africa, on the Gulf of Guinea coast of Nigeria.

Nun. [Also, Nu.] In Egyptian mythological cosmogony, the waters of chaos personified, the great primeval ocean from which all life was born. Later Nun was also regarded as the waters of the underworld into which the sun sank.

Nun, Cape. See Noun, Cape.

Nunc Dimittis (nunk di.mit'tis). Canticles of Simeon (Luke, ii, 29-32), so named from the first two words in the Latin version, "Nunc dimittis servum tuum, Domine . . . in pace." "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace". The Nunc Dimittis forms part of the private thanksgiving of the priest after the liturgy in the Greek Church, and is frequently sung by the choir after celebration of the Eucharist in Anglican churches. It forms part of the office of complin as used in the Roman Catholic Church. It is contained in the vesper office of the Greek Church, and is one of the canticles at evening prayer in the Anglican Church.

Nuneaton (nun.ē'ton). Municipal borough and market town in C England, in Warwickshire, situated on the Coventry Canal and the Warwickshire coal field, ab. 9 mi. N of Coventry, ab. 97 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a coal-mining center. Other industries include ribbon and woolen manufactures. 54,408 (1951).

Nun Entrance of the Niger (nōn; nī'jēr). See Nun.

Nunes (nō'nesh), Pedro. [Latin, Petrus Nonius.] b. at Alcácer do Sal, Portugal, 1492; d. at Coimbra, Portugal, 1577. Portuguese writer of works on navigation and mathematics. He was royal cosmographer from 1529, and chief cosmographer from 1547. He is regarded as the inventor of the loxodromic line.

Núñez (nō'nyēs), Ignacio. b. at Buenos Aires, July 30, 1793; d. there, Jan. 22, 1846. Argentine politician, journalist, and author. He served in the army, held various civil positions, and was imprisoned by Rosas. His best known works are Noticias de las Provincias Unidas del Río de la Plata (1825; French and English eds.) and Noticias historicas de la República Argentina (1857).

Núñez, Rafael. b. at Cartagena, Colombia, Sept. 28, 1825; d. there, Sept. 18, 1894. Colombian statesman, president (1879-82, 1884 & seq.) of Colombia. He was secretary of the treasury (1855-1857, 1861-62, 1878), and senator, and held other important civil offices. From 1865 to 1874 he resided in Europe.

Núñez de Arce (nō'nyeru dā ār'thā), Gaspar. [Called the "Spanish Tennyson."] b. at Valladolid, Spain, Aug. 6, 1834; d. at Madrid, June 9, 1903. Spanish poet. He was a graduate of the University of Toledo, was a deputy to the Cortes and minister of the colonies in the Sagasta cabinet of 1883-84, and was also president of the council of state of commerce and agriculture. In 1894 a national ovation was accorded him at Toledo. Among his poems are Gritos del Combate (Battle-cries, 1875), Ultima lamentacion de Lord Byron (1879), El Vértigo (1879), and La Vision de Fray Martin (1880); and among his plays are Como se empuja un Marido (1860), Ni tanto ni tan poco (1865), and El Haz de Leña.

Núñez de Haro y Peralta (nō'nyeru dā ār'ē ē pē.rāl'tā), Alonso. b. at Villagarcía, diocese of Cuenca, Spain, Oct. 31, 1729; d. in Mexico, May 26, 1800. Spanish prelate, archbishop of Mexico from 1772, and viceroy from May 8 to Aug. 16, 1787.

Núñez Vela (nō'nyez bā'lā), Blasco. b. at Ávila, Spain, c1490; killed in the battle of Anaquito, near Quito, Ecuador, Jan. 18, 1546. First viceroy of Peru. After holding various civil and military offices in Spain, he was appointed viceroy in 1543 with the special mission of promulgating the "New Laws." He reached Lima in March, 1544. Strong opposition to the New Laws was at once manifested, and a revolt broke out, headed by Gonzalo Pizarro. In September the viceroy killed the factor Suarez de Carbajal in an altercation, was arrested by the audience (audiencia), and was put in charge of one of the auditors, Alvarez, to be taken to Spain for trial. While still near the coast Alvarez released him; he landed at Tumbes and began to collect forces against Pizarro, but the latter forced him to retreat through Quito to Popayán. Reinforced there by Benalcázar and others, he returned as far as Quito, but was defeated by Pizarro.

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pūll; ʔn, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Nungesser (nên.zh̄.ser). Charles. b. 1892; d. 1927. French aviator. A lieutenant in the French aviation corps during World War I, he was one of France's leading aces, credited with destroying 43 enemy aircraft. Accompanied by François Coli, he took off (May 8, 1927) from Paris in the biplane White Bird, in an attempt to span the Atlantic; he was never heard from again.

Nunivak (nô.ni.vak). Island off the W coast of Alaska, in the Bering Sea. It is the site of no settled human habitation, and has sparse vegetation. Both reindeer and musk-ox have been introduced to the island in comparatively recent years, and it is hoped that the increase of game may lead to a greater human population. Length, ab. 55 mi.

Nunõ (nô.nõ). James. b. at San Juan de las Abadesas, Spain, Sept. 8, 1824; d. at New York, in July, 1908. Spanish composer and conductor. Sent (1851) to Cuba as military bandmaster to establish band music there; co-director of the National Conservatory at Mexico City; composer of the Mexican national anthem.

Nuño de Guzmán (nô.nyô dã gôth.măn'), Gonzalo. See Guzmán, Gonzalo Nuño de.

"Nun of Kent" (kent). See Barton, Elizabeth.

Nun's Priest's Tale, The. One of the Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. It is taken from the Roman du Renart and is the story of Chanticleer, who escaped from the jaws of the fox by his cunning in making the latter open his mouth to speak. It is modernized by Dryden as The Cock and the Fox.

Nuoro (nô.ô.rô). Province of Italy, on the island of Sardinia. Capital, Nuoro; area, ab. 2,808 sq. mi.; pop. 224,643 (1936).

Nuoro. Town and commune in Italy, on the island of Sardinia, the capital of the province of Nuoro, situated on an elevation between the Ôtiena and Sobogo rivers, ab. 75 mi. N of Cagliari; seat of a bishopric; has a cathedral and a castle. Pop. of commune, 11,459 (1936); of town, 10,820 (1936).

Nupe (nô.pâ). [Also: Nufawa, Nufe, Nyefe, Takpa.] Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting the valley of the Niger River and that of the Kaduna (a tributary of the Niger) in C Nigeria. Their population is estimated at ab. 350,000 (by S. F. Nadel, A Black Byzantium, 1942). They comprise 11 subgroups: the Bataci, Beni, Benu, Cekpa, Dibo, Ebogi, Ebe, Gbedye, Kupa, Kusopa, and Kyedye. With portions of the Gwari, Igbara, Yagba, and other neighboring peoples these subgroups were consolidated into a large kingdom subject to Gwandu, by conquering Fulani rulers, whose capital was at Bida. The Fulani constitute an elite upper class with many Hausa customs and with Islam as their religion. Clans are lacking, but outside the ruling elite they are exogamous patrilineal descent groups. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal foods are millet, sorghum ("guinea corn"), and yams.

Nun-pieds (nû.pyâ). Name given to Norman peasants (the term may be translated as the "Bare-footed") who in 1639 revolted at Avranches against heavy and unjust taxation. The rising was put down by Richelieu with relentless cruelty.

Nureddin (nô.red.dên'). [Also, Noureddin; full name, Malek-al-Ald Nureddin Mahmoud.] b. at Damascus, Syria, c1116; d. c1173. Sultan of Syria from c1145. He conquered Egypt and became its sultan, and defeated the Christian armies of the second Crusade.

Nuremberg (nûr.m.berg). [German, Nürnberg.] City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Middle and Upper Franconia, situated on the Pegnitz River and the Ludwigs Canal, ab. 92 mi. N of Munich. The second largest city of Bavaria, it was until the end of World War II its foremost industrial center. It was also the international center of the hops trade. Among the leading industries are the iron, steel, metal, machine, electrical, and optical industries; the manufacture of toys and musical instruments; the manufacture of pencils, of wooden articles, textiles, shoes and leather goods, and foodstuffs. There are several breweries. Architecturally, Nuremberg was remarkable for the complete preservation of the medieval appearance of the old town, which was surrounded by formidable walls and towers, promenades, numerous residential and industrial suburbs. Virtually all of this is now gone (it was destroyed both by air raids and by ground fighting at the end of World War II). Only a part of the huge 12th-century castle and the large 13th-15th century Gothic churches of Saint Sebald and Saint Lawrence still stand. The population declined 26.2 percent in the period 1939-46. Pop. 312,338 (1946), 362,459 (1950).

History. The city, first mentioned in the 11th century, received the privileges of an imperial free city through Emperor Frederick II in 1219; these privileges were renewed by subsequent emperors, giving Nuremberg an opportunity to develop institutions of municipal self-government, first dominated exclusively by the patrician families, later to be shared with the craft guilds. The turning point was marked by the guilds' revolt in 1348-49. The burgrave was held by the counts of Zollern (Hohen-zollern) from 1191; after the dynasty had acceded to the margrave of Brandenburg in 1247, they sold their rights to the city of Nuremberg, which subsequently acquired a large territory surrounding the city proper and perfected what was then considered to be the best public administration in Germany. The city flourished particularly in the 16th century; its commercial contacts stretched from Italy to the Netherlands, and from Burgundy and Lorraine to North Germany, Poland, and Hungary. Its arts and crafts were leading in Europe; its wealthy citizens were sponsors of the arts and sciences; many painters, sculptors, architects, poets, and scholars lived here. The Reformation was introduced in 1525; the religious peace of Nuremberg was concluded here in 1532. However, the Thirty Years' War shattered the prosperity of the city. In 1806 the city was incorporated into Bavaria. During the period of development of the Nazi movement in the 1920's and the period of Nazi political power in the 1930's and 1940's, Nuremberg assumed importance as the place where the annual party congresses were held. The city was entered by Allied troops on April 20, 1945, after heavy fighting.

Nuremberg, Peace of. Religious truce concluded between the emperor Charles V and the Protestants in 1532.

Nuremberg Trials. International trials for the prosecution of charges of war crimes and atrocities against major war leaders of the European Axis. These trials were the result of an agreement, signed on Aug. 8, 1945, by representatives of the U.S., Britain, France, and the U.S.S.R. at London to set up an international military tribunal for the prosecution of the major European war criminals. The tribunal opened on Nov. 20, 1945, at Nuremberg, Germany, heard the case of 24 top Nazi leaders, and passed sentence on Oct. 1, 1946. Twelve of the defendants, among them Goering, Keitel, Ribbentrop, and Rosenberg, received death sentences; three others, among them Hess, life imprisonment; others, like Speer, varying prison terms. Some, among them Hjalmar Schacht, were freed. In subsequent years 12 additional trials were held before a U.S. military tribunal at Nuremberg, in which, among others, leading German state secretaries, industrialists, generals, and judges were tried.

Nuri as-Said (nô.rê âs.â.ôd'). b. at Baghdad, 1888-—. Iraqi statesman. He served in the Turkish army until the outbreak of World War I and then joined the Allies, becoming chief of staff to Allenby in the Near East. In 1919 he was in Paris as adviser to the emir Feisal. He became chief of staff (1920) of the army of Iraq, and was minister of defense (1922-30) and minister of foreign affairs (1933-36, 1936-41). He sat in parliament (1924-33) and in the senate (1933 et seq.). He was premier of Iraq (1930-32, 1938-41, 1941-44, 1946-47, 1949) and chief of the Iraqi delegation to the United Nations general assembly in 1947.

Nurmahal (nôr.mâ.hâl'). See Nourmahal.

Nurmi (nôr.mi), Paavo Johannes. b. at Turku, Finland, June 13, 1897-—. Finnish athlete, who broke numerous long-distance running records and was an outstanding competitor at the Olympic Games during the 1920's. He won three first places in the 1924 games at Paris, also placing first at the games at Antwerp (1920) and Amsterdam (1928).

Nürnberg (nûr.m'berk). German name of Nuremberg.

"Nurse Nokes" (nêrs nôks). See Nokes, James.

Nursia (nêr'shâ). Ancient name of Norcia.

Nürtingen (nür'ting·ən). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Baden, American Zone, formerly in the Black Forest Kreis (district) of Württemberg, situated on the Neckar River ab. 13 mi. SE of Stuttgart. It has machine and metal, knitwear, leather, furniture, and ceramics industries, and an agricultural trade. (1921-1950).

Nur ud-din Abd-ur-Rahman (nō.rōd.dēn' ābd.ūr.rā'mān). See Jami.

Nuruma (nō.rō'mā). [Also: Norouma, Nuhuma.] One of the Sudanic-speaking Gurusi peoples of W Africa, inhabiting NE Ivory Coast, SW of Wagadugu. Their population is estimated at ab. 75,000 (by M. Delafosse, Haut-Sénégal-Niger, 1912). They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is millet. They are non-Mohammedan.

Nus (nūs), Eugène. b. at Châlon-sur-Saône, France, 1816; d. at Paris, Jan. 19, 1894. French dramatic author and journalist.

Nusaybin (nō.sī.bēn'). A modern name of Nisibis.

Nusku (nus'kō). In Assyro-Babylonian religion, the god of fire, both earthly and heavenly; hence also god of the sun.

Nut (nut). In Egyptian mythology, the sky goddess; mother of Osiris, the sun, and consort of Set, the earth. She was interpreted as a benevolent mother goddess and in this aspect was depicted as a cow, sometimes with Osiris riding on her back. As mother of the dead, she was painted life-size inside of coffins, and the dead were laid in her arms. She was also often depicted on Egyptian tombs in human form standing within a sycamore tree and pouring out an offering for the dead. As sky goddess she is represented with star-spangled body arched over the earth with only fingers and toes touching the edges of the world.

Nut-brown Maid, The. English ballad belonging to the end of the 15th century. Prior took it for the foundation of his Henry and Emma. The "nut-brown maid" proclaims her faithfulness to her lover, who tells her at the end of every second stanza that he is a banished man. By saying (at the end of the intervening stanza) "I love but you alone," her love and meekness prevail; and he consoles her in the end by saying

Thus have ye won an erles son,
An not a banysshed man.

This old ballad is preserved in Arnold's Chronicle, of which the earliest edition is thought to have been printed in 1521. The ballad is not known to exist at present in any more ancient form than that of the Chronicle. It is preserved also in Percy's Reliques of Ancient English Poetry. The language is that of the time in which it was printed.

Nutcracker Suite. [Original French title, Casse-Noisette.] Orchestral suite in six movements (Opus 71a) by Tchaikovsky, taken from his ballet of the same name, first performed at St. Petersburg on March 19, 1892.

Nutka (nōt'ka). See Nootka.

Nutley (nut'li). Town in NE New Jersey, in Essex County, ab. 5 mi. NE of Newark; manufacturing and residential community. 26,992 (1950).

"Nutmeg State." A nickname of Connecticut.

Nuts of Knowledge, The. Book of lyrical poems by Æ (George William Russell), published in 1903.

Nuttall (nut'tōl). Codex. See under Codex.

Nuttall, George Henry Falkiner. b. at San Francisco, July 5, 1862; d. at London, Dec. 16, 1937. American biologist who discovered (1892) the Bacillus aerogenes. He founded and edited the Journal of Hygiene (1901) and the Journal of Parasitology (1908); author of Hygienic Measures in Relation to Infectious Diseases (1893) and Blood Immunity and Blood Relationship (1904); collaborator on The Bacteriology of Diphtheria (1908).

Nuttall, Thomas. b. at Settle, Yorkshire, England, Jan. 5, 1786; d. at St. Helen's, Lancashire, England, Sept. 10, 1859. Anglo-American botanist and ornithologist. He lived in America from 1807 to 1842, and in 1822 was appointed curator of the botanical gardens of Harvard University. His works include Manual of the Ornithology of the United States and Canada (1832-34).

Nuttall, Zelia. b. at San Francisco, 1858; d. in Mexico, April 12, 1933. American archaeologist, expert on ancient and colonial Mexican history. Author of New Light on Drake (1914) and New Light on Ancient American Calendars (1926).

Nutten Island (nut'ən). Original name of Governors Island.

Nutting (nut'ing), Charles Cleveland. b. at Jacksonville, Ill., May 25, 1858; d. Jan. 23, 1927. American marine zoologist and ornithologist. He collected (1881-82) birds and antiquities in Costa Rica and Nicaragua for the Smithsonian Institution, and served (1886 et seq.) as professor of zoology and curator of the museum at the State University of Iowa. He subsequently went on marine zoological expeditions to the West Indies, Hawaii, New Zealand, and Fiji. Author of American Hydroids (1900-15) and Fiji-New Zealand Expedition (1924).

Nutting, Mary Olivia. [Pseudonym, Mary Barrett.] b. at Randolph Centre, Vt., July 1, 1831; d. 1910. American writer. She was a teacher (1853-70) and librarian (1870-1901) at Mount Holyoke College. Author of Steps in the Upward Way (1867), Our Summer at Hillsdale Farm (1867), and The Days of Prince Maurice (1894).

Nutting, Wallace. b. at Marlboro, Mass., Nov. 17, 1861; d. July 19, 1941. American antiquary, clergyman, and painter. He was ordained (1888) to the ministry, but later devoted himself (1905 et seq.) to landscape painting (and photography) and antique collecting. Author and illustrator of Old New England Pictures (1913), Furniture of the Pilgrim Century (1921-23), Vermont Beautiful (1922), Connecticut Beautiful (1923), The Clock Book (1924), New York Beautiful (1927), Furniture Treasury (3 vols., 1928, 1933), and Wallace Nutting's Autobiography (1936).

Nuuau Pali (nō.ō.ā'nō pā'le). Pass in the Koolau Range, Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, NE of Honolulu. The pass fronts upon a high volcanic cliff over which Kamehameha drove his enemies in a battle in 1795. A strong wind usually blows through the pass, because of the persistence of the NE trade winds. Elevation, ab. 1,200 ft.

Nwalungu (nwā.lōng'ō). [Also, Vanwalungu.] Central subgroup of the Tonga, a Bantu-speaking people of S Mozambique, in SE Africa. They include the Maluleke and Valoyi.

Nwanati (nwā.nā'tē). [Also, Vanwanati.] Central subgroup of the Tonga, a Bantu-speaking people of S Mozambique, in SE Africa. They include the Khambana and Bila.

NYA. See National Youth Administration.

Nyack (n'ak). Village in SE New York, in Rockland County, on the Hudson River ab. 25 mi. N of New York; residential community. It has boatbuilding and sewing-machine industries. 5,889 (1950).

Nyai (nyī). See Rozwi.

Nyakyusa (nyā.kū'sā). [Also, Wanyakusa.] Bantu-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting an area in SW Tanganyika just N of Nyasaland and NW of Lake Nyasa. Their population is estimated at ab. 100,000 (by G. Wilson). The Land Rights of Individuals Among the Nyakyusa, 1938). They are divided into nearly 100 tiny chiefdoms ruled by independent hereditary chiefs. Descent and succession are patrilineal. They practice agriculture, with hoes and digging sticks, and cattle herding, with the cattle complex. Plows have been introduced and are gradually being accepted.

Nyala (nyā'lā). Two small Bantu subgroups of the Kavirondo peoples of Kenya, in E Africa. One is known also as Kabaras, or Kabarasi; the other is known also as Kakalwa. Although both groups are known as Nyala, they deny any relationship.

Nyam-nyam (nyām'nyām'). See Zande.

Nyamwezi (nyām.wā'zē). [Also: Banyamwezi, Wanyamwezi, Nyamwezi.] Bantu-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting a large area W of Tanganyika between Lake Rukwa and Lake Victoria. Their population is estimated at 1,125,000 (by F. Spillig, Zeitschrift für Ethnologie, vol. 59, 1927). They are divided into more than 100 independent subgroups, of which the Sumbwa, Sukuma, Galaganze, Bilwana, Gala, Nyzzyimbe, Konongo, and Kimbu are among the most important. They have patrilineal clans, and they practice hoe agriculture and herding, with the cattle complex. Their principal crops are maize and sorghum.

Nyaneke (nyā.nā'kā). [Also: Banyaneke, Ovananyeka, Vanyaneke.] Bantu-speaking people of SW Angola, culturally related to the Mbo.

Nyangwe (nyāng'we). Village in E Belgian Congo, on the Luabala River; formerly an Arab settlement and the headquarters of Tippu Tib. The Arabs arrived there in 1866. It was conquered and occupied by Congo State forces in 1893.

Nyanja (nyānjā). [Also: Anyanja, Anyassa, Manganja, Njassa, Nyanya.] Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa, inhabiting S Nyasaland and adjoining portions of Mozambique. They were formerly ruled by a hereditary king whose domains extended from Lake Chilwa to the Luangwa River N of the Zambezi (i.e., to what is now the W border of Mozambique). However, this kingdom split up, under Yao, Kololo, and Ngoni invasions, into four independent subgroups under hereditary chiefs. Succession is based upon descent within their exogamous matrilineal clans. They practice hoe agriculture but lack cattle. Their principal foods are maize and millet.

Nyankole (nyāng.kō'lā). See Nkole.

Nyanymbe (nyā.nyām'bā). [Also, Wanyanyembe.] Central subgroup of the Nyanwezi, a Bantu-speaking people of E Africa. They inhabit W Tanganyika.

Nyasa or Nyassa (ni.ās'a, ni-). Lake. Lake in SE Africa, bordered on the W and S by the British protectorate of Nyasaland, on the E by Mozambique, and on the E and N by Tanganyika. It drains by means of the Shire River into the Zambezi River. It was discovered by Livingstone in 1859, and was circumnavigated by Young in 1875. Length, ab. 350 mi.; elevation, ab. 1,568 ft.; area, 11,000 sq. mi.

Nyasaland (ni.ās'a.land, ni-). [Official name, Nyasaland Protectorate; former name, British Central Africa Protectorate.] Region in SE Africa, W and S of Lake Nyasa, for some years under the influence of British missionaries and of the African Lakes Company. In 1891 it was proclaimed a British protectorate, and was known as British Central Africa. In 1907 it became formally Nyasaland Protectorate. It is divided into three provinces and 14 districts, and is administered by a governor, with an executive and a legislative council. Each province is under a provincial commissioner, and each district under a district commissioner. The protectorate is connected by rail with the port of Beira in Mozambique, and by road with points in Tanganyika and the Rhodesias. The principal exports are tobacco, coffee, tea, and cotton. Deposits of coal and bauxite are known to exist here, but have not yet been exploited. Capital, Zomba; area, 48,444 sq. mi., of which 37,000 sq. mi. are land; pop. 2,349,068, including 3,820 Europeans (est. 1950).

Nyassa (ni.ās'a, ni-). See Niassa.

Nyassa, Lake. See Nyassa, Lake.

Nyaya (nyā'yā). One of the six systems of Hindu philosophy. It was intended to furnish a correct method of inquiry into human knowledge and logic, including the process of reasoning and laws of thought. It begins by propounding 16 topics, enumerating the processes by which true knowledge is attained, and ends by indicating how deliverance from repeated births is to be attained.

Nyborg (nū'bōr). Seaport in S Denmark, in the amt (county) of Svendborg, on the island of Fyn, situated on the Great Belt. It was formerly one of the chief cities of Denmark. It was taken in 1658 by the Swedes, who were defeated near it in 1659. Pop. 9,559 (1945).

Nydek (nē'dek). See Nejdek.

Nydia (ni'di.ā). Blind girl in Edward Bulwer-Lytton's Last Days of Pompeii.

Nye (ni), Sir Archibald E. b. at Dublin, April 23, 1895—. British army officer. He was vice-chief (1941-46) of the imperial general staff, and high commissioner to India (1948-52) and to Canada (1952 et seq.).

Nye, Edgar Wilson. [Known as Bill Nye.] b. at Shirley, Me., Aug. 25, 1850; d. near Asheville, N.C., Feb. 22, 1896. American humorist. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and edited (1881-84) the Laramie Boomerang in the Wyoming Territory. He moved to the East in 1886 and in 1887 became a staff member of the New York World. He was popular as a lecturer (1885 et seq.). Author of Bill Nye and Boomerang (1881), Forty Liars and Other Lies (1882), and Baled Hay (1884), compilations of his newspaper sketches. With James Whitcomb Riley, he wrote Nye and Riley's Railway Guide (1888). His other works include Bill Nye's History of the United States (1894) and Bill Nye's History of England (1896).

Nye, Gerald P. b. at Hortonville, Wis., Dec. 19, 1892—. American publisher and politician. He settled (1919) at Cooperstown, N.D., and bought the Fryburg Pioneer. He was later editor and manager of the Griggs County Sentinel-Courier. He was appointed (1925) by the governor of North Dakota to fill an unexpired Senate term, and was elected to the seat in 1926, 1932, and 1938. Nye was a member of the committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil scandal and in 1934 headed the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee (Nye Committee), established to examine the manner in which the munitions industry was run. The findings of the group were sensational, if not unexpected; huge profits had been made during World War I and there were definite indications that close ties had been formed between American bankers and munitions manufacturers and the Allied governments before U.S. entry into the war. The outcry against the "merchants of death" was raised by many liberals, including such Progressives as Nye and Burton K. Wheeler. Nye sponsored the 1935 Neutrality Act, specifically limiting the possible customers of the U.S. munitions industry, and also legislation to limit profits in war materials. In the period preceding U.S. entry into World War II Nye was one of the most volatile of American isolationists, and in 1944, during the war, he was defeated for reelection.

Nye, James Warren. b. at De Ruyter, N.Y., June 10, 1814; d. at White Plains, N.Y., Dec. 25, 1876. American politician. He practiced law at Hamilton, N.Y., serving as surrogate (1844-47) of Madison County and judge (1847-51) of the county court, and settled (1851) at Syracuse, where he was named (1857) a police commissioner. He served (1861-64) as governor of the Nevada Territory and in 1864 was named to the U.S. Senate, where he served until 1873.

Nye Committee. See under Nye, Gerald P.

Nyefe (nyē'fā). See Nupe.

Nyerup (nyē'rūp), Rasmus. b. in Fyn, Denmark, March 12, 1759; d. June 28, 1829. Danish scholar and literary historian. He published, with Rahbek and Abrahamson, Selected Danish Songs from the Middle Ages (1812-14) and other works on Danish literature.

Nygaardsovdal (nū'gōrs.vōl), Johan. b. at Hommelvik, Norway, Sept. 6, 1879; d. 1952. Norwegian statesman, premier of Norway during World War II. A Labor Party member of the Storting (parliament) from 1916, he was elected (1928) vice-president of the Storting, was president (1929-33) of the Lagting (one of the houses of the Storting), and served (1934-35) as president of the Storting. He became (March 20, 1935) premier, headed the government during its exile to London (1940-45) after the German invasion of Norway, and resigned (June 25, 1945) the premiership after the government returned to Norway. He also held the ministries of agriculture (1928) and of labor (1935-39). He worked (1901-07) in the U.S., as a railroad construction hand and on other jobs.

Nyifwa (nyē'fwā). See Luo.

Nyika (nyē'kā). See also Manyika.

Nyika. [Also: Nika, Wanyika.] Swahili name for a group of nine separate Bantu-speaking peoples of SE Kenya and NE Tanganyika, in E Africa: the Digo, Duruma, Rabai, Rihe, Chonyi, Kambe, Kauma, and Jibana. Their combined population has been estimated at ab. 225,000 (by I. Schapera, Some Problems in Anthropological Research in Kenya Colony, 1949). Centralized political authority is lacking in all nine groups.

Nyiregyháza (nyē'redy'hā'zō). City in NE Hungary, between Debrecen and Sátoraljaújhely. It is a trade center for the surrounding agricultural district and has metal, furniture, and cement industries. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishopric. The museum contains archaeological collections. 55,499 (1948).

Nyíró (nyē'rō), József. b. at Székelyszombor, Hungary, 1889—. Hungarian novelist, from Transylvania. His subjects are mainly taken from székely (Transylvanian) or peasant life. Author of Isten igjában (1932), Az én népem (My People, 1935), and Székelyek (1936).

Nyitra (nyē'tró). Hungarian name of Nitra.

Nyköbing (nū'kē'bing). [Also, Nykjöbing.] Town in Denmark, on the island of Falster, in the amt (county) of Maribo, SW of Copenhagen. It has a harbor, sugar refineries, machine and tobacco manufactures, and meat and dairy industries. It is the seat of a Lutheran bishopric. 16,097 (1945).

Nyköping (nū'ché'ping). Town in S Sweden, capital of the län (county) of Södermanland, situated on the Nyköping Bay, an inlet of the Baltic Sea, ab. 55 mi. SW of Stockholm. It is a seaport, and has textile mills, sawmills, and furniture factories. The town was burned down by the Russians in 1665 and 1719. Pop. 20,477 (1950).

Nyland (nū'land). Swedish name of Uusimaa.

Nym (nim). Character in Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor. He is a thief and sharper, the companion of Falstaff; "an amusing creature of whimsey." He also appears with Pistol and Bardolph in Henry V.

Nymburk (nim'bürk). [German, Nimburg.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Praha, in C Bohemia, situated on the Labe (Elbe) River between Brandýs nad Labem and Kolín, ab. 27 mi. E of Prague. It is an agricultural trade center, and has railway workshops, a sugar refinery, and a Gothic church built in 1343. Pop. 11,442 (1947).

Nymegen (ni'mā'chen). See Nijmegen.

Nymphidia (nim.fid'ia). Fairy poem by Michael Drayton, published in 1627.

Nymyllany (ni.mi.lä'ni). See Koryak.

Nyon (nyōh). [Latin, Noviodunum.] Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Vaud, on the Lake of Geneva. It has an ancient castle. 5,326 (1941).

Nyore (nyō'rā). [Also, Bunyore.] Bantu subgroup of the Kavirondo peoples of Kenya, in E Africa. Their population is estimated at ab. 30,000 (by G. Wagner, The Bantu of North Kavirondo, 1949).

Nyoro (nyō'rō). [Also: Bakitara, Banyoro, Kitara, Kitawara, Wanyoro.] Bantu-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting Nyoro district E of Lake Albert in E Uganda. Their population is said to be ab. 240,000. To the Ganda they are known as Banyoro; they call themselves Bakitara, from the former legendary empire of the Hima. Political authority is centralized in an autocratic king whose appointees rule the kingdom's ten districts. The royal family and most district chiefs belong to an aristocratic class of nomadic cattle herders known as Hima, who share the cattle complex, and whose principal food is milk. Beneath them is a peasant class of artisans and farmers known as Hera who practice hoe agriculture, and whose principal food is millet. A third class of intermediate status, which combines farming and herding, has appeared; this class is known as Nyoro and is composed of freemen who have been raised from the status of serfs because of their wealth or importance. Class membership is determined by birth into one of the 46 patrilineal clans, which are divided between the three classes, and which are strictly exogamous outside the royal family. Marriages between aristocrats and serfs are avoided, but both may marry into the new middle class. There are no age grades, and circumcision is not practiced, but boys are initiated into adult status by the extraction of six lower front teeth.

Nyrop (nū'rōp), Kristoffer. b. at Copenhagen, Jan. 11, 1858; d. there, April 13, 1930. Danish philologist specializing in the Romance languages. He wrote Grammaire historique de la langue française (6 vols., 1899-1930) and others.

Nyrop, Martin. b. in Denmark, Nov. 11, 1849; d. at Copenhagen, May 18, 1921. Danish architect. He was professor and director of the Academy at Copenhagen. Among structures designed by him are the city hall, the Elias Church, and the Bispebjerg Hospital at Copenhagen.

Nysa (ni'sā). In ancient geography, the birthplace of Bacchus. Of the cities so named the chief was in Caria, Asia Minor, ab. 45 mi. E of Ephesus.

Nysa (ni'sā). [German, Neisse.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Opole, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated on the Nysa River, ab. 46 mi. SE of Wrocław (Breslau). Since World War II it has had metal manufactures, especially of parts for industrial machines, and of metal furniture. There is a large airport. Nysa was founded by German settlers in the 13th century, fortified in the 14th century, withstood a Hussite siege in 1428, and was occupied successively by the Saxons, Danes, and Swedes during the Thirty Years' War. It was conquered by Frederick II of Prussia in 1741, and unsuccessfully besieged by the Austrians in 1758; it was taken by the French in 1807. It came under the administration of Poland in 1945. Pop. 37,859 (1939), 11,559 (1946).

Nysa (ni'sā). Asteroid (No. 44) discovered by Goldschmidt at Paris, May 27, 1857.

Nysa Łużycka (ni'sā lō.zhitz'kā). Polish name of the Neisse, Silesia.

Nysa River (ni'sā). [Also: Nysa Kłodzka (klōts'kā); German, Neisse, Glatzer Neisse.] River in Silesia, in territory which has been since 1945 under Polish control. The river rises in what is now W Czechoslovakia, and flows generally NE to join the Oder near Brzeg. The Nysa should not be confused with another Silesian river of the same name (or Nysa Łużycka) in Polish, but still usually referred to by the German form Neisse, which has since 1945 formed part of the German-Polish border. Length, ab. 120 mi.

Nyslott (ni'slōt). Swedish name of Savonlinna.

Nyssa (ni'sā). Town in E Oregon, on the Snake River. It is a trade center for an irrigated farming district, and has a beet-sugar refinery. 2,525 (1950).

Nystad (ni'stād). Swedish name of Uusikaupunki.

Nystad, Peace of. Peace negotiated in 1721 between Russia and Sweden, ending the Northern War. Sweden ceded Livonia, Estonia, Ingria, part of Karelia, and other possessions, and Russia restored Finland.

Nyungwe (nūng'we). See Chikunda.

Nyvel (ni'vel). Finnish name of Nivelles.

Nyx (niks). In Greek mythology, the goddess of night, a very ancient cosmological personification. She was even revered and feared by Zeus, whom she instructed. She had little or no cult worship, but was revered for her oracular powers, which were manifest from a cave.

Nzima (nē.zē'mā). [Also: Apollonians, Zema.] One of the Sudanic-speaking Akan peoples of W Africa, inhabiting SW Gold Coast, E of Axim.

O' (ō). [Irish, Ó.] Prefix attached to Irish surnames, meaning "grandson" or "descendant," and always followed (in Irish) by the genitive form of the original given name (whence, logically, there should be no apostrophe).

Oadby (ōd'bi). Urban district in C England, in Leicester-shire, ab. 4 mi. SE of Leicester, ab. 95 mi. N of London: manufactures of boots and shoes. 6,206 (1951).

Oahu (wā'hō). Island of the Hawaiian Islands, the third largest, but by far the most populous and highly developed of the group. It contains two chief mountain groups, the Koolau Range NE of Honolulu, and the Waianae Range in the W; between them is a low plateau sloping gradually to the coastal lowlands on either side. There are extensive plantations of sugar and pineapples.

Honolulu is the chief city, and a major center for shipping and air transport in the mid-Pacific. Oahu has numerous military installations of the U.S., the most noted of which are Pearl Harbor, Hickam Field, Schofield Barracks, and Kaneohe Bay. The Japanese bombing attack on these centers (Dec. 7, 1941) led to the entry of the U.S. into World War II. Area, 589 sq. mi.; pop. 353,020 (1950).

Oajaca (wā.hā'kā). See Oaxaca.

Oak Bluffs (ōk). Town in SE Massachusetts, in Dukes County, in Martha's Vineyard on Nantucket Sound: a summer resort. 1,521 (1950).

Oakboys (ōk'boiz). In Irish history, a body of insurgents in the north of Ireland in the year 1763. They are said to have risen in resistance to an act which required householders to give personal labor on the roads. Another of their grievances was the resumption by some of the clergy of a stricter exaction of tithes. The movement was soon repressed. The Oakboys received their name from oak sprays which they wore in their hats.

Oak Creek. Former name of South Milwaukee.

Oakdale (ôk'dāl). City in C California, in Stanislaus County, E of San Francisco, in an almond-growing and dairying region. 4,064 (1950).

Oakdale. City in S Louisiana, in Allen Parish, in a farming and lumbering region. 5,598 (1950).

Oakeley (ôk'li). Sir Charles. b. at Forton, England, 1751; d. at Lichfield, England, 1826. English colonial administrator, governor of Madras (1790-95).

Oakeley, Sir Herbert Stanley. b. July 22, 1830; d. Oct. 26, 1903. English composer and organizer. He was professor of music (1865-91) at the University of Edinburgh.

Oakengates (ô'ken-gâtes). Urban district, market town, and manufacturing center in W England, in Shropshire, ab. 13 mi. E of Shrewsbury, ab. 140 mi. NW of London by rail. It is the largest industrial center in Shropshire, with iron and steel works, and machinery manufactures. 11,659 (1951).

Oakes (ôks), George Washington. [Original surname, Ochs.] b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 27, 1861; d. Oct. 26, 1931. American newspaper editor; brother of Adolph Simon Ochs and Milton Barlow Ochs. He became a reporter on the Chattanooga Daily Times, of which his brother was the owner, and was named managing editor in 1884. In 1896, upon the purchase of the New York Times by his brother, he became general manager of that paper and then (1901) of the Philadelphia Times, becoming its publisher when it was merged with the Public Ledger. He secured legal change of his name in World War I (the name Ochs is of German origin, and Oakes was during the war an outspoken opponent of virtually all things that could be linked to Germany).

Oakes, Urian. b. probably at London, c1631; d. July 25, 1681. American colonial poet and clergyman, president (1679-80) of Harvard College.

Oakham (ô'kam). Urban district and market town in C England, county seat of Rutlandshire, ab. 17 mi. E of Leicester, ab. 94 mi. N of London by rail. It has a old castle. 3,537 (1951).

Oak Hill. City in S West Virginia, in Fayette County, trading center for a coal-mining area. Settled in 1820, it was incorporated in 1905. Pop. 4,518 (1951).

Oak Knoll. Town in N Texas, NE of Fort Worth; residential suburb. 3,930 (1950).

Oakland (ôk'land). City in C California, county seat of Alameda County, on the E shore of San Francisco Bay, opposite San Francisco; third largest city in the state. It is linked to San Francisco by ferry and by the San Francisco Bay Bridge. Oakland is the principal commercial center on the E shore of the Bay and has numerous industries including shipyards, and automobile-assembly, machinery, canning, meat-packing, chemical, furniture, metal, lumber, and calculating-machine industries. It is a major port and rail terminus, and has an airport and military supply depots. Oakland is the seat of Mills College and the College of the Holy Names. It has a number of parks, and art galleries and museums. 302,163 (1940), 384,575 (1950).

Oakland. Town in SW Maine, in Kennebec County. 2,679 (1950).

Oakland City. Town in SW Indiana, in Gibson County, near Evansville; seat of Oakland City College. 3,539 (1950).

Oak Lawn. Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County; a southwestern suburb of Chicago. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 3,483 (1940), 8,751 (1950).

Oakley (ôk'li), Annie. [Original name, Phoebe Anne Oakley Moeze.] b. in Patterson township, Ohio, Aug. 13, 1860; d. at Greenville, Ohio, Nov. 3, 1926. American marksman, noted for her feats with the rifle and shotgun. Born in a log cabin, she early learned how to shoot and subsequently married a performing marksman, Frank E. Butler, in whose act she became the main feature. She became a star after joining (1885) Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, of which she was a leading attraction for some 17 years. Her outstanding marksmanship is commemorated by the term, "Annie Oakley," used to indicate complimentary tickets whose punch marks are associated with the manner in which Annie Oakley performed a playing card thrown into the air. Despite a severe injury sustained in a railroad accident in 1931, she continued her career as a performer for almost 20 years afterward.

Oakley, Mrs. The "jealous wife" in George Colman the elder's play of that name.

Oakley, Violet. b. at Jersey City, N.J., 1874-. American mural painter. She decorated the governor's reception room at the state capitol at Harrisburg, Pa., with a series of paintings entitled The Founding of the State of Liberty Spiritual, and did a series in the senate chamber entitled Creation and Preservation of the Union. She is a member of the National Academy of Design. Besides her painting, which includes decorations for numerous public buildings, she has produced books such as The Holy Experiment (1922) and Law Triumphant (1932).

Oaklyn (ôk'lin). Borough in S New Jersey, in Camden County, near Camden; residential community. 4,889 (1950).

Oakmont (ôk'mont). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Allegheny County, near the Allegheny River, near Pittsburgh; manufactures of railway cars, automobile parts, metal furniture, paints, and varnishes. 7,264 (1950).

Oak Openings; or, The Bee-Hunter. The. Novel by James Fenimore Cooper, published in 1848.

Oak Park. Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County, ab. 8½ mi. W of downtown Chicago; residential suburb of Chicago. It has many houses designed by Frank Lloyd Wright during his early period. It was incorporated in 1902 and is the largest village in the U.S. 63,529 (1950).

Oak Park. City in SE Michigan, N of Detroit; residential suburb. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 1,169 (1940) to 5,267 (1950).

Oak Ridge. Unincorporated community in E Tennessee, in Anderson County, ab. 20 mi. W of Knoxville. It is the site of installations for the production of uranium 235, developed (1942 et seq.) by the U.S. government as part of its atomic energy program. Uranium for the world's first two atom bombs was separated here. A leading source of radioactive isotopes, it is the site of the American Museum of Atomic Energy, the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, and the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. 30,229 (1950).

Oakville (ôk'vil). Unincorporated community in W Connecticut, in Litchfield County, near Waterbury. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 4,229 (1940).

Oakville. Residential town in Ontario, Canada, a few miles inland from the N shore of Lake Ontario, ab. 23 mi. W of Toronto. 6,910 (1951).

Oakwood (ôk'wud). City in SW Ohio, in Montgomery County, near Dayton. 9,691 (1950).

Oamaru (ôm'arô). Seaport in New Zealand, on the E coast of South Island, ab. 130 mi. SW of Christchurch. Near the town is a large hydroelectric project. 7,610 (est. 1941).

Oannes (ô'an'es). In Babylonian mythology, the water god, depicted as having the body of a fish and the head and feet of a man. He appeared out of the Persian Gulf and taught the Babylonians letters, science, and all the arts of their civilization. He was also a fertility god and medicine god, and is identified with Ea of the cuneiform inscriptions.

Oasis Sahariennes (ô.sâ.z'is shâ.r'yen). [Also: Territory of the Oases, Saharan Oases.] One of the Territoires du Sud of Algeria, NW Africa. It is bounded by Libya on the E, the French territories of Niger and French Sudan on the S, French Sudan and the Ain-Sofra territory on the W, and the Touggourt and Ghadafia territories on the N. This territory includes the Ahaggar highland and several oases in the Sahara desert. The chief town and administrative center is Ouargla. Area, ab. 412,000 sq. mi.; pop. 39,575 (1936).

Oastler (ôst'ler), Richard. b. at Leeds, England, Dec. 20, 1789; d. at Harrogate, Yorkshire, England, Aug. 22, 1861.

English reformer. His activities in behalf of better working conditions for children in factories were initiated through a visit with a manufacturer at Bradford, who had introduced many reforms in his own factory and told Oastler of the bad conditions in others. He wrote (1830) to the Leeds Mercury a letter called "Yorkshire Slavery," and in another letter (Oct. 20, 1831) to the Leeds Intelligencer, he indicated that a ten-hour working day was the remedy for these evils. He organized (April 24, 1832) the meeting known as the "pilgrimage of mercy" to Yorkshire in agitation for the ten hours bill. He wrote (1835) many articles in popular journals on the ten-hour project, and also agitated against the new poor law and the Poor Law Commission. His imprisonment (1840) for debt was the occasion for the organization of many Oastler committees, holding Oastler Festivals to obtain contributions to the Oastler Liberation Fund. After his release (1844) he was active in agitating for the ten hours bill, which became law in 1847.

O Ateneu (õ ä.tɛ.nə'õ). Autobiographical novel (1888) which depicts life in a boarding school, by the Brazilian Raul Pompéia (1863-1895).

Oates (õts). Titus. b. at Oakham, 1649; d. at London, July 12, 1705. English impostor. He studied at Cambridge, and took orders in the Anglican Church, but was deprived of his living for bad conduct. He was expelled from a chaplaincy in the navy as well before he fell in with Israel Tonge, a London clergyman obsessed with the idea that there was a Jesuit conspiracy to take over England. Oates pretended to become a Roman Catholic convert, was accepted in and then thrown out of the Jesuit College of Valladolid, and entered the college at St. Omer, whence he was ejected for bad conduct in 1678. He and Tonge then fabricated a series of documents, based on out-and-out lies or on distortions of truth, purporting to outline a plot, backed by Pope Innocent XI, whereby a general massacre of Protestants, the killing of the king, and the destruction of London were to be put into action. Oates was interviewed by King Charles II in August, 1678, but his evidence was so obviously nonsensical that the king ignored the matter. Oates then made an affidavit before Sir Edmund Berry Godfrey, a magistrate, implicating persons close to the Duke of York (the future James II), who was admittedly a Roman Catholic. Oates was called before the privy council and, during the course of the investigation, some letters from Edward Coleman, secretary to the Duchess of York, to the confessor to Louis XIV of France, were given in evidence. Coleman and others were imprisoned on the basis of statements in the letters, but even then the imposture might have been exposed had not the magistrate, Godfrey, been mysteriously murdered; some investigators of the problem think Oates may have had something to do with the murder. Popular prejudice, however, immediately blamed the murder on the Roman Catholics and during the following year some 35 Roman Catholics were killed after farcical trials, evidence being supplied principally by Oates and other witnesses with conveniently flexible memories; other Roman Catholics were murdered by maddened mobs. It was not until Oates had accused Queen Catherine and her physician, George Wakeman, and they had been acquitted (1679) that the frenzy died down. Oates lost prestige and, after he had called the Duke of York a traitor, was sued and fined (1685) 100,000 pounds. When he could not pay, he was jailed. James came to the throne in 1685; Oates was tried for perjury, found guilty, and sentenced to be pilloried and flogged. He was pardoned (1689) and granted a pension of 300 pounds a year when William III came to the throne, and spent the remainder of his life in sordid intrigues. He became a Baptist in 1698, but he was expelled in 1701 as a hypocrite.

Oath of a Free-man. Legal statement of a Massachusetts freeman's obligations, probably drafted in 1631, revised in 1634, and printed (1639) in a broadside probably following the revision. The broadside, issued from Stephen Daye's press, was the first piece of printed matter produced in what is now the U.S.

Oath of John Ziska (jon zis'ka). The. Painting by Rembrandt, one of his largest works, in the National Museum at Stockholm.

Oath of Strasbour (stras'bèrg). See Strasbourg, Oath of.

Oaxaca (wā.nā'kā). [Also: Oajaca; official name, Oaxaca de Juárez (dā nwā'res).] State in S Mexico, bordering on the Pacific Ocean. It is mountainous, and rich in agricultural and mineral resources. Capital, Oaxaca; area, 36,375 sq. mi.; pop. 1,444,929 (1950).

Oaxaca. [Also: Oajaca; full name, Oaxaca de Juárez.] City in SE Mexico, capital of Oaxaca state, on the Atoyac River, ab. 210 mi. SE of Mexico City; manufactures chocolate; center of the cochineal trade. 29,306 (1940).

Ob (õb). [Also, Obi.] Navigable river in the U.S.S.R., in E Siberia, formed by the union of the Biya and Katun, and flowing N into the Gulf of Obi, part of the Arctic Ocean. Its chief tributary is the Irtysh. On its banks are Tomsk, Barnaul, and Novosibirsk. Length, including the Katun, ab. 2,496 mi.

Ob, Gulf of. [Also, Gulf of Obi.] Inlet of the Arctic Ocean, N of Siberia, into which the Ob River empties. Length, ab. 600 mi.

Obadiah (õ.bā.dā'). [Also, Abdias.] Hebrew prophet, author of the short prophetic book in the Old Testament which bears his name. His date is uncertain, but is often given as c.555 B.C. Of his personality nothing is known. His prophecy is a denunciation of the Edomites.

Obadiah. "Drinking nincompoop" in Sir Robert Howard's The Committee.

Obadiah. Canting Quaker in Susannah Centlivre's A Bold Stroke for a Wife. The name was frequently conventionally given to Quakers. Steady, in Charles Dibdin's opera The Quaker, is called Obadiah in the introduction; and Clever, in J. S. Knowles's Woman's Wit, when disguised as a Quaker, calls himself by the same name.

Obadiah. Servant in Laurence Sterne's Tristram Shandy.

O'Bail (õ.bā'l). John. See Cornplanter.

Obaldia (õ.bāld'yā). José Domingo de. b. at David, Chiriquí province, Panama, 1845; d. March 1, 1910.

President of Panama from Oct. 1, 1908, until his death.

Oban (õ.bān). [Occasionally called the "Charing Cross of the Highlands."] Parliamentary burgh, seaport, and railway terminus in W Scotland, in Argyllshire, situated on the Sound of Kerrera (an inlet of the Firth of Lorne) ab. 20 mi. NW of Inveraray, ab. 504 mi. N of London by rail. It is an important tourist and yachting center. The town has a whiskey-distilling industry. Dunstaffnage Castle, which formerly contained the Stone of Scone, is nearby. 6,735 (est. 1948).

Obando (õ.bān'dō). José María. b. 1797; d. in Cauca, Colombia, June 29, 1861. New Granadan general and politician, president (1831-32 and 1854) of New Granada. He was vice-president and acting president in the first (provisional) government of the republic of New Granada (Nov. 23, 1831-March 10, 1832), and was secretary of war under Francisco de Paula Santander (1832-36). He was president of Cartagena in 1850, and was elected president of New Granada for the term beginning in 1854, but he was deposed within a year.

Obbrovazzo (õb.brõ.vā'tsõ). Italian name of Obrovac.

Obéce (õ.bé'che). Hungarian name of Stari Bečej.

Obed (õ.bed). In Old Testament history, the son of Boaz and Ruth, and grandfather of David. Ruth, iv. 17.

Obed (õ.bād'). El. See El Obeid.

Ober (õ.bër). Frederick Albion. b. at Beverley, Mass., Feb. 13, 1849; d. May 31, 1913. American ornithologist and traveler. As a collector he traveled extensively in Florida, the West Indies, and Mexico. He published Camps in the Caribbees (1879 and 1884), Travels in Mexico (1884), several juvenile books, and others.

Oberalp Pass (õ.bër.älp). Alpine pass on the border of the cantons of Uri and Graubünden, Switzerland. It connects Andermatt with the valley of the Vorder Rhein. Elevation, ab. 6,710 ft.

Oberammergau (õ.bër.äm'gõu). Village in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Upper Bavaria, situated on the Ammer River in the Bavarian Alps, ab. 45 mi. SW of Munich. A summer and winter resort, it has woodcarving and tool industries, a museum of woodcarvings, and a school for woodcarvers. Oberammergau is particularly known, however, for its Passion Play, which was instituted in 1634, describing the passion of Christ in the style of the baroque theater. The theater building, with over 5,000 seats, was erected in 1929-30. The baroque monasteries of Ettal and Wies and the neo-rococo Castle of Linderhof, one of the retreats of King Louis II of Bavaria, are in the vicinity. 5,101 (1946).

Oberbaden (ō.bēr.bā'den). See Baden, Switzerland.

Oberbayern (ō.bēr.bi'ern). German name of Upper Bavaria.

Ober-Ehnheim (ō.bēr.ān'him). German name of Obernai.

Ober-Elsass (ō.bēr.el'zās). German name of Alsace, Upper; see also Haut-Rhin.

Oberfrohn (ō.bēr.frō'nā). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, ab. 8 mi. W of Chemnitz; rayon, woolen, and knitwear manufactures. It belongs to the metropolitan region of Chemnitz. 11,101 (1946).

Oberge (ō.bēr'gē), Eilhart von. See Eilhart von Oerge.

Oberglogau (ō.bēr.glō'gou). German name of Glogowek.

Oberhalbstein (ō.bēr.hālp'shtin). Elevated Alpine valley in SE Switzerland, in the canton of Graubünden, S of Chur.

Oberhausen (ō.bēr.hou.zen). City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated between the Ruhr and Emscher rivers and on the Rhine-Herne Canal, ab. 40 mi. N of Cologne. It contains the former communities of Sterkrade and Ostfeld. It has coal mines, blast furnaces, iron and steel works, machine and boiler-making industries, gasworks, chemical works, and glassworks; also smaller metal, tobacco, foodstuff, and rubber and leather goods industries. 202,808 (1950).

Oberhoffer (ō.bēr.hof'er), Emil. b. at Munich, Aug. 10, 1867; d. at San Diego, Calif., May 22, 1933. American conductor. He directed (1903-22) the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which he helped organize.

Oberhollabrunn (ō.bēr.hol.ä.brün'). See Hollabrunn.

Oberholtzer (ō.bēr.hölt.s'r), Ellis Paxson. b. at Philadelphia, 1868; d. Dec. 8, 1936. American historian; son of Sara Louise Oberholtzer. Author of The Referendum in America (1893), Robert Morris, Patriot and Financier (1903), Jay Cooke, The Financier of the Civil War (2 vols., 1907), Henry Clay (1909), Philadelphia, The City and Its People (1911), A History of the United States since the Civil War (5 vols., 1921-36), and The Morals of the Movies (1922).

Oberholtzer, Sara Louise. [Maiden name, Vickers.] b. at Uxehlan, Chester County, Pa., May 20, 1841; d. at Philadelphia, Feb. 2, 1930. - American poet, author, and philanthropist; mother of Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer. She was active in the Women's Christian Temperance movement, organized (1881) the Anti-Tobacco Society, and also played a leading role in the encouragement of the school savings movement in the U.S. She was the author of a novel, Hope's Heart Bells (1884), and wrote verse included in Her Violet Lee (1873), Come for Arbutus (1882), Daisies of Verse (1886), and Souvenirs of Occasions (1892).

Oberlahnstein (ō.bēr.lān'shtin). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated at the junction of the Lahn and Rhine rivers, ab. 5 mi. S of Koblenz; wine and fruit trade; chemical, machine, and paper manufactures. It is a resort, with remains of medieval fortifications, and a 14th-century castle. 10,418 (1950).

Oberland (ō.bēr.lānt). See Bernese Oberland.

Oberländer (ō.bēr.lēn.dēr), Adolf. b. at Regensburg, Germany, Oct. 1, 1845; d. at Munich, May 29, 1923. German painter and caricaturist, noted for his humorous sketches. Among his works are Siesta, Resignation, Allegory of Wine, Landscape, and the Oberländer Album.

Oberleutensdorf (ō.bēr.loi'tens.dōrf). German name of Horní Litvínov.

Oberlin (ō.bēr.līn). Village in N Ohio, in Lorain County, ab. 31 mi. SW of Cleveland; seat of Oberlin College, the first educational college in the U.S. During the 19th century the village was known for the Abolitionist convictions of its inhabitants; in 1835 the college became the first in the U.S. to admit Negroes and whites to the same classes, and the village itself was an important station on the Underground Railway. 7,062 (1950).

Oberlin (ō.bēr.līn; French, ō.bēr.lān), Jean Frédéric. b. at Strasbourg, Aug. 31, 1740; d. in the Steintal, in Alsace, June 1, 1826. Alsatian clergyman and philanthropist. He became (c1767) Protestant pastor in the Steintal (Ban-de-la-Roche), and was noted for his efforts in furthering the agriculture, industry, and education of that region. Oberlin College, near Lorain, Ohio, was named for him.

Oberlin, Jérémie Jacques. b. at Strasbourg, Aug. 7, 1735; d. Oct. 10, 1806. Alsatian philologist and antiquary; brother of Jean Frédéric Oberlin.

Oberlungwitz (ō.bēr.lūng'vits). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, ab. 10 mi. W of Chemnitz; textile manufactures; coal mines in the vicinity. 10,335 (1946).

Obermann (ō.bēr.mān). Psychological romance by Étienne Pivert de Senancour, published in 1804. It is so called from the name of the hero, who is a dreamer striving to escape from the actual. He lives in a solitary valley, and writes melancholy speculative letters on all kinds of problems. Charles Augustin Sainte-Beuve revived the book by bringing out a new edition in 1833, when it appealed to the public taste more perhaps than on its original production.

Obernai (ō.bēr.nā). [German, Ober-Ehnheim.] Town in E France, in the department of Bas-Rhin (formerly Lower Alsace), situated on the Ehn River and the slopes of the Vosges Mountains, ab. 15 mi. SW of Strasbourg. It is a medieval town with old fortifications and the marketing center of a wine-making region. The Convent of Saint-Odile is nearby. 4,336 (1946).

Oberon (ō.bēr.ōn). In medieval legend and romance, the king of the fairies. He appears in the old French romance Huon de Bordeaux as the son of Julius Caesar and Morgan le Fay, and is thus connected with the Arthurian genealogy. Oberon gave Huon a magic bugle which caused its hearers to laugh uncontrollably. Shakespeare introduces him in the Midsummer Night's Dream.

Oberon. German romantic epic poem, one of the chief works of C. M. Wieland, published in 1780.

Oberon. Romantic opera in three acts by Carl Maria von Weber, produced at London on April 12, 1826. The libretto in English is by J. R. Planché.

Oberon. Fourth satellite of Uranus, discovered by Sir William Herschel in 1787.

Oberösterreich (ō.bēr.ē'stēr.rīth). German name of Upper Austria.

Oberpfalz (ō.bēr.pfālt's). See under Rhineland-Palatinate.

Oberpfälzerwald (ō.bēr.pfel.tser.vālt'). A German name of the Bohemian Forest.

Obersalzberg (ō.bēr.zālt's'berk). See under Berchtesgaden, town.

Oberstein (ō.bēr.shtin). See Idar-Oberstein.

Obertus (ō.bēr'tus), Jacob. See Obrecht or Obertus, Jacob.

Oberursel (ō.bēr.ūr'sel). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hesse, American Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated on the slopes of the Taunus Mountains, ab. 7 mi. NW of Frankfurt on the Main; leather, chemical, machine, and knitwear manufactures. It has a church of the 15th century, and a Rathaus (town hall) of the 17th century. 16,793 (1950).

Oberwesel (ō.bēr.vā'sel). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Rhine River, ab. 19 mi. SE of Koblenz; wine and fruit trade. It is picturesquely located at the narrowest stretch of the Rhine valley, and has remains of medieval fortifications. 3,668 (1946).

Obi (ō.bē). See Ob.

Obihiro (ō.bē.hir.ō). Inland city in SE Hokkaido, Japan; rail junction and agricultural trade center. 51,794 (1950).

Obion (ō.bī'ōn). River in W Tennessee which joins the Mississippi ab. 57 mi. above Memphis.

Obligado (ō.blē.gā'rō), Rafael. b. at Buenos Aires, 1851; d. 1920. Argentine poet, who devoted himself mainly to glorifying national heroes and the gaucho. He is credited with the establishment of the first chair in

- Argentine literature at the national university. Author of Legendas argentinas (1887) and others.
- Obilcunm (ob.ling'kum). Latin name of Le Blanc.
- Oblivion, Act of. [Also called Act of Indemnity.] English statute of 1660, entitled "An Act of Free and General Pardon, Indemnity, and Oblivion," by which all political offenses committed during the time of the Commonwealth were pardoned, certain offenders mentioned by name in the act being excepted, especially those engaged in the trial and execution of Charles I.
- Obock (ô'bok). [Also, Obok.] Former French colony in E Africa, on the Gulf of Aden, opposite the SW extremity of Arabia, now included in the larger colony of French Somaliland.
- Obon (ô.bôn). See Bon.
- Obong (ô'bông or Obongo) (ô.bông'gô). See Bongo.
- Obookiah (ob.u.ki'g). Henry. See Opukahaia.
- Obrecht (ô'bri'cht) or Obertus (ô.bêr'tus). Jacob. [Also: Hobrecht, Hobertus.] b. perhaps at Utrecht, Netherlands, c1430; d. at Ferrara, Italy, 1505. Dutch contrapuntal composer and conductor. He was Kapellmeister (choirmaster) c1474 at Utrecht, and headed (1483-85) a singing school at Cambrai. His works include masses, hymns, and motets as well as some secular pieces.
- Obregón (ô.brâ'gôn'), Alvaro. b. near Alamos, Sonora, Mexico, Feb. 17, 1880; assassinated at San Angel, Mexico, July 17, 1928. Mexican soldier and political leader, president (1920-24) of Mexico. A wealthy landowner and planter, he nevertheless advocated land reform. He joined (1912) Francisco Madero and put down Pascual Orozco's revolt, and fought against Félix Díaz in the revolt which brought Victoriano Huerta to power and resulted in the death of Madero. He joined Venustiano Carranza (1913-14) against Huerta; Mexico City was taken (Aug. 15, 1914). In the ensuing struggle for power, he defeated (January, 1915) Emiliano Zapata and forced Francisco (Pancho) Villa back into the mountains, having defeated him at Celaya and León (in this campaign Obregón lost an arm). As commander (1915-20) of the army he forced Carranza to enact the land reforms of the 1917 constitution, and later led the revolt (1920) which deposed Carranza. He was elected (Dec. 1, 1920) president of Mexico, and achieved recognition (1923) by the U.S.; in the 1924 election he supported Plutarco Calles against Adolfo de la Huerta, and, with arms purchased from the U.S., defeated de la Huerta's revolt (1923-24). Re-elected (July 1, 1928), he was assassinated before he could take office.
- Obrenovich (ô.bren'ô.vich). [Serbo-Croatian, Obrenović.] Family name of a Serbian dynasty. The dynasty was founded by Milosh Obrenovich, who was proclaimed hereditary prince of Serbia in 1827. His successors were his son, Michael, his grandnephew, Milan I (of Serbia), and the latter's son Alexander I (of Serbia). The long feud between the Obrenovich and Karageorgevich families, caused by the assassination of Karageorge in 1817, marked Serbian politics for many years.
- O'Brien (ô.bri'ën), Conor. d. 1539. Last independent prince of Thomond, caught in the rivalry of the two great Irish families, the Fitzgeralds of Kildare and the Butlers of Ormonde, during the 1520's. Some of his sons fought for one and some for the other.
- O'Brien, Edward J. [Full name, Edward Joseph Harrington O'Brien.] b. at Boston, Dec. 10, 1890; d. in Buckinghamshire, England, Feb. 25, 1941. American writer, editor, and anthropologist; husband (1923 et seq.) of Romer Wilson. He was associate editor (1912-15) of The Poetry Journal and Poet Lore (1914-15), and founded (1933) and edited (1933-35) New Stories. Author of White Fountains (1917) and Distant Music (1921), two volumes of verse; also of The Advance of the American Short Story (1923), Hard Sayings (1927), The Dance of the Machines (1929), and Son of the Morning (1932), a biography of Nietzsche. He organized and edited the annual Best Short Stories (1915-40) and Best British Short Stories (1921-40). He was editor also of The World's History at a Glance (1913), The Masque of Poets (1918), and Elizabethan Tales (1935).
- O'Brien, Fitz-James. b. at Limerick, Ireland, c1828; d. April 6, 1862. Irish-American journalist and author. He was educated at Dublin University, and came to the U.S. in 1852. He wrote tales of the weird and occult which have been compared, somewhat loosely, with those of Edgar Allan Poe (actually, in some cases, his stories might be more meaningfully likened to those of Ambrose Bierce). The best-known is "The Diamond Lens," originally published in the Atlantic Monthly (January, 1858). He was killed fighting in the Union army during the Civil War. His collected Poems and Stories were published in 1881.

O'Brien, Frederick. b. at Baltimore, June 16, 1869; d. at Sausalito, Calif., Jan. 9, 1932. American journalist and author. He was until 1894 a sailor, law student, laborer, and hobo. He became a reporter at Marion, Ohio, was news editor (1900-01) of the Honolulu Advertiser, editor and publisher (1902-09) of the Manila Cablenews, and was manager (1910-13) of the Riverside (Calif.) Enterprise and the Oxnard (Calif.) Courier. He came to prominence with his White Shadows in the South Seas (1919, with Rose Wilder Lane), followed by Mystic Isles of the South Seas (1921) and Atolls of the Sun (1922).

O'Brien, James. [Also, James Bronerter.] b. 1805; d. Dec. 23, 1864. Irish Chartist. He was graduated from Dublin University in 1829, became the editor of the Poor Man's Guardian in 1831, and was a writer for the Poor Man's Conservative. He signed his articles Bronerter and later adopted this name. He was a prominent member of the Chartist party from its beginning in 1838 and was imprisoned (1840-41) for seditious speaking, but later became a personal enemy and opponent of Feargus O'Connor. In 1885 a series of his articles was published under the title The Irish, Progress, and Phases of Human Slavery.

O'Brien, Jeremiah. b. at Kittery, Me., 1744; d. at Machias, Me., Sept. 5, 1818. American naval officer in the Revolutionary War. In 1775 he took part in the first naval engagement of the war when he helped seize the sloop Unity and the schooner Margaretta. He became commander of the Machias Liberty (the former Unity) and later engaged in privateering.

O'Brien, John. See Raymond, John T.

O'Brien, Thomas James. b. in Jackson County, Mich., July 30, 1842; d. at Grand Rapids, Mich., May 19, 1933. American diplomat. He was minister to Denmark (1905-07), ambassador to Japan (1907-11), and ambassador to Italy (1911-13).

O'Brien, William. b. 1852; d. Feb. 25, 1928. Irish politician and journalist. He became (1881) editor of United Ireland, the journal of the league for land reform. The paper was suppressed (1881) and O'Brien spent several months in jail, during which time he wrote the No Rent Manifesto. He was a member of Parliament (1883-95) but was often imprisoned for his agitation. In 1890, having been liberated on bail pending a political trial, he escaped to the U.S. After the fall of C. S. Parnell, O'Brien was active in holding together the movement that threatened to dissipate on the loss of its leader. In 1898 he established the United Irish League, with the intention of getting all Irishmen, regardless of class, creed, or politics, to participate in the movement for land reform. He was instrumental in obtaining passage of the Land Purchase Act of 1903. He was again a member of Parliament (1900-18), retiring in the latter year, with the Irish Party, to permit the victory of Sinn Féin at the polls.

O'Brien, William Smith. b. in County Clare, Ireland, Oct. 17, 1803; d. at Bangor, North Wales, June 18, 1864. Irish revolutionist. He entered Parliament in 1828, and became a leading member of the Repeal Association, which he left in 1846 to become a leader of the Young Ireland party. He agitated for the dissolution of the union of Ireland and Great Britain and incited an unsuccessful insurrection in 1848. He was arrested in 1848, and sentenced to death; his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and he was transported to Tasmania in 1849. He was fully pardoned in 1856.

Obovac (ô.brô.vâts). [Italian, Obbrovazzo.] Township and village in N Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Primorska, situated NE of Zadar. Pop. of township, 13,302 (1931).

Obbruchev (ô.brô.chif), Sergei Vladimirovich. b. at Irkutsk, Russia, Feb. 3, 1891—. Russian geologist and arctic explorer, discoverer of the Tunguska coal basin: son of V. A. Obbruchev.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ǵ, d or j; ǵ, s or sh; ʔ, t or ch;

Obbruchev, Vladimir Afanasevich. b. at Klepenino, Russia, Sept. 28, 1863; d. 1904. Russian geologist and traveler; father of S. V. Obbruchev. He headed exploratory expeditions in China, Siberia, and other countries. He also prepared the original manuscript of an English-Russian glossary in geology and associated sciences which was finally published in 1937.

Obscure Destinies. Collection of three novelettes by Willa Cather, published in 1932.

Obstfelder (òpst'fêldër), Sigbjørn. b. at Stavanger, Norway, Nov. 21, 1866; d. at Copenhagen, July 29, 1900. Norwegian poet.

Obwalden (òp'vâldën). [French, Obwald (òb.vâld).] Half-canton of the canton of Unterwalden, in C Switzerland, comprising the SW part of the canton around Sarnen and including the territory of Engelberg. Capital, Sarnen; area, 183 sq. mi.; pop. 22,125 (1950).

O Cabeleira (ô.kâ.be.lê'ra). Pioneer regional novel (1876) of life in the north of Brazil, by Franklin Távora (1842-88).

Oca del Cairo (ô'kâ del kî'rô), L'. Opera begun by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart in 1783. 'It was finally finished by piecing out with material from other operas by Mozart, and produced at Paris in 1867.

Ocala (ô.kal'a). City in N Florida, county seat of Marion County, SW of Jacksonville: shipping point for phosphates, limestone, and agricultural products. 11,741 (1950).

O'Callaghan (ô.kal'a.han), Edmund Bailey. b. at Mallow, Ireland, Feb. 28, 1797; d. at New York, May 29, 1880. American historian. Among his works are History of New Netherlands (1846) and Documentary History of New York (1849-51).

Occampo (ô.kâm'pô), Sebastian de. b. c1465; d. after 1509. Spanish navigator. He was one of the earlier colonists of Hispaniola, and in 1508 was sent by Nicolás de Ovando, governor of that island, to explore the coasts of Cuba. He succeeded in circumnavigating it, thus proving its insular character.

Ocaña (ô.kâ'nyâ). Town in N Colombia, in Norte de Santander department, ab. 250 mi. NE of Bogotá: coffee and cacao. 9,937 (1938).

Ocantos (ô.kân'tôs), Carlos María. [Called the "Balzac of Argentina."] b. 1860—. Argentine novelist who, despite long residence in Spain and the frequent inferiority of his work, has acquired a considerable reputation in his native country. Author of León Zaldívar (1888), Don Perfecto (1902), and others.

O Captain! My Captain! Poem by Walt Whitman, published in Sequel to Drum-Taps (1865-66) and included in the 1867 edition of Leaves of Grass. The poem is an elegy on the death of Abraham Lincoln.

O'Carolan (ô.kar'ô.lan), Turlough. [Also, Carolan.] b. in County Meath, Ireland, c1670; d. March 25, 1738. Irish minstrel. Blinded in 1684 by smallpox, he was one of the last of the improvising wandering bards, and traveled with a harp from door to door, composing songs named for his hosts.

O'Casey (ô.kâ'sî), Sean. b. at Dublin, 1884—. Irish playwright, notably of works for the social theater. Several of his works, including Shadow of a Gunman (1923) were written especially for the Abbey Theatre at Dublin. He was awarded (1926) the Hawthornden prize for Junio and the Paycock (1924). The Plough and the Stars (1926) deals with the so-called Easter rebellion (the unsuccessful Irish rising against England in 1916) and The Silver Tassie (1928) concerns itself with World War I. His other plays include Within the Gates (1933), Purple Dust (1940), and Red Roses for Me (1946). He has written reminiscences of his life in I Knock at the Door (1939), Pictures in the Hallway (1941), Inishfallen, Fare Thee Well (1949), and Rose and Crown (1952).

Occam (ok'am), William of. See Ockham or Occam, William of.

Occasional Oratorio. Choral composition by George Frederick Handel, written to words by John Milton, first performed at Covent Garden, London, in 1746.

Ochialâ (ôk.kyâ.lâ'). See under Grammichele.

Ochialini (ôk.kyâ.lê'nê), G. P. S. Atomic physicist. With P. M. S. Blackett, he invented (1933) a self-triggering cloud chamber, very important in the study of high-energy particles. With Powell he invented a valuable new nuclear research emulsion, and with Blackett and James Chadwick he discovered artificial electron-positron pair production and with Blackett suggested the now generally accepted photon source for the pair.

Occhino (ôk.kê'nô), Bernardino. See Ochino or Occhino, Bernardino.

Occidental (ôk'ŝe.ŋen.tâl'), Cordillera. See Cordillera Occidental.

Occidente (ôk.ŝe.ŋen'tâ), María del. Pseudonym of Brooks, María Thomas.

Occleve (ok'lev), Gowen. [Also, Hoccleve.] b. c1370; d. c1450. English poet. He was the author of a Complaint, a Dialogue, and La Male Règle (1406), all autobiographical, and Mother of God, a religious poem, once assigned to Geoffrey Chaucer. His chief work, however, is usually considered to have been De Regimine Principum (c1411-12), a long poem on the responsibilities of a prince or ruler, dedicated to Henry, Prince of Wales (later Henry V).

Occom (ok'ôm, ô'kôm), Samson. b. at Mohegan, near New London, Conn., 1723; d. July 14, 1792. American Indian preacher and missionary, among the first of the Indians to be tutored by Eleazar Wheelock. He became (1749) minister and schoolmaster to the Montauk tribe on Long Island, was ordained (1759) by the Long Island Presbytery, and beginning in 1761 made two missionary journeys to the Oneida tribe in New York. In 1765 he went to England, where he secured funds for Wheelock's Indian school (the forerunner of Dartmouth College).

Oconostota (ô'kô.nô.stô'ts). See Oconostota.

Oceana (ô.shê.â'na), The Commonwealth of. Philosophical treatise on the theory of civil government, by James Harrington, published in 1656.

Ocean City (ô'shan). City in S New Jersey, in Cape May County, on the Atlantic Ocean: summer resort. 6,040 (1950).

Ocean Grove. Unincorporated community in C New Jersey, in Monmouth County, on the Atlantic Ocean adjoining Asbury Park, ab. 7 mi. S of Long Branch: summer resort. 3,806 (1950).

Oceani (ô.sê.â'ni), Fretum. A Latin name of Dover, Strait of.

Oceania (ô.shê.an'i.â, -â'ni.â) or Oceanica (ô.shê.an'i.kâ). Division of the world (according to many geographers) which comprises those lands, except Japan and various American or Asiatic coastal islands, lying entirely within the Pacific Ocean.

Oceania, French. See French Oceania.

Oceanids (ô.sê.â.nîdz). In Greek mythology, three thousand ocean nymphs, daughters of the sea god, Oceanus, and his consort, Tethys.

Ocean Island. [Native name, Banaba.] Coral island in C Pacific Ocean, belonging to the British crown colony of Gilbert and Ellice Islands. Phosphate mining is the chief industry. The inhabitants are chiefly Micronesians. Area, ab. 2 sq. mi.; pop. 2,060 (1947), including 138 Europeans.

Ocean Island. Former name of Kure Island.

Ocean Pond, Battle of. See under Olustee.

Oceanport (ô'shan.pôrt). Borough in C New Jersey, in Monmouth County. Fort Monmouth, a U.S. military post, is nearby. A large racetrack is also here. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses the borough's population more than doubled. 3,159 (1940), 7,588 (1950).

Oceanside (ô'shan.sîd). City in S California, in San Diego County, SE of Los Angeles: residential and resort community. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 4,651 (1940), 12,881 (1950).

Oceanside. [Former names: Christian Hook, Oceanville.] Unincorporated community in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 9,744 (1940).

Ocean Springs. Town in SE Mississippi, NE of Biloxi: resort. 3,058 (1950).

Ocean to Cynthia (sin'thi.â), The. See under Cynthia, the Lady of the Sea.

Oceanus (ô.sê.â.nus). In the belief of ancient geographers, a swift and unbounded stream that encircled all the world, from which all earthly rivers were believed to rise. Oceanus was later taken to be the outer sea, which we know as the Atlantic Ocean.

Oceanus. In Greek mythology, the ocean stream personified. He was the husband of Tethys, and father of all the sea and river nymphs.

Oceanville (ō'shan.vil'). A former name of Oceanside, N.Y.

Ochakov (ō.chă'kof). [Also, Otkachoff.] Town and former fortress in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, situated at the mouth of the Dnieper Liman, ab. 42 mi. E of Odessa: a fishing and canning town. Pop. 5,696 (1935).

Ochil Hills (ō'chil, ōch'il). [Also, Ochill Hills.] Range of hills in C Scotland, situated mainly in Perthshire, but also in adjoining parts of Stirlingshire, Clackmannanshire, Kinross-shire, and Fifehire. It extends NE from the vicinity of Stirling to the Firth of Tay. Highest summit, Ben Cleuch (2,363 ft.).

Ochiltree (ō'chil.trē, -kil-, ōch'il-, ōk'il-), Edie. In Sir Walter Scott's novel The Antiquary, a king's beadsman or licensed beggar, called "Blue Gown" from his costume.

Ochino (ō.kē'nō) or Occhino (ōk.kē'nō), Bernardino. b. at Siena, Italy, 1487; d. at Schlackau, in Moravia, c.1565. Italian reformer. He was a Franciscan and became (1534) a Capuchin. He was named vicar general of the Capuchins in 1538 and 1541. He had become a believer in justification by faith, probably through the influence of Juan de Valdés, and, some of his utterances reflecting this, was called (1542) to Rome to answer to the Inquisition newly established there. Instead he fled to Geneva, where he became a prize convert of John Calvin. He became a minister at Augsburg in 1545, fled to England in 1547 when the forces of the emperor Charles V took the city, and was welcomed at Canterbury. When Mary Tudor came to the English throne, he returned (1555) to Switzerland, becoming a pastor at Zurich. In 1563 he incurred the anger of the Calvinists by his publication of Thirty Dialogues, in which he went counter to doctrine on the subjects of polygamy, divorce, and the Trinity. He was expelled and went to Poland, but was forced to leave there in 1564; he died in Moravia still seeking asylum. He was the author of A Tragedy or Dialogue of the unjust usurped Primacy of the Bishop of Rome (1549), thought by some to have influenced John Milton's Paradise Lost.

Ochoa (ō.chō'ā), Eugenio de. b. at Lezo, near Guipúzcoa, Spain, April 19, 1815; d. at Madrid, Feb. 25, 1872. Spanish writer and translator.

Ochrida (ōk'ri.dā, ō.krē'dā). See Ohrid.

Ochs (oks), Adolph Simon. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, March 12, 1858; d. at Chattanooga, Tenn., April 8, 1935. American newspaper publisher; brother of George Washington Oakes and Milton Barlow Ochs. He bought (1878) and published the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, published (1896 et seq.) and controlled the New York Times, and acquired the Philadelphia Times (1901) and Public Ledger (1902), consolidating, and editing both until 1912. He donated 500,000 dollars to the American Council of Learned Societies to make possible the publication of the Dictionary of American Biography. He was the founder of Lookout Mountain Park at Chattanooga.

Ochs, George Washington. Original name of Oakes, George Washington.

Ochs, Milton Barlow. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1864—, American editor and newspaper executive; brother of Adolph Simon Ochs and George Washington Oakes. He was managing editor (1879-90, 1892-99, 1913-22) of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, publisher and controlling owner (1903-11) of the Nashville (Tenn.) American, and general manager (1912-13) of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Ochs (oks), Stegfried. b. at Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, April 19, 1858; d. at Berlin, in February, 1929. German choral director and composer. He founded (1882) a choral group which became the Berlin Philharmonic Choir. His compositions include a comic opera and several songs.

Ochsenkopf (ōk'sen.kopf). One of the chief summits of the Fichtelgebirge, Bavaria, Germany. Elevation, ab. 3,360 ft.

Ochterlony (ōch.tēr.lō'nī, ōk-). Sir David. b. at Boston, Mass., Feb. 12, 1758; d. at Meerut, India, July 15, 1825.

English army officer. He defended (Oct. 7-16, 1804) Delhi against Holkar, led the only one of four columns which succeeded in invading Nepal, and defeated the enemy (1816) near Katmandu, after which the treaty ending the Nepal War was ratified. He made a settlement (1817) with Amir Khan, a leader in the Pindari War.

Ochtman (ōkt'man), Dorothy. b. at Riverside, Conn., May 8, 1892—. American landscape and still-life painter; daughter of Leonard Ochtman. Among her principal works are A Corner of the Studio, Persian Vases, and An Old Brass Kettle.

Ochtman, Leonard. b. at Zonnemaire, Netherlands, Oct. 21, 1854; d. Oct. 27, 1934. American painter, resident in the U.S. from 1866. He devoted himself to American landscapes, and his work shows well-balanced composition and quiet, harmonious color. He became a member of the National Academy of Design in 1904, where he exhibited (1882 et seq.) regularly.

Ochtrup (ōcht'rūp). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, ab. 40 mi. W of Osnabrück; railroad junction. It has cotton and linen textile industries, a machine factory, and an agricultural trade. 12,530 (1950).

Ochus (ō'kus). Original name of Darius II (of Persia).

Ocilla (ō.sil'ā). City in S Georgia, county seat of Irwin County; local trade center of a farming and pulp-lumbering region. 2,697 (1950).

Ockeghem (dok'e.gem), Jean d'. See Okeghem, Jean d' (or Jan van).

Ockenfuss (ōk'en.fös), Lorenz. Original name of Oken, Lorenz.

Ockenheim (ōk'en.hīm), Johannes. See Okeghem, Jean d' (or Jan van).

Ockerson (ōk'ēr.sən, ōk'ér-), John Augustus. b. in Skåne, Sweden, March 4, 1848; d. at St. Louis, Mo., March 22, 1924. American civil engineer. He served (1898-1924) as a member of the Mississippi River Commission and achieved a reputation as an expert on flood control, and river and harbor improvement.

Ockham or Occam (ōk'am), William of. [Known as Doctor Invincibilis, Venerabilis Inceptor, Princeps Nominalium.] b. at Ockham, Surrey, some time between 1270 and 1300; d. at Munich, c.1349. English scholastic philosopher. A Franciscan, he studied at Oxford and Paris, where he was the pupil of his later great rival Duns Scotus. In 1322 he was present at the Franciscan assembly at Perugia that defended against Pope John XXII the principle of evangelical poverty. He was called to Avignon in 1328 and imprisoned there for heresy, but escaped after a few months (along with several other rebels, including Michael of Cesena, the general of the Franciscans) to Pisa, where he was taken under the protection of the emperor Louis IV. The emperor and the pope were engaged in a struggle concerning the temporal power of the papacy and Ockham contributed to the imperial cause with his Opus nonaginta dierum (1330), an answer to John XXII's attack on Michael of Cesena, and with other polemical writings. He became general of the order after Michael of Cesena's death in 1342. His greatest work, the Dialogus (c.1343), is an attack on the civil authority of the papacy and includes also arguments against even the spiritual powers claimed by the pope. Ockham's philosophy is a revival of the nominalism of such earlier philosophers as Peter Abelard. He distinguishes between the fact and its name: the individual thing is the reality, the universal (its name or noun) is an abstraction and a generalization, and therefore a subjective and conventional tool. Such abstractions have no actual relation to reality; therefore, intellectual knowledge is not valid; the only true approach to such questions of reality as immortality, the nature of the soul, and the existence of God is through intuition. The principle known as Ockham's razor or the law of parsimony is a consequence of this logic: Entia non sunt multiplicanda praeter necessitatem (entities must not be multiplied beyond what is necessary), that is, an argument must be shaved down to its absolutely essential and simplest terms.

Ocklawaha (ōk.lā.wō'hō). See Oklawaha.

Ockley (ōk'li), Simon. b. at Exeter, England, 1678; d. at Swavesey, Cambridgeshire, England, Aug. 9, 1720.

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pūll; ʔh, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

English Orientalist. His chief work is a History of the Saracens (2 vols., 1708–18; vol. 3, 1757).

Ocmulgee (ók.mul.gē). River in C Georgia which unites with the Oconee ab. 90 mi. W of Savannah to form the Altamaha. Length, ab. 255 mi.

Ocmulgee Fields. Culture of the Creek Indians, as represented at the English trading post on the Macon plateau (Ocmulgee National Monument) and at other historic sites (c1650–1700). Aboriginal pottery, incised or painted but not stamped, was still being made but most of the other artifacts were of European manufacture.

Ocmulgee National Monument. National monument (established 1936) near Macon, Ga., consisting of the Lamar and Macon plateau sites together with a museum maintained by the National Park Service. It is the type site for the Ocmulgee Fields culture. Area, ab. 683 acres.

Oena Dejlui (ók.nā dā zhō.lō.8). See under Dej.

Ocnus (ók.nus). In Greek mythology, the droll of the underworld and personification of delay or futile effort. He is described as forever plaiting a straw rope, which his ass devours as fast as he makes it; or sometimes he is shown leading the ass with sticks which keep falling off.

Oconee (ók.kō.nē). River in C Georgia which unites with the Ocmulgee to form the Altamaha. Length, over 250 mi.; navigable (at times) to Milledgeville.

O'Connell (ók.on'el), Daniel. [Called The Liberator.] b. near Cahirciveen, County Kerry, Ireland, Aug. 6, 1775; d. at Genoa, Italy, May 15, 1847. Irish nationalist statesman and orator. He became (1798 et seq.) a prominent lawyer in Ireland, especially noted as a questioner of witnesses and a persuasive arguer before juries. Gradually he became known as an opponent of the Act of Union (1801), the Church of Ireland, and the civil disabilities laid upon Roman Catholics as a result of their religion. In 1823 he founded the Catholic Association to press for removal of the disabilities and, recognizing the need for a broad base of membership from which to work, instituted the famous "penny a month" dues, the "Catholic rent," as the requirement for membership in the Association. His methods were never violent, but the almost universal membership by Irish Roman Catholics in the Association, and the tremendous pressure indicated at the great mass meetings held by it, brought a realization to the English of the necessity for reform, although the Association was suppressed (1825), as were several successors also established by O'Connell. In 1828 he was elected to Parliament for Clare; the election brought a crisis, since by Parliamentary rules he could not, as a Roman Catholic, take the necessary oath. When Parliament quickly revised this rule, he refused to take the oath of supremacy, was rejected, and was again elected to the seat. In 1829, Wellington, the prime minister, pushed through Parliament, against strong opposition, the Catholic Emancipation Act, opening all public offices (except the chancellorship and the lieutenancy of Ireland) to Roman Catholics; O'Connell now took his seat, joined with the Whigs, and supported various reform measures while continuing his agitation for the freedom of Roman Catholics. He eventually obtained a repeal of the tithes paid to the established church, but he resisted such reforms as the poor law and the anti-rent movement as being too radical. He was elected (1841) lord mayor of Dublin. In 1841 the Tory Robert Peel became prime minister and O'Connell revived his agitation for dissolution of the union. He reestablished the Catholic Association and in 1842–43 held huge meetings to protest the union. Peel decided to break the movement, declared a proposed meeting illegal, and had O'Connell arrested (1843). He was tried for conspiracy and sedition and convicted, but the sentence was reversed by the House of Lords (1844). O'Connell's health had become affected by his stay in prison, and he discovered that a radical group, Young Ireland (founded 1840), within his movement was gaining adherents to a policy of the more violent action he had hitherto consistently opposed. The potato famine of the 1840's completed the work of causing the collapse of the movement and O'Connell died on his way south for his health.

O'Connell, William Henry. b. at Lowell, Mass., Dec. 8, 1859; d. at Boston, April 22, 1944. American Roman Catholic prelate. He was ordained priest at Rome in 1884.

He was rector of the American College at Rome (1895–1900), bishop of Portland, Me. (1901–06), archbishop of Boston (1907–44), and cardinal (Nov. 27, 1911 et seq.).

O'Connor (ók.on'or), Andrew, Jr. b. at Worcester, Mass., June 7, 1874; d. 1941. American sculptor. His work includes a statue of Lincoln on the state house grounds at Springfield, Ill., one of Daniel O'Connell at Dublin, and one of General Lew Wallace in the Capitol at Washington, D.C.

O'Connor, Arthur. b. 1763; d. at Bignon, France, April 25, 1852. Irish revolutionist. He was a member of the directory of the United Irishmen, was imprisoned (1797), and lived in exile in France after 1803. He was a general of division under Napoleon; he married Elisa, only daughter of the Marquis de Condorcet.

O'Connor, Bernard. See Connor or O'Connor, Bernard.

O'Connor, Cathal. d. 1010. King of Connacht (Connaught) from 980 to 1010; son of Conchobar, from whom the Uí Conchobar or O'Connor of Connaught took their name. The O'Connors shared with the O'Rourkes the alternative sovereignty of Connacht till about the middle of the 11th century.

O'Connor, Cathal. b. c1150; d. 1224. King of Connacht, or Connaught (1201–24). He is remembered in the Irish saying (applied to a last farewell) "Slán Chathail faoi an tseagal" ("Cathal's farewell to the rye"), alluding to the story of his wrongly supposed illegitimate birth and of his having to work in the field until the news of the death of his father reached him. Thereupon he flung down his sickle, saying "Slán leat a chorrain, aois do'n chloidheamh" ("Farewell to thee, oh sickle; now for the sword").

O'Connor, Eily. The "Colleen Bawn," the principal female character in Dion Boucicault's play of that name.

O'Connor, Feargus Edward. b. in Ireland, 1794; d. at London, Aug. 30, 1855. Irish lawyer and politician. He entered Parliament in 1832 as one of Daniel O'Connell's supporters, but quarreled with O'Connell and was unseated by petition in 1835. He became a radical and a supporter of the Chartists, and in 1837 established the Northern Star at Leeds as the Chartist journal and to further the policy of violent reform he advocated. He was imprisoned (1840) for a time and afterward broke with the other Chartist leaders, attacking John Bright and others. In 1846 he founded a company to redistribute Irish lands. Once more a member of Parliament (1847), he sponsored the huge mass meeting of Chartists (1848) that was to present to Parliament a petition containing nearly six million signatures. The government prepared for trouble by bringing troops into London and augmenting the police force. Furthermore, O'Connor was advised that the proposed procession from Kennington Common to the Parliament building was illegal (under a law almost 200 years old). Word of the preparations got about and the meeting was thinly attended. O'Connor took the petition to Commons by hansom cab. Subsequent investigation showed that there were fewer than two million signatures to the petition and that many of these were obvious forgeries. This disclosure, in addition to the failure of his land company, unhinged O'Connor's mind and in 1852 he was declared insane by a lunacy commission.

O'Connor, Roderic (or Rory). [Irish, Ruaidhrí Ua Conchobhair.] b. 1116; d. 1198. Last high king of Ireland. He became king of Connacht (Connaught) in 1156, and of Ireland in 1166. He acknowledged the supremacy of Henry II of England in 1175 after the invasion of Ireland by the Anglo-Normans.

O'Connor, Thomas Power. [Known as Tay Pay.] b. at Athlone, Oct. 5, 1845; d. Nov. 18, 1929. Irish politician and journalist. A free-lance journalist at London after 1870, he wrote Lord Beaconsfield: a Biography (1879), an attack on Benjamin Disraeli that brought him much attention. He entered Parliament in 1880 and served there continuously until his death. He became an active member of the Parnellite party, and was elected president of the Irish National League of Great Britain in 1883. Although he was one of those who deserted Parnell in 1891, he continued home-rule agitation, especially through his writings in papers he founded. He established and edited the Star, Sun, Sunday Sun, and T. P.'s Weekly, the latter in 1902 as a literary journal in which he published his observations on life. He was the author of Gladstone's House of Commons (1885), The Parnell Movement (1886), and other books.

O'Connor, William Douglas. b. at Boston, Jan. 2, 1832; d. at Washington, D.C., May 9, 1889. American journalist and writer. He was a personal friend of Walt Whitman, and in 1866 published The Good Gray Poet, a vindication of Whitman's poetry. He wrote in 1886 Hamlet's Notebook, a reply to Richard Grant White on the main points of the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy. He was the author also of many stories and poems.

Oconomowoc (ô.kôn.ô.mô.wôk'ô). City in SE Wisconsin, in Waukesha County; health resort, 5,345 (1950).

O'Conor (ô.kôn'ôr). Charles. b. at New York, Jan. 22, 1804; d. at Nantucket, Mass., May 12, 1884. American lawyer. He was counsel in many important cases in New York City, being especially prominent as the prosecuting lawyer in the "Tweed Ring" cases (1871-75) that broke up the corrupt machine under W. M. Tweed. He was nominated for the presidency by the Democratic faction which opposed Horace Greeley in 1872.

O'Connor, Norvys Jephson. b. at New York, Dec. 31, 1885. American poet. Author of The Child's Hansel and Gretel (1909), Celtic Memories (1914), Songs of the Celtic Past (1918), There Was Magic in Those Days (1929), God's Peace and the Queens (1934), A Servant of the Crown (1938), and other books. He published a poetic drama, The Fairy Bride (1916).

Oconostota or Oconostota (ô'kô.nô.stô'ta). [Also: Oconnostote; called "Great Warrior."] d. 1785. Cherokee Indian chief who made his home at Great Echota (in what is now Monroe County, Tenn.). He led Cherokee raids against frontier settlements and garrisons, and fought on the British side during the Revolutionary War.

Oconto (ô.kôn.tô). City in E Wisconsin, county seat of Oconto County, on Green Bay; manufactures of lumber products, 5,055 (1950).

O Cortico (ô.kôr.tê'sô). Novel of life in a slum of Rio de Janeiro, by Aluísio Azevedo (1857-1913). Published in 1890, it was translated into English (A Brazilian Tenement) in 1926.

Ocosingo (ô.kô.sêng'gô). Town in SE Mexico, in Chiapas state, S of Palenque. There are ancient Maya ruins in the vicinity. Pop. ab. 1,000 (1940).

Ocotepaque (ô.kô.tê.pâ.k'kî). Department in W Honduras, bounded by Guatemala and El Salvador. Capital, Ocotepaque; area, 674 sq. mi.; pop. 45,673 (1950).

Ocotlán (ô.kô.tlân'). Town in W Mexico, in Jalisco state, 14,289 (1940).

Ocracoke Inlet (ô'krâ.kôk). Sea passage in North Carolina, connecting Pamlico Sound with the Atlantic, ab. 30 mi. SW of Cape Hatteras.

Octateuch (ôk'tâ.tûk). [Also, Octoteuch.] The first eight books of the Old Testament, considered as forming one volume or series of books.

Octave (ôk.tâv). In Molière's Les Fourberies de Scapin, the son of Argante. In Thomas Otway's version he is called Octavian.

Octavia (ôk.tâ.vi.â). d. 11 B.C. Sister of Gaius Octavius (the emperor Augustus). She was the wife first of Gaius Marcellus, and afterward of Mark Antony. Her marriage with Antony was intended to confirm amicable relations between him and Octavius. She was supplanted in his affections by Cleopatra, and was divorced in 32.

Octavia. b. c42 A.D.; killed 62 A.D. Daughter of Claudius I and Messalina, and wife of Nero. Nero divorced her in order to marry Poppaea and soon afterward contrived to have her killed.

Octavian (ôk.tâ.vi.ân). Fifteenth-century romance relating to the emperor Augustus (who was born Gaius Octavius, and is often still called Octavian by some sources). There are two English versions from a French original, Octavien or Florent et Lyon.

Octavian. In George Colman the younger's play The Mountaineer, an inspired maniac.

Octavian Library. Library at Rome, the first library open to the public, founded by the emperor Augustus in honor of his sister Octavia. It was destroyed in the fire which raged at Rome for three days in the reign of Titus, 79-81 A.D.

Octavianum (ôk.tâ.vi.â.num). Latin name of Ottaviano, Italy.

Octavius (ôk.tâ.vi.us). Original name of the antipope Victor IV.

Octavius, Gaius. Original name of Augustus.

Octavius, Gnaeus. Killed at Rome, 87 B.C. Roman consul in 87 B.C. He was an adherent of Sulla, while his colleague, Lucius Cornelius Cinna, was an adherent of Marius. He was killed by the followers of Cinna.

October (ôk.tô'bêr). Tenth month of the year, containing 31 days. It derives its name from the fact that it was the eighth month in the early Roman calendar.

Octodurum (ôk.tô.dû'rûm). Latin name of Martigny, Switzerland.

Octopus: A Story of California, The. Novel by Frank Norris; published in 1901, the first book of an uncompleted trilogy known as the "Epic of the Wheat."

Octoroon, The. Play by Dion Boucicault, produced in 1859. It is one of the most popular plays in the history of the American theater and has been played many times since 1900.

Octoteuch (ôk'tô.tûk). See Octateuch.

O'Curry (ô.kur'î). Eugene. b. near Carigaholt, County Clare, Ireland, 1796; d. at Dublin, July 30, 1862. Irish archaeologist. He translated the ancient Brehon laws, the Book of Lismore, and others.

Ocypte (ô.sip'ê.tê). In Greek mythology, one of the three Harpies as personifications of destroying winds.

Odaenathus (ô.dâ.nâ'thus). See Odenathus.

Odawara (ô.dâ.wâ.râ). Coastal city in SE Honshu, Japan, in Kanagawa ken (prefecture) ab. 45 mi. SW of Tokyo, 75,334 (1950).

Odd-Fellows (ôd'fel'ôz). [Full name, The Independent Order of Odd-Fellows.] Secret benevolent and social society. The order arose in the 18th century, and various lodges were consolidated (c1814) into the Manchester Unity, which is now the principal body in Great Britain. There are also lodges in the U.S. (the first permanent lodge was founded in 1819), and in Germany, Switzerland, Australia, South America, and elsewhere. The object of the order in the U.S. is declared to be "to visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead, and educate the orphan, to improve and elevate the character of man."

Oddone Colonna (ôd.dô'nâ kô.lôn'nâ). Original name of Pope Martin V.

Odell (ô.del'), Benjamin Barker. b. at Newburgh, N.Y., Jan. 14, 1854; d. May 9, 1926. American politician. In 1894 he was elected to Congress from New York. He was elected (1900) governor of New York, serving two terms, during which he challenged the rule of Thomas C. Platt.

Odell, Jonathan. b. at Newark, N.J., Sept. 25, 1737; d. at Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada, Nov. 25, 1818. American clergyman and satirist. A Loyalist, he spent most of the Revolutionary years behind British lines, where he wrote lampoons in verse and prose deriding the American cause. The Loyal Verses of Joseph Stansbury and Doctor Jonathan Odell (1860) were compiled by Joel Munsell.

Odelsing or Odelsting (ô'dels.ting). Larger house of the Storting, or parliament, of Norway. It consists of those members of the Storting who have not been elected to the Lagting, the upper house, by the Storting itself, or three fourths of the whole number. All new measures must originate in the Odelsing.

Odenathus or Odaenathus (ô.dâ.nâ'thus). Killed 267 A.D. General and titular king of Palmyra, practically independent of the Romans; husband of Zenobia, who ruled after him. He defeated the Persians after Valerian had been captured (259) and restored large parts of the lost eastern territories to Rome.

Ödenburg (ô'den.bûrk). German name of Sopron.

Odenkirchen (ô'den.kir.chen). Former town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Niers River ab. 26 mi. NW of Cologne. It is now part of Rheydt.

Odense (ô'den.se). Amt (county) of Denmark comprising the northern half of Fyn island. Capital, Odense; area, 700 sq. mi.; pop. 231,427 (1945).

Odense. City in Denmark, on the island of Fyn, capital of the amt (county) of Odense, situated near the Odense Fjord, an inlet of the Great Belt, W of Copenhagen. The name is derived from that of the god Odin. It has a fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; harbor, with adjoining shipyards, and also metal, leather, and textile industries, sugar refineries, breweries, distilleries, and an agricultural trade. The Cathedral of Saint Canute, a brick Gothic building built in the period 1086-1301, contains the tombs of Canute and other Danish kings. The author Hans Christian Andersen was born here (his birthplace is now a museum). 100,940 (1950).

Odenwald (ô.dên.vâlt). Region in Germany, mainly in the SE part of Starkenburg, Hessen. It is traversed by four low parallel ridges, and is noted for its picturesque scenery and for its legends. Length, ab. 40 mi.; highest point, the Katzenbuckel (ab. 2,050 ft.).

Odéon (ô.dâ.ôn). One of the leading theaters of Paris, situated near the Luxembourg Palace. It was opened in 1782 as the Théâtre Français, was named the Théâtre de la Nation in 1789, and in 1796 was first called the Odéon. It was burned in 1799, and rebuilt in 1807, when it was named the Théâtre de l'Impératrice. At the restoration (1815) it became formally Le Second Théâtre Français (but continued to be called the Odéon). It began to play an especially important part in modern theatrical history under André Antoine's management (1906-14). Thereafter the theater has continued to present many modern plays, by Jules Romains, Paul Raynal, and others. Its present official name is Comédie française, salle du Luxembourg.

Oder (ô.dër). [Czech and Polish, Odra; Latin, Viadus, Viadua.] One of the chief rivers of E central Europe. It rises in Moravia, traverses SW Poland to its junction with the Neisse, then forms the boundary between E Germany and Poland nearly to its mouth in the Stettiner Haaf. Its chief tributary is the Warta. Among the cities on its banks are Racibórz, Opole, Wrocław, Głogów, Frankfurt on the Oder, and Szczecin. Length, ab. 540 mi.; navigable for small craft from Racibórz; for larger vessels from Wrocław.

Oderzo (ô.der'tsô). [Ancient name, Opitergium.] Town and commune in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, in the province of Treviso, ab. 26 mi. NE of Venice. It has a cathedral, mainly of the 15th and 16th centuries, but dated back in part to the 10th century. The town has suffered much in various wars, having been largely destroyed in the Roman civil wars by the followers of Pompey, and later by the Goths, Huns, and Lombards. In World War I, considerable damage was done during the period November, 1917-October, 1918, but the town went unscathed in World War II. Pop. of commune, 12,524 (1936); of town, 3,995 (1936).

Odescacchi (ô.dâs.kâl'kê), Benedetto. Original name of Pope Innocent XI.

Odessa (ô.des'â). Seaport in SW U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, on the Black Sea. It has many flour-milling and food-processing plants, and leather, clothing, woodworking, shoe, agricultural and transport machinery, jute, chemical, and tobacco industries. It is the chief seaport and commercial center of southern U.S.S.R., and one of the largest cities of the realm. It is the terminus of many steamer lines, and is especially noted for its export of grain; it also exports sugar, flour, wood, and hides. It receives petroleum, coal, and cement from other Black Sea ports. It has a university and various educational and scientific institutions, and constitutes a special municipal district. It was founded in 1794, and was bombarded (1854) by English and French forces during the Crimean War. It was the scene of revolutionary uprisings; especially of a naval revolt, in 1905, and suffered during the Russian Revolution. During World War II it underwent a siege by German forces, and finally fell on Oct. 16, 1941, after being extensively damaged by bombardment. The city was retaken by the Russians on April 10, 1944. Pop. 604,223 (1939).

Odessa. City in W Texas, county seat of Ector County, SW of Lubbock; important for the production of petroleum. The city was founded in 1881. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than tripled, 9,573 (1940), 29,495 (1950).

Odessus (ô.des'us). Ancient name of Varna, city.

Odets (ô.dets'), Clifford. b. at Philadelphia, July 18, 1906-. American playwright. He appeared (1923-30) as an actor in various plays, including several produced by the Theatre Guild, but he did not become well known until the appearance (1935) of the one-act play Waiting for Lefty, which he wrote and in which he played a part. He is the author also of Anacle and Sing (1935), Till the Day I Die (1935), Paradise Lost (1935), Golden Boy (1937), Rocket to the Moon (1938), Night Music (1940), Clash by Night (1941), The Big Knife (1949), The Country Girl (1950), and other plays. His Hollywood scenarios include The General Died at Dawn (1936), Humoresque (1942), and Deadline at Dawn (1944).

Odeum of Herodes (ô.dê'um; hê.rô'dêz) or of Regilla (re.jil'a). Theater at Athens, built by Herodes Atticus in the reign of Hadrian. It is semicircular, of Roman plan, and 260 ft. in diameter. The stage structure is one of the most perfect surviving.

Odilienberg (ô.dê'lyen.berk). German name of Ste.-Odile, Mont.

Odin (ô'din). [Also: Othin, Wodan, Woden.] In Old Norse mythology, the chief god of the Aesir and lord of Asgard, the home of the Aesir (the high gods). He is a warrior god, and lord of Valhalla, the paradise of heroes slain in battle. He is one-eyed, having given one eye in exchange for one draught from the well of wisdom. Thus he is the source of wisdom, and the patron of culture and of heroes. He is attended by two ravens, his informants, and two wolves, his watchdogs. He is devoured by the Fenis-wolf at Ragnarök, the great battle at the end of the world. Frigga is his consort. His name survives in Wednesday (Woden's day).

Odle (ô'dl), Mrs. Alan. See Richardson, Dorothy M.

Odium (ô'dlum), Jacqueline. Married name of Cochran, Jacqueline.

Odo (ô'dô). See also Eudes.

Odo. d. June 2, 959. Archbishop of Canterbury (942-959).

Odo. [Called Odo (or Eudes) of Bayeux.] d. at Palermo, Sicily, c1097. Norman prelate and nobleman; half brother of William the Conqueror. He became bishop of Bayeux in 1049, and was created Earl of Kent and Hereford after the Conquest (1066) of England. He was regent of the kingdom during the absence of William in 1067 and 1073. He was afterward imprisoned (1083), but was released on the death of William. He plotted against William II in favor of Robert II of Normandy, son of the Conqueror, and was on his way to Palestine with Robert in the first Crusade when he died.

Odoacer (ô.dô.'âs'îr). [Also: Odoacar, Odoavak, Orotkar.] b. c434; killed March 5, 493. Leader of the Heruli, Ruzii, and other Germanic tribes. He was (according to many authorities) the son of a Scythian chieftain, Edecon, who served under Attila. He entered the Roman army about the age of 30. In 475 the Western emperor Nepos was dethroned by Orestes, who elevated his own son Romulus Augustulus to the purple. Orestes caused a mutiny among his mercenaries by refusing to accede to a demand for a division among them of one third of the soil of Italy. Odoacer placed himself at the head of the disaffected troops, and in 476 overthrew Orestes and compelled Romulus Augustulus to abdicate. This is generally considered the date of the fall of the Western Roman Empire. He extinguished the title and office of Emperor of the West, and, assuming the title of patrician, ruled in the West, nominally as vicar of the Eastern emperor. He was overthrown and treacherously murdered by Theodoric, king of the Ostrogoths, who, after a long siege of Ravenna, signed a treaty with Odoacer, invited him to a banquet, and there killed him with his own sword.

Odobesti (ô.dô.besh'tê). Town in NE Rumania, in the province of Moldavia, situated NW of Galați in the foothills of the Transylvanian Alps, in a wine-growing district. 8,106 (1930).

Odonais (ô.dô.nê), Godin des. See Godin des Odonais. O'Donnell (ô.dôn'el; Spanish, ô.dhôn'el), Henry Joseph. [Title, Count of Abisbal.] b. 1769; d. May 6, 1834. Spanish general. He distinguished himself during the French invasion of Spain in 1809-10, and in 1811 captured Abisbal (whence his title).

O'Donnell, Leopoldo. [Titles: Count of Lucena, Duke of Tetuan.] b. at Santa Cruz, Tenerife, Canary Islands, Jan. 12, 1809; d. at Biarritz, France, Nov. 5, 1867. Spanish general: son of Henry Joseph O'Donnell. He fought against the Carlists (1833-39), and in July of the latter year forced Ramón Cabrera to raise the siege of Lucena, for which he was made count of Lucena and lieutenant general. Subsequently he protected the queen regent, María Cristina, in her retreat to France. In October, 1841, he headed an unsuccessful revolt against the regency of Baldomero Espartero. After the fall (1843) of the regency he was captain-general of Cuba (November, 1843–March, 1848). He was minister of war (1854–56), president of the cabinet (July 14–Oct. 12, 1856), and again premier and minister of war (June, 1858 et seq.). In the latter capacity he commanded in the campaign in Morocco (1859–60), and was made grandee of Spain and Duke of Tetuan. He resigned office in 1863, but once more held the premiership (1865–66).

O'Donoghue of Ross (ō.don'ō.hū; rōs). Legendary Irish hero, lord of Lake Killarney, its islands, and the surrounding region. According to the legend, he could be seen each May morning gliding over the lake on a white horse, and followed by youths and maidens strewing flowers.

O'Donoghú (ō.don'ō.hū), Juan. b. in Spain, c1755; d. in Mexico, Oct. 8, 1821. Last Spanish ruler of New Spain (Mexico). He was a lieutenant general in the army, and had held high official positions in Spain. In 1821 he was appointed captain-general and acting viceroy of New Spain, arriving at Vera Cruz July 30; but the revolution had acquired such strength that he could only treat with the leaders. On August 24 he signed with Agustín de Iturbide, at Córdoba, a treaty in which he agreed to surrender Mexico, and virtually adhered to the plan of Iguala. He was elected one of the five regents, and died in office.

O'Donovan (ō.don'ō.van), John. b. in County Kilkenny, Ireland, July 9, 1809; d. at Dublin, Dec. 9, 1861. Irish archaeologist. He published a grammar of the Irish language (1815).

O'Donovan, William Rudolf. b. in Virginia, March 28, 1844; d. April 20, 1920. American sculptor.

Odo of Bayeux (ō'dō; bā.yē'). See Odo (d. c1097).

Odo of Cluny (klō'nī). b. c879; d. 942 or 943. French churchman, second abbot of Cluny. The first reformer within the Benedictine Order, beginning in 910 with the founding of the abbey of Cluny, had Odo for its second (and perhaps greatest) leader. A learned and pious man as well as a great administrator, Odo wrote hymns and has been called the best musician of his time on the Continent.

Odo of Lagery (lā.zhe.rē'). Original name of Pope Urban II.

Odoorn (ō.dōrn'). Town in NE Netherlands, in the province of Drenthe, near the German border, ab. 35 mi. SE of Groningen, in an agricultural region, 12,794 (1939).

Oodorhei (ō.dōr.hā'). [Also: Oodorhal (ō.dōr.hī'); Hungarian, Székelyudvarhely.] Town in NW Rumania, in the province of Transylvania, ab. 73 mi. NE of Sibiu, 10,366 (1948).

Odotheus (ō.dō'thē.us). See Alatheus.

Odovacar or Odovakar (ō.dō.vā'kār). See Odoacer.

O'Dowd (ō.dōul'), Bernard Patrick. b. at Beaufort, Victoria, Australia, April 11, 1866—. Australian poet and lawyer. He was assistant librarian of the Victoria Supreme Court (1887–1913), first assistant state parliamentary draftsman (1913–31), and parliamentary draftsman (1931–35). He began publishing pamphlets of verse in 1903, and subsequently built up a reputation as a major poet of intellectualist tendencies, keenly reformist or "socialist" in outlook. His most famous single work is The Bush (1912).

Odra (ō'drā). Czech and Polish name of the Oder.

Odria (ō.driā'), Manuel A. b. at Tarma, Junín, Peru, Nov. 26, 1897—. Peruvian soldier, president of Peru (1948 et seq.). In 1946 he was chief of staff of the army and in 1947 minister of police, but he disagreed with official policy and resigned the latter post. In October, 1948, he headed a military junta that seized power from the civil administration on the ground that there was danger of seizure of the government by radical elements; Odria was named provisional president. The legislature was dissolved and complete control of the government was assumed by the junta. In 1950 he was elected president for a six-year term.

Oduly (ō.dō'li). See Yukaghirs.

O'Dwyer (ō.dwi'ēr), Joseph. b. at Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12, 1841; d. Jan. 7, 1898. American physician, the first to use intubation effectively for preventing death by asphyxia in diphtheria. He also pioneered in the use of diphtheria serum.

O'Dwyer, William. h. at Bohola, County Mayo, Ireland, July 11, 1890—. American politician and diplomat. He came to the U.S. in 1910, and for some years thereafter worked variously as a laborer, handy man, seaman, and fireman on a Hudson River boat. He became a member of the New York police force in 1917, began to study law in evening classes, and was admitted to the bar in 1923. He became head of the legal bureau of the New York Police Department, but resigned (1926) to set up in practice in Brooklyn. He was appointed a city magistrate in 1932. By appointment of Governor Herbert Lehman he became a judge of the County Court of Kings County (an administrative unit coextensive with the borough of Brooklyn) in 1937, and in 1938 was elected to the same bench. The following year he resigned to run, successfully, on the Democratic Party ticket, for the district attorneyship of Kings County. Three months after taking office in January, 1940, he proceeded to bring about indictments of members of a ring which the press dubbed "Murder Incorporated," to which 56 homicides were traced. As a result of convictions that sent seven murderers to the electric chair, O'Dwyer achieved national fame. He accepted the Democratic nomination for mayor of New York in 1941, but was unable to beat the popular incumbent, Fiorello LaGuardia. Later that year he volunteered for service in the army and was commissioned a major in 1942. After filling several posts within the U.S., and advancing to the rank of brigadier general, he was chosen by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as chief of the economic section of the Allied Control Commission in Italy, with the rank of minister and the status of personal representative of the President. In 1945 he was elected mayor of New York, and in 1949 was reelected, but in 1950 resigned to accept appointment by President Truman as ambassador to Mexico. It has been alleged that during his term as mayor certain gamblers and racketeers wielded large influence in Democratic Party circles in New York City, and certain of his appointees were later convicted of taking graft, or compelled to retire. He resigned as ambassador in 1952 and later announced his intention of remaining in Mexico.

Odysseus (ō.dīs'ūs, ō.dīs'ē.us). [Latin, Ulysses, Ulixes.] In Greek legend, a king of Ithaca, one of the heroes of the Trojan War, especially famous for his wanderings and exploits on the ten-year homeward voyage, related in the Odyssey. He was the son of Laertes, the husband of Penelope, and the father of Telemachus. His courage, craftiness, strategy, and resourcefulness in all emergencies make him the ideal representative of the Ionic Greeks.

Odyssey (od'i.sī). Epic poem, attributed to Homer, in which are celebrated the adventures of Odysseus ("Ulysses") during the ten years of wandering, spent in repeated endeavors to return to Ithaca, his native island, after the close of the Trojan War. Some critics, both ancient and modern, who have acknowledged the Homeric origin of the Iliad, attribute the Odyssey to a different author. These critics believe that the Odyssey is a later poem. The Odyssey is the only complete surviving example of a whole class of epics, called Nostoi, describing the return voyages of various Greek heroes from Troy. It represents Odysseus as being driven by a storm at the outset of his voyage to the coast of Thrace, north of the island of Lemnos. He plundered the town of Ismarus, belonging to the Cicones, where he lost a number of his followers. Next he was driven to the country of the Lotophagi (the Lotus-Eaters) on the coast of Libya; then to the goat island, which lay a day's voyage to the north of the Lotophagi. Leaving behind all his ships except one, he sailed to the neighboring island of the Cyclopes (the W coast of Sicily), where with 12 companions he entered the cave of the one-eyed Cyclopes, Polyphemus, a son of Poseidon. Polyphemus devoured six of the intruders, and kept Odysseus and the others prisoners. Odysseus made Polyphemus drunk with wine, put out his one eye with a burning pole, and escaped with the remnant of his companions by concealing himself and them under the bellies of the sheep which the blinded Cyclops let out of his cave (he ran his hands over their backs, but forgot that his enemies might be clinging to their bellies). Thenceforth, however, Odysseus was pursued by the anger of Poseidon, who sought to avenge the injury inflicted on his son. After further adventures, in which he lost all his ships except one, he arrived at the island of Aeaea, inhabited by the sorceress Circe. At her instance he made a journey to Hades, where he consulted the shade of the seer Tiresias. He then sailed by the island of the Sirens (near the W coast of Italy), passed between Seylla and Charybdis, and arrived at Trinacria, the island of Apollo. Here his companions killed some of the sacred oxen belonging to the god, with the result that they were all drowned in a shipwreck after leaving the island. Odysseus escaped with his life to the island of Ogygia, inhabited by the nymph Calypso, with whom he lived eight years. Leaving Ogygia on a raft built with the assistance of the nymph, he was again shipwrecked, but reached the island of the Phaeacians, where he was discovered naked by Nausicaa (the daughter of Alcinoos, their king), clothed, and presented at court, where he told his story. He was carried to Ithaca by the hospitable Phaeacians, and after slaying the suitors of his wife Penelope, who had been wasting his property during his absence, was welcomed by his wife and subjects.

Oea (ē'a). Ancient name of Tripoli, Libya.

Oechelhäuser (ē'chēl.hoi.zēr). Wiilhelm von. b. 1820; d. 1902. German industrialist, a director (1857-90) of the Continental Gas Company of Dessau. His name is now remembered chiefly because of the two-stroke double-piston internal-combustion Oechelhäuser engine, but he also helped found the German Shakespeare Society (1864) and was one of the editors of a seven-volume stage edition of 27 of Shakespeare's plays (1870-78).

Oedanes (ē.dā'nēs). An ancient name of the Brahmaputra.

Oedipe (ē.dēp). Tragedy by Pierre Corneille, produced in 1659.

Edipe. Tragedy by Voltaire, produced on Nov. 18, 1718. It was written during a period (1717-18) of imprisonment in the Bastille for certain of his early satires.

Oedipus (ed'i.pus, ē'di-). In Greek legend, a king of Thebes; son of Laius and Jocasta. Because of a prophecy that he would kill his father and marry his mother, the infant Oedipus was taken out and abandoned in the mountains, with a spike through his feet (Oedipus means literally "swollen foot"). He was found, however, by a shepherd who took him to the king of Corinth, and here he was reared as the king's son. When Oedipus was grown and learned that he was destined to kill his father and marry his mother, he ran away from home, heading for Thebes. En route he met Laius in a narrow pass, and killed him in an argument over the right of way. Thus unknowingly Oedipus fulfilled the first half of the prophecy. When he arrived at Thebes, he was confronted with the Sphinx, guessed the riddle of the Sphinx, thereby liberating the city of Thebes from the monster and all future non-guessers from being devoured, and for this he was rewarded with the hand of the queen of Thebes (Jocasta) in marriage. Thus unknowingly he married his mother and fulfilled the second half of the prophecy. The couple lived in happy ignorance for several years, but eventually Oedipus learned the truth, and blinded himself in self-punishment. Jocasta hanged herself. It was this story, or parts of it, which provided the basis of three of Sophocles's greatest tragedies (Oedipus Rex, Antigone, and Oedipus at Colonus); many later writers and composers (even into the 20th century, with Jean Cocteau and Igor Stravinsky) have made adaptations of it.

OEEC. See Organization for European Economic Coöperation.

Oehlnschläger (ē'len.shlā.gēr). Adam Gottlob. [Also, Öhlnschläger.] b. at Vesterbro, near Copenhagen, Nov. 14, 1779; d. there, Jan. 20, 1850. Danish romantic poet and dramatist, poet laureate of Scandinavia. During his student days he entered an essay contest on the question whether Scandinavian poets should make use of Norse rather than of Greek mythology (he supported the Norse). He did not win the honors, but the event turned his ambition definitely toward literature, and toward the thought of exalting his country and her heroes (the British bombardment of Copenhagen and seizure of the Danish fleet in 1801 had caused a surge of patriotism in which he fully shared). At this time, too, he came under the influence of a Norwegian writer who had spent several years in Germany, in close association with Goethe, Schiller, Fichte, and Schelling; Oehlnschläger sought him out, talked with him all night and most of the following day, and upon returning to his home, wrote the first of his noted works, Guldhornene (The Golden Horns), taking his inspiration from certain ancient inscribed horns which had lately been unearthed, which he represented as a divine omen summoning the Danes to remember the glories of their past. Guldhornene, published in 1803, was followed in the same year by Digte (Poems), including lyrics, ballads, and a dramatic poem, "Sanet-Hansaften-Spil" (The Play of Saint John's Eve), a volume which revealed to Danes the poetic potentialities of their language and became the foundation of modern Danish poetry. In 1805 appeared Poetiske Skrifter (Poetical Writings), continuing the use of Scandinavian themes in the romantic manner, and also including the fairy-tale drama Aladdin, which before long he was to read, in a German translation, to Goethe. Oehlnschläger made an extended visit to Germany, France, and Italy (1805-09), during which he met not only Goethe but also Schleiermacher, Fichte, Mme. de Staël, and Thorvaldsen. These years abroad were his greatest creative period, during which he wrote Hakon Jarl (Earl Hakon), Baldur hin Gode (Baldur the Good), Thors Rejse til Jotunheim (Thor's Journey to Jotunheim), Palnatoke, Axel og Valborg (Axel and Valborg), and Correggio. Axel og Valborg, a tragic drama of love, and a work of which Oehlnschläger's countrymen are especially fond, stands in the forefront of Danish literature and is by many considered to belong among the world's great poetic dramas. Hakon Jarl and Palnatoke deal with dramatic events attending the introduction of Christianity into Norway and Denmark respectively. Upon returning to Denmark in 1809, Oehlnschläger was lionized and named professor of aesthetics at the University of Copenhagen. Twenty years later, on his 50th birthday, he visited Sweden, and was there crowned poet laureate of the Scandinavian countries.

Oeland (ē'länd). See Öland.

Oelde (ē'l'dē). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, on the Axt River ab. 25 mi. SE of Münster. It has enamelware and woodenware industries, and agricultural trade. 11,113 (1950).

Oels (ēls). German name of Olešnica.

Oelsnitz or Ölsnitz (ēls'nits). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, in the Erzgebirge ab. 13 mi. SW of Chemnitz, in a coal-mining district. 16,024 (1946).

Oelsnitz or Ölsnitz. [Also, Oelsnitz (or Ölsnitz) im Vogtland (im fōkt'lānt).] Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, situated on the Elster River, in the Vogtland district, ab. 25 mi. SW of Zwickau; industrial town. Manufactures include cloth, rugs, curtains, lingerie, embroidery, and furniture; there are also machine factories, brickyards, tanneries, and breweries. 20,024 (1946).

Oelwein (ō'l'win). [Called "The Hub."] City in NE Iowa, in Fayette County; railroad shops. It is a junction point for six railroads. 7,858 (1950).

Oeneus (ē'nē.us). In Greek legend, a king of Calydon; husband of Althaea, and father of Meleager, Deianira, and Tydeus. Because he neglected a sacrifice to Artemis, she sent a savage boar to destroy his country. It was killed in the famous Calydonian boar hunt.

Oenipontum (ē.ni.pon'tum). Latin name of Innsbruck.

Oenomaus (ē.nō.mā'us). In Greek legend, a king in Elis; son of Ares, and father of Hippodamia by the Pleiad Sterope. He was also said to be the son of Ares and Sterope. He was opposed to his daughter's ever marrying, either because he was slated to die at that time, or because of incestuous love. He therefore engaged all her suitors in a chariot race. Only Pelops, the 14th suitor, by trickery, won the contest, thus becoming eligible as a husband. Oenomaus was either killed in this chariot race, or later killed himself.

Oenone (ē.nō.nē). In Greek legend, the beloved of Paris before he knew Helen. She was a nymph of Mount Ida, and versed in healing. When Paris received an arrow wound in the Trojan War, he sought her help, but out of jealousy she refused him. When he died she threw herself on his funeral pyre in grief and remorse.

Oenophyta (ē.nō'fī.tā). In ancient geography, a place in Boeotia, Greece, ab. 23 mi. N of Athens. Here the Athenians under Myronides defeated (456 B.C.) the Boeotians.

Oenotria (ē.nō'trī.ā). In ancient geography, a name given by the Greeks to the S part of Italy.

Oenus (ē'nus). Latin name of the Inn.

Oer-Erkenschwick (ē'r'ē.kən.shvīk). Town in NW Germany in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia; a northeastern suburb of Recklinghausen. 20,008 (1950).

Oersted (ē'r'stērn), Anders Sandøe. [Danish, Anders Sandø Ørsted.] b. at Rudkøbing, Denmark, Dec. 21, 1778; d. May 1, 1860. Danish statesman, jurist, and author; brother of Hans Christian Oersted. He served (1853-54) as premier.

Oersted, Hans Christian. [Danish, Hans Christian Ørsted.] b. at Rudkøbing, Denmark, Aug. 14, 1777; d. March 9, 1851. Danish physicist, professor at Copenhagen, especially celebrated for his discovery of electromagnetism in 1819; brother of Anders Sandø Oersted. Oersted's discovery, which opened up a field quickly investigated all over Europe, was that a magnet took a position at right angles to the direction of an electric current. He published Aanden i Naturen (Spirit in Nature, 1850), and other works.

Oertel (ō'r'tel), Abraham. See Oertelius.

OES. See Office of Economic Stabilization.

Oesel (ē'zēl). German name of Saare.

Oesterley (ē's'tēr.lī). See Österley.

Oesterreich (ē's'tēr.rīch). German name of Austria.

Oestre (ē's'trē). Old English form of Ostara.

Oeta (ē'tā). [Also, Katavothra.] Mountain group in S Thessaly. It forms the N barrier of C Greece, and is flanked by the pass of Thermopylae. Peak elevation, ab. 7,600 ft.

Oetzsch-Mark-Kleeberg (ēch'märk'klē'berk). Former name of Markkleeberg.

Oetzthal (ēts'tāl). See Ötztal.

Ötztal Alps (ēts'tāl.ēr). See Ötztaler Alps.

Oeynhaus (ē'in.hou.zen), Bad. See Bad Oeynhaus.

O'Fallon (ō'fal'on). City in SW Illinois, near East St. Louis. A major U.S. air base, Scott Field, is situated in the vicinity. 3,022 (1950).

Ofanto (ō'fan'tō). [Latin, Aufidus.] River in SE Italy, which flows into the Adriatic Sea ab. 39 mi. NW of Bari. Length, ab. 100 mi.

O'Faoláin (ō'fal'an), Seán. b. at Cork, Ireland, Feb. 22, 1900—. Irish writer. Author of the short-story collections Midsummer Night Madness (1932) and A Purse of Coppers (1937), the novels A Nest of Simple Folk (1933) and Come Back to Erin (1940), the biographies Constance Markievicz (1934), King of the Beggars (1938); about Daniel O'Connell, De Valera (1939), and The Great O'Neill (1942), the survey sketch of his people, The Irish (1947), and others.

O'Feeney (ō'fē'ni), Sean. Original name of Ford, John.

Ofen (ō'fēn). German name of Buda; see under Buda-pest.

Offa (ō'fā). d. 796. King of Mercia from c757 to 796. He fought and defeated Kent in 775 and extended his lands to include the East Saxons. He conquered Oxfordshire from Wessex (779) and subjugated the Welsh kingdom of Powys, west of the Severn. By marriage he allied himself with Wessex and Northumbria and seems to have held sway over all the area south of the Humber. His power was sufficient to have Ethelbert, king of East Anglia, beheaded in 794 and to establish, with papal sanction, an archbishopric at Lichfield (788). He corresponded with Charlemagne, with whom he made a commercial treaty (796). He drew up a law code which, though known to King Alfred, has since perished.

Offaly (ō'fā.li). [Former name, King's County; Irish, Uí Failghe.] Inland county of the Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It is bounded on the N by County Westmeath, on the NE by County Meath, on the E by County Kildare, on the S by Counties Laoighis and Tipperary, on the W by Counties Tipperary and Galway, and on the NW by County Roscommon. The surface is generally level and much of it lies within the great Bog of Allen. The Slieve Bloom Mountains lie along the S boundary with County Laoighis. County Offaly is crossed by the Grand Canal. Tullamore is the county seat; area, ab. 771 sq. mi.; pop. 52,555 (1951).

Offaly, Baron—A title of Fitzgerald, Thomas.

Offa's Dyke (ō'fā.az). Entrenchment extending from near the mouth of the river Wye N near the border of England and Wales to the mouth of the river Dee. It was built for defense against the Welsh by Offa, king of Mercia.

Offenbach (ō'fēn.bāch). City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the province of Starkenburg, free state of Hesse, situated on the Main River ab. 4 mi. E of Frankfurt on the Main. Practically a suburb of Frankfurt, it is a considerable industrial center in its own right, particularly for its manufacture of leather goods; it also has paper, rubber, machine, and metal manufactures, tobacco and foodstuff (sugar) industries, and chemical and printing establishments. The city was of small importance until French Huguenot refugees settled here at the end of the 17th century; they developed its industries. It suffered heavy damage in World War II. 89,030 (1950).

Offenbach (ō'fēn.bāk; French, o.fen.bāk). Jacques. b. near Cologne, Germany, June 20, 1819; d. at Paris, Oct. 5, 1880. French composer of opera bouffe. He was conductor of the orchestra of the Théâtre Français in 1848, and began to attract attention by the production of operettas at small theaters. In 1855 he took the Théâtre Comte, changed its name to Les Bouffes Parisiens, and became at once popular. Among his opera bouffes, the librettos of which were written principally by Ludovic Halévy and Henri Meilhac, are Orphée aux enfers (1858), La Belle Hélène (1864), Barbe-bleue (1866), La Grande-duchesse de Gérolstein (1867), Madame Favart (1878), and many others. Les Contes d'Hoffmann (produced after his death, in 1881) was an attempt at a more serious work; it contains the much-played Barcarolle.

Offenburg (ō'fēn.bürk). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Baden, French Zone, formerly in the free state of Baden, situated on the Kinzig River and the slopes of the Black Forest, ab. 12 mi. SE of Strasbourg. It has an agricultural trade, tobacco manufactures, and shoe, leather, and enamelware industries. The parish church dates from the 14th century; the Church of the Franciscans and the Rathaus (town hall) from the 18th century. Offenburg became a free imperial city in 1289, passed to the bishopric of Strasbourg in the 14th century, and to Austria in the 16th century. The town became part of Baden in 1805. Pop. 22,560 (1950).

Office of Economic Stabilization. [Called the OES.] U.S. agency established (1942) under the Office of Emergency Management. It was charged with working out national economic policies designed to stabilize the U.S. defense economy during World War II and combat inflationary tendencies. It was responsible for controlling wages, purchasing power, rents, and the migration of labor. The OES was abolished in 1945, established again in February, 1946, and in December, 1946, was given over to the Office of Temporary Controls for dissolution.

Office of Price Administration. [Called the OPA.] U.S. government agency created by presidential authority on April 11, 1941, as the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, and as the Office of Price Administration in August, 1941. Its chief aim was the prevention of wartime economic dislocation, profiteering, and inflation, by fixing price controls on a wide range of producers' goods and consumer commodities. Its functions were reinforced and extended by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 and subsequent legislation. The Price Control Extension Act of 1946 sharply curtailed the OPA's powers. On Dec. 12, 1946, its functions were taken over by the Office of Temporary Controls.

Office of Scientific Research and Development. [Called the OSRD.] U.S. government body set up on June 28, 1941, under the Office of Emergency Management for the purpose of encouraging and undertaking wartime scientific investigations. It assumed and expanded the functions of the earlier National Defense Research Committee and supported university and commercial organizations carrying out projects initiated by the OSRD.

Office of Strategic Services. [Called the OSS.] U.S. intelligence unit established during World War II for the purpose of securing and estimating data on enemy and enemy-occupied territory. It was headed by Brigadier General William J. Donovan, and had agents in all of the major theaters of operations.

Office of War Information. [Called the OWI.] U.S. wartime agency set up under presidential authority on June 13, 1942, with the aim of carrying out information activities at home and abroad designed to further public understanding of the U.S. war effort and its progress. The OWI, headed by Elmer Davis, absorbed the functions of the Office of Government Reports, the office of Facts and Figures, the Foreign Information Service, and other federal information agencies. The OWI was terminated on Aug. 31, 1945.

Offray de La Mietrie (o.f.rä də lä me.trë), Julien. See Lametttrie, Julien Offray de.

Of Human Bondage. Novel by W. Somerset Maugham, published in 1915. It is the story of an idealistic medical student and a selfish woman, Mildred Rogers, a London waitress. Autobiographical touches are prominent in the character of the sensitive Philip Carey, the student, for in his youth Maugham studied medicine at St. Thomas's Hospital, London. Leslie Howard and Bette Davis appeared in the screen version of the novel.

O'Flaherty (o.flä'hér.ti), Liam. b. in the Aran Islands, 1896—. Irish novelist. His Thy Neighbor's Wife (1924) was followed by The Informer (1925), which was turned into a screen play which won (1935) the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences award. Author also of Mr. Gilhooley (1926), The Assassin (1928), Famine (1937), Land (1946), Two Lovely Beasts and Other Stories (1950), and others.

Of Mice and Men. Novelle by John Steinbeck, published in 1937 and dramatized (1938) by the author. It was adapted (1940) for the films.

Ofof Fjord (o'föt). Long fjord indenting the coast of N Norway, near the Lofoten Islands. During World War II it was the scene of several naval battles between the invading Germans and Allied naval units (1940).

Ofterdingen (o'f'tér.ding.en), Heinrich von. See Heinrich von Ofterdingen.

Of Time and the River: A Legend of Man's Hunger in His Youth. Autobiographical novel by Thomas Wolfe, published in 1935 as a sequel to Look Homeward, Angel (1929).

Ofo (o'fö). Island in the SW central Pacific Ocean, administered by U.S. authorities on Samoa. Pop. ab. 500.

Og (og). Gigantic Amorite king of Bashan, defeated by the Israelites at the epoch of their entrance into Canaan. (Deut. iii. 11). In Biblical legend, Og was a giant who survived the Flood (Noah fed him through a hole in the ark) for 500 years, and was finally killed by Moses with an ax.

Ogaden (o.gä'dän). Region in E Ethiopia and NW Somalia, in E Africa, situated on the E slopes of the Ethiopian highlands. It is a dry and mountainous region, intersected by numerous deep canyons. The inhabitants are stock-rearing nomadic Somali.

Ogallala (o.gä.lä'alä). City in W Nebraska, county seat of Keith County, on the South Platte River: terminal point of a cattle trail used during the late 1800's. 3,456 (1950).

Ogasawara Gunto (o.gä.sä.wä.rä gön.tō) or Ogasawara-jima (o.gä.sä.wä.rä.jē.mä) or Ogasawara Sima (shē.mä). Japanese names of the Bonin Islands.

Ogbomosho (og.bō.mō'shō). City in W Africa, in Western Provinces, Nigeria, situated on a main highway ab. 130 mi. NE of Lagos. It serves as the commercial center for the densely populated area in which it lies. 85,000 (est. 1950).

Ogburntown (og'börn.toun). Unincorporated community in NW North Carolina, in Forsyth County: a northeastern suburb of Winston-Salem. 3,653 (1950).

Ogden (og'den). [Former name, Brownsville.] City in N Utah, county seat of Weber County, on the Weber River ab. 32 mi. N of Salt Lake City: second largest city in the state; railroad shops, flour mills, and packing houses. It is an important junction of the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, and Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroads. It is the seat of Weber Junior College. Settled c1844, it occupies the site of a former fort. 57,112 (1950).

Ogden, Aaron. b. at Elizabethtown, N.J., Dec. 3, 1756; d. at Jersey City, N.J., April 19, 1839. American soldier in the Revolutionary War, U.S. senator from New Jersey (1801-03) and governor of New Jersey (1812-13). He was assigned the rights to exclusive steamboat navigation in New York waters originally granted by the New York legislature to Robert Livingston and Robert Fulton. When Thomas Gibbons established a rival line between New Jersey and New York, Ogden obtained an injunction to stop him. Gibbons thereupon brought suit against Ogden on appeal to the Supreme Court. The case (Gibbons vs. Ogden, 9 Wheaton 1), decided in 1824, is one of the milestones in the establishment of federal power, since the decision held that the commerce clause of the Constitution overrode any state power.

Ogden, Francis Barber. b. at Broomfield, N.J., March 3, 1783; d. at Bristol, England, July 4, 1857. American engineer and diplomatic official. He aided John Ericsson in the latter's development and promotion of the screw propeller for steam-powered craft.

Ogden, George Washington. b. in Kansas, Dec. 9, 1871—. American writer of Western adventure stories such as Whiskey Trail and Windy Range. He published the autobiography There Were No Heroes (1939).

Ogden, Henry Alexander. b. at Philadelphia, Pa., July 17, 1856; d. 1936. American illustrator. He made a collection of the uniforms of the U.S. Army from 1775 to 1906. Among his publications is The Boy's Book of Famous Regiments.

Ogden, Herbert Gouverneur. b. at New York, April 4, 1846; d. at Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 25, 1906. American cartographer and topographer. In 1863 he entered the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, with which he was associated in various capacities until the end of his life.

Ogden, Peter Skene. b. at Quebec, Canada, 1794; d. near Oregon City, Ore., Sept. 27, 1854. Canadian fur trader, mainly in the Pacific Coast area. He was chief factor (1835-54) of the Hudson's Bay Company in charge of business on the Columbia River. Much of the territory now in Idaho, Utah, Nevada, and California was first explored by him. He is also remembered as author of Trails of American Indian Life and Character (1853), published under the pseudonym "A Fur Trader," which is actually a book of reminiscences.

Ogden, Robert Curtis. b. at Philadelphia, June 20, 1836; d. at Kennebunkport, Me., Aug. 6, 1913. American retail merchant and philanthropist, noted for his encouragement and support of education in the South. He was associated with the New York clothing house of Devlin and Company until 1879, when he joined John Wanamaker's Philadelphia retail venture, of which he served as head (1889-93), and in 1896 opened the Wanamaker establishment at New York. He retired in 1907. A trustee of the Hampton Institute in Virginia (of whose board of trustees he later became president), he was head of the Southern Education Board, a director of the Union Theological Seminary, and a trustee of Tuskegee Institute.

Ogden, Rollo. b. at Sand Lake, N.Y., Jan. 19, 1856; d. Feb. 22, 1937. American journalist and Presbyterian clergyman. He was a pastor at Cleveland (1880-81, 1883-87). He was associated (1891-1920), as editor (1903-20), with the New York Evening Post, and edited (1922 et seq.) the New York Times.

Ogden, William Butler. b. at Walton, N.Y., June 15, 1805; d. at New York, Aug. 3, 1877. American merchant and railroad president, prominent in developing the Northwest. He became (1837) first mayor of Chicago and was president (1862 et seq.) of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Ogdensburg (og'denz.börg). [Former names: Fort La Présentation, Oswegatchie.] City in N New York, in St. Lawrence County, at the entrance of the Oswegatchie River into the St. Lawrence River: port of entry; manufactures of brass products, powdered milk, casein, silk, and clothing. It was founded by the French (1749) as Fort La Présentation, was held by the British (1760-96), was renamed Oswegatchie, and in 1792 became Ogdensburg. It was used as a base against the British in the Revolutionary War. It became a city in 1868. Pop. 16,166 (1950).

Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheaton 213 (1827) (sôn'dérz). U.S. Supreme Court decision holding that the obligation of a contract within the meaning of the contract clause of the Constitution consists not merely in the promise or agreement between the parties but also in the law applicable to the subject which is in existence when the contract is made. This rule makes it possible for the states to pass general laws reserving the right to amend or repeal corporate charters under certain circumstances. The case involved the constitutionality of many state bankruptcy laws. The court, in a four to three decision, held the legislation valid, but confined its application to the state in which it was passed. The case is also noteworthy on two accounts. It was the occasion for Chief Justice John Marshall's sole dissenting opinion on a constitutional question. It was also the occasion for Justice Bushrod Washington's classic statement of an important judicial principle of the high court: "It is but a decent respect to the wisdom, integrity, and patriotism of the legislative body, by which any law is passed, to presume in favor of its validity, until its violation of the Constitution is proved beyond all reasonable doubt."

Ogé (ô.zhâ), Jacques Vincent. [Also, Ojé.] b. c1755; d. at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Feb. 26, 1791. Haitian insurgent. He was a light mulatto. Educated at Paris, he represented the colony in the French constituent assembly at the beginning of the French Revolution. In 1790 he organized in the U.S. a secret expedition for the emancipation of the Negroes in Haiti. He landed at Cape François (October 23), but after some slight successes was defeated, captured, and broken on the wheel. He was regarded as a martyr by the Negro population, and his cruel death led to the practical extermination of the whites soon after.

Ogeechee (ô.gē'chē). River in SE Georgia which flows into the Atlantic ab. 17 mi. S of Savannah. Length, ab. 250 mi.

Ogéron de la Bouère (ô.zhâ.rôn de là bö.ër), Bertrand Denis d'. b. near Angers, France, 1615; d. at Paris, in December, 1675. French adventurer, founder of the colony of Haiti.

Oggione (ô.d.jō'nâ) or Uggione (ôd-), Marco da. b. at Oggiono, Italy, c1460; d. 1530. Italian painter, chiefly known from his copies of Leonardo da Vinci's Last Supper (now at London and Milan).

Ogier the Dane (ô'jî.ër). [Danish, Holger Danske, Olger Dansk; French, Ogier le Danois (ô.zhâ.le dâ.nwâ), Ogier de Danemarcke (de dâ.n.mâr.k).] National hero of Denmark, celebrated in the ballads, folk songs, and legends of Denmark. The story is that he now lies asleep in the Kronenberg mountain and will wake to rescue his country in time of danger. In the medieval French chansons de geste, he is a Danish prince, but one of the paladins of Charlemagne. Ogier, the son of Geofrey, king of Denmark, is brought up at the court of Charlemagne, and at one period of the romance assumes the crown of Denmark; but he tires of it and returns to Charlemagne, becoming one of his chief paladins. After a successful warlike career at the age of 100 years he is carried away to the Isle of Avalon by Morgan le Fay, who restores him to youth, with entire forgetfulness of the world, but sends him back after 200 years to defend France. After repelling its invaders and restoring the old spirit of knighthood, he returns to Avalon, where he sleeps, and whence he may again awake and return to defend the right.

Ogilby (ô'gl.bi), John. b. at Edinburgh, 1600; d. at London, Sept. 4, 1676. Scottish poet, translator, and compiler of atlases. He published America, being the most accurate Description of the New World (1671), as well as translations of the Iliad and Odyssey, Aesop's fables, and others, and three epic poems. He is ridiculed in John Dryden's MacFlecknoe and Alexander Pope's The Dunciad.

Ogilvie (ô'gl.vi), Frederick Wolff. b. at Valparaíso, Chile, Feb. 7, 1893; d. at London, June 10, 1949. British educator. He was professor (1926-34) of political economy at Edinburgh, president and vice-chancellor (1934-38) of Queen's University at Belfast, and principal (1944 et seq.) of Jesus College at Oxford. He served as director general (1938-42) of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Ogilvie, John. b. in Marnoch, Banffshire, Scotland, April 17, 1797; d. at Aberdeen, Scotland, Nov. 21, 1867. Scottish lexicographer. He compiled The Imperial Dictionary (1847-50), The Comprehensive English Dictionary (1863), The Student's English Dictionary (1865), and An English Dictionary . . . for the Use of Schools (1867).

Ogle (ô'gl). Character in Susannah Centlivre's comedy The Beau's Duel, who fancies everybody is in love with him.

Ogleby (ô'gl.bi), Lord. In David Garrick and George Colman the elder's The Clandestine Marriage, a faded and delicate but witty old beau.

Oglesby (ô'gl.bi). City in N Illinois, in La Salle County; cement manufacturing center, 3,922 (1950).

Oglesby, Richard James. b. in Oldham County, Ky., July 25, 1824; d. at Elkhart, Ill., April 24, 1899. American politician and soldier. He was a general in the Civil War. He was governor of Illinois (1865-69, 1873, and 1885-89), and served as U.S. senator (1873-79).

Oglethorpe (ô'gl.thôrp), James Edward. b. at London, Dec. 22, 1696; d. in Essex, England, June 30, 1785. English soldier and philanthropist, founder of the Georgia colony. He was educated at Eton and Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and followed a military career in England and of the Continent. He went to Parliament in 1722 as a moderate High Tory and sat in that body for 32 years. His humanitarian zeal and his interest in penal reform influenced the development of his scheme to send debtors to America. Together with 19 associates he received (June 9, 1732) a charter naming them "Trustees for establishing the colony of Georgia in America" for a 21-year period. Oglethorpe devoted himself to raising funds for the enterprise, in behalf of which he wrote A New and Accurate Account of the Provinces of South Carolina and Georgia (1732). He sailed from England in 1732, landing at Charleston on Jan. 13, 1733, and took charge of the administration of the Georgia colony. He returned to England in 1734 to secure measures for the benefit of the settlement, and came back to Georgia in 1736. His policy of religious toleration attracted Moravians, Presbyterians, and others to the colony. Difficulties with the Spaniards in Florida and the Carolina colony to the north led to Oglethorpe's return (1736-37) to England, where he put an end to criticism by securing a compromise with reference to Carolina; however, the Spanish issue still remained, and Oglethorpe went to Georgia in September, 1738, at the head of a regiment of 700 men. The subsequent hostilities against the Spanish saved Georgia for Great Britain; but after an unsuccessful attack on St. Augustine in 1743, dissatisfaction in the colony came to a head, causing Oglethorpe to return to England in September, 1743. He was cleared by a court-martial, but his career as a colonizer was effectively brought to an end.

Oglio (ô'lyô). [Latin, Ollivus.] River in N Italy, joining the Po ab. 10 mi. SW of Mantua. It traverses Lake Iseo. Length, ab. 175 mi.

Ogma (ôg'mâ). In Old Irish mythology, the god of eloquence and poetry. He was one of the Tuatha De Danann (the divine, immortal race of Ireland) and is said to have devised the system of writing called ogham. This is a system for representing the characters of the ancient Old Irish alphabet (based on the Latin) comprised of notches, representing the vowels, and lines, representing the consonants. There were five vowels and 15 consonants. These were cut into the edges of stones and pillars, and were used especially in the 5th and 6th centuries A.D. for commemorative and funerary inscriptions. Ogma is identified with the Gallic god Ogmios.

Ogmios (ôg'mē.ôs). Ancient Gallic god of eloquence, equated with the Old Irish Ogma. The Romans, when they invaded Gaul, identified Ogmios with their own Mercury.

Ogmore and Garw (ôg'môr; gâr'ô). Urban district in S Wales, in Glamorganshire, ab. 6 mi. N of Bridgend, fât, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, nôve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ð, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

ab. 174 mi. W of London by rail: ruins of Ogmere Castle. 22,638 (1951).

Ognev (og.nyó'f), N. See Ognyov, N.

Ognon (o.nyóh) or Oignon (wá.nyóh). River in E France, chiefly in the department of Haute-Saône, which joins the Saône ab. 21 mi. E of Dijon. During the Franco-Prussian War, various engagements were fought near its banks in October, 1870, and January, 1871. Length, ab. 120 mi.

Ognyov (og.nyó'f), N. [Also: Ognev; pseudonym of Mikhail Grigoryevich Rozanov.] b. 1888; d. 1938. Russian novelist. His main work, published in the 1920's, is The Diary of Kostya Ryabchev, picturing the life of a Soviet schoolboy, with a sequel taking him through his university years. An English translation of the first part of the Diary was issued in 1928.

Ogoki (o.gó'ki). River in C Ontario, Canada, flowing generally NE from the vicinity of Lake Nipigon to the Albany River. Length, ab. 300 mi.

Ogoni (o.gó'né). Subgroup of the Semi-Bantu-speaking Ibibio people of W Africa, inhabiting SE Nigeria NE of Port Harcourt. Their population is estimated at ab. 75,000 (by P. A. Talbot, The Peoples of Southern Nigeria, 1926).

Ogoué (o.gó.wá'). [Also: Ogoway, Ogowé.] River in W central Africa, in Gabon territory, French Equatorial Africa; it flows through a delta into the Atlantic Ocean S of Rio Muni and the Bight of Biafra. Length, ab. 500 mi.

O'Gorman (o.gó'm'an), Thomas. b. at Boston, May 1, 1843; d. at Sioux Falls, S.D., Sept. 18, 1921. American Roman Catholic prelate and educator. Author of A History of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States (1895).

O'Gorman Mahon (ma.hón', -hón'), the. See Mahon, Charles James Patrick.

Ogoway or Ogowé (o.gó.wá'). See Ogoué.

OGPU (og'pú). [Called the Gay Pay Oo.] Name (1922-34) of the secret police of the U.S.S.R. The term is formed from the initial letters of a Russian phrase meaning "combined department of political police." The OGPU took over the functions of the earlier Cheka, and was itself reorganized (1934) as the NKVD (later known as the MVD).

O'Grady (o.grá.dé), Les Discours du docteur. See Discours du docteur O'Grady, Les.

O Guarani (o gwá.ra.né'). Brazilian romantic novel (1857), by José de Alencar, which depicts the love of a Brazilian Indian warrior for a white girl. It has been made into an opera (Il Guarany) by Antônio Carlos Gomes, Brazilian composer.

Ogyges (oj'ijéz). In Greek mythology, a king of Boeotia whose reign was associated with a destructive deluge.

Ogygia (oj'ij'ia). In classical geography, the island of Calypso, referred to in the Odyssey. Plutarch says it lies due west, beneath the setting sun.

Ogyiek (o.gyé'ek). See Dorobo.

O'Hara (o.há'ra), Geoffrey. b. Feb. 2, 1882—. American composer. He made an intensive study of Indian melodies. Among his compositions are the operettas Peggy and the Pirate (1927), Riding Down the Sky (1928), and Harmony Hall (1933). Among his songs are There is No Death, K-K-K-Katy, Wreck of the Julie Plante, Leetle Bateese, If Christ Came Back, and Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride.

O'Hara, John Francis. b. at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 1, 1888—. American Roman Catholic clergyman and educator, president (1934-39) of Notre Dame. He served as military delegate (1940-45) of all Roman Catholics in the armed forces.

O'Hara, John Henry. b. at Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 31, 1905—. American journalist and novelist. He has been a writer for the motion pictures since 1934. O'Hara's reportorial style is enhanced by a sharp eye for significant detail and accurate delineation of conversation. Author of the novels Appointment in Samarra (1934), Butterfield 8 (1935), Hope of Heaven (1938), A Rage to Live (1949), and The Farmers Hotel (1951). His collections of short stories include The Doctor's Son (1935), Files on Parade (1939), Pipe Night (1945), and Hell Box (1947). He adapted his Pal Joey (1940) into a musical comedy (1940).

O'Hara, Scarlett. Heroine of Gone With the Wind (1936), novel by Margaret Mitchell.

O'Hara, Theodore. b. at Danville, Ky., Feb. 11, 1820; d. near Guerryton, Ala., June 6, 1867. American soldier and poet. He served in the Mexican and Civil wars, rising to the rank of colonel in the Confederate service. He wrote the poems The Bivouac of the Dead and The Old Pioneer.

O. Henry (ó hen'ri). Pseudonym of Porter, William Sydney.

Ohier (o.yá), Louis Marie Joseph, Comte de Grandpré. See Grandpré, Louis Marie Joseph Ohier, Comte de.

O'Higgins (o.hig'inz; Spanish, ó.é'géns). Province in C Chile: mineral and thermal springs; copper, livestock, and some agricultural products. It was named for Bernardo O'Higgins, Capital, Rancagua; area, 2,746 sq. mi.; pop. 212,492 (est. 1950).

O'Higgins, Ambrosio. [Original name, Ambrose Higgins; created in 1796 Marquis of Osorno.] b. in Ireland, c.1720; d. at Lima, Peru, March 18, 1801. Spanish administrator; father of Bernardo O'Higgins. He was educated in Spain, and when a young man went to Chile as a trader. Obtaining a commission in the army, he rose rapidly to a captaincy in the cavalry. Victorious over the Araucanians, he founded (1770) Fort San Carlos and constructed the road between Santiago and Valparaíso. As captain-general of Chile (1788-96), he rebuilt (1792) Osorno; he was viceroy of Peru from June 6, 1796, until his death.

O'Higgins, Bernardo. [Called the "Liberator of Chile."] b. at Chillán, Chile, Aug. 20, 1778; d. at Lima, Peru, Oct. 24, 1842. Chilean general and statesman, first ruler (1817-23) of Chile after its declaration of independence; son of Ambrosio O'Higgins. He was educated in England, where he derived republican ideas from Francisco Miranda, was a prominent military leader of the Chilean patriots from 1810, and on the deposition (1813) of José Miguel Carrera was made commander of the army. Carrera opposed him, and a civil war was prevented only by the common danger from the Spaniards. The combined forces of Carrera and O'Higgins were defeated at Rancagua, Oct. 1 and 2, 1814, and they fled across the Andes. O'Higgins joined José de San Martín in the invasion of Chile, and led the charge that decided the victory of Chacabuco (Feb. 12, 1817); three days afterward (San Martín having refused the office) O'Higgins was named supreme director of Chile. The independence of the country was formally proclaimed on Feb. 12, 1818, and was decided by the victory of Maipo, April 5, 1818. O'Higgins was forced to resign by a revolution, Jan. 28, 1823, and retired to Peru.

Ohio (ó.hí'f). [Called the "Buckeye State."] State of the N and C United States, bounded by Michigan and Lake Erie on the N, Pennsylvania and West Virginia (separated by the Ohio River) on the E, Kentucky and West Virginia (separated by the Ohio) on the S, and Indiana on the W: in that section of the U.S. called the Middle West.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Ohio is divided for administrative purposes into 88 counties. It sends 23 representatives to Congress, and has 25 electoral votes. Leading cities include Akron, Canton, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Hamilton, Middletown, Toledo, and Youngstown. Capital, Columbus; area, 41,122 sq. mi. (not including water of the Great Lakes); pop. 7,946,627 (1950), an increase of 15 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks 34th in area, and (on the basis of the 1950 census) fifth in population.

Terrain and Climate. The state has a rolling surface with an average elevation of no more than ab. 850 ft., the highest point in the state being Campbell Hill (1,550 ft.) in the W central area near Bellefontaine. The Ohio River and its tributaries, including the Scioto, Miami, and Muskingum, drain much of the S part; the Maumee and the Sandusky in the N empty into Lake Erie, where several islands belonging to Ohio are situated. The climate is temperate, the presence of Lake Erie making the N part colder than the S. The state has an abundance of rain and during the winter considerable snow.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Ohio ranks sixth among the states in agriculture, with 82 percent of its land devoted to farming and grazing. Corn, winter wheat, oats, soybeans, potatoes, tobacco, grapes, and hay are important crops. Because of the fine pasture afforded, stock raising is a major occupation, producing dairy products and wool especially. Industrially the state ranks third in the nation. Iron, steel, rubber goods, machinery, and pottery are among the major products, as are stoves and heating equipment and motor vehicles and parts. Meat packing is also an industry of great scope. Cleveland, largest city of the state and seventh largest in the U.S., is a great iron and steel center and a distributing center; manufactures also many other items. Great quantities of iron and steel are also produced at Youngstown, Canton, and Steubenville. Akron is known as the rubber capital of the world. Toledo, on the Maumee River near Lake Erie, is a busy port city with many varied industries. Columbus is also a city of varied industries, including meat packing, printing, and paper making. Dayton, an aviation center (home of Fairfield Air Depot, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, and McCook Field) is known for the manufacture of cash registers as well as many other items. It was the home of the Wright brothers, who made the first successful airplane flight. The state is rich in minerals, and mining is a leading occupation. Coal, sandstone, clay, petroleum, limestone, and natural gas are among the chief minerals. Annual income from agriculture ranges as high as five billion dollars; from mineral output, as high as 300 million.

History. Ohio's thousands of earthwork mounds testify to the prehistoric residence there of the Moundbuilders. Ohio was discovered by the French under La Salle toward the end of the 17th century; claimed by both French and English as well as by Connecticut, Virginia, and New York; passed (1783) to the U.S., Virginia and Connecticut later relinquishing claims but retaining until 1800 an extensive reservation known as the Western Reserve. Ohio formed (1787) part of the Northwest Territory, the first permanent settlement in Ohio being made (1788) by General Rufus Putnam and a small band. The region was the scene of Indian warfare from 1790 to 1794, when the Indians were defeated by General Anthony Wayne at the Battle of Fallen Timbers. The boundary with the Indian settlements was fixed (1795) by the treaty of Greenville. Ohio was admitted to the Union (as the 17th state) on Feb. 19, 1803. During the War of 1812 it was the scene of engagements, including the successful defense of Fort Meigs and the defeat of the British and Indians at Fort Stevenson (at Fremont), both in 1813. Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's naval victory on the Ohio side of Lake Erie occurred that same year. In the Civil War Ohio supplied the Union with many men and was the scene of some Confederate raids.

Culture. Ohio has about twice as many urban (ab. 70 percent of the 1950 total) as rural inhabitants. Early immigration consisted of many from Pennsylvania and the states further E. Today the foreign-born are principally from Germany and Italy with liberal representations of other nationalities. Ohio is known as the state which ranks second to Virginia in having supplied the nation with presidents, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, McKinley, Taft, and Harding having been native sons, and William Henry Harrison having been a resident of the state. Ohio is a state of great cultural and educational development. Cleveland's symphony orchestra is widely known, as is the Cleveland Museum of Art. The Toledo Museum of Art includes in its collections a large exhibit of ancient glass. Near Chillicothe is the Mound City Group National Monument (57 acres; established 1923), containing prehistoric mounds. The American painters George Bellows, Charles Burchfield, and Robert Henri are ranked as Ohioans. The state has many institutions of higher learning, among which are the state-supported Ohio State University, at Columbus, Ohio University, at Athens, Bowling Green University, at Bowling Green, Kent State University, at Kent, Miami University, at Oxford, and College of Educational and Industrial Arts, at Wilberforce; also Antioch College, at Yellow Springs, Case Institute of Technology, at Cleveland, Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, at Cincinnati, Kenyon College, at Gambier, Oberlin College, at Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Western Reserve University, at Cleveland. The state has no motto.

The state flower is the scarlet carnation; the state bird is the cardinal.

Ohio, Army of the. Unit of the Union army in the American Civil War. It was organized in 1861-62 by General Don Carlos Buell. In October, 1862, Buell was succeeded by William S. Rosecrans, and the unit was called the Army of the Cumberland. Another department of the Ohio was formed, and this army was in 1865 incorporated with the Army of the Cumberland.

Ohio Company. Company of Virginia and Maryland colonists to whom the British crown granted, in 1749, 500,000 acres in the Ohio valley for the purpose of settlement.

Ohio Idea. In U.S. politics, the advocacy of greenbacks in payment for U.S. bonds, and of greenbacks in place of national bank notes. This project was pushed especially in Ohio by the Democratic leaders William Allen, G. H. Pendleton, and Thomas Ewing, during the period 1867 et seq.

Ohio River. Principal eastern tributary of the Mississippi. It is formed by the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela at Pittsburgh, flows through W Pennsylvania, forms the boundary between Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois on the N and NW and West Virginia and Kentucky on the S and SE, and joins the Mississippi at Cairo, Ill. Its chief tributaries are the Muskingum, Scioto, Miami, and Wabash on the N, and the Kanawha, Big Sandy, Licking, Kentucky, Green, Cumberland, and Tennessee on the S. The chief places on its banks are Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Portsmouth, Cincinnati, Covington, Newport, Madison, Louisville, New Albany, and Evansville. Its rapids at Louisville are avoided by a canal. Length, ab. 981 mi., all navigable; total length (with the Allegheny), ab. 1,306 mi.

Ohiyesa (ô'hî-yâ.sâ). Indian name of Eastman, Charles Alexander.

Ohlau (ô'lou). German name of Olawa.

Ohlenschläger (ô'len.shlä.gër), Adam Gottlob. See Oehlenschläger, Adam Gottlob.

Ohligs (ô'liks). [Former name (until 1891), Merscheid.] Former town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, ab. 17 mi. N of Cologne. It is now a western part of Solingen.

Ohlin (ô'lën), Bertil Gotthard. b. at Grämanstorp, Sweden, April 23, 1899-. Swedish economist and political leader, head (1944 et seq.) of the liberal Swedish People's Party. He taught at the universities of Copenhagen, Stockholm, California, and at Columbia. He was elected (1938) to the Riksdag (parliament), and served (1944-45) as minister of commerce.

Ohm (ôm), Georg Simon. b. at Erlangen, Bavaria, Germany, March 16, 1787; d. at Munich, July 7, 1854. German physicist, especially noted for his investigations in galvanism. He propounded an important law, known as "Ohm's law," which may be expressed as follows: the strength of an electric current, or the quantity of electricity passing a section of the conductor in a unit of time, is directly proportional to the whole electromotive force in operation, and inversely proportional to the sum of all the resistances in the circuit. The ohm, the electrical unit of resistance, is named for him; so also is the mho, the unit of conductance, which is his name spelled backward. He published Die galvanische Kette mathematisch bearbeitet (1827) and others.

Ohm, Martin. b. at Erlangen, Bavaria, Germany, May 6, 1792; d. at Berlin, April 1, 1872. German mathematician; brother of G. S. Ohm. His chief work is Versuch eines vollkommen konsequenten Systems der Mathematik (1822-52).

Ohnet (ô.net), Georges. b. at Paris, April 3, 1848; d. 1918. French novelist and dramatist. After the Franco-Prussian War he gave up the study of law for journalism. At first he was on the staff of Le Pays, and thereafter on that of the Constitutionnel. His fondness for dramatic composition led him to write Regina Sarpi (1875) and Marthe (1877). Some of his novels have also been adapted to the stage, among others Le Maître de forges and La Grande Marinière (1888). Ohnet's novels appeared as serials in Le Figaro, L'Illustration, and the Revue des Deux Mondes before being published in book form. The com-fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, möve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ы, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; plete series of his novels is known as Batailles de la vie. Ohod (ô.hôd') or Ohud (ô.hôd'), Battle of, Victory gained at a place near Medina, Arabia, probably in 625, by the Koreish over Mohammed and his followers.

Ohori (ô.hô'rê). [Also, Ahori.] Subgroup of the Yoruba, a Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa. They inhabit SW Nigeria and E Dahomey.

Ohrdruf (ô.r'drôf). Town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Thuringia, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Thuringia, situated on the Ohra River in the Thuringian Forest, S of Gotha. Manufactures include dolls and other toys, porcelain, wooden articles, and paper. Saint Boniface erected here the first Christian church in Thuringia in 724. The Church of Saint Michael was built on the site in 1760. Pop. 7,474 (1946).

Ohře (ô.r'zhe). [German, Eger.] River in S Germany and in Bohemia, Czechoslovakia, which rises in Bavaria and joins the Elbe River ab. 33 mi. NW of Prague. Length, ab. 180 mi.

Ohrid (ô.hrêd) or Okhrida (ôk'rî.da, ô.krê'da). [Also: Ochrida; Latin, Lychnidus, Lychnitis.] Town in S Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Macedonia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Vardarska, situated on the Lake of Ohrid, NW of Bitolj, near the Albanian border. The old part of the town is of architectural interest. Ohrid is connected by railroad with Skopje. It has lake fisheries and there are lead and copper mines in the vicinity. It was known to the ancient Greeks and was fortified by King Philip II of Macedonia. Later, it came under Roman and Byzantine sovereignty; still later it was overrun by Goths, Huns, Avars, Bulgars, Normans, Serbs, and finally by the Turks. It remained Turkish from the end of the 14th century up to the first Balkan War (1912), when it was incorporated into Serbia. The majority of the population are Mohammedan Albanians, the rest consisting of Serbs, Bulgars, Greeks, and Turks. 11,419 (1948).

Ohrid, Lake. [Also: Lake Ochrida (or Okhrida).] Lake on the border of SW Yugoslavia and E Albania. Length, ab. 25 mi.

Ohud (ô.hôd'), Battle of. See Ohod, Battle of.
Oignes (wâ.nyê). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, between Béthune and Douai. It is a coal-mining town. 6,995 (1946).

Oignon (wâ.nyôh). See Ognon.

Oih Novel by Upton Sinclair, published in 1927. It is laid against a background of the Teapot Dome scandal of the 1920's.

Oil City. City in NW Pennsylvania, in Venango County, on the Allegheny River ab. 70 mi. NE of Pittsburgh, in a petroleum area; shipping and refining point for petroleum; manufactures of barrels, steel drums, boilers, gas engines, and pumping machinery. It occupies the site of a Seneca Indian village. 19,581 (1950).

Oildale (oil'dâl). Unincorporated community in S California, in Kern County, adjoining Bakersfield on the N, in an oil-producing region. 4,492 (1940), 16,615 (1950).

Oil Islands. See Chagos Archipelago.

Oil Rivers Protectorate. Former British protectorate in W Africa, on the coast between Lagos and Cameroons. It was organized in 1892, having been secured to Great Britain in 1884. It was enlarged (1893) and renamed the Niger Coast Protectorate. With another enlargement (1900) the area became the protectorate of Southern Nigeria. In 1906 this latter was combined with Lagos into the colony and protectorate of Southern Nigeria, which, united with northern Nigeria in 1914, became the present-day colony and protectorate of Nigeria.

Oily Gammon (ôi'lî gam'on). See Gammon, Oily.

Oirot (ôi'rot). [Also, Oirat (-rât).] Formerly, a Mongol people of Dzungaria, Chinese Turkistan, the Altai range (in Siberia), and north Caucasia. They were the dominant members of a confederacy which controlled much of C Asia in the 17th and early 18th centuries. The term now refers especially to the Turkic peoples of the Altai range of S Siberia, now in the Mountain-Altai Autonomous Oblast, U.S.S.R., N of the Mongolian People's Republic. They are herdsmen and hunters.

Oirot Autonomous Oblast. Former name of Mountain-Altai Autonomous Oblast.

Oise (wâz). Department in N France, bounded by Somme on the N, Aisne on the E, Seine-et-Marne and Seine-et-Oise on the S, and Eure and Seine-Inférieure on the W. It was formed from parts of Île de France and Picardy. The department has numerous prehistoric and historic remains. It has frequently suffered the ravages of war and invasion, as in the Hundred Years' War, the invasions of the Armagnacs and the Burgundians, the French Revolution, the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and particularly during World Wars I and II, when it was not only a scene of battle but also under prolonged German occupation. Here, in the forest of Compiègne, the World War I armistice was signed in 1918, as was the capitulation of France to Germany in 1940. The department comprises some of the most fertile agricultural regions of France, being particularly important because of its fine pasture land which forms the background for a dairy industry of first rank. Grain, fruit, and vegetable production are also of considerable importance. The department has woolen and ceramics industries. The tapestry manufacture of Beauvais dates from the time of Colbert. There are also metal and other industries, as well as stone quarries. Capital, Beauvais; area, 2,272 sq. mi.; pop. 396,724 (1946).

Oise-Aisne American Cemetery (wâz'ân). American military cemetery near Fère-en-Tardenois, France, ab. 14 mi. from Château-Thierry. It contains the graves of 6,012 American soldiers, most of whom fell in the fighting in the locality and in the area extending north to the Oise River. It is the second largest American World War I cemetery in Europe.

Oiseau bleu (ô.wâ.zô blê), L'. French title of Blue Bird, The.

Oise River (wâz). River in N France which joins the Seine ab. 15 mi. NW of Paris. Length, ab. 186 mi.

Oisín (ô.shên). In Old Irish legend, the son of Fionn mac Cumhal (Finn macCool) and Sadb (the first wife of Fionn). Oisín was born in the forest and found and brought home by Fionn's famous dog, Bran. He grew up to be one of the most famous of the Fianna (the warriors of Fionn) and was also noted as a poet and musician. Several poems in the Old Irish Book of Leinster are said to be his. One of the best-known stories about Oisín is Oisín in the Land of Youth, in which Oisín is beguiled off to the typical Celtic fairy otherworld by a fairy woman, and returns 150 years later to find Fionn and the Fianna long dead and hymn-singing Christians in Ireland. William Butler Yeats's Wanderings of Oisín also presents this story. The most famous of the Oisín stories, however, is the 13th-century Colloquy of the Old Men, describing this return of the hero to Ireland, his meeting with Saint Patrick, his sojourn with the monks, and the long paganism-versus-Christianity discussion between Oisín and the monks, ending with Oisín's choice of hell (being assured that Fionn was there) over the Christian heaven. James Macpherson's Ossian is based on the Oisín legends.

Oissel (wâ.sêl). Town in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, on the Seine River between Rouen and Elbeuf. It has textile manufactures. The town suffered considerable damage in World War II. 7,501 (1946).

Oita (ô.ê.tâ). Seaport city in NE Kyushu, Japan; coastwise trade, fisheries; textile and paper industries. 94,455 (1950).

Ojai (ô'jî). City in SW California, near Ventura; resort. 2,519 (1950).

Ojé (ô.jâ), Jacques Vincent. See Ogé, Jacques Vincent.

Ojeda (ô.dâ'thâ), Alonso de. b. in Cuenca, Spain, c1463; d. at Santo Domingo (now Ciudad Trujillo), 1514 or 1515. Spanish cavalier, prominent in early American history. He went (1493) to Hispaniola with Columbus, and was engaged (1493-95) in many audacious enterprises there. Returning to Spain, he was associated with Juan de la Cosa and Amerigo Vespucci in the first exploration of the coasts of Guiana and Venezuela (May, 1499-June, 1500). In 1502 and 1505 he made other voyages to the N coast of South America. Being empowered (1508) to settle and govern Nueva Andalucía (now NW Colombia and the Isthmus of Panama), he tried unsuccessfully (1508-09) to establish a colony near Cartagena; then he fitted out an expedition at Santo Domingo, sailing Nov. 10, 1509. After various adventures and escapes he settled on the Gulf of Urabá, part of the Gulf of Darien. The colony was soon reduced to great misery, and Ojeda sailed away to seek aid. He was shipwrecked on Cuba, and finally reached Santo Domingo penniless and bankrupt. He died in complete poverty; but the Darien colony was eventually successful, and led to the discovery of the Pacific Ocean and Peru.

Ojeda, Diego de. [Also, Hojeda.] b. at Seville, Spain, c1571; d. at Huánuco de los Caballeros, Peru, 1615. Peruvian poet and Dominican prior, distinguished as the author of Cristiada (1611), considered the greatest Spanish epic in sacred literature, sometimes compared to Paradise Lost.

Ojibwa (ô.jib'wâ, -wâ). [Also: Chippewa, Ojibway, Saulteaux.] Group of North American Indian tribes, formerly inhabiting the areas surrounding Lake Superior, N Minnesota, W North Dakota, and the adjacent portions of S Canada, and speaking a language of the Algonquian family. The Ojibwa, Ottawa, and Potawatomi formed a loose confederation which considerably extended its territory in the early 18th century after the introduction of firearms. Most of the Ojibwa were of the Eastern Woodlands agricultural and hunting culture, and lived in wigwams. They are best known today probably from their famous pictographic writings and the ceremonies of their great medicine society. About 33,000 of them survive on reservations in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and North Dakota.

Ojibway (ô.jib'wâ). See Ojibwa; also Chippewa.

Ojos del Salado (ô.nôs del sâ.lâ'rhô). Mountain in the Andes, on the Chilean-Argentine border. Elevation, ab. 22,534 ft.

"O Judeu" (ô zhô.dâ'ô). See Silva, Antônio José da.

Oka (ô.kâ'). River in the U.S.S.R., which joins the Volga at Gorki. The Moskva is a tributary. Length, ab. 918 mi.; navigable from Chekalin, W of Tula.

Okabena (ô.kâ.bē'na). Former name of Worthington, Minn.

Okada (ô.kâ.dâ). Keisuke. b. in Japan, in January, 1867; d. Oct. 17, 1952. Japanese naval officer, prime minister (1934-36). He served as director of the naval office personnel bureau, director of the Sasebo naval arsenal, chief of the naval construction headquarters, supreme war councilor, commander in chief of the combined and first fleets and Yokosuka naval station, and navy minister (1927; 1932-34). The victory of the liberals in the 1936 elections led to a military coup and Okada resigned, the army's power growing thereafter in Japan.

Okak (ô.kâk). Subgroup of the Pangwe, a Bantu-speaking people of C Africa. They inhabit Rio Muni.

Okakura (ô.kâ.kô.râ). Kakuzo. b. in Fukui prefecture, Japan, 1862; d. at Tokyo, Sept. 4, 1913. Japanese art connoisseur. In 1886 he was sent with the Imperial Art Commission to study art history and movements in Europe and the U.S. Returning to Japan, he was made director of a new art school at Tokyo, but resigned in 1898. He then opened, with other young artists, the Nippon Fine Arts Institute near Tokyo, an establishment similar to that of William Morris at Merton Abbey in England; it later was removed to a village in Ibaraki ken (prefecture) and thence to Nara. He was the author of The Ideals of the East (1904), The Awakening of Japan (1905), The Book of Tea (1906), and others. He was curator of the department of Chinese and Japanese art in the Museum of Fine Arts at Boston, and a member of the archaeological commission of Japan.

Okanagan (ô.kâ.nô'gan). See Okinagan.

Okavango (ô.kâ.vang'gô). See Okovanggo.

Okayama (ô.kâ.yâ.mâ). City in Japan, on the island of Honshu, between Osaka and Hiroshima. It is an old castle town and has local manufacturing and important coastal trade. The chief exports are paper, bricks, shoes, and minerals. 162,904 (1950).

Okdah (ôk'dâ). Fourth-magnitude double star α Piscium, situated at the knot in the ribbon by which the two fishes are tied together.

Okeechobee (ô.kē.chô'bē). Lake. Lake in S Florida, in the N part of the Everglades. Length, ab. 40 mi.; area, ab. 730 sq. mi.

O'Keefe (ô.kē'fē'), Georgia. b. at Sun Prairie, Wis., Nov. 15, 1887—. American painter, known for her stylized landscapes and flower designs, often with symbolic meaning; wife of Alfred Stieglitz. She had retrospective exhibitions at the Art Institute of Chicago (1943) and the Museum of Modern Art (1946), and is represented in many of the leading museums of the U.S. Among her principal works are A Cross by the Sea, Canada, Black Iris, Farmhouse Window and Door, Lake George, and Cow's Skull with Calico Roses.

O'Keefe, John. b. at Dublin, Ireland, June 24, 1747; d. at Southampton, England, Feb. 4, 1833. Irish dramatist. William Hazlitt says he may be called "the English Molière." He wrote comedies and farces, including Wild Oats, The Poor Soldier, and others. He is best remembered for his song from Merry Sherwood "I am a friar of orders grey."

Okefenokee Swamp (ô'kē.fē.nô'kē). [Also, Okefinokee (-fī-)] Extensive swamp in SE Georgia and NE Florida. Area, ab. 675 sq. mi.

Okeghem (ô'kē'gem) or Ockeghem (ô'kē'gem), Jean d' (or Jan van). [Var., Johannes Ockenheim.] b. in East Flanders, c1430; d. c1495. Contrapuntal composer of the second Netherland school. He was a chorister (until 1444) at Antwerp, served (1446-48) the Duke of Bourbon, was named treasurer of a Tours church by Louis XI, and was maître de chapelle of the court at Paris (1465 et seq.). Composer of much religious music, such as masses, cantos, motets, and chansons.

Okehampton (ô'k'hamp'ton). Municipal borough and market town in SW England, in Devonshire, ab. 21 mi. W of Exeter, ab. 198 mi. SW of London by rail. It was once a small center of the serge-weaving trade. It has the ruins of Okehampton Castle. 3,897 (1951).

O'Kelly (ô.kē'lī), Sean Thomas. b. Aug. 25, 1882—. Irish political leader, a founder of Sinn Féin. He was the first speaker (1919-21) of the Dail Eireann, Irish envoy to Paris and Rome (1919-22) and to the U.S. (1924-26), and a member of the Dail Eireann (1927-45). Minister of education (1939) and finance (1939-45), he served as president (1945 et seq.) of Ireland.

Okemah (ô.kē'mâ). City in E Oklahoma, county seat of Okfuskee County; marketing center for a pecan, corn, sweet potato, and cotton farming area. 3,454 (1950).

Oken (ô'ken), Lorenz. [Original surname, Ockenfuss.] b. at Bohlsbach, in Swabia, Germany, Aug. 1, 1779; d. at Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 11, 1851. German naturalist and transcendentalist philosopher. He became professor at Jena in 1807 (but later surrendered his professorship rather than abandon the editorship of Isis, which was objectionable to the authorities), at Munich in 1828, and at Zurich in 1851. He developed a system of nature in his Lehrbuch der Naturphilosophie (1808-11) and Lehrbuch der Naturgeschichte (1818-27), and also published Allgemeine Naturgeschichte für alle Stände (1833-41) and others.

Okhlopov (ô.ulôp'kôf), Nikolai. b. in Siberia, 1902—. Russian stage director, manager, and actor. He abolished the proscenium arch and set up his stage on a platform in the midst of the audience. In placing the stage thus, so that the spectators could view the action from all sides, he became the virtual originator of modern "central" or "arena" staging. In 1936, Okhlopov was accused of taking too formalistic an approach to the drama. However, in 1937, when the Kamerny Theatre and the Realistic Theatre were merged under the name of Krasna Presna, Okhlopov was made codirector with Alexander Tairov. He also turned to film acting and gave a powerful performance in the title role of Alexander Nevsky (1938).

Okhotsk (ô.kôtsk'; Russian, o.hôtsk). Small seaport in the U.S.S.R., in the Khabarovsk Territory of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. E Siberia, situated on the Sea of Okhotsk: fish-canning industry. 6,500 (1933), over 10,000 (1950).

Okhotsk, Sea of. Arm of the Pacific, nearly enclosed by the peninsula of Kamchatka and other parts of Siberia, Sakhalin, Hokkaido (in Japan), and the Kurile Islands. It is connected with the Sea of Japan by the Gulf of Tatar and La Pérouse Strait. Area, ab. 590,000 sq. mi.; greatest depth, ab. 12,000 ft.

Okhrida (ôk'ri.dâ, ô.krê'dâ). See Ohrid.

Okiek (ô.kē'ek). See Dorobo.

Okinagan (ô.ki.nâ'gan). [Also, Okanogan.] Group of North American Indian tribes of British Columbia and Washington, belonging to the Salishan linguistic stock. They were always a peaceable, fishing, hunting, root-gathering people. Today they survive in small numbers on a reservation in Washington.

Okinawa (ō.ki.nā.wā). Largest of the Ryukyu Islands, Pacific Ocean, SW of Japan. It is of volcanic origin. Much of the N and C parts of the island is rocky and rugged; the lowlands and flatter areas are intensively farmed: rice, sweet potatoes, and sugar cane are the major crops. The climate is subtropical, with hot summers and warm winters. Okinawa was formerly under the suzerainty of China; it passed to Japan in 1875, was taken by the U.S. in World War II (April-June, 1945), and was placed under U.S. military government. It is now an important U.S. military base, with large airfields. Area, ab. 470 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 525,000.

Okinawa, Battle of. Military operation in the Pacific area, in World War II. It was preceded by a heavy naval and air bombardment of the Okinawa beachheads and of the Japanese positions on the island. An amphibious invasion was made (beginning March 26, 1945) by U.S. infantry and marine units (four army and three marine divisions) which were supported by almost 1,400 ships. In the southern half of the island the invasion met in mid-April with savage Japanese resistance. Not until June 21 was the capture of the island complete. It was one of the most costly Pacific operations in World War II. The total of Japanese killed has been placed at 110,549, and American losses included more than 11,000 killed and almost 34,000 wounded. Lost in the fighting was Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the U.S. land forces; in the fighting on Te-jima near Okinawa, Ernie Pyle, U.S. war correspondent, was killed.

Oklahoma (ō.k.lā.hō.mā). [Called the "Sooner State."] State of the S and C United States, bounded by Kansas and Colorado on the N, Missouri and Arkansas on the E, Texas and New Mexico on the W, and Texas on the S.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Oklahoma is divided for administrative purposes into 77 counties. The state sends eight representatives to Congress, and has ten electoral votes. Leading cities include Enid, Muskogee, Oklahoma City, Shawnee, and Tulsa. Capital, Oklahoma City; area, 69,283 sq. mi. (69,919 sq. mi. including water); pop. 2,233,351 (1950). The state ranks 17th in area, and (on the basis of the 1950 census) 25th in population.

Terrain and Climate. The surface of Oklahoma is a roll in plain sloping toward the SE. In the E is the W part of the Ozarks and in the SW are the Wichita Mountains. Highest point in the state is Black Mesa (4,978 ft.), situated in the NW tip known as the "panhandle." Forming almost the entire S boundary is the Red River. The Arkansas River flows into the state from Kansas, flowing across the NE and into Arkansas. Flowing into the Arkansas near the E border is the Canadian, which enters the state from Texas and runs across the C region. Other rivers of importance are the Cimarron, which joins the Arkansas a little N of Tulsa; the Washita, having its source in Texas and flowing SE into the Red. The Great Salt Plains Dam is situated on the Salt Fork of the Arkansas. The climate of Oklahoma is variable, especially in the W, but extreme cold is rare. There is little rain in the W, where considerable irrigation is carried on, although the rainfall in the E is sufficient for agriculture.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Oklahoma is rich in minerals, petroleum (Tulsa is often called the "oil capital of the world") and natural gas being produced in large quantities. Extensive deposits of gasoline, lead, coal, and gypsum are also found. Agriculture is an occupation of considerable scope, producing wheat, cotton, broom corn, grain sorghums, hay, barley, rye, fruits, and other varied crops. Stock raising is of great importance; cattle are the most important stock raised, but poultry raising is also profitable. One of the most tragic phenomena in the agricultural history of the U.S. occurred principally in Oklahoma in 1934 when erosion resulting from unscientific use of grasslands turned close to 100 million acres into a "dust bowl." Thousands of farmers were reduced to abject poverty; facing extinction on the arid Oklahoma soil, they migrated in vast numbers to states further W, chiefly California. Because the situation was so acute in Oklahoma all migratory farmers of this type, even those from other states, came to be known as "Okies." Reclamation of the eroded lands has been carried on by the Federal Soil Conservation Service. Manufacturing centers on petroleum refining, meat packing, flour and grist milling, cottonseed oil production, and the manufacture of glass and machinery. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 687 million dollars; from mineral output, as high as 327 million; from manufacturing, as high as 342 million.

History. With the exception of the "panhandle" strip Oklahoma was acquired (1803) by the U.S. with the Louisiana Purchase; set aside (1834) as the Indian Territory. The C section was purchased from the Creeks and the Seminoles and opened (April 22, 1839) by proclamation of President Benjamin Harrison to white homesteaders, more than 20,000 persons entering the region in one day. In 1893 a western strip of land was detached from the Indian Territory and organized as the Territory of Oklahoma. The Cherokee Strip was purchased from the Indians in 1891; opened to white settlement in 1893 and became part of Oklahoma Territory. The region was settled with extraordinary rapidity. An act enabling the Oklahoma and Indian territories to enter the Union as the state of Oklahoma was passed (1906) by Congress, and the state entered (Nov. 16, 1907) the Union as the 46th state.

Culture. Oklahoma's population, according to the definition used by the census bureau in 1950, is almost equally divided between urban (51 percent) and rural. The state has some 63,000 Indians, amounting to about a third of the total Indian population of the nation. Some of the tribes became wealthy from the discovery of oil on their lands. There is a considerable Negro population. The percentage of foreign-born is low. Oklahoma City is the leading cultural center, having an art center and a symphony orchestra. Fort Sill, in the SW, is a military post and reservation, the site of the largest field artillery school in the country. Among the institutions of higher learning in the state are the state-supported Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Stillwater, and the University of Oklahoma, at Norman, with a branch at Oklahoma City. The state motto is Labor Omnia Vincit, meaning "Labor Conquers All." The state flower is the mistletoe.

Oklahoma City. City in C Oklahoma, capital of Oklahoma and county seat of Oklahoma County, on the north fork of the Canadian River, in the hard winter wheat belt, and in the center of a rich oil and gas province; largest city in the state, and its chief commercial center, notable for the production of petroleum, petroleum refineries, flour mills, and cottonseed oil and meat-packing plants. It is the seat of the University of Oklahoma Medical School and Oklahoma City University. It was established in 1889, and became the capital of Oklahoma in 1910. Pop. 201,424 (1941), 243,501 (1950).

Oklawaha or Oklawaha (ō.k.lā.wō.hā). Tributary of the St. John's River, in the NE part of Florida. Length, ab. 125 mi.

Oklmulgee (ō.k.mul'gē). City in E Oklahoma, county seat of Okmulgee County, in a petroleum and natural gas area; petroleum refining, cotton processing, glass manufacturing, and marketing of peanuts and pecans. It was the capital (1868-1907) of the Creek Nation. 18,317 (1950).

Okovanggo (ō.kō.vang'gō). [Also, Okavango.] River in S Africa, known in its upper reaches as the Cubango. It rises in the mountains of Angola, flows S and E to form part of the boundary between Angola and South-West Africa, and ends in the marshes and lakes of the Okavango Basin (or Swamp) in NW Bechuanaland.

Oku (ō.kō), Count Yasukata. b. in Fukuoka prefecture, Japan, in November, 1844; d. 1930. Japanese general, commander of the second army in the Russo-Japanese War. He won distinction in the civil war of 1877, commanded the fifth division in the war with China (1894-95), and was promoted to general in 1903. He was appointed chief of staff in July, 1906.

Okuma (ō.kō.mā), Count Shigenobu. b. in Saga, Japan, in February, 1833; d. 1922. Japanese statesman, leader of the Progressive Party until 1907. He was vice-minister and minister of the treasury (1869-81), and as leader of the opposition did much to promote the development of constitutional government. He was minister of foreign affairs (1889-91, 1896-97), minister of agriculture and commerce (1897), and premier (June-November, 1898, and 1914-16). He resigned the leadership of the Progressive Party in February, 1907. In 1882 he founded the Waseda School (in 1902 it became a university) at Tokyo, and later became its chancellor.

O Kung (ô kông). [Also: Vankala, Vashkell.] Northern Bushman group of S Africa, inhabiting SE Angola.

Okwawu (ô.kwá.wù). See Kwawu.

Olaf (of Norway) (ô'laf). [Full name, Alexander Edward Christian Frederik of Glücksburg; also Olav.] b. at Sandringham, England, July 2, 1903—. Crown prince of Norway, heir to the Norwegian throne; son of King Haakon VII. He married (1929) Princess Märtha Sofia Lovisa Dagmar Thyra Bernadotte of Sweden. He was appointed (1939) a general and admiral, left (June 6, 1940) Norway with the King and government after the German invasion, and served (1941-45) as commander in chief of the Norwegian forces. He returned (May 13, 1945) to Norway after the defeat of the Germans.

Olaf I (of Norway). [Called Olaf Trygvesson or Olaf Trygvasson; also Olav or Olaus.] b. 956; d. 1000. King of Norway (c996-1000). He was the son of the petty king Trygve and his wife Astrid, and was born in exile, his father having shortly before been murdered and his mother exiled from Norway. He was educated at the court of Vladimir, grand prince of Russia, and became a Viking, ravaging the coasts of France, Britain, and Ireland. He was converted to Christianity in the Seilly Islands, returned to Norway, and deposed Earl Haakon and made himself king of Norway (c996). He attempted to convert Norway to Christianity by force, at the same time that he planned the uniting of all of Scandinavia into one kingdom, to be ruled by him. He was defeated and killed in a naval battle by the kings of Sweden and Denmark in league with disaffected Norwegian jarls or chieftains. The battle, which took place off the island of Svöl, near Rügen, ended with Olaf leaping into the sea from his great ship. He disappeared and for years after the battle it was expected that he, like other popular heroes, would return to his people. Olaf's entire career, like his death, has been the subject of much legendary accretion and he has become a typical folk hero, to the extent that separating fact from legend is difficult.

Olaf II (of Norway). [Also, Saint Olaf, Olaf the Fat, Olaf Haraldsson; also Olav or Olaus.] b. c995; d. at Stiklostad, 1030. King of Norway (1015-28). He spent some years in England fighting against the Danes for Ethelred the Unready and in 1015 returned to Norway, unseated Earl Sweyn, and took over the kingdom. He extended his power throughout Norway at the expense of many of the smaller princes, quarreled with the rulers of Sweden and Denmark, and attempted to complete the conversion of Norway to Christianity. When Canute II of Denmark invaded Norway in 1028, Olaf was deserted by his nobles and forced to flee to Russia. He made an attempt to regain the kingdom in 1030 but found little support and was killed in battle. The foreign rule of the Danes in the years that followed enhanced the reputation of Olaf and, though he had not been kindly regarded while he lived, he came to be looked upon as a saint who had tried to unify the country and to convert it to Christianity. He became the patron saint of the country, was canonized in 1164, and gained a great reputation throughout Scandinavia.

Olaf (of Sweden). [Called "Olaf the Lap-King."] Reigned 993-1021. First Christian king of Sweden.

Olancho (ô.lân'chô). Department in E Honduras: livestock and rubber. Capital, Juticalpa; area, 9,738 sq. mi.; pop. 83,910 (1950).

Oland (ô'lând). [Also: Oeland, Oland.] Island in the Baltic Sea, belonging to the län (county) of Kalmar, off the SE coast of Sweden: agriculture, fisheries, and aluminum deposits. Known as early as the 8th century, it was later much contested in wars between the various countries bordering on the Baltic. Area, 519 sq. mi.; pop. 26,299 (1948).

Olafeta (ô.lâ.nyâ'tâ), Pedro Antonio. b. in Vizcaya, Spain, c1770; killed at the Tumusa, Upper Peru (Bolivia), April 2, 1825. Spanish general. In January, 1824, he proclaimed the absolute authority of Ferdinand VII, and threw off allegiance to the viceroy, José de La Serna y Ilinojosa. After his defeat by the latter he tried to retire into Chile, but was killed by his troops.

Olathe (ô.lâ'thê). City in E Kansas, county seat of Johnson County, SW of Kansas City. It was a station on the Santa Fe Trail. 5,593 (1950).

Olaus (ô.lâ'us). See Olaf.

Olav (ô'liv). See Olaf.

Olavarría (ô.lâ.rrâ.rê'ri). City in E Argentina, in Buenos Aires province, ab. 205 mi. by rail SW of Buenos Aires: rail junction; food-processing industries; shipping point for wheat, sheep, and cattle. 24,204 (1947).

Olawa (ô.lâ'vâ). [German, Ohlau.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated on the Olhe River, near the Oder River, ab. 17 mi. SE of Wrocław (Breslau); river port; chemical, electrochemical, metal, and tobacco factories; parish church and former castle of the Piasts. It came under the administration of Poland in 1945. Pop. 13,136 (1939), 6,410 (1946).

Olava Herrera (ô.lâ'yâ er-rrâ'ri), Enrique. b. at Quaque, Boyacá, Colombia, Nov. 12, 1881; d. at Rome, Feb. 18, 1937. Colombian diplomat and politician, president (1930-34) of Colombia. His administration attempted to deal with the economic depression and the boundary dispute with Peru. He served (1922-30) as minister to the U.S. He was foreign minister (1910, 1921, 1935), and in 1922 negotiated final settlement of the Panama dispute with the U.S.

Ölberg (ô'l'berk). [Also, Grosser Ölberg.] Basaltic mountain in W Germany, one of the chief summits of the Siebengebirge, in the Rhineland; noted for its view. Elevation, ab. 1,510 ft.

Olbers (ô'l'bêrs), Heinrich Wilhelm Matthias. b. at Arbergen, near Bremen, Germany, Oct. 11, 1758; d. at Bremen, March 2, 1840. German astronomer. He discovered a method for calculating cometary orbits, and also discovered various comets (including that of 1815 named for him) and the asteroids Pallas (1802) and Vesta (1807). He advanced the theory that the asteroids were the debris of a former planet.

Olbia (ô'l'biâ). [Also, Terranova Pausania.] Town and commune of Italy, on the island of Sardinia, in the province of Sassari, situated on the Gulf of Terranova, E of Sassari: marketing center of an agricultural district. Pop. of commune, 10,157 (1936); of town, 8,065 (1936).

Olbia (ô'l'biâ). In ancient geography, a city in Scythia, a Greek colony from Miletus, near the confluence of the Borysthenes (the modern Dnieper) River and the Hypanis (modern Bug).

Olbrich (ô'l'brîch), Joseph Maria. b. at Troppau (now Opava, Czechoslovakia), Nov. 22, 1867; d. at Düsseldorf, Germany, Aug. 8, 1918. German architect, one of the leading members (1897 et seq.) of the group of "Vienna secession" artists, championing a modernism and craftsmanship derived from the English Pre-Raphaelite art theories. He wrote Ideen (1899), Architektur (3 vols., 1901-03), and Neue Garten (1905).

Olcinium (ô.lîn'ium). Latin name of Ulcinj.

Olcott (ô'l'kô't), Henry Steel. b. at Orange, N.J., Aug. 2, 1832; d. Feb. 17, 1907. American spiritualist, first president (1875 et seq.) of the Theosophical Society. In 1874 he became identified with the study of spiritualism when his articles on the subject appeared in the New York Daily Graphic. Becoming associated with Madame Helena Blavatsky, he studied occultism under her guidance and helped found the Theosophical Society. With her, he carried the gospel of theosophy to India, where they arrived in 1878, and to Ceylon in 1881. After the London Society for Psychical Research exposed (1885) Madame Blavatsky, he spent the following two decades in carrying forward the work of the Theosophical Society in a more sober fashion. The founder of four free schools for pariahs in India, he lectured in Japan and was active in furthering relations among Buddhists in the Orient. He was the editor of the Theosophist. Author of Sorgho and Imphée (1857), People from the Other World (1875), Theosophy, Religion and Occult Languages (1885), and Old Diary Leaves (3 vols., 1895-1904).

Old Aberdeen (ab.ér.dên', ab'ér.dên). See Aberdeen, Old.

Old-Age Revolving Pension. See Townsend Plan.

Old Arad (â.râ'd'). See Arad.

Old Bachelor, The. Comedy by William Congreve, produced in 1693, and acted as late as 1789. It was his first play.

Old Bahama Channel (ba.hă'mă, -hă'-). See Bahama Channel, Old.

Old Bailey Court (bā'li). Principal criminal court of England. It was on the street named Old Bailey, which runs from Newgate Street to Ludgate Hill. The new Central Criminal Court was opened in 1905.

"Old Bay State." Occasional nickname of Massachusetts.

Old Beaugard (bō'gārd). See Beaugard, Old.

Old Bellair (bel.ār'). See Bellair, Old.

Old Bennington (ben'ing.ton). See under Bennington.

Oldberg (ōld'bērg), Arne. b. at Youngstown, Ohio, July 12, 1874—c. American pianist and composer. Among his compositions are the orchestral works Festival (1909) and Paolo and Francesca (1908).

Old Birni (bir'ni). See Birni.

"Old Blood and Guts." Nickname of Patton, George Smith, Jr.

Oldboy (ōld'boi), Felix. Pseudonym of Mines, John Flavel.

Oldbuck (ōld'buk), Jonathan. Laird of Monkbarns and Scottish antiquary, the leading character in Sir Walter Scott's novel The Antiquary.

"Old Bullion" (būl'yon). Nickname of Benton, Thomas Hart (1782-1858).

Oldbury (ōld'ber.i, -bēr.i). Municipal borough and manufacturing town in W England, in Worcestershire, ab. 5 mi. W of Birmingham, ab. 118 mi. NW of London by rail. The town has a chemical industry. 53,895 (1951).

Old Calabar (kal'ā.bār). See under Calabar.

Old Calatrava (kā.lā.trā'vā). See Calatrava la Vieja.

Old California (kal.i.fōrn'ya). See Lower California.

Old Castile (kas.tēl'). See under Castile.

Oldcastle (ōld'kas.l), Sir John. [Called Lord Cobham.] b. in Herefordshire, England; burned at London, Dec. 25, 1417. English nobleman, leader of the Lollards, known as "the good Lord Cobham," having married (1408) the heiress of Lord Cobham. During the Welsh campaigns under Henry IV, he became a friend of the Prince of Wales (later Henry V). He was a successful general in the French wars, commanding part of the army in 1411. About 1413 he was called upon, probably by the king, to abjure the tenets of Wyclif. He refused, was imprisoned in the Tower, but escaped. Thereafter he was remained in Wales until 1417, when he was captured by Lord Charlton of Powis. He was hung in chains upon a gallows in St. Giles's Fields, and burned alive as a heretic. The author of the Elizabethan play The Famous Victories of Henry V depicted Oldcastle as the boon companion of the king, but when the play was adapted by William Shakespeare as Henry IV, out of deference to Henry Brooke, Lord Cobham, a friend of Sir Robert Cecil, the name of the character was changed to Sir John Falstaff; Falstaff in Shakespeare's play bears no resemblance at all to the real Oldcastle.

Old Celtic. See Gaulish.

Old Colony. Territory in what is now the E part of Massachusetts occupied by the Plymouth Colony.

"Old Colony State." Occasional nickname of Massachusetts.

Oldcraft (ōld'krāft), Sir Perfidious. One of the principal characters in Wit at Several Weapons, by John Fletcher and others.

"Old Crome" (krōm). See Crome, John.

Old Cumnock (kum'nok). See under Cumnock and Holmhead.

Old Curiosity Shop, The. Novel by Charles Dickens, published in 1840-41.

Old Deer. See Deer, Old.

Old Dominion. See Virginia.

Old Dongola (dong'gō.lā, dong'gō'lā). See Dongola, Old.

Old Dornton (dōrn'ton). See Dornton, Old.

Olden Barneveldt (ōl'den bār'nev.vēlt), Jan van. See Barneveldt or Barneveld, Jan van Olden.

Oldenburg (ōl'den.bōrg; German, o'l'den.bürk). Former grand duchy in N Germany and state of the German Empire. It comprised the duchy proper of Oldenburg and the principalities of Birkenfeld and Lüneburg. The duchy of Oldenburg was bounded by the North Sea on the N, Hanover and Bremen on the E, and Hanover on the S and W. The surface of the region is generally flat. The chief occupation is agriculture; it is noted for its livestock. The government of Oldenburg was a hereditary constitutional monarchy, under a grand duke and a Landtag of one chamber; it sent one member to the Bundesrat and three members to the Reichstag. The prevailing religion was Protestant. Oldenburg was ruled by counts as early as the 11th century, passed under the rule of Denmark in 1667, was ceded to the Holstein-Gottorp line in 1773, was raised to a duchy in 1777, gained and lost territory by the changes of 1803, joined the Confederation of the Rhine in 1808, was annexed to France in 1810, was restored to self-government in 1813, entered the German Confederation in 1815, gained additions of territory in 1817 and 1818, assumed the rank of a grand duchy in 1829, sided with Prussia in 1866, and joined the North German Confederation in 1866. Capital, Oldenburg; area, 2,482 sq. mi.

Oldenburg. City in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly the capital of the free state of Oldenburg, ab. 25 mi. W of Bremen. It has important livestock markets, and woolen textile, knitwear, leather, paper, and metal manufactures. Considerable damage was suffered during World War II. The population of the city increased in the period 1939-46 by 36.1 percent. 107,473 (1946), 122,809 (1951).

Oldenburg, House of. Noble German family which rose to prominence in the 15th century. The principal lines are: the line of counts in Oldenburg, extinguished in 1667; the royal Danish line, beginning in 1448 and extinguished in 1863; the Gottorp or Holstein-Gottorp line, which had branches in Russia, Sweden, and Oldenburg; the Sonderburg or Holstein-Sonderburg line, with its branch the Augustenburg line; and the Beck or Glücksburg line, now in possession of the Danish throne.

Old English (ing'glīsh). See under English.

Old English Baron, The. Story by Clara Reeve, published in 1777, intended to combine the romance and the novel by making the former more probable.

Oldenzaal (ōl'den.zāl). Town in E Netherlands, in the province of Overijssel, near the German border, ab. 38 mi. SE of Zwolle: cotton spinning and weaving mill. 10,435 (1939).

Older (ōl'der), Fremont. b. near Appleton, Wis., Aug. 30, 1856; d. near Stockton, Calif., March 3, 1935. American journalist. He was managing editor (1895-1918) of the San Francisco Bulletin, city editor (1918-29) of the Call, and editor (1929 et seq.) of the combined Call-Bulletin. He played an important part in the Abe Ruef conviction (1909) and the Mooney-Billings case (1916 et seq.).

Oldesloe (ol'des.lō). [Also, Bad Oldesloe.] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, on the Trave River, ab. 15 mi. W of Lüneburg. It is a resort, but has also flour mills and sawmills, dairies, tanneries, and metal and chemical factories. 14,944 (1950).

Old Faithful. See under Yellowstone National Park.
Oldfield (ōld'fēld), Anne. b. at London, 1683; d. there, Oct. 23, 1730. English actress. In 1704 Colley Cibber assigned to her the part of Lady Betty Modish in his Careless Husband, and she won immediate success. By 1706 she was held to be the rival of Mrs. Bracegirdle. She was the original representative of 65 characters, the greater part of which belong to genteel comedy. She played tragic parts with great dignity and feeling, but in Lady Betty Modish, Lady Townley, Sylvia, and Mrs. Sullen she was probably never equaled. She lived for some years with Arthur Mainwaring, a wealthy bachelor, by whom she had a son who bore his father's name and surname. Later, after the death of Mainwaring, she was "under the protection" of General Charles Churchill, the son of an elder brother of the Duke of Marlborough, by whom she had also one son.

Old Flame, The. Novel by A. P. Herbert, published in 1925.

Old Fletton (flet'ōn). Urban district in C England, in Huntingdonshire. 8,955 (1951).

Old Forge. Borough in NE Pennsylvania, in Lackawanna County, ab. 5 mi. SW of Scranton; coal-mining; manufactures of textiles, 9,749 (1950).

Old Fortunatus (fôr.tū.nā'tus). Play by Thomas Dekker, printed in 1600 with the title The Pleasant History of Old Fortunatus. It was acted in 1595-96, although part of it was written as early as 1590.

Old French War (french). See French and Indian Wars.

Old Glory. Popular name for the U.S. flag.

Old Goa (gō'a). See Goa, Old.

Old Gobbo (gob'b). See Gobbo, Old.

Old Grimes (grīnz). Title of one of George Crabbe's tales in verse; also, a ballad by Albert G. Greene.

Old Guard. [French, Vieille Garde.] Noted body of troops in the army of Napoleon I. Established originally as the "Garde impériale," it became known as the Old Guard (Vieille Garde) through Napoleon's affectionate acknowledgment of its utter loyalty to him; it is by an extension of this that the term "Old Guard" has come to mean those of longest and most loyal service in any field. It made the last French charge at the Battle of Waterloo. It was reestablished by Napoleon III in 1853 and dissolved in 1870.

Old Guatemala (gwa.te.mā'la). See Antigua, town.

Oldham (ôl'dam). County borough and manufacturing town in NW England, in Lancashire, on the river Medlock ab. 6 mi. NE of Manchester, ab. 188 mi. NW of London by rail; an important cotton-spinning center. The town is located on the extreme E edge of the South Lancashire coal field, and some coal mining is carried on. Oldham manufactures textile machinery for both the woolen and cotton industries, 121,212 (1951).

Oldham, John. b. in England; killed 1636. English settler in New England. He came to America in 1623 and was connected with various colonies. His murder by Indians precipitated the Pequot War.

Oldham, John. b. at Shipton Moyne, Gloucestershire, England, Aug. 9, 1653; d. at Holme Pierrepont, Nottinghamshire, England, Dec. 9, 1683. English satirical poet. His Four Satires upon the Jesuits (1679) attracted much attention, coming on the heels of Titus Oates's revelation of the alleged "Popish Plot." He also wrote Some New Pieces (1681).

Old Harry (har'i). Popular euphemism for the Devil.

Old Head of Kinsale (kin.sāl'). See under Kinsale.

Old Heads and Young Hearts. Play by Dion Boucicault, produced in 1844.

Old Hickory. [Former name, Jacksonville.] Unincorporated community in C Tennessee, in Davidson County, on the Cumberland River NE of Nashville; manufactures of explosives, cellophane, and rayon. The town is owned by E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 5,993 (1940).

"Old Hickory." Nickname of Jackson, Andrew.

Old High German. See under German.

Old Homestead, The. Drama by Denman Thompson, produced in 1887.

Old Hundredth or Old Hundred. Popular psalm tune, first published in the Genevan Psalter (c1551-52) edited by Louis Bourgeois. It was originally adapted to Théodore de Bèze's version of the 134th Psalm, but when adopted in England was set to William Kethe's version of the 100th Psalm. It was at first known as the "Hundredth," but in 1696, when Nahum Tate and Nicholas Brady published their "New Version," the word "Old" was used to show that the tune was the one which had been in use in the previous Psalter (Sternhold and Hopkins's of the 16th century). It is now generally sung to the doxology, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

"Old Ironsides." See Constitution.

"Old Jefferson." Nickname of Jefferson, Joseph (1774-1832).

Old King Cole. See under King Cole.

"Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" (thred'nē'dl). See Bank of England.

Old Law, or a New Way to Please You, The. Play published in 1656 as by Philip Massinger, Thomas Middleton, and William Rowley. The original play was almost certainly written by Middleton and Rowley in 1599, and acted in 1600. Massinger possibly revised it much later.

Old Libyan (līb'i.an). See under Libyans.

"Old Line State." Occasional nickname of Maryland.

Old Madhouse, The. Novel by William de Morgan, published in 1919. Left unfinished at his death, it was completed by his wife, Evelyn de Morgan.

Old Mahon (mā.hōn', -hōn'). Squatter farmer, Christopher's father, in John Millington Synge's one-act play The Playboy of the Western World (1907).

Old Maid, The. Novlette by Edith Wharton, published in 1924 and dramatized by Zoë Akins in 1935. The stage adaptation was awarded a Pulitzer prize. The novlette is one of four included in the Old New York series.

Old Maids. Comedy by J. Sheridan Knowles, produced in 1841.

Old Malton (mōl'ton). See under Malton.

Old Man of the Sea, The. In The Arabian Nights' Entertainments, an old man who asked to be carried across a brook on the back of Sindbad the sailor, then clung to him and refused to dismount. Sindbad finally managed to smash his head and thus got rid of him. The name is applied, in literary allusion, to any person of whom one cannot get rid.

Old Man's Youth, The. Novel by William de Morgan, published in 1921. Left unfinished at his death, it was completed by his wife, Evelyn de Morgan.

Old Mesilla (mā.sē'ya). See Mesilla, N.M.

Old Mirabel (mir'a.bel). See Mirabel, Old.

Oldnixon (ôld'nīk.son), John. b. in Somersetshire, England, 1673; d. at London, July 9, 1742. English historical writer. He abused Alexander Pope in his Essay on Criticism in Prose (1728), and was promptly replied to by a scathing attack in the Dunciad (ii. 283). Among his other works are The British Empire in America (1708), Critical History of England (1724-26), History of England (1729-39), and Memoirs of the Press (1742).

Old Mole (mōl). Novel by Gilbert Cannan, published in 1914. The story of an old schoolmaster, a student of French and Latin literature, its subtitle is the Surprising Adventures in England of Herbert Jocelyn Benham, M.A., Sometime Sixth-Form Master.

Old Mortality. Historical novel by Sir Walter Scott, published in 1816. It is so called from the epitaph given to Robert Paterson, who passed his life in restoring the gravestones of the Covenanters.

Old New York (yōrk). Series of four novelettes by Edith Wharton including The Old Maid, False Dawn, The Spark, and New Year's Day, all of which were published in 1924.

Old Nick (nik). Popular euphemism for the Devil. Some early scholars ascribed the origin of the name to the malign Germanic water spirits, the nixes, who lie in wait for human beings and lure them to their drowning, but there is no proof for this speculation.

Old Norse (nōrs). See under Norse.

"Old North State." Occasional nickname of North Carolina.

Old Northwest. In American history, the designation applied to the tract (embracing approximately 248,000 sq. mi.) between the Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi, and the Ohio River. It was organized (1787) as the Northwest Territory.

Old Oaken Bucket, The. Popular poem, of which the original title was The Bucket, by Samuel Woodworth. A sentimental ballad, it was set to music by Frederick Smith (who used a theme which George Kiallmark had composed for Araby's Daughter, by Thomas Moore), and in this form became a familiar 19th-century song. The ballad was written c1818.

Old Orchard Beach. Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in SW Maine, in York County, on Saco Bay ab. 11 mi. SW of Portland; summer resort. Pop. of town, 4,707 (1950); of village, 4,593 (1950).

"Old Parr" (pār). See Parr, Thomas.

Old Point Comfort (kum'fort). Resort in Virginia, situated at the mouth of the James River, ab. 13 mi. N of Norfolk. It is close to Fort Monroe.

"Old Pretender." See Stuart, James Francis Edward.

Old Pybus (pi'bus). Novel by Warwick Deeping, published in 1928.

"Old Q." Nickname of Douglas, William.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mê, hêr; pin, pîne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔ, then; ɔ, d or j; ʒ, s or sh; ʒ, t or ch;

Old Red Sandstone Period. Geological period recognized in England and approximating the Devonian Period. See table at end of Volume III.

Old Régime in Canada (kan'a.də). The. Historical work by Francis Parkman, published in 1874.

"Old Roman" (rō'man). Nickname of Comiskey, Charles Albert.

"Old Rough and Ready." Nickname applied to General Zachary Taylor and widely used during his successful bid (1848) for the presidency of the U.S. It originated during his service in the Seminole War (1841).

Old Sarum (sār'um). [Latin, Sorbidunum.] Place ab. 2 mi. from Salisbury, England: an ancient Celtic fortress and later a Roman fortress. It was long noted as the most notorious of "rotten boroughs" (boroughs which sent members to Parliament although they had few or no voters), there being, indeed, not a single house within its limits when it was disfranchised (1832).

Old Saxon (saks'ōn). See under Saxons.

Old Scratch. Popular term for the Devil. The epithet is explained as probably having developed from Old Norse skratli, meaning "screerer" or "goblin." Old High German skrat or skraz, "goblin," into early provincial English Skrat. Skrat was a malicious goblin who annoys belated home-goers. Especially he used to get in the back of the wagon and become so heavy that the horses could not budge. After a few minutes of this kind of fun, he would disappear with a diabolical laugh. The word became synonymous with the Devil, and corrupted into Scratch.

Old Smoky. Title of a popular American mountain folk song, commenting on the "false-hearted lover/Who will tell you more lies/Than the cross-ties on the railroad/Or the stars in the skies." There are many variants, only one of which ends happily. It is usually sung to the same tune as The Little Mohee.

Old Soak, The. Narrative by Don Marquis, published in 1921.

Old Stone Age. See Paleolithic Period.

Old Style Calendar. See Julian Calendar.

"Old Subtlety." Nickname of Flemens, William.

Old Swimm'n'-Hole and 'Leven More Poems, The. Collection of poems in Hoosier dialect by James Whitcomb Riley, published in 1883 under the pseudonym Benj. F. Johnson, of Boone. The author's name, however, appeared in brackets on the title page. Included among these poems is "When the Frost Is on the Pumpkin."

Old Testament. The older portion of the Bible, consisting of statements of the Mosaic Law, histories, prophecies, poems, and other Jewish writings dating from before the birth of Christ. The Hebrew word berith, having the sense of "covenant," is translated in the Septuagint by a Greek term which was rendered into Latin as testamentum, from which the English "testament" derives. The Old Testament thus is the record of the covenant which orthodox Jews and Christians alike believe was made by God with the Jewish people; or more precisely, the record of several covenants, including those vouchsafed by the Deity to Abraham and to Moses, together with a varied collection of other books. The canon of the sacred writings as received by orthodox Jews was gradually established by the rabbis and scholars during the two centuries beginning c100 B.C., but the Greek-speaking Alexandrian Jews had included a number of additional books in the Greek translation which, because it is believed to have been made by 70 or 72 scribes, is known as the Septuagint. In more credulous times the legend was also believed that this prodigious work was accomplished in 72 days, but in fact it appears to have taken from c250 to c100 B.C. In the Jewish view, the Torah (that is, the Pentateuch, or five books of Moses, namely Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy) has special sanctity and authority, but the Christian churches, though there are differences among them concerning the number of canonical books, regard all of those to which this character is conceded, as equally inspired. Latin translations from the Septuagint were made long before Saint Jerome, late in the 4th and early in the 5th century, produced the definitive Latin text of both the Old Testament and the New Testament, known as the Vulgate. As to the Old Testament, Jerome made new translations from the Hebrew of the protocanonical books (those of which the canonicity is nowhere questioned) excepting the Psalms; his version of the Psalms is a revision of the Old Latin text. The deuterocanonical (that is, the disputed) books of Tobias and Judith he translated from the Aramaic, the deuterocanonical parts of Daniel and Esther, from the Greek; while for the other deuterocanonical books he adopted the Old Latin texts. The Vulgate remains the basic Biblical text in the Roman Catholic Church. The Septuagint is the Old Testament in the Eastern Orthodox Churches. The devoted work of the Jewish scholars known as Masoretes, which did not cease until early in the 15th century, established a Hebrew text which is the basis of the Old Testament in the English Authorized Version; this version moreover adopts the Jewish distinction between canonical books and Apocrypha. The English text of the Old Testament approved by the Roman Catholic Church was published at Douai (Douay), France, in 1610 and is coupled with the New Testament text published at Reims in 1582 under the name of the Douay Version, which was subsequently revised and annotated. The Old Testament books recognized as canonical in both the Authorized and Douay Versions (with their names in the Douay Version, where they differ from those in the Authorized Version, given in parentheses) are: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy, Joshua (Josue), Judges, Ruth, 1 and 2 Samuel (1 and 2 Kings), 1 and 2 Kings (3 and 4 Kings), 1 and 2 Chronicles (1 and 2 Paralipomenon), Ezra (1 Esdras), Nehemiah (2 Esdras), Esther, Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon (Canticle of Canticles), Isaiah (Isaias), Jeremiah (Jeremias), Lamentations, Ezekiel (Ezechiel), Daniel, Hosea (Osee), Joel, Amos, Obadiah (Abdias), Jonah (Jonas), Micah (Micheas), Nahum, Habakkuk (Habacuc), Zephaniah (Sophtania), Haggai (Ageus), Zechariah (Zacharias), Malachi (Malachias). In addition, the Douay Version includes in the canon the following books which in the Authorized Version are relegated to the Apocrypha, namely Tobias, Judith, Wisdom, Ecclesiasticus, Baruch, and 1 and 2 Machabees. It is thought that the oldest fragments of the Old Testament are the songs which occur in various parts of the text, for it seems certain that in Jewish as in other literatures poetry preceded prose. A great deal of criticism, destructive and constructive, has been devoted to Old Testament problems. While it is believed by fundamentalists that the Pentateuch was given to Moses by God, or at least was written by Moses, modern critics suggest that the Mosaic and later historical books as we possess them were put in form by a Judean annalist working from earlier narratives of the history of the world and of the Jewish people written in the southern kingdom of Judah and in the northern realm of Israel, in the 9th and 8th centuries B.C. It is believed that Deuteronomy ("second law," but in fact a summary of the law as previously set forth) was published by Josiah the king in 621 B.C. as part of an effort to reform the synagogue and the state. The other Old Testament books, as they vary widely in character (histories, prophecies, narratives, poems, discourses), are also of very various, and generally obscure, origin.

Old Town. City in C Maine, in Penobscot County, on the Penobscot River ab. 12 mi. N of Bangor: manufactures of canoes, pulp, paper, wood products, and wool textiles. 8,261 (1950).

Oldtown Folks. Story by Harriet Beecher Stowe, published in 1869.

Old Wives' Tale, The. Comedy written by George Peele and printed in 1595. It was acted some years earlier.

Old Wives' Tale, The. Novel by Arnold Bennett, published in 1913.

Olean (ō'lē-an). City in S New York, in Cattaraugus County, on the Allegheny River, in a petroleum-producing area: oil refining; manufactures of glass, oil-well machinery, steel cabinets; railroad shops. 22,884 (1950).

Olearius (ō'lē-ār'ius; German, ō'lā-ā-rē'us), Adam. [Latinized from his original name, Olschlāger.] b. at Aschersleben, Germany, c1600; d. Feb. 22, 1671. German traveler in Russia and Persia, and author.

Oleg (ō'lēg; Russian, o'lek'). b. c850; d. 912. Varangian ruler in Russia; son of Rurik (d. 879). Probably born in Norway, certainly a Scandinavian by race, he extended the domain which his father had established among the Slavs by taking possession of Kiev and the territory around it. He made this city, rather than Novgorod, his capital, and established its hegemony over a large area of eastern Russia. In 907 his forces threatened Constantinople, and he was able to extort a favorable treaty from the Byzantine ruler.

Olekma (o.ly'k.na). River in U.S.S.R., in E Siberia, in the Chita oblast and the Yakut Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. It flows generally NW and N through a mountainous region to join the Lena near Olekminsk. Length, ab. 1,000 mi.

Olenek (o.li.nyók'). River in U.S.S.R., in the Yakut Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic. It rises in the Vilyuy Range and flows in a winding course E, NE, and N to the Laptev Sea of the Arctic Ocean. Length, ab. 1,344 mi.

Oléron (o.lä.rôn), Île d'. [Also: Oléron, Oloron; ancient name, Uliarus.] Island in W France, in the department of Charente-Maritime, situated in the Bay of Biscay W of Marennes, opposite the mouths of the Charente and Saurdre rivers. It is the largest French island in the Atlantic Ocean. The chief place is Chateau d'Oléron. The island has oyster fisheries. Area, ab. 67 sq. mi.; pop. 14,710 (1946).

Oléron (o.lä.rôn), Judgments of. Code of maritime laws in use in western Europe in the Middle Ages. It is the oldest collection of modern maritime laws, and is supposed to have been issued by Eleanor of Aquitaine, mother of Richard I of England, at the Ile d'Oléron, about the middle of the 12th century, and to have been introduced into England, with some additions, in the reign of Richard I.

Olesha (o.lyó'sha), Yury Karlovich. b. 1899—. Russian novelist, short-story writer, and playwright. One of the most talented and sophisticated of modern Russian authors, he has produced a rather limited body of work, the main theme of which is the conflict between the individual and the collective. His novel Envy has been translated into several languages, including English (in 1936).

Oleśnica (ó.lësh.ně'stä). [German, Öls, Oels.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated on the Olsa River ab. 17 mi. NE of Wrocław (Breslau); shoe, furniture, and machine industries; flour mills; livestock markets. There is a castle in Renaissance style, erected 1558-1603, and various churches in the Gothic and baroque styles. The town was allotted to Poland in the Potsdam agreements of 1945. 18,183 (1939), 4,246 (1946).

Olevianus (ó.lě.vi.ä'nus; German, ö.lä.vē.ä'nus), Kaspar. b. at Trier, Germany, Aug. 10, 1536; d. at Herborn, Germany, March 15, 1587. German theologian, one of the founders of the German Reformed Church.

Olger Dansk (ól'gér dän'sk). Danish name of Ogier the Dane.

Olhão (ó.lyou'n'). Town and concelho (commune) in S Portugal, in the province of Algarve, district of Faro, situated on the S coast ab. 6 mi. E of Faro; fisheries; ceramics and basket manufactures; trade in wine and cork. Pop. of concelho, 29,481 (1940); of town, 12,934 (1940).

Oliaros (ó.li.ä'rös). Ancient name of Antiparos.

Olicana (o.li.kä'na). Latin name of Ilkley.

Olid (ó.lě'n'), Cristóbal de. b. probably at Baeza, Spain, c1487; killed in Honduras near the end of 1524. Spanish captain. He went to Darien and thence to Cuba, was prominent under Hernando Cortés in the conquest of Mexico (1519-21), and in January, 1524, was sent by Cortés to conquer Honduras, which had already been invaded by Gil Gonzalez Dávila. On his arrival there he threw off the authority of Cortés, and the latter sent Francisco de las Casas against him. Both Casas and Gil Gonzalez fell into Olid's hands, but Olid found occasion to attack and kill him.

Olier (döl'yä), Franklin d'. See d'Olier, Franklin.

Olier (ó.lyä), Jean Jacques. b. at Paris, 1608; d. there, 1657. French ecclesiastic and writer, founder of the seminary and builder of the church (1646) of Saint Sulpie at Paris. He extended the activities of his seminary throughout France and into Canada.

Olifants (ó.li.fänts). [Also, Olifant.] River in S Africa, chiefly in the Union of South Africa, a principal affluent of the Limpopo River. It rises in S Transvaal, runs mainly NE, and joins the Limpopo in Mozambique.

Olifant (ó.li.fänt), Nigel. Principal character in Sir Walter Scott's Fortunes of Nigel. He was Lord Glenvarloch in virtue of his castle and estates.

Oligocene Period (ó.li.gō.sēn). See table at end of Volume III.

Olímpio (ó.lēm'pyō), Domingos. [Full name, Domingos Olímpio Braga Cavalcanti.] b. at Sobral, Ceará, Brazil, Sept. 18, 1850; d. at Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 6, 1906. Brazilian writer chiefly remembered for his novel Lucia-Homen (1903), which was one of the forerunners of the present-day literature of northeastern Brazil. He was a lawyer and journalist, and wrote novels, plays, and short stories.

Olin (ó.lin), Stephen. b. at Leicester, Vt., March 2, 1797; d. at Middletown, Conn., Aug. 16, 1851. American Methodist clergyman and educator.

Olinda (ó.lēn'da). City in the state of Pernambuco, in NE Brazil, on a promontory of the coast ab. 3 mi. N of Recife. Founded in 1535, the early colonial capital of Pernambuco and of the Dutch in Brazil (1630-54), it was the principal commercial city of Brazil until 1710. Pop. 38,981 (1950).

Olinda, Marquis and Viscount of. Titles of Araujo Lima, Pedro de.

Olinsky (ó.lin'ski), Ivan Gregorewitch. b. in southern Russia, 1878—. American painter of figures and murals. He has lived mostly at New York, was an assistant of John La Farge, and taught at the National Academy of Design from 1912. Some of his better-known works are Ada, Gossip, Young Girl, Old Fashioned Gown, Two Girls, Tosca in Yellow, Springtime, and Madonna.

Oliphant (ó.li.fänt), Carolina. See Nairne, Carolina.

Oliphant, Laurence. b. in Cape Town, 1829; d. at Twickenham, England, Dec. 23, 1888. English traveler, diplomat, and author. In 1867 he joined a semi-mystical community in America, founded by Thomas Lake Harris, who exercised unbounded influence over him. In 1881, his faith in Harris having been destroyed, he took up the scheme for the colonization of Palestine by the Jews. He published A Journey to Katmandu (1852), The Russian Shores of the Black Sea (1853), works on the Crimean War, Minnesota (1855), The Narrative of the Earl of Elgin's Mission to China and Japan (1860), Piccadilly (1870), Altiora Peto, a novel (1883), Sympneumatoca: Evolutionary Forces now active in Man (1885), Massollam (1886), and Scientific Religion (1888).

Oliphant, Margaret Oliphant. [Maiden name, Wilson.] b. at Wallyford, Midlothian, Scotland, 1828; d. at London, June 25, 1897. Scottish novelist and biographical writer. Much of her work appeared in Blackwood's Magazine. She wrote various stories of Scottish life, such as Passages in the Life of Mrs. Margaret Maitland of Sunnyside (1849), Zaidee (1855), Chronicles of Carlingford (4 novels, 1861-64), and many other novels. She also published a Life of Edward Irving (1862), Historical Sketches of the Reign of George II (1869), The Makers of Florence (1876), The Literary History of England, 1790-1825 (1882), The Makers of Venice (1888), and Royal Edinburgh (1890).

Olisipo (ó.li.s'i.pō). Ancient name of Lisbon, Portugal.

Oliva (ó.lě'nä). Town in E Spain, in the province of Valencia, ab. 40 mi. S of Valencia; center of a fertile district growing olives, wine grapes, citrus fruit, grain, and rice; sacks and baskets are manufactured. There is a Renaissance palace. 18,407 (1940).

Oliva (ó.lě'vä). German name of Oliva.

Oliva (ó.lě'vä), Peace of. Peace concluded in 1660 at Oliva (now Oliva, Poland), between Sweden, Poland, the Holy Roman Empire, and Brandenburg. Sweden received important concessions from Poland, and renounced Courland.

Oliva de la Frontera (ó.lě'nä dä lä frōn.tä'rä). [Also, Oliva de Jerez (hä.räth').] Town in W Spain, in the province of Badajoz, situated near the Portuguese border, 38 mi. S of Badajoz. 12,135 (1940).

Olivant (ó.li.vänt). In the medieval Carolingian romances, the magic horn of Orlando, or Roland. It could be heard for a distance of 20 miles. In the French Song of Roland, Roland (Orlando) blew it in the pass of Ronces-valles as he lay dying, thus recalling Charlemagne and his army.

Oliveras (ô.lê.bá'rás), Count of. [Title of Gasparo de Guzmán; additional title, Duke of Sanlúcar.] b. at Rome, Jan. 6, 1587; d. at Toro, Spain, July 22, 1645. Spanish statesman, prime minister (1621-43) of Philip IV. He came to power, as the king's actual substitute in administrative matters, on Philip's accession. As a result of a foreign policy that renewed (1621) the war in the Netherlands and threw (1636) Spain into the Thirty Years' War against France, no sound fiscal policy could be worked out, and harsh measures had to be adopted to obtain money. When in 1640 Portugal broke away from Spain and the Basque Provinces and Catalonia rose in revolt, Oliveras was blamed, although he was really only carrying out traditional Spanish policies. A court faction, headed by Queen Isabella, turned against Oliveras and forced (1643) the king to dismiss him and banish him from court. There is evidence to indicate that Oliveras was sacrificed in order to divert attention from the real problems and thus to preserve the popularity of the royal house.

Oliveras, Miguel de. b. at Chillán, Chile, 1674; d. at Imola, Italy, c1773. Chilean Jesuit historian. He was a missionary in Chile (1701-07), and traveled in all parts of the country.

Oliver Branch Petition. Name given to a document (1775) addressed to King George III, signed by individual members of the Continental Congress without reference to that body, and listing the grievances of the American colonists. Although the petition was drawn up after the battles of Lexington and Bunker Hill, it was designed to indicate the possibility of conciliation; the petition, however, never reached the king (in fact, he refused to receive it).

Oliver Chancellor (ô.liv chán'se.lór). See Chancellor, Oliver.

Olivehurst (ô.liv'hérst). Unincorporated community in N central California, N of Sacramento, 3,588 (1950).

Oliveira (ô.lê.vá'ra), Antônio Mariano Alberto de. b. at Saquarema, Brazil, April 28, 1857; d. at Niterói, Brazil, Jan. 19, 1937. Brazilian poet, generally regarded as one of the three greatest Parnassians and probably the most typical representative of that school in Brazil. Author of Canções românticas (1878), Meridionais (1884), Sonetos e poemas (1885), Versos e rimas (1895), and Poesias (4 series, 1900-27).

Oliveira e Daun (ô.lê.vá'ra ê du.ôn'), João Carlos de. See Saldanha, Duke of.

Oliveira Machado (ô.lê.vá'ra ma.shá'dô), Augusto d'. See Machado, Augusto d'Oliveira.

Oliveira Martins (ô.lê.vá'ra mâr.têns'), Joaquim Pedro de. See Martins, Joaquim Pedro de Oliveira.

Oliveira Salazar (su.la.zár'), Antonio de. See Salazar, Antonio de Oliveira.

Oliveira Setúbal (ô.lê.vá'ra se.tô'bal), Paulo de. See Setúbal, Paulo de Oliveira.

Oliveza (ô.lê.ben'thá). Town in W Spain, in the province of Badajoz, near the Portuguese border ab. 16 mi. SW of Badajoz; agricultural trade; old fortifications. The town was in Portugal from 1668 to 1801. Pop. 12,492 (1940).

Oliver of Cumberland (ô.liv; kum'bér.land), Princess. Assumed title of Serres, Olivia.

Oliver (ô.liv'ér). [French, Olivier.] In the Carolingian romances, one of the 12 peers of Charlemagne. He was the true friend of Roland, or Orlando.

Oliver. In Shakespeare's As You Like It, the elder brother of Orlando.

Oliver, Andrew. b. at Boston, March 28, 1706; d. there, March 3, 1774. English colonial administrator. He was a member (1746-65) of the provincial council and secretary (1765-71) of the province. When the Stamp Act was passed, Oliver became (1765) stamp officer and, after popular demonstrations against him, which included stoning his house and hanging him in effigy, he resigned the post. He became (1771) lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, but when there came to light in 1773 certain letters he had written to England recommending that severe measures be taken against the colonists he was again the object of violent demonstrations.

Oliver, George. Legal name of Onions, Oliver.

Oliver, George Tener. b. at Donaghmore, near Dunganon, County Tyrone, Ireland, Jan. 26, 1848; d. Jan. 22, 1919. American lawyer, industrialist, newspaper publisher, and politician; brother of Henry William Oliver. He was admitted (1871) to the Pittsburgh bar, and became vice-president and then president of the Oliver Wire Company. He was president (1889-97) of the Hainsworth Steel Company and president (1897-1901) of the Oliver and Snyder Steel Company. In 1909 he filled a vacancy as U.S. senator, and later served (1911-17) an elected term. He became (1900) the owner of the Pittsburgh Gazette and in 1901 purchased the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph; he became (1906) the proprietor also of the Pittsburgh Times, which he incorporated with the Gazette as the Gazette Times.

Oliver, Henry Kemble. b. at Beverly, Mass., Nov. 24, 1800; d. at Boston, Aug. 10, 1885. American composer, chiefly of church music. He was a teacher at Salem (1818-44), and became mayor of Lawrence (1859) and later of Salem. He was state treasurer (1861-63).

Oliver, Henry William. b. at Dunganon, County Tyrone, Ireland, Feb. 25, 1840; d. Feb. 8, 1904. American ironmaster and industrialist; brother of George Tener Oliver. He was chairman of the board (1888 et seq.) of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company, served (1890-93) as president of the Pittsburgh and Western Railway Company, and founded the Oliver Iron Mining Company, among the first to exploit the iron-ore resources of the Mesabi Range in Minnesota.

Oliver, Isaac. b. 1556; d. c1617. English painter. He painted the portraits of Queen Elizabeth, Mary Stuart, Prince Henry, Ben Jonson, Sir Philip Sydney, and others. He left a treatise on painting.

Oliver, John Rathbone. b. at Albany, N.Y., Jan. 4, 1872; d. at Waverley, Mass., Jan. 21, 1943. American Episcopal clergyman, psychiatrist, and novelist. His works include Psychiatry and Mental Health (1932) and The Ordinary Difficulties of Everyday People (1935), and also The Good Shepherd (1915), Fear (1927), Victim and Victor (1928), Rock and Sand (1930), Article Thirty-Two (1931), and other novels.

Oliver, Paul Ambrose. b. aboard the Louisiana in the English Channel, July 18, 1830; d. May 17, 1912. American soldier, inventor, and manufacturer, noted for his development of explosives (some authorities credit him with the invention of both black powder and dynamite). He served in the Civil War, emerging as a brevet brigadier general of Union troops, and was later awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. His work in devising formulas and machines for the manufacture of explosives was carried on (1868-89) at a mill at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Although his achievements date from the same period as those of Alfred Nobel and J. F. E. Schultze, they are generally considered to have been initiated and developed independently.

Oliver, Peter. b. at Boston, March 26, 1713; d. at Birmingham, England, in October, 1791. American jurist; brother of Andrew Oliver. He became chief justice of Massachusetts in 1771, and was impeached in 1774. He was a Loyalist in the Revolution.

Oliver Cob (kób). See Cob, Oliver.

Oliver le Dain (le dän'). Barber and intimate adviser of Louis XI of France, introduced as a character in Sir Walter Scott's novel Quentin Durward.

Oliver Martext (mâr'tekst), Sir. See Martext, Sir Oliver.

Oliver Surface (sér'fas), Sir. See Surface, Sir Oliver.

Oliver Twist (twist). Novel by Charles Dickens, published in 1837-38. It is named from its principal character, a workhouse orphan. One of its purposes was to promote reform of the abuses in almshouses.

Olivés (ô.livz), Mount of. [Also, Olivet (ô.liv'et).] In Biblical geography, a height just E of Jerusalem (it is included within the limits of the modern city), consisting of four separate peaks. It is important for its associations with David (who fled here) and with Jesus (the Garden of Gethsemane is at its base). Elevation, ab. 2,700 ft.

Olivia (ô.liv'i.a). Character in Shakespeare's Twelfth Night.

Olivia. In William Wycherley's comedy The Plain Dealer, a woman with whom Manly is in love; a detracting, treacherous creature who deceives him vilely.

Olivia. Daughter of the vicar in Oliver Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield.

Olivia. One of the principal characters in Oliver Goldsmith's comedy The Good-natured Man.

Olivia. Principal character in Hannah Cowley's A Bold Stroke for a Husband.

Oliver (o.lě.vvā). French form of Oliver.

Oliver, Guillaume Antoine. b. near Toulon, France, 1756; d. at Lyons, France, 1814. French naturalist and traveler, especially noted as an entomologist.

Oliver (ō.liv'ī.ēr, -ā), Sir Laurence Kerr. b. at Dorking, Surrey, England, May 22, 1907—English stage and motion-picture actor and director. When he was 15 he played the role of Katharine in a performance by boys of The Taming of the Shrew during a Shakespeare Festival at Stratford-on-Avon, and at 17 he enrolled at the Central School of Dramatic Art and studied under Elsie Fogerty. He acquired experience (1926-28) with the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, first acted in a motion picture in 1929, and in 1930 accompanied Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence to the U.S. as a member of their supporting cast in Private Lives. Back in England, he joined John Gielgud in a production of Romeo and Juliet, the two actors alternating in the roles of Romeo and Mercutio. In 1936 he first acted in a motion picture with Vivien Leigh. Soon thereafter he joined the Old Vic repertory company, with which he played many Shakespearian roles, including Hamlet (with Miss Leigh as Ophelia) in the production staged at the castle of Elsinore in Denmark. In 1940 he married Miss Leigh. In World War II he served as a lieutenant in the Fleet Air Arm until released to reorganize the Old Vic company, productions of which had been suspended following destruction of its theater in an air raid. During this period he made the motion picture Henry V, which won wide admiration and in the U.S. was designated the best picture of 1946 by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. In 1946 also he brought the Old Vic company to the U.S., for a triumphant season of presentations of Shakespearian and other dramas. He was knighted in 1947. On an American tour in 1951 he produced Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra and George Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra on alternate nights, taking the title role in each play.

Oliwa (ō.lě.vā). [German, Oliwa.] Former town in N Poland, in the województwo (province) of Gdansk, now incorporated into Danzig (Gdansk). It was founded as a Cistercian abbey by Duke Sobieslaw of Pomerelia in 1170; several times destroyed by heathen Prussians. The peace of Oliwa was concluded here on May 3, 1660, between Sweden, Poland, Brandenburg, and the German emperor.

Ollanta (ō.lyān'tā). [Also: Ollantay (ō.lyān'ti), Ollantuy (ō.lyān'tō.i).] Popular Indian play, in Quechua, composed in the 16th century, under the influence of the Roman Catholic Church. Under the erroneous assumption that it was pre-Conquest and authentic, it has been repeatedly translated into various languages.

Ollapod (ō.lə.pod), Doctor. Character in George Colman the younger's comedy The Poor Gentleman. He is a warlike apothecary, and also a cornet in a militia troop, noted for his "jumble of physic and shooting" and his harmless prescriptions.

Ollier (ō.lyā), Léopold Louis Xavier Édouard. b. at Vans, France, Dec. 2, 1830; d. at Lyons, France, Nov. 26, 1900. French bone and joint surgeon. He described the regeneration of the bones by means of the periosteum, recommended (1858) a method of delayed dressing for treating compound fractures, described (1872) a new method of skin grafting (called Ollier's grafts method; it was later modified by Carl Thiersch and named the Ollier-Thiersch method), the unilateral or symmetrical chondromas, named after him Ollier's dyschondroplasia (1899), and multiple exostoses (1890). He devised operations for the excision of the knee, of the shoulder, of the elbow, and of the scapula, each of which was called Ollier's operation.

Ollius (ō.lī.us). Latin name of the Oglio.

Ollivant (ō.lī.vant), Alfred. b. 1874; d. Jan. 19, 1927. English novelist, noted as the author of the dog story Bob, Son of Battie (1898; published in England under the title Owd Bob, the Grey Dog of Kenmuir). His other works include Danny (1902), The Gentleman (1908), The Taming of John Blunt (1911), The Royal Road (1912), Two Men (1919), and One Woman (1920).

Ollivier (ō.lě.vyā), Émile. [Full name, Olivier Émile Ollivier.] b. at Marseilles, France, July 2, 1825; d. at St.-Gervais-les-Bains, Haute-Savoie, France, Aug. 20, 1913. French political leader and lawyer, who headed briefly a liberal cabinet in the final year (1870) of the reign of Napoleon III. He was prefect of the departments of Bouches-du-Rhône and Haute-Marne during the Revolution of 1848, and was elected (1857, 1863, 1869) to the Corps Législatif, the lower house of the French legislature under the Second Empire, as a republican deputy. He promoted the idea of liberalization of the imperial regime and was called upon to head the cabinet in January, 1870, shortly before the crisis over the Hohenzollern candidacy in Spain. He allowed himself to be carried along by the war fever in France, accepted responsibility for the declaration of war "with a light heart," and resigned (August, 1870) when the debacle of French arms became evident. He went into exile (1870-73) in Italy. In a long historical study, L'Empire libéral, études, récits, et souvenirs (18 vols., 1895-1918), he combined a huge mass of information with an apology for his role, which had been severely condemned by most republican elements. He married Blandine, the daughter of Franz Liszt and the Countess d'Agout.

Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun (ad'am). Book (1928) of stories by Roark Bradford in which tales from the Old Testament are modernized in terms of Negro life. The Pulitzer prize play Green Pastures (1930), by Marc Connelly, is based upon it.

Olmec (ō.lmĕk'). [Also, Olmecas (-mā'kəz).] Traditional tribe or group of Mexican Indians of pre-Conquest times, probably c500 B.C.-1150 A.D. Recent archaeological discoveries in S Veracruz and Tabasco have revealed that these people practiced a high type of agriculture. A series of clay and stone figures of a distinctive style which has been credited to the Olmec is characterized by carvings of baby-faced gods and tiger gods. These two types of deities especially are represented on religious ceremonial vases. Archaeologists have not yet been able, however, to establish the precise relationship of the Olmec to other pre-Conquest cultures of Mexico.

Olmeco (ō.lmĕ'kō), José Joaquín. b. at Guayaquil, Ecuador, c1782; d. there, Feb. 17, 1847. Ecuadorian politician and poet. He was a leader of the revolt against the Spaniards in October, 1820, and a member of the first patriot junta (1820-22), but opposed the union with Colombia. Subsequently he held various civil positions, and in 1845 was a member of the provisional government. His poems, principally lyrics, became very popular.

Olmos Park (ō'lmos). City in S central Texas: residential suburb, N of San Antonio. 2,841 (1950).

Olmsted (ōlm'stĕd, ōm'-), Denison. b. at East Hartford, Conn., June 18, 1791; d. at New Haven, Conn., May 13, 1859. American physicist, astronomer, meteorologist, and geologist. He published textbooks on astronomy and natural philosophy, and articles on such subjects as hail and the aurora borealis.

Olmsted, Frederick Law. b. at Hartford, Conn., April 26, 1822; d. at Waverly, Mass., Aug. 28, 1903. American landscape architect, remembered as the man chiefly responsible for the plan of Central Park, at New York. In 1850 he made a pedestrian tour through England and a short Continental trip, recorded in Walks and Talks of an American Farmer in England (1852). On his return he traveled in the U.S., and published A Journey in the Seaboard Slave States (1856), A Journey through Texas (1857), A Journey in the Back Country (1860), The Cotton Kingdom (1861), and others. When the work on Central Park, at New York, was begun he was made superintendent, and collaborated with Calvert Vaux in preparing the plan according to which the park was built. During the Civil War he acted as secretary of the U.S. Sanitary Commission. After severing his connection with it, he spent two years in California, spending much time in the Yosemite Valley in an official capacity (it was largely through his efforts that Yosemite National Park came into being). In 1879 he made a trip to Europe, and on returning took charge of building the Back Bay Park at Boston. Among the other parks he developed are Prospect Park at Brooklyn, Fairmount Park at Philadelphia, South Park at Chicago, Riverside Park and Morningside Park at New York, Mount Royal Park at Montreal, and the Capitol grounds at Washington. One of his most notable undertakings was the laying out of Jackson Park, Chicago, for the World's Columbian Exposition.

Olmsted, Frederick Law, Jr. b. at Staten Island, N.Y., July 24, 1870 —. American landscape architect and city planner; son of Frederick Law Olmsted. He began (1895) practice as a landscape architect after study under his father. He was landscape architect (1898–1920) for the metropolitan park system of Boston and served (1902–17) in a similar capacity for the Baltimore park commission. He was a member (1926–32) of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission at Washington, D.C., and director (1929, 1945 et seq.) of the state park survey for the California Park Commission. He served (1903–14) as professor of landscape architecture at Harvard.

Olmsted, John Charles. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 14, 1852; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 24, 1920. American landscape architect; nephew and partner of Frederick Law Olmsted. He joined the landscape architecture firm of F. L. Olmsted at New York, in which he became (1878) a partner and senior partner (1895). Among the designs to which he contributed were the grounds of Mount Holyoke College, Smith College, Ohio State University, the National Cash Register Company (Dayton, Ohio), and the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago (1893).

Olmütz (ol'müts). German name of Olomouc.

Olmütz Conference. Conference at Olmütz (now Olomouc, Czechoslovakia) between Prussia (represented by Baron Otto Theodor von Manteuffel) and Austria (represented by Prince Felix von Schwarzenberg) under the mediation of Russia, Nov. 28–29, 1850, respecting affairs in Germany, particularly in Hesse and Schleswig-Holstein, whose populations were in revolt against their respective rulers, the elector of Hesse and the king of Denmark. Schleswig-Holstein was abandoned to Denmark, and the elector of Hesse was reinstated in power.

Olney (ol'ni). Civil parish and small town in S England, in Buckinghamshire, situated on the river Ouse, ab. 60 mi. NW of London by rail. It was the residence of the poet William Cowper, 2,438 (1931).

Olney. City in SE Illinois, county seat of Richland County; shipping point for a farming region; manufactures of shoes, 8,612 (1950).

Olney. City in C Texas, in Young County, NW of Dallas, in an oil-producing region, 3,765 (1950).

Olney, Jesse. b. at Union, Conn., Oct. 12, 1798; d. at Stratford, Conn., July 30, 1872. American textbook writer, educator, and legislator. He was elected (1835) to the Connecticut legislature, in which he served for eight terms, and was state comptroller of public accounts from 1867 to 1868. A pioneer in writing easily comprehensible textbooks for elementary school pupils, he was the author of A Practical System of Modern Geography (1828) and A New and Improved School Atlas (1829).

Olney, Richard. b. at Oxford, Mass., Sept. 15, 1835; d. April 8, 1917. American lawyer and public official, U.S. attorney general (1893–95) and U.S. secretary of state (1895–97) during Cleveland's second term. He was graduated from Brown University (M.A., 1853) and from the Harvard Law School (LL.B., 1858), was admitted to the bar in 1859, and commenced his practice at Boston. A Democrat, he was elected (1873) to the state legislature and in 1893, after a lengthy retirement from active political life, was appointed U.S. attorney general by President Cleveland. His occupancy of this office is remembered chiefly for Olney's role in the Pullman strike of 1894, when he secured an injunction restraining Eugene V. Debs and other leaders of the American Railway Union on the ground of obstruction of the mails. This use of the injunction in a strike was the making of a precedent; also important historically was his advice to the president to send in federal troops although they had not been called for by Illinois Governor J. P. Altgeld. He became (June 8, 1895) U.S. secretary of state on the death of W. Q. Gresham, and subsequently secured British agreement to an arbitration of the Venezuelan controversy and a general treaty (January, 1897) of Anglo-American arbitration. The latter instrument, however, was not ratified by the U.S. Senate. During the course of the discussion with Great Britain, Olney made an important extension of the Monroe Doctrine when he wrote, in a note to the British government: "The United States is practically sovereign on this continent, and its fiat is law upon the subjects to which it confines its interposition . . . not simply by reason of its high character as a civilized state, not because wisdom and equity are the invariable characteristics of the dealings of the United States . . . [but] because, in addition to all other grounds, its infinite resources combined with its isolated position render it master of the situation and practically invulnerable against any or all other powers." Before his retirement (March 5, 1897), Olney was also concerned with the Cuban problem and with American interests in China and Turkey. After leaving Washington, D.C., he resumed his law practice and played a leading part in the affairs of the Democratic Party.

Olney Hymns. Collection of hymns written by William Cowper and John Newton, published in 1779.

Olney-Pauncefote Convention (pón'sfüt). General arbitration treaty signed at Washington, D.C., on Jan. 11, 1897, by U.S. Secretary of State Richard Olney and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador to the U.S. President Cleveland sent it to the U.S. Senate, but the treaty was not submitted to a vote until after the McKinley administration had been installed. After drastically amending the treaty, the Senate rejected it on May 5, 1897. The British Parliament had earlier ratified it.

Olofat (ô'fâf). In Micronesian mythology, the younger and mischievous one of a pair of culture-hero brothers, sons of the great god Luk (who, in some versions, tries to kill Olofat because of his mischievous ways, but is outwitted). In some islands he is credited, like the Polynesian Maui, with bringing fire to man, in some with teaching the art of tattooing. Tales in which he appears as a boy, and punishes boys who exclude him from their play, suggest the moral: Be kind to strangers.

Oloikop (ô'loikôp). See Lumbwa.

Olomouc (ô'lo.mûts). Kraj (region) of Moravia, Czechoslovakia. Capital, Olomouc; area, ab. 2,399 sq. mi.; pop. 584,973 (1947).

Olomouc. [German, Olmütz.] City in Czechoslovakia, capital of the kraj (region) of Olomouc, in N central Moravia, situated on an island on the Morava River, near the influx of the Bistrica River, between Brno and Opava. It is an important railway junction and has a number of industries among which the food industries, particularly the manufacture of sugar, candies, chocolate, malt, and beer, are notable; also metal, leather, and wood industries. The city is a center for the grain, cattle, and cheese trade. The cathedral of Saint Wenceslas was begun in the 12th century, rebuilt in the 13th century, and has early Romanesque windows. Olomouc was founded in the 11th century and early became the seat of the secular and ecclesiastical rulers of Moravia. It was one of the strongholds of the Roman Catholic party in the Hussite wars. The imperial family of Austria fled from Vienna to Olomouc in 1848 and Francis Joseph I was declared emperor here in the same year. The city was included in German Sudetenland in 1938, and forcible Germanization was attempted. However, after 1945, the German population was compelled to leave the city. 58,617 (1947).

Olonets (ô'lô'nyits). Former guberniya (government) in NW Russia, lying E of Finland and N of the districts of St. Petersburg and Novgorod. Capital, Petrozavodsk. The region contains Lake Onega and many other lakes. It is now a part of the Karelo-Finnish Soviet Socialist Republic in the U.S.S.R.

Olonnois (ô.lo.nwâ), François L'. See L'Olonnois, François.

Olonos (ô'lo'nos). See Erymanthus.

Oloron (ô.lo.rôn). See Oléron, Île d'.

Oloron-St.-Marie (ô.lo.rôn.sânt.mâ.rê). Town in SW France, in the department of Basses-Pyrénées, situated at the junction of the Aspe and Ossau rivers, ab. 17 mi. SW of Pau. An industrial town, with manufactures of woolen and leather, it is also a center for the woolen trade in the department and in the neighboring districts of Spain. There are houses and churches dating from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. 10,567 (1946).

Olot (ô.lô't). Town in NE Spain, in the province of Gerona, ab. 17 mi. NW of Gerona: textile and paper mills. 14,333 (1940).

Oirik (ô'rik). Axel. b. at Copenhagen, July 3, 1864; d. there, Feb. 17, 1917. Danish folklorist. He was a founder, with H. L. Feilberg, of the Dansk Folkemindesamling, the Danish national folklore collection, and continued Svend Grundtvig's work on Danmarks gamle Folkeviser, the great ballad collection. Author of Danske Riddervise (1898-1919), Om Ragnarok (1902), and Danmarks Helledigting (1903-10).

Öls (êls). German name of Oleśnica.

Olschlager (ol'shlä.gër), Adam. See Ociarius, Adam.
Olsen (ôl'sen), Ole. b. at Hammerfest, Norway, July 5, 1850; d. 1927. Norwegian composer and conductor. He wrote operas (words and music), orchestral works, an oratorio, cantatas, piano pieces, and songs.

Olshausen (ôls'hou.zen), Hermann. b. at Oldesloe, Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, in August, 1796; d. at Erlangen, Bavaria, Germany, Sept. 4, 1839. German Protestant exegete, professor of theology at Königsberg (1821-34) and at Erlangen (1834-39); brother of Justus Olshausen.

Olshausen, Justus. b. in Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, May 9, 1800; d. at Berlin, Dec. 28, 1882. German Orientalist; brother of Hermann Olshausen. He was connected with the Prussian ministry of instruction (1858-74).

Olshausen, Robert von. b. at Kiel, Germany, July 3, 1835; d. at Berlin, Feb. 1, 1915. German gynecologist; son of Justus Olshausen. He introduced vaginal excision (1895), brought the use of the curette (1874) prominently before the profession in Germany, and introduced ventral fixation as an independent procedure in cases of displacement of the uterus (1868).

Ölsnitz (êls'nits). See Oelsnitz.

Olson (ôl'son), Ernst William. b. at Finja, Skåne, Sweden, 1870—. Swedish-American poet, historian, and hymnologist. Olson emigrated to America at an early age, and after a varied career was employed by the Augustana Book Concern at Rock Island, Ill., from 1912. He has made a notable contribution to American Lutheran hymnology with a series of excellent translations of Swedish hymns. His Collected Poems were published in Sweden in 1947.

Olson, Floyd Bjornstjerne. b. at Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13, 1891; d. Aug. 22, 1936. American lawyer. He was elected (1930) governor of Minnesota on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Olstyn (ôl'shtin). Województwo (province) in N Poland, including an area mostly in former East Prussia. Capital, Olstyn; area, ab. 8,100 sq. mi.; pop. 680,000 (est. 1950).

Olsztyn. [German, Allenstein.] City in N Poland, the capital of the województwo (province) of Olstyn, formerly in East Prussia, Germany, situated on the Lyna (Alle) River ab. 63 mi. S of Kaliningrad (Königsberg); manufactures of wood products, cement works, and grain, livestock, and leather trade. It is a health resort. The city, founded by the Teutonic Order, passed to Poland in 1466 and to Prussia in 1772. In World War I, it was occupied by the Russians on Aug. 26-30, 1914. In the plebiscite of 1920, provided for in the Treaty of Versailles, the population declared in favor of Germany. The city was given to Poland by the Potsdam agreements of 1945. Pop. 50,396 (1939), 20,053 (1946).

Olt (ôlt). [Also: Alt, Aluta, Oltul.] River in Rumania, which rises in E Transylvania, flows S and W, and breaks through the Carpathians at the Rosiu (Rotherthum) Pass, and then flows S through Muntenia, and joins the Danube opposite Nikopol, Bulgaria. Length, ab. 300 mi.

Oltén (ôl'ten). Town in NW Switzerland, in the canton of Solothurn, on the Aare River SE of Basel. It is a railroad junction (it contains the chief workshop of the Swiss Federal Railways), and has shoe, machine, and other factories. 15,287 (1941).

Olténia (ôl.té'ni.a; Rumanian, ôl.tă'nyă). [Also, Little Walachia.] Region and former province in SW Rumania, bounded by Bulgaria on the S and the regions of Banat on the W, Muntenia on the E, and Transylvania on the N. Area, 9,294 sq. mi.; pop. 1,717,982 (1948).

Olténia (ôl.tă'ni.tă). [Also: Olténitza; ancient name, Constantiôla.] Town in S Rumania, in the province of Muntenia, on the Danube River ab. 37 mi. SE of Bucharest; small port and fishing center. Here on Nov. 4, 1853, and July 29, 1854, the Turks defeated the Russians. 10,284 (1949).

Oltis (ôl'tis). An ancient name of the Lot River.

Oltre Giuba (ôl'tră jô'bă). Italian name of Jubaland.

Oltul (ôl'tul). See Olt.

Olustee (ôl'stê). Village in N Florida, in Baker County, ab. 47 mi. W of Jacksonville. Near here on Feb. 20, 1864, Union forces under Truman Seymour were defeated by the Confederates; the engagement is sometimes called the Battle of Ocean Pond. The Union loss was ab. 1,000; the Confederate, ab. 500.

Olvera (ôl.bă'ra). Town in S Spain, in the province of Cádiz, NE of Cádiz. 10,283 (1940).

Oliopoli (ol.vê.ô'pôl). Former name of Pervomaisk.

Olybrius (ôl'brî.us). Roman emperor (472). A native of Rome who fled to Constantinople in 455 when Genseric took the city, he married Placidia, daughter of the emperor Valentinian III. Leo I sent him to oppose Ricimer, but Olybrius negotiated with Ricimer and was named emperor by him when Anthemius was killed.

Olympia (ôlim'pi.a). In ancient geography, a valley in Elis, in the Peloponnesus, Greece, situated on the Alpheus River. It is famous as the seat of a celebrated sanctuary of Zeus and of the Olympic Games, the most important of the great public games of classical antiquity. The origins of the sanctuary and of the games are anterior to history; according to tradition the games were reorganized, in obedience to the Delphic oracle, in the 9th century B.C. The list of Olympian victors goes back to 776 B.C., which is the first of the four years of the first Olympiad, but the Olympiad system of chronology did not come into accepted use until much later. The sanctuary was situated in the valley between the Cladeus and Alpheus rivers, at the foot of the hill of Cronus. A trapeziform enclosure called the Altis, ab. 500 by 600 ft., surrounded the temples of Zeus and Hera, the treasures of the various Greek cities and states, and other buildings, besides numberless statues and other works of art, and steles with commemorative inscriptions. Outside of the Altis lay the Bouleuterion or senate house, the Stadium, which was the chief scene of the athletic contests, and a number of large gymnasia and thermae, the last chiefly of Roman date. The Olympic Games were formally abolished (394 A.D.) by Theodosius. The monuments were much shattered by earthquakes in the 6th century, and as time went on were progressively buried by landslides from Cronus and inundations of the Cladeus and Alpheus, in one of which the hippodrome was entirely washed away. Sand and earth were deposited to a depth of from 10 to 20 ft. over the ruins. The French Expédition de Morée made (1829) some superficial excavations, and recovered some sculptures (now in the Louvre) from the Zeus temple. In six seasons of work after 1874, the German government laid bare down to the ancient level the greater part of what survives of the sanctuary. The sculptural finds include the Hermes of Praxiteles and the Nike of Paeonius. In the departments of architecture and epigraphy the German excavations rank as the most important that have been made. The antiquities discovered are preserved on the site, the more precious contained in a museum built for the purpose.

Olympia. City in W Washington, capital of Washington and county seat of Thurston County, at the S extremity of Puget Sound: shipping point for lumber, oysters, and fruits; resort community. Established in 1848, it was made territorial capital in 1853, and incorporated in 1859. Pop. 15,819 (1950).

Olympians (ôlim'pi.anz). The 12 high gods of Greek mythology, so named because they dwelt on Mount Olympus. They are usually counted as follows: Zeus, the supreme god who ruled over all; Hera, his consort and sister; Hestia, another sister; Poseidon, his brother; the four daughters of Zeus, Athena, Hebe, Artemis, and Aphrodite; his four sons, Hermes, Ares, Apollo, and Hephaestus. Demeter and Dionysus are sometimes added to the original 12, and sometimes also Hercules.

Olympias (ôlim'pi.as). Put to death 316 B.C. Wife of Philip II of Macedon, and mother of Alexander the Great. The daughter of Neoptolemus, king of Epirus, she married Philip in 359 B.C. When the profligate Philip married (337) Cleopatra, she went to Epirus with Alexander. She is considered to have had great influence on Alexander's development. After Alexander's accession (336), she maintained influence at court, especially during Alexander's absences on his campaigns; as a result she made an enemy of Antipater, the regent. When Alexander died (323), she prudently retired to Epirus once more. From there she opposed the growth of the power of Cassander, Antipater's son, but he besieged her at Pydna, and, after her capitulation, had her slain.

Olympic Games (ô.lim'pik). [Also, Olympian Games (ô.lim'pian).] Greatest of the four Panhellenic festivals of the ancient Greeks. They were celebrated at intervals of four years, in honor of Zeus, in a sacred enclosure called the Altis, in the plain of Olympia, which contained many temples and religious, civic, and gymnastic structures. The festival began with sacrifices followed by contests and racing, wrestling, and the like, and closed on the fifth day with processions, sacrifices, and banquets to the victors. The victors were crowned with garlands of wild olive; and on their return home they were received with extraordinary distinction, and enjoyed numerous honors and privileges. The period of four years intervening between one celebration and the next, called an Olympiad, is notable as the measure by which the Greeks computed time, 776 B.C. being the reputed first year of the first Olympiad.

Olympic Games. Series of athletic games inaugurated in 1896 at Athens by the International Olympic Committee as a modern revival of the ancient Greek Olympic Games. The impetus toward the revival was supplied principally by Baron Pierre de Coubertin of France. It was decided in 1896 that these games should be known as the "local cycle," to be held quadrennially at Athens, and that there should also be others known as the "international" or "official cycle," to be held every four years in cities of the various competing countries. However, participation was limited, to the point where the 1904 meet was almost exclusively a U.S. affair, and a general reorganization of the concept took place in 1906. The 1908 meeting was very successful, and since then the international Olympics have been widely acclaimed. The games at Athens in 1896 were held in a stadium of white marble, the gift of M. Averoff of Alexandria, on the plan of the ancient Stadium. The games of the "international" or "official cycle" have taken place at Athens in 1896; Paris, 1900; St. Louis, 1904; London, 1908; Stockholm, 1912; Antwerp, 1920; Paris, 1924; Amsterdam, 1928; Los Angeles, 1932; Berlin, 1936; London, 1948; Helsinki, 1952. Because of war, the games were not held in 1916, 1940, and 1944. Winter games were instituted in 1924. The Olympic Games are exclusively for amateurs, and the number of entries for each country is limited according to the different events. The competitive events are confined to games of general interest, and include athletics, archery, boxing, cycling, fencing, football, gymnastics, hockey, lacrosse, lawn tennis, motorboats, polo, rackets, rowing, shooting, skating, swimming, wrestling, and yacht racing. Olympic championships are given in each event; there is no official team score or championship (except in team events, like relay racing or football), although sports reporters have established an unofficial method of scoring by nations.

Olympic Mountains. Mountains in NW Washington, part of the Coast Ranges. Most of the major peaks in the group are now included in Olympic National Park. Peak elevation, ab. 8,000 ft.

Olympic National Park. National park (established 1938) in NW Washington, including most of the major peaks of the Olympic Mountains. Area, ab. 846,765 acres.

Olympiodorus (ô.lim'pî.ô.dô'rus). a. ab. at Thebes, Egypt; fl. in the first half of the 5th century. Greek historian. He wrote 22 books of general history dealing with the period from 407 to 425, abstracts of which have been preserved in the Library of Photius.

Olympiodorus. fl. in the second half of the 6th century. Platonic philosopher. He lived at Alexandria, and wrote scholia or commentaries on the dialogues of Plato, abstracts of which have come down to us.

Olympus (ô.lim'pus). In ancient geography, the name of various mountains, but especially of one (elevation, ab. 9,794 ft.) on the borders of Macedonia and Thessaly, regarded as the especial home of the chief gods of Greek mythology. Hence the word is often used to mean heaven. The Mysian Olympus was on the borders of Mysia, Bithynia, and Phrygia in Asia Minor. Others were in Lydia, Lycia, Cyprus, Laconia, and Elis. There are believed to have been 14 in all.

Olynthiac Orations (ô.lin'thi.ak). Series of three orations delivered (349-348 B.C.) at Athens by Demosthenes for the purpose of inducing the Athenians to assist Olynthus against Philip II of Macedon.

Olynthus (ô.lin'thus). In ancient geography, a city in Chalcidice, Macedonia, situated near the head of the Toronaic Gulf. It was the capital of an important confederacy until its suppression by Sparta in the war of 383-379 B.C. It was attacked by Philip II of Macedon and was captured and destroyed by him in 347 B.C.

Olyphant (ô.lif.ant). Borough in NE Pennsylvania, in Lackawanna County, ab. 5 mi. NE of Scranton; coal mining; manufactures of silk textiles and iron. It was settled in 1798. Pop. 7,047 (1950).

Om (ôm). River in the U.S.S.R., in W Siberia, which flows W and joins the Irtysh at Omsk. Length, ab. 477 mi.

Om (ôm). Holy or mystic syllable, important in the Hindu and Buddhist religions. Originally it was a syllable of affirmation out of the Vedic incantations and hymns of praise, and could be literally translated as "aye" or "amen." It affirms the universe, and not only affirms, but in itself is the expression of creation and absolute truth. Much of the Upanishads treat of the mystic meaning of Om, as summing up in itself all truth. In later Hinduism it is regarded as representing the divine triad: Brahma, the creator, Vishnu, the preserver, and Shiva, the destroyer. Beyond this, the original pronunciation of the syllable (analyzed to be a-u-m) signifies the threefold aspect of cosmic reality and individual consciousness. A represents awareness and physical experience; u represents the consciousness and experience of dream; m represents dreamlessness, or the ultimate "blissful nonconsciousness" to which Hindus and Buddhists aspire. The silence following the syllable represents the superconsciousness of transcendental reality. Thus Om symbolizes total creation, total consciousness (i.e., all aspects) plus total affirmation. Om is also the first syllable of the "formula of six syllables" Om mani padme hum, so conspicuous in Buddhism, and especially in Lamaism. It is addressed to Avalokitesvara, the national god of Tibet, or Padmapani, "the lotus-handed," as he is called. It is variously translated: "Aye, O jewel on the lotus, amen"; "Salvation (Om) [is] in the jewel-lotus (mani-padme), amen (hum)"; or "Aye, the jewel is in the lotus, amen," in reference to Padmapani (or Buddha) as having been lotus-born.

Omagh (ô'ma). Urban district and market town in Northern Ireland, in Ulster province and county seat of County Tyrone, situated on the river Strule ab. 28 mi. S of Londonderry. 6,309 (1947).

Omagua (ô.mă.gwă'kăz). See Humahuacas.

Omagua (ô.mă'gwäs). [Also, Umaua.] Tribe of South American Indians formerly occupying the shores and islands of the middle and upper Amazon. When they were first discovered they were very numerous, and occupied continuous lines of dwellings extending some 200 leagues. They besought the Jesuit missionaries (c1630) to live among them and protect them from Portuguese slave-takers, who by that time had depleted their numbers from some 15,000, to ab. 7,000. But in the early 18th century the Portuguese destroyed 33 Omagua-Jesuit towns, and the survivors migrated to establish a new settlement on the Marañon River. The Omagua have since declined greatly, partly from smallpox epidemics. By 1737 there were only 522 in the Marañon settlements; by 1925 there were 120. They have since become largely absorbed by the Cocama Indians or with the mestizo population. The language belongs to the Cocama group of the Upper Amazon branch of the Tupi division of the Tupi-Guarani family of languages.

Omagua, Kingdom or Province cf. Name given in the 16th century to the region in the western Amazon area occupied by the Omagua. It was connected with the tales of El Dorado, and became the object of several expeditions.

Omaha (ô'ma.hô, -hâ). North American Indian tribe formerly inhabiting the NE portion of Nebraska; the language was of the Dhegiha division of the Siouan family. Their culture was typical Plains Indian culture. Unlike many tribes, they have increased in numbers since the early 19th century. There are some Omaha today on a reservation in Nebraska. Many, however, own land individually.

Omaha. City in E Nebraska, county seat of Douglas County, on the Missouri River. It is the largest city in the state, an important railway center, and the E terminus of the Union Pacific Railroad. One of the leading meat-packing and stockyards centers, it also has oil refineries, lead smelters, and manufactures including airplanes, breakfast foods, butter, flour, and spaghetti. It was founded in 1854, and was formerly the capital of the state. It is the seat of Creighton University, Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Omaha Municipal University, Duchesne College of Arts and Science, and the University of Nebraska College of Medicine. 223,844 (1940), 251,117 (1950).

Omak (ô'mak). Town in N Washington, in Okanogan County, on the Okanogan River: manufactures of lumber and wood products. The name is derived from the Indian word Omache, meaning "good medicine." 3,791 (1950).

Omakalanga (ô'mâ.kâl.lâng.gâ). See Karanga.

O'Malley (ô'mâl'), Frank Ward. b. at Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 30, 1875; d. at Tours, France, Oct. 19, 1932. American journalist, noted as an especially accurate reporter. Trained as an artist, he turned to journalism after settling (1902) at New York, where he was a member of the staff of the Morning Telegraph and then of the New York Sun, on which he served as a reporter from 1906 to 1920. He contributed (1920-32) 28 articles to the Saturday Evening Post, was the author of The War-Whirl in Washington (1918) and The Swiss Family O'Malley (1928), and with E. W. Townsend wrote two plays, The Head of the House (1909) and A Certain Party (1910).

Oman (ô'man, ô'man', -mân'). See Muscat and Oman.

Oman (ô'man). Sir Charles William Chadwick. b. in India, 1860; d. June 23, 1946. English historian, distinguished by his study and books on military history. He was a fellow of All Souls College, Oxford (1883-1946) and Chichele professor of modern history, Oxford (1905 et seq.). Author of Warwick the Kingmaker (1891), A History of the Art of War in the Middle Ages (1893), A History of the Peninsular War (7 vols., 1907-30), A History of England Before the Norman Conquest (1910), The Art of War in the 16th Century (1937), and others. He was general editor of the eight-volume History of England.

Omar (ô'mâr, -mâr'). [Also, Omar I; full name, Omar ibn al-Khattab (ô'mâr ib'n âl.khât.tâb'). b. c.581; assassinated at Medina, 644. Second Mohammedan caliph (634-644). He was at first an opponent of Islam, but was converted (617) and aided Abu Bakr in his campaigns. His daughter was the third wife of Mohammed. He succeeded Abu Bakr unopposed and brought Syria, Phoenicia, Persia, Egypt, and Jerusalem under the sway of Islam, thus beginning the real expansion of Moslem power. He was stabbed by Firuz, a Persian slave, but lingered for several days, long enough to appoint the group of six who later selected Othman as the next caliph. Omar took an important part in the first collection of the Koran and instituted the system of making the date of the Hegira the beginning of the Mohammedan calendar. He was the first to assume the title "Commander of the Faithful" (Emir al-muminin), and he organized a complete military-religious commonwealth.

Omar II. Caliph (717-720); successor of Suleiman.

Omar, Mosque of. [Also, Kubbet es-Sakhra, meaning "Dome of the Rock."] Mosque on the platform of the Temple at Jerusalem. It is an octagon of 66 ft. to a side, with four porches and a range of pointed windows, encrusted with beautifully colored Persian tiles. The mosque was originally a very early Byzantine church, but it has been much modified by the Mohammedans.

Omar Khayyâm (ô'mâr.ki.hâm, ô'mâr). b. at Nishapur, in Khurasan persia, c1050; d. there, c1123. Persian poet, mathematician, and astronomer. Khayyâm is an epithet thought to be derived from his father's trade, and meaning "the tentmaker." He studied at Nishapur, having as his companions Hasan ibn-al-Sabbah, afterward the head of the military order of the Assassins, and Nizam-al-Mulk, later vizier of Alp Arslan and Jalal-al-Din (Malik Shah). Having attained power, Nizam-al-Mulk granted Omar Khayyâm a yearly pension. Omar was one of the eight learned men appointed by Jalal-al-Din to reform the calendar, the result being the Jalali era, so called from the king's name. "Omar's calendar was very accurate," says Sartori, "probably more so than the Gregorian calendar." He was the author of an Arabic treatise on algebra, including a classification of equations and an examination of Euclid's postulates, but is especially known as a poet from his Rubâiyât, or Quatrains (in two verses or four hemistichs, of which the first, second, and fourth rhyme), which have been translated by Edward Fitzgerald and others. Fitzgerald's translation was a rearrangement and editing of the original, since Omar's quatrains, as in all similar Persian poetry, were disconnected and arranged only in the alphabetical order of their first words; Fitzgerald made a sequential poem of these quatrains, using some as he found them, combining others, paraphrasing some, and omitting many of Omar's original 500. The result has been a poem, extremely popular with English readers, that catches the spirit of Omar's radical approach to tradition, his praise of hedonism, his railings against the fate that brings all to dust; the spirit is perhaps nearest to that of Ecclesiastes, but it has also been compared with the tenor of the writing of Lucretius, Hafiz, Voltaire, Byron, and Swinburne.

Omar Pasha (ô'mâr.pâ.shâ'). See Omar Pasha.

Omaruru (ô'ma.rû.rû). Small town in the N central section of South-West Africa, ab. 53 mi. NE of Usakos on a narrow-gauge railroad. It is a shipping point serving nearby tin mines. 1,912 (1946).

Omayyads (ô'mî'yadz). See Ommiads.

Ombai or Ombay (ôm.bî'). See Alor.

Ombalantu (ôm.bâl.lân.tû). See Mbalantu.

Ombalundo (ôm.bâl.lôn.dû). See Bailundo.

Ombandja (ôm.bân.jâ). See Mbanja.

Ombrene (ôm.bre.nâ'). [Latin, Umbro.] River in Tuscany, Italy, which flows into the Mediterranean ab. 10 mi. SW of Grosseto. Length, ab. 80-90 mi.

Omdurman (ôm.dér.man', -mân'). City in Khartoum province, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, in NE Africa, on the Nile River opposite Khartoum. It was built by the Mahdi (Mohammed Ahmed) in 1885, after his seizure and destruction of Khartoum. Here, on Sept. 2, 1898, the dervishes were defeated by the British and Egyptian troops under Sir H. H. Kitchener. It was the old dervish capital of the Sudan and is still a native trading center. 126,650 (est. 1949).

O'Meara (ô.mâ'ra), Barry Edward. b. in Ireland, 1786; d. at London, June 3, 1836. Irish surgeon, physician to Napoleon at St. Helena (1815-18). He was dismissed as a consequence of differences with Sir Hudson Lowe, governor of St. Helena, over the treatment given to Napoleon, with whom O'Meara was intriguing. He published Napoleon in Exile (1822) and others.

Omegna (ô.mê.nyâ'). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Piedmont, in the province of Novara, on the N shore of Lake Orta, NW of Novara: resort; metal and other industries. Pop. of commune, 11,628 (1936); of town, 6,650 (1936).

Omei Shan (ô'mâ' shân'). [Also, O Mei Shan.] Mountain peak in W central China, in Szechwan province ab. 200 mi. W of Chungking. It is a sacred mountain with numerous Buddhist monasteries, pagodas, and temples, visited by large numbers of pilgrims. Elevation, ab. 9,960 ft.

Omer Pasha (ô'mér.pâ.shâ'). [Also: Omar Pasha; original name, Michael Lattas.] b. Nov. 24, 1806; d. at Constantinople, April 18, 1871. Turkish general. He headed (1852, 1861) punitive expeditions into Montenegro. He commanded an army in the Crimean War, and commanded (1867) against the insurgents in Crete.

Omi (ô'mê). See Biwa.

Omiya (ô.mê.yâ). City in SE Honshu, Japan, on the Kwantō Plain ab. 17 mi. NW of Tokyo: rail junction, and commercial city trading in rice and silk. 100,033 (1950).

Ommiads (ô'mî'adz). [Also, Omayyads.] Dynasty of caliphs which reigned at Damascus (661-750 A.D.), the first of whom was Muawiyah, successor to Hasan, the son of Ali. (The Ommiad claim to the caliphate stemmed from Othman, who was Mohammed's son-in-law.) The Omniads were followed by the Abbassides. The last of the Eastern Omniads escaped to Spain and founded (756) the so-called Caliphate of Córdoba. This Western caliphate, and with it the Omniad dynasty, became extinct in 1031.

Omnibus Bill. See Compromise of 1850.

Omodeo (ō.mō.dā'ō), Giovanni Antonio. See Amadeo, Giovanni Antonio.

Omout (ō.mōn), Henry Auguste. b. at Evreux, France, Sept. 15, 1857; d. 1940. French librarian and scholar, who served (1907 et seq.) as inspector general of French libraries. Author of Catalogues des livres grecs et latins imprimés par Alde Manuce (Catalogues of the Greek and Latin Books Printed by Aldus Manutius, 1892).

Omoa, a Narrative of Adventures in the South Seas (ō.mō'). Romance by Herman Melville, published in 1847. The book, describing experiences in the South Sea Islands, is in effect a sequel to Typee (1846).

Omori (ō.mō.rē), Fusakichi. b. in Fukui prefecture, Japan, in September, 1898; d. 1923. Japanese seismologist, prominent in the organization of the International Seismological Association.

Omphale (ōm.fā.lē). In Greek legend, a Lydian queen, in whose service Hercules wore women's clothes and did women's work for three years to expiate a murder. Later she became the mistress of Hercules.

Omri (ōm'ri). King of Israel. He is thought to have ruled from 887 to 875 B.C., but the length and date of his reign are much disputed. He was a usurper, and the founder of a dynasty of considerable eminence which included Ahab and Jehu. He made an alliance with Tyre, marrying his son Ahab to the Tyrian princess Jezebel, and subdued the Moabites. He is mentioned on the Moabitic stone, and in the cuneiform inscriptions the kingdom of Israel is called Bit-Humri ("the house of Omri"). He built the city of Samaria, and made it the capital of the Israelitish kingdom.

Oms de Santa Pau (ōms' dā sän'tā pou'), Manuel. [Title, Marquis of Castell-dos-Rios.] d. at Lima, Peru, April 22, 1710. Spanish nobleman, viceroy of Peru (1707-10).

Omsk (ōmsk). Oblast (region) in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in W Siberia, E of the Ural Mountains. In the N it is covered with forested swamplands, frozen for much of the year, but in the S the land is devoted to farming. Forest products, flax, dairy products, and wheat are produced. Capital, Omsk; area, ab. 53,800 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 2,366,603 (1939).

Omsk. City in the U.S.S.R., capital of the Omsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, W Siberia, at the junction of the Om River with the Irtysh; a major rail and road junction. It has lumber and woodworking, agricultural-machinery, transport equipment, silk, leather, flour-milling, chemical, and meat-packing industries. The fortress here was founded in 1716. The railway reached Omsk, in September, 1894. Pop. 280,716 (1939).

Omteda (ōm.tā'dā), Baron Georg von. [Pseudonym, Georg Eggestorff.] b. at Hanover, Germany, March 29, 1863; d. at Munich, Dec. 10, 1931. German cavalry officer and author. His early writings, first about military life (Drohnen, 1892; Unser Regiment, 1894) and then about impoverished nobility in the cycle Deutscher Adel um 1900 (particularly Sylvesters von Geyer, 1897), brought him a considerable reputation. He also made a translation of the works of Guy de Maupassant (1898 et seq.).

Omuta (ō.mō.tā). City in NW Kyushu, Japan, an important seaport and industrial center: coal shipping port; chemical, coke, and zinc-refining industries. 191,978 (1950).

On (ōn). Ancient Egyptian name of Heliopolis.

Ona (ō.nā). Indian tribe, once numerous but now almost extinct, that inhabited all but the S and SW shores of the island of Tierra del Fuego in South America. They were a hunting and gathering people, and distinguished as having one of the simplest of technologies and material cultures known to modern history. It was the sight of Ona camp fires at night by members of Magellan's crew that led them to name the island Tierra del Fuego (Land of Fire). The Ona language is of the Tehuelchean family. Ona (ō.nā), Pedro de. b. at Los Confines, on the Bio-Bio River, Chile, c1555; d. at Lima, Peru, after 1639. Spanish-American poet. His principal work is the epic Arauco domado (1596), which is in some respects an imitation of Alonso de Ercilla's La Araucana. It has some poetical merit, and is of much historical value.

Onalaska (ō.nā.las'kā). City in W Wisconsin: residential suburb, N of La Crosse. 2,561 (1950).

Onatas (ō.nā.tas). fl. c500-400 B.C. Aeginetan sculptor and painter, a contemporary of Ageladas, the teacher of Phidias. He was especially famous for his statues of athletes, and was much admired and highly praised by Pausanias, who describes many of his works.

Onate (ō.nyl'tā), Juan de. b. at Guadalajara, Mexico, c1555; d. after 1611. Spanish explorer and settler, first governor of New Mexico. He was a son of the founder of Guadalajara, and was married to a granddaughter of Hernando Cortés. In 1595 his proposition to settle New Mexico was accepted by the viceroy Luis de Velasco, and after much delay the grant was confirmed by Velasco's successor, Gaspar de Zúñiga, Count of Monterey. Onate left Zacatecas in January, 1598, with a large wagon- and cattle-train, reached the Rio Grande, probably at what is now El Paso, on April 20, and took formal possession on April 30. He crossed the river and in August founded the first capital, San Juan (Santa Fe was founded later). After the first year he had little trouble with the Indians. Early in 1599 he explored a part of Arizona, and in 1604 followed the Gila River down to the Gulf of California. He probably ceased to rule as governor in 1608.

Onawa (ō.nā.wā, -wō). City in W Iowa, county seat of Monona County, in a wheat and stock raising region. It was platted in 1857. The name is derived from an Indian word meaning "beautiful valley," 3,448 (1950).

Onca (ōng'kā). Phoenician goddess, the deity of wisdom, compared by the Greeks to Athena.

Once On a Time. Novel by A. A. Milne, published in 1917.

Oncken (ōng'ken), August. b. at Heidelberg, Germany, April 10, 1844; d. at Schwerin, Germany, July 10, 1911. German economist; brother of Wilhelm Oncken. Author of Adam Smith und Immanuel Kant (1877), Die Maxime Laissez faire et laissez passer (1877), and Geschichte der Nationalökonomie (1902).

Oncken, Hermann. b. at Oldenburg, Germany, Nov. 16, 1869; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Jan. 26, 1946. German historian. Author of Lassalle, eine politische Biographie (1904), Rudolf v. Bennigsen, ein deutscher und liberaler Politiker (1910), Das deutsche Reich und die Vorgeschichte des Weltkrieges (1933), and Cromwell. Vier Essays über die Führung einer Nation (1935).

Oncken, Wilhelm. b. at Heidelberg, Germany, Dec. 19, 1838; d. at Giessen, Germany, Aug. 11, 1905. German historian and politician; brother of August Oncken. He served as professor (1866 et seq.) at the University of Giessen, also as a member (1874 et seq.) of the German Reichstag.

Ondarrabia (ōn.dār.rā'byā). Basque name of Fuenterrabia.

Ondegardo (ōn.dā.gār'ēnō), Polo de. b. at Salamanca, Spain, c1500; d. probably at Potosí, in Upper Peru (now Bolivia), c1575. Spanish lawyer and antiquarian. He made a special study of Inca laws and customs, with the object of engraving the best of them on the Spanish legislation. His two Relaciones or reports (1561 and 1571) are still in manuscript, but have been freely used by historians.

Ondo (ōn'dō). Subgroup of the Yoruba, a Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa. They inhabit SW Nigeria, E of Abeokuta. Their population is estimated at ab. 30,000 (by P. A. Talbot, The Peoples of Southern Nigeria, 1923). Their king is the Oshemawe of Ondo, Ondo being their capital city.

Ondonga (ōn.dōng'gā). See Ndonga.

Ondulu (ōn.dō'lō) or Ondura (-dō'rā). See Ndulu.

Onurdurdis (ōn.dūr'diz) or Öandurdis (ēn.dūr'dis). See Skadi.

"One-Eyed General." Nickname of Liu Po-ch'eng.

Onega (ō.nē'gā; Russian, o.nye'gā). Seaport in NW U.S.S.R., in the Arkhangelsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, situated on the White Sea at the mouth of the Onega River: lumber industry. Pop. ab. 10,000.

Onega Lake. Second largest lake in Europe, situated in NW U.S.S.R., in the Karlo-Finnish Soviet Socialist Republic, NE of Lake Ladoga. It is connected by canals with the Volga and (Northern) Dvina systems. Its waters pass by the Svir into Lake Ladoga. Length, ab. 152 mi.; greatest width, ab. 50 mi.; area, ab. 3,765 sq. mi.

Onega River. River in the NW part of the U.S.S.R., in the Arkhangelsk oblast of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, which flows generally N to an arm of the White Sea. Length, ab. 255 mi.

Onegin (o.nyá'gin), Sigrid. [Maiden name, Hoffmann.] b. at Stockholm, June 1, 1891; d. at Lugano, Switzerland, June 18, 1943. Operatic and concert mezzo-soprano. She made her operatic debut (1912) as Carmen, was a member of the Munich Opera, and first appeared (1922) in the U.S. with the Philadelphia Orchestra at Carnegie Hall, New York.

Oneglia (õ.nã'lyã). See under Imperia, town.

O Negro brasileiro (õ nã'grõ.brã.zê.lã'ró). Study in race adjustment in Brazil, by the Brazilian sociologist Artur Ramos (b. 1903). Published in 1934, it was translated into English (The Negro in Brazil) in 1939.

"One-Hoss Shay," The Wonderful. See Deacon's Masterpiece; or The Wonderful "One-Hoss Shay," The.

Oneida (õ.ní'dã). One of the tribes of the North American Indian League of the Iroquois, originally inhabiting a strip of territory through E central New York. Remnants of the tribe are now located in Ontario and near Green Bay, Wis. They speak an Iroquoian language.

Oneida. City in C New York, in Madison County, ab. 26 mi. E of Syracuse, in a dairy-farming region; the geographic center of the state. Silverware is manufactured here. It was formerly the seat of the Oneida Community, 11,325 (1950).

Oneida Community. Religious society or brotherhood, the Bible Communists or Perfectionists, established in 1847 on Oneida Creek, in Lenox township, Madison County, N.Y., by John H. Noyes, after unsuccessful attempts to establish it at New Haven, Conn., in 1834, and at Putney, Vt., in 1837. A branch of the Oneida Community also existed for a time at Wallingford, Conn. Originally the Oneida Community was strictly communistic, all property and all children belonging primarily to the society, and the restrictions of marriage being entirely abolished; but in 1879, owing to the increasing demand of public opinion that the social practices of the society should be abandoned, marriage and family life were introduced. In 1880 communism of property gave place to a joint-stock system, and the community was legally incorporated as "The Oneida Community, Limited." The community introduced into the area several important industries.

Oneida Lake. Shallow lake in C New York, ab. 11 mi. NE of Syracuse. It is traversed by the Erie Canal. Length, ab. 20 mi.; area, ab. 80 sq. mi.

O'Neill (õ.ní'). City in NE Nebraska, county seat of Holt County, 3,027 (1950).

O'Neill, Eliza. b. in Ireland, 1791; d. there, Oct. 29, 1872. Irish tragic actress. She made her first appearance at Drogheda as the Duke of York in Richard III in 1803, in a small strolling company of which her father was manager. She first appeared at Covent Garden Theatre, London, in 1814.

O'Neill, Eugene Gladstone. b. at New York, Oct. 16, 1888—. American playwright; son of James O'Neill. After two years at Princeton University, he abandoned his studies, went gold-hunting, shipped as a seaman, and worked as a newspaper reporter. The wide acquaintance thus acquired with life on many levels, as well as his observations while traveling with his father's theatrical company, stood him in good stead when, in 1914, he turned to the writing of plays as a career. He also prepared for his life work by studying (1913-14) at George Pierce Baker's "47 Workshop," Harvard University. In 1916 he became associated with the Provincetown Players; they produced his Bound East for Cardiff and Thirst in that year, and various of his other plays in the years thereafter. In 1920 his name was definitely established by the award of the Pulitzer prize to his full-length work Beyond the Horizon (first produced in 1919). Twice thereafter O'Neill received the same award, in 1922 for Anna Christie (first produced in 1921) and in 1928 for Strange Interlude (first produced in 1927). Until 1927 the playwright continued to be concerned with the direction of the Provincetown Playhouses at Provincetown, Mass., and at New York City; he was manager with Robert Edmond Jones of the Greenwich Village Theatre; and he was one of the founders of the Theatre Guild; but eventually he withdrew from such activities to concentrate upon his creative work. Between 1920 and 1933 he gave the public such notable works as The Emperor Jones, Diff'rent, Gold, The Hairy Ape, The First Man, The Fountain, Desire Under the Elms, Marco Millions, The Great God Brown, Lazarus Laughed, Ah, Wilderness! and Days Without End. Most modern historians of the stage consider that O'Neill was, at the height of his career, the most powerful single influence in redeeming the American drama from artificiality and triviality. Whether or not his philosophy is as profound as his more enthusiastic admirers believe, it is conceded that he has a high sense of the tragedy of man grappling with destiny and searching for meaning in life. After a lapse of some years, O'Neill in 1946 presented The Iceman Cometh, an ironic tragedy of multiple frustration. It was enthusiastically received, and rated among the playwright's best work. A Moon for the Misbegotten, which he had completed in 1943, was published in 1952. In 1936 he received the Nobel prize for drama.

O'Neill, Hugh. [Titles, 3rd Baron of Dungannon, 2nd Earl of Tyrone.] b. c1540; d. at Rome, 1616. Irish chieftain. He assumed the title of "The O'Neill" in 1593 and, though he had earlier been allied with the English, joined with Hugh Roe O'Donnell in secret negotiations with Philip II of Spain. Their letters, asking for aid in the name of Roman Catholic religious and civil liberty, were intercepted by the English, but O'Neill managed to allay suspicion and to obtain a pardon from Queen Elizabeth. In 1597 he headed an insurrection and defeated the English at the Yellow Ford on the Blackwater in 1598. He negotiated a truce with Robert Devereux, 2nd Earl of Essex, in 1599, the manner in which the truce was arranged contributing largely to Essex's disgrace and recall. In 1601 aid arrived from Spain and O'Neill attacked the English under Charles Blount, Baron Mountjoy, but was defeated. He submitted in 1603 to Mountjoy, went to England to submit in person to James I, the new king, and returned to Ireland to discover that his enemies at the English court were working against him and embroiling him in local disputes. By 1607 it became apparent that arrest was not far off, and he and Rory O'Donnell, Earl of Tyrconnell, fled from Ireland, embarking at night to escape detection. They wintered in the Spanish Netherlands and then proceeded to Rome, where, after being attainted (1613) by the Irish Parliament, O'Neill died.

O'Neill, James. b. in Kilkenny, Ireland, Nov. 15, 1849; d. at New London, Conn., Aug. 10, 1920. American actor; father of Eugene O'Neill. He arrived (c1854) in the U.S., made his stage debut (1867) at Cincinnati, and achieved prominence in 1876, when he joined the Union Square Theatre Company at New York. Beginning in 1882 he became popularly identified with the role of Edmond Dantes in the stage production of Monte Cristo, in which he appeared more than six thousand times.

O'Neill, Margaret. [Also: O'Neale; often called "Peggy" Eaton.] b. at Washington, D.C., 1796; d. there, Nov. 8, 1879. American social figure, storm center of the Washington "social war" which accompanied the party battles of the Jackson administration. The daughter of a Washington innkeeper, she married John B. Timberlake, a navy purser who died in 1828. In the meantime she had become the subject of capital gossip concerning her relations with John H. Eaton, friend of Andrew Jackson, who came to Washington in 1818 as U.S. senator from Tennessee and took quarters at the O'Neill tavern. "Peggy" attracted the favorable notice of Andrew Jackson, who became acquainted with her after 1823, when he moved into the hostelry. Before marrying "Peggy" on Jan. 1, 1829, Eaton secured the approval of Jackson, who was of the opinion that the marriage would dissipate the rumors circulated by their political enemies. When Eaton was chosen (1829) secretary of war in Jackson's cabinet, Washington society was rent by the famous "social war." Jackson stood by Eaton and his wife, despite the loud cries of indignation. Eaton resigned from the cabinet in 1831, was appointed (1834) governor of Florida, and served (1836-40) as U.S. minister to Spain. After Eaton's death at Washington in 1856, "Peggy" married Antonio Buchignani, an Italian dancing master who subsequently made off with her fortune and her granddaughter.

O'Neill, Norman. b. at Kensington, London, March 14, 1875; d. at London, March 3, 1934. English composer. Among his compositions are the scores for Maurice Maeterlinck's Blue Bird (1909), and J. M. Barrie's Mary Rose (1920), and A Kiss for Cinderella (1925). He also composed orchestral works, ballades, and piano selections.

O'Neill, Rose Cecil. b. at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., c1875; d. at Springfield, Mo., April 6, 1944. American illustrator and author, noted for designing the Kewpie doll; wife of Harry Leon Wilson. She was a writer and illustrator for Ladies' Home Journal and other women's magazines. Author of The Loves of Sidney (1904), The Lady in the White Veil (1906), The Master-Mistress (1922), The Goblin Woman (1930), and several "Kewpie" books.

O'Neill, or The Rebel. Romance by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, in heroic couplets, published in 1827.

One More Spring. Novel by Robert Nathan, published in 1933.

One of Ours. Novel by Willa Cather, published in 1922.

Oneonta (6.nē.on'ta). Town in N central Alabama, county seat of Blount County: cotton processing. 2,802 (1952).

Oneonta. City in C New York, in Otsego County, on the Susquehanna River ab. 50 mi. NE of Binghamton: railroad shops; manufactures of lingerie, gloves, automobile trailers, and milk products. It is the seat of Hartwick College and of a state teachers college. 13,564 (1950).

Oneota (6.nē'ō.ta). Culture of the late prehistoric period (c1400-1700 A.D.) in N Illinois, Wisconsin, E Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and SW Missouri. Perishable huts were used as houses in the eastern part of this area; earth lodges, in the western part. The pottery is shell-tempered, globular, and provided with loop handles. The dead were buried in cemeteries or beneath low mounds. This culture has been identified with a number of historic tribes, including the Winnebago in Wisconsin, the Iowa, and the Missouri Indians.

Onesimus (6.nes'i.mus), Saint. Disciple of Saint Paul, on whose behalf Paul wrote his Epistle to Philemon. According to tradition, he succeeded Saint Timothy as bishop of Ephesus and died a martyr c95 A.D.

Onesiorum Thermae (6.nē.si.ō'rum ther'mē). A Latin name of Bagnères-de-Luchon.

One Woman's Life. Novel by Robert Herrick, published in 1913.

One World. Title of a book by Wendell Willkie, written in 1943 after a round-the-world flight. The volume sought to bring a sharper awareness to American readers of the world unity (or of the very much "smaller" world) brought into being by modern technology; because of the possible destructive, as well as constructive, implications of this, Willkie strongly urged the need for organized international cooperation.

Onez de Loyola (6.nyāth' dō lō.yō'lā), Martin García. See Loyola, Martin García Onez de.

Ongandjera (ong.gān.jā'rā). See Nganjera.

Ong Tao Quan (ōng'tou kwān'). Spirit of the hearth, whose image is found in the kitchens of Vietnamese (Annamese) houses. On the 24th day of the last month of the year he is believed to leave the house in order to report to the Jade Emperor (Ngoc Hoang) the activities of the members of the household during the past year. At this time offerings are made to the hearth god's image, sins are confessed, and his intercession with Ngoc Hoang is requested.

Onias Menelaus (6.nī'as men.e.lā'us). High priest of the Jews (172-162 B.C.). He was a Benjamite, not of priestly family, but secured the office from Antiochus Epiphanes, to whom Judea was then subject, by the payment of a bribe. In order to pay this bribe he despoiled the Temple of its sacred vessels. In 171 he killed the rightful high priest, Onias III. With the help of Antiochus he introduced Greek worship and the sacrifice of swine into the Temple. These acts brought about the revolt of the Maccabees. He was killed by Lysias, the guardian of Antiochus V.

Onions (on'yonz). Berta. [Maiden nān.e. Ruck.] b. in Wales, 1875—. Welsh novelist and short-story writer; wife of Oliver Onions. She illustrated stories, articles, and advertising matter before devoting herself to literature. Author of the novels and collections of short stories His Official Fiancée (1914), The Girls at His Billet (1916), In Another Girl's Shoes (1916), Three of Hearts (1917), Bridge of Kisses (1920), Sweet Ravener (1921), Arrant Rover (1921), The Wrong Mr. Right (1922), Sir or Madam? (1923), Dancing Star (1923), Clouded Pearl (1924), Leap Year Girl (1924), Lucky in Love (1924), The Immortal Girl (1925), Kneel to the Prettiest (1925), Her Pirate Partner (1927), The Maid of a Minx (1927), One of the Chorus (1929; American title, Joy-Ride), Unkissed Bride (1929), Offer of Marriage (1930), Missing Girl (1930; American title, Love-Header), Post-War Girl (1930), Wanted on the Voyage (1930), Change for Happiness (1933), Sudden Sweetheart (1933), Eleventh Hour Lover (1933), Lad With Wings (1933), and Understudy (1933). A Story-Teller Tells the Truth (1935) is her autobiography.

Onions, Charles Talbot. b. Sept. 10, 1873—. English lexicographer and philologist. He joined the staff of the Oxford English Dictionary in 1895 and became coeditor in 1914, serving in that position until 1933. He edited the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary (1933, 1936, 1945) and the publication Medium Aevum (1932 et seq.). His publications include Advanced English Syntax (1904), A Shakespeare Glossary (1911), and revisions of Sweet's Anglo-Saxon Reader (1922, 1946, 1949).

Onions, Oliver. [Original name, George Oliver Onions; changed legally to George Oliver.] b. at Bradford, Yorkshire, England, 1873—. English novelist. Trained as an artist, he devoted himself to literature after working as a book and poster designer and magazine illustrator. In addition to novels of character, he has written ghost tales, such as The Painted Face, Widdershins, and Ghosts in Daylight. Among his works are The Compleat Bachelor (1901), The Odd-Job Man (1903), Little Devil Doubt (1906), The Exception (1911), Gray Wolf (1914), The New Moon (1918), The Tower of Oblition (1921), The Spite of Heaven (1925), the trilogy Whom God Hath Sundered (1926; containing In Accordance With the Evidence, The Debit Account, and The Story of Louie), The Open Secret (1930), The Italian Chest (1939), Blood Eagle (1941), The Story of Ragged Robin (1945), and Poor Man's Tapestry (1946; awarded the 1947 James Tait Black memorial prize).

Onkolonkathi (ong.kō.lōn.kā'thē). See Nkolonkathi.

Only Yesterday. Popular social history written by Frederick Lewis Allen and published in 1931. It describes American life and customs in the 1920's.

Onnaing (o.nāh). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, ab. 4 mi. NE of Valenciennes. It manufactures metal and ceramic products. 7,510 (1946).

Onnes (6n'ēs), Heike Kamerlingh. See Kamerlingh Onnes, Heike.

'Ono (6'nō). See Rongo.

Onoda (6'nō.dā). Industrial city in SW Honshu, Japan, ab. 12 mi. E of Shimonoeki: cement and pottery industries; ships coal and fertilizer via the Inland Sea. 52,877 (1950).

Onodi (6'nō.dē), Adolf. b. at Budapest, Hungary, 1857—. Hungarian physician. He served as lecturer in anatomy (1886 et seq.) and professor of laryngology (1896 et seq.) at the University of Budapest.

Onolzbach (6'nolts.bāch). See Ansbach.

Onomacritus (on.6mak'ri.tus). fl. c530-485 B.C. Greek prophet and mystic poet at the court of the Pisistratids at Athens. He is said to have edited the poems of Musaeus for the Orphics, and, being detected in altering one, was banished by Hipparchus.

Onomichi (6.nō.nē.chē). City in SW Honshu, Japan, on the Inland Sea ab. 40 n.i. E of Hiroshima. 61,411 (1950).

Onondaga (on.6n.dā'gā, -dō'). One of the member tribes of the North American Indian League of the Iroquois, originally inhabiting the area around Onondaga Lake, in New York. Remnants of the tribe are now settled in New York in a portion of their original area and along the Grand River, Ontario. Their language belongs to the Iroquoian linguistic family.

Onondaga Lake. Small lake in C New York, adjoining Syracuse on the NW. Its outlet is Seneca River. Area, ab. 4.5 sq. mi.

Onosander (on.ôsan'dér). fl. in the 1st century A.D. Greek writer on military tactics.

Onslow (onz'lô). Arthur. b. in Chelsea, London, 1691; d. in Surrey, England, 1768. English politician, speaker of the House of Commons. He was a Whig member of Parliament (1720-61). As speaker of Commons (1728-61), he protected its privileges against the encroachments of the House of Lords. He was chancellor to Queen Caroline (1729), and treasurer of the navy (1734-42).

Onslow, George. [Title, 1st Earl of Onslow.] b. 1731; d. in Surrey, England, 1814. English politician and privy counselor (1767). He was a member of Parliament (1754-76). He moved invalidation of John Wilkes's election (1769). Although he introduced a bill depriving members' servants of privileges (1770), he generally supported parliamentary privileges.

Onslow, George. b. at Clermont-Ferrand, France, July 27, 1784; d. there, Oct. 3, 1853. French composer of instrumental music.

Onslow, Richard. b. in Shropshire, England, 1528; d. at Harnage, England, 1571. English lawyer and speaker of the House of Commons, recorder of London (1563). While a member of Parliament (1557-71), he served as solicitor general (1566). Against his will, he was appointed speaker of Commons (1566), a post he held until 1571.

Onslow, William Hillier. [Title, 4th Earl of Onslow.] b. at Bletsoe, England, 1853; d. at Hampstead, London, 1911. English colonial administrator, governor (1889-92) of New Zealand. He served as Conservative undersecretary of state for colonies (1887) and parliamentary secretary to the board of trade (1888). He was undersecretary of state for India (1895-1900) and for colonies (1900-03), and joined the cabinet as president of the board of agriculture (1903).

Onswedde (ônst.wed'g). Town in NE Netherlands, in the province of Groningen, near the German border, ab. 23 mi. SE of Groningen: brushes, textiles, and *Klomp*en (wooden shoes) are manufactured. 21,853 (est. 1951).

Ontario (ôn.tôn.i'ô). City in S California, in San Bernardino County, W of Los Angeles, in a citrus-growing area: citrus by-product factories. 22,872 (1950).

Ontario. [Former name, Upper Canada.] Province of the Dominion of Canada. It is bounded by Hudson Bay on the N, Quebec on the NE and E, the U.S. on the S, separated largely by the St. Lawrence River, and the Great Lakes; Manitoba bounds it on the W and NW. The province contains two sharply contrasting parts: the S portion between Georgian Bay, Lake Nipissing, the Ottawa River, and the Great Lakes, which is an undulating or level fertile lowland, hilly in some parts, and the N portion, comprising about three-fourths of the province, which is a rocky, largely forested land with many lakes. Agriculture is concentrated in the S portion; mixed farming, dairy farming, and fruit growing are the chief types of farming. This region has a considerable railroad network, good highways, and numerous manufacturing cities; among Canadian provinces Ontario ranks first in manufacturing and second in value of agricultural production. The N portion of Ontario produces gold, nickel, copper, and other minerals, pulpwood and furs; the chief industries are pulp and paper mills. Two transcontinental railroad lines and one highway traverse this region. A large amount of hydroelectric power has been developed in the province, but a considerable reserve of unused power resources remains in the N. The government is vested in a lieutenant-governor, executive council, and legislative assembly. Ontario sends 24 members to the Dominion Senate, 83 to the House of Commons. The inhabitants are chiefly of English, Irish, Scottish, German, and French descent. Ontario was explored by the French in the 17th century. It was ceded to Great Britain in 1763. It was separated from Quebec (Lower Canada) in 1791, and was called Upper Canada. It was the scene of the battles of the Thames and Lundy's Lane in the War of 1812. An unsuccessful rebellion occurred in 1837. It was reunited to Quebec in 1841, but was again separated from it in 1867, becoming the province of Ontario in the new dominion. It is the second largest province in the dominion and the most populous. About one-third of the total population of Canada lives in Ontario. Capital, Toronto. Area, 412,582 sq. mi. (including 49,300 sq. mi. of open water); pop. 4,597,542 (1951).

Ontario. Town in E Oregon, in Malheur County: trading center for an irrigated apple, grain, and livestock producing area; shipping center for cattle. 4,465 (1950).

Ontario, Lake. Smallest and easternmost of the Great Lakes, lying between the province of Ontario on the N and New York State on the S. It is connected with Lake Erie by the Niagara River, and for navigation by the Welland Canal. Its outlet is the St. Lawrence River. Kingston, Cobourg, Toronto, Hamilton, Rochester, and Oswego are on its banks. Length, ab. 190 mi.; width, ab. 55 mi.; area, ab. 7,540 sq. mi.; elevation, ab. 246 ft.; greatest known depth, ab. 775 ft.

Onteniente (ôn.tân.nyen'tâ). Town in E Spain, in the province of Valencia, on a tributary of the Júcar River, ab. 46 mi. S of Valencia: linen and woolen cloth, paper, furniture, and pottery manufactures; palace of the dukes of Almodovar. 13,554 (1940).

On the Consolation of Philosophy. English translation of De consolazione philosophiae.

On the Face of the Waters. Novel of the Sepoy Mutiny in India, by Flora Annie Steel, published in 1896.

On the Morning of Christ's Nativity. Hymn or ode by John Milton, written in 1629.

Onuba Aestuaría (o.nûb'a es.tû.âr'i.a). Ancient name of Huelva, city.

Onuphrio Muralto (ô.nô'frê.ô mû.râl'tô). See Muralto, Onuphrio.

Oodeypore (ô.dî'pôr, ô'dî.pôr). See Udaipur.

Ooge (ôj), Benjamin Leonard D'. See D'Ooge, Benjamin Leonard.

Oom Koos (ôm kôs). See De La Rey, Jacobus Hercules.

Oom Paul (ôm pû'ûl). See Kruger, Stephanus Johannes Paulus.

Oort (ôrt), Jan Hendrik. b. at Franeker, Netherlands, April 28, 1900—. Dutch physicist, attached to the observatory at Leiden since 1924. He was lecturer in statistical astronomy (1930-35) at Leiden, and associate professor and assistant director of the observatory from 1945. He is a leading authority on the dynamics of the galaxy.

Oost (ôst), Jakob van. b. at Bruges, Belgium, c1600; d. there, 1671. Flemish painter.

Oost, Jakob van. [Called the Younger.] b. c1639; d. at Bruges, Belgium, 1713. Flemish historical painter, son of Jakob van Oost (1600-71).

Oostelijke Polder (ôs'te.li.ke pôl'dér). [English, Eastern Polder; also, Zuidoostelijke Polder, meaning "Southeast Polder."'] Polder being established in N Netherlands on land drained from the IJsselmeer (Zuider Zee), E of Amsterdam.

Oostende (ôst.en'de). Flemish name of Ostend.

Oosterhout (ôs'tér.hout). Town in S Netherlands, in the province of North Brabant, NE of Breda: leather, tobacco, and building industries. 20,761 (est. 1951).

Ooston (ôs'tôn). Popular name of Ulverston, England.

Ooststellingwerf (ôs'tel'ing.werf). Town in NE Netherlands, in the province of Friesland, W of Assen, in an agricultural district. 15,725 (1939).

Oost Vlaanderen (ôs't'vlan'de.rên). Flemish name of East Flanders.

Ootacamund (ô'tâ.kâ.mûnd'). City in the Nilgiri Hills, Madras, India: noted mountain health resort and the most frequented hill station in S India. Elevation, ab. 7,250 ft.; pop. 29,853 (1941).

OPA. See Office of Price Administration.

Opalocka (ô.pa.lok'a). [Also: Opa Locka, Opa-locka.] City in S Florida: truck farming. Its position NW of Miami has brought it increasing importance as a residential suburb. 497 (1940), 5,271 (1950).

Opa (ô.pâ.tâ). Group of North American Indian tribes of NE Sonora, Mexico. Their language, long commonly classified as Piman, is now thought to belong to the Taracahitan group of the Uto-Aztecan linguistic family.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ƒ, then; ǵ, d or j; ǵ, s or sh; ƚ, t or ch;

Opatija (ô.pă'tē.yā). [Italian, Abbazia.] Town in NW Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, in the region of Istria, formerly in the Italian province of Venezia Giulia, which was ceded to Yugoslavia by the Italians in 1947. It is situated on the W coast of the Bay of Quarnero, an arm of the Adriatic Sea, at the foot of Monte Maggiore. It has a temperate climate, and is popular as a seashore and winter resort. It was part of the Austrian Kronland (crownland) of Istria until 1918, when it became part of Italy. It was named (in Italian) for the old abbey of San Giacomo al Paolo. 11,737 (1948).

Opatów (ô.pă'tôf). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Kielce, formerly in Russia, situated on the Opatowska River, a tributary of the Vistula River, ab. 100 mi. S of Warsaw. The population, which was predominantly Jewish prior to World War II, declined sharply during the period of German occupation. 5,459 (1946).

Opava (ô.pă.vă). [German, Troppau.] City in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ostrava, the principal city of Czech Silesia (Slezko, formerly Austrian Silesia, now forming the N part of Moravia), situated on the Opa River (which here constitutes the boundary between Czech and Polish territory), NE of Olomouc. Opava was the capital of the former Austrian Kronland (crownland) of Schlesien (Silesia). There are important industries, primarily in foodstuffs, such as sugar, candies, biscuits, beer, and liquor; there is also a paper mill, a sewing-machine factory, and other manufactures. 30,191 (1947).

History. Opava lies on one of the historic routes between Moravia and Poland, and was made a town in 1224. Until 1318 it belonged to Moravia, and thereafter to Silesia. It passed to Bohemia in 1460 and to the Austrian Hapsburgs in 1526. In 1820, the Congress of Troppau took place here under the chairmanship of Metternich. The city became Czechoslovakian in 1918, was included in the German Sudetenland in 1938, and was returned to Czechoslovakia in 1945. The population has recently declined, owing to the departure of the Sudeten Germans.

Opelika (ô.pel.i'ka). City in E Alabama, county seat of Lee County, ab. 56 mi. NE of Montgomery: cotton-textile, cottonseed-oil, fertilizer, and lumber industries. 12,295 (1950).

Opelousas (op.e.lô'sas). City in S Louisiana, seat of St. Landry parish, ab. 56 mi. W of Baton Rouge: shipping point for cotton, rice, sugar cane, and pecans. 11,659 (1950).

Open Boat and Other Tales of Adventure. The. Collection of eight short stories by Stephen Crane, published in 1898. The tales, largely autobiographical, are derived from the author's experiences as a war correspondent.

Open Door Policy. General term applied to the maintenance of equal opportunity and treatment in international commercial intercourse, as distinguished from the granting of special privileges, concessions, and spheres of influence. In particular, it refers to the U.S. foreign policy concerning China which was first announced by U.S. Secretary of State John Hay in his notes of 1899 and 1900.

Opequan Creek (ô.pek'an). Small river in Virginia which joins the Potomac River above Harpers Ferry. Near it was fought the battle of Winchester, Sept. 19, 1864.

Opéra (ô.pă.ră). Term now popularly applied to the Académie de Musique et de Danse, at Paris.

Operti (ô.per'tē). Albert. [Also, Jasper Ludwig Rocca-bigliera.] b. at Turin, Italy, March 17, 1852; d. Oct. 29, 1927. Italian-American painter, caricaturist, and scenic designer, who made two trips with Robert Peary to the Arctic. He did several murals for the Museum of Natural History (New York), and the museum at Pittsfield, Mass. Other works include Farthest North, Rescue of the Greeley Party, The Schacka Search, Dr. Kane, Portrait of Commander Peary, and Finding De Long in the Lena Delta.

Ophelia (ô.fē'li.ə, ô.fē'l'yā). Daughter of Polonius, in Shakespeare's Hamlet. Her mind gives way when Hamlet abandons her to prosecute his revenge.

Ophelia, Miss. Strong-minded, clear-headed New England woman in Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852), by Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Ophion (ô.fī'ôn). In the ancient Greek Orphic cult, a pre-Olympian god who ruled the world before Cronus. Cronus hurled him into the ocean.

Ophir (ô.fēr). In Old Testament geography, a country whence gold, silver, precious stones, ivory, sandalwood, apes, and peacocks were brought. It was especially noted for its gold. The fleet of Solomon is said to have occupied three years in making a journey to it. It has been variously identified with India, Sumatra, the Malabar Coast, the E coast of Africa, and the S or SE part of Arabia on the Persian Gulf.

Ophites (ô.fīts). [Also, Naassenes.] Gnostic body of very early origin, especially prominent in the 2nd century A.D., and existing as late as the 6th century. Its members were so called because they held that the serpent (Greek ophis) by which Eve was tempted was the embodiment of divine wisdom, the great teacher and civilizer of the human race.

Ophiuchus (ô.fī.ŭ'kus). [Also, Serpentarius.] Ancient northern constellation, representing a man holding a serpent; the Serpent-bearer. The Serpent itself is now treated as a separate constellation.

Opie (ô'pi), Amelia. [Maiden name, Alderson.] b. at Norwich, England, Nov. 12, 1769; d. there, Dec. 2, 1853. English novelist; second wife of John Opie. She published various novels, the first, Father and Daughter, appearing in 1801.

Opie, Eugene Lindsay. b. at Staunton, Va., July 5, 1873—. American pathologist. He has published articles on malarial parasites (1898), anatomy and pathology of the pancreas, and the relation of the pancreas to diabetes (1899-1902), diseases of the liver (1902-13), effects of diet (1914-15), respiratory diseases (1917-19), and other subjects.

Opie, John. b. at St. Agnes, near Truro, Cornwall, England, in May, 1761; d. April 9, 1807. English painter; husband of Amelia Opie. In 1780 he went to London under the patronage of John Wolcot (Peter Pindar), who announced him as "the Cornish wonder." In 1785 he exhibited his first historical picture, The Assassination of James I, and in 1787 The Murder of Rizzio. His lectures at the Royal Academy were published in 1809.

Öpik (ô'pēk), Ernst Julius. b. 1893—. Estonian astronomer, known for his contributions to meteor statistics and determinations of velocities from visual observations.

Optimus (ô.pim'us), Lucius. Roman consul in 121 B.C. He was put forward by the senate to oppose the reforms of Gaius Gracchus and, as the leader of the optimates, killed Gracchus and 3,000 of his followers in 121. He was afterward exiled for accepting bribes from Jugurtha, king of Numidia.

O Pioneers! Novel by Willa Cather, published in 1913.

Opitergium (op.i.tēr'jūm). Ancient name of Ojerto.

Opitz (ô'pīts), Martin. [Full name, Martin Opitz von Boberfeld (don bö'bēr.felt).] b. at Bunzlau (Bolesławiec), in Silesia, Dec. 23, 1597; d. at Danzig, Aug. 20, 1639. German poet and writer. He wrote in Latin his first work, Aristarchus, in praise of the German language as a poetic medium. In 1619 he went to Heidelberg, and then in 1620, after the outbreak of the Thirty Years' War, he went to the Netherlands. At Leiden he became acquainted with the philologist Daniel Heinsius, whom he followed to Jutland, where he wrote the poems published 13 years later in Trostgedichte in Widerwärtigkeiten des Krieges. In 1622 he was called to a position in the Gymnasium (advanced secondary school) at Weissenburg. He returned, however, in the following year to Silesia, where he went into the service of the Protestant Duke of Liegnitz (Lagnitz). In 1624 appeared his Euch von der deutschen Poeterey, which became the principal German authority of that day on versification and style. In 1628 he was ennobled by the emperor, Ferdinand II, was subsequently with the Swedes, and ultimately was made secretary and historiographer to the king of Poland, at Danzig, where he died of the plague. He was the founder of the first Silesian school of poets. He wrote secular, religious, and didactic descriptive poems; to the last class belong Zlatna and Vesuvius. Some of his hymns are to be found in the church hymnbooks. His Hercynia is a prose idyll in which verses are occasionally introduced. Among other translations (Alexander Barclay's Argensis, 1626; Philip Sidney's Arcaia, 1629) he made a version of the text of the Italian opera Daphne which was produced at Torgau in 1627, and was the first German opera. By his advocacy of Alexandrine verse and the precepts of his poetics he brought about a reform of German versification; poets of the preceding centuries had simply counted the number of syllables, without reference to the quality of those upon which the metrical accent fell.

Opium War. War between Great Britain and China, precipitated by an attempt of the Chinese government to prevent the importation of opium. It began in 1840, and was ended by the treaty of Nanking in 1842, by which Britain obtained Hong Kong, received a large indemnity, and had opened to her several ports, including Shanghai and Canton.

Opladen (op'lā'den). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, situated on the Wupper River just S of Solingen; railroad repair shops; metal and leather industries; canneries; sugar refinery. 25,923 (1950).

Opland (op'lān). Fylke (county) in S Norway, bounded by the fylker (counties) of Buskerud, Akershus, Hedmark, and Møre og Romsdal. Capital, Lillehammer; area, ab. 9,606 sq. mi.; pop. 154,734 (1946).

Oplandt (öp'lant). A former name of Chester, Pa.

Opole (ô,pô'le). Województwo (province) in S Poland, formerly a part of German Silesia. Capital, Opole; area, ab. 3,630 sq. mi.; pop. 818,000 (est. 1950).

Opole. [German, Oppeln.] City in SW Poland, capital of the województwo (province) of Opole, formerly in German Silesia, situated on the Oder River ab. 60 mi. NW of Katowice. It is a river port, with cement and wood (chiefly sawmills) industries, iron foundries, railroad repair shops, pottery manufactures, and livestock markets. The Church of Saint Adalbert dates from the 10th century; the Protestant parish church (1350, with baroque tower) contains the tombs of several Polish dukes; the Catholic parish church is in Gothic style with baroque alterations. Opole was the residence of the Piast dukes of Upper Silesia from 1163 to 1532; it later belonged to the Hapsburg domain (1532-1742) and to Prussia (1742-1945). It became the capital of the newly established Prussian province of Upper Silesia in 1920, was captured by the Russians on Jan. 24, 1945, and passed to Poland in 1945 (whereupon the bulk of the German population departed). 52,977 (1939); 27,666 (1946).

Oporto (ô,pô'r'tô). See also Pôrto, district.

Oporto. [Also: Pôrto; ancient name, Portus Cale (whence the name Portugal); medieval name, Portus Galorum.] City and concelho (commune) in N Portugal, the chief city and capital of the province of Douro Litoral and district of Pôrto, situated on the Douro River near its mouth, ab. 170 mi. N of Lisbon; seat of numerous commercial, industrial, and banking establishments, and center of the Portuguese wine trade (it exports port wine). There are also cotton and silk textile industries, tanneries, and metal and ceramics manufactures. It is the seat of a university, founded in 1911. The cathedral, a Romanesque and Gothic structure of the 12th-13th centuries, was remodeled in baroque style in the 17th-18th centuries. A Roman town in ancient times, it was later conquered by the Visigoths, and fell into the hands of the Moors in 716 (who destroyed it in 825). It was rebuilt by the French in 997 and renamed Portus Galorum. Scene of Portuguese revolution in 1820, it continued to be a center of revolutionary unrest, particularly in 1846, 1890, and 1908; it was the scene of serious conflicts between government troops and workers in 1927. Pop. of concelho, 261,816 (1940); of city, 229,842 (1940).

Opp (op). City in S Alabama, in Covington County, ab. 75 mi. S of Montgomery; trading and shipping point for a region producing corn, cotton, peanuts, and lumber. 5,240 (1950).

Oppeln (op'eln). German name of Opole.

Oppeln-Bronikowski (op'eln.brôn.nê.kôf'skê), Friedrich von. b. at Kassel, Germany, April 7, 1873; d. 1936. German biographer and historian. He translated into German the works and letters of Frederick the Great (1913-14; although he was a Prussian, Frederick used only French in his serious literary efforts), and also works by Stendhal, Masterlinck, and others.

Oppenheim (op'en.him). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the free state of Hesse, on the Rhine River ab. 11 mi. SE of Mainz; fruit and wine trade; canneries. There are remains of medieval town walls. Oppenheim received town privileges in 1226, was among the most important free imperial cities in the 13th and 14th centuries, and fell to the Palatinate in 1389. It passed to Hesse in 1816. 4,674 (1946).

Oppenheim (op'en.him), E. Phillips. [Full name, Edward Phillips Oppenheim.] b. at London, 1866; d. on the island of Guernsey, Feb. 3, 1946. English novelist, noted for stories of suspense and international intrigue, among the most widely read of which is The Great Impersonation (1920). Among his more than 100 other books are A Prince of Sinners (1903), Anna the Adventuress (1904), The Master Mummer (1905), A Maker of History (1906), The Long Arm of Mannister (1910), Berenice (1911), and The Moving Finger (1911).

Oppenheim (op'en.him), Hermann. b. at Warburg, Westphalia, Germany, Jan. 1, 1858; d. at Berlin, May 22, 1919. German neurologist. He was the first to describe amyotonia congenita (1900), called Oppenheim's disease, and myohypertrophy kymopyralytica (1914); worked on traumatic neuroses (1889), brain tumors (1896), cerebral syphilis (1896), and myasthenic paralysis (1901); and described dystonia musculorum deformans (1911) and a reflex of the skin (1902), both called after him.

Oppenheim (op'en.him), James. b. at St. Paul, Minn., May 24, 1882; d. Aug. 4, 1932. American poet and novelist, one of the leading exponents of free verse. His poetry includes Monday Morning and Other Poems (1909), The Pioneers (1910), Songs for the New Age (1914), War and Laughter (1916), The Book of Self (1917), The Solitary (1919), The Mystic Warrior (1921), and Golden Bird (1923). Selections from his verse appeared in The Sea (1924). He was an editor (1916-17) of The Seven Arts, a monthly. His prose works include Doctor Rast (1909), Wild Oats (1910), Pay-Envelopes (1911), The Nine-Tenths (1911), The Olympian (1912), Idle Wives (1914), and The Psychology of Jung (1925).

Oppenheimer (op'en.hi.mër), Franz. b. at Berlin, March 30, 1864; d. at Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 30, 1943. German economist and sociologist, advocate of social liberalism. He developed a theory of the state based on class combination. His systematic approach to a theory of society stemmed from an agrarian philosophy of history. His main works were System der Soziologie (8 vols., 1922-35) and Der Staat (1907; Eng. trans., The State, 1941). Other works were Das Grundgesetz der Marxschen Gesellschaftslehre (The Basic Principle of the Marxian Doctrine of Society, 1903), Die soziale Frage und der Sozialismus (The Social Problem and Socialism, 1919), and Kapitalismus, Kommunismus, wissenschaftlicher Sozialismus (Capitalism, Communism, and Scientific Socialism, 1922-35).

Oppenheimer (op'en.hi.mër), J. Robert. b. at New York, April 22, 1904-; American physicist. He was professor of physics (1929-47) at the University of California and the California Institute of Technology, and director (1943-45) of the laboratory at Santa Fe, N.M., that perfected the atomic bomb. He has served as director (1947 et seq.) of the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N.J.

Oppert (op'èr), Frederick Burr. b. at Madison, Ohio, Jan. 2, 1857; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., Aug. 27, 1937. American cartoonist and illustrator, whose comic strips and political cartoons appeared in the Hearst papers for 37 years (1899-1936). Earlier, he was with Punch for 18 years. Oppert was the creator of Happy Hooligan, Maud the mule (And Her Name Was Maud), and Alphonse and Gaston. In addition, he illustrated several books, including works by Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne's Mr. Dooley.

Oppert (op'èr), French, o,per), Jules. b. at Hamburg, Germany, July 9, 1825; d. at Paris, Aug. 21, 1903. French Orientalist, appointed professor of Sanskrit at the Imperial Library at Paris in 1857, and of Assyriology at the Collège de France in 1874. He was employed (1851-54) by the French government in explorations in Asiatic Turkey.

Among his numerous publications are Études assyriennes (1857), Expédition de Mésopotamie (1859-61), Grande inscription du palais de Khorsabad (1863), and La Chronologie de la Genèse (1879).

Oppian (op'i'an). fl. in the latter part of the 2nd century A.D. Greek poet of Cilicia. He was the author of a poem on fishing, Haliutica, and was long incorrectly assumed to be the author of a poem on hunting, Cynegetica.

Oppido Mamertina (op'pē.dō mā.mēr.tē'nā). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Reggio di Calabria, ab. 22 mi. NE of Reggio di Calabria: seat of a bishopric; cathedral. The town was largely destroyed by earthquakes in 1783 and 1908. Pop. of commune, 11,138 (1936); of town, 4,981 (1936).

Oppidum Voronum (op'i.dum vō.rō'nūm). Latin name of Voiron.

Oppius (op'i.us), Gaius (or Caius). Friend and contemporary of Julius Caesar, reputed author of the history of the African war.

Oppius, Mons. See under Esquiline Hill.

Ops (ops). In Roman mythology, a very old harvest and fertility goddess, hence also construed as a goddess of plenty. She was the wife of Saturn and mother of Jupiter. Later the Romans identified her with the Greek Rhea.

Opsumer (op.so.mer), Isidore. b. at Lierre, Belgium, 1878—. Belgian painter; etcher, and lithographer. A member of the Royal Academy of Belgium, he has been director (1945) of its fine arts section and also of the Institut Supérieur des Beaux-Arts. His paintings are in many of the important collections of the world, including those in galleries at Rome, Paris, Florence, Amsterdam, and London.

Optic (op'tik), Oliver. Pseudonym of Adams, William Taylor.

"Optional Clause." Term applied to Article 36 of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice by which member states may recognize the Court's jurisdiction as compulsory in certain legal disputes including treaty interpretation, questions of international law, types and extent of reparations in breaches of international obligations, and certain issues of fact-finding and jurisdiction. The clause has been variously defined, and has been accepted by most nations only with reservations.

Options. Collection of short stories by William Sydney Porter under the pseudonym O. Henry, published in 1909.

Opukahia (ō.pō.kā.hā'yā). [English name, Henry Obookiah.] fl. 1809-18. Early Hawaiian convert to Christianity. Having shipped aboard an American whaler, he reached New Haven, Conn., in 1809. He was much impressed with the white man's ways, but most of all with Christianity. He entered a school at Cornwall, Conn., to prepare for missionary work among his people, but died there in 1813 without regaining his native islands. His example gave a strong impulse toward the organization of the first band of missionaries, which sailed from New Haven in 1819 and reached Hawaii in 1820.

Opus 7. Novel in verse by Sylvia Townsend Warner, published in 1931.

Opzoomer (ōp'zō.mēr), Karel Willem. b. at Rotterdam, Netherlands, Sept. 20, 1821; d. at Oosterbeek, Netherlands, Aug. 23, 1892. Dutch philosopher and jurist. He wrote a manual of logic (1851) and others.

Oqair (ō.kīr', -kār'). [Also, Uqair.] Town in E Saudi Arabia, on the mainland just SW of the island of Bahrain. It is a seaport linked by road with Hofuf and Dhahran. It has been identified as Gerrha, which was a wealthy ancient Chaldean colony trading with Arabia and India.

Oracolo (ō.rā'kō.lō), L'. [Eng. trans., "The Oracle".] Opera in one act by Franco Leoni, with a libretto by Camillo Zanon, first performed at Covent Garden, London, on June 28, 1905.

Oradea Mare (ō.rā'dyā mā'rā). [Also: Oradea; German, Grosswardein; Hungarian, Nagyvárad.] City in NW Rumania, in the province of Crisana and Maramures, situated on the Seves River ab. 95 mi. NW of Cluj, near the Hungarian border. A railroad junction, its industries include leather, textiles, tiles, spirits, metal, wood, mill products, and agricultural machines. It was founded in 1080 by Saint Ladislaus, and destroyed by the Tartars in 1241. It passed to Transylvania in 1556 and was held by the Turks from 1660 to 1692. By the treaty of Trianon in 1920 it passed to Rumania; it was held by the Hungarians from 1940-44. Near here Hungarian troops suffered a great defeat in September, 1944. Pop. 82,282 (1948).

Oradell (ōr'a.del). Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County, near Paterson, 3,665 (1950).

Oraibi (ō.rī'bē). Oldest of the North American Hopi Indian pueblos, in Arizona. It was built c1150 and first discovered by one of Coronado's scouts in 1540. It is still occupied by a few Hopi, and many of the ancient ceremonies are still performed.

Oran (ō.ran'; French, or.ân). Westernmost department of Algeria, in NW Africa, bordering French Morocco on the W and Algiers department on the E. Capital, Oran; area, 25,436 sq. mi.; pop. 1,990,729 (1948).

Oran. Capital of the department of Oran, Algeria, in NW Africa, on the Mediterranean Sea; the second-ranking seaport and industrial and commercial center in the country, surpassed only by Algiers. It is also an important coaling station on the Mediterranean shipping lanes, and a major trading center. The old Spanish town exists along with the modern town. It was a flourishing medieval town, was held by the Spaniards from 1509 to 1708 and from 1732 until after the earthquake of 1790, and was taken by the French in 1831. This was also the site of an important naval battle (July, 1940) between a British naval force and the Vichy French fleet during World War II; landings were made here by Allied troops during the invasion of northern Africa. Pop. of commune, 256,661 (1948); of city, 244,594 (1948).

Oran, Battle of. Name applied to the naval operation (July 3, 1940) whereby the British, after the fall of France in World War II, sought to avoid the return of a large flotilla of the French fleet to French ports and its possible eventual use by the Germans. A British squadron entered Oran harbor, in Algeria, and presented French Admiral Marcel Gensoul with an ultimatum. The French chose opposition and were fired on by the British. The only important French ship to escape was the Strasbourg. The battleship Bretagne and the aircraft carrier Commandant Teste were sunk and the Dunkerque disabled. The subsequent surrender of the French naval force at Alexandria and the demolition (July 8) of the Richelieu at Dakar removed the possibility that any considerable part of the French fleet's fighting strength could fall into German hands.

Orange (or'anj). City in S California, in Orange County, SE of Los Angeles; processing and shipping point for citrus fruits, 10,027 (1950).

Orange. Town in SW Connecticut, in New Haven County, on the Housatonic River near Long Island Sound, ab. 7 mi. SW of New Haven, 3,032 (1950).

Orange (or'anj; French, or.ânzh). [Latin, Arausio.] City in SE France, in the department of Vaucluse, ab. 13 mi. N of Avignon. It is noted for its Roman antiquities, particularly the theater (seating capacity 7,000), the triumphal arch, and the gymnasium. The cathedral of Notre Dame, with a Romanesque nave, was rebuilt in the 16th century. Orange has manufactures of canned fruits and fruit confections, costume jewelry, silk and woolen goods, and flour. A Roman colony under Augustus, it was transferred by Charlemagne to counts who later took the title of Prince of Orange. The city went to France through the treaty of Utrecht (1713), 13,978 (1946).

Orange (or'anj). Town in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in N Massachusetts, in Franklin County; manufactures of textile and sewing machines and tapica. Pop. of town, 5,894 (1950); of village, 4,048 (1950).

Orange. City in NE New Jersey, in Essex County, ab. 13 mi. W of New York; manufactures of electrical supplies, calculating machines, and drugs, 38,037 (1950).

Orange. [Former names: Huntley, Green's Bluff, Jefferson, Madison.] City in E Texas, county seat of Orange County, on the Sabine River ab. 25 mi. from the Gulf coast; center for the production and milling of rice; shipyards; manufactures of lumber, chemicals, and paper. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses, its population more than doubled, 7,472 (1940), 21,174 (1951).

Orange. Town in N central Virginia, county seat of Orange County, NE of Charlottesville; agricultural trading center, 2,571 (1950).

Orange. See Clove and Orange.

Orange, Principality of. Former small principality, now in the department of Vaucluse, France, containing the town of Orange and neighboring places. It fell to the house of Nassau in 1530.

Orangeburg (or'anj.bërg). City in C South Carolina, county seat of Orangeburg County, on the N branch of the Edisto River, in an agricultural area. It is the seat of a state agricultural and mechanical college. 15,322 (1950).

Orange Free State (or'anj). [Official name, Province of the Orange Free State; South African Dutch, Oranje Vrystaat; former name, Orange River Colony.] Province of the Union of South Africa, a former republic. It is bounded by the Transvaal (separated by the Vaal River) on the N, Natal on the E, Basutoland on the S, and Cape of Good Hope province (separated by the Orange River) on the S and W. The surface is generally a vast level or undulating expanse of the high South African plateau, lying at elevations between 4,000 and 6,000 ft. This region experiences hot, humid summers, and cool, dry winters; frost occurs in winter. The W portion of the Orange Free State is considerably drier than the E, and stock-raising is the chief industry here, with some irrigation farming. In the E there is a great area of corn farming; maize and kaffir corn are grown as the staple food crops. Most of the land is owned by European farmers of Boer or British descent. Afrikaans is widely spoken. The province is well served by railroads and roads. The territory was settled in the first half of the 19th century by emigrants from Cape Colony, was annexed by Great Britain in 1848, and became independent in 1854. It was conquered and annexed by Great Britain in 1900, under the name of the Orange River Colony. Self-government was established June 5, 1917. Under the South Africa Act of 1919, it entered the Union of South Africa as the Orange Free State. It is administered by a governor, with a provincial council and an executive committee. The Orange Free State is represented in the Union Parliament by eight senators and 14 representatives. The province is crossed by the main rail lines from Capetown and other towns in the W to Johannesburg and the Transvaal. Capital, Bloemfontein; area, 49,647 sq. mi.; pop. 876,634, including 202,077 Europeans (1945).

Orangemen (or'anj.men). Name given about the end of the 17th century by Roman Catholics to the Protestants of Ireland, on account of their support of the cause of William III of England, Prince of Orange.

Orangemen. Secret politico-religious society, instituted in Ireland in 1795. It was organized for the purpose of upholding Protestant religious and political ascendancy in Ireland.

Orange River (or'anj). [Also, Kai Gariep.] Chief river in S Africa, in N Union of South Africa. It rises in Basutoland near the border of Natal, and flows generally W, separating Cape of Good Hope province from the Orange Free State and South-West Africa. Its chief tributary is the Vaal. In recent years its middle course has been the site of some large irrigation projects sponsored by the government of the Union of South Africa. In its lower course it flows in a deep valley through a desert region. Alluvial diamond deposits have been worked in the vicinity of the mouth of the river. Length, ab. 1,350 mi.

Orange River Colony. Former name of Orange Free State.

Orangeville (or'anj.vil). Town in Ontario, Canada, county seat of Dufferin County, ab. 55 mi. by road NW of Toronto. The town is surrounded by an excellent farming area. 3,249 (1951).

Orang Laut (or'ang laut). [Also called Sa Gypsies; local names: in Burma, Selung, Selon, Mawken; in Thailand (Siam), Chao-Nam; in Malaya, Orang Sletar (slä'tär), Orang Rayat (rä'yät); in Banka and Billiton, Orang Sekah (sä'kä); in East Indonesia, Bajau, Bajao, Bajo; in the Sulu Archipelago, Samal.] Malayo-Polynesian-speaking sea rovers found along the W coast of the Malay Peninsula (as far N as the Mergui Archipelago), among the small islands of Indonesia as far E as the Moluccas, and in the Sulu Archipelago of the Philippines. They live aboard their boats, which are fitted with hearths and covered sleeping quarters. Many of them are Moslems.

Oranienbaum (ö.rä'nyen.boum). Former name of Lomonosov.

Oranienburg (ö.rä'nyen.bürk). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, situated on the Havel River ab. 20 mi. NW of Berlin. It has iron and steel works, and electrical and chemical industries. The concentration camp of Sachsenhausen, where political and racial prisoners were kept during the Nazi regime, was in the vicinity. 18,633 (1946).

Oranje Vrystaat (ö.rä'nye frä'stät). South African Dutch name of Orange Free State.

Oration on the Crown. See Crown, Oration on the.

Orators, The. Play by Samuel Foote, performed in 1762.

Oratory of Saint Philip Neri (fil'ip nä'rë). [Also, Congregation of the Oratory.] Roman Catholic religious order, founded (1575) at Florence by Filippo Neri, so named after a chapel he built for it and called an oratory. It is composed of simple priests under no vows. Its chief seat is Italy, but congregations were founded in England in 1847 and 1849 under the leadership of former members of the Anglican Church.

Oravita (ö.rä'vë.tä). [German, Orawitz.] Town in NW Rumania, in the province of Banat, ab. 62 mi. NW of Turnu Severin, near the Yugoslavian border; salt and iron mining. 6,974 (1943).

Orb (örp). [Also, Bad Orb.] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, situated in the Spessart Mountains ab. 32 mi. NE of Frankfurt on the Main; health resort, with mineral springs. 7,156 (1946).

Orbe (örp). [Latin, Urba.] Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Vaud, situated on the Orbe River. It was the ancient capital of the lesser duchy of Burgundy (Burgundia Minor). 3,553 (1941).

Orbe River. Small river in the department of Jura, France, and canton of Vaud, Switzerland, flowing into the Lake of Neuchâtel. Length, ab. 36 mi.

Orbetello (ör.bä.të'lö). Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany, in the province of Grosseto, situated on a peninsula in a lagoon near the Mediterranean Sea, ab. 75 mi. NW of Rome; phosphate fertilizers; macaroni; sardine fisheries. There are airfields nearby. The town has a cathedral and remains of Etruscan walls, both of which escaped damage in World War II. Pop. of commune, 10,835 (1936); of town, 5,529 (1933).

Orbigny (dör.bë.nyë), Alcide Dessalines d'. b. at Couéron, Loire-Inférieure, France, Sept. 6, 1802; d. near St.-Denis, France, June 31, 1857. French naturalist. From 1826 to 1833 he traveled in South America. The results of his journey were published at government expense as Voyage dans l'Amérique méridionale (9 vols., 1834-47; including narrative, 3 vols.; L'Homme américain, ethnological, 2 vols.; and the remainder on zoology and other subjects). Among his other writings are Paléontologie française (14 vols., 1840-54; unfinished) and several works on the Foraminifera.

Orbigny, Charles Dessalines d'. b. at Couéron, Loire-Inférieure, France, Dec. 2, 1836; d. Feb. 15, 1876. French geologist; brother of A. D. d'Orbigny.

Orbilius Pupillus (ör.bil'i'us pü.pil'us). Roman grammarian and schoolmaster, the teacher of Horace. The epithet "plagiosus" was given to him by Horace on account of the floggings which his pupils received from him, and the name Orbilius has often since been used in literature for a teacher of this type.

Orc (örk). [Italian, Orcò (ör'kö).] Deformed giant who eats men but not women, in Matteo Maria Boiardo's and Lodovico Ariosto's Orlando romances. He has two projecting bones for eyes.

Orcades (ör'kä.dëz). Ancient name of the Orkney Islands.

Orcagna (ör.kä'nyä), Andrea. [Original name, Andrea di Cione; called Arcagnolo, of which name Orcagna is a variant.] b. at Florence, Italy, c1308; d. c1368.

fat, fäte, fär, äsk, färe; net, më, hër; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lüte, püll, ʔh, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Florentine painter, sculptor, and architect. He painted The Coronation of the Virgin which is now in the National Gallery, at London, and several works (only one of which remains) for the Church of Santa Maria Novella at Florence. The frescoes of The Triumph of Death and The Last Judgment in the Campo Santo at Pisa, by painters of the Tuscan school, have been attributed to him. About 1348 he transformed the old granary of Arnolfo del Cambio (Florence) into the Church of Or San Michele.

Orchard (ôr'chard), Harry. [Original name, Alfred E. Horsley.] b. in Ontario, Canada, March 18, 1886—. American labor-union member who was convicted of and sentenced to life imprisonment for the bomb slaying (1905) of Frank R. Steunenberg, a former governor of Idaho. He confessed participation in northern Idaho riots and mine-shaft bombings at Wardner, Idaho, and in Colorado, and was defended at his trial by Clarence Darrow and prosecuted by William E. Borah. The trial of W. D. Haywood, who was acquitted, attracted more attention.

Orchard and Vineyard. Volume of poems by V. Sackville-West, published in 1921.

"Orchard of Ireland" (ôr'lând). Name given to County Armagh, Ireland.

Orchards. Unincorporated community in W Idaho, ab. 5 mi. SE of Lewiston, 4,494 (1950).

Orchardson (ôr'chard.son), William Quiller. b. at Edinburgh, 1835; d. at London, April 13, 1910. British figure painter. He painted The Challenge (1865), Casus Belli (1870), The Bill of Sale (1876), On Board H.M.S. Bellerophon July 23, 1815 (1880), The Salon of Madame Recamier (1885), and others.

Orchies (ôr'shê). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, ab. 14 mi. SE of Lille. An industrial town, it was very heavily damaged in World War I and again in World War II. 4,746 (1946).

Orchoë (ôr'kô.ê). Greek name of Erech.

Orchomenus (ôr.kom'ê.nus). In ancient geography, a city in Arcadia, Greece, ab. 33 mi. W of Corinth. It was one of the leading Arcadian cities.

Orchomenus. In ancient geography, a city in Boeotia, Greece, on the Cephissus River, ab. 55 mi. NW of Athens. It was the capital of the ancient Minyae. Here Sulla defeated (85 B.C.) Archelaus, the general of Mithridates VI, king of Pontus. The site contains important remains of antiquity. The so-called treasury of Minyae is a very ancient tomb of the Mycenaean beehive type. The plan is circular, 45 ft. in diameter, covered in by a pseudo-dome formed by corbeling in the stones of the wall.

Orcus (ôr'kus). In Roman mythology, a god of the underworld, identified with the Greek Hecorus, god of oaths, who punished perjurers. Orcus was later identified with the Greek underworld god, Hades, and still later with Pluto. The word eventually became synonymous with Hades as a place.

Orcutt (ôr'kut), William Dana. b. at West Lebanon, N.H., April 13, 1870—. American typography expert, author of books on the art of book-making. His books include In Quest of the Perfect Book (1926), The Kingdom of Books (1927), The Book in Italy (1928), Master Makers of Books (1927), and The Magic of the Book (1930).

Orczy (ôr'tsi), Baroness. [Title of Emmüska Orczy.] b. at Tarnaörs, Hungary, 1865; d. at London, Nov. 12, 1947. English novelist and playwright. Her novel The Scarlet Pimpernel (1905) was dramatized (1905) and serialized (1934); she continued the Pimpernel series in other books based on the French Revolution, such as The Triumph of the Scarlet Pimpernel. She was author also of A Son of the People (1906), Beau Brocade (1938); dramatized in 1910), Castles in the Air (1921), Nicolette (1923), The Divine Folly (1937), Will-o'-the-Wisp (1943), and other novels.

Ord (ôrd), Edward Otho Cresap. b. in Maryland, Oct. 18, 1818; d. at Havana, Cuba, July 22, 1883. American general. He served against the Seminole Indians (1839-42) and was appointed brigadier general of U.S. volunteers at the beginning of the Civil War. He gained the victory of Dranesville in December, 1861, and served before Richmond and Petersburg in 1864-65.

Ordeal of Richard Feverel (ri'ch'ard fev'ê.rêl), The. Novel by George Meredith, published in 1859.

Ordeh (ôr'dê). See Dongola.

Ordericus Vitalis (ôr.dê.rî'kus vî.tâl'is) or Orderic Vital (ôr'dê.rîk vê.tâl'). b. at Atcham, near Shrewsbury, England, 1075; d. c.1143. English historian and Benedictine monk. He wrote an Ecclesiastical History, especially relating to Normandy and England in the 11th and 12th centuries.

Order of Merit. [Abbreviated O.M.] British order instituted by letters patent on June 26, 1902. It consists of the British sovereign and of not more than 24 subjects of the crown (in ordinary membership) who may have rendered exceptionally meritorious service in the army or navy, or in art, literature, or science. The honorary membership is conferred upon foreigners and is unlimited. The badge of the order is an eight-pointed cross of red and blue enamel bearing the motto "For Merit" within a laurel wreath, the whole surmounted by an imperial crown and suspended by a varicolored blue and crimson ribbon.

Order of Military Merit. Order instituted (1759) by Louis XV of France for Protestant officers, as the Order of Saint Louis was limited to Roman Catholics. Its organization was similar to that of the latter order. In 1814 it was reorganized for officers of the army and navy. It has not been conferred since 1830. The badge was somewhat similar to that of Saint Louis, and the ribbon was of the same color.

Order of Saint Louis (lô'sîs, lô'i). French order founded by Louis XIV in 1693 for military service, and confirmed by Louis XV in 1719. After the restoration of the Bourbons in 1814 this order was reinstated. No knights have been created since 1830. The badge is a cross of eight points, having in the central medallion a figure of Louis XIV, robed and crowned, and holding in his hands wreaths of honor; there is a gold fleur-de-lis between every two arms. The ribbon is flame-colored.

Order of Saint Michael (mî'kêl). French order instituted by Louis XI in 1469, and modified by Henry III and Louis XIV. Since 1830 it has not been conferred. The badge is a cross of eight points with fleurs-de-lis between the arms, and in the central medallion a figure of the archangel Michael trampling on the dragon. The ribbon is black.

Order of Saint Michael and Saint George (jôrj). British order instituted in 1818, originally for natives of the Ionian and Maltese islands and for other British subjects in the Mediterranean. It has since been greatly extended.

Order of Saints Cosmo and Damian (koz'mô; dâ'mî-gn). [Also, Order of the Martyrs.] Religious order in Palestine in the Middle Ages, charged especially with the care of pilgrims.

Order of the Annunciation. Order of nuns, founded (c1500) at Bourges, France, by Queen Jeanne of Valois after her divorce from Louis XII.

Order of the Annunciation. Highest order of knighthood (Ordine supremo dell' Annunziata) of the ducal house of Savoy, and later of the royal house of Italy. The order dated under that name from 1518, when it superseded an order said to have been founded by Count Amadeus VI of Savoy in 1362, but probably older. The medal of the order bore a representation of the annunciation; its collar was decorated with alternate golden knots and enameled roses, the latter bearing the letters F E R T, making the Latin word fert ("he bears"), an ancient motto of the house of Savoy, but variously otherwise interpreted. The king was the grand master of the order.

Order of the Annunciation. Order of nuns, founded (c1604) at Genoa, Italy, by Maria Vittoria Fornari.

Order of the Bath. See Bath, Order of the.

Order of the Chrysanthemum. Order founded by the mikado of Japan in 1876.

Order of the Garter. See Garter, Order of the.

Order of the Golden Fleece. Order founded by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, in 1430, on the occasion of his marriage with the infanta Isabella of Portugal. The office of grand master passed to the house of Hapsburg in 1477 with the acquisition of the Burgundian dominions, which included the Netherlands. After the time of the emperor Charles V (d. 1558) this office was exercised by the Spanish kings; but after the cession of the Spanish Netherlands to Austria, the latter power in 1713-14 claimed the office. The dispute was never decided, and the order therefore still theoretically exists independently in Austria and in Spain. The badge of the order is a golden ram pendent by a ring which passes round its middle. This hangs from a jewel of elaborate design, with enameling of several colors, various suggestive devices, and the motto Pretium laborum non vile.

Order of the Holy Ghost. [French, Ordre du Saint-Esprit.] Leading order of the later French monarchy, founded (1578) by King Henry III of France. The king was the grand master, and there were 103 members, not including foreigners. The members were required to adhere to the Roman Catholic Church and to be of a high grade of nobility. The decoration was a gold cross attached to a blue ribbon, and the emblems were a dove and an image of Saint Michael. The order was discontinued after the revolution of 1830.

Order of the Hospitalers of Saint John of Jerusalem (jon; jē.rō'sa.lēm). See Hospitalers of Saint John of Jerusalem, Order of the.

Order of the Illuminati (il.lū.mi.nā'ti, il.lū.mi.nā'tē). [Often called simply Illuminati.] Secret society founded by Adam Weishaupt at Ingolstadt, Bavaria, in 1776; originally called the Society of the Perfectibilists. It was deistic and republican in principle, aimed at general enlightenment and emancipation from superstition and tyranny, had an elaborate organization, was to some extent associated with freemasonry, and spread widely through Europe, though the Illuminati were never very numerous. The order excited much antagonism, and was suppressed in Bavaria in 1785, but lingered for some time elsewhere.

Order of the Indian Empire (in'di.ən). Order instituted in 1878 for British subjects in India, to commemorate the assumption by Queen Victoria of the title of Empress of India.

Order of the Iron Cross. Prussian order founded in 1813 for military services in the wars against Napoleon. In 1870 the order was reorganized to consist of the great cross (conferred only on a few princes and generals), and two classes comprising lesser Germans. The Iron Cross was given in both World War I and World War II. The original badge was a cross patté of black iron with a silver rim, upon which were the initials F. W. (Frederick William) and the date 1813 or 1815. The ribbon is black with a white border.

Order of the Legion of Honor. See Legion of Honor.

Order of the Martyrs. See Order of Saints Cosmo and Damian.

Order of the Thistle. [Full name, The Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle.] Very old Scottish order, which has been renewed and remodeled, and is still in existence. The devices of the order are Saint Andrew's cross, or saltire, and a thistle flower with leaves; these enter into the different badges, the collar, star, and other insignia. The motto is Nemo me impune lacessit. The ribbon is green.

Order of United Americans. Benevolent society organized (1844) at New York and subsequently active on a national scale. Dedicated to the principles of nativism, it was strongly antislavery and anti-Roman Catholic in outlook. It was a predecessor of the Native American (or Know-Nothing) Party.

Orders in Council. Orders promulgated by the British sovereign with the advice of the privy council; specifically, the orders of 1807, which prohibited neutral trade directly with France or the allies of France. All goods had to be landed in England, pay duties there, and be reexported under English regulations. These orders bore with especial severity on American commerce.

Ordinance of Nullification. See Nullification, Ordinance of.

Ordinance of 1784. Act of the U.S. Congress, under the Confederation, passed April 23, 1784, for the temporary government of the Northwest Territory, which comprised tracts ceded to the U.S. by the several states. It was drafted by Thomas Jefferson and provided for the transition from territorial to state governments. By virtue of its fundamental idea in regard to colonial policy, it stands as a distinctively American contribution to statecraft and government.

Ordinance of 1787. [Also, Northwest Ordinance.] Act of the U.S. Congress, under the Confederation, passed on July 13, 1787. It secured to the Northwest Territory freedom from slavery, and provided for its future subdivision into not more than five nor less than three states. It also provided for religious freedom and made guarantees for education.

Ordinances of Secession. See Secession, Ordinances of.

Ordinas (ōr.dē'nās), Juan March. See March Ordinas, Juan.

Ordjonikidze (ōr'jōn.i.kid'zē). A former name of Dzauzhikau, and also of Yenakiyev.

Ordjonikidzegrad (ōr'jōn.i.kid'zē.grāt). Former name of Bezhtsa.

Ordos (ōr'dos). [Also, Ordos (-dōz).] Desert in N China, in the SW part of the province of Suiyuan. It is enclosed on the E, N, and W by the great north bend of the Hwang Ho (Yellow River). It is covered with clay and fine silt (loess) deposited by the river. It is the legendary location of the tomb of Genghis Khan. Remains of Paleolithic man have been found in the SW Ordos; and archaeologically it is important as the source of small bronze objects in the so-called "animal style" which characterizes the art of the steppe country all the way from Mongolia to the Black Sea. The term Ordos is usually applied to objects in this style found in China or to those types of Chinese objects in which the influence of this style is evident. Area, ab. 50,000 sq. mi.

Ordovician Period (ōr.dō.vish'ən). Period in the Paleozoic Era in which the first vertebrates appeared. See table at end of Volume III.

Ordre de la Légion d'Honneur (ōdr de là lē.zhyōn dō.nēr). Full French name of the Legion of Honor.

Ordzhonikidze (ōr'jōn.i.kid'zē). A former name of Dzauzhikau, and also of Yenakiyev.

Ordzhonikidzeabad (ōr'jōn.i.kid'zē.ā.bāt'). [Former name, Yangi-Bazar.] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Tadzhik Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 13 mi. E of Stalinabad. The textile mills here are famous throughout the U.S.S.R. Pop. ab. 25,000.

Ordzhonikidzegrad (ōr'jōn.i.kid'zē.grāt). Former name of Bezhtsa.

Oreamuno (ō'rā.ā.mō'nō), Ricardo Jiménez. See Jiménez Oreamuno, Ricardo.

Oreamuno Flores (ō'rā.s), Alberto. b. at Cartago, Costa Rica, Aug. 9, 1905— Costa Rican physician, president of Costa Rica (1952). Educated in Costa Rica and the U.S., he served his internship at Philadelphia and later was on the staffs of hospitals in Panama, Honduras, and Costa Rica. He entered politics as a member of the municipal council of Limón, became a deputy in the Costa Rican congress, and served as vice-president under Ottilio Ulate Blanco. When Ulate Blanco resigned in 1952, Oreamuno became president for the short period that the elected president was out of office.

Örebro (ē.rē.brō'). Län (county) in S central Sweden.

Capital, Örebro; area, 3,550 sq. mi.; pop. 247,023 (1950).

Örebro. City in S central Sweden, the capital of the län (county) of Örebro, situated at the mouth of the Svart River on the E shore of Lake Hjälmaren, ab. 98 mi. W of Stockholm. An important shoe manufacturing center, it also has paper and food industries, and railroad repair shops. The Church of Saint Nicholas dates from the 13th century; there is also a notable castle with four Renaissance towers, situated on an island in the lake. The city has been the seat of numerous diets: that of 1540 declared the throne hereditary, and that of 1810 elected the French Marshal Jean Baptiste Jules Bernadotte crown prince. Two treaties were negotiated here in 1812: one between England and Sweden, and the other between England and Russia. 66,548 (1950).

Oregon (ōr'ē.gon, ōr'ē.gon). [Called the "Beaver State."] State of the NW United States, bounded by Washington (partly separated by the Columbia River) on the N, Idaho (partly separated by the Snake River) on the E, Nevada and California on the S, and the Pacific Ocean on the W.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Oregon is divided for administrative purposes into 36 counties. The state sends four representatives to Congress, and has six electoral votes. Leading cities include Eugene, Klamath Falls, Portland, and Salem. Capital, Salem; area, 96,350 sq. mi. (96,981 sq. mi., including water); pop. 1,521,341 (1950), an increase of 39.6 percent over the 1940 figure. The state ranks ninth in area, and 32nd (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The state is traversed by the Coast Range in the extreme W, the Cascade Mountains slightly further E (both extending from N to S), the Blue Mountains and the Willowa Mountains in the NE, and the Steen Mountains in the SE. Highest point in the state is Mount Hood (11,245 ft.) in the Cascades. Mount McLoughlin and Mount Jefferson are also notable peaks. The coast line is remarkably even, a narrow coastal plain existing at some points although in general the mountains rise abruptly from the sea. The state belongs largely to the valley of the Columbia River (which drains into the Pacific) and its chief tributary, the Willamette. At Bonneville, ab. 40 mi. E of Portland and between Oregon and Washington, is the Bonneville Dam, used for water power and navigation; the dam includes fishways permitting salmon to ascend to their spawning places. The Snake River joins the Columbia in Washington. Other rivers are the Deschutes and John Day, both tributaries of the Columbia; the Umpqua, in the SW, flowing into the Pacific; the Rogue, in the extreme SW, also draining into the Pacific. Upper Klamath Lake, Harney Lake, Malheur Lake, Summer Lake, and Lake Albert are within the state; Goose Lake and Lower Klamath Lake, the latter now dry, extend into California. Crater Lake, in Crater Lake National Park (ab. 250 sq. mi.; established 1902) lies in the crater of an extinct volcano. The climate of Oregon is moderate in the W part, more extreme as to hot and cold in the E. Rainfall is abundant along the coast, scanty in the E.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Lumbering is one of the great industries of the state, Oregon cutting more board feet of timber than any other state in the nation. Agriculture, another vast industry, is concentrated on the growing of berries and fruits, nuts, grain, potatoes, hay, seeds, hops, sugar beets, and flax. Extensive interests are centered on stock raising (cattle, hogs, sheep, and poultry). Dairy products are important. Oregon's fisheries are famous for salmon taken from the Columbia River, although other fish are caught also. Manufacturing consists mainly of lumber products (including furniture), paper and pulp, and food canning (fruit, vegetables, fish).

Portland is an important industrial center, one of the chief Pacific ports and a rail center, receiving vast quantities of inland products by way of the Columbia River. The state's natural resources include gold, silver, sand, gravel, lead, mercury, copper, limestone, clay, pumice, platinum, and iron ore. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 391 million dollars; from mineral output, as high as 17 million; from manufacturing, as high as two billion.

History. Some believe that the state was visited as early as 1543 by the Spaniard Ferrello. Sir Francis Drake cruised (1579) along the coast. The mouth of the Columbia River was discovered (1792) by an American sea captain, Robert Gray, who named the region after his ship, the Columbia. Gray's discovery was the basis for U.S. claims to the Oregon region. The country was partly explored (1804-05) by Meriwether Lewis and William Clark. A fur-trading post was established (1811) at Astoria by John Jacob Astor. Great Britain and the U.S. occupied the territory jointly from 1818. Great waves of immigrants from the East traveled over the Oregon Trail (starting at independence, Mo.) to settle in Oregon between 1830 and 1860. U.S. sentiment in favor of American occupation of the whole of the region became so great that the Democratic campaign slogan in 1844 was "Fifty-four forty or fight," meaning that the U.S. should occupy the land as far N as 54°40' N. latitude. U.S. claims were settled by a treaty with Great Britain in 1846. Oregon Territory was organized in 1848; admitted to the Union (as the 33rd state) on Feb. 14, 1859.

Culture. Oregon's development is fairly evenly divided between urban (53.9 percent of the 1950 population) and rural. Close to 5,000 Indians live in the state. The number of Negro residents has increased somewhat from the small percentage recorded in 1940, many having been drawn to the state by wartime industries. The foreign population is small and represents varied nationalities. Portland, founded by New England immigrants and named after Portland, Me., is an educational center and has a symphony orchestra. Among the state's educational institutions are the state-supported University of Oregon, at Eugene, with a branch at Portland, and the Oregon State College, at Corvallis; Reed College, at Portland. The state motto is "The Union"; the motto of the Oregon Territory, Alis Volat Propriis, meaning "She Flies with Her Own Wings," was generally accepted as the state motto for many years, but was never adopted by the state government. "The Union" appears on the state seal and is accepted by most authorities as the state motto, although the law has never designated it as such. The state flower is the Oregon grape.

Oregon. City in N Illinois, county seat of Ogle County; trading center. The nearby Eagle's Nest Art Colony is on a site named by Margaret Fuller, 3,205 (1950).

Oregon City. City in NW Oregon, county seat of Clackamas County, on the Willamette River ab. 13 mi. SE of Portland; manufactures of paper and of wool textiles; salmon fishing. Settled in the early 19th century, it was an early processing center for grain and lumber. It was the birthplace of Edwin Markham, 7,682 (1950).

Oregon River. Early name of the Columbia River.

Oregon Trail. Name applied to one of the principal routes taken by early emigrants to the Far West, beginning at the Missouri River in the east and ending approximately at the Willamette Valley in the Oregon country. The trail was not a road in the ordinary sense, nor was it a limited track across the country; its terminals were variously Independence or what is now Kansas City in the east and several places within the area from the Cascades to the coast in the west; the route between these points varied too, although in general the same landmarks were passed. Typically, the trail started at Independence, coincided for about 40 miles with the Santa Fé Trail, then turned northwest to the Platte; it followed the North Platte to Fort Laramie and crossed the Rockies (Wind River Mountains) by the South Pass. From there travelers went to Fort Bridger, where the California Trail branched off to the south. The trail then went northwest to Fort Hall on the Snake River, followed the river to Fort Boise, crossed the difficult Blue Mountains, and came down the Umatilla to the Columbia River and thence to the Willamette. In many places along its 2,000 miles the trail was well marked by wagon ruts; the heaviest traffic over the trail was from 1842 to the time of the Civil War.

Oregon Trail, The. Autobiographical narrative by Francis Parkman, originally published (1847) in The Knickerbocker Magazine and brought out as a book under the title The California and Oregon Trail (1849). It recounts the adventures of the author and his cousin, Quincy Adams Shaw, while traveling from Missouri to the Rockies. Parkman joined a party of Sioux Indians at one point in the expedition and from this experience gleaned a knowledge of native customs and character which he incorporated in his historical writings.

O'Reilly (ô'ri'li), Alexander. b. at Dublin, 1722; d. near Chinchilla, Murcia, Spain, March 23, 1794. Irish soldier. He served successively in the Spanish, Austrian, and French armies, reentered (1761) the Spanish army, commanded the forces which put down (1769) a revolt of the French in Louisiana (then lately ceded to Spain), and commanded (1774-75) an unsuccessful expedition against the Algerians. In 1786 he was disgraced and deprived of all commands for plotting against the government.

O'Reilly, Andrew. b. in Ireland, 1742; d. at Vienna, 1832. Irish soldier in the Austrian army under Maria Theresa and Joseph II.

O'Reilly, John Boyle. b. at Dowth Castle, County Meath, Ireland, June 28, 1844; d. at Hull, Mass., Aug. 10, 1890. Irish-American journalist and poet. A member of the Fenian Brotherhood, in 1863 he enlisted in the Tenth Hussars in Ireland for the purpose of spreading anti-British sentiments among the soldiers. He was sentenced to death on the charge of high treason in 1866. The sentence was commuted to 20 years' penal servitude, and he was sent out to the penal colony in Australia, where he arrived in 1868. He escaped to the U.S. in 1869, and in 1870 secured employment on the Boston Pilot, of which he became editor in chief in 1874. He published Songs from the Southern Seas (1874), Songs, Legends, and Ballads (1878), and The Statues in the Block (1881).

Orejones (ō.rē.jō.nās). Name (meaning in Spanish "eared" or "large-eared") given by the Spanish explorers and early colonists to various Indian tribes of the Western Hemisphere who had the custom of wearing large ear plugs that distended the lobes of the ears.

Orehovo-Zuevo (ō.rē.hō.və.zō.yi.vō). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Moscow oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 55 mi. E of Moscow; an important center of the Russian textile industry, 99,329 (1939).

Orel (ō.rē.l'; Russian, o.r.yōl'). Oblast (region) in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, centered ab. 225 mi. SW of the city of Moscow, on the borders of the Ukrainian and Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republics. It is mostly a region of low, rolling hills. Fine crops of wheat, barley, oats, and flax are raised; cattle raising is becoming more important. In the days of the Russian Empire, much of this area was included in the guberniya (government) of Orel. Capital, Orel; area, ab. 25,283 sq. mi. (1939), ab. 12,200 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 3,549,088 (1939).

Orel. City in the U.S.S.R., capital of the Orel oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 225 mi. S of Moscow, on the Oka River; agricultural machinery, flour-milling, meat-packing, shoe, and textile industries. It is an important commercial center, and a leading market for grain. In World War II Orel was the scene of several battles between the German and Russian armies; it finally fell to the Germans after a prolonged battle on Nov. 3, 1941, and was retaken by the Russians on Aug. 5, 1943. The city suffered severely, 110,537 (1939).

O'Rell (ō.rē.l), Max. Pseudonym of Blouet, Paul.

Orellana (ō.rā.l'yā.nā), Francisco de. b. at Trujillo, Spain, c1490; d. probably in Venezuela, c1546. Spanish soldier, first explorer of the Amazon. He was intimate with the Pizarros in his youth, went to Peru about 1535, and settled Guayaquil in 1537. In 1540-41 he served as a lieutenant with Gonzalo Pizarro's expedition to the Napo. Having been sent ahead with a brigantine and 50 soldiers to seek for provisions (probably in April, 1541), he arrived at the junction of the Napo and Marañon and, unable or more probably, unwilling to return, continued on down the latter river. In the course of this voyage the Indians told him of a tribe of female warriors, or Amazons, and he claimed to have encountered them near the mouth of the Trombetas, a tributary of the Amazon; from this story the main river derived its present name. Orellana reached the mouth of the Amazon late in 1541, went on to Trinidad, and thence to Spain. He received a grant to conquer the country discovered by him, and made an unsuccessful expedition to it in 1544.

Orellana (ō.rā.l'yā.nā), José María. b. 1872; d. in October, 1926. Guatemalan general and politician, president (1921-26) of Guatemala. He succeeded to the presidency on the overthrow of Carlos Herrera and died in office.

Orellana, River of. Name frequently given, in early books and maps, to the Amazon.

Orelli (ō.rē.l'), Johann Kaspar. b. at Zurich, Switzerland, Feb. 13, 1737; d. Jan. 6, 1849. Swiss classical philologist, noted for his editions of Horace, Cicero, and Tacitus.

Orem (ō.rēm). Town in N Utah, in Utah County; canning center for tomatoes and other vegetables. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled, 2,914 (1940), 3,351 (1950).

Orem (ō.rēm) or Oremus (ō.rēm.us). See Oresme, Nicole.

Ore Mountains (ōr). English name of the Erzgebirge.

Oren (ō.rēn). See Oresme, Nicole.

Orenburg (ō.rēn.bōrg; Russian, o.rin.bōrk'). Former guberniya (government) in SE Russia, bordering on Asia. It was bounded by Siberia, the former districts of Perm, Ufa, Samara, Ural'sk, and Turgai. The surface is partly mountainous (a continuation of the Ural's) and partly steppe. The area is now in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, divided between the Chkalov oblast (region) and the Bashkir Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic.

Orenburg. Former name of Chkalov.

Orense (ō.rēn.sā). Province in NW Spain, bounded by Pontevedra on the W, Lugo on the N, León and Zamora on the E, and Portugal on the S: part of the region of Galicia. The province is thinly settled. The surface is mountainous. Capital, Orense; area, 2,694 sq. mi.; pop. 445,068 (1951).

Orense. [Latin, Aquae Urentes.] City in NW Spain, the capital of the province of Orense, situated on the Miño River ab. 250 mi. NW of Madrid: linen, woolen, leather, and chocolate manufactures; agricultural trade; the warm springs of Las Burgas are in the vicinity. The cathedral, a 13th-century building, partly in the Romanesque, partly in the Gothic style, contains an image of Jesus (El Cristo Santo) which is celebrated throughout Galicia. 52,837 (1950).

Oresme (ō.rēm), Nicole. [Also: Orem, Oren, Horen, Oremus; Latinized, Nicolaus Oresmus.] b. near Caen, in Normandy, France, c1323; d. at Lisieux, in Normandy, July 11, 1382. French Roman Catholic prelate, one of the greatest mathematicians and economists of the Middle Ages, founder of French scientific terminology. He was Grand Maître of the Collège de Navarre, Paris (1356-61), and subsequently held several ecclesiastical positions: canon at Rouen (1362), canon at Paris (1363-64), dean of the chapter of Rouen (1364-77), bishop of Lisieux (1377-82). He served (c1360-77) as advisor to the Dauphin (who became Charles V in 1364) and was one of the scholars employed to translate ancient works into French. His chief work on economics is De Origine, natura, jure et mutationibus monetarum, the first comprehensive treatise on the theory of money; it contains his discovery (anticipated by others) of the principle known as "Gresham's Law." In his treatises on mathematics he prepared the way for the discovery of analytical geometry, anticipated fractional exponents, and adumbrated the theory of inertia by developing the medieval concept of impetus; he was the first to use symbols for fractional powers in proportions and to give graphical representations of functional relationships. His principal mathematical works are Tractatus de latitudinibus formarum (printed 1482), Tractatus proportionum (printed 1505), Algorithmus proportionum (printed 1685), Tractatus de uniformitate et difformitate extensionum (partly printed 1914). His chief astronomical works are De Commensurabilitate, which contains an attack on astrology, Traité de l'espere, a treatise on mathematical geography (printed 1508), Traité du ciel et du monde, a translation of Aristotle's De Caelo et Mundo to which Oresme added a commentary which proposed the diurnal rotation of the Earth, although otherwise he favored the Ptolemaic system (edited by Albert D. Menut and Alexander J. Denomy, C.S.B., Toronto, 1941-43). See also Essai sur la vie et les ouvrages de Nicole Oresme, by Francis Meunier (Paris, 1837) and Introduction to the History of Science, by George Sarton (vol. III, 1948).

Oresteia (ō.rēstē'ā). Dramatic trilogy by Aeschylus, founded on the history of the family of Agamemnon. It comprises the Agamemnon, Choephoros, and Eumenides.

Orestes (ō.rēs'tēz). Killed 476 A.D. Regent of the Western Roman Empire in the reign of his son Romulus Augustulus (475-476), whom he raised to the throne. He was sent by Attila to Rome, on a mission to Theodosius, Byzantine emperor.

Orestes. In Greek legend, the son of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra, and brother of Electra. He slew Clytemnestra and her lover Aegisthus, to avenge their murder of his father. Homer presents Orestes as the righteous, dutiful, and praiseworthy avenger of his father's death. The Greek dramatists, however, depict him as being pursued by the Erinyes for the crime of killing his mother. He fled before them till he came to Delphi, was tried by the Areopagus, and won a tied vote. Athena cast the deciding vote in his favor, and henceforth the Erinyes ceased to follow and torment him, and became known as the Eumenides.

Orestes. Play by Euripides, exhibited in 409 B.C.

O Resto é silêncio (ō.rē'stō ē.sē.lān.s'yō). Novel by the Brazilian Érico Veríssimo (b. 1905), which appeared in 1943 and was translated into English (The Rest Is Silence) in 1946.

Öresund (ö're.sùn). [Swedish, Öresund; English, the Sound.] Sea passage between Sweden and the island of Zealand in Denmark, connecting the Kattegat on the N with the Baltic Sea on the S. "Sound duties" on foreign vessels were levied here by Denmark until 1857. Length, ab. 70 mi.; its width in the narrowest part (between Helsingør, Denmark, and Helsingborg, Sweden) is 3 mi.

Oretani (or.e.tā'nī). In ancient geography, a people in S Spain, living in the Sierra Morena and neighboring regions. Their land, situated between Carthage and the interior of Spain, was the scene of the decisive battles of the second Punic War. Their capital was Oretum (today Calatrava).

Oreus (ör'ē.us). [Former name, Histiæa.] In ancient geography, a city on the NW coast of Euboea, Greece, situated opposite Thessaly.

Orfani (ör.fā'nē), Gulf of. See Strymonic Gulf.

Orfeo (ör.fā'ō). Dramatic pastoral by Politian, produced in 1483. It was one of the first pastorals written in Italian, the language of the country in which the dramatic action of such works was traditionally laid.

Orfeo ed Euridice (ör.fā'ō äd ä.ō.rē'dē.chä). [English title, Orpheus and Eurydice.] Opera in four acts by Christoph Willibald Gluck, with a libretto by Raniero Calzabigi, produced at Vienna on Oct. 5, 1762. In 1774 it was produced at Paris as Orphée et Euridice, where it was very successful.

Orfila (ör.fē.lä), Mathieu Joseph Bonaventure. b. at Mahon, Balearic Islands, April 24, 1787; d. at Paris, March 12, 1853. French physician and chemist, noted as a writer on toxicology and medical jurisprudence, and generally considered the founder of toxicology.

Orford (ör.ford). Civil parish and village in E England, in East Suffolk, situated on the river Or near the North Sea, ab. 16 mi. NE of Ipswich. It is a fishing village. 706 (1931).

Orford, Earl of. Title of Russell, Edward.

Orford, 1st Earl of. Title of Walpole, Sir Robert.

Orford, 4th Earl of. Title of Walpole, Horace (or Horatio).

Organic Act of the Philippine Islands (fil'ipēn). Official title of the Jones Act.

Organization for European Economic Coöperation (ü.ör.pē'än). [Called the OEEC; originally also called the Committee of Sixteen.] Body established in the summer of 1947 by the meetings at Paris in which 16 European nations considered a joint European implementation of the Marshall Plan. The organization is intended to make continuous assessments and reviews of European needs under the European Recovery Program and to devise measures of self-help and multilateral trade. Originally known as the Committee of Sixteen, it included also by 1950 a representative from Western Germany and a military government delegate from Trieste.

Organon (ör.gä.non). Logical treatises of Aristotle. The name was originally applied to the logical theory of demonstration, and then by the Peripatetics to the whole of logic, especially to the topics of Aristotle or the rules for probable reasoning, as being only an instrument or aid to philosophy, and not meriting the higher place of a part of philosophy claimed for it by the Stoics and most of the Academics.

Órganos (ör.gä.nōs), Sierra de los. See Sierra de los Órganos.

Órgãos (ör.gou'ns), Serra dos. [Also, Organ Mountains.] Group of mountains of the Brazilian coast range, in SE Brazil, at the head of the Bay of Rio de Janeiro. They attain the height of 7,000 ft., and are remarkable for their strange forms. One peak, called the Dedo de Deus ("Finger of God"), appears from the bay like a finger pointing upward.

Orgetorix (ör.jet'ō.riks). Helvetian conspirator shortly before the death of Caesar's war with the Helvetians in 58 B.C. According to Caesar's account, he planned to conquer Gaul with the Helvetians, but was detected by them plotting with other chiefs to seize control of the tribe. He escaped immediate trial, but committed suicide afterward.

Orgon (ör.gôh). Credulous dupe in Molière's Tartuffe. He has an imbecile infatuation for the hypocritical Tartuffe.

Oria (ör'yä). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Lecce, situated on the Salentina peninsula ab. 20 mi. SW of Brindisi. It has a cathedral and a 13th-century castle. Pop. of commune, 11,516 (1936); of town, 10,610 (1936).

Oriana (ö.ri.an'a). In the medieval romance Amadis de Gaul, the mistress of Amadis; daughter of Lisuarte, a legendary king of Britain. Queen Elizabeth is frequently called "the peerless Oriana" in the adulatory poems of her time.

Oriana. Principal character in John Fletcher's comedy The Wild-Goose Chase, and in George Farquhar's comedy The Inconstant, which is practically the same. She is betrothed to the evasive Mirabel (the "wild goose"), and finally brings him to reason and marries him.

Oriana. Character in Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher's play The Woman Hater: a teasing, tormenting brilliant woman.

Oriana. Ballad by Alfred Tennyson, published in 1830.

Oriana, The Triumphs of. Collection of madrigals in honor of Queen Elizabeth, compiled and published by Thomas Morley in 1601.

Oribe (ör.rē'bä), Manuel. b. c1800; d. at Montevideo, Uruguay, in November, 1857. Uruguayan general and politician, president (1835-38). He was prominent in the struggle for Uruguayan independence (1825 et seq.), was minister of war under José Fructuoso Rivera (1833-35), and succeeded him as president for four years, on March 1, 1835. In 1836 Rivera revolted against Oribe's Argentine-influenced regime; the red and white banners carried by opposing forces at the battle of Carpintería gave rise to the designation of Rivera's and Oribe's parties as Colorados and Blancos, respectively. Rivera eventually (October, 1838) took Montevideo, and deposed Oribe, who fled to Buenos Aires. Oribe then joined with the Argentine dictator Juan Manuel de Rosas in a scheme for uniting Uruguay with Buenos Aires. Rosas furnished him with troops, and from 1842 to 1851 he held possession of much of Uruguay and besieged Montevideo at intervals: this period is known as the Nine Years' Siege (Sitio de Nueve Años). Eventually Brazil and Entre Ríos interfered, and Oribe capitulated to Justo José Urquiza, leader of the Argentine revolutionists, in October, 1851. He led a revolt in September, 1855.

Orichovius (ö.ri.kö'vi.us). See Orzechowski, Stanislaw.

Oriel College (ö.ri.el). College of Oxford University. It was founded in 1326 by Adam de Brome (or Browne), an almoner of Edward II who dedicated it to Saint Mary the Virgin, whence it was originally called Saint Mary's. However, from its location on the site of a building known as La Oriole, it soon changed its name to Oriel. The existing buildings date for the most part from the early 17th century. However, on one side of the quadrangle there is a fine range of windows with medieval tracery.

Oriel of Ferrard (fer'ard), Baron. Title of Foster, John (1740-1828).

Orient (ö.ri.ent), the. Term used generally, in English, as an equivalent of the expression "Far East." In German usage the term includes all countries E of the Red Sea; the original Latin usage of the term Oriens was applied to all lands E and SE of the Mediterranean Sea.

Oriental (ö.ryen.täl'), Cordillera. See Cordillera Oriental.

Oriental Exclusion Acts. See under Chinese Exclusion Acts.

Oriente (ö.ryen.tä). [Former name, Santiago de Cuba.] Province in E Cuba. Capital, Santiago de Cuba; area, 14,132 sq. mi.; pop. 1,356,459 (1943).

Oriente. [Also: Eastern Region, La Región Oriental; official name, Provincias Orientales.] Region in E Ecuador: that part lying E of the Cordillera Real, comprising Napo-Pastaza and Santiago-Zamora provinces. The boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador was settled in 1942; a large part of the region formerly claimed by both nations was assigned to Peru.

Orión (ör'i.jen, -jen). [Latin, Orígenes (ö.rij'e.nēz); surname Adamantius, meaning "man of steel." b. at Alexandria, c185 A.D.; d. at Tyre, probably in 253. One of the Greek fathers of the church. He was educated at Alexandria, and was head of the celebrated catechetical school in that city from c211 until 231 or 232, when for obscure reasons, in part due probably to infringement on the prerogatives of the bishop of Alexandria, in part to Origen's own previous self-castration, in part to his holding certain suspiciously unorthodox beliefs, he was degraded by the synod from the condition of a presbyter to that of a layman. He afterward founded a school at Caesarea. He was imprisoned in the Decian persecution in 250. He was an extremely prolific author, and wrote on a great variety of subjects pertaining to theology. Among his works are a valuable recension of the Old Testament, entitled Hexapla, fragments of which have been preserved; and a defense of Christianity against the Epicurean philosopher Celsus.

Origenists (or'i-jen-ists). Followers of Origen of Alexandria; those who held or professed to hold the doctrines held by or attributed to Origen.

Original Chronicle of Scotland (skot'land). The. Rhymed chronicle by Andrew of Wyntoun, finished between 1420 and 1424. It begins with the angels, follows with Adam and Eve, and continues down to the author's time. Wyntoun wrote it in nine books in honor of the nine orders of angels.

Origines (ō-rī-j'nez). [Eng. trans., "Origins."] History of Italy by Cato, in seven books. The first Roman book of its kind, it includes ethnographic information as well as historical comments on all the Italian tribes.

Origin of Species, The. [Full title, On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, or the Preservation of Favoured Races in the Struggle for Life.] Work by Charles R. Darwin, developing his theory of evolution, published in 1859. It is now generally considered one of the most influential works ever published.

Orillia (ō-ril'i-ā, ō-ril'ya). Town in Ontario, Canada, at the N end of Lake Simcoe, ab. 70 mi. N of Toronto; machinery, food-processing, and woodworking industries; summer tourist trade. 12,110 (1951).

Orinoco (ō-rin-ō'kō). Northernmost of the three great rivers of South America. It rises in the Parima Mountains, flows NW, then N, and finally E through Venezuela, and empties by a delta opposite the island of Trinidad. The upper portion is in a forested mountain region; the middle course is bordered by llanos, and the delta is forested. Its branch the Cassiquiare connects it with the Rio Negro, and hence with the Amazon. The chief tributaries are the Guaviare, Meta, Apurē, and Caronī. Its mouth was discovered by Columbus in 1498, and it was first navigated by Diego de Ordaz in 1531. Length, ab. 1,500 mi. (to the headwaters of the Guaviare, ab. 1,800 mi.); navigable ab. 900 mi., to the rapids in the neighborhood of Atures, and above them for a long distance.

Orinoco (ō-rin-ō'kō). Llanos del. See under Llanos.

Orion (ō-rī'ŏn). In Greek mythology, a giant hunter. There are various legends about him. According to one, he was blinded, with the aid of Dionysus, by a father whose daughter he had ravished. Sightless, he waded through the sea into the east and regained his sight by opening his eyes to the rays of the rising sun. Later he was slain by Artemis either out of jealousy or, in some versions, accidentally. Another story states that he was killed by a scorpion. After his death he was changed to a constellation, which forever precedes the constellation Scorpio (the Scorpion).

Orion. Most brilliant constellation in the sky, situated on the celestial equator, between Taurus and Canis Major, and containing the first-magnitude stars Betelgeuse and Rigel. There are also five second-magnitude stars, three of which form what is called the belt or girdle of Orion. They are also popularly called Jacob's Staff, Our Lady's Wand, and the Yard-wand. The brightest gaseous nebula is in the middle of the sword of Orion.

Orion's Hound. The constellation Canis Major, interpreted as being the hound of the famous huge hunter of Greek mythology. The term is sometimes also applied to the dog star, Sirius.

Oriskany (ō-ris'ka-ni). Village in C New York, in Oneida County, on the Mohawk River ab. 7 mi. NW of Utica.

The village occupies the site of a former Indian community. Here on Aug. 6, 1777, the Americans under Nicholas Herkimer were defeated by the British and Indians. It had important manufactures of woolen goods during the 19th century. 1,346 (1950).

Orissa (ō-ris'ā). State of the Union of India, situated in the E part of the union, bordering on the Bay of Bengal. Much of the state is hilly, but the coastal lowlands (including the delta of the Mahanadi) are flat and intensively cultivated: rice, jute, millet, oilseeds, and sugar cane are the chief crops. Numerous hill tribes inhabit the upland areas. Iron mines in the Mayurbhanj area of N Orissa supply the iron and steel industry of Jamshedpur. It was formerly a Hindu kingdom; later was under Mogul and Mahratta rule; and was acquired by the British in 1803. In December, 1911, it was united with Bihar and Chota Nagpur in a lieutenant-governorship. It became a separate province in 1936 and a state of the Union of India in 1948. Capital, Bhubaneswar; area, 59,869 sq. mi.; pop. 14,644,293 (1951).

Oristano (ō-rēs-tā'nō). Town and commune in Italy, on the island of Sardinia, in the province of Cagliari, situated on the Tirso River near the coast, ab. 54 mi. NW of Cagliari; agricultural trade center; fisheries. It has remnants of medieval fortifications, and a cathedral of the 13th century (rebuilt in 1733). Roman and Phoenician remains are found in the vicinity. Pop. of commune, 14,662 (1936); of town, 9,454 (1936).

Oriya (ō-rē'ya). Language of the Indo-European family spoken by about 11 million people in India, mainly in the state of Orissa and adjoining areas. Inscriptions date from the 14th century A.D. It is written in a script derived from the standard Sanskrit alphabet.

Orizaba (ō-rēs-sā'bā). City in SE Mexico, in Veracruz state, ab. 64 mi. SW of Veracruz; textile and paper mills; brewery. 47,910 (1940).

Orizaba, Pico de. [Nahuatl, Citlaltépetl.] Volcanic peak in E central Mexico, ab. 16 mi. NW of Orizaba. It is the highest mountain in Mexico, and one of the highest summits in North America. 18,696 ft.

Orizzonte (ō-rēd.dzōn'tā). See Bloemen, Jan Frans van.

Orkan (ōr'kän), Władysław. [Pseudonym of Franciszek Smreczyński.] b. in Poreba Wielka, in the Tatra Mountains, Poland, 1876; d. 1930. Polish poet and novelist. He is important as the first authentic Tatra mountaineer (góral) to use the Tatra scene as literary material.

Orkhan (ōr-čhän'). d. 1359. Sultan or emir of the Turks (1326-59); son and successor of Osman I. He was a close ally of John VI, Byzantine emperor, and often supplied him with military aid. By this means he was able to bring the Turkish power across the Dardanelles and obtain for it a bridgehead in Europe. He also increased (1329-38) his possessions in western Asia Minor. The Janizaries are thought to have been instituted during his reign.

Orkney (ōrk'nī). County in N Scotland, consisting of the Orkney Islands. County seat, Kirkwall; area, ab. 376 sq. mi.; pop. 22,077 (1931).

Orkney, Earl of. Title of Hamilton, Lord George.

Orkney and Shetland (shet'land). Former county of Scotland, divided in 1889.

Orkney Islands. [Ancient name, Orcaades.] Group of islands N of the mainland of Scotland, from which they are separated by Pentland Firth. They form the Scottish county of Orkney, and are about 90 in number, 29 being inhabited. The surface of the islands is generally low and rocky with many lochs and marshes. Lobster and herring fishing are important, Stromness being the principal center of the fisheries. Oats, barley, and root crops are raised, and some sheep and cattle are reared. The largest island of the group is Mainland (or Pomona), on which is the cathedral city and county seat of Kirkwall. The ancient inhabitants, the Picts, were Christianized by Irish missionaries. The islands were acquired by the Northmen in the 8th and 9th centuries, and ruled by jarls. In 1231 they passed to the Earls of Angus, and in 1468 to the Scottish crown. Denmark renounced its claims of sovereignty in 1590. Area, 376 sq. mi.; pop. 21,258 (1951).

Orlan (ōr-län), Pierre Mac. See Mac Orlan, Pierre.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pīne; not, nôte, möve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ǵ, d or j; ʃ, s or sh; ʦ, t or ch;

Orlando (ôr.lan'dô). City in C Florida, county seat of Orange County, NE of Tampa; processing center and shipping point for winter vegetables and citrus fruits. It is also a vacation resort in the lake region of C Florida; there are ab. 30 lakes within the city limits. 52,367 (1950).

Orlando. In Shakespeare's comedy As You Like It, the younger brother of Oliver, and lover of Rosalind.

Orlando (ôr.lân'dô). Italian form (also a Portuguese form) of Roland.

Orlando, Vittorio Emanuele. b. at Palermo, Italy, May 19, 1860; d. at Rome, Dec. 1, 1952. Italian statesman, with Wilson, Lloyd George, and Clemenceau, one of the Big Four of the Versailles Peace Conference (1919). He served as deputy (1897 et seq.), minister of education (1903-05), minister of justice (1907-09, 1914-16), and minister of state (1916-17) before being named (Oct. 29, 1917) prime minister. As leading Italian delegate (1919-20) to the Paris peace conference, he came into conflict with Woodrow Wilson over fulfillment of the terms of the Treaty of London (1915), which had separated Italy from the Central Powers. (The Treaty of London was one of the more notable "secret treaties" of modern times. It promised considerable territorial gains to Italy, particularly from the Austro-Hungarian territories NE of Italy and N of the Adriatic. The treaty paid little or no heed to the ethnic patterns of the territories involved, which was what chiefly troubled Wilson.) Wilson refused to give ground on what he considered a violation of the principles of the Fourteen Points, and Orlando withdrew from the Big Four conferences. With the advent of Fascism, he retired from political life. He was appointed senator in 1948.

Orlando: A Biography (ôr.lân'dô). Novel by Virginia Woolf, published in 1928. It is a study (in fantasy) of English life and character from the Elizabethan period down to the 20th century, in which the central figure is both male and female.

Orlando Furioso (ôr.lân'dô fô.ryô'sô). [Eng. trans., "Orlando the Mad."] Metrical romance by Lodovico Ariosto, 40 cantos of which were published in 1515, to which he added five more before his death in 1533. Sir John Harrington's English translation was published in 1591. It is a continuation of Matteo Maria Boiardo's Orlando Innamorato, but it begins at a point before the end of Boiardo's work. Orlando's madness is occasioned by the falseness of Angelica.

Orlando Furioso, The History of. Play by Robert Greene, produced probably c.1588. It was revived in 1592 and printed in 1594.

Orlando Innamorato (ôr.lân'dô fô.ryô'sô). [Eng. trans., "Orlando the Enamored."] Metrical romance by Matteo Maria Boiardo, on the love of Orlando (Roland) for Angelica. The hero, however, is really Ruggiero. Boiardo left it unfinished in 1494, and Lodovico Ariosto wrote his Orlando Furioso as its sequel. Boiardo's poem was re-modeled and somewhat denatured by Francesco Berni.

Orlau (ôr'lou). German name of Orlová.

Orléanais (ôr.lâ.â.ne). Region and former government of France. It was bounded by Île-de-France on the N, Champagne and Burgundy on the E, Nivernais on the SE, Berry on the S, and Touraine on the W. It comprised, besides Orléanais proper, Gâtinais, Beauce, and Sologne. It corresponded mainly to the departments of Loiret, Loir-et-Cher, Eure-et-Loir, and parts of Seine-et-Oise, Indre-et-Loire, Nièvre, Cher, and Sarthe. The capital was Orléans.

Orléans (ôr.lân'z, ôr'lân'z; French, ôr.lâ.ân). [Ancient names, Canabum, Aurelianum.] City in C France, the capital of the department of Loiret, situated at the northernmost bend of the Loire River, SW of Paris. It is a river port (Canal d'Orléans), a commercial center for trade in wool, grain, wine, and timber, and has a number of industries, among which the metal, machine, woolen, garment, brewing, and foodstuff (vinegar, biscuits, candy) industries are outstanding. Orléans has a historical museum, an art museum, the Musée Fourché (connected with the art museum), and the Musée Jeanne d'Arc. The Cathedral of Saint Croix, begun in 1287, burned down by the Huguenots in 1568, and rebuilt by Henry IV after 1601, was actually completed in 1829. The flamboyant Gothic style prevails, except for the 18th-century façade by Gabriel. Orléans became (613) the capital of Neustria; it later belonged (1344 et seq.) to the House of Orléans. In 1429 it was besieged by the English and delivered by Joan of Arc (sometimes called "the Maid of Orléans"); the anniversary (April 29) of this occasion is celebrated as the Fête Nationale de la Pucelle d'Orléans. The city was the headquarters of the Protestants in the religious wars and marked the southernmost advance of the Prussians in 1871, in the Franco-Prussian War. 70,240 (1946).

Orléans (dôr.lâ.ân), Anne Marie Louise d'. See Montpensier, Duchesse de (1627-93).

Orléans, Antoine Marie Philippe Louis d'. See Montpensier, Duc de.

Orléans, Charles d'. [Title, Duc d'Orléans.] b. May 26, 1391; d. at Amboise, Jan. 4, 1465. French poet; son of Louis (1371-1407), Duc d'Orléans, and Valentina, daughter of Gian Galeazzo Visconti of Milan. He was taken prisoner by the English at Agincourt in 1415, kept prisoner in England, and ransomed in 1440. He kept court at Blois for the remainder of his life, gathering about him many of the literary figures of the day, including François Villon and Georges Chastelain. His own poetry, much of which was written during his captivity in England, and consisting of rondels on spring, love, and similar subjects in the main, is considered the best of its kind. He was married to Isabella, widow of Richard II of England, in 1406; to Bonne, daughter of the Count of Armagnac, in 1410; and to Mary of Cleves, daughter of Philip the Good of Burgundy, in 1440. Louis XII of France was the child of this last marriage.

Orléans, Duchesse d'. Title of Henrietta Anne.

Orléans, Ferdinand Philippe Louis Charles Henri, Duc d'. b. at Palermo, Sept. 3, 1810; d. near Paris, July 13, 1842. Eldest son of Louis Philippe, King of the French. He served in the campaigns in Algeria (1835-40).

Orléans, François Ferdinand Philippe Louis Marie d'. See Joinville, Prince de.

Orléans, Hélène Louise Elisabeth, Duchesse d'. b. at Ludwigslust, Mecklenburg, 1814; d. at Richmond, England, 1858. Princess of Mecklenburg; wife of Ferdinand Philippe Louis Charles Henri, Duc d'Orléans.

Orléans, Henri Philippe Marie, Prince d'. b. at Ham, near Richmond, England, Oct. 15, 1867; d. at Saigon, French Indo-China, Aug. 9, 1901. French explorer, a member of the house of Bourbon-Orléans; eldest son of Robert Philippe d'Orléans, Duc de Chartres (1840-1910). In an expedition (1895-96) in Annam, he found the source of the Irrawaddy River. He also took part in explorations in Central Asia (1889-90), Madagascar (1892), Ethiopia (1897), and Annam (1901).

Orléans, Henri Robert Ferdinand Marie Louis Philippe d'. See Paris, Comte de.

Orléans (ôr.lân'z, ôr'lân'z; French, ôr.lâ.ân). House of. In French history, at various times since the 14th century, a younger branch of the reigning family, holding the duchy of Orléans as an appanage; particularly the family of the younger brother of Louis XIV, Philip, whose descendants and adherents have been called Orléanists or the House of Bourbon-Orléans. The earlier House of Valois-Orléans (1392-1515) lapsed when Louis XII, King of France, died leaving no sons.

Orléans (ôr'lân'z), Isle of. [Also: Orleans Island; French, Île d'Orléans (dôr.lâ.ân).] Island in the St. Lawrence River, NE of the city of Quebec, Canada. Length, ab. 20 mi.; area, ab. 72 sq. mi.; pop. 4,349 (1951).

Orléans (dôr.lâ.ân), Jean Baptiste Gaston, Duc d'. b. at Fontainebleau, France, April 25, 1608; d. at Blois, France, Feb. 2, 1660. French courtier; younger son of Henry IV and Marie de Médicis. He is noted chiefly for his intrigues against Richelieu and Mazarin in the reigns of Louis XIII and Louis XIV. He took part in the Fronde (1648 et seq.) against the court party. He was created duke of Orléans in 1627. By his first wife, Marie de Bourbon, heiress of the Duc de Montpensier, he was the father of La Grande Mademoiselle, Anne Marie, Duchesse de Montpensier.

Orléans, Louis Charles Philippe Raphaël, Prince d'. See Nemours, Duc de.

Orléans, Louis, Duc d'. b. March 13, 1372; killed at Paris, Nov. 23, 1407. French statesman; younger brother of Charles VI. He was created duke of Orléans in 1392. In the same year his brother became deranged, and he assumed the regency in opposition to Philip, Duke of Burgundy. He was assassinated by Jean Sans Peur, Duke of Burgundy, in 1407, and his death was the signal for the civil war between the Burgundians and Armagnacs, supporters of Orléans. He married (1389) Valentina Visconti, daughter of the Duke of Milan, by whom he was father of Charles d'Orléans. He formed liaisons with several ladies, among them reportedly his sister-in-law Queen Isabella of Bavaria; among his illegitimate children was Jean Dunois, noted as one of Joan of Arc's lieutenants and known in history as the Bastard of Orléans.

Orléans, Louis D'. See Dorléans or D'Orléans, Louis.
Orléans, Louis Philippe Albert d'. See Paris, Comte de.

Orléans, Louis Philippe Joseph, Duc d'. [Called Philippe Égalité.] b. at St.-Cloud, France, April 13, 1747; guillotined at Paris, Nov. 6, 1793. French politician; great-grandson of Philippe d'Orléans (1674-1723). He became extremely rich through marriage and lived the part of an irresponsible libertine, thus irritating the queen, Marie Antoinette. His adoption of liberal views also brought him the displeasure of Louis XVI, prevented his advancement in the army or navy, and resulted in his occasional banishment from court. He became a leading popular candidate for the post of constitutional monarch even before 1789. He was a member of the Constituent Assembly (1789-91), and was a Montagnard deputy to the Convention (1792-93). Suspected by both the royal party and the republicans, he found his position more difficult as the Revolution progressed. He renounced his title, and voted for the death of the king. His son, the Duke of Chartres, deserted (1793) to the Austrians with Dumouriez, and Philippe Égalité was immediately arrested as a Bourbon. He was executed on the accession of the Jacobins to power in the Convention.

Orléans, Louis Philippe Marie Ferdinand Gaston d'. See Eu, Louis Philippe Marie Ferdinand Gaston d'Orléans, Comte d'.
Orléans (ôr.lânz', ôr.l'ânz'), Maid of. See Joan of Arc.

Orléans (dôr.lâ.ân), Philippe, Duc d'. b. at St. Germain en Laye, France, Sept. 21, 1643; d. at St. Cloud, France, June 9, 1701. Younger brother of Louis XIV, known generally as "Monsieur." He became duke of Orléans in 1660, and was the founder of the House of Bourbon-Orléans.

Orléans, Philippe, Duc d'. b. at St.-Cloud, France, Aug. 2, 1674; d. at Paris, Dec. 23, 1723. Son of Philippe d'Orléans (1640-1701). He distinguished himself as a general in the war against England (1692-97) and in the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-06). He was regent of France (1715-23), during which period he permitted John Law to expand his disastrous Mississippi Bubble, and was prime minister in 1723.

Orléans, Philippe, Duc d'. [Full name, Louis Philippe Robert, Duc d'Orléans.] b. at Twickenham, England, Feb. 6, 1839; d. at Palermo, Italy, March 23, 1926. French royalist pretender (1894-1926), head of the house of Bourbon-Orléans; son of Louis Philippe Albert, Comte de Paris. Exiled from France under the law of 1886, he settled in England. He returned (1890) in an effort to enlist in the army, was arrested, and briefly imprisoned. He was an anti-Dreyfusard during the disturbances at the turn of the century, but failed to obtain any support. He was not allowed to serve in the Allied armies during World War I. He was noted as an explorer and a scientist.

Orléansville (ôr.lâ.ân.vêl'). Town in Algiers department, Algeria, in NW Africa, on the left bank of the Châfîf River, midway between Algiers and Oran. Cereals and cotton are grown by means of irrigation. The climate is not especially healthy for European settlers. 12,455 (1948).

Orlik (ôr'lik), Emil. b. at Prague, July 21, 1870; d. 1932. Czech painter, etcher, and lithographer. His travels included England, Japan, Vienna, Egypt, China, Siberia, Korea, and North America. He taught at Berlin from 1905 to his death, and made his extensive trips in 1911 and 1924. Among his works are Still Life, The Model, The Barber at Singapore; many lithographs and etchings, including Head, In Egypt, Trip to Japan, Spanish Studies,

One Hundred Heads, Portrait of G. Hauptmann, Bach, Beethoven, Michelangelo, Schopenhauer, and R. Strauss; and illustrations for many books.

Orlov (ôr'lov'), Aleksey. b. 1737; d. 1808. Russian admiral; brother of Grigory Orlov. He took part in the conspiracy which raised Catherine II to the throne, and strangled the czar Peter III with his own hands (1762). He gained the naval victory of Çesme over the Turks in 1770, and later was in charge of a militia district during the Napoleonic War.

Orlov, Prince Aleksey. b. 1787; d. at St. Petersburg, May 21, 1862. Russian general and diplomat. He negotiated the peace of Adrianople in 1829 and that of Unkjar-Skelessi in 1833, and represented Russia at the Congress of Paris in 1856 following the Crimean War.

Orlov, Count Grigory. b. Oct. 17, 1734; d. at Moscow, April 24, 1783. Russian general and politician; brother of Alexey Orlov (1737-1838). He served in the Seven Years' War, and participated in the conspiracy which raised Catherine II to the throne in 1762. He afterward became Catherine's paramour, but was superseded by others. He developed a plan for easing the condition of the serfs, but it was never adopted.

Orlová (ôr'lov.á). [German, Orlau.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ostrava, in NE Moravia-Silesia, situated between Ostrava and Karviná, near the Polish border. It is in a coal-mining region. 20,201 (1947).

Orly (ôr'le). Small community near Paris; site of an international airport.

Orm (ôr'm). See under Ormulum.

Ormandy (ôr'mân.dî), Eugène. b. at Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 13, 1899—American orchestra conductor. He was conductor (1931 et seq.) of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, conductor and director (with Leopold Stokowski) of the Philadelphia Orchestra from 1936 to 1941, and since 1941 without Stokowski, and director of the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra (1948 et seq.).

Ormazd (ôr'mâzd'). See Ahura Mazda.

Orme (ôr'm). Philibert de l'. See Delorme or de l'Orme, Philibert.

Orme (ôr'm). Robert. b. at Anjengo, Travancore, India, in June, 1728; d. at Great Ealing, near London, Jan. 13, 1801. English historian of India. He was intimately associated with Robert Clive, succeeded George Pigot as governor of Madras, and was commissary general from 1757 to 1759. In 1759 he returned to London, and between 1763 and 1778 published a three-volume History of the Military Transactions of the British Nation in Indian from 1745.

Ormerod (ôr'm'rod), Mrs. Sarah. Old widow, in Lonesome-Like (1911), a one-act play of Lancashire life by Harold Brighouse.

Ormes Head (ôr'mz', Great and Little). Two promontories in N Wales, in Caernarvonshire, projecting into the Irish Sea near Llandudno. Great Ormes Head is on the E side of Beaumaris Bay, ab. 2 mi. NW of Llandudno. Little Ormes Head is ab. 2 mi. E of Llandudno.

Ormesson (ôr'me.sôn), Vladimir d'. b. at St. Petersburg, Aug. 2, 1888—French journalist, a leading commentator on foreign affairs in the French press and French ambassador (1940, 1945 et seq.) to the Vatican. Appointed to the Vatican embassy in 1940, he was withdrawn by the Vichy government, which later (1943) condemned him in absentia to death. He went into hiding (1942) in the monastery of La Grande Chartreuse in the Alps. He was named (1945) French ambassador to Argentina.

Ormizd IV (of Persia) (ôr'mîzd'). [Also, Hormizdas, Hormizd, Hormuz.] Killed c591. King of Persia; son of Khosru I, whom he succeeded in 579.

Ormoc (ôr'mók'). Chartered city (a political unit including surrounding countryside and numerous villages) and town in W Leyte, Philippine Islands: seaport. Pop. of city, 72,733 (1948); of town, 7,660 (1948).

Ormond (ôr'mond'). City in NE Florida, N of Daytona Beach: resort. 3,418 (1950).

Ormonde (ôr'mond'). Former name of the E part of Munster province: now County Tipperary, Ireland.

Ormonde, 2nd Earl of. [Title of James Butler; called "The Noble Earl."] b. at Kilkenny, Ireland, c1331; d. there, 1382. English viceroy (three times) of Ireland; a descendant of Edward I, and favorite of Edward III. He was appointed viceroy of Ireland as lord justice (1359 and 1360); as commander under the Duke of Clarence, his successor, he served with distinction in the Irish War (1361-62).

Ormonde, 4th Earl of. [Title of James Butler; called "the White Earl."] d. at Atherdee, Ireland, 1452. English viceroy of Ireland (1440). After serving with Henry V in the French wars, he was appointed lord lieutenant of Ireland in 1420, and again in 1443. On an accusation of high treason (1447) by John Talbot he was dismissed by the king (1448).

Ormonde, 5th Earl of. [Title of James Butler; additional title, Earl of Wiltshire.] b. 1420; beheaded at Newcastle, England, 1461. English soldier, a leader of the Lancastrians in the War of the Roses; son of the 4th Earl of Ormonde. He was created Earl of Wiltshire in 1449, and served as lord deputy (1450-51) and lord lieutenant (1453-55) of Ireland, and lord high treasurer of England (1455, 1458). He fought for Henry VI, at St. Albans (1455) and at Wakefield (1463), where he commanded the wing of the army that surrounded and slew the Duke of York; after the battles at Mortimer's Cross and Towton (1461), he was captured and beheaded.

Ormonde, 6th Earl of. [Title of John Butler; originally known as Sir John de Ormonde.] d. at Jerusalem, 1478. English knight; brother of the 5th Earl of Ormonde. He served as ambassador to nearly every European court. Edward IV called him "... the finest gentleman in Christendom." He died during a pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Ormonde, 8th Earl of. See Ossory, 1st Earl of.

Ormonde, 9th Earl of. [Title of James Butler; additional title, Viscount Thurles.] b. c.1490; d. of poison at London, 1546. English nobleman, suspected of hostility to the government; son of Sir Piers (or Pierce) Butler, 1st Earl of Ossory. He was created Viscount in 1535, restored as 9th Earl in 1541, and married Lady Joan Fitzgerald, daughter and heiress of James Fitzgerald, 11th Earl of Desmond. He was poisoned while at supper at Ely House.

Ormonde, 10th Earl of. [Title of Thomas Butler; called "the Black Earl."] b. 1532; d. 1614. English statesman and soldier who put down several Irish insurrections; son of the 9th Earl of Ormonde.

Ormonde, 12th Earl and 1st Duke of. [Title of James Butler.] b. at Clerkenwell, London, Oct. 19, 1610; d. at Kingston Hall, Dorsetshire, England, July 21, 1688. English nobleman. He became 12th Earl of Ormonde in 1632. He was the friend and confidential adviser of the Earl of Strafford, was appointed lieutenant general of the army in Ireland in 1641, defeated the Irish rebels at Kilsalghen, Kilrush, and Ross, and became lord lieutenant of Ireland in 1644. After the execution of Charles I, he attached himself to the cause of Charles II, whom he accompanied into exile. At the Restoration he was created 1st Duke of Ormonde and lord high steward of England. He was restored in 1662 to the lord lieutenancy of Ireland, a post which he retained, with an interruption of seven years, until 1685.

Ormonde, 2nd Duke of. [Title of James Butler.] b. in Dublin Castle, April 29, 1665; d. Nov. 16, 1745. Irish statesman. He was the son of Thomas Butler, Earl of Ossory, and became Duke of Ormonde on the death of his grandfather, the 12th Earl and 1st Duke of Ormonde (1610-88). He espoused the cause of William of Orange in the same year, and commanded the Life Guards at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690. In 1712 he succeeded John Churchill, 1st Duke of Marlborough, in the conduct of the campaign in Flanders. In accordance with secret instructions from the ministry, he declined to cooperate with the Allies against the French, on which account he was impeached by the Whigs in 1715. He fled to France, was attainted, and in 1719 commanded an expedition fitted out by Spain against England in behalf of the Pretender; the expedition was dispersed by a storm.

Ormond; or, The Secret Witness (ôr'mond). Romance by Charles Brockden Brown, published in 1799.

Ormsby-Gore (ôr'mz'bi'gôr'), William George Arthur [title, 4th Baron Harlech.] b. April 11, 1885—English colonial administrator. He served (1910-38) as a member of Parliament, and was assistant secretary (1917-18) in the war cabinet, undersecretary of state (1922-24, 1924-29), and secretary of state (1936-38) for colonies.

Ormskirk (ôr'mz'kîrk). Urban district and market town in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 12 mi. NE of Liverpool, ab. 206 mi. NW of London by rail. 20,554 (1951).

Ormulum (ôr'mûlum). [Also, Ormulum.] Series of metrical homilies on the New Testament, with paraphrases, composed by Orm (Ormin or Ormn) in the first part of the 13th century. Its title derives from his name. He was an Augustinian canon, and it is assumed that he lived in Lincolnshire or Nottinghamshire, but there are arguments in favor of Ormskirk in Lancashire. Orm had a phonetic system of his own, distinguishing the short vowels by doubling the following consonant. The Ormulum was first edited from the manuscript by Robert Meadows White in 1852.

Ormus (ôr'môz') or Ormuz (-môz'). See Hormuz.

Ormuzd (ôr'muzd'). See Ahura Mazda.

Orne (ôr'n). Department in NW France, in Normandy, bounded by Calvados on the N, Eure on the NE, Eure-et-Loir on the E, Sarthe and Mayenne on the S, and Manche on the W. It has notable Celtic, Roman, and medieval monuments, many of which suffered severe damage during the Allied invasion in the summer of 1944 (damage was particularly heavy around Argentan). The department has excellent pasture lands and a well-developed agricultural industry. Poultry raising and the manufacture of apple cider are specialties. There are stone quarries and various industries. Capital, Alençon; area, 2,371 sq. mi.; pop. 273,181 (1946).

Orne River. River in N France which flows into the English Channel ab. 10 mi. NE of Caen. Length, ab. 95 mi.

OrNSTein (ôr'n'stîn), Leo. b. at Kremenchug, Russia, Dec. 11, 1895—. American pianist and composer, director of the OrNSTein School of Music at Philadelphia. He has been a soloist with several major American orchestras. Among his compositions are the orchestral works The Fog and Nocturne and Dance of the Fates. He has also composed chamber music, piano and choral selections, and songs.

Oro (ôr'ô), El. See El Oro.

Orochen (ôr'ô'kên') or Orochi (-kê'). See under Tungus.

Orohena (ôr'ô'hă'nă), Mount. See under Tahiti.

Orolaunum (ôr'ô'lă'num). Latin name of Arlon.

Oromo (ôr'mô). See Galla.

Oronn (ôr'ôn). Subgroup of the Semi-Bantu-speaking Ibibio people of W Africa, inhabiting SE Nigeria, S of Calabar. Their population is estimated at more than 50,000 (by P. A. Talbot, The Peoples of Southern Nigeria, 1926). This estimate includes the related Okkobo.

Orono (ôr'ôn'ô). Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in C Maine, in Penobscot County; manufactures of pulp, paper, wood, and canvas products. It is the seat of the University of Maine. Pop. of town, 7,504 (1950); of village, 3,634 (1950).

Oronsay (ôr'ôn.să, -ză). Small island in W Scotland, in Argyllshire. It lies immediately S of the island of Colonsay, ab. 8 mi. W of Jura. Length, ab. 3 mi.; greatest width, ab. 2 mi.

Oronte (ôr'ôn'tē). Fop in Molière's Le Misanthrope. He has written a sonnet in a quarter of an hour, and wants the hero, Alceste, to praise it.

Orontes (ôr'ôn'tēz). Ancient name of the Alwand.

Oroonoko (ôr'ôn'ô'kô). Tragedy by Thomas Southerne, based on Aphra Behn's novel, and first acted in 1696. The phrase "Fitty's akin to love," which is found in this play, has passed into a proverb.

Oroonoko, or the Royal Slave. Novel by Aphra Behn, published c.1658. It is based on facts which became known to her while residing in Surinam, of which her father was governor.

Jropeza (ôr'ô.pă'să). Former name of Cochabamba, city.

Jropo (ôr'ô'pô). Modern name of the Asopus, in Boeotia, Greece.

Jropus (ôr'ô'pus). In ancient geography, a seaport in Attica, Greece, bordering on Boeotia, situated on the Evripos, ab. 23 mi. N of Athens. Near it was the oracle of Amphiaraus, the Amphiarcon.

Oroquieta (ō.rō.kyā'tā). Capital and major port of Misamis Occidental province, Mindanao, Philippine Islands. It is situated on the W side of Iligan Bay, in N Mindanao. 7,233 (1948).

Oroszáza (ō'rōsh.hā'zō). Town in SE Hungary, between Hódmezővásárhely and Békéscsaba, ab. 30 mi. NE of Szeged. It is the marketing center of one of the most fertile agricultural districts of Hungary, the plain between the Tisza and Körös rivers, and has small industries. 31,371 (1948).

Orotava (ō.rō.tā'bā). See La Orotava.

O'Rourke (ō'rōrk'). Sir Brian-na-Murtha. Executed 1591. Irish chieftain in Galway, Sligo, in frequent collision with his own kinsmen and with English authorities. O'Rourke gave shelter and even arms to many of the Spaniards wrecked on the west coast of Ireland during the flight of the Armada. He sought to use these men, numbering over 1,000, to fight the English, but was forced to flee from his country in November, 1589. When he reached Scotland, seeking aid from James VI (later James I of England), he was turned over to the English.

Oroville (ō'rō.vil). City in N California, county seat of Butte County, in the Sierra foothills, N of San Francisco; processing and canning center for olives and fruits. It was (1849) an important gold town. 5,387 (1950).

Oroya (ō.rō'yā). See La Oroya.

Orozco (ō.rōskō), José Clemente. b. at Zapotlán, Jalisco, Mexico, Nov. 23, 1883; d. Sept. 7, 1949. Mexican painter, generally conceded to have been one of the few modern masters of fresco painting (most of his murals are examples of this difficult technique). In addition to his murals he executed other paintings and also excelled as a lithographer. Aspects of the Mexican Revolution gave him many of his subjects, and others of his compositions are in the nature of allegories. Major examples of his work are to be seen on the walls of the New School for Social Research at New York, of the Baker Library at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., and of Frary Hall, Pomona College, Claremont, Calif. In Mexico, his work is found on the walls of the Supreme Court Building, the National Preparatory School, the Palace of Fine Arts, and the chapel of Jesús Hospital, all at Mexico City; in the university and the state capital building at Guadalajara; in the Orizaba Industrial School, in the library at Jiquilpan, in Michoacán, and other public sites.

Orozco y Berra (ō.rōskō ē ber'ra), Manuel. b. at Mexico City, June 8, 1816; d. there, Jan. 27, 1881. Mexican publicist and author. His works include Geografía de las lenguas y carta etnográfica de México (1864) and various works on Mexican history and geography. He edited the Mexican supplement of the Diccionario universal de historia y geografía.

Orpen (ōr'pen), Sir William. b. at Dublin, Nov. 27, 1878; d. at London, Sept. 29, 1931. Irish portrait, genre, and landscape painter. He was associated (c1900) with Augustus John and Ambrose McEvoy in the New English Art Club, a protest against the conservatism of the Royal Academy. However, despite this youthful revolt, he became a member of the Royal Academy in 1920. Among his principal works are Honour to Manet (Manchester), The Red Scarf (Leeds), and The Mirror (Tate Gallery). His publications include An Onlooker in France (1921) and Tragedy of Old Ireland and Myself (1924).

Orphan, or the Unhappy Marriage, The. Tragedy by Thomas Otway, produced in 1680.

Orphée aux Enfers (ōr.fā ā.zā.fēr). [English title, Orpheus in the Underworld.] Opéra bouffe in two acts by Jacques Offenbach, with a libretto by Henri Meilhac and Ludovic Halévy, produced at Paris in 1858.

Orpheus (ōr'fē.us, -fūs). In Greek legend, the son of Apollo, or of a Thracian river god and one of the Muses, and husband of Eurydice. He had the power of charming all animate and inanimate objects with the music of his lyre. When Eurydice died, he descended into Hades to bring her back to life, and, by his compelling music, won permission to conduct her back to earth, but on condition that he never look back to see if she were following until they had passed out of the gates. Orpheus agreed, but his yearning was so great that just as they reached the light he glanced back. He caught a glimpse of Eurydice, but because of the broken taboo she immediately vanished and was lost to him forever. Later he met his death at the hands of infuriated Thracian maenads, either because he was faithful to Eurydice and repulsed them, or at the command of Zeus, because he had worshipped Apollo over Zeus.

Orpheus and Eurydice (ō.rīd'isē). English title of Orfeo ed Euridice.

Orpheus Britannicus (brītan'ī.kus). First collection of the vocal works of Henry Purcell, published (1698-1721) by Henry Playford.

Orpheus Caledonius (kal.ē.dō'n.i.us). First compilation of Scottish vocal music, edited (1725) by William Thomson.

Orpheus, Eurydice, and Hermes (ō.rīd'isē; hēr'mēz). Replica of an Attic high relief of the school of Phidias, in the Museo Nazionale, Naples. The group is shown just at the moment when Orpheus, having looked back, must lose his wife forever.

Orpheus in the Underworld. English title of Orphée aux Enfers.

Orpington (ōr'ping.ton). Urban district in SE England, in Kent, ab. 3 mi. SW of Chislehurst, ab. 14 mi. SE of Charing Cross Station, London. Orpington is on the fringe of Greater London, and is included in the London "Green Belt Scheme." 63,344 (1951).

Orr (ōr), Hugh. b. at Lochwinnoch, Renfrewshire, Scotland, Jan. 2, 1715; d. Dec. 6, 1798. American inventor and Revolutionary patriot. He settled (c1741) at East Bridgewater, Mass., where he built what is alleged to have been the first triphammer made in America. He made muskets and ordnance for the Revolutionary cause, invented (1753) a machine for cleaning flaxseed, and, after the close of the Revolution, pioneered in the introduction of textile machinery in America.

Orr, James Lawrence. b. at Craytonville, S.C., May 12, 1822; d. at St. Petersburg, Russia, May 5, 1873. American politician and diplomat. He served (1844-48) in the South Carolina legislature and in 1848 was elected to Congress, in which he served until 1859. A moderate, he was opposed to immediate secession and supported Stephen A. Douglas at the Democratic convention in 1860. His political position made him popular in the North and he was elected (1857) speaker of the House of Representatives. Although he maintained his Unionist views at the South Carolina state convention in April, 1860, he eventually supported secession and was elected (December, 1861) Confederate States senator. In 1864, after having been involved in disputes with Jefferson Davis, he advocated a negotiated peace. After the war he supported President Johnson's Reconstruction program and was elected governor of South Carolina. He lost the confidence of his followers in 1868 and joined the Radical wing. In 1872, he was appointed U.S. minister to Russia, but he died after serving a few months.

Orr, John Boyd. [Title, 1st Baron Boyd Orr.] b. at Kilmaurs, Ayrshire, Scotland, Sept. 23, 1880—. British agricultural and nutritional scientist. In 1914 he took the post of director of animal nutrition research at the University of Aberdeen, and in that same year, following the outbreak of World War I, he entered the army medical corps, and undertook research in the field of military dietetics. He was coauthor of Energy Expenditure of Infantry Recruits in Training, published in 1919, the year in which he returned to the University of Aberdeen as director of the Rowett Institute, which he made a center of research and information on nutrition for the British Empire. An experimental demonstration (1925) under his direction of the importance of milk in children's diets, attracted wide attention. In 1929 he founded the Imperial Bureau of Animal Nutrition. Following surveys which he conducted in problems of animal and human nutrition in several of the British dominions and colonies, he concentrated on the human problem, and in 1936 published Food, Health, and Income, which revealed that a large part of the population of Great Britain subsisted on an inadequate diet simply because of inadequate income. After the outbreak of World War II, the system of food rationing set up in Great Britain followed Orr's recommendations. At Quebec in October, 1945, he was unanimously chosen director-general of the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) of the United Nations for a two-year term. The FAO in September, 1946, adopted a program in line with his proposal of an international "food bank," governed by a board having power to fix maximum and minimum prices and to buy and sell food products, but the British and U.S. governments refused to support the program. A fellow of the Royal Society since 1932, knighted in 1935, elected rector of the University of Glasgow for a three-year term in 1945, in 1949 he was created the 1st Baron Boyd Orr and in that same year received the Nobel peace prize. He is the author of Minerals in Pastures and Their Relation to Animal Nutrition (1928), The National Food Supply (1934), Fighting for What? (1943), and Food and the People (1944).

Orrefors (ör.ə.förs'). Small industrial town in SE Sweden: manufactures of crystal ware and Swedish glass. 641 (1949).

Orrell (ör'el). Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 3 mi. SW of Wigan, ab. 198 mi. NW of London by rail. 9,317 (1951).

Orrery (ör'eri). Earl of. Title held by various members of the Boyle family.

Orrery, Federal. See Federal Orrery.

Orrhoene (ör.ö.ē'nē). See Osronee.

Orrm (ör'm). See under Ormulum.

Orr Mills (ör). Unincorporated community in NW South Carolina, SW of Greenville: cotton textiles. 2,625 (1950).

Orrmim (ör'min). See under Ormulum.

Ormulum (ör'mū.lum). See Ormulum.

Orville (ör'vil). Village in NE Ohio, in Wayne County, near Akron: machinery and dairy products. 5,153 (1950).

Orsay (ör.sä). Alfred Guillaume Gabriel, Comte d'. b. at Paris, 1801; d. there, Aug. 4, 1852. Leader of society at Paris and London, and amateur of the fine arts. He is noted for his intimacy with the Countess of Blessington.

Orsera (ör.sä.rä). Italian name of Andermarkt.

Orsha (ör.shä'). City in W U.S.S.R., in the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, situated ab. 125 mi. NE of Minsk: rail junction; manufactures of paper, textiles, wood products, flour, clothing, and metalware. In World War II it was occupied by the Germans from July, 1941, until July 1, 1944. Pop. 32,200 (1933).

Orsini (ör.sē'nē). Roman princely family, formerly powerful at Rome and elsewhere in Italy. Popes Celestine III, Nicholas III, and Benedict XIII were members of the family, as were traditionally Paul I and Eugenius II. Adherents of the Guelph faction, the Orsini carried on a long feud with the Colonna family.

Orsini, Felice. b. at Meldola, Forlì, Italy, 1819; executed at Paris, March 13, 1858. Italian patriot and revolutionist. A member of the Young Italy movement, he attempted (Jan. 14, 1858), with others, to assassinate Napoleon III.

Orsini, Giulio. Pseudonym of Gnoli, Domenico.

Orsino (ör.sē'nō). Duke of Illyria, a character in Shakespeare's play Twelfth Night. He loves Olivia, who discourages him. He finally marries Viola, who secretly loves him and has served him as a page.

Orsk (örsk). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Chkalov oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, on the Ural River ab. 150 mi. S of Magnitogorsk: alcohol making, meat packing, and flour milling. 65,799 (1939).

Orso (ör'sō). Gherardo Caccianemici dal. Original name of Pope Lucius II.

Orsona (ör.sō.nä). An ancient name of Osuna, Spain.

Orșova (ör.shō.vä). Town in NW Rumania, in the province of Crișana and Maramures, on the Danube River, ab. 21 mi. NW of Turnu Severin. It is the entrance to the so-called Iron Gate (the Danube is here so narrow that ships need a special pilot). 5,107 (1948).

Ørsted (ör'stērn). See Oersted.

Orsua (ör.sō'ä). Pedro de. See Ursúa, Pedro de.

Orta (ör'tä). Lake. [Italian, Lago d'Orta (dör'tä), Lago Cusio.] Small lake in the province of Novara, N Italy, ab. 6 mi. W of Lago Maggiore. Length, ab. 8 mi.; area, ab. 7 sq. mi.

Ortala (ör'tä.lä). Count of. Title of Torstenson, Lennart.

Orta Nova (ör'tä nö.vä). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Foggia, SE of Foggia: a center for the production of cheeses. Pop. of commune, 13,033 (1936); of town, 9,997 (1936).

Ortega (ör.tä.gäl'). Cape. [Spanish, Cabo Ortegäl.] Cape at the NW extremity of Spain.

Ortega y Gasset (ör.tä.gä.ē.gä.set'). José. b. at Madrid, 1883—. Spanish philosopher, writer, and statesman. He studied at Málaga and began to write in Los Lunes de Imparcial, a periodical owned by his family. After a study trip to Germany he obtained (1911) the chair of metaphysics at the University of Madrid, and began to publish various works. His famous speech Vieja y nueva política (1916), took him into the field of politics. From 1917 he promoted the best Spanish newspaper of the time, El Sol, and when Miguel Primo de Rivera set up his dictatorship he resigned his chair at the university. He worked against the monarchy and opposed General Berenguer, as with the article "Delenda est Monarquía," in El Sol, on Nov. 15, 1930. Elected to the constituent Cortes at the fall of the monarchy, he, together with a group of intellectuals, worked for national reconstruction. When the Spanish Civil War broke out he withdrew in silence and lived abroad until 1948, when he paid a visit to his homeland. His brilliant analyses of the problems of modern times have won him a wide following both in his own country and abroad. In La Rebelión de las masas (1930; Eng. trans., The Revolt of the Masses, 1932) he propounds the theory of the destructive effect of the mass man, exemplified by the Communist and the Fascist, on creative genius. Other works which have exerted considerable influence are Meditaciones del Quijote (1914), España invertebrada (1922; Eng. trans., 1937), El Tema de nuestro tiempo (1923; Eng. trans., 1931), and La Deshumanización del arte, e Ideas sobre la novela (1925; Eng. trans., 1948).

Orteig (ör'teg), Raymond. b. at Louvie-Juzon, France, 1870; d. at New York, June 6, 1939. American restaurateur, manager (1892-1932) of the Hotel Martin, and later owner of the Brevoort and Lafayette hotels at New York. He donated the 25,000-dollar prize for the first nonstop New York to Paris flight, which was won (1927) by Charles Lindbergh.

Örtel (ör'tel), Philipp Friedrich Wilhelm. [Pseudonym, W. O. von Horn.] b. at Horn, near Simmern, Germany, Aug. 15, 1793; d. at Wiesbaden, Germany, Oct. 16, 1867. German writer of popular stories, particularly for the young. Most of these appeared in his annual, Die Spinnstube.

Ortelius (ör.tē'lius). [Latinized surname of Abraham Oertel (or Ortell).] b. at Antwerp, Belgium, 1527; d. there, 1593. Flemish geographer, considered the greatest of his time next to Mercator. He published an atlas, Theatrum orbis terrarum (1570), and others. He went to England in 1577, and it was his encouragement and solicitation that induced Camden to produce his Britannia.

Ortelsburg (ör.tēls.bürk). German name of Szczecyno.

Ortenau (ör'tē.nou). Region in C Baden, Germany, lying E of the Rhine, W of the Black Forest, and N of the Breisgau.

Ortenburg (ör'tēn.bürk). See under Bautzen.

Orth (örth), Godlove Stein. b. near Lebanon, Pa., April 22, 1817; d. at Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 16, 1882. American politician, member of Congress from Indiana (1863-71, 1873-75, and 1879-82), and U.S. minister to Austria (1875-77).

Orthez (ör'tez). Town in SW France, in the department of Basses-Pyrénées, on the Gave de Pau River, b. 25 mi. NW of Pau. It has metal and other industries and is known for its salted hams. It was once a center of French Protestantism. 6,450 (1946).

Ortigueira (ör.tē.gä.rä). Town in NW Spain, in the province of La Coruña, situated on an inlet of the Bay of Biscay, ab. 35 mi. NE of La Coruña: seaport, coastwise trade, fisheries; agricultural trade; small industries. 22,152 (1940).

Ortiz (ör.tēs'), Roberto M. b. 1886; d. in July, 1942. Argentine politician, whose election (September, 1937) as president represented a victory by the "Concordancia" (a conservative coalition) over the moderately reformist Radicals. Despite international problems which followed the outbreak of World War II and the growing coolness of his own more conservative supporters, Ortiz was able to make some progress toward honest provincial elections before he was forced (July 3, 1941) by illness to turn over actual administrative power to his vice-president, Ramón S. Castillo, an ultraconservative. He subsequently took little part in public affairs, and on June 27, 1942, formally relinquished the presidency to Castillo.

Ortiz Rubio (ór.tés' rý.yó). Pascual. b. at Morelia, Mexico, March 10, 1877. Mexican engineer and statesman, president (1930-32) of Mexico. He was minister of communications and public works (1920-21), minister plenipotentiary (1923) to Germany, ambassador (1926) to Brazil, and minister of the interior (1928). He served (February, 1930-September, 1932) as president, succeeding Emilio Portes Gil, who had been made provisional president after the assassination (1928) of Álvaro Obregón.

Ortler Alps (ór'tlér). [Italian, Ortles (ór'tlās).] Group of the Alps including the peak of Ortles. It forms the watershed between the Adige, Adda, and Oglio basins.

Ortles (ór'tlās). [German, Ortler (ór'tlér), Ortler-spitze (-shpít.se).] Mountain in N Italy, ab. 40 mi. NW of Trent, near the Swiss border. It is the highest mountain of the E Alps, and was formerly supposed to be the highest peak in Europe. Elevation, 12,792 ft.

Ortner (ór'tnér), Hermann Heinz. b. at Bad Kreuzen, Upper Austria, Nov. 14, 1895. Austrian dramatist, author of religious plays and dramas on social and national themes. He has also written some novels and short stories.

Orton (ór'ton), Arthur. [Called the Tichborne Claimant; assumed names, Thomas Castro, Roger Charles Tichborne.] b. 1834; d. at London, April 1, 1893. English impostor, central figure in two famous 19th-century trials. He emigrated (1852) from England to Australia, where he took up his father's trade, that of a butcher. In 1866, on the invitation of Lady Tichborne, he returned to England, she having become convinced from descriptions that he was her elder son, who had been lost at sea in 1854. When they met, she became positive of his supposed identity. Lady Tichborne died in 1868, but Orton was received by many others as the missing Tichborne son. The success of his imposture was so great that in 1871 he brought suit for ejectment against the then baronet, the infant heir of Lady Tichborne's younger son. The trial lasted 102 days, after which Orton's counsel asked to have the case dismissed. The sequel was a trial (1873-74) for perjury against Orton, who was sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment. He was released in 1884, and in 1895 published a confession of his fraud in the press.

Orton, Edward Francis Baxter. b. at Deposit, N.Y., March 9, 1829; d. at Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 16, 1899. American educator and geologist. He was president of Antioch College (1872-73), and of the Ohio State Agricultural and Mechanical College (now Ohio State University) from 1873 to 1881. He was professor of geology at the latter from 1873 to 1899.

Orton, Edward, Jr. b. at Chester, N.Y., Oct. 8, 1863; d. Feb. 10, 1932. American engineer, first manufacturer (1887-88) in the U.S. of ferro-silicon; son of E. F. B. Orton. He took a leading part in the establishment (1894) of the first American school for instruction in the techniques of clay, glass, and cement manufacture at Ohio State University and directed (1894-1916) this enterprise. He was dean (1902-06, 1910-16) of the College of Engineering at Ohio State.

Orton, James. b. at Seneca Falls, N.Y., April 21, 1830; d. on Lake Titicaca, Peru, Sept. 25, 1877. American Congregational clergyman, naturalist, and traveler. In 1867 and 1873 he conducted expeditions to South America, crossing the Andes and descending the Amazon. In 1876 he undertook the exploration of the Beni River, but was forced to turn back, and died on his way home. He published The Andes and the Amazon (1870 and 1876), Comparative Zoology, and others.

Ortona (ór.tó'nā). Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Abruzzi e Molise, in the province of Chieti, situated on the Adriatic Sea ab. 14 mi. E of Chieti. It is a seaport and fishing center, with stone quarries and food industries. During World War II the cathedral, Castello Aragonese, and Palazzo Farnese were heavily damaged and the Palazzo de Pizzis entirely destroyed. Pop. of commune, 20,210 (1936); of town, 9,215 (1936).

Ortonville (ór'ton.vil). City in W Minnesota, on the South Dakota border, county seat of Big Stone County; summer resort and agricultural trading center. 2,577 (1950).

Ortospana (ór.tó.spā'nā). Ancient name of Kabul. Ortygia (ór.tý.jā). In ancient geography, a small island at the entrance of the great harbor of Syracuse, Sicily. It was famous in the sieges of that city.

Ortygia. An ancient name of Delos.

Oruba (ó.rú'bā). See Aruba.

Oruro (ó.rú.ró). Department in W Bolivia, on the borders of Peru and Chile. Capital, Oruro; area, 20,386 sq. mi.; pop. 210,265 (1950).

Oruro. Capital of Oruro department, in W Bolivia. It is the principal tin-mining and railway center of the country, founded c1630. Pop. 62,975 (1950).

Orvieto (ó.r.vý.tó). [Ancient name, possibly, Urbibentum; medieval name, Urbs Vetus.] Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Umbria, in the province of Terni, situated on a volcanic hill ab. 60 mi. NW of Rome. It is an ancient Etruscan and Roman town, rich in medieval monuments such as the churches of San Giovenale (1004) and Sant' Andrea (with columns of the 2nd century). Other notable structures include the papal palace, begun under Pope Boniface VIII in 1297; the episcopal palace and the Palazzo del Popolo of the 12th century, with later additions; and the Palazzo Comunale of the Renaissance period. The most important building is the cathedral, founded 1290, finished in the 17th century, with a monumental Gothic façade of the 14th century by Lorenzo Maitani da Siena; one of the chapels contains murals by Luca Signorelli. Excellent wines are produced in the vicinity. There is a museum of Greek and Etruscan antiquities, but comparatively little is known about the town in ancient times, except that it was one of the 12 capital cities of Etruria. During World War II no damage was suffered by the cathedral or by other buildings of tourist interest except the nearby Abbey of SS. Severo e Martirio, which was hit, though not destroyed, by artillery fire. Pop. of commune, 21,599 (1936); of town, 8,333 (1936).

Orville (ó.r'vil), Lord. Lover of Evelina, in Fanny Burney's novel of that name.

Orwell (ó.r'wel, -wél). A pseudonym of Smith, Walter Chalmers.

Orwell, George. [Pseudonym of Eric Blair.] b. at Motihari, in Bengal, India, 1903; d. at London, Jan. 21, 1950. English novelist and essayist, chiefly known in the U.S. for his satirical novels Animal Farm (1946) and Nineteen Eighty-Four (1949). The son of a member of the Anglo-Indian civil service, he attended Eton (where he claimed to have learn'd little) and was later (1922-27) a member of the British constabulary in Burma (where he came to the conclusion that British imperialism was "very largely a racket"). This conviction, plus ill health and a desire to write, led him to return to Europe, and he lived for about 18 months at Paris, supporting himself by washing dishes in restaurants and by various odds and ends of teaching. It was during this period that he wrote Down and Out in Paris and London (1933) and Burmese Days (1934). By 1935 his works were bringing him an income great enough to permit him to devote full time to writing, and during the next few years he published A Clergyman's Daughter (1935), Keep the Aspidochelone Flying (1936), The Road to Wigan Pier (1937), and Homage to Catalonia (1938). The last of these derived from his experiences as a member of the Republican army in the Spanish Civil War. He subsequently published Coming Up for Air (1939), Inside the Whale (1940), The Lion and the Unicorn: Socialism and the English Genius (1941), but interrupted his writing to serve during World War II as an overseas broadcaster for the British Broadcasting System and as a part-time factory worker. In 1946 he published Critical Essays (issued in the U.S. as Dickens, Dali, and Others) and also the satirical Animal Farm (published under the same title in the U.S.). Nineteen Eighty-Four (published in 1949 in both Great Britain and the U.S.) was his last major work, although he contributed essays and reviews to Horizon, the London Observer, and Tribune almost until the end of his life. Although he is best known in the U.S. for what are obviously to most readers bitter attacks on Russian totalitarianism, he considered himself to be a Marxist and was an adherent of the anti-Stalinist left-wing of the British Labour Party. Orwigsburg (ôr'wîzg.bërg). Borough in E Pennsylvania, near Pottsville: textile and shoe manufactures. 3,029 (1930).

O'Ryan (ô.rî'an), John F. b. at New York, Aug. 21, 1874—, American lawyer and soldier. He commanded the 27th division in France (1917-19). He served (1921-26) as New York state transit commissioner, and was appointed (1934) New York City police commissioner.

Oryokko (ô.ryôk.kô) or Oryoku (ô.ryô.kô). Japanese names of the Yalu River.

Orzechowski (ô.zhe.hôf'skô), Stanislaw. [Latinized, Orichovius.] b. at Przemysl, in Galicia, c1515; d. c1566. Polish theologian, by turns a champion and an opponent of the Reformation in Poland.

Orzeszkowa (ô.zhesh.kô'vâ), Eliza. [Maiden name, Pawlowska.] b. near Grodno (what is now the U.S.S.R.) 1841; d. 1910. Polish novelist and feminist, author of Meir Ezofowicz (1878; Eng. trans., 1898), which broke new ground in Polish literature by having a Jew as its central figure.

Orzinuovi (ôr.dzê.nwô'vê). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Brescia, SW of Brescia: agricultural trade center. Pop. of commune, 10,625 (1936); of town, 4,330 (1936).

Os (ôs). See Oss.

Osage (ô.sâj', ô'sâj). North American Indian tribe, originally inhabiting W Missouri, E Kansas, and NE Oklahoma. Their culture was the typical culture of the Plains Indians. The language was of the Dhegiha division of the Siouan family. Remnants of the tribe, now ab. 4,500, are located on reservations in Oklahoma. They are called the wealthiest Indians in the U.S. because of the discovery of oil on their reservations.

Osage. [Former name, Coral.] City in N Iowa, county seat of Mitchell County. It was the home of Hamlin Garland. It was settled in 1853. Pop. 3,436 (1950).

Osage River. [Called, in Kansas, Marais des Cygnes.] River in E Kansas and in Missouri which flows into the Missouri ab. 9 mi. E of Jefferson City. Length, ab. 500 mi.; navigable ab. 200 mi.

Osei Tutu (ô.sî'tô'tô). [Also, Osei Tutu.] Legendary founder of the Ashanti nation. Under his leadership the Ashanti, a Sudanic-speaking Akan people of W Africa, threw off the rule of the Denkyira, another Akan people, and formed a confederacy of the states of Bekwai, Bosomtvi, Ejura, Juabin, Kokofu, Mampong, Obuasi, and Santemano.

Osaka (ô.sâ'ka, ô.sâ.kâ). Ken (prefecture) in S Honshu, Japan, bordering on Osaka Bay (an inlet of the Pacific). Capital, Osaka; area, ab. 701 sq. mi.; pop. 3,857,047 (1950).

Osaka. Industrial city in S Honshu, Japan, situated on the NE shore of Osaka Bay (an inlet of the Pacific). It is traversed by the Yodo River. Its harbor is entirely artificial and has been dredged to a maximum depth of 28 ft. at low water. Considering all water-borne trade, domestic and foreign, Osaka is the greatest port of Japan. It is the principal center of the Japanese textile (cotton and woolen) industry; it also has chemical, machinery, and iron and steel industries. It is one of the three imperial cities (or fu) of Japan. A great fire occurred here in July, 1909. The city was devastated by bombing in World War II, 1,956, 136 (1950).

Osawatomie (os.â.wot'ô.mi, ô.sâ-). City in E Kansas, in Miami County: railway shops. It is noted for its association with John Brown, who defended the town against a proslavery raiding party in 1856. In 1910 Theodore Roosevelt delivered here his "New Nationalism" address. 4,347 (1950).

Osbaldistone (oz.bôl'ô.tîs.tôn), Francis. Narrator and nominal hero of Sir Walter Scott's Rob Roy.

Osbaldistone, Rashleigh. Villain of Sir Walter Scott's Rob Roy.

Osborn (ôz'born), Charles. b. in Guilford County, N.C., Aug. 21, 1755; d. in Porter County, Ind., Dec. 29, 1850. American Quaker preacher and Abolitionist.

Osborn, Henry Fairfield. b. at Fairfield, Conn., Aug. 8, 1857; d. at Garrison-on-Hudson, N.Y., Nov. 6, 1935. American biologist and paleontologist, professor at Columbia University from 1891, and president of the American Museum of Natural History from 1908. He was professor of comparative anatomy at Princeton (1882-90), curator of vertebrate paleontology in the American Museum of Natural History (New York) from 1890, and geologist and paleontologist of the U.S. Geological Survey from 1900. He published From the Greeks to Darwin (1894, 1897), The Age of Mammals (1910), Men of the Old Stone Age (1915), The Origin and Evolution of Life (1917), Equidae of the Oligocene, Miocene, and Pliocene of North America (1918), and Man Rises to Parnassus (1927). His Proboscidea, A Monograph of the Discovery, Evolution, Migration, and Extinction of the Mastodons and Elephants of the World (1936) was not issued until after his death.

Osborn, Herbert. b. at Lafayette, Wis., March 19, 1856—, American biologist, professor of zoology and entomology at Iowa State (1885-98) and Ohio State (1898-1933), and research entomologist for state and federal governments. Author of Pediculari and Mallophaga of Man and Lower Animals (1891), Insects Affecting Domestic Animals (1896), Economic Zoology (1908), Agricultural Entomology (1916), Fragments of Entomological History (1937), and other works.

Osborn, Sherard. b. April 25, 1822; d. May 6, 1875. British admiral and arctic explorer. He entered the navy in 1837, assisted in the reduction of Canton in 1841, took part in two expeditions in search of the lost arctic expedition of Sir John Franklin (publishing accounts in 1852 and 1856), and served in the Crimean War. In December, 1859, he published The Career, Last Voyage, and Fate of Sir John Franklin.

Osborn, Thomas Ogden. b. at Jersey, Ohio, Aug. 11, 1832; d. at Washington, D.C., March 27, 1904. American lawyer, soldier, and diplomat, U.S. minister resident in the Argentine Republic (1874-85).

Osborne (ôz'born), Dorothy. b. at Chicksands, Bedfordshire, England, 1627; d. at Moor Park, Surrey, England, in January, 1695. English letter writer; wife of Sir William Temple, Jonathan Swift's employer and patron. She wrote Temple a series of letters, published in 1888, 1903, and 1928, notable as containing invaluable descriptions of the time in which she lived. She is buried in Westminster Abbey.

Osborne, Francis. b. at Chicksands, Bedfordshire, England, Sept. 26, 1593; d. at Nether Worton, near Deddington, Oxfordshire, England, Feb. 11, 1659. English writer and minor official. Author of Advice to a Son (part 1, 1656; part 2, 1658), dealing with "Studies," "Love and Marriage," "Travel," "Government," and "Religion," and Memoirs of the Reigns of Elizabeth and James I (1653), interesting for its court gossip.

Osborne, Francis. [Titles: 5th Duke of Leeds, Marquis of Carmarthen.] b. 1751; d. at London, 1799. English politician, foreign secretary (1783-91) under the younger William Pitt. His disagreement with Pitt on the question of Russian armament led to his resignation as foreign secretary.

Osborne, George. Character in William Makepeace Thackeray's Vanity Fair: the handsome, selfish husband of Amelia.

Osborne, George Alexander. b. in County Limerick, Ireland, Sept. 24, 1806; d. at London, Nov. 16, 1893. Irish pianist and composer. His works consist mainly of piano pieces, such as the popular solo La Pluie des perles.

Osborne, John. Character in William Makepeace Thackeray's Vanity Fair.

Osborne, Ralph Bernal. See Bernal Osborne, Ralph.
Osborne, Sir Thomas. [Titles: 1st Earl of Danby, Marquis of Carmarthen, Duke of Leeds.] b. probably in Yorkshire, England, 1631; d. at Easton, England, 1712. English politician. During his term as lord high treasurer of England (1673-78), he subjugated the House of Commons by shrewdly placed bribes, and enriched himself by corrupt dealings. He also sought to sustain the national credit, to circumvent the Continental power of France under Louis XIV, and to pass laws (without success) against Roman Catholics and dissenters. After making peace with the Netherlands, he arranged (1677) the marriage of Mary, the Duke of York's daughter, to William of Orange (1677); the two later reigned in England as William III and Mary. He was forced to connive at a secret treaty between Charles II and Louis XIV, and to demand for Charles II a pension from France. He was impeached (1678) after betrayal of the scheme by Ralph Montagu and for his alleged concealment of the Popish Plot. His power in Commons was broken; he was pardoned by Charles but imprisoned in the Tower of London until 1684. Reconciled with the Whigs, he opposed the accession of James II to the throne. He served as lord president of council for ten years (1689-99), during which period he was created duke (1694), accused of Jacobite intrigues (1695), and again impeached (this time without success) for receiving a bribe to procure a charter for the East India Company (1695).

Osborne, Thomas. d. at Islington, London, Aug. 21, 1767. English bookseller and printer, publisher of Samuel Richardson's Pamela. He was attacked verbally by Alexander Pope in the Dunciad, and physically by Samuel Johnson, who gave him a beating for being "impertinent." Apart from his share in issuing, with Charles Rivington, Richardson's first novel, he is remembered by references to him in Johnson's Pope, Boswell's Johnson, and other contemporary literature.

Osborne, Thomas Burr. b. at New Haven, Conn., Aug. 5, 1859; d. Jan. 29, 1929. American biochemist. An expert on plant proteins, he carried out notable investigations of crystalline vegetable globulins and demonstrated the biological importance of different proteins. He participated in studies (1909 et seq.) which indicated the presence of what came to be known as Vitamin A in cod-liver oil, butter fat, and other substances. Author of The Vegetable Proteins (1909; revised ed., 1924).

Osborne, Thomas Mott. b. at Auburn, N.Y., Sept. 23, 1859; d. there, Oct. 20, 1926. American prison reformer. He was graduated (1884) from Harvard and joined his father's agricultural implement company, which he headed until 1903, when it was merged with the International Harvester Company. His interest in prison reform and administration began in 1896; in 1913 he was named chairman of the New York State committee for prison reform, and initiated the Mutual Welfare League after spending a week (incognito) in the Auburn prison. He served (1914-16) as warden of Sing Sing and was commanding officer (1917-20) of the Portsmouth Naval Prison. Author of Within Prison Walls (1914), Society and Prisons (1916), and Prisons and Common Sense (1924).

Osborne House. Winter residence of Queen Victoria, in the Isle of Wight, near East Cowes; a large and luxurious Italian villa, with beautiful terraces and gardens. It was given by Edward VII to the British nation.

Osborn v. The Bank of the United States, 9 Wheaton 728 (1824). U.S. Supreme Court decision holding invalid and unconstitutional a tax levied by the Ohio legislature on each branch of the Second Bank of the United States established in that state. The opinion of Chief Justice Marshall followed the precedent established in McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton 316 (1819), and the decision effectively reduced the area of protection enjoyed by the states in suits arising under the Eleventh Amendment. The case is important in relation to the currency and banking conditions prevailing in the U.S. after the War of 1812.

Osbourne (oz'born), Lloyd. b. at San Francisco, April 7, 1868; d. May 22, 1947. American writer; stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson. His works include three books written in collaboration with his stepfather, The Wrong Box (1889), The Wrecker (1892), and The Ebb Tide (1894); also Memoirs of Vailima (1902; with his sister, Isobel Strong), The Queen versus Billy (1900), Love, the Fiddler (1903), Baby Bullet (1905), The Molormaniacs (1905), Wild Justice (1906), Harm's Way (1909), Infatuation (1909); and two plays written with Austin Strong, his nephew, The Exile and The Little Father of the Wilderness.

Oscá (os'ka). Ancient name of Huesca, city.

Oscar (os'kar). In Old Irish legend, a beautiful young warrior combining the ideals of fierceness and gentleness. He was the son of Oisín and the grandson of Fionn mac Cumhal (Finn MacCool).

Oscar I (of Sweden and Norway). [Original name, Joseph François Bernadotte; Swedish and Norwegian, Oskär.] b. at Paris, July 4, 1799; d. at Stockholm, July 8, 1859. King of Sweden and Norway (1844-59); son of Jean Baptiste Jules Bernadotte (Charles XIV), whom he succeeded. His reign was marked by a moderate liberalism and careful attention to Sweden's economic well-being.

Oscar II (of Sweden and Norway). [Swedish and Norwegian, Oskär.] b. at Stockholm, Jan. 21, 1829; d. there, Dec. 8, 1907. King of Sweden (1872-1907) and Norway (1872-1905); son of Oscar I. He succeeded (1872) his brother Charles XV. The great conflict of his reign was the attempt to maintain the union between Sweden and Norway, but nothing he could do could preserve it, and in 1905 he gave up the Norwegian throne. He served several times as an arbitrator in international disputes. On Dec. 14, 1906, he relinquished the government, appointing Prince Gustav (crown prince) as regent; but resumed power in June, 1907. He was a poet and writer of merit. His publications include A Memoir of Charles XI (Eng. trans., 1879).

Oscar II Coast. [Also: King Oscar II Land, King Oscar II Coast.] Land within the antarctic regions which forms part of the E coast of the Palmer Peninsula. It was discovered by Larsen in December, 1893.

Oscar of the Waldorf (wô'dôrf). See Tschirky, Oscar. Oseola (os.é'la). [Also: Asi Yahola; Eng. trans., "Black Drink Hallooer."] b. on the Chattahoochee River, Ga., c.1804; d. at Fort Moultrie, Charleston, S.C., Jan. 30, 1838. Seminole war-leader. A Creek by birth, he also had one grandfather who was probably Scottish, and he had the name Powell from an English stepfather. He was brought (1808) to Florida by his mother, who settled near Fort King. Though not a chief, he was the principal leader in openly opposing Seminole removal from Florida, and was arrested (1835) for insolence to General Wiley Thompson, the U.S. agent to the Seminoles. He headed the parties which killed the leader of the Seminole emigration faction (Nov. 23, 1835) and, later, General Thompson (Dec. 28, 1835). A commander in the early battles of the Seminole War (1835-36), he was surprised in camp while ill and forced to flee (Jan. 10, 1837). He opposed the Treaty of Fort Dade (March 6, 1837) and the surrender of runaway Negroes (who had joined the Seminoles), and led in carrying away Seminole hostages (June 2, 1837). He was captured at Fort Peyton, near St. Augustine, during a conference, on Oct. 21, 1837, imprisoned in Fort Marion, at St. Augustine, and transferred to Fort Moultrie, in Charleston harbor, where he died, reportedly of quinsy.

Osecola. City in NE Arkansas, on the Mississippi River, a county seat with Blytheville of Mississippi County in a cotton-growing region, 5,006 (1950).

Osecola. [Former name, Osecola City.] City in S Iowa, county seat of Clarke County. It was settled in 1850. Pop. 3,422 (1950).

Oschatz (ô'shâts). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, situated on the Döllnitz River, ab. 35 mi. NW of Dresden. It has ceramics, shoe, felt, and other industries. The former Church of the Franciscans dates from the 13th century, with additions of the 14th and 16th centuries. The Rathaus (town hall), in the Renaissance style, dates from 1539-46. 15,331 (1946).

Oschersleben (ô'shêrs.lä.bên). Town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Bode River ab. 19 mi. SW of Magdeburg. It has sugar refineries, chocolate and sausage manufactures, and machine, shoe, textile, tobacco, and chemical industries. 21,011 (1946).

Osei Tutu (ô.sî tû'tô). See Osai Tutu.

Osek (ô'sek). [German: Osseg, Ossegg.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ůstí, in N Bohemia, between Teplice and Most. The town has a Cistercian abbey, founded in the 12th century, with a 17th-century church, a library, and a collection of paintings. Lignite mines are in the vicinity. 5,852 (1947).

Ösel (ô'zel). A German name of Saare or Saaremaa. Osgood (ô'zûd), Frances Sargent Locke. b. at Boston, June 18, 1811; d. at Hingham, Mass., May 12, 1850. American poet. Among her works is A Wreath of Wild Flowers from New England (1838). She contributed to a number of English and American periodicals, and was for some time editor of The Ladies' Companion. She also wrote a play, The Happy Release, or the Triumphs of Love. She was a friend of Edgar Allan Poe, who addressed poems to her.

Osgood, Herbert Levi. b. at Canton, Me., April 9, 1855; d. Sept. 11, 1918. American historian. He was among the first scholars in the U.S. to make a detailed study of the colonial period. His major works are The American Colonies in the Seventeenth Century (3 vols., 1904-07) and The American Colonies in the Eighteenth Century (4 vols., 1924), which were awarded the Loubat prize in 1908 and 1928, respectively. He edited the Minutes of the Common Council of the City of New York, 1675-1776 (8 vols., 1905).

Osgood, Samuel. b. at Andover, Mass., Feb. 3, 1747/48; d. at New York, Aug. 12, 1813. American politician. He was the first commissioner of the U.S. treasury (1785-89), and was postmaster general (1789-91) under Washington, the first to hold this office after ratification of the Constitution.

Osgood, William Fogg. b. at Boston, March 10, 1864; d. at Belmont, Mass., July 22, 1943. American mathematician, noted for his work in analysis and the theory of functions. He taught at Harvard from 1891 to 1933. His best-known book is Lehrbuch der Funktionentheorie (1907). He wrote textbooks on elementary and advanced calculus: His Functions of a Complex Variable and Functions of Real Variables appeared in 1936.

Osh (ōsh). City in U.S.S.R., in C Asia, in Kirghiz Soviet Socialist Republic, in the Fergana Valley: old trade center in a region specializing in the production of silk, cotton, fruit, and tobacco. It has important silk reeling and weaving industries. 47,500 (1935).

Oshakasama (ō'shā.kā.sā.mā). See Shaka.

O'Shaughnessy (ō'shō'ng.sī), Arthur William Edgar. b. at London, March 14, 1844; d. there, Jan. 30, 1881. English poet, influenced by D. G. Rossetti and the Pre-Raphaelites. He was an assistant in the natural history division of the British Museum. He published Epic of Women (1870), The Lays of France (1872), an adaptation of the Lais of Marie de France, Music and Moonlight (1874), and Songs of a Worker (1881). His ode beginning, "We are the music-makers, And we are the dreamers of dreams" has become famous through its partial inclusion (three of seven stanzas) in Francis Turner Palgrave's Golden Treasury.

Oshawa (ōsh'ā.wā). Industrial city in Ontario, Canada, on the N shore of Lake Ontario, ab. 35 mi. E of Toronto. It is the headquarters of General Motors of Canada. Pop. of city, 41,545 (1951); including suburbs, 51,582 (1951).

O'Shea (ō'shē'), Michael Vincent. b. at Le Roy, N.Y., Sept. 17, 1866; d. Jan. 14, 1932. American teacher, author, and editor, professor of education (1897-1932) at the University of Wisconsin. He was editor in chief of The World Book Encyclopedia (19 vols., 1933).

O'Shea, William Henry. b. April 22, 1840; d. 1905. Irish politician; husband of the woman who was the mistress (later the wife) of Charles Stewart Parnell. O'Shea served (1881-84) as a negotiator between Parnell and such leaders of the British government as W. E. Gladstone and Joseph Chamberlain, although he himself was not a Home Rule advocate.

O'Sheel (ō'shē'), Shaemas. [Original name, James Shields.] b. at New York, Sept. 19, 1886-. American writer. While a student at Columbia University, his enthusiasm for all things Irish led him to restore the Gaelic form of his name, phonetically transliterated. He studied the Gaelic (Irish) language, Irish music, and Irish dancing, and adhered to the cause of Irish independence. From 1909 to 1915 his lyric verse appeared in many magazines and newspapers, and again in the years 1926-28. His first book of verse, The Blossomy Bough, was published in 1911, and his second, The Light Feet of Gods, in 1915. In 1928 his selected verse was published under the title Jealous of Dead Leaves. His Ballads of the B. E. F., satirizing the Hoover administration's handling of the "Bonus Expeditionary Force," appeared in 1932. In 1939 he was American Labor Party candidate for sheriff of Dutchess County, N.Y., and in 1940 candidate of the same party for Congress in the 18th Congressional District, New York City.

Oshiba (ō.shō'bā). See Mokuk.

O Shima (ō.shē.mā). [Also, Awo-Sima.] Small island in Japan, ab. 65 mi. S of Tokyo: formerly a Japanese penal settlement. On the island is a volcanic mountain, known by the same name, reaching a height of ab. 2,477 ft. Area, ab. 35 sq. mi.; pop. 12,838 (1955).

Oshkosh (ōsh'kōsh). City in E Wisconsin, county seat of Winnebago County, on Lake Winnebago at the mouth of the Fox River, ab. 80 mi. NW of Milwaukee: manufactures of wood products, overalls, trucks, marine motors, coffins, lighting equipment, matches, and tents. It was settled in 1818 and was noted as a lumbering center. It is the seat of a state teachers college. 41,084 (1950).

Oshogbo (ō.shōg'bō). City in W Africa, in Western Provinces, Nigeria, a junction point on a main highway ab. 120 mi. NE of Lagos. 64,000 (est. 1953).

Oshyeba (ō.shyā'bā). See Mokuk.

Oslander (ō.zē.ān.dēr), Andreas. [Original name, Hosemann or Hellmann.] b. at Gunzenhausen, near Nuremberg, Bavaria, Dec. 19, 1495; d. at Königsberg, Prussia, Oct. 17, 1552. German Protestant theologian. He became a priest in 1520 but by 1522 had joined the Lutherans and was instrumental in introducing the Reformation into Nuremberg. He participated in the Marburg conference of 1529, the Augsburg diet of 1530, and the signing of the Schmalkaldic articles in 1537. One of the opponents of the Augsburg Interim (1548), he left Nuremberg to join the faculty of the new university at Königsberg. Oslander was a strong controversialist, but he made enemies by his lack of restraint in a dispute. His mystical approach to the doctrine of justification brought him into conflict with the more orthodox Lutherans, Philip Melancthon among them. He published, among other works, a harmony of the gospels (1537).

Osijek (ō.sē.yek). [German, Esseg; Hungarian, Eszék; Latin, Mursa.] City in N Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, formerly in the banoīna (province) of Savska, situated on the Drava River near its junction with the Danube. It is an important river port and highway junction, with silk factories, flour and lumber mills, and cattle and fruit markets. The city was under Turkish sovereignty from 1526 to 1690, when it was incorporated into Hungary. It became part of Yugoslavia in 1919. Pop. 50,398 (1945).

Osimo (ō'sē.mō). [Ancient name, Auximum.] Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Marche, in the province of Ancona, situated near the Musone River, ab. 10 mi. S of Ancona: silk manufactures. It has remains of Roman walls, a Romanesque cathedral of the 8th century, and a castle and town hall of the Renaissance period. Buildings of tourist interest suffered only slight damage from bombardment during World War II. Pop. of commune, 21,182 (1936); of town, 6,818 (1936).

Osipenko (ō.sī.peng'kō; Russian, o.sē'pīn.ko). [Former name, Berdysansk.] City in SW U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, a port on the Sea of Azov. It has manufactures of agricultural machinery. 51,664 (1939).

Osiris (ō.sī'ris). In Egyptian mythology, the god and judge of the dead, and lord of the underworld. He was also believed by the ancient Egyptians to have given them their religious rites, their knowledge of agriculture, and the other arts of civilization. Probably the most widely known myth about Osiris is that he was the son of Geb (earth) and Nut (sky), consort of his sister Isis, that he was killed by his envious brother, Set, cut up into 14 pieces and scattered over Egypt, and avenged by his posthumous son, Horus, who killed Set. Isis recovered the scattered fragments of his body and buried them here and there in Egypt; and each of these places became a center of the Osiris cult. The gods then gave Osiris immortality and made him judge and guardian of the dead. Osiris was originally an ancient fertility god who became associated with the fertility-giving Nile, and because of his death, resurrection, and immortality story, became associated with the setting and forever-rising sun, and thus with Ra, the sun god. His chief center of worship was at Abydos. In art he was portrayed as a bearded human figure in mummy swathing, wearing the crown of Upper Egypt, and bearing in his hands, which protruded from the swathing, the shepherd's crook and the flail (both agricultural symbols).

Osius (o'zhi.us). See Hosius.

Oskaloosa (os.kə.lō'sh). City in S Iowa, county seat of Mahaska County, ab. 55 mi. SE of Des Moines, in a former coal-mining area; marketing and processing center for dairy products, poultry, tomatos, corn, and beans. It was settled in 1843. Pop. 11,124 (1950).

Oskar (os'kär). See Oscar.

Oskarshamn (ös'kär.shän). Town in S Sweden, in the län (county) of Kalmar, situated on Kalmar Sound, N of Kalmar and opposite the island of Öland. It has a port, shipyards, and machine and motor factories. 10,459 (1949).

Osler (os'ler), Sir William. b. at Bond Head, Ontario, Canada, July 12, 1849; d. at Oxford, England, Dec. 29, 1919. British physician, regius professor of medicine in the University of Oxford from 1905. He was educated at Toronto University, McGill University, Montreal, and University College, London, and at Berlin and Vienna. He was professor at the Institute of Medicine in McGill University (1874-84), of clinical medicine in the University of Pennsylvania (1884-89), and of medicine in the Johns Hopkins University (1889-1935). Although a noted researcher, especially on the circulatory system, and an influential teacher, Osler received great (and undesired) popular renown through publicity given to his remark that men of 60 should be pensioned; this was exaggerated to the point where "oslerize" came to mean the chloroforming of men as useless at the age of 40. He published The Principles and Practice of Medicine (1892; 6th ed., 1905), numerous monographs and papers, Science and Immortality (1904), Equanimity and Other Addresses (1904), Counsels and Ideals (1935), Alabama Student, and Other Biographical Essays (1905), Thomas Linacre (1903), and others, and with Thomas McCrae edited Modern Medicine, its Theory and Practice (1907-09).

Oslo (os'lo, oz'; Norwegian, ös'lö). [Former name, Kristiania, usually spelled Christiania.] City in SE Norway, the capital of Norway and of the fylke (county) of Akershus and itself a separate county, situated at head of the Oslo Fjord. It is Norway's chief seaport and railroad center and its administrative, industrial, and commercial center. There are shipyards, and machinery, textile, chemical, paper, glass, ceramics, furniture, metalworking, chocolate, tobacco, and brewing industries. Oslo is the focus of Norway's cultural life; it is the seat of a Lutheran bishopric and of a university, founded 1811, and of the Nobel Institute. There is a national gallery, a Viking museum (with Viking ships), and botanical, zoological, paleontological, and other collections. Pop. of city, 286,222 (1946), with suburbs, 462,492 (1946).

Art and Architecture. The city has a modern architectural character, with broad streets and wide squares. The royal castle, at an elevated spot, dates from 1848. There is a park which contains the noted sculptures of Vigeland. The university's concert and lecture hall contains murals by Munch. The city hall is an impressive modern building, started in 1914 and dedicated in 1950. There are monuments to Björnson and Ibsen. In the city is Akershus Castle, dating back to the Middle Ages.

History. Oslo was founded (c1500) by King Harold III. It burned down in 1624, and was rebuilt by King Christian IV and named (Kristiania) after him; it was formally renamed Oslo in 1925. In World War II, the city was occupied by the Germans in 1940 (April 9 and 10); it was liberated on May 8, 1945.

Oslo Convention. Agreement (1932) by the Scandinavian powers, Belgium, Luxembourg, and the Netherlands relating to the adoption of trade policies furthering principles of free trade within the group of signatory countries. The agreement was drawn so that it might be broadened to cover also certain measures of political cooperation. In 1937, when Finland acceded to the agreement, a supplementary statement made more explicit some of the particular trade policies to be pursued.

Oslo Fjord. [Former name, Kristiania Fjord, also spelled Christiania Fjord.] Arm of the sea on the S coast of Norway, S of Oslo. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Os Lusíadas (öz lö.zə.da.sh). Portuguese name of Lusiad, The.

Osman I (oz'män, os.män'). [Also, Othman.] b. 1259; d. 1326. Founder of the Ottoman Empire, the Ottoman (Osmanli) Turks taking their name from him. He became chief of his tribe in 1288, and assumed the title of emir (not of sultan) in 1299. He gradually extended the Turkish holdings at the expense of the Byzantine Empire.

Osman II. [Also, Othman.] Killed 1622. Sultan of the Turks (1618-22); son of Ahmed I.

Osman III. [Also, Othman.] Sultan of the Turks (1754-57); brother of Mahmud I.

Osman Digna (dig'na). b. at Suakin, in what is now Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, c1836; d. 1926. General of the Mahdi. He defeated (Feb. 4, 1884) the British under Baker Pasha, was defeated (March 13, 1884) by Sir Gerald Graham at Tanagerie, and took part in the defense of the Sudan against General H. H. Kitchener (1898). In 1900 he was captured and imprisoned.

Osmanli (oz.man'li, os-). See under Osman I.

Osmanlis (oz.man'li, os-). Western Turkish people, characterized by brachycephaly, tall stature, and dark hair and skin. Their language is often called Osmanli, and belongs to the South Turkic group of the Turkic family of languages.

Osman Nuri Pasha (os.män' nör'e pä.shä'). [Also, Othman Nuri Pasha.] b. in Asia Minor, c1837; d. at Constantinople, April 4, 1903. Turkish general. He served (1876) in the war with Serbia, and in the following year conducted the defense of Plevna, Bulgaria, against the Russians. After three battles and a stalemate of five months, he was compelled to surrender on Dec. 10, 1877. Later he became commander of the imperial guard, and served (1878-83) as minister of war.

Osmeña (ös.mē'nyä), Sergio. b. 1878-. Philippine lawyer and politician, president (1944-46) of the Commonwealth of the Philippines after the death of Manuel Quezon. He was president (1906) of the first convention of provincial governors, and speaker of the first Philippine assembly (1907-16) and of the house of representatives (1916-22). He was elected (1922, 1928, 1935) senator for Cebu. Vice-president of the Commonwealth of the Philippines (1935-44) and secretary of public instruction (1936-44), he left the Philippines after the Japanese invasion and returned in 1945. He was defeated by Manuel Roxas in the 1946 election.

Osmond (os'mond), Gilbert. Character in The Portrait of a Lady (1881), novel by Henry James.

Osmun (os'mun), Thomas Embley. [Pseudonym, Alfred Ayres.] b. at Montrose, Ohio, Feb. 26, 1834; d. at New York, Oct. 26, 1902. American pronunciation expert and dramatic critic. Author of The Orthoepist (1880), The Verbalist (1881), Acting and Actors (1894), The Actor (1897), The Essentials of Elocution (1897), and Some Ill-Used Words (1901).

Osnabrück (ös'nä.brük). [Also, formerly, Osnaburg (ös'na.bérg).] City in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on the Haase River and a connection to the Mittelland Canal, ab. 30 mi. NE of Münster. It has iron and steel works, and textile, paper, pottery, tobacco, and machine industries. The Dom (cathedral) is a Romanesque building of the 13th century; the Johanniskirche, in the Gothic style, also dates from the 13th century. Most of the other churches and almost all of the secular buildings and monuments of historical interest in this ancient city were either destroyed or severely damaged in World War II. 109,538 (1950).

Osorgin (o.sör'gin), Mikhail. [Pseudonym of Mikhail Andreyevich Ilyin.] b. at Perm (now Molotov), Russia, 1878; d. 1942. Russian novelist, who became an émigré in 1936. Two of his novels, A Quiet Street (1930) and My Sister's Story (1931), are available in English.

Osorio (o.sör'yo), Ana de. See Chinchón, Condesa de.

Osorio, Manuel. b. at Seville, Spain, 1770; d. c1830. Spanish general. He was commander (1814-16) of the Spanish forces in Chile, defeating the republicans at Rancagua (Oct. 2, 1814), and extinguishing the revolt for a time. He returned to Peru, but in January, 1818, was again sent to Chile against José de San Martín, defeated him at Cancha-Rayada (March 19), but was himself defeated at the decisive battle of the Maipo (April 5, 1818), and soon after fled from the country.

Osorio (ô.zô'ryô), Manuel Luiz (or Manoel Luis). [Also: Ozorio; called O Legendario, meaning "the Fabulous"; titles, Baron, Viscount, and Marquis of Herval.] b. near Pelotas, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, May 10, 1803; d. at Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 4, 1879. Brazilian general. He was commander in chief of the Brazilian forces in the Paraguayan War (March 1, 1865–July 15, 1866), and took a leading part in the remainder of the war.

Osorno (ô.sô'no). Province in S central Chile: agricultural and resort country, partly wooded and mountainous. Capital, Osorno; area, 3,867 sq. mi.; pop. 80,299 (est. 1943).

Osorno. Capital of Osorno province, in S central Chile: distribution center for the surrounding agricultural area. It was founded in 1558. Pop. 25,075 (1940).

Osorno, Marquis of. Title of O'Higgins, Ambrosio.

Ospina Pérez (ôs.pē'nā pā'res), Mariano. b. at Medellín, Colombia, Nov. 24, 1891–. Colombian politician, president of Colombia (1945–50). He served on the Medellín municipal council and in the national legislature, became (1923) a senator, and was minister of public works (1926 et seq.). A teacher at the Medellín school of mines and at the law schools of Antioquia and Bogotá, he was president of the Medellín school of mines as well. In 1943, as a result of the split in the liberal party which had been in power since 1937, he was elected president, the first conservative to hold the presidency in 16 years. He served the full term and was succeeded by Laureano Gómez.

Ospina Rodríguez (ôs.pē'nā rô.thrē'ges), Mariano. b. 1803; d. at Medellín, Colombia, 1885. New Granadan politician, president (1857–61) of New Granada.

OSRD. See Office of Scientific Research and Development.

Osoene or Osrhoene (ôz.rô.ē'nē). [Also, Orrhoene.] In ancient geography, a region in the NW part of Mesopotamia. Its chief city was Edessa (modern Urfa).

Oss (ôs). [Also, Os.] Town in S Netherlands, in the province of North Brabant, situated near the Maas River, ab. 12 mi. NE of 's Hertogenbosch. It is the center of the Brabant butter trade, and has slaughterhouses, a pharmaceutical factory, and large margarine works. 23,388 (est. 1951).

OSS. See Office of Strategic Services.

Ossa (ô.sā). Mountain in the E part of Thessaly, Greece, situated NW of Pelion and separated from Olympus on the N by the Vale of Tempe. According to myth, Pelion was piled atop Ossa by the giants when they stormed Olympus. Elevation, ab. 6,400 ft.

Ossau (ô.sô'), Pic du Midi d'. See Pic du Midi d'Ossau.

Ossau, Vallée d'. Valley in the French Pyrenees, S of Pau.

Osegg or Ossegg (ô.s'ek). German forms of Osek.

Ossendowski (ôs.sen.dôf'skē), Ferdynand Antoni. b. in Vitebsk, Russia, 1876; d. at Warsaw, Poland, c1940. Polish traveler and writer. Early drawn to Siberia by his love of far places, he taught at Tomsk and lived for years in eastern Siberia. The best known of his stories is Beasts, Men and Gods (1922, written first in English). Author also of Man and Mystery in Asia (1923; Eng. trans., 1924) and From President to Prison (1924; Eng. trans., 1925) with Asia as their scene; and the following with their scene in Africa: Oasis and Simoon (1925; Eng. trans., 1927), The Fire of Desert Folk (1926), and Slaves of the Sun (1927; Eng. trans., 1923). He also wrote (1926) a biography of Lenin.

Os Sertões (ôs.sér.tôins'). Narrative of the war waged (1896–97) by Brazilian government forces against a group of insurgents in the interior of Bahia. Its author, the Brazilian writer and military engineer Euclides da Cunha (1866–1909), presents a sociological interpretation of the deep causes behind the sad events that he witnessed. Published in 1902, it has been acclaimed as the greatest book ever written in or about Brazil. An English translation (Revolt in the Backlands), by Samuel Putnam, appeared in the U.S. in 1947.

Osservatore Romano (ôs.scr.vā.tô'rā rô.mā'nô). Newspaper published at Vatican City. Founded in 1861, it is published and owned by the Holy See and is an official organ of the Roman Catholic Church. The Pope's speeches and decisions first appear in its pages. It has a world-wide distribution.

Ossetia (ôs.sē'shā). Region in SW U.S.S.R., in the W Caucasus. It is a high mountain region with alpine pastures and forests. Sheep and goats are grazed in the mountains, and there is extensive lumbering and farming. Politically the area is divided between the North Ossetian Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic and the South Ossetian Autonomous Oblast of the Georgian Soviet Socialist Republic.

Ossetian Military Road (ô.sē'shān). Military road in SW U.S.S.R., built in the 19th century, which crosses the Caucasus through Mamison Pass. It extends from the rail terminus at Alagir to Kutaisi, in the Georgian Soviet Socialist Republic.

Ossetians (ô.sē'shānz). Iranian inhabitants of N Caucasus and Transcaucasia, numbering 354,000 (1939). The Ossetian language is a member of the Indo-Iranian branch of the Indo-European family. The Ossetians have lived in their present lands since the earliest times. Although they have played but a minor role in history, they are renowned as handicraft workers, weaving exceptionally beautiful rugs.

Ossett (ô.s'et) or Ossett-cum-Gawthorpe (ô.s'et.kum.gô'thōrp). Municipal borough and manufacturing town in N central England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, ab. 9 mi. S of Leeds, ab. 180 mi. N of London by rail. It is in the center of the district specializing in the manufacture of heavy woollens. 14,576 (1951).

Ossian (ô.shān, ô.s'ian). Variant name of Oisín, son of Fionn mac Cumhal (Finn MacCool). To him (under the spelling Ossian) was ascribed the authorship of the poems (Fingal and others) published (1760–63) by James Macpherson, but it has now long since been generally admitted that Macpherson himself was the author of the bulk of these works, although he did draw upon some ancient Irish sources.

Ossiannilsson (ûsh'ân.nîls'sôn), Karl Gustav. [Original surname, Ossian-Nilsson.] b. at Lund, Sweden, 1875–. Swedish lyric poet and novelist, regarded by many as the father of modern Swedish labor literature and poetry. His poetical debut came in 1900 with Masker (Masks). Then followed Hedningar (Heathens, 1901), Örnar (Eagles, 1902), and the novel Barbarskogen (The Barbarian Forest, 1908). Among his later works are historical novels concerned with the times of Charles XII and Gustavus Adolphus.

Ossietzky (ô.s'yē'tskē), Carl von. b. at Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 3, 1887; d. at Berlin, May 4, 1938. German pacifist and journalist, secretary of the German League for Peace and organizer of the "no-more-war" movement in Germany. He edited the radical weekly Weltbühne (1927 et seq.). Sentenced to prison (1931) for denouncing secret German rearmament and later paroled (1932), he was placed in a concentration camp by the Nazis. Although he was released early in 1936 upon receiving the 1935 Nobel peace prize, he died of tuberculosis contracted during his detention. The Hitler government, insulted by the granting of the prize to one they considered a criminal, barred any German from future acceptance of a Nobel prize.

Ossining (ô.s'i.ning). [Former names: Hunter's Landing, Sing Sing.] Village in SE New York, in Westchester County, on the E bank of the Hudson River, ab. 32 mi. N of New York; industrial and residential suburb of New York City. There are manufactures of maps, machinery, porous plasters, instruments, wire, and other products. It is notable as the site of Sing Sing state prison. It was incorporated (1813) as Sing Sing and renamed Ossining in 1901. Pop. 16,098 (1950).

Ossipee Lake (ôs.lēpē). Small lake in E New Hampshire, ab. 9 mi. NE of Lake Winnepesaukee; summer resort.

Ossoli (ôs.sô.lē), Marchioness. See Fuller, Margaret.

Ossory (ôs'ô.rī). Roman Catholic diocese, including parts of Counties Offaly, Laoighis, and Kilkenny, Ireland.

Ossory, 1st Earl of. [Title of Sir Piers (or Pierce) Butler; a titular title, 5th Earl of Ormonde.] b. in Ireland, c1467; d. 1539. English lord treasurer of Ireland who brought to Kilkenny artificers and manufacturers from Flanders. At the request of the king, he gave up the earldom of Ormonde to Sir Thomas Boleyn, brother of Anne, for the earldom of Ossory (1527-28).

Ossory, Earl of. [Courtesy title of Thomas Butler.] b. at Kilkenny, Ireland, 1634; d. at London, 1689. English statesman and military leader; given courtesy title of Ossory to distinguish him from his father, James Butler, 12th Earl and 1st Duke of Ormonde (1610-88). He commanded the Victory at the bloody battle of Southwold Bay (1672); appointed governor of Tangier (1683). John Evelyn in his diary paid high tribute to his qualities as a subject, friend, and leader.

Ossuna (ós.só.ná), Duke of. Title of Téllez y Girón, Pedro.

Ostade (ós.tá.de), Adriaen van. b. at Haarlem, Netherlands, in December, 1610; d. there, April 27, 1685. Dutch genre painter, known for quiet but skillful renderings of village and household scenes, tradesmen, and the like, and for his fine use of color. He was a contemporary and admirer of Frans Hals.

Ostade, Isaac van. b. at Haarlem, Netherlands, June 2, 1621; d. there, Oct. 16, 1649. Dutch genre painter; brother of Adriaen van Ostade.

Ostara (ós.tá.ra). [Old English, Oestre.] Ancient Germanic goddess of spring and renewed vegetation and life, a development from a still more ancient Aryan dawn goddess. Ostara was worshiped with festivals of rejoicing in the spring, which were named for her. Her name is carried over into our modern Easter.

Ostashkov (ós.tash'kof). Town in NW U.S.S.R., in the Kalinin oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, situated on Lake Seliger ab. 200 mi. NW of Moscow; shoe industry, 16,000 (1935).

Ostayen (ós.tä.yen), Paul van. b. 1896; d. 1928. Flemish poet, influenced by Guillaume Apollinaire. His experiments in expressionistic and dadaistic poetry and prose are to be found in Music Hall (1916), Het Sienjaal (The Signal, 1918), and Beetle Siad (Occupied City, 1921). His later poetry, with Krities Proza en Seldedense, was published (1933) after his death.

Östberg (ös't'bery'), Ragnar. b. at Stockholm, July 14, 1866; d. there, Feb. 6, 1945. Swedish architect. He was a professor at the Academy of Arts at Stockholm. His chief works include the city hall and a boys' high school at Stockholm, a theater at Umeå, and the building for the Odd-Fellows Lodge at Nyköping.

Ostend (ös'tend, os'tend'). [Flemish, Oostende; French and German, Ostende (French, os.tänd; German, ost-en'de).] City in NW Belgium, in the province of West Flanders, on the North Sea W of Bruges; the principal fishing port and the most fashionable and amusement establishments. There is a considerable passenger and provision traffic with England. It was strongly fortified in the Middle Ages, and surrendered to the Spaniards under Ambrogio di Spinola only after a long siege (1601-04). It was taken by the British and Austrians in 1704, and by the French in 1745 and 1794. In World War I it was used by the Germans as a submarine base; considerable damage was done through bombing in World War II (about one half of the buildings and virtually all of the harbor installations were destroyed), 49,651 (1947).

Ostend Manifesto. In U.S. history, a document drawn up in 1854 by three diplomatic representatives of the U.S. after a conference at Ostend, Belgium, urging that the U.S. should acquire Cuba. The representatives were Pierre Soulé, minister to Spain, James Buchanan, minister to Great Britain, and John Y. Mason, minister to France. The manifesto, which exacerbated antislavery sentiment, was disavowed by U.S. Secretary of State William L. Marcy.

Osten-Sacken (ös'ten.zäk'en), Carl Robert Romano-vich von der. b. at St. Petersburg, 1828; d. at Heidelberg, Germany, 1906. Russian entomologist. He was secretary (1856-62) of the Russian legation at Washington, D.C., and was subsequently Russian consul general at New York. He investigated the Diptera of North America, publishing many articles on the subject.

Osten-Sacken, Count Dmitry von der. b. 1793; d. March 27, 1881. Russian general. He served against the Poles in 1831 and 1849, and was commandant of Sevastopol in 1855 during the Crimean War.

Ostenso (ös'ten.sö), Martha. b. at Bergen, Norway, Sept. 17, 1900—, American novelist. She was reared in South Dakota and Minnesota, and attended the University of Manitoba and Columbia University. Among her novels are Wild Geese (1925), The Dark Dawn (1926), Waters Under the Earth (1930), The White Reef (1934), The Stone Field (1937), The Mandrake Root (1938), Love Passed This Way (1942), O River, Remember! (1943), and Milk Route (1948).

Österdalälven (ös'tér.däl.el'v'en). See under Dal.
Östergötland (ös'tér.yet'land). Län (county) in S Sweden. It is a fertile agricultural region. Capital, Linköping; area, 4,266 sq. mi.; pop. 347,674 (1950).

Osterhaus (ös'tér.hous), Hugo. b. at Belleville, Ill., June 15, 1851; d. at Castle Point, N.Y., June 11, 1927. American naval officer; son of Peter J. Osterhaus.

Osterhaus, Peter Joseph. b. at Koblenz, Germany, Jan. 4, 1823; d. at Duisburg, Germany, Jan. 2, 1917. American soldier and diplomat, with the Union army in the Civil War. He commanded a brigade under J. C. Frémont, and commanded a division in the Battle of Missionary Ridge. He was subsequently U.S. consul at Lyons, France, and ultimately returned to Germany.

Osterholz-Scharmbeck (ös'tér.holz.shärm'bek). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, ab. 9 mi. N of Bremen. It has large cattle, hog, and horse markets, a dairy, and machine, furniture, and tobacco factories, 12,899 (1950).

Osterhout (ös'tér.hout), Winthrop John Vanleuven. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 2, 1871; d. 1939. American botanist and physiologist. He was assistant professor (1903-13) and professor (1913-25) at Harvard, and a member (1925-39) of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Österley (ös'tér.lí), Karl August Heinrich. [Also, Oesterley.] b. at Göttingen, Germany, Jan. 23, 1839; d. at Altona, Germany, Dec. 16, 1930. German landscape and genre painter; son of Karl Wilhelm Friedrich Österley. Some of his better-known paintings are Hanover, Norwegian Landscape, and Fiord in Norway.

Osterley, Karl Wilhelm Friedrich. [Also, Oesterley.] b. at Göttingen, Germany, June 22, 1805; d. at Hanover, Germany, March 23, 1891. German historical and portrait painter. He became court painter at Hanover in 1845. From 1831 to 1853 he lectured at the University of Göttingen.

Österling (ös'tér.ling), Anders. b. at Hålsingborg, Skåne, Sweden, 1884—, Swedish literary critic and lyric poet. He worked (1907-18) as a librarian and literary critic for the newspaper Göteborgs Handels- och Sjöfartstidning and later for the Svenska Dagbladet (1919-35) and Stockholms-Tidningen (1936 et seq.). Since 1936 Österling has been the editor of the world's oldest newspaper, the Swedish Post- och Inrikes Tidningar.

Ostermann (ös'tér.män; Russian, os.tir.mán'), Count Andrey. [Also, Osterman.] b. at Bochum, Westphalia, Germany, May 30, 1686; d. at Beresov, in Siberia, May 31, 1747. Russian diplomat. He was a trusted official of Peter the Great, for whom he concluded the peace of Nystad, Sept. 10, 1721, with Sweden. Catherine I appointed him imperial vice-chancellor and a member of the council of regency during the minority of Peter II. He enjoyed the favor of the empress Anna Ivanovna, but on the accession of Elizabeth was arrested and condemned to death; his sentence was commuted to exile in Siberia.

Ostermann-Tolstoy (-tol.stoi'), Count Aleksandr. b. 1770; d. near Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 12, 1857. Russian general, distinguished in the Turkish and Napoleonic wars.

Osterode (ös'te.rö'de). German name of Ostróda.

Osterode am Harz (ám härts). [Also, Osterode.] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated in the Harz Mountains, on the Söse River, ab. 20 mi. NE of Göttingen; cloth and garment manufactures; canneries. It is an old town; the Rathaus (town hall) and the Church of Saint Aegidius date from the 13th century; the Kornhaus dates from the 18th century. There is a ruined medieval castle. 15,649 (1950).

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pīne; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lūte, pūll; ʔn, then; ʔ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Österreich (é'stér.rí.ch). German name of Austria.
Österreichisch-Ungarn (-ü'ng'gá'rn) or Österreichisch-Ungarische Monarchie (é'stér.rí.ch.ish.ü'ng'gá'rish.é mō-nár.ché). German names of Austria-Hungary.
Östersjön (é'stér.shén). Swedish name of the Baltic Sea.
Östersöen (é'stér.sén). Danish name of the Baltic Sea.
Östersund (é'stér.sünd). Town in C Sweden, the capital of the län (county) of Jämtland, situated on Lake Stor, NW of Stockholm. It has machine and furniture manufactures, and a lumber trade. 21,378 (1950).
Ostfalen (öst'fá'len). Medieval name of the eastern division of the Saxons, living in the vicinity of what is now Brunswick, Germany, and in neighboring parts of the former Prussian provinces of Hanover and Saxony.
Ostfold (öst'fól). Fylke (county) in S Norway, bordering on the Skagerrak in the W, on Sweden in the E, and on Akershus in the N. Capital, Moss; area, 1,614 sq. mi.; pop. 178,449 (1946).
Ostfriesland (öst'frés'lánt). German name of East Friesland.
Ostia (öst'i.á). In ancient geography, a city in Latium, Italy, situated at the mouth of the Tiber, ab. 15 mi. SW of Rome. It was a port for Rome. Artificial harbors were constructed near it by Claudius I and Trajan because of the silt carried into the natural harbor by the Tiber.
Ostia (öst'yá). Village in W Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Latium, in the province of Roma, at the mouth of the Tiber River, slightly E of the site of the ancient town of the same name, incorporated into the city of Rome and connected with Rome by road and electrical railroad. Nearby is the Marina di Ostia, a seaside resort with a wide beach, frequented by Romans, and an airport. 1,160 (1936).
Ostia Aterni (öst'i.á. á.tér'ní). An ancient name of Pescara, Italy.
Ostiak (öst'i.ak). See Ostyak.
Ostian Way (öst'i.an). See Via Ostiensis.
Ostmark (öst'márk). See Austria.
Ostorius Scapula (öst'ó'ri.us skáp'ú.la). Roman general in Britain c50 A.D. He made conquests in the interior, defeating the Silures under Caratacus.
Ostpreussen (öst'proi'sgn). German name of East Prussia.
Ostrasia (öst.trá'zha). See Austrasia.
Ostrava (öst.rá.vá). Kraj (region) of Czechoslovakia, in Moravia-Silesia, bordering on Poland; coal mining. Capital, Ostrava; area, ab. 1,747 sq. mi.; pop. 790,285 (1947).
Ostrava. [German, Ostrau (öst'rau).] City in Czechoslovakia, capital of the kraj (region) of Ostrava, in NE Moravia-Silesia, on the Odra (Oder) River. The city consists of the towns of Moravská Ostrava (German, Mährisch-Ostrau) and Slezská Ostrava (German, Schlessisch-Ostrau), on opposite banks of the river, and of a number of suburbs, of which Vítkovice, on the S, is the most important. The city is the center of a great coal-mining and industrial region which is continued toward the E in the larger Polish (or Silesian) coal-mining region. Coal mining around Ostrava started c1780 and has expanded greatly during the 19th and 20th centuries. There are blast furnaces, rolling mills, iron foundries, machine, bridge, and kettle factories, and a number of other industries based on coal mining and ironmaking. Pop. of municipal district, including suburbs, 180,960 (1947).
Ostróda (öst.ró'dá). [German, Osterode.] Town in N Poland, in the województwo (province) of Olsztyn, formerly in East Prussia, ab. 20 mi. W of Olsztyn; lumber and flour mills; brickyards; horse and cattle markets. It came under the administration of Poland in 1945. Pop. 19,519 (1939); 6,769 (1946).
Ostrogoths (öst'ró.goths). [Also: East Goths, Greuthungs, Greutungs.] Eastern branch of the Goths. While dwelling in S Russia near the valley of the Don, they were attacked c375 A.D. by the Huns, were subjugated, and with the Huns pushed the Visigoths to the borders of the Roman Empire. After the Visigothic victory at Adrianople in 378, many Ostrogoths settled in Pannonia (now Hungary). Many of them later joined the army of Attila, and after his death (453) were employed by the Eastern emperors to defend the lower Danube.

Theodorice became their king in 474, in 488 led the nation over the Julian Alps, conquered Odoacer in 493 at Ravenna, and became king of Italy. Under this rule the country prospered. Belisarius was sent by Justinian I to expel the Ostrogoths; in 552 they were decisively defeated by the Byzantine general Narses. Italy was thereupon temporarily regained for the empire, and the Ostrogoths were absorbed in other peoples.
Ostrogózhsk (öst.ró.góshsk). [Also, Ostrogosh (öst.ró.gosh').] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Voronezh oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 150 mi. NE of Kharkov, situated on the Sosna River: food-processing industries. 11,653 (1937).
Ostrołęka (öst.ró.leng'ká). [Russian, Ostrolenka (öst.ró.leng'ka).] Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Warszawa, formerly in Russia, on the Narew River ab. 64 mi. NE of Warsaw: agricultural trade. Here on Feb. 16, 1807, the French under Nicolas Charles Oudinot defeated the Russians; on May 26, 1831, the Russians defeated the Polish insurgents; and on Aug. 3, 1915, the Germans defeated the Russians. 9,279 (1946).
Ostrov (öst'róf). [Plural, Ostrova (öst.ró.vá').] Russian word for "island": see the distinguishing element of the name.
Ostrowski (öst'róf.ské). Antoni. b. at Warsaw, Poland, 1782; d. near Tours, France, 1846. Polish patriot in the rebellion of 1830-31.
Ostrovsky (öst'róf'ski). Aleksandr Nikolayevich. b. at Moscow, April 12, 1823; d. June 14, 1886. Russian dramatic writer. He took his types from the tradesman class in such plays as The Storm (1880) and the earlier The Bankrupt (1847), the latter being forbidden the stage and causing Ostrovsky to be discharged from his government job and placed under police surveillance. He also wrote comedies and historical plays. His Snow Maiden (1873) was the basis of Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov's opera.
Ostrovsky, Nikolay Alekseyevich. b. at Viliya, in Volhynia, Russia, Sept. 29, 1934; d. in December, 1936. Russian novelist and communist propagandist. For the last ten years of his life he was an invalid, bedridden and blind. Nevertheless he wrote the novels The Tempering of Steel (1932) and Storm Born (1936). Soviet critics have lavished the highest praise on these books, particularly the former, because of its protagonist, who has been termed "one of the most inspired images of the heroic men of the revolution." The Tempering of Steel has been translated into many languages. In English it was published as The Making of a Hero (1937).
Ostrów (öst'róf). [Also: Ostrów Wielkopolski (vyel.kó.pól'ské); German, Ostrowo (öst'ró'vó).] Town in NW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Poznań, W of Kalisz: railroad junction and agricultural trade center. It has distilleries, brickyards, and pottery manufactures. The town passed to Prussia in 1793, and to Poland in 1919. Pop. 31,838 (1946).
Ostrowiec (öst'ró'vyets). [Also, Ostrowiec Świętokrzyski (shyvet'ró.kshi'ské).] Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Kielce, on the Kamienna River, a tributary of the Vistula River, ab. 33 mi. E of Kielce: important iron foundries. 19,211 (1946).
Ostrów Mazowiecka (öst'róf mǎ.zó.vyets'ká). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Warszawa, ab. 55 mi. NE of Warsaw: manufactures of agricultural machinery. 12,334 (1946).
Ostrvo (öst'ér.vó). Serbo-Croatian word for "island": see the distinguishing element of the name.
Ostsee (öst'zä). German name of the Baltic Sea.
Ost-Tirol (öst.tí.röl'). German name of East Tyrol.
Ostuni (öst'ó'ní). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Brindisi, ab. 22 mi. NW of Brindisi: trading center of an olive oil, wine, and grain producing district. It has a cathedral in Romanesque and Gothic style and remains of medieval towers and walls. Pop. of commune, 28,247 (1934); of town, 21,826 (1936).
Ostwald (öst'vált). Wilhelm. b. at Riga, Latvia, Sept. 2, 1853; d. at Grossbethen, Germany, April 4, 1932. German chemist, professor of physical chemistry (1887-1906) at the University of Leipzig. In his day, he was unequalled in his influence on chemistry as a teacher, textbook writer, advocate, reviewer, and editor. He wrote the first, and very influential, textbook of physical chemistry (1885), effectively championed the theories of Svante Arrhenius and Gibbs, and taught many important physical chemists. With J. H. van't Hoff he founded in 1887 the Zeitschrift für physikalische Chemie, the first journal on the subject, and in 1901 the Annalen der Naturphilosophie. He was first exchange professor at Harvard University in 1905. He published Lehrbuch der allgemeinen Chemie (1885-87), Elektrochemie (1894-95), Grundlinien der anorganischen Chemie (1903), Vorlesungen über Naturphilosophie (1902), Die Schule der Chemie (1904), Malerbrieft (1904), Elemente und Verbindungen (1904), R. W. Bunsen (1915), Kunst und Wissenschaft (1915), Ikonskopische Studien (1905), Individualität und Immortalität (1906), Prinzipien der Chemie (1907), Die Energie (1908), Grosse Männer (1909), and Farbkunde (1923). He was awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1909 for his fundamental work on catalysts, reaction speeds, and chemical dissociation. His method of producing nitric acid from ammonia was one of the bases of the German munitions industry during World War I.

Ostyak (os'ti.āk). [Also: Chanti, Khante, Ostiak.] Finno-Ugrian people dwelling in the Ob River basin in W Siberia, largely between 60° and 65° N. They numbered 22,000 in 1931. Under Turkic domination in the 13th century, they came under Russian rule after 1581. They are largely fishermen. However, strong cultural differences exist between various Ostyak groups. In the south, agriculture and horse and cattle breeding are important occupations; in the far north, reindeer breeding. The Ostyaks of the Sosva River have an archaic culture; they are small-game hunters, and lack both reindeer and horses.

Ostyak-Vogulsk (os'ty.ä'k'p.vo.göl'sk'). Former name of Khanty-Mansiisk.

Ostyak-Samoyeds (os'ti.āk.sam.ō.yel'z'). See Samoyeds.

Ostyak-Vogul National Okrug (os'ty.ä'k'vo.göl'). Former name of the Khanty-Mansi National Okrug.

O'Sullivan (ō'sul'iv.ən), John Louis. b. supposedly aboard a British man-of-war in Gibraltar Harbor, in November, 1813; d. at New York, Feb. 24, 1895. American journalist and diplomat, credited with having originated the phrase "manifest destiny." He practiced law at New York until 1837 and in the latter year helped found the United States Magazine and Democratic Review (first published at Washington, D.C.; at New York after July 1841). It was in this nationalist organ that the phrase "manifest destiny" first appeared (1845), in an article attributed to O'Sullivan. He became (Feb. 1, 1854) U.S. chargé d'affaires in Portugal and was named (June 19, 1854) minister resident there, serving in this post until 1858.

Osuna (ō.sō'nā). [Also: Oxuna; ancient names, Urso, Orsona.] Town in S Spain, in the province of Sevilla, ab. 52 mi. E of Sevilla. It has an agricultural trade, and manufactures of oil, soap, esparto mats, bricks, pottery, and hats. Pop. 24,083 (1940).

Osuna, Duke of. Title of Téllez y Girón, Pedro.

Oswald (oz'wāld, -wōld), Saint. b. c.604; killed at the battle of Maserfield, Aug. 5, 642. King of Northumbria (c.635-642); son of Ethelfrith. He was banished from Northumbria when his uncle Edwin became king in 617. During his exile he apparently became converted to Christianity in Iona. In 633 Edwin was killed by Caedwalla of Wales and Penda of Mercia, and soon after Oswald defeated Caedwalla at a place called Heavenfield and became king of Northumbria. He reunited Deira and Bernicia with Northumbria and brought the kingdom once more to a position of eminence. He received (635) St. Aidan as a missionary to the Northumbrians and presented him with Lindisfarne as the place to establish a monastery. His death in battle against the pagan Penda made a Christian martyr of him; his festival is celebrated August 5.

Oswald, in Shakespeare's King Lear, steward to Goneril.

Oswald, Richard. b. in Scotland, 1705; d. at Auchincruive, Ayrshire, Scotland, 1784. English merchant and diplomat, a chief negotiator of peace with the American colonies (1782). For many years, he was engaged in business in America, where he acquired great knowledge of commercial affairs. He was introduced by Adam Smith to William Petty, Lord Shelburne (Marquis of Lansdowne), who appointed him his agent in the peace negotiations with Benjamin Franklin at Paris (1782).

Oswaldtwistle (oz'wāld.twis'l). Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, situated on the Leeds and Liverpool Canal ab. 19 mi. N of Manchester, ab. 212 mi. NW of London by rail. 12,133 (1951).

Oswegatchie (os.wē.gach'ī). See Ogdensburg.

Oswego (os.wē'gō). City in N central New York, a county seat (with Pulaski) of Oswego County, on Lake Ontario at the mouth of the Oswego River, ab. 34 mi. NW of Syracuse; manufactures of paper, machinery, matches, and other products; transshipping point for coal and paper pulp. It is the seat of a U.S. military reservation and a U.S. Coast Guard station. It was the site of a council (1766) between Chief Pontiac and Sir William Johnson by which Great Britain obtained full possession of the Great Lakes basin. 22,647 (1950).

Oswego. City in NW Oregon, S of Portland; residential suburb. 3,316 (1950).

Oswego River. River in N central New York which is formed by the junction of the Seneca and Oneida rivers ab. 12 mi. NW of Syracuse, and flows into Lake Ontario at Oswego. It is the outlet of the lake system of central New York. Length, ab. 24 mi.

Oswestry (oz'wes.tri). Municipal borough, market town, and railway center in W England, in Shropshire, ab. 16 mi. NW of Shrewsbury, ab. 173 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a very ancient town, possessing the ruins of an ancient castle (Edward I used this castle as one of his military bases for the subjugation of Wales). Until 1923 the town built railway locomotives; now, however, it possesses only repair shops. Cheese making has been important, but is giving way to a greater production of milk for the city markets. Oswestry is generally identified with the ancient Maserfield, where Oswald was slain in 642. Pop. 10,713 (1951).

Óswięcim (ō.shy'en.chēm). [German, Auschwitz.] Town in S Poland, in the województwo (province) of Katowice, formerly in Galicia, Austria, situated on the Sola River, ab. 30 mi. W of Kraków; zinc rolling mills; flour mills. The coal-mining district of Janiszewice is in the vicinity. During World War II, the Germans established here one of their largest and most dreaded concentration camps, consisting of three huge encampments, one of which conducted "medical experiments" resulting in the death of many of their subjects; another one occupied its prisoners in processes for the manufacture of artificial rubber that resulted in vast numbers of deaths; it is reported that through these practices as well as by means of gas-ovens, various kinds of tortures, and exposure, about four million civilian prisoners, chiefly Jews and Poles, were put to death between 1940 and 1945, perhaps the most gigantic example of genocide in human history. The Germans abandoned the camp on Jan. 17, 1945, taking 58,000 of the remaining inmates with them; the Russians entered the empty establishments on Jan. 27, 1945.

Oswy (os'wi, oz'- or Oswiu (ōs'wi.ō). b. c.612; d. 670. King of Northumbria (642-670); brother of Oswald. He succeeded Oswald in Bernicia and some ten years later became king of Deira as well. He himself married the daughter of his uncle Edwin, thereby uniting the principal Northumbrian factions, and two of his daughters were married to sons of Penda of Mercia. Nevertheless, he was attacked by Penda in 655; Penda was killed and Oswy became ruler shortly thereafter of all of England except Wessex, Kent, and Sussex. He founded the monastery at Whitby and convened and presided over (664) the Synod of Whitby, at which the Roman usages were adopted instead of the Celtic.

Otadini (ō.ta.dī'nī). See under Gododin.

Otaheite (ō.ta.hē'tē, -hā'-). Former name of Tahiti.

Otaru (ō.tā.rū). City in Japan, on the W shore of Hokkaido. It has a fair harbor, which has been considerably improved by breakwaters and moles. By far the most important exports are coal and lumber, followed by beans, peas, potatoes, onions, and salmon. The main imports are potash and bean cake. 17,330 (1950).

Otavallo (ō.tā.vā'lō). City in N Ecuador, in Imbabura province; wool and carpet industries. 10,708 (est. 1944).

Otello (ō.tel'lō). Opera by Gioacchino Rossini, with a libretto adapted from Shakespeare's Othello, produced at Naples on Dec. 4, 1816.

Otello. Opera in four acts by Giuseppe Verdi, with a libretto by Arrigo Boito adapted from Shakespeare's Otello, produced at La Scala, Milan on Feb. 5, 1887.

Otescu (ô.tes'kô), Nonna. b. at Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 3, 1888—, Rumanian composer. Among his compositions are the opera Ilderim, the ballet Le Rubis enchanlé, and the orchestral selection Le Temple de Gnife.

Otford (ô'tford). Place in Kent, England, near Sevenoaks, where Offa, king of Mercia, defeated (775) the men of Kent.

Otfried or Otfrid (ô'tfrîd; German, ô'tfrît). fl. 9th century. German monk, author of Das Evangelienbuch, a poetical harmony of the Gospels in Old High German. He was a pupil of Rabanus Maurus. His poem is the oldest in German characterized by the end rhyme. He is also the first German poet whose name is now known to modern scholars.

Othello, the Moor of Venice (ô.thel'ô). Tragedy by William Shakespeare, acted in 1604, and printed in 1622 in a quarto and in 1623 in the first folio edition. It was founded on one of Giovanni Battista Giraldi's (Cinthio's) novels in the Hecatommithi (1565).

Othin (ô'thin). See Odin.

Othman (ôth'man, ôth.mân'). See also Osman.

Othman. b. c575; killed at Medina, Arabia, 656. Caliph of the Moslems (644-656); successor of Omar. He extended the caliphate by conquests in Persia, Africa, and the island of Cyprus. A conspiracy was formed against him by Ayesha, widow of Mohammed, and he fell by the hand of Mohammed, son of the caliph Abu-Bakr. He was succeeded by Ali. It was from him that the members of the Omniad dynasty traced their claim to the caliphate.

Othman Nuri Pasha (ô'rê pâ.shâ'). See Osman Nuri Pasha.

Othmar (ô'tmâr), Raoul. A pseudonym of Auernheimer, Raoul.

Otho (ô'thôs; German, ô'tô). See also Otto.

Otho (ô'thôs), Marcus Salvius. b. 32 A.D.; committed suicide, in April, 69. Emperor of Rome (January-April, 69). He was governor of Lusitania under Nero, whose mistress Otho's wife Poppaea Sabina was; he overthrew Galba by a conspiracy after helping him gain the purple, and was in turn overthrown by Vitellius.

Othon (ô.tôn). Tragedy by Pierre Corneille, produced in 1664.

Othrys (ôth'ris). Mountain range in the S part of Thessaly, Greece, due S of Ossa and SW of Pelion. Peak elevation, ab. 5,665 ft.

Otiartes (ô.ti.âr'têz). Ninth mythical king of Babylon in the time before the Flood, mentioned by Berosus (Babylonian priest of the 3rd century B.C.). The name is thought to be a scribe's error for Opatres. Otiartes is identical with the Ubara-tutu of the cuneiform account of the Flood.

Ottinger (ô'ting.êr), Friedrich Christoph. b. at Göppingen, Württemberg, Germany, May 6, 1702; d. at Murrhardt, Württemberg, Feb. 10, 1782. German Protestant theologian, noted as a theosophist.

Otis (ô'tis), Elisha Graves. b. at Halifax, Vt., Aug. 3, 1811; d. at Yonkers, N.Y., April 8, 1861. American inventor and manufacturer, founder of the Otis Elevator Company. He became (1851) master mechanic at a Yonkers bedstead factory, where he introduced an automatic safety device for elevators while superintending the construction of the plant. His innovation led him to establish a shop at Yonkers where he pioneered in the manufacture of elevators. He patented (1861) a steam elevator and also received patents for a steam plow (1857) and a bake oven (1858).

Otis, Elwell Stephen. b. at Frederick, Md., March 25, 1838; d. Oct. 21, 1909. American general. He served in the Union army during the Civil War and on the frontier against the Indians (1867-81), then organized the U.S. infantry and cavalry school at Leavenworth, Kan., which he conducted until 1885. In 1898 he was placed in command of the Department of the Pacific, he was military governor of the Philippines until April, 1900.

Otis, Fessenden Nott. b. at Ballston Spa, N.Y., March 6, 1825; d. at New Orleans La., May 24, 1900. American physician. He is generally credited as being the first to cure stricture; his major contribution is set forth in Stricture of the Male Urethra; Its Radical Cure (1878, 1889).

Otis, George Alexander. b. Nov. 12, 1830; d. Feb. 23, 1881. American army surgeon and editor of the surgical records of the official government publication, the Medical and Surgical History of the War of the Rebellion.

Otis, Harrison Gray. b. at Boston, Oct. 8, 1765; d. there, Oct. 28, 1848. American politician. A chief New England Federalist leader, he is noted for his role in the Hartford Convention (1814-15). He was graduated (1783) from Harvard, studied law privately, and was admitted to the bar (1786) at Boston. He was elected (1794) to the General Court of Massachusetts, to which he was reelected in 1795, and soon became a leading Massachusetts Federalist. He was appointed (1796) U.S. district attorney for Massachusetts and resigned that post to serve (1797-1801) in Congress. After leaving Washington, he resumed the practice of law at Boston and rose in Federalist councils, although he was not admitted into the inner circle because of his support of President John Adams's conciliatory policy toward France in 1799. He served (1802-05, 1813-14) in the Massachusetts house of representatives, of which he was speaker from 1803 to 1805, and sat in the state senate (1805-13, 1814-17), of which he was president (1805-06, 1808-11). In 1814 he led the Hartford Convention, having already played a prominent role in the preliminaries to that famous assembly. He was elected (1817) to the U.S. Senate, but lost stature with the publication of his controversial Letters Developing the Character and Views of the Hartford Convention (1820) and Otis' Letters in Defense of the Hartford Convention . . . (1824). In 1822 he resigned from the Senate and made an unsuccessful bid for the mayoralty of Boston. Although Federalist power had virtually disappeared in the years after the War of 1812, he was elected mayor of Boston three times (1829-31).

Otis, Harrison Gray. b. at Marietta, Ohio, Feb. 10, 1837; d. at Hollywood, Calif., July 30, 1917. American army officer and journalist. He served in the Union forces during the Civil War, emerging as a brevet lieutenant colonel. After holding several posts in state (Ohio) and federal service, he moved (1876) from Washington, D.C., to California, where he brought out the Santa Barbara Press; moving (1882) to Los Angeles, he acquired an interest in the Times, of which he had assumed control by 1886; and until his death was president and manager of the Times-Mirror Company. He served as a brigadier general and later brevet major general of volunteers during the Spanish-American War. On Oct. 1, 1910 the Times building was dynamited (as a terrorist retaliation for the newspaper's uncompromising anti-union editorial policy); the blast killed 21 people, and the confession (1911) of their part in it by two local labor leaders named McNamara provided one of the biggest news stories of the early 20th century.

Otis, James. b. at the Great Marshes, West Barnstable, Mass., Feb. 5, 1725; d. at Andover, Mass., May 23, 1783. American Revolutionary agitator, politician, and publicist. He was graduated (1743) from Harvard, was admitted to the bar (1748) in Plymouth County, and moved (c1750) to Boston. After achieving some eminence as a lawyer, he served temporarily (1754) as king's attorney and later as king's advocate general of the vice-admiralty court at Boston. In 1760 he resigned from that post to support the cause of the Boston merchants against the enforcement of the Sugar Act of 1733. His speech before the superior court in 1761 contained the fundamental constitutional doctrine (that there were certain fundamental or "natural" rights of which no Englishman, in the colonies or elsewhere, could be deprived, even by Parliament) which was to be stressed by colonial agitators in the years immediately ahead. Shortly after delivering this argument, he became (May, 1761) a representative to the Massachusetts General Court, and during the years from 1761 to 1769 rose to a position of dominance in the political life of the colony, sharing his station with Samuel Adams. In 1763, in a speech made at Faneuil Hall, Boston, he said: "Every British Subject in America is, of Common Right, by Acts of Parliament, and by the laws of God and Nature, entitled to all the essential Privileges of Britons." Otis expanded this thesis in the effective and influential The Rights of the British Colonies Asserted and Proved (1764) and in later pamphlets expressed views which exercised a considerable effect upon American public opinion. These efforts have given him a place as one of the leading agitators of the period immediately preceding the American Revolution. On June 14, 1764, he became chairman of a General Court committee for corresponding with other colonial assemblies and helped draft the Massachusetts circular letter (1768) which contributed towards coalescing the colonies. In 1769 he suffered a severe blow on the head during a brawl occasioned by political differences and thereafter began to drink heavily and deteriorate mentally. Although a persuasive publicist, he opposed direct action by the colonists; at the battle of Bunker Hill, however, he appeared at the scene of battle with a borrowed gun.

Otley (ot'li). Urban district and market town in N central England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, on the river Wharfe ab. 13 mi. NW of Leeds, ab. 197 mi. N of London by rail. 11,533 (1951).

Otnit (ot'nit). Legendary emperor of the Lombards, in the German Heldenbuch. The fairy king, Oberon, assists him in his designs.

Oto (ō'tō). [Also Otoe, Otto.] North American Indian tribe, formerly inhabiting SE Nebraska; the language belongs to the Mississippi Valley division of the Siouan family. During the historic period the Oto became consolidated with the Missouri tribe, but quarreled and separated. The Oto gradually migrated or were forced southward until they reached the Platte River. In the late 19th century they migrated to Oklahoma. Remnants (ab. 900) are now on reservations in N central Oklahoma.

Otomacoc (ō'tō.mā'kōz). [Also, Otomacs (māks').] Tribe of South American Indians of SW Venezuela, now extinct, but formerly noted for their clay-eating habits. They resented and resisted Jesuit missionary activity, and finally disappeared. Their language, called Otomacoc, has been classified as a small, independent, one-language family since it was first studied in 1891. Some Carib admixture is now suspected, however.

Otomi (ō'tō.mē'). Group of Indian tribes in a mountainous district of C Mexico. At the time of the Spanish conquest they had long been subjected to Aztec influence and domination, but traditions and linguistic evidence strongly suggest that the Otomi were established in the area before either the Toltec or Aztec. They joined with Cortés in the conquest of Mexico City. Their descendants today number several hundred thousand and comprise a large part of the rural population of the area in which they were once dominant.

Otomian (ō'tō.mē'an). Language family in W central Mexico, comprised of several languages and dialects which are still spoken and to which the extinct languages of the Chorotega Indians in Nicaragua and Costa Rica were also related.

Otompan (ō'tō.m.pān'). Original Indian name of Otumba.

Otrante (dō'trānt). Duc d'. Title of Fouché, Joseph.

Otranto (ō'trānt.ō; Anglicized, ō'tran'tō). [Ancient name, Hydruntum.] Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Lecce, ab. 45 mi. SE of Brindisi: the easternmost town of Italy. The cathedral is a Romanesque building of the 11th century, with 15th-century Gothic additions and remarkable mosaic pavement; baroque additions of the 17th and 18th centuries have been removed. Like the Church of San Pietro, it shows a Byzantine influence. In the early Middle Ages, Otranto was a Byzantine city, entirely Greek in language and culture, repulsing Gothic and Saracenic, and for a long time also Norman, attempts to dislocate Greek rule; however, it fell finally to the Normans. It was a key point in the Allied blockade of Austria-Hungary during World War I, and a supply base (for both sides, at one time or another) in World War II. Pop. of commune, 3,234 (1936); of town, 2,507 (1936).

Otranto, Castle of. See Castle of Otranto.

Otranto, Strait of. Sea passage connecting the Adriatic Sea with the Mediterranean, and separating Italy from Albania. Width, ab. 45 mi.

Otranto, Terra di. Former name of the province of Lecce, Italy.

O'Trigger (ō'trīg'ēr), Sir Lucius. Character in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's comedy The Rivals. He is a fortune-hunting Irishman, noted for his pertinacious attachment to the practice of dueling.

Otsego (ot.sē'gō). City in S Michigan, in Allegan County, on the Kalamazoo River: manufactures of paper. 3,990 (1950).

Otsego Lake. Lake in C New York, in Otsego County, ab. 60 mi. W of Albany. It is the source of the Susquehanna River, and is celebrated in Cooper's "Leatherstocking" novels. Length, ab. 8 mi.

Otsu (ō.tō). City in S Honshu, Japan, on the W shore of Lake Biwa, near its S end, ab. 10 mi. E of Kyoto: lake port and resort center. 85,251 (1950).

Ott (ot), Arnold. b. at Vevey, Switzerland, 1840; d. at Lucerne, Switzerland, 1910. Swiss dramatist and poet writing in German. He wrestled with the problem of historical drama in Agnes Bernauer (1889), St. Helena (1903), and others. Later he turned to the production of patriotic drama for open-air performances, but with indifferent success.

Ottaviano (ōt.tā.vyā'nō). [Former name, Ottalano (ōt.tā.yā'nō); Latin, Octavianum.] Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Napoli, on the NE slope of Mount Vesuvius, ab. 11 mi. E of Naples: agricultural commune. It produces the wine called Lacrimae Christi. It was damaged by volcanic lava in 1822 and 1906. Pop. of commune, 11,170 (1936); of town, 6,088 (1936).

Ottawa (ot'ā.wā). North American Indian tribe formerly inhabiting the area N of Lake Huron, and speaking an Algonquian language. Their culture was typical Eastern Woodlands hunting and fishing culture. They were driven out by the Iroquois during the early 18th century, and remnants now live near Mackinac, Mich.

Ottawa. City in NE Illinois, county seat of La Salle County, on the Illinois River at the mouth of the Fox River, ab. 70 mi. SW of Chicago: manufactures of glass, farm equipment, and clay products. It was the scene of the first Lincoln-Douglas debate (Aug. 21, 1858). 16,957 (1950).

Ottawa. City in E Kansas, county seat of Franklin County, on the Osage River: railway shops; manufactures of farm machinery, ice cream, and refrigerators. 10,081 (1950).

Ottawa. Village in NW Ohio, county seat of Putnam County, N of Lima: food manufactures. 2,962 (1950).

Ottawa. [Early name, Bytown.] City in Ontario, Canada, capital of the Dominion of Canada, on the Ottawa River ab. 100 mi. NW of Montreal. It is an important lumber trade center and has manufactures of lumber, flour, and dairy products. There is also a large publishing industry associated with the government. The Parliament buildings stand on a hill overlooking the river; there are numerous other public buildings in Ottawa, including the supreme court, public archives, royal mint, and various museums and galleries. It is the seat of Ottawa University and of Carleton College. It was settled in 1827; the name was changed and it was made a city in 1854; it was selected as the dominion capital in 1858. The government has in operation a long-range plan for the beautification of the capital district as a memorial to the Canadians who died in World War II. Pop. of city, 154,951 (1941), 202,045 (1951); with suburbs, 281,908 (1951).

Ottawa River. River in Canada which forms the S part of the boundary between Quebec and Ontario and joins the St. Lawrence River near Montreal. It flows through a succession of lakes. It is navigable in its lower course, and has several important hydroelectric power developments. Length, 696 mi.

Ottendorfer (ot'en.dōr.fēr), Oswald. b. at Zwittau (Svitavy), in Moravia, Feb. 26, 1826; d. Dec. 15, 1900. American journalist and philanthropist. He arrived (1850) in the U.S. and became (1858) editor of the New-Yorker Staats-Zeitung. He was an alderman and supervisor (1872-74) in the New York City government, and founded the Ottendorfer branch of the New York Public Library.

Ottensen (ot'en.zen). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Hamburg, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, immediately adjoining Altona. It is a suburb of Hamburg.

fat, fāte, fār, āsk, fāre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nōte, mōve, nōr; up, lōte, pūll; ʔn, then; ʔ, d or j; ʔ, s or sh; ʔ, t or ch;

Otter (ot'ér), Peaks of. Two peaks of the Blue Ridge in Virginia. Elevation of highest peak, 4,001 ft.

Otterbein (ot'ér.bín; German, ot'ér.bín), Philip William. b. at Dillenburg, Germany, June 3, 1726; d. at Baltimore, Nov. 17, 1813. American clergyman. He was the founder of the sect of the United Brethren in Christ.

Otterburn (ot'ér.bérn). Village in Northumberland, England, near the Scottish border, ab. 29 mi. NW of Newcastle. Here on Aug. 19, 1388, the English under the Percys were defeated by the Scots under Douglas.

Otter Creek (ot'ér). River in Vt. Vermont which flows into Lake Champlain ab. 5 mi. NW of Vergennes. Length, ab. 90 mi.

Ottery St. Mary (ot'ér.i.sánt.má'fí). Urban district and market town in SW England, in Devonshire, situated on the river Otter ab. 12 mi. E of Exeter, ab. 162 mi. SW of London by rail. The home-craft manufacture of lace is carried on here. It was the birthplace of the poet Coleridge, 3,827 (est. 1948).

Otto (ò'tó). See also Oto.

Otto (ò'tó). b. at Reichenau, Austria, Nov. 20, 1912—. Ex-crown prince of Austria-Hungary; oldest child of Karl Franz Joseph, the last emperor. He has lived in exile in Switzerland, Madeira, Belgium, and (since 1940) in the U.S.

Otto I (of Bavaria). b. at Munich, April 27, 1848; d. at Fürstenried, Germany, Oct. 11, 1926. King of Bavaria; brother of Louis II, whom he succeeded in 1886. He became insane in 1873, and succeeded under the regency of his uncle Prince Luitpold. Otto was later deposed and was succeeded (1913) by his cousin Louis III.

Otto I (of Greece). [Also, Otho.] b. at Salzburg, Austria, June 1, 1815; d. at Bamberg, Bavaria, Germany, July 26, 1867. King of Greece. The second son of Louis I of Bavaria, he was chosen king of Greece (1832) by the London Conference, and ruled under a regency of Bavarian advisers until 1835, when he assumed the government in person. His reign was extremely unpopular and he was deposed through the revolution of 1832.

Otto I (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Also, Otho; called Otto the Great.] b. 912; d. at Menlohen, Saxony, Germany, May 7, 973. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (962-973). He was the son of Henry I, whom he succeeded as king of Germany in 936. The early part of his reign was occupied in subduing his turbulent nobles. He put an end to the incursions of the Bohemians, the Wends, and the Danes, and in 951 went to the support of Adelaide, queen of Lombardy, against Berengar II. He defeated Berengar and married Adelaide. In 955 he inflicted a decisive defeat on the Magyars on the Lechfeld. In 962 he was crowned emperor at Rome, reviving the office founded by Charlemagne.

Otto II (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Also, Otho.] b. 955; d. at Rome, Dec. 7, 983. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (973-983); son of Otto I and Adelaide. He subdued (c977) a revolt of his cousin Henry, Duke of Bavaria. In 978 the French invaded Lorraine, and were expelled by the emperor, who unsuccessfully besieged Paris. He married the Greek princess Theophano, through whom he claimed Apulia and Calabria in southern Italy. His claim was resisted by the Greeks with the assistance of the Saracens. After some successes he was totally defeated in 982.

Otto III (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Also: Otho; called the "Wonder of the World" (because of his intellectual endowments).] b. 980; d. at Paterno, near Viterbo, Italy, in January, 1002. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (983-1002); son of Otto II. During his minority the regency was conducted by his mother, Theophano, in Germany (after her death, by the archbishop of Mainz), and his grandmother Adelaide in Italy. He assumed the reins of government in 996. He aimed to make Rome the imperial residence and center of a new universal empire, but died at the age of 22.

Otto IV (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Also, Otho.] b. c1174; d. at the Harzburg, Germany, May 19, 1218. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (1209-18); second son of Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria. He was elected king of Germany in opposition to Philip of Swabia in 1198, and was crowned emperor in 1209. He afterward became involved in a quarrel with the Pope, who in 1212 put forward Frederick II as anti-emperor.

Having allied himself with England, he concerted an invasion of France with John Lackland, with whom he was defeated at Bouvines in 1214. Discredited by this defeat, he withdrew to his hereditary domain of Brunswick.

Otto (ò'tó), Louise. [Also, Louise Otto-Peters (-pá'tér's).] b. at Meissen, Germany, March 26, 1819; d. at Leipzig, Germany, March 13, 1895. German feminist and writer, considered to have been the first real organizer of the feminist movement in Germany. She sought with her poetry (Mein Lebensgang, 1893) and her novels (Ludwig der Kellner, 1842) to improve the lot of German working women in her day; she edited Frauenzeitung für höhere weibliche Interessen until it was suppressed in the political reaction of 1852; and she founded in 1865 and directed as long as she lived the Allgemeine Deutsche Frauenvereine, the first and most important of the German feminist organizations.

Otto, Walter. b. at Breslau, May 30, 1878—. German historian, professor (1907 et seq.) at the universities of Greifswald, Marburg, Breslau, and Munich. He edited the collection of papiri at Munich University.

Ottoeburen (ot'ó.boi.rén). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, situated on the Günz River near Memmingen. A summer resort, with agricultural trade, it is also the seat of a famous Benedictine abbey, founded in 764. Most of the present abbey buildings date from the 18th century (the church, erected in the period 1737-66, is considered an outstanding example of German baroque architecture. Pop. about 5,000.

Ottoboni (ò'tó.bò'nē), Pietro. b. 1668; d. Feb. 17, 1740. Italian cardinal; nephew of Pope Alexander VIII. He received the cardinalate in 1690, but is principally noted as a patron of art. He collected a fine library, containing manuscript masses by Palestrina and other great masters, which after his death were purchased by Pope Benedict XIV and presented to the Vatican.

Ottoboni, Pietro. Original name of Pope Alexander VIII.

Ottoboni Fiesco (fies'kó). Original name of Pope Adrian V.

Ottocar I (of Bohemia) (ot'ó.kär). d. 1230. Duke (1192-93, 1197-93) and king (1193-1230) of Bohemia. He was able to obtain (1216) imperial consent to keeping the succession in Bohemia in his family, thus establishing a hereditary kingship in Bohemia. He ended (1221) a long struggle with the Church by giving up his right to discipline the clergy.

Ottocar II (of Bohemia) (ot'ó.kär). b. c1230; killed 1278. King of Bohemia (1233-78). He acquired Austria, Styria, Carinthia, and Carniola. For these German fiefs he refused to do homage to Rudolf I of Hapsburg, king of Germany, who in consequence declared war against him. He was defeated and killed on the Marchfeld in 1278.

Ottokar (ot'ó.kär). See Odoacer.

Ottomans (ot'ó.manz). Branch of the Turks which founded and ruled the Turkish Empire. The Ottoman Turks lived originally in central Asia. Under the reign (1288-1326) of their first sultan, Osman I, they founded a realm in Asia Minor, which was soon extended into Europe. With the capture of Constantinople in 1453 they succeeded to the Byzantine Empire, and their rule, at its height in the 16th century, extended over the greater part of SE Europe and much of W Asia and N Africa. The Ottoman Turks, being Sunnite Mohammedans, used to regard the sultans as caliphs.

Otto of Freising (ot'ó; frí'zing). d. Sept. 22, 1158. German historian, bishop of Freising, in Bavaria. His histories were edited in 1867.

Otto the Great. See Otto I (of the Holy Roman Empire).

Otto von Wittelsbach (ón vit'els.bäch). Killed 1209. The murderer (1208) of Philip of Swabia, king of Germany.

Ottumwa (o.tum'wa). [Former name, Louisville.] City in SE Iowa, county seat of Wapello County, on the Des Moines River ab. 70 mi. NW of Burlington: coal-mining, meat-packing, machinery, and metalworking industries. Pop. 33,631 (1930).

Ottweiler (ot'vî.lér). Town in the Saar territory, NE of Saarbrücken: stone quarries and brickyards; machine industry. 7,290 (1939).

Otuel (ot'û.el), Sir. In medieval Carolingian romance, one of Charlemagne's paladins. He was a pagan knight, but was converted to Christianity by the prayers of Charlemagne and his people during a battle.

Otumba (ô.tôm'bâ). [Original Indian name, Otompan, meaning "Place of the Otomi."] Town in S Mexico, in México state, ab. 35 mi. NE of Mexico City, on the railroad to Veracruz. It was an ancient Indian pueblo, and its name suggests that it was once inhabited by Otomi Indians. Near it, during the retreat from Mexico, Cortés defeated the Aztec forces, July 7, 1520. Pop. under 5,000 (1940).

Otway (ot'wâ), Thomas. b. at Trotton, Sussex, England, March 3, 1652; d. at Tower Hill, London, April 14, 1685. Principal tragic poet of the English classical school. He entered Christ Church, Oxford, in 1669. He fell in love with Mrs. Barry, who appeared in his Alcibiades, and she became his evil genius; to escape her he enlisted and served in Flanders, but returned to her. She made her greatest reputation in his plays. He died in a baker's shop near the sponging-house in which his last days were spent. Among his plays are Alcibiades (1675), Don Carlos (1676), translations of Racine's Titus and Berenice and Molière's Fourberies de Scapin (Cheats of Scapin, 1677), Friendship in Fashion (1678), The Orphan (1680), The Soldier's Fortune (1681), Scipio Marius (1681), Venice Preserved (1682), and The Atheist (1684); a second part of The Soldier's Fortune.

Otwock (ôt'vôtsk). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Warszawa, SE of Warsaw. It is a suburb of Warsaw, and a summer resort. 12,592 (1946).

Ötztal or Ötztal (êts'täl). [Also, Oetzthal.] Valley in the Tyrolean Alps, on the S side of the upper valley of the Inn, SW of Innsbruck. It is noted for its picturesque scenery.

Ötztaler or Ötztaler Alps (êts'täl.lér). [Also, Oetzthaler Alps.] Large group of the Alps in the Tyrol, Austria, S of the Inn River.

Oud (wad). See under Wadi.

Ouadaï (wâ.dî). French form of Wadai.

Ouadane (wâ.dân'). [Also: Ouadan, Wadan.] Town in French West Africa, in the Adrar region of Mauritania territory in the W part of the Sahara near the border of Rio de Oro.

Ouagadougou (wâ.gâ.dô'gô). [Also, Wagadugu.] Capital of the reconstituted territory of Upper Volta, French West Africa. Situated ab. 90 mi. N of the N boundary of the Gold Coast, it is an important road junction. 18,000 (1945).

Ouakwanyama (wâ.kwân.yâ'mâ). See Kwanyama.

Oualo (wâ'lô). See Walo.

Ouargla (wâr'glâ). [Also, Wargla.] Chief town and administrative center of Oasis Sahariennes, Algeria, in NW Africa, ab. 200 mi. S of Biskra on one of the trans-Saharan routes to the French Niger colony. The oldest town in the Sahara, it was founded by the Berbers in the 10th century. The oasis is supplied with many deep wells. 5,461 (1918).

Ouasoulou (wâ.sô'lô). See Wasulu.

Oubangui (ô.bâng'gê). See Ubangi.

Oubangui-Chari (ô.bâng'gê.shâ'rê). French form of Ubangi-Shari.

Oubangui-Chari-Tchad (-châd'). See Ubangi-Shari-Chad Colony.

Oucas (ô'kaz). Term sometimes applied to the Indians of the South American Indian linguistic stock known usually as Araucanian.

Ouchy (ô.shê). Former town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Vaud, on the Lake of Geneva: the port of the city of Lausanne, now incorporated into Lausanne.

Oconnostate (ô'kô.nô.stô'te). See Oconostota.

Oud (oud), Jacobus Johannes Pieter. b. at Purmerend, Netherlands, Feb. 9, 1890—, Dutch architect. A leader of modernism in art and a chief exponent of the De Stijl group, he was cofounder (1917) of its periodical, De Stijl. As city architect (1918-33) of Rotterdam he designed many public buildings and housing developments; he also designed (1927) houses in the Stuttgart Werkbund-Siedlung. Author of Dutch Architecture (1926).

Oude (oud). See Oudh.

Oudenarde or Oudenaarde (ou.dê.nâr'de). [Also: Audenaarde; French, Audenarde.] Town and commune in W Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, on the Schelde River, ab. 33 mi. W of Brussels. It has manufactures of cotton and linen. Its notable buildings include the hôtel de ville (town hall), a beautiful late-Gothic building, finished in 1535, and the churches of Saint Walburga and Notre Dame. Here on July 11, 1708, the Allies under the Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene defeated the French under Vendôme and the Duke of Burgundy. Pop. of commune, ab. 6,500.

Oudenarde War Monument. American World War I monument standing in a public square in the city of Oudenarde, Belgium. It was erected to commemorate the combat operations (Oct. 30-Nov. 11, 1918) of the 37th and 91st divisions and the 53rd Field Artillery Brigade of the American Expeditionary Force.

Oudendorp (ou'dên.dôrp), Frans van. b. at Leiden, Netherlands, July 3, 1696; d. Feb. 14, 1761. Dutch classical philologist. He was a professor at Leipzig.

Oudergem (ou'dêr.gem). See Auderghem.

Oudh (oud). See also Ajodhya.

Oudh. [Also: Oude; Hindu name, Awadh.] Former province of British India, now included in Uttar Pradesh, Union of India, NE of the city of Cawnpore; chief city, Lucknow. The region lies between the Ganges on the SW and Nepal on the NE. The surface is mainly a plain. It is densely peopled. It was formerly under various Mohammedan rulers, was annexed by Great Britain in 1856, was one of the chief scenes of the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857, and was united in administration to the Northwest Provinces in 1877. In 1932 the Northwest Provinces and Oudh became the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. Area, 24,071 sq. mi.; pop. 14,114,740 (1941).

Oudinot (ô.dê.nô), Nicolas Charles. [Title, Duc de Reggio.] b. at Bar-le-Duc, France, April 25, 1767; d. at Paris, Sept. 13, 1847. French marshal, noted as a commander of armies under the Revolutionary government, under Napoleon, and under the Bourbon restoration. He served with distinction at Zurich in 1799 and at Austerlitz in 1805, won the victory of Ostroleka (Ostrolenka) in 1807, fought at Friedland in 1807, at Wagram in 1809, in the retreat from Russia in 1812, and at Bautzen in 1813, was defeated at Grossbeeren in 1813, and served through the campaigns of 1813-14. He commanded the National Guard during the Hundred Days, and later served as a corps commander in the Spanish campaign (1823).

Oudinot, Nicolas Charles Victor. b. at Bar-le-Duc, France, Nov. 3, 1791; d. at Paris, July 7, 1863. French general; son of Nicolas Charles Oudinot. He commanded the expedition (1849) against Rome, capturing the city.

Ouidjda (ôj.dâ). See Ouidja.

Oudry (ô.dre), Jean Baptiste. b. at Paris, March 17, 1686; d. at Beauvais, France, April 30, 1755. French historical and animal painter. He was court painter to Louis XV, was superintendent of the Beauvais factory of the Gobelins factory, and was made a professor of the French Academy in 1743.

Oudtshoorn (ôts'hôrn). Town in S Africa, in Cape of Good Hope province, Union of South Africa, ab. 56 mi. inland from Mossel Bay, which is on the S coast of the province. It is the chief center of a populous and fertile agricultural and dairying section. It was once famous for its ostrich farms. Pop. 16,103, including 7,655 Europeans (1946).

Oued (wed). See under Wadi.

Oued Chéllif (wed' shâ.lêf'). See Chéllif.

Oued Noun (wed' nô'n). [Also: Nun, Wad-Nun (wâd-nôn').] Town in NW Africa, in the extreme S part of the French zone of Morocco, ab. 80 mi. E of Cape Noun.

Oued Sebou (wed' se.bô'). See Sebou.

Oued Zem (wed' zem'). Town in NW Africa, in French Morocco, in the W central part of the country. It is the terminus of a branch of the main railroad line from Casablanca to Marrakech. The town is important in that it taps the rich Khouribga phosphate mines in the vicinity.

Ouessant (dwe.sân), île d'. French name of Ushant. Ouezzane (we.zân'). [Also: Wazan, Wazzan.] City in NW Africa, in French Morocco, ab. 12 mi. S of the border of Spanish Morocco. It is the administrative center of a military territory and a Moslem sacred city. 23,509 (1947).

Ouffie (ôf). Histoire des imaginations extravagantes de M. Work by Laurent Bordelon, published in 1710. It is notable as being the book to which Johnson refers in his Life of Pope as the prototype of the Memoirs of Martinus Scriblerus. The book has been mistakenly ascribed to the Abbé Bourdelot.

Oughtred (ô'tred), William. b. at Eton, England, March 5, 1574; d. June 30, 1660. English mathematician. He was educated at Cambridge (King's College). He wrote Clavis Mathematicæ (1631), A Description of the Double Horizontal Dial (1636), and Opuscula Mathematica (1677).

Ougrée (ô.grâ). Town in E Belgium, in the province of Liège, on the Meuse River S of Liège, of which it is a suburb: an industrial community, with coal mines, iron foundries, and iron and steel works. 19,245 (1947).

Ouida (wê'da). Pseudonym of Ramée, Marie Louise de la.

Ouidah (wê'da). [Also: Widah; English, Whydah.] Seaport in Dahomey, French West Africa, once the chief seaport of the region, but now of minor importance, situated on a lagoon near the coast, between Grand Popo on the W and Cotonou on the E. Pop. ab. 14,000 (1945).

Oujda (ôj.dâ'). [Also: Oudjda, Ujda.] Town in NW Africa, in French Morocco, on the main railway line from Casablanca and Fez to Algeria and Tunisia. It is at the E end of the country close to the Algerian frontier and is also connected by rail with the Mediterranean Sea near Nemours. Allied forces established a headquarters here during World War II. 88,653 (1947).

Oukolukazi (ô.kô.lô.kâ'zê). See Nkolonkathi.

Ould (ôld), Hermion. b. at London, Dec. 14, 1886—. English dramatist, poet, and critic. Among his plays are Between Sunset and Dawn (1913), The Black Virgin (1922), Flames in Sunlight (1928), and The Meeting (1936); his verse includes Candle-Ends (1921), In the Country (1937), and To One Who Sang (1942); author also of John Galsworthy (1934) and Shuttle (1945).

Oulless (ô'les), Walter William. b. Sept. 21, 1848; d. Dec. 25, 1933. English portrait painter. His work includes portraits of Charles Darwin and Cardinal Newman.

Oullins (ô.lah). Town in SE France, in the department of Rhône, on the Rhone River ab. 3 mi. S of Lyons, of which it is a residential suburb. It has distilling and oil-refining industries. 18,300 (1946).

Oulu (ô'lu). [Swedish, Uleåborg.] Lään (department) in C Finland, bounded on the N by Lappi, on the W by the Gulf of Bothnia, on the E by the U.S.S.R., and on the S by Vaasa and Kuopio. Capital, Oulu; area, 21,887 sq. mi.; pop. 362,753 (1951).

Oulu. [Swedish, Uleåborg.] City in W Finland, the capital of Oulu lään (department), on the Gulf of Bothnia: railroad center; harbor at nearby Toppila (3 mi.), icebound from the middle of November to the middle of May. It has shipyards, and timber, pulp, and leather manufactures. The city was founded in 1605 as a fortress. 38,703 (1951).

Oulof (wô.lof). French form of Wolof.

Oumansky (ô.mân'ski), Constantine Aleksandrovich. b. at Nikolaev, Russia, May 14, 1902; d. Jan. 25, 1945. Russian diplomat. He took part in the Russian revolutions of 1917, and thereafter attended the University of Moscow, working at the same time for the official Russian news agency, Tass, for which he later became foreign editor, Rome correspondent, and manager of the Paris bureau. After serving for a time as chief of the press division of the commissariat of foreign affairs, he accompanied Maxim Litvinov to the U.S. in 1933 in connection with American diplomatic recognition of the U.S.S.R. He remained in the U.S. as an attaché, was named chargé d'affaires in 1938, and in May, 1939, was accredited as ambassador. The Russo-German nonaggression treaty of that year, the Russo-Finnish War, and the incorporation of Lithuania, Estonia, and Latvia into the U.S.S.R. brought notably strained relations between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., but the German attack on Russia in June, 1941, resulting in the alignment of the latter power with the Western powers, changed Oumansky's status at Washington. In November of that year he was superseded by Litvinov as ambassador, and, returning to Moscow, became director-general of Tass, and an advisory official of the Soviet foreign office. While ambassador to the U.S., he had also been accredited with similar rank to Mexico. He returned to America to take up his post at Mexico City, and on Jan. 25, 1945, while en route to Costa Rica, to which he had also been named minister, he was killed when his plane crashed.

Our Father. See Lord's Prayer.

Ourl (ô'ûr). See Limpopo.

Ourique (ô.rê'ke). Town and concelho (commune) in S Portugal, in the province of Baixo, district of Beja, situated near the source of the Sado River, ab. 95 mi. SE of Lisbon. Nearby is the Campo de Ourique, where Alfonso I defeated five Moorish kings in 1139; it was a decisive victory of the Christians over the Moslems, and was followed by the creation of the kingdom of Portugal. Pop. of concelho, 16,356 (1940); of town, 6,435 (1940).

Our Lady. See Mary.

Our Mutual Friend. Novel by Charles Dickens, published in 1865, his last complete and full-length novel.

Our Old Home. Record of impressions and experiences in England by Nathaniel Hawthorne, published in 1863.

Ouro Preto (ô'ró.prê'tô). [Former name, Villa Rica.] Former capital of the state of Minas Gerais, in SE Brazil: gold mining and agriculture. 5,928 (1940).

Oursler (ourz'ler, ouz'-), (Charles) Fulton. [Pseudonym, Anthony Abbot.] b. at Baltimore, Jan. 22, 1893; d. 1952. American editor, playwright, and fiction writer; husband (married 1925) of Grace Perkins. Editor of Liberty Magazine (1931-42) and a senior editor of Reader's Digest (1944 et seq.). Author of Behold This Dreamer! (1924), Sandalwood (1925), Poor Little Fool (1928), The Great Jasper (1930), The Greatest Book Ever Written (1951), and other books; published under pseudonym Anthony Abbot, About the Murder of the Choir Singer, About the Murder of Geraldine Foster, About the Murder of a Man Afraid of Women, and other detective stories; his plays include The Spider (1927) and All the King's Men (1929).

Ourthe (ôrt). River in Belgium which joins the Meuse at Liège. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Our Town. Play by Thornton Wilder, produced and published in 1938 and awarded a Pulitzer prize. It depicts the life of the inhabitants of Grover's Corners, N.H., during the period 1901-13.

Ousatonic (ô.sâ.tôn'ik). See Housatonic.

Ouse (ôz). River in C and NE England, in Yorkshire. It is formed by the confluence of the rivers Swale and Ure, ab. 1 mi. E of Aldborough, and flows SE to the river Trent, ab. 16 mi. W of Hull, to form the Humber. Its chief tributaries are the rivers Wharfe, Aire, Don, and Derwent. Length, ab. 45 mi.; navigable to York.

Ouse. [Also, Great Ouse.] River in C and E England, rising in Northamptonshire and flowing in a winding course through Buckinghamshire, Bedfordshire, Huntingdonshire, Cambridgeshire, and Norfolk to the Wash, W of King's Lynn. Length, 156 mi.; navigable ab. 50 mi.

Ouseley (ôz'li), Sir Frederick Arthur Gore. b. at London, Aug. 12, 1825; d. April 6, 1889. English musicologist and composer of sacred music; son of Sir Gore Ouseley. He was graduated from Christ Church, Oxford, was elected professor of music at Oxford in 1855, and the same year was made precentor of Hereford Cathedral. In 1856 he was made vicar of Saint Michael's, Tenbury, Worcestershire, and warden of Saint Michael's College, of which he was the principal founder. He published Harmony (1808) and Counterpoint and Fugue (1869), and composed a number of services and an oratorio, Hagar (1873).

Ouseley, Sir Gore. b. 1770; d. 1841. British diplomat and Orientalist; brother of Sir William Ouseley. He was ambassador to Persia in 1810.

Ouseley, Sir William. b. in Monmouthshire, England, 1767; d. at Boulogne, France, in September, 1842. English Orientalist; brother of Sir Gore Ouseley. He published Persian Miscellanies (1795), Oriental Collections (1797), Oriental Geography of Ebn Haukal (1800), and others. He was secretary to his brother as ambassador to Persia.

Ouseley, Sir William Gore. b. July 26, 1797; d. March 6, 1860. English diplomat; son of Sir William Ouseley.

Ouspenskaya (ôs.pen'ska.ya), Maria. b. at Tula, Russia, July 29, 1876; d. at Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 3, 1949. Russian actress. Joining the Moscow Art Theatre Company under Stanislavsky in 1911, she became famous for her portrayal of roles in Chekov's plays. She first came to America with the Moscow Art Theatre in 1923 and remained here when the company returned to Russia. Her first English-speaking role was in Stark Young's The Saint, Greenwich Village Theatre, Oct. 11, 1924. Her stage appearances included The Jest (1926), The Witch (1926), Taming of the Shrew (1927), Dodsworth (1934), Abide with Me (1935), Daughters of Atrous (1936), and Outrageous Fortune (1943). She made her film debut in Dodsworth (1936).

Oust (ôst). River in Brittany, France, which joins the Vilaine near Redon. Length, ab. 90 mi.

Outcasts of Poker Flat, The. Story by Bret Harte, published in 1869 and included in his collection The Luck of Roaring Camp and Other Sketches (1870).

Outcalt (out'kôlt), Richard Felton. b. at Lancaster, Ohio, Jan. 14, 1863; d. at Flushing, Long Island, N.Y., Sept. 25, 1928. American cartoonist, noted for originating the color comic strip Hogan's Alley, featuring the "Yellow Kid." After serving as a draftsman on the Electrical World and the Street Railway Journal at New York, he joined the staff of the New York World, in which appeared his famous comic strip (it was probably introduced in 1894, but the yellow ink was first run about March, 1896). He became (1896) a member of the staff of the New York Herald, for which he originated (1902) the strip Buster Brown. He served (1905 et seq.) on the staff of the Journal.

Overbridge (ou'tér.brij), Alexander Ewing. b. at Philadelphia, July 31, 1850; d. Jan. 15, 1928. American metallurgist. He devised (1876) a method for the microscopic study of thin films of metal and developed (1886) a process for securing replicas of delicate patterns based on carbonized objects such as lace and plant leaves. He was professor of metallurgy (1901 et seq.) and president of the mining and metallurgical section (1908 et seq.) at the Franklin Institute.

Outer Hebrides (heb'ri.dēz). See under Hebrides.

Outer Himalaya (hî.mă'lā.ya, hîm.ă.lā'ă). See under Himalayas.

Outer Monéolia (mon.gô'li.ă, mong-). Former name of the Mongolian People's Republic.

"Outer Ring" of London. See London, "Outer Ring" of.

Outer Tibet (tib.ét'). See under Tibet.

Outline of History, The. Popular interpretive historical work by H. G. Wells, published in 1920 and issued in a revised edition in 1931.

Out of the Cradle Endlessly Rocking. Poem by Walt Whitman, published as "A Word Out of the Sea" in the 1860 edition of Leaves of Grass and under its present title in 1871.

Outram (5'tram), George. b. near Glasgow, March 25, 1805; d. Sept. 15, 1856. Scottish poet and editor. Educated at Edinburgh University, he turned to literary work after failing in the practice of law. He was editor (1837-56) of the Glasgow Herald, author of Lyrics, Legal and Miscellaneous (1874), and was associated with John Wilson (1735-1854), known as "Christopher North," in the Diss Brevelas papers.

Outram, Sir James. b. at Butterley Hall, Derbyshire, England, Jan. 29, 1803; d. March 11, 1863. English general, once popularly known as "the Bayard of India." In 1838 he was aide-de-camp to Sir John Keane, and in 1856 was appointed lieutenant general in command of an expedition to Persia. In June, 1857, he was summoned to Calcutta to assist in suppressing the Sepoy Mutiny. He especially distinguished himself in the relief, defense, and capture of Lucknow. He is buried in Westminster Abbey.

Outreau (ô.trô). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, on the Liane River; southern suburb of Boulogne. 8,507 (1946).

Outre-Mer: A Pilgrimage Beyond the Sea (ô.tré.mér'). Prose narrative by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, published in 1835.

Outremont (ô'tré.mont; French, ô.tré.môn). City in the province of Quebec, Canada, on Montreal Island; a residential suburb of the city of Montreal. 30,057 (1951).

Out Skerries (out sker'iz). See Skerries, Out.

Ouverture (ô.vér.tür), Dominique François Toussaint L'. See Toussaint Louverture, Dominique François.

Ouwerschic (ou.wér.sché'). See Overschic.

Ovaherero (ô'vâ.he.râ.rô). See Herero.

Ovakumbi (ô.vâ.kôm'bê). See Humbe.

Ovalle (ô.vâ'yâ). Town in C Chile, in Coquimbo province; rail-shipping center for fruit, wool, and minerals. 14,807 (1940).

Ovambandiero (ô'vâm.bân.dyâ'rô). See Mbanjeru.

Ovambo (ô.vâm'bô). See Mbo.

Ovamboland (ô.vâm'bô.land). Region in N South-West Africa, N of Damaraland. An attempt (c1885) to establish a republic here, called Uppingtonia, failed.

Ovananyeka (ô'vân.yân.yâ.kâ). See Nyaneka.

Ovando (ô.vân.dô), Nicolas de. b. at Valladolid, Spain, c1460; d. at Madrid, c1518. Spanish colonial administrator. In 1501 he was appointed governor of Hispaniola, his jurisdiction embracing all the Spanish possessions in the New World except those ceded to Ojeda and Pinzon.

He arrived at Santo Domingo (now Ciudad Trujillo), April 15, 1502, with 30 vessels and 2,500 colonists, and held the place until July, 1509. African slaves were first extensively used in the Spanish colonies in America under Ovando.

Ovandonga (ô.vân.dông.gâ). See Ndonga.

Ovangandjera (ô'vâng.gân.jâ.râ). See Nganjera.

Ovangangela (ô'vâng.gâng.gâ.lâ). See Ngangela.

Ovar (ô.vâr). Town and concelho (commune) in W Portugal, in the province of Beira Litoral, district of Aveiro, ab. 19 mi. S of Oporto (Pôrto); agricultural and lumber trade; fisheries. Pop. of concelho, 30,657 (1940); of town, 12,799 (1940).

Ovatjimba (ô.vâ.chôm'bâ). See Tjimba.

Ovath (ô'fê.rât). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Agger River ab. 15 mi. E of Cologne; metal industries; canneries. 10,537 (1950).

Overbeck (ô'vêr.bek), Friedrich Johann. b. at Lübeck, Germany, July 3, 1789; d. at Rome, Nov. 12, 1869. German painter. He formed an early Preraphaelite brotherhood in 1810 with Cornelius, Schadow, and others, seeking to revive German art on a religious basis. He became a convert to the Roman Catholic Church in 1813, and thereafter devoted himself entirely to painting sacred subjects. Among his works (some of them frescoes) are The Vision of Saint Francis, Jerusalem Delivered (Rome), Christ's Entry into Jerusalem (Lübeck), Triumph of Religion in the Arts (Frankfurt on the Main), Christ Blessing Little Children (Lübeck), Pieta (Lübeck), and Christ in the Garden (Hamburg).

Overbeck, Johannes Adolf. b. 1826; d. 1895. German archaeologist and historian of art; nephew of Friedrich Johann Overbeck. He was professor at Leipzig from 1853.

Overbury (ô'vêr.ber.i, -bêr.i), Sir Thomas. b. at Compton-Scorpion, Warwickshire, England, 1581; poisoned in the Tower of London, Sept. 15, 1613. English miscellaneous writer. He studied at Queen's College, Oxford (1595-98) and at the Middle Temple, and traveled on the Continent. He became the protégé of Robert Carr, Viscount Rochester (afterward Earl of Somerset), paragon of Lady Essex. Having incurred the enmity of Lady Essex by opposing a marriage between her and Carr, he was by her influence imprisoned in the Tower on April 26, 1613, and poisoned there. He wrote The Wife (1614), Characters (1614), and Crummings fal'n from King James's Table, first printed in 1715.

Over Darwin (ô'vêr dâr'wên). See Darwen.

Overdo (ô'vêr.dô), Adam. Complacent justice, a prominent character in Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair.

Overdone (ô'vêr.dun), Mistress. Character in Shakespeare's Measure for Measure.

Overtjssel (ô.vêr.tj'sel). [Also, Overyssel.] Province in NE Netherlands, bounded by the IJsselmeer on the NW, Friesland and Drenthe on the N, Germany on the E, and Gelderland on the S and SW. In the province as a whole, livestock raising and dairy farming prevail, but textile and machine industries are important in some portions. Capital, Zwolle; area, 1,318 sq. mi.; pop. 682,235 (est. 1950).

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, möve, nôr; up, lâte, pûll; 7H, then; d, d or j; g, s or sh; h, t or ch;

Overland (ô'vêr.lând). City in E Missouri, in St. Louis County; a western suburb of St. Louis. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 2,934 (1940) to 11,566 (1950).

Överland (ô'vêr.län). Arnulf. b. at Kristiansand, Norway, April 27, 1889—, Norwegian poet. His early poems were purely lyric in such collections as Den ensomme fest (The Lonely Feast, 1911) and De hundrede violiner (The Hundred Violins, 1912). At the time of World War I he became more and more conscious of the problems of social injustice and developed his poetic talents into a weapon of reform. His impassioned pleas for the spirit of freedom carried over into the period of Norwegian occupation by the Nazis in World War II and made him a heroic figure after his imprisonment in a concentration camp.

Overland Monthly. California regional magazine, published from 1868 to 1875 and revived from 1883 to 1933. Bret Harte, the first editor, helped establish the reputation of the publication with his story "The Luck of Roaring Camp." Other contributors included Edwin Markham and Jack London.

Overland Park. Unincorporated community in E Kansas, in Johnson County, near Kansas City. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban communities; the last official enumeration was 2,563 (1940).

Overland Route. Route from England to India through France and Italy to Brindisi, and thence by steamer by the Suez Canal, Red Sea, and Indian Ocean.

Overland Route. Formerly, the principal land route (via Utah) to California.

Overreach (ô'vêr.rêch). Sir Giles. Principal character in Massinger's A New Way to Pay Old Debts: a cruel extortioner whose actions are governed by systematic, calculating self-love. He is a study of Sir Giles Mompesson, the monopolist. He is proud and grasping; but, as his name indicates, finally overreaches himself, and is "outwitted by two weak innocents and gulled by children."

Overschie (ô'vêr.schê). [Also, Ouverschie.] Town in W Netherlands, in the province of South Holland, W o Rotterdam, in a livestock-raising region. 10,164 (1939).

Overskou (ô'vêr.skou). Thomas. b. at Copenhagen, Oct. 11, 1798; d. there, Nov. 7, 1873. Danish dramatist and historian of the drama. He wrote Den danske Skueplads (The Danish Theater, 1854-64) and others.

Over Soul, The. Essay by Ralph Waldo Emerson, published in 1841, describing the over-soul as residing in each individual in the form of a pantheistic nexus with all creation. It was published in his Essays, First Series (1841).

Over the Hills to the Poor House. See Poor House, Over the Hills to the.

Over-the-River. A former name of San Angelo, Tex.

Over the Teacups. Volume of essays by Oliver Wendell Holmes, published in 1891.

Overton (ô'vêr.ton). Grant Martin. b. at Patchogue, N.Y., Sept. 19, 1887; d. July 4, 1933. American editor and novelist. Author of The Women Who Make our Novels (1918), The Answerer (1921), When Winter Comes to Main Street (1922), Cargoes for Cruises (1924), and The Thousand-and-First-Night (1924).

Overton, Richard. [Pseudonym, Martin Marpriest.] fl. 1642-63. English pamphleteer and satirist. Much of his work was published anonymously and some of it under the name of "Martin Marpriest," who was put forward as the son of "Martin Marprelate."

Overweg (ô'vêr.vâch). Adolf. b. at Hamburg, Germany, July 24, 1822; d. at Maduani, on Lake Chad, Africa, Sept. 27, 1852. German explorer of Africa. As a specialist in geology he accompanied Richardson and Barth to the Sudan in 1850, established the fact that the Sahara is not below sea level, and navigated Lake Chad (1851).

Overysse (ô'vêr.i'ssê). See Overijssel.

Ovid (ô'vîd). [Full Latin name, Publius Ovidius Naso.] b. at Sulmo, Italy, 43 B.C.; d. at Tomi (now Constanta), near the Black Sea, 18 A.D. Roman poet, one of the leading writers of the Augustan age. He lived at Rome, and was exiled for an unknown cause to Tomi on the Euxine (Black Sea), in Moesia, c. 8 A.D. His chief works are elegies, and poems on mythological subjects, Metamorphoses, Fasti, Ars Amatoria (Art of Love), Heroides, and Amores.

Ovidiopol (ô.vîd.i.ô'pôl). Seaport in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, on the Dniester estuary, ab. 21 mi. SW of Odessa; fishing and canning.

Oviedo (ô.byá'rhô). Province in NW Spain, bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the N, Santander on the E, León on the S, and Lugo on the W; corresponds to the old region of Asturias. The surface is mountainous, the climate oceanic. Grain and fruit are grown; there are fisheries along the coast. The central part of the province has considerable iron and coal deposits. Capital, Oviedo; area, 4,206 sq. mi.; pop. 860,003 (1950).

Oviedo. [Ancient name, Asturias.] City in NW Spain, the capital of the province of Oviedo, on the Nalon River ab. 16 mi. S of the Bay of Biscay. It is an agricultural trading center, with marble quarries, and foodstuff, leather, metal, and arms manufactures. The Gothic cathedral, founded in 1388, occupies the site of a chapel of the 8th century. Founded in 762, Oviedo was the residence of the kings of the Asturias until 924. During the Spanish Civil War of 1936-39, Oviedo was early occupied by the Nationalists who were, however, thereupon besieged within the city by the Asturian miners. A Nationalist relief expedition lifted the siege on Oct. 17, 1937. Pop. 102,991 (1950).

Oviedo y Valdés (ô.báldi's'), Gonzalo Fernández de. b. at Madrid, 1478; d. at Valladolid, Spain, 1557. Spanish historian. He was a page of Prince Juan at the siege of Granada, and saw the first return of Columbus; was at Darien (1514-17) as a treasury officer, and later (1519-23) as lieutenant under Pedrarias; subsequently was governor of Cartagena, and in 1535 alcalde of the fort at Santo Domingo; and for some years before his death was official chronicler of the Indies. His principal work, and one of the first and best of the early histories of America, is Historia natural y general de las Indias, in 50 books. Of these 19 were published at Seville in 1535, and the twentieth, finishing the first part, at Valladolid soon after. The complete work was not published until 1851-55 (by the Madrid Academy).

Ovila (ô.vî'la). An ancient name of Ávila, city.

Ovilava (ô.vî.lá'vá). Latin name of Wels, Austria.

Ovimbundu (ô.vim.bûndû). See Mbundu.

Ovington (ô'ving.ton). Earle. b. at Chicago, Dec. 20, 1879; d. July 21, 1936. American aeronautical engineer, first U.S. air mail pilot (1911).

Ovoca (ô.vô'ka). See Avoca.

Owain Cyveiliog (ô.wân ku.vá'lyôg). [Also, Owain ab Gruffydd (âb grî'fîth).] d. 1197. Welsh prince (of Powys). He was noted as a fighter, and as the author of The Hirlas Horn.

Owasco (ô.wô'skô). Culture of the late prehistoric period (c.1250-1600 A.D.) in C New York State and parts of Vermont, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. The Owasco Indians built fortified villages, containing dome-shaped bark or skin covered houses; made grit-tempered, ovoid, incised and stamped pottery, and buried their dead in pit graves. They preceded the Iroquois in the area and may have been, at least in part, ancestral to them.

Owasco Lake. Lake in C New York, in Cayuga County, S of Auburn: one of the Finger Lakes. Length, ab. 11 mi. Owatonna (ô.wa.tôn'a). City in SE Minnesota, county seat of Steele County, ab. 63 mi. SW of St. Paul: health resort, with mineral springs. 10,191 (1950).

Owego (ô.wê'gô). Village in S central New York, county seat of Tioga County, on the Susquehanna River ab. 63 mi. S of Syracuse: railroad junction; manufactures of shoes. It occupies the site of an Indian town, Ah-wah-ga. 5,350 (1950).

Owen (ô'en). David Dale. b. in Lanarkshire, Scotland, June 24, 1807; d. at New Harmony, Ind., Nov. 13, 1860. American geologist; son of Robert Owen. He came to the U.S. with his father in 1823. He took charge of the U.S. Geological Survey of Wisconsin and Iowa in 1848, and of that of Minnesota in 1852.

Owen, John. [Latinized, Audoenus or Owenus.] b. in Wales, c.1530; d. 1622. British Latinist, noted for his Latin epigrams.

Owen, John. b. at Stadhampton, Oxford, England, 1616; d. at Ealing, near London, Aug. 24, 1683. English theologian, during the English Civil War period a Presbyterian clergyman, later an Independent. He was dean of Christ Church, Oxford (1651-60), and after the Restoration was a nonconformist pastor at London. He wrote a large number of works, theological and controversial, among them Vindiciae Evangelicae (1655), Animadversions (1662; a reply to Fiat Lux, a plea for Roman Catholicism), Exposition of the Epistle to the Hebrews (1668), and an Inquiry into the Nature . . . of Evangelical Churches (1681).

Owen, Mount. [Also, Mount Arthur Owen.] Mountain in Antarctica, on the Richard Black Coast, in ab. 74°26'S, 62°33'W.

Owen, Sir Richard. b. at Lancaster, England, July 20, 1804; d. at London, Dec. 18, 1892. English comparative anatomist and paleontologist. He studied at the University of Edinburgh and at the medical school of Saint Bartholomew's Hospital, London, and became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1826. He afterward became assistant curator of the Hunterian Museum, and in 1834 professor of comparative anatomy at Saint Bartholomew's Hospital. He was appointed Hunterian professor of anatomy and physiology in the College of Surgeons in 1836, and in 1856 superintendent of the natural history department in the British Museum. Among his works are Odontology (1840-45), Archetype and Homologies of the Vertebrate System (1848), On Parthenogenesis (1849), and Anatomy of the Vertebrates (1866-68).

Owen, Robert. b. at Newtown, Montgomeryshire, Wales, May 14, 1771; d. there, Nov. 17, 1858. British manufacturer and educator, founder of British socialism. Owen's early career was that of a self-made businessman. Leaving home at the age of ten, he made his way first at London and then at Manchester. In 1800 he became manager and part owner of the cotton mills at New Lanark, Scotland, which was during the next quarter of a century the focal point not only of his business affairs but also of his educational, philanthropic, and propagandist activities. With benevolent paternalism he improved the social conditions of the little mill town, and he laid increasing stress on education. He was one of the first to establish an infant school, he inaugurated programs of adult education, and his Institution for the Formation of Character (erected 1809-16) attracted attention in its time equal to that accorded the schools of Pestalozzi and Fellenberg. Owen's success in molding the character of his employees confirmed a long-held conviction of his that "character is universally formed for and not by the individual." It also encouraged him to believe that industrial society as a whole could be reformed by the application of his principles. He was disappointed, however, with the meager result of his agitation for factory laws, and he turned from legislative measures to what can best be described as communitarian socialism, that is, the proposal to reorganize society, fundamentally but peaceably, on the basis of small experimental communities, numbering from 800 to 2,500 members, combining agriculture with industry, and organizing both production and consumption cooperatively. He elaborated his plans in 1817 and inaugurated a great propagandist effort, which produced widespread discussion, but not the practical result he desired. In 1824 he came to the U.S., purchased the property of the communistic sect of Rappites in southern Indiana, and inaugurated in 1825 the New Harmony Community, which lasted only until 1827. He was greeted with surprising enthusiasm in America, and two speeches he made in 1825 in the Capitol at Washington were attended by Presidents Monroe and J. Q. Adams. The failure of New Harmony cost him the major part of his fortune, however, and his American influence melted away, particularly after a public debate in 1829 designed "to prove that the principles of all religions are erroneous." He returned to England in 1829 and threw himself into the cooperative and labor movements, sponsoring a National Equitable Labour Exchange (1832-34), and a Grand National Consolidated Trades Union (1834). After their failure Owen took up once more his plan for achieving reform through cooperative communities. A succession of propagandist organizations and a number of "social missionaries" disseminated his ideas. Eventually an experimental community was organized, Harmony Hall or Queenwood in Hampshire (1839-45). Its failure marked the final end of Owenism as a separate movement, though the force of his ideas was felt in later movements and though Owen himself continued his propaganda undiminished until his death at the age of 87. Owen is often supposed to have advocated complete community of property, but in fact his views on the matter were never fixed nor very clearly stated. His proposal to use the small experimental community as a lever for complete social reconstruction was the real heart of his doctrine. The basic economic theory of socialism was developed by certain of his radically egalitarian disciples, whose ideas he himself adopted only in the middle period of his career, roughly from 1824 to 1830. His own earlier and later plans implied considerable social stratification. Owen was under constant attack, not only on economic grounds, but also because of his criticisms of organized religion and of the institution of marriage. His opponents acknowledged, however, the disinterestedness of his motives, his fairness in debate, and his personal charm.

Owen, Robert Dale. b. at Glasgow, Nov. 9, 1801; d. at Lake George, N.Y., June 24, 1877. American social reformer, politician, diplomat, and writer; son of Robert Owen. Educated under the influence of his father's theories of social reform, he helped manage the Owen factories and assumed charge of the school which Robert Owen set up among the cotton mills at New Lanark. He accompanied his father to the U.S. in November, 1825, and in 1826 helped found the famous colony at New Harmony, Ind., where he taught school and edited the New Harmony Gazette. With the failure of the New Harmony colony in 1827, he became the companion of Frances Wright in travels in the U.S. and abroad and in their work among the "Free Enquirers" at New Harmony, to which he returned after arriving from Europe. In 1829 he went to New York, where he edited the Free Enquirer and helped organize the "Association for the Protection of Industry and for the Promotion of National Education." While at New York he was active in promoting lectures, educational and health centers, and other public affairs. Going to England in 1832, he helped his father edit The Crisis; he returned to America and served in the Indiana legislature (1836-38) and in Congress (1843-47). Owen introduced (1844) a resolution which became the basis for the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute and introduced (1845) the bill under which the Smithsonian Institution was set up. He was a member of the Indiana constitutional convention of 1850, served in the state legislature in 1851, and became U.S. chargé d'affaires (1853) and U.S. minister (1855) at Naples. Upon his return to the U.S. in 1858, he became a leading supporter of emancipation and from 1861 to 1863 acted under a commission from the governor of Indiana to purchase European arms for the state forces. Among his works are An Outline of the System of Education at New Lanark (1824), Hints on Public Architecture (1849), The Future of the North-West (1863), The Wrong of Slavery (1864), Beyond the Breakers (1870), and his autobiography, Threading My Way (1874).

Owen, Robert Latham. b. at Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 2, 1856; d. at Washington, D.C., July 19, 1947. American lawyer and legislator, who participated in drafting the Federal Reserve Act (known as the Glass-Owen Currency Act) and Farm Loan Act.

Owen, Russell. b. at Chicago, 1889; d. 1952. American journalist. A staff member of the New York Sun (1906-20) and New York Times (1920 et seq.), he was a correspondent at the Scopes Trial, at Dayton, Tenn. (1925), and accompanied the Amundsen and Byrd expeditions to Spitsbergen (1926). He was awarded a Pulitzer prize for articles (1929-30) about the first Byrd antarctic expedition, which he accompanied. Author of South of the Sun (1934) and The Antarctic Ocean (1941); collaborator on We Saw it Happen (1938).

Owen, Ruth Bryan. [Married name, also, Rohde.] b. at Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 2, 1885-. American legislator and diplomat; daughter of William Jennings Bryan. She was married (1910) to Reginald Owen, who died in 1927; and in 1936 married Captain Borge Rohde of the Danish Royal Guards. She served (1929-33) as representative from Florida in the U.S. Congress and, as U.S. minister to Denmark (1933-36), was the first woman

- in U.S. history to hold such a post. Author of Leaves from a Greenland Diary (1935), The Castle in the Silver Wood (1939), and Look Forward, Warrior (1943).
- Owens (ô'enz), Jesse. [Original name, J. C. Owens or James Cleveland Owens or John Cleveland Owens.] b. at Decatur, Ala., 1914 or 1915—. American track and field athlete. Chosen a member of the U.S. team to compete in the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin, Owens was the victor in the 100-meter race, in the 200-meter, and in the running broad jump, and a member of the victorious American team in the 400-meter relay race. Because he is a Negro, Owens had the distinction of being snubbed by Adolf Hitler, then chancellor of Germany, who shook hands with all other major winners in that year's games.
- Owens, John Edmond. b. at Liverpool, England, April 2, 1823; d. near Towson, Baltimore County, Md., Dec. 7, 1886. American comedian and theater manager. He was brought to America when a child, and made his first appearance at Philadelphia in 1841. He rose rapidly in his profession, and in 1864 produced Solon Shingle at Wallack's, New York, which held the boards for eight or nine months.
- Owens, Michael Joseph. b. in Mason County, W.Va., Jan. 1, 1859; d. Dec. 27, 1923. American glass manufacturer and inventor of an automatic machine for bottle blowing (patented 1895, 1904).
- Owens, Robert Bowie. b. in Anne Arundel County, Md., Oct. 29, 1870; d. Nov. 1, 1940. American electrical engineer, discoverer of the alpha ray. He was professor of electrical engineering at the University of Nebraska (1891-98) and McGill (1898-1909).
- Owensboro (ô'enz.bur.ô). [Former names, Yellow Banks, Rossborough.] City in W Kentucky, county seat of Daviess County, on the Ohio River ab. 80 mi. SW of Louisville, in a coal, petroleum, and agricultural area; marketing and processing center for tobacco; seat of Kentucky Wesleyan College. It was an important early 19th-century river port, and was the scene of Civil War battles in 1862 and 1864. Pop. 33,651 (1950).
- Owens Lake (ô'enz). Salt lake bed in E California, in the desert region E of Mount Whitney. Since the diversion of water from its chief source, the Owens River, to supply water to Los Angeles, the lake has dried up.
- Owenson (ô'en.son). Sydney. See Morgan, Sydney.
- Owen Sound (ô'en). Southern arm of Georgian Bay, Lake Huron.
- Owen Sound. City in S central Ontario, Canada, county seat of Grey County, on Owen Sound at the mouth of Sydenham River, ab. 100 mi. NW of Toronto. It has numerous industries and is an active lake port. It is also a trade center for a vacation area. 16,423 (1951).
- Owens River (ô'enz). River that flows into Owens Lake, in E California. It was tapped by an aqueduct (completed in 1913) to supply water to Los Angeles. Length, ab. 150 mi.
- Owen Stanley Range (ô'en stan'li). Mountain range in SE New Guinea, in the Territory of Papua, NE of Port Moresby. It is a rugged, jungle-covered group of mountains, traversed by relatively few passes; in 1942 the Japanese attempted an offensive through the pass from Kokoda to attack Port Moresby, but they were repulsed by U.S. and Australian forces. Peak elevation, Mount Victoria, ab. 13,240 ft.
- Owl. See Office of War Information.
- Owl and the Nightingale. The English poem attributed to Nicholas de Guildford of Portesham, Dorsetshire. The date of the poem is disputed. Stevenson, who first printed it in 1838, assigns it to the 12th century; from the handwriting of the manuscript, however, it is thought to belong to the 13th.
- Owlglass (ou'gläs). See Eulenspiegel, Till (or Tyll).
- Owlglass, Dr. Pseudonym of Blaich, Hans Erich.
- Owl Head (oul'hed'). Mountain in S Quebec, Canada, bordering on Lake Memphremagog, near the Vermont border. 2,425 ft.
- Owls Head (oulz' hed'). Cape at the W entrance to Penobscot Bay, in Maine.
- Owosso (ô'wosô). City in C Lower Michigan, in Shiawassee County, on the Shiawassee River ab. 72 mi. NW of Detroit; formerly important for lumber, it is now a metal-

- working and farm trade center. It was the birthplace of James Oliver Curwood and of Thomas E. Dewey. 15,948 (1950).
- Owyhee (ô.wi'hē). River in N Nevada, SW Idaho, and SE Oregon. It joins the Snake River. Length, ab. 250 mi.
- Oxenden (ok'sen.den), Ashton. b. near Canterbury, England, Sept. 28, 1808; d. at Biarritz, France, Feb. 22, 1892. English bishop of the Anglican Church and religious writer. He was bishop of Montreal, and metropolitan and primate of Canada (1869-78).
- Oxenham (ok'sen.am, oks'nam), John. [Pseudonym of William Arthur Dunkerley.] b. at Manchester, Lancashire, England, 1861; d. at Worthing, Sussex, England, Jan. 24, 1941. English journalist, novelist, and poet. He was on the staff of the Idler and To-Day, both of which he initiated with Jerome K. Jerome. A prolific writer, he published Bees In Amber (1913), All's Well (1916), The King's Highway (1916), Hymn for the Men at the Front (1916), The Vision Splendid (1917), The Fiery Cross (1917), Hearts Courageous (1918), and Gentlemen—The King! (1920), poetry; Everywoman and War (1916) and Winds of the Dawn (1919), essays; The Cedar Box (1924), The Hidden Years (1925), Anno Domini (1932), and several other works on the life of Christ; and 43 novels, including God's Prisoner (1898), Rising Fortunes (1899), A Princess of Vascoy (1900), John of Gerisau (1903), Bondman Free (1903), Mr. Joseph Scorer (1903), Barbe of Grande Bayou (1903), Recollections of Roderick Fyfe (1927), and The Hawks of Como (1928).
- Oxenstierna (ôk'sen.sher.nä), Count Axel Gustafsson. [Also: Oxenstiern (-shern), Oxenstierna.] b. at Fåno, in Uppland, Sweden, June 16, 1583; d. at Stockholm, Aug. 28, 1654. Swedish statesman. He became chancellor in 1611; in the Thirty Years' War held supreme control in the Rhine region; directed the foreign policy of Sweden after 1632; was made (1633) director of the Evangelical League; negotiated (1645) the peace of Brömsebro. He was one of the guardians of Queen Christina.
- Oxford (oks'ford). [Medieval English, Oxenaford, Oxenford; Latin, Oxonia.] City in S England, county borough, and the county seat of Oxfordshire, situated on a plain at the confluence of the rivers Thames and Cherwell ab. 57 mi. NW of London by rail. It is chiefly noted as the seat of the University of Oxford, but it is also a large automobile-manufacturing center, and a center of the British printing and bookbinding industries. The authentic annals of Oxford begin in 912, when it was annexed by Edward the Elder, king of the West Saxons. It was a place of strategic importance and one of the political centers in the Middle Ages; it was a meeting place of the Witenagemot. Harold Harefoot was proclaimed king there in 1036, and died there in 1040. The population in the time of Edward the Confessor is estimated to have been 3,000; in 1086 it was only 1,700. The castle was besieged by Stephen in 1141-42, Matilda escaping then over the frozen river. The city was the Royalist headquarters in the English Civil War. It was taken by the Parliamentarians under Fairfax in 1646. Pop. of county borough, 98,675 (1951).
- Oxford. Town (in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in S Massachusetts, in Worcester County; textile manufactures. Pop. of town, 5,851 (1950); of village, 3,238 (1950).
- Oxford. City in N Mississippi, county seat of Lafayette County; seat of the University of Mississippi. It is the home of William Faulkner, whose novels concerning the Sartoris family are set against the background of "Jefferson" (Oxford). 3,956 (1950).
- Oxford. Town in N North Carolina, county seat of Granville County; marketing, processing, and distributing center for a tobacco-growing region. It was established in 1764. Pop. 6,635 (1950).
- Oxford. Village in SW Ohio, in Butler County, ab. 40 mi. NW of Cincinnati; seat of Miami University and of Western College. Before the Civil War, it had manufactures of barrels, alcohol, organs, brooms, and wagons. 2,756 (1940), 6,944 (1950).
- Oxford. Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Chester County; dairy, farm, and tourist center; furniture is made here. It was established in 1801. Pop. 3,091 (1950).
- Oxford, 1st Earl of. Title of Harley, Robert.

Oxford, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Vere family.

Oxford, Provisions of. In English history, a set of articles passed by the "Mad Parliament" at Oxford in 1258. They provided for a committee of 24 to redress grievances in church and state; for a standing body of 15 as a council to the king, who should hold three annual parliaments and communicate with a body of 12 representing the barons; and for a body of 124 members to regulate financial aids.

Oxford, University of. University at Oxford, England. It developed in the 12th century, Robert Pullen and the Lombard Vacarius being early teachers of note. It contains the following colleges: University (founded in 1249), Merton (1264), Balliol (between 1263 and 1268), Exeter (1314 and 1565), Oriel (1324 and 1326), Queen's (1340), New (1379), Lincoln (1427 and 1478), All Souls (1437), Magdalen (1458), Brasenose (1509), Corpus Christi (1516), Christ Church (1516), Trinity (1534), Saint John's (1555), Jesus (1571), Wadham (1612), Pembroke (1624), Worcester (1714), Keble (1870), and Hertford (1874). There are four colleges for women: Lady Margaret Hall (1878), Somerville (1879), Saint Hugh's (1886), and Saint Hilda's (1889). Among its affiliated institutions are Saint David's College (at Lampeter), Firth College (at Sheffield), Royal Albert Memorial University College (at Exeter), and University College (at Nottingham). Among the institutions connected with the university are the Bodleian Library, which contains more than 1,500,000 volumes, Radcliffe Library, Ashmolean Museum, and Clarendon Press. University sermons are mostly preached at Saint Mary's Church, a fine old building (of the 15th and 16th centuries) in High Street, which has always been closely connected with the university. The two governing bodies are the Convocation, which includes all who continue members of the university, and the Hebdomadal Council, consisting of the chancellor, vice-chancellor, proctors, and 18 elected members. The ancient house of congregation, once a governing body, is now largely concerned with the granting of degrees.

Oxford and Cambridge Musical Club (kām'brij). London club established in 1899 for the cultivation of chamber music.

Oxford Group. See under Buchman, Frank Nathan Daniel.

Oxford Marbles. See Arundel (or Oxford) Marbles.

Oxford Movement. Name sometimes given to a movement in the Church of England toward High Church principles, as against the tendency toward liberalism and rationalism; so called from the fact that it originated (1833-41) in the University of Oxford.

Oxford School. [Also: Puseyites, Tractarians.] Name given to that party of the Church of England which adopted the principles promulgated in the Tracts for the Times.

Oxfordshire (oks'ford.shir). [In writing often shortened as Oxon (without a period); Latin, Oxonia.] Midland county in S central England. It is bounded on the N by Warwickshire and Northamptonshire, on the E by Buckinghamshire, on the S by Berkshire, and on the W by Berkshire and Gloucestershire. The river Thames forms the Berkshire-Oxfordshire boundary. Most of the surface is level, but rolling in the NW, rising to 836 ft. at Broom Hill. The Chiltern Hills stretch across the SE part of the county. Industries include automobile manufactures, glove-making, and a woolen-textiles industry. The county ranks moderately high in crop productivity. Much land is devoted to permanent pasture and cattle raising. County seat, Oxford; area, ab. 735 sq. mi.; pop. 275,765 (1951).

Oxford Street. [Former name, Tyburn Road.] The principal commercial thoroughfare between the NW part of London and the City of London. As late as 1729 it was built up only on its N side. It extends from Holborn to the Marble Arch, and contains many of the most important shops in London.

Oxnam (oks'nam), Garfield Bromley. b. at Sonora, Calif., Aug. 14, 1891—. American Methodist bishop. He served as president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America (1947-48), and was also elected one of the presidents of the World Council of Churches. In 1926 he was a member of an American delegation to the U.S.S.R. Among his many books are Social Principles of Jesus (1923), Russian Impressions (1927), Youth and the New America (1928), The Ethical Ideals of Jesus in a Changing World (1941), Facing the Future Unafraid (1944), Labor and Tomorrow's World (1945), The Christian's Vocation (1950), The Church and Contemporary Change (1950), and On This Rock (1951).

Oxnard (oks'nård). City in S California, county seat of Ventura County, NW of Los Angeles: sugar-beet raising and processing; processing and shipping center for lemons, oranges, and walnuts. It was founded in 1898. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled, 8,519 (1940), 21,567 (1950).

Oxon (ok'son). See Oxfordshire.

Oxonia (ok'sō'ni.a). Latin name of Oxford, and of the region now comprised in Oxfordshire, England.

Oxuna (ō.shō'nā). See Osuna, Spain.

Oxus (ok'sus). Ancient name, still sometimes used, of the Amu Darya.

Oxyrhynchus (ok.sir'ing'kus). Ancient town of Upper Egypt, situated between the W bank of the Nile and the Bahr Yusuf (or Yusef). It was named from a species of fish which was venerated there. The modern village of Behnesa occupies its site. Excavations there have brought to light a number of important papyri, including fragments of the Logia or Sayings of Jesus.

Oyama (ō.yā'mā). See Dai Sen.

Oyama, Marquis Iwao. b. in Satsuma, Japan, in October, 1842; d. 1916. Japanese general, commander in chief of the Manchurian army, with the rank of marshal, in the Russo-Japanese War (1904-05). He commanded the Second Army in the Sino-Japanese War (1894-95), capturing Port Arthur and Weihaiwei, and was promoted to marshal in 1898. In the Russian war he repeatedly defeated the Russian army under Kuropatkin.

Oyana (ō.yā'nā). Tribe of South American Indians of Brazil, Surinam, and French Guiana, of the Cariban linguistic stock. Their language, called Oyana, Upurui, or Wayana, belongs to the mainland coastal group of the northern division of the Carib family of languages.

Oyapok (ō.ya.pok'). [Also, Oyapok.] River forming part of the boundary between Brazil and French Guiana, flowing N to the Atlantic. Length, ab. 300 mi.

Øygarden (ē'gār.den). Norwegian name of the Guardian Islands.

Oyo (ō'yō). [Also: Eyo, Hio, Katunga.] Largest subgroup of the Yoruba, a Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa. They inhabit SW Nigeria NE of Abeokuta. They number between one and two million, and have established some of the largest Negro cities of Africa, including Ibadan, with 400,000; Ogbomoso, with 90,000; Iwo, with 60,000; Ede, Oshogbo, and Oyo, with 50,000 each; and Iseyin, with 40,000 (based on the 1931 census). Their king is the Alafin of Oyo, Oyo being their capital city.

Oyo. City in W Africa, in Western Provinces, Nigeria, situated on a main highway ab. 100 mi. N of Lagos. It is the capital city of the Oyo, a subgroup of the Yoruba nation, and an important market town. 79,000 (est. 1950).

Oyonnax (ō.yō.nāks). Town in E France, in the department of Ain, situated in the Jura Mountains ab. 25 mi. W of Geneva, Switzerland. It is a world center for the production of combs and plastic materials (celluloid, bakelite, and others). The town was damaged in World War II. 10,156 (1946).

Oyster Bay (ois'tér). Town (in New York the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in SE New York, in Nassau County, on the N shore of Long Island: residential and resort community. The town also includes the villages of Sea Cliff, Farmingdale, and Cove Neck. Sagamore Hill, the home of Theodore Roosevelt, is at Cove Neck. Pop. of town, 66,930 (1950); of Oyster Bay village, 5,215 (1950).

Oyster Island. A former name of Ellis Island.

Oz (oz). Fabulous land created by Lyman Frank Baum, author of The Wonderful Wizard of Oz (1900), and other Oz books.

Ozaki (ō.za.kē), Yukio. b. in Kanagawa prefecture, Japan, in November, 1859—. Japanese journalist and politician.

Ozama (ô.să'mă). River in S Dominican Republic, flowing S to the Caribbean Sea.

Ozanam (ô.ză.năm). Antoine Frédéric. b. at Milan, Italy, in April, 1813; d. at Marseilles, France, Sept. 8, 1853. French historian. He wrote Dante et la philosophie catholique (1839) and Études germaniques (1847-49).

Ozark (ô.zărk). City in SE Alabama, county seat of Dale County, ab. 75 mi. SE of Montgomery; shipping point for hogs, cotton, and other farm products. 5,238 (1950).

Ozark Mountains. See Boston Mountains.

Ozarks, Lake of the. See under Bagnell Dam.

Özd (ôzd). Town in N Hungary, in the vicinity of the Czechoslovakian border, NW of the city of Miskolc. Lignite and iron ore are mined in the vicinity. 24,586 (1948).

Ozenfant (ô.zăn.făn). Amédée. b. at St.-Quentin, France, April 15, 1886—. French painter and writer, associated (1918 et seq.) with Le Corbusier. In 1915 he founded the review L'Élan, and in 1918 wrote After Cubism. He later founded the review The New Spirit (1920). In 1925, in collaboration with Le Corbusier, he published Modern Painting; his book Art appeared in 1928. A list of his paintings includes Jug and Amphora, Studio Study, Andermos, The Cask, Mother and Child with Reflections, Moonlight, and Little Jug Architecture.

Ozero (ô.zî.rô). Russian word for "lake"; see the distinguishing element of the name.

Ozias (ô.zî'as). See Hoshea; see also Uzziah.

Ozieri (ô.zîye'rê). Cathedral town on the island of Sardinia, Italy, in the province of Sassari, ab. 26 mi. SE of Sassari. Pop. ab. 9,000.

Ozona (ô.zô'na). Unincorporated community in W Texas, county seat of Crockett County; local trade center for a cattle-raising and oil-producing region. 2,885 (1950).

Ozorío (ô.zô'ryô). Manoel Luis. See Osorío, Manoel Luis.

Ozorków (ô.zôrk'kôf). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Łódź, on the Bzura River (a tributary of the Vistula) ab. 15 mi. NW of Łódź: cotton and woolen textile manufactures; chemical factory. It belonged to Russian Poland prior to 1919. Pop. 11,296 (1946).

P

Paardeberg (păr'de.bêrg, -berch). Elevation in the W part of Orange Free State, Union of South Africa, N of the Modder River. Near here, in the bed of the Modder, at Koodoosrand Driif, the Boers under Piet Arnoldus Cronjé defended themselves against the English under Frederick Sleigh Roberts, but were forced to surrender (Feb. 27, 1900).

Paarl (păr). Town in S Africa, in Cape of Good Hope province, Union of South Africa, ab. 36 mi. E of Cape-town, with which it is connected by rail. The district surrounding the town is an important grape-growing and wine-producing area. The town itself has such varied industries as flour milling, wool washing, and granite quarrying. Tobacco and fruits are also important in the commerce of the town. Pop. 27,286, including 11,184 Europeans (1946).

Paasche (pă'she). Hans. b. at Rostock, Germany, April 3, 1881; assassinated at Waldrieden, Germany, May 21, 1920. German pacifist; son of Hermann Paasche. He was an officer in the German navy until 1909, when he resigned his commission in order to devote himself to pacifist activities. He participated in the 1918 revolution in Germany.

Paasche, Hermann. b. at Burg, near Magdeburg, Germany, Feb. 24, 1851; d. at Detroit, Mich., 1925. German politician and economist, an outstanding authority on sugar production. He served (1879 et seq.) as a professor at Aachen, Marburg, Rostock and Berlin, and was a member (1893-1918) of the Reichstag.

Paasikivi (pă'si.ki.vi). Juho Kusti. b. at Tampere, Finland, Nov. 27, 1870—. Finnish statesman and banker, president (1946 et seq.) of Finland. He was premier (1918) for a short time after the declaration of Finnish independence, and represented Finland at the 1920 Tartu (or Dorpat) peace negotiations with the U.S.S.R. He thereafter served as chairman of the Finnish export commission and as president of the Finnish section of the International Chamber of Commerce. He was minister to Sweden (1936-39), and held (1939-40) a ministry without portfolio during the war with the U.S.S.R. He was minister to Moscow (1940-41), and served (1944-46) as premier.

Paassen (pă'sen). Pierre van. [Full name: Pieter Antonie Laurusse van Paassen.] b. at Gorinchem, Netherlands, Feb. 7, 1895—. American journalist, author, and Unitarian clergyman. He attended (1914-16) Victoria College at Toronto, Canada, served as an assistant pastor of a Methodist mission in Alberta, was a member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in France during World War I, and became (1919) a staff member of the Toronto Globe. He was an editorial writer (1921-24) on the Atlanta Constitution, a columnist (1924-31) on the New York Evening World, and attended the École Pratique des Hautes Études (at Paris) until 1934. In 1946 he was ordained a Unitarian minister. His works include Israel and the Vision of Humanity (1932), Days of Our Years (1939), That Day Alone (1941), The Forgotten Ally (1943), Earth Could Be Fair (1946), Why Jesus Died (1949), and Jerusalem Calling (1950).

Pabianice (pă.byă.nê'tse). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Łódź, ab. 10 mi. SW of Łódź: cotton and linen textile manufactures. It was occupied by the Germans in both World Wars (in the latter one it was the seat of a German concentration camp). 37,140 (1946).

Pabna (pub'na). City in Pakistan, in East Bengal, on an arm of the Ganges River ab. 115 mi. NE of Calcutta. It is an important jute-milling and trading center. 31,924 (1951).

PAC. See Political Action Committee.

Paca (pă'ka, pak'a). William. b. near Abingdon, Md., Oct. 31, 1740; d. at "Wye Hall," in Talbot County, Md., Oct. 13, 1799. American jurist and politician, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Admitted (1764) to the bar of the provincial court, he was elected (1768) to the provincial legislature and in the period immediately preceding the Revolution was prominent among Maryland leaders of the American cause. He was a member of the Maryland committee of correspondence and was elected (June, 1774) to the First Continental Congress. He served in Congress until 1779, voting for and signing the Declaration of Independence. He was also a member of the Maryland Council of Safety and in 1776 was elected to the first state senate. He was appointed (1778) chief judge of the Maryland General Court and in 1780 was chosen by Congress as chief justice of the court of appeals in admiralty and prize cases. Chosen governor of Maryland in 1782, he served in that post until 1785. He was a delegate (1788) to the Maryland convention for ratification of the Constitution. He was appointed (1789) a federal district judge by President Washington, and he'd the post until his death.

Pacaguaras (pă.kă.wă'raz). [Also, Pacawaras.] Group of South American Indian tribes of N Bolivia and Brazil. They are a peaceable hunting and fishing people, of whom several hundred still survive. Their language, Pacaguara, is synonymous for the Southeastern group of the Panoan linguistic family, and embraces four languages and their dialects.

Pacajos (pă.kă.zhôz'). Tribe of South American Indians of the upper Pacajá River (a tributary of the Pará), now largely merged with the mestizo population of the region. They were described by early missionaries as brave and warlike, but "unwilling to work" (meaning simply that they were not easily persuaded to work for the missionaries; accounts of the day fail to tell us whether or not they were willing to work for themselves). Their language, Pacaja, embracing a number of dialects, belongs to the Araguaya division of the Southern Amazon branch of the Tupi-Guarani family of languages.

Pacaraima (pă.kä.rî.mă, pă.kä.rî.mă), Sierra. [Brazilian, Serra Pacaraima.] Range of low mountains between Venezuela on the N and Brazil on the S, extending into British Guiana. They are continuous with the Parima Range, and probably both are edges of a tableland. The highest peak is Roraima, on the border of British Guiana (ab. 9,219 ft.).

Pacasás (pă.kä.săz'). Subtribe of the Aymará Indians of Bolivia, E of Lake Titicaca.

Pacate (pă.kä'té). See Campaspe.

Pacawaras (pă.kä.wă'raz). See Pacaguas.

Pacca (pă.kä'kă), Bartolommeo. b. at Benevento, Italy, Dec. 25, 1756; d. at Rome, April 19, 1844. Roman cardinal and politician, author of various historical memoirs. His opposition (1809-13) to Napoleon's policies in Italy and elsewhere brought him a period of imprisonment.

Paccaritambo (pă.kä.rē.tăm'bō) or Paccaritampu (-tăm'pō). Three caves situated a few miles S of Cusco, Peru. It was a sacred place of the Incas. In their mythology, Manco Capac issued from it with his three brothers and four sisters to establish Cusco and found the Inca family.

Pace (päs), Frank, Jr. b. at Little Rock, Ark., July 5, 1912—. American lawyer and public official, appointed (1950) secretary of the army. In 1946 he was named a special assistant to the attorney general of the U.S., assigned to the division of taxation of the Department of Justice, and later in the same year was appointed executive assistant to the postmaster general. In 1949 he was appointed director of the budget.

Pace, Richard. b. near Winchester, England, c1482; d. 1536. English diplomat, long dean (1519 et seq.) of Saint Paul's Cathedral. He was sent to Switzerland (1515) by Cardinal Wolsey to stir up the Swiss against Francis I and the growing power of France, and to Germany (1519) to promote (without success) Henry VIII's election as successor to Emperor Maximilian. He was also employed to support Wolsey's candidature for the papacy (1521 and 1523).

Pacelli (pă.chē'lē), Eugenio. Original name of Pope Pius XII.

Pachacamac (pă'chă.kä.măk'). One of the larger ruined Indian cities, ab. 20 mi. S of Lima, Peru. It was a great religious center during Inca times and pilgrimages were made by Indians from all parts of Peru to the temples of the Sun, the Moon, and of Pachacamac, the chief god of the pre-Inca coastal Indians, possibly a solar deity, who became identified by the Incas with Viracocha.

Pachamama (pă.kä.mă'mă). In Inca Indian mythology, the ancient earth-mother goddess, still worshipped today as an agricultural and fertility deity, but syncretized by the modern Indians with the Virgin Mary.

Pachayachachic (pă.chă.yă'chă.chēk'). Name sometimes included in the full name of Viracocha, supreme deity of the Incas.

Pacheco (pă.chă'kō), Francisco. b. at Seville, Spain, 1571; d. there, 1654. Spanish painter and writer on art, author of Arte de la pintura (Art of Painting, 1649). He was Velázquez's father-in-law, and also one of his teachers.

Pacheco, María. fl. in the first part of the 16th century; d. in Portugal, 1531. Spanish leader (after the death of her husband, Juan de Padilla) in the defense of Toledo by the insurrectionists (1521-22).

Pacheco, Toribio. b. 1830; d. at Lima, Peru, 1868. Peruvian jurist and politician, minister of foreign affairs in 1865, and author of a standard work on Peruvian civil law.

Pacheco y Osorio (pă.chă'kō ē ō.sō'ryō), Rodrigo de. [Title, Marquis of Cerralvo.] b. c1580; d. after 1640. Spanish administrator. He was governor of Galicia, and viceroy of Mexico (Oct. 31, 1624-Sept. 16, 1635), succeeding Diego Carrillo de Mendoza y Pimentel, Marquis of Gelves, who had been deposed by the Audience (Audiencia).

Pachino (pă.kē'nō). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, the province of Siracusa, situated near the coast on the SE corner of Sicily, ab. 24 mi. SW of Syracuse: agricultural commune; tuna fisheries. Pop. of commune, 20,564 (1936); of town, 18,324 (1936).

Pachitea (pă.chē.tă'ă). River in C Peru, flowing NE to the Ucayali River. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Pachmann (păch'män), Vladimir de. b. at Odessa, Russia, July 27, 1848; d. 1933. Russian pianist. He made his first public appearance in 1869, but did not play regularly till 1871, after which time he had much success both in Europe and in the U.S., especially as an interpreter of Chopin.

Pachomius (pă.kō'mi.us), Saint. b. probably in Lower Egypt, c292; d. c348. One of the founders of Christian monasticism. A convert to Christianity, he became a hermit in the Thebaid. He established a monastery on an island in the Nile, and was the first thus to collect the monks under one roof and establish strict rules of government for the community.

Pacht (päch't). See Pakht.

Pachuca (pă.chō'kă). [Full name, Pachuca de Soto (dă sō'tō); also, formerly, Hidalgo.] City in S Mexico, capital of Hidalgo state, ab. 50 mi. NE of Mexico City. Founded (c1534) on the site of a silver-mining camp; scene of the invention (1557) by Bartolomé de Medina of the patio process for the amalgamation of silver ore. One of the famous old mines was the Trinidad, from which 40 million dollars in silver was taken in 10 years. Sacked by the revolutionists, April 23, 1812, the city did not recover its prosperity until 1850, when the Rosario Mine was brought into bonanza production. 53,354 (1940).

Pachynus (pă.ki'nus). Ancient name of Passero, Cape. Pacific (pă.sif'ik), War of the. [Also called the Chile-Peruvian War.] Name commonly given to the war waged (1879-83) by Chile against Bolivia and Peru. It arose from claims made by Chile to the nitrate regions of Atacama, Bolivia, and later to adjoining regions in Peru. In February, 1879, the Chileans seized Antofagasta, which was then in Bolivia. Bolivia declared war March 1. Peru offered her mediation, was met by demands which she refused, and Chile declared war against Peru on April 5. Thereafter Peru and Bolivia acted as allies. A preliminary treaty of peace between Chile and Peru was signed on Ancón on Oct. 20, 1883, and ratified on April 4, 1884. A treaty of peace between Chile and Bolivia was signed on Dec. 11, 1883. By these treaties all the coast region of Bolivia, and Tarapacá in Peru, were permanently ceded to Chile. She was to hold Arica and Tacna for ten years. Chile obtained other important advantages relating to the guano deposits. The Chileans evacuated Lima on Oct. 22, 1883.

Pacification of Limerick (lim'ē.rik). See Limerick, Treaty of.

Pacification of Pinerolo (pă.nē.rō'lō). See Pinerolo, Pacification of.

Pacific Grove (pă.sif'ik). City in W California, in Monterey County, S of San Francisco, on Monterey Bay: residential community. It was founded in 1874. Pop. 9,623 (1950).

Pacific Islands, Trust Territory of the. United Nations trusteeship territory situated in the W North Pacific Ocean, including the three major island groups of the Marshalls, Carolines, and Marianas (excluding Guam). The territory is administered by the U.S., and passed from military to civil administration in 1947. The Marianas are of volcanic origin, but the other islands are coral islands or atolls, excepting Palau, Yap, Truk, Ponape, and Kusaie in the Carolines. Before World War I the islands were German possessions; they passed to Japan in 1914, and to the U.S. in 1944-45. Total land area, ab. 685 sq. mi.; pop. 50,978 (1948).

Pacific Ocean. Largest of the world's oceans, situated between the continents of North and South America, on the E, and Asia and Australia, on the W. It connects with the Arctic Ocean by the Bering Strait; with the Indian Ocean by numerous straits, and with the Atlantic Ocean by the Strait of Magellan, and Drake Passage. Though by far the greatest ocean, the Pacific receives the drainage of less than half as much land as drains to the Atlantic; it is largely bordered by mountainous lands of relatively recent uplift; the only great plain bordering the Pacific is the plain of E China, including the North China Plain and the lower Yangtze valley. The topography of the floor of the Pacific is very uneven; there are many large, deep basins, separated by ridges or isolated groups of islands; a great number of islands, many of fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; τη, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch; them of volcanic origin, are scattered in the Pacific Ocean. Though known to Melanesian, Micronesian, and Polynesian people from prehistoric times, the Pacific was the last of the great oceans to be explored and navigated by Europeans; Magellan crossed it in 1520-21 (the first navigator to do so). Area, including bordering seas, ab. 69,345,250 sq. mi.; average depth, ab. 13,220 ft.; area, excluding bordering seas, ab. 63,801,600 sq. mi.; average depth, ab. 14,050 ft.; greatest known depth, ab. 35,410 ft. in the Mindanao Deep.

Pacificus (pa.sif'ikus). See under Helvidius.

Pacifid (pa.sif'id). Round-headed, low-vaulted, and flat-faced type of Indian who, as the name suggests, is found principally in the W part of the U.S.

Pacifjan (pa.sē'fān). See under Camotes Islands.

Pacini (pā.chē'nē), Giovanni. b. in Catania, Italy, Feb. 17, 1796; d. near Pescia, Italy, Dec. 6, 1867. Italian composer. He wrote about 80 operas, among the best of which are Niobe (1826), Saffo (1840), Medea (1843), and La Regina di Cipro (1846).

Pacioti (pā.chē.nō'tē), Antonio. b. 1841; d. 1912. Italian physicist. He was educated at the University of Pisa and taught there and at the universities of Bologna (1864 et seq.) and Cagliari (1873 et seq.). He devised (1860) a dynamo with ring armature winding.

Pacioli (pā.chō'lē), Luca. [Also: Paciola (-chō'lā), Paciuolo (-chō'wō'lā), Paciolus (-chō'fūs).] b. at Borgo San Sepolcro, Tuscany, Italy, c1445; d. probably after 1509. Italian mathematician, one of the most influential of the early modern period. He wrote on arithmetic, algebra, and bookkeeping. His Summa de arithmetica (1594), often reprinted, summed up knowledge in mathematics prior to the discovery of the solution of the cubic equation. He wrote also De divina proportione (1509).

Pacius (pā.sī'us), Fredrik. b. 1839; d. 1891. Finnish composer and violinist. He taught (1834 et seq.) at Helsinki University, and initiated (1845) regular symphonic concerts there. His works include Maamme, which became the national anthem.

Packard (pak'ard), Alpheus Spring. b. Feb. 19, 1839; d. Feb. 14, 1935. American naturalist. He was professor of zoology and geology at Brown University (1878-1905). His works include Guide to the Study of Insects (1869), Our Common Insects (1873), Half-Hours with Insects (1877), Zoology for Students and General Readers (1879), Zoology (1883; American Science Series), Entomology for Beginners (1888), and others.

Packard, Frank Lucius. b. at Montreal, Canada, 1877; d. at Lachine, Quebec, Canada, Feb. 17, 1942. Canadian writer, chiefly noted for his Jimmie Dale detective stories. His books include Pawnee, The Four Stragglers, Greater Love Hath No Man, The Beloved Traitor, The Night Operator, and The Wire Devils.

Packard, James Ward. b. at Warren, Ohio, Nov. 5, 1863; d. at Cleveland, Ohio, March 20, 1928. American engineer, inventor, manufacturer, and philanthropist. He secured patents on a lamp socket and a type of incandescent lamp, and on improved vacuum pumps for making lamp bulbs. In 1889 he took part in organizing the Packard Electric Company (known after 1893 as the New York and Ohio Company) at Warren, Ohio, manufacturers of electrical equipment; subsequently he secured patents on transformers (1894, 1897, 1899) and a fuse box (1894). A pioneer in the development of the automobile, he reorganized (1903) an earlier venture as the Packard Motor Company at Detroit, Mich. He was the donor of an electrical and mechanical engineering laboratory to Lehigh University.

Packard, Silas Sadler. b. at Cummington, Mass., April 28, 1826; d. Oct. 27, 1898. American educator, noted as one of the developers of business education. He established (1858) Packard's Business College at New York after having been associated with similar enterprises elsewhere, and was among the first to bring business schools into line with changing needs in the commercial world.

Packer (pak'ēr), Asa. b. at Groton, Conn., Dec. 29, 1805; d. at Philadelphia, May 17, 1879. American financier and politician. He was a member of Congress from Pennsylvania (1853-57) and a founder of Lehigh University in 1866. He was a chief projector of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Pacolet (pak'ō'let). Dwarf in the Carolingian romance Valentine and Orson. The name has been given to other dwarfs in literature. Sir Walter Scott gave it to a character in The Pirate, and Steele used it for a familiar spirit in The Teller.

Pacto de Chinandega (pāk'tō dā chē.nān.dā'gā). See Confederación Centro-Americana.

Pact of Ankara (ang'ka.ra). Tripartite treaty (Oct. 19, 1939) between Great Britain, France, and Turkey. It guaranteed British and French aid to Turkey if attacked by European powers, and Turkish aid if Great Britain or France were attacked in the Mediterranean. Turkey's obligations were to be nullified, however, if fulfillment of them would involve her in war with the U.S.S.R. This pact was nullified in 1941 by the collapse of France and the conclusion of a pact between Turkey and Germany.

Pact of Paris (par'is). See Briand-Kellogg Pact.

Pactolus (pak.tō'lus). In ancient geography, a small river of Lydia, Asia Minor, a tributary of the Hermus. It was long celebrated for its gold, but its sands had ceased to produce by the time of Augustus. In Greek legend, its golden sands were caused by the touch of Midas.

Pacuvius (pā.kū'vius), Marcus. b. at Brundisium, Italy, c220 B.C.; d. c130 B.C. Roman tragic poet. Only fragments of his plays have been preserved.

Padang (pā.dāng). Town in the Republic of Indonesia, in W Sumatra, on the Indian Ocean. Long important as a point of export for spices, coffee, and other products of an agricultural nature, it has also become notable in comparatively recent years as a chief shipping center for one of the few major coal fields in Indonesia. 108,728 (1951).

Paddanaram (pad.an.ār'am). See under Aram.

Paddington (pa'fing.tŋn). Metropolitan borough in W London, in the County of London. It is bounded on the S by Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens, and includes part of Kensington Gardens. 125,281 (1951).

Paddock (pad'ok), Algernon Sidney. b. at Glens Falls, N.Y., Nov. 9, 1830; d. Oct. 17, 1897. American lawyer and politician. He served (1875-81, 1887-93) in the U.S. Senate.

Paddock, Benjamin Henry. b. at Norwich, Conn., Feb. 29, 1828; d. at Boston, March 9, 1891. American bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He became bishop of Massachusetts in 1873.

Paddys Town (pad'iz). A former name of Keyser, W.Va.

Paden City (pā'dēn). Town in NW West Virginia, on the Ohio River: bottle manufacturing. 2,588 (1950).

Paderborn (pā.dēr.börn). [Medieval name, Patris Brunna.] City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, ab. 43 mi. NW of Kassel. It has livestock markets, cement and glass works, brewing, canning, baking, and leather industries, and printing establishments. In World War II the old part of Paderborn was one of the most completely destroyed urban areas in Westphalia. Among the severely damaged or completely ruined buildings are the Dom (cathedral), founded by Charlemagne in the 8th century, the Romanesque Abdinghof, Gau, and Busdorf churches (11th-13th centuries), the baroque churches of the Jesuits and the Franciscans (17th century), and the Gothic and Renaissance Rathaus (town hall) of 1416-1613. The 11th-century Chapel of Saint Bartholomew is relatively intact. The city was one of the most important seats of ecclesiastical power in north Germany in the Middle Ages; in the 13th century it adhered to the Hanseatic League. The population decreased in the period 1939-46 by 27.4 percent. 29,033 (1946), 40,270 (1950).

Paderewski (pad.e.ref'ski; Polish, pā.d.e.ref'skŋ), Ignace Jan. b. at Kuryłówka, in Podolia, Russian Poland, Nov. 6, 186; d. at New York, June 29, 1941. Polish pianist and composer. He went to Warsaw in 1872, where he studied with Raguski and Janotha, and when about 16 years old made a concert tour in Russia, at the close of which he went back to Warsaw and was a teacher (1879-81) at the conservatory. He also studied later at Berlin and finally under Leschetitzky at Vienna. He made his debut at Vienna in 1887 and at New York in 1892. He was thereafter outstandingly successful, particularly in his playing of works by Schumann, Chopin, Rubinstein, Beethoven, and Liszt. He identified himself from early life with the cause of Polish independence. During World War I he financed a committee to aid Polish war victims, and when the U.S. entered the war against the Central Powers, he strongly urged the Polish-American population to support President Wilson's policy and played a role in shaping that part of the 14-point declaration which concerned Poland's independence. After Poland became independent, he served as one of its delegates at Versailles and signed the peace treaty. In 1919 he was premier and minister of foreign affairs in Poland, but disagreements with Piłsudski compelled him to resign. Until 1922 he was Polish delegate at the League of Nations. He finally retired from political life and settled permanently at Morges, Switzerland. In 1940 he returned to the U.S. His musical works include the opera Manru (1901), Nocturn (1932), Sonata (1903), Symphonie in B-minor (1911), Dances polonaises (1882), and Fantaisie polonaise (1895).

Paderno Dugnano (pà.dér'nō dō.nyā'nō). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, situated on the Seveso River N of Milan: textile, food, and other industries. Pop. of commune, 10,586 (1936); of town, 5,169 (1936).

Padiham (pad'i.am). Urban district and manufacturing town in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 3 mi. W of Burnley, ab. 264 mi. NW of London by rail, 10,031 (1951).

Padilla (pā.tñe'yā). Ezequiel. [Full name, Ezequiel Padilla Penaloza.] b. at Coyuca de Catalán, Guerrero, Mexico, Dec. 31, 1890—. Mexican lawyer and statesman. He was minister of public education (1929), minister plenipotentiary (1930-32) to Italy and Hungary, minister (1940-45) of foreign affairs, and a candidate (1946) for the presidency.

Padilla (pā.tñe'yā), Juan López de. b. at Toledo, Spain; executed in April, 1521. Spanish revolutionist, leader of the insurrection of the communes against absolutism in 1520. His army was defeated on April 23, 1521.

Padilla, Matias de la Mota. See Mota Padilla, Matias de la.

Padilla Nervo (pā.tñe'yā ner'vō), Luis. b. at Zamora, Michoacán, Mexico, Aug. 19, 1900—. Mexican statesman. A lawyer educated in Mexico, Argentina, the U.S., and England, he entered the diplomatic service in 1920, and served at Buenos Aires, Washington, London, and Madrid. After 1933 he was Mexican minister in a number of countries in Europe and the Americas, served as under-secretary of public education and fine arts and as assistant secretary of labor and social welfare, and in 1938 went to Geneva as Mexican delegate to the assembly of the League of Nations. Among other international conferences he attended as Mexican representative were the Hot Springs conference on food problems (1943) and the San Francisco conference to organize the United Nations (1945). He became (1946) Mexico's permanent delegate to the United Nations, served (1948-49) as president of the "Little Assembly" (the interim committee), and was elected president of the General Assembly in 1951 to succeed Nasrallah Entezam of Iran. In 1952 he became minister of foreign affairs of Mexico.

Padova (pā'dō.vā). [English, Padua.] Province in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto. Capital, Padua; area, ab. 827 sq. mi.; pop. 668,025 (1936).

Padua (pad'ū.a). [Italian, Padova; Latin, Patavium.] City and commune in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, the capital of the province of Padova, on the Bacchiglione River ab. 20 mi. W of Venice. A major railroad junction, it has furniture and rayon manufactures, and metal, shoe, chemical, and foodstuff industries. It is connected by canal with the Adige River. Pop. of commune, 138,709 (1936), 172,692 (1951); of city, 90,325 (1936).

Cultural Institutions; Architecture and Art. Padua is the seat of a famous university, founded (1222) by an exodus of academicians from Bologna and long noted for its faculties of law, medicine, philosophy, and theology (and more recently also for its schools of engineering and geology). It has a large library and one of the oldest botanical gardens in Europe. Galileo was a teacher here, and Dante, Petrarca, and Tasso were students. Padua is rich in architectural and art treasures, including the Basilica of Sant' Antonio (13th-14th centuries), a Romanesque building with Byzantine tower and a rich interior; Sant' Annunziata, or Madonna dell'Arena, with famous murals by Giotto (1303); the cathedral and the Church of Santa Giustina in the Renaissance style of the 16th century; San Giorgio of the 14th century; and the Scuola del Santo, with murals by Titian. Medieval walls and bastions have also been preserved. The most serious loss suffered in World War II was the destruction of the Church of the Eremitani, and of its Mantegna frescoes (except for two which had been stored safely at Venice). Repairs have been completed or are under way on the cathedral, the churches of Sant' Antonio, Santa Sofia, and San Benedetto, the Palazzo della Ragione, and other buildings. The Giotto frescoes in the Arena chapel were unhurt.

History. According to legend, Padua was founded by Antenor of Troy. In historical times, under Rome, it was a place of some importance. In the early Middle Ages it was sacked successively by Alaric, Attila, and Totila, and then came under the Byzantines, the Lombards, and the Franks. From 1406 to 1797 it was a Venetian domain; in the period 1797-1866 it was under Austria, except for an interval in the Napoleonic era; in 1866 it was incorporated into Italy. In World War I, the Austrian-Italian armistice was signed here, on Nov. 3, 1918.

Padua, University of. See under Padua.

Paducah (pā.dū'ka). City in SW Kentucky, county seat of McCracken County, at the confluence of the Ohio and Tennessee rivers: manufactures of textiles, textile machinery, garments, hosiery, leather goods, barrels, furniture; marketing center for tobacco; shipping center for strawberries; railroad shops. Settled c1817, it was named for a Chickasaw chief, and was incorporated as a city in 1856. It was the birthplace of Irvin S. Cobb. 32,828 (1950).

Paducah. Town in W Texas, county seat of Cottle County, NE of Lubbock: ginning center for cotton. 2,952 (1950).

Padus (pā'dūs). A Latin name of the Po.

Paeligni (pē.lī'ni). [Also, Peligni.] Ancient Italian people, who in the 3rd century B.C. unsuccessfully resisted Roman ascendancy in the region. Their language, called Paelignian, was one of the ancient Oscan dialects.

Paenonia (pē'ni.a). In ancient geography, a region in the interior of Macedonia.

Paenonius (pē'ni.us). Greek sculptor of Mende in Thrace. His statue of Nike (Victory) on a pillar, described by Pausanias, was discovered in 1875 with its inscription, and gives a perfect idea of this master's style.

Paer (pā'er), Ferdinando. b. at Parma, Italy, June 1, 1771; d. at Paris, May 3, 1839. Italian composer of opera. He was appointed maître de chapelle (choirmaster) by Napoleon, and went to Paris in 1807. His works include Camilla (1801), Sargino (1803), and Eleonora (1804).

Paes (pā'es). See also Paez.

Paes (pāsh), Sidônio Bernardino Cardoso da Silva. b. c1872; d. in Portugal, 1918. Portuguese politician and one-time professor of mathematics, president (1918) of the Portuguese republic. He was a leader in the establishment (1910) of the republic, and served (1910-12) in various ministerial posts. Appointed (1913) Portuguese minister to Germany, he remained at Berlin until 1916. He took a leading part in the uprising which ousted B. L. Machado from the presidency in 1917.

Paes de Andrade (pis de un.dra'dē), Manuel de Carvalho. See Carvalho Paes de Andrade, Manuel de.

Paesiello (pā.ä.zyel'lo), Giovanni. See Paisiello, Giovanni.

Paestum (pes'tum, pēs'-). [Original name, Posidonia.] In ancient geography, a city in Lucania, Magna Graecia. Italy, situated near the sea in lat. 40°25' N., long. 15° E. It was a Greek city, a colony of Sybaris, founded c600 B.C., and brought under Roman domination after the failure of Pyrrhus's invasion in 273 B.C. Under Roman rule Paestum dwindled, and it was finally destroyed by the Saracens in the 9th century. The site is now deserted. The Greek walls are still standing throughout their circuit of 2½ mi., with eight towers and four gates more or less ruined; the plan is approximately trapezoidal. Within the walls the three archaic Doric temples form, from their remarkable state of preservation, one of the most impressive Greek architectural groups existing (many authorities place them second only to the monuments of Athens). The temples of Paestum are not mentioned by ancient writers and were unknown to modern scholars until described (1745) by Antonini. The so-called temple of Neptune is one of the three best-preserved Greek Doric temples, retaining all its exterior columns and most of those of the interior, and majestic in its aspect. It dates from the 6th century B.C. The so-called temple of Ceres is Greek Doric, peripteral, hexastyle, with 13 columns on the flanks, on a stylobate of three steps, measuring 47 by 107 ft. Though many architectural details appear debased, the temple probably dates from the early 6th century B.C. The Basilica is a Greek Doric peripteral structure of nine by 18 columns, measuring 80 by 178 ft., on a stylobate of three steps. The cella is divided longitudinally by a central range of columns (a reasonable explanation of this unusual plan is that the temple was double, one half being dedicated presumably to Demeter and the other to Persephone).

Paestum, Gulf of. See Salerno, Gulf of.

Paez (pá'es). [Also: Paes, Paezes (pā.ā'zāz).] Indian tribe of Colombia in the mountains of the Cordillera Central. They warred with neighboring tribes before the Spanish conquest and, later, with the Spanish. At present the remaining members of the tribe are on a reservation in Tierradentro. Their language is of the Chibchan linguistic stock.

Páez (pá'es), Federico. Ecuadorian statesman, provisional president of Ecuador, under an army-sponsored dictatorship, from September, 1935, until October, 1937.

Páez, José Antonio. b. in Barinas, Venezuela, June 13, 1790; d. at New York, May 7, 1873. Venezuelan general and politician, first president of Venezuela. In 1829-30 he headed the movement against Bolívar by which Venezuela separated from Colombia. He was Venezuelan president from March 18, 1831, to Feb. 9, 1835, and again from Feb. 1, 1839, to Jan. 28, 1843; in the interval between these terms he commanded the army and put down two rebellions.

Pag (pāg). [Italian, Pago.] Island in W Yugoslavia, in the Adriatic Sea, off the coast of Croatia, separated from the mainland by the Plininski Kanal (Canale della Morlaccia). Area, ab. 111 sq. mi.; pop. 4,352 (1931).

Pagani (pā.gā'nē). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Salerno, between Torre Annunziata and Nocera Inferiore, ab. 21 mi. SE of Naples; agricultural commune; macaroni and canning factories. Pop. of commune, 19,756 (1936); of town, 16,448 (1936).

Paganini (pā.gā'nē), Niccolò. b. at Genoa, Italy, Oct. 27, 1782; d. at Nice, France, May 27, 1840. Italian violin virtuoso. He first appeared in public in 1793 at Genoa. He commenced his foreign tours in 1797; from 1801 till 1805 he did not play in public; he then resumed his concert tours, and soon after became solo player to the court at Lucca. It was here that he became famous for his execution on the single G-string. From this time his success was remarkable, and his bizarre and mysterious appearance (on and off the stage) added to his fame (it was currently reported by some credulous persons that he was a son of the devil, whom he was fancied to resemble). He left several sonatas and concertos, but is perhaps best remembered as a composer for his 24 caprices (which were later given piano scores by Liszt and Schumann).

Pagano (pā.gā'nō), Jo. b. at Denver, Colo., Feb. 5, 1906—. American novelist and short-story writer. He has worked as a commercial artist, art critic, and scenarist. Among his works are The Paesanos (1940), Golden Wedding (1943), and The Condemned (1947).

Pagasae (pag'a.sē). See under Volos.

Page (pāj). In Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor, the easy husband of Mistress Page.

Page, Charles Grafton. b. at Salem, Mass., Jan. 25, 1812; d. May 5, 1868. American physician and physicist, remembered as a pioneer in the development of various important electrical devices. He studied medicine and commenced his career as a physician at Salem, meanwhile carrying out experimental investigations in electricity. He developed and described (1837) an induction apparatus embodying the principle of the modern induction coil, by 1846 he had constructed a small motor, and by 1851 he had completed the construction of a locomotive powered by electricity. Author of History of Induction: The American Claim to the Induction Coil and Its Electrostatic Developments (1867).

Page, Frederick Handley. b. 1885—. English airplane manufacturer, managing director and chairman (1948 et seq.) of Handley Page, Ltd.

Page, John. b. at "Rosewell," Gloucester County, Va., April 17, 1743; d. Oct. 11, 1808. American Revolutionary patriot and politician. While attending the College of William and Mary he met and formed a close association with Thomas Jefferson, and was subsequently president of the Society for the Advancement of Useful Knowledge at Williamsburg. A member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, he served on the Committee of Public Safety and was lieutenant governor during Patrick Henry's administration. He took part in the Yorktown campaign, served (1789-97) in Congress, and was governor (1802 et seq.) of Virginia.

Page, Leigh. b. at South Orange, N.J., Oct. 13, 1884; d. at Randolph, N.H., Sept. 14, 1952. American physicist and educator. Professor of mathematical physics (1922 et seq.) at Yale, he propounded a new theory of electromagnetism. Author of An Introduction to Electrodynamics (1922), Principles of Electricity (1931), Electrodynamics (1940), and other works.

Page, Stanton. Pseudonym of Fuller, Henry Blake.

Page, Thomas Jefferson. b. at Shelly, Gloucester County, Va., Jan. 4, 1808; d. at Rome, Oct. 26, 1899. American naval officer; grandson of John Page. As a lieutenant commander he was engaged (1853-56) in explorations of the region of the Río de la Plata, in South America. In February, 1855, his vessel, the Water Witch (then in charge of Lieutenant Jeffers), was fired upon by a Paraguayan fort, and one man was killed; the fire was returned. Page resigned his U.S. commission early in 1861, entered the Confederate service, was commissioned a commodore, and in 1862 was sent to England to take charge of a cruiser. His ship was not permitted to leave England, and he took command of a small ironclad at Copenhagen, but it was soon after seized in a Spanish port, thus ending his Confederate service. Subsequently he resided in Argentina and in Florence, Italy. He was the author of La Plata, the Argentine Confederation, and Paraguay (1859).

Page, Thomas Nelson. b. in Hanover County, Va., April 23, 1853; d. Nov. 1, 1922. American lawyer and author, ambassador to Italy (1913-19); great-grandson of John Page. Among his works are In Ole Virginia (1887), Two Little Confederates (1888), On Newfound River (1890), The Old South (essays, 1892), Meh Lady (1893), The Old Gentleman of the Black Stock (1896), Social Life in Old Virginia (1897), Red Rock (1898), Gordon Keith (1903), The Old Dominion (1908), John Marvel, Assistant (1909), and Robert E. Lee, Man and Soldier (1911).

Page, Walter Hines. [Pseudonym, Nicholas Worth.] b. at Cary, N.C., Aug. 15, 1855; d. at Pinehurst, N.C., Dec. 21, 1918. American journalist, editor, and diplomat. He attended Randolph-Macon College (Ashland, Va.) and the Johns Hopkins University. Five months after joining (1880) the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette as a reporter, he became editor of the paper; in 1881-82 he held a roving commission for the New York World, on which he also served as literary critic and editorial writer until his resignation in 1883. He then published and edited the Raleigh State Chronicle, giving it up to return to New York in 1885. In 1887 he became a member of the business staff of the Forum; he took over the magazine's direction in 1891. He became (1895) literary adviser and associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly and three years later assumed its editorship. He became (1899) a partner in the publishing firm of Doubleday, Page and Company, established (1900) the magazine World's Work, and was its editor until 1913, when he became U.S. ambassador to Great Britain. Pro-British during the years of World War I, he saw the contest from the outset as a struggle against Prussian militarism. During the period of America's neutrality, Page differed with Wilson's policies and asked (November, 1916) to be relieved. He remained at his post upon Wilson's insistence, resigning (August, 1918) because of ill health. He wrote The Rebuilding of Old Commonwealths (1902), A Publisher's Confession (1905, 1923), and The Southerner (1909), the latter published under the pseudonym Nicholas Worth.

Page, William. b. at Albany, N.Y., Jan. 23, 1811; d. at Tottenville, N.Y., Oct. 1, 1885. American painter, known for his portraits of such major American figures as William Lloyd Garrison and John Quincy Adams. Among his other works are Venus, Moses and Aaron on Mount Horeb, and Flight into Egypt.

Pagedale (pāj'dāl). City (incorporated in 1950) in Missouri: western suburb of St. Louis, 3,866 (1950).

Paget (pāj'et), Sir Augustus Berkeley. b. 1823; d. at Hatfield, England, 1896. English diplomat; nephew of Henry William Paget. He was minister to Denmark (1859), envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to King Victor Emmanuel (1867-76) and ambassador (1876-83), and ambassador at Vienna (1884-93).

Paget, Francis. b. March 20, 1851; d. at London, Aug. 2, 1911. English ecclesiastic; son of James Paget. He was regius professor of pastoral theology and canon of Christ Church, Oxford (1885-92), dean of Christ Church (1892-1901), and bishop of Oxford (1901-11).

Paget, Lord George Augustus Frederick. b. March 16, 1818; d. at London, June 30, 1880. English army officer; son of Henry William Paget. During the Crimean War he commanded (1854) the third line of the light cavalry brigade which made the famous "charge of the 600." His Crimean Journals were printed (1875) for private circulation; a revised edition was published (1881) posthumously.

Paget, Henry William. [Title, 1st Marquis of Anglesey.] b. 1768; d. 1854. English army officer. He served with distinction in the Low Countries and in Spain (1808-09), and commanded the British cavalry at Waterloo. He was lord lieutenant of Ireland (1828-29, 1830-33). He was made a field marshal in 1846.

Paget, Sir James. b. at Yarmouth, England, Jan. 11, 1814; d. at London, Dec. 30, 1899. English physician, notable both as a surgeon and as a pathologist. In 1835 he observed the microscopic organism Trichina spiralis (the parasite which causes trichinosis); his findings were later confirmed and published by Richard Owen. He became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1836, and was for several years president of that body. He was sergeant-surgeon to the queen, surgeon to the Prince of Wales, consulting surgeon to Saint Bartholomew's Hospital, and vice-chancellor of the University of London. He was created a baronet in 1871. He published Lectures on Surgical Pathology (1853), Clinical Lectures (1875), and others.

Paget, Violet. [Pseudonym, Vernon Lee.] b. 1857; d. Feb. 13, 1935. English essayist and critic. She wrote much on the art, literature, and drama of Italy, where she lived for many years, and contributed to the principal English reviews. Author of Studies of the Eighteenth Century in Italy (1880), Baldwin (1886), Althea (1894), Limbo and Other Essays (1897), Genius Loci (1899), Gospels of Anarchy (1908), The Tower of Mirrors (1914), Salan, the Waster (1920), and The Golden Keys (1925).

Paget, William. [Title, 1st Baron Paget de Beaudesert (bō.dē.zār').] b. at Wednesbury, England, 1505; d. in Middlesex, England, 1563. English statesman, a chief counselor of Henry VIII. He was sent (1541) as ambassador to France to explain Henry's repudiation of Catherine Howard, and appointed privy counselor and secretary of state upon his return (1543). He was in charge of the king's household on the accession of Edward VI, and was prominent in the plot to set aside Henry's will (1549). Accused of conspiring against Warwick, he was committed (1551) to Tower of London, with Somerset. In the following year he was struck from the rolls of the Order of the Garter (officially because of mental birth, but actually to make room for Lord Dudley). For sanctioning the proclamation of Mary's accession he was restored to the Order of the Garter, appointed privy counselor (1553), and lord privy seal (1559); he relinquished all offices on Elizabeth's accession.

Pagholo del Fattorino (pāj.gō.lō del fāt.tō.rē.nō), Bar-tolommeo di. Original name of Bartolommeo, Fra.

Paglia (pāj'lyā), Antonio della. See Paleario, Aonio.

Pagliacci (pāj'lyāt'chē). [Full title, 1 Pagliacci.] Opera in two acts by Leonecavallo, with a libretto by the composer, first produced at Milan on May 21, 1892. The work, treating of the tragedies of a group of strolling players (most notably, those of the clown), is famous for its prologue and for the aria, sung by Canio, Vesti la giubba.

Pagliaricci (pāj.lyā.rēt'chē), Antonio degli. See Paleario, Aonio.

Pagnol (pāj'nōl), Marcel. [Full name, Marcel Paul Pagnol.] b. at Aubagne, France, 1895—. French playwright and scenario writer. Author of Ulysse chez les Phéniciens (1926), Les Marchands de gloire (1925), Jazz (1926), Topaze (1928), Marius (1929), Fanny (1931), César (1936), and others. Since the middle 1930's he has devoted himself almost exclusively to the medium of motion pictures, editing a review, Les Cahiers du film, and making one film, Murless, to illustrate his theories. A former English teacher, he is best known for the play Topaze, in which he satirizes his former profession.

Pago (pāj'gō). Italian name of Pag.

Pago Pago (pāng'ō pāng'ō, pāng'gō pāng'gō, pāng'gō pāng'gō, pāj'gō pāj'gō, pāj'gō pāj'gō). [Also, Pango-Pango.] Large harbor and port on the E coast of Tutuila in Samoa. It was first occupied by the U.S. in 1872 as a naval and coaling station. In 1900 it was annexed by the U.S. together with the island of Tutuila. The village of Pago Pago is the largest settlement and the capital of American Samoa. It contains a hospital and a school, 1,586 (1950).

Pagans (pāj.sān'). See under Caraballos Occidentales. Pahang (pā.hūng', pā.hāng'). State in the Federation of Malaysia, formerly one of the Federated Malay States, situated on the E coast of the Malay Peninsula, ab. 300 mi. N of Singapore. It became a member of the Federation in February, 1948. It produces fruit, rice, and rubber. Capital, Kuala Lipis; area, 13,820 sq. mi.; pop. 250,178 (1947).

Pahari (pā.hā'rē). Indo-European language spoken in the foothills of the Himalayas from the borders of Kashmir to Sikkim. It is an offshoot of Rajasthani, having been brought to the Himalayan region by colonists from Rajputana. It is now spoken by the ruling classes of Nepal, while most of the people of Nepal use Newari and other languages of the Tibeto-Burman stock.

Pahlanpur (pāj.lān.pūr). See Palanpur.

Pahlavi (pāj'lyā.vē). [Also, Pehlevi.] Iranian language, important as the medium for post-Avestan religious texts. It is one of the languages classified as Middle Persian and belongs to the western branch of the Iranian group of the Indo-Iranian subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Pahlavi (pāj.lā.vē'), Mohammed Riza. See Mohammed Riza Pahlavi.

Pahlen (pāj'lēn), Baron Emanuel von der. b. at St. Petersburg, July 4, 1822—. German astrophysicist, known for his work in stellar dynamics at Potsdam.

Pahokee (pā.hō'kē). Town in S Florida, in Palm Beach County, on Lake Okeechobee NW of Miami: shipping point for winter vegetables, 4,472 (1950).

Pahouin (pāj.wān). See Pangwe.

Pahsien (bāj'shyen'). See Chungking.

Pa-Hsien (bāj'shyen'). Chinese name of the Eight Im-mortals.

Pai Chung-hsi (bī' chūng'shē'). b. at Kweilin, Kwangsi, China, 1893—. Chinese military leader, a member with Li Chi-shen and Li Tsung-jen, of the so-called Kwangsi triumvirate which long held (1924-36) Kwangsi. He was (after 1938) a member of the National Military Council. A Moslem, he was influential with the northwestern Moslem warlords and sought to rally his coreligionists against Japan. With the outbreak (1945) of civil war he was initially successful against the Communists, serving (1945-48) as war minister, but was finally driven (1949) back into Kwangsi and later to Hainan island and Formosa.

Paiconeca (pāj.kō.nā'kə). Tribe of South American Indians of NE Bolivia, formerly located between the Guaporé and Baures rivers. They were a sedentary, village-dwelling, agricultural people when first visited by the Jesuits in 1707, and many remained in the missions until 1831. In the 19th century, however, all the Paiconeca retired from white contact to the region on the upper Río Blanco, a branch of the Baures, in E Bolivia.

their language, called Paiconeca, belongs to the Chiquito subgroup of the Bolivian group of the southern division of the Arawanak family of languages.

Paignton (pān'ton). Urban district, seaside resort, and former seaport in SW England, in Devonshire, situated on Tor Bay ab. 2 mi. S of Torquay, ab. 202 mi. SW of London by rail. 25,3.9 (1951).

Päijänne (pā'yan.ne). Lake in S central Finland, ab. 70 mi. N of Helsinki. Length, ab. 85 mi.; area, 429 sq. mi. (excluding islands, which cover 98 sq. mi.); greatest known depth, ab. 305 ft.

Paillamacu (pi.lä.mä.kō) or Paillamachu (mā'chō). b. c.1525; d. 1603. Araucanian Indian of Chile, toqui or war chief from c.1593. He attacked the Spaniards in 1595, 1596, and 1597, and in 1598 headed the most successful rising of his tribe.

Pailleuron (pā.ye.rōn), Édouard Jules Henri. b. at Paris, Sept. 17, 1834; d. April 20, 1899. French poet and dramatist. He began life as a notary's clerk, incidentally writing poems and plays. Author of plays including Le Dernier Quartier (1863), Le Second Mouvement (1865), Le Monde où l'on s'amuse (1868), Les Faux Ménages (1869), L'Autre Motif (1872), Hélène (1872), Petite pluie (1875), L'Age ingrat (1878), L'Étincelle (1879), Le Monde où l'on s'ennuie (1881), La Souris (1887), and Les Cabotins (1894). Three of his comedies (Le Chevalier Trumeau, Le Narcotique, and Pendant le bal) were published together as Le Théâtre chez Madame (1881). He married the daughter of M. Buloz, general manager of the Revue des Deux Mondes, and many of his poems appeared in that publication. Among them are Le Départ (1870), Prrière pour la France (1871), and the collection entitled Amours et haines (1888). Pailleuron was elected to the French Academy in 1881. His inaugural speech, together with his addresses to that body on other occasions, appeared as Discours académiques (1886). Author of Biographie d'Émile Augier (1889).

Paine (pān), Albert Bigelow. b. at New Bedford, Mass., July 10, 1861; d. at New Smyrna, Fla., April 9, 1937. American writer and an editor (1899-1909) of the St. Nicholas Magazine. Author of The Mystery of Evelyn Delorme (1894), The Dumpies (1897), The Autobiography of a Monkey (1897), The Arkansas Bear (1898), The Bread Line (1900), The Commuters (1904), The Tent Dwellers (1908), Dwellers in Arcady (1919), Joan of Arc—Mail of France (1925), Life and Lillian Gish (1932), and Golden Cat (1934); as literary executor of Mark Twain, he wrote also Mark Twain—A Biography (1912), The Boy's Life of Mark Twain (1916), Mark Twain's Letters (1917), and Mark Twain's Notebook (1935).

Paine, Charles Jackson. b. at Boston, Aug. 26, 1833; d. at Westport, Mass., Aug. 12, 1916. American lawyer, financier, and yachtsman; great-grandson of Robert Treat Paine (1731-1814). He was admitted (1856) to the bar, established his practice at Boston, and served in the Civil War, being commissioned a brigadier general in 1864 and a brevet major general of volunteers in 1865. After the war he took part in railroad development and management. In 1886 and 1887 he provided the funds for the yachts Mayflower and Volunteer, which successfully challenged the British Galatea and Thistle, respectively, in international competitions.

Paine, Elijah. b. at Brooklyn, Conn., Jan. 21, 1757; d. at Williamstown, Vt., April 28, 1842. American jurist and politician. U.S. senator from Vermont (1795-1801).

Paine, Hubert Scott. See Scott-Paine, Hubert.

Paine, John Knowles. b. at Portland, Me., Jan. 9, 1839; d. at Cambridge, Mass., April 25, 1906. American composer and organist. He went to Berlin in 1858 to study, and in 1861 returned to America, where he gave several organ concerts. He was instructor of music at Harvard University in 1862, and professor from 1876. Among his works are a mass and the oratorio Saint Peter. He also wrote a Symphony in C minor and another called Spring, besides chamber music, cantatas, songs, and others.

Paine, Ralph Delahaye. b. at Lemont, Ill., Aug. 28, 1871; d. at Concord, N.H., April 29, 1925. American journalist and author. He was a member (1894 et seq.) of the staff of the Philadelphia Press, was a correspondent (1904) for Collier's Weekly, and saw service as a war correspondent in the Spanish-American War and during the Boxer uprising. In 1902 he undertook a campaign against the so-called Beef Trust for the New York Herald. He subsequently served as the managing editor of the New York Telegraph, and then devoted himself to writing fiction and history. Among his works are The Ships and Sailors of Old Salem (1909), The Dragon and The Cross (1912), The Adventures of Captain O'Shea (1913), The Call of the Off-Shore Wind (1918), First Down, Kentucky! (1921), and Roads of Adventure (1922).

Paine, Robert Treat. b. at Boston, March 11, 1731; d. there, May 11, 1814. American politician and jurist, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He was graduated (1749) from Harvard, spent a brief time in the ministry, studied law privately, and was admitted to the bar in 1757. He established his practice at Portland, Mass., moving (1761) to Taunton, Mass. He became identified with the patriot cause and served as associate prosecuting attorney in the Boston Massacre trial. He was elected (1773-75, 1777-78) to the provincial assembly and was chosen to represent Massachusetts at the First Continental Congress. He was reelected to Congress in 1776; a signer of the Declaration of Independence, he had previously signed the "Olive Branch Petition" (1775). Reelected to Congress in 1777, he remained in his state legislature, where he served as speaker of the assembly. He was elected (1777) the first attorney general of Massachusetts. He became (1778) a member of the committee of the legislature for drafting a state constitution and during 1779-80 had a leading role in drafting it. He was appointed (1790) to the supreme court of Massachusetts and served on the bench until his retirement in 1804. He was a founder (1780) of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Paine, Robert Treat. b. at Taunton, Mass., Dec. 9, 1773; d. at Boston, Nov. 13, 1811. American poet; son of Robert Treat Paine (1731-1814). He was a editor (1794-96) of the Federal Orrery. Among his best-known individual works are The Invention of Letters (1795), The Ruling Passion (1796), and Adams and Liberty (1798).

Paine, Thomas. b. at Thetford, England, Jan. 29, 1737; d. at New York, June 8, 1809. American Revolutionary agitator and propagandist, noted as the author of Common Sense, The Rights of Man, and The Age of Reason. Born of a Quaker family, he lived in obscurity in England from 1757 to 1774, working at a variety of trades and zealously pursuing a course of self-education. He lost his position as an exciseman when he undertook agitation in behalf of his fellow workers. Meeting Benjamin Franklin at London, he secured letters of introduction from him and arrived at Philadelphia in November, 1774. He entered journalism as a contributor to the Pennsylvania Magazine and achieved his first success with the now famous Common Sense, which first appeared (Jan. 10, 1776) as an anonymous pamphlet selling for two shillings. In its pages Paine called for the immediate declaration of independence from Great Britain. It has been estimated that Common Sense sold from 120,000 to 500,000 copies in the months immediately following its publication. Enlisting in the Revolutionary forces in 1776, Paine took part in the retreat across New Jersey, during which time he wrote the first of his Crisis series. The initial number, containing the well-known words, "These are the times that try men's souls," appeared in the Pennsylvania Journal on Dec. 19, 1776. He became (April, 1777) secretary to the committee on foreign affairs of the Continental Congress, holding this post until his resignation on Jan. 8, 1779. He was appointed (November, 1779) clerk of the Pennsylvania assembly, and in the meanwhile continued to issue the Crisis. In 1780 he published Public Good, in which he stressed the necessity for a strong central government. In 1781 he went to France to secure money and supplies for the American cause. After the war New York presented him with a sum of money and a confiscated Loyalist farm at New Rochelle. Going to Europe in 1787, he stayed in England and France, and after 1789 became an ardent supporter of the French revolutionary movement, publishing the two parts of The Rights of Man in 1791 and 1792. It was suppressed by the British government and Paine, tried for treason in absentia, was outlawed in December, 1792. Already, in August, 1792, he had been made a French citizen by the Assembly. He was elected (September, 1792) to the Convention, in which he sat for Pas-de-Calais. Identifying himself with the Gironde faction, he withdrew from attendance at the Convention in June, 1793, after the Girondins fell from power, and was imprisoned (Dec. 28, 1793) after having been deprived of his French citizenship and parliamentary immunity during the antiforeign hysteria which swept over France. He was set free in November, 1794, with the aid of James Monroe and in July, 1795, took his seat in the Convention. He lived at Paris until 1802, when he returned to America. During his residence in France he wrote The Age of Reason (Part I, 1794; Part II, 1796), in which he expounded his deistic beliefs. The declaration, "I believe in one God, and no more; and I hope for happiness beyond this life," indicates the emptiness of the tradition which holds that Paine was an atheist. Jefferson's note to Paine, inadvertently published as a preface to the American edition of The Age of Reason, sharpened the bad feeling between the Federalists and the Republicans. Paine spent his last years in lonely obscurity at New York, Bordentown, and New Rochelle, wholly abandoned by polite society. In 1819 William Cobbett took Paine's bones to England; the location of his remains is now a mystery.

Paine, Willis Seaver. b. at Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 1, 1848; d. April 13, 1927. American banker and lawyer. Admitted (1869) to the bar, he was named (1880) a commissioner to compile and revise the New York banking laws, which were modified to fit his recommendations two years later. He was superintendent (1885-89) of the Banking Department of New York State, and subsequently president of the State Trust Comp. n.

Painesville (pānz'vil). City in NE Ohio, c. 30 mi. NE of Lake County, on the Grand River ab. 30 mi. NE of Cleveland; manufactures of chemicals and machinery. It is the seat of Lake Erie College. 14,432 (1950).

Painlevé (pañ.lé.vā), Paul. b. at Paris, Dec. 5, 1863; d. there, Oct. 29, 1933. French mathematician and political leader. A moderate republican deputy (1910 et seq.), he became (1917) war minister, and was briefly premier (September-November, 1917), being replaced by Clemenceau. In 1924 he was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency; he became (1925) premier, and subsequently held (1925-28) cabinet posts as finance minister and war minister. As a mathematician, he contributed importantly to the theory of functions and differential equations. His name is attached to a type of function known as "Painlevé's transcendents." He took his doctorate at Paris in 1887 and taught at Lille (1887-92) and Paris (1892 et seq.). He wrote numerous scientific mathematical works, including Leçons sur l'intégration des équations différentielles (1895), Leçons sur le frottement (1895), Leçons sur la théorie analytique des équations différentielles (1897), Mécanique de variation (1909-10), and L'Aérodynamique (1916).

Painted Chamber. (Original name, Chamber of Saint Edward.) Chamber in the old Westminster Palace. It was the kernel of the palace, which grew around it, and later received the name of the Painted Chamber from the decorations placed there by Henry III.

Painted Desert. Area of badlands in N Arizona, comprising most of the land N from the Petrified Forest to the Grand Canyon. The name derives from the extremely vivid coloring of the rocks and soil in the area.

Painted Veil, The. Novel by W. Somerset Maugham, published in 1925. It has a Chinese background.

Painted Veils. Novel (1920) by James Gibbons Huneker, dealing with the bohemian set of New York artists.

Painter (pān'tēr), Camaliel. b. at New Haven, Conn., May 22, 1743; d. at Middlebury, Vt., May 21, 1819. American politician, chief founder of Middlebury College.

Painter, William. b. in Middlesex, England, c.1540; d. at London, 1594. English translator. He entered Saint John's College, Cambridge, in 1554, and in 1561 was made clerk of the ordinance in the Tower of London. In 1566 he published the first volume of The Palace of Pleasure, containing 60 tales. He originally intended it to contain only translations from Livy and the older writers, but altered his plan and added tales taken from Boccaccio, Bandello, Straparola, and other Italian and French novelists. The second volume was published in 1567, containing 34 tales; a third volume, although announced, did not appear. In later editions six more tales were added, so that there were 100 stories in all. It is the largest prose work between Morte d'Arthur and North's Plutarch, and is the source from which the Elizabethan dramatists took many of their plots.

Paintsville (pānts'vil). City in E Kentucky, county seat of Johnson County; trading center for an area producing coal and oil. There are oil refineries. 4,309 (1950).

Paisandú (pi.sān.dó'). See Paysandú.

Paisi (pāsh), Sir George. b. at Horsham, Sussex, England, Nov. 7, 1867— English economist, an adviser (1914-16) to the chancellor of the exchequer. Author of Railways of Great Britain (1904), Railroads of the United States (1913), World Economic Suicide (1929), World Restoration (1944), Sound Currency (1946), and others.

Paisiello (pā.é.zyél'lo), Giovanni. [Also, Paisiello.] b. at Taranto, Italy, May 9, 1741; d. at Naples, Italy, June 5, 1816. Italian composer of operas and church music. He went in 1776 to St. Petersburg, where he produced Il Barbiere di Siviglia. He returned (c.1784) to Naples by way of Vienna, where he wrote Il Rê Teodoro and was made chapel master to Ferdinand IV. Here he remained for about 13 years, producing some of his best music; after this he went to Paris, at the behest of Napoleon. He returned to Italy in 1804. He composed between 90 and 100 operas, and more than 100 masses. Among the operas, besides those mentioned above, are Il Marchese di Tulipano (written before he went to Russia), Nina, o la Pazzo d'Amore, and La Molinara.

Paisley (pāz'li). Parliamentary burgh, river port, and manufacturing center in S Scotland, in Renfrewshire, situated on White Cart Water near its confluence with the river Clyde, ab. 6 mi. W of Glasgow, ab. 409 mi. N of London by rail. Its sewing-thread manufacture is its most important industry. Other industries are textile manufactures (including rayon), and the manufacture of cotton textile machinery. The manufacture of paisley shawls, for which it was formerly famous, virtually ceased in the decade between 1870 and 1880. The town also had important silk manufactures until the latter part of the 18th century. 93,704 (1951).

Paisley, Baron. Title of Hamilton, Claude.

Paiza or Payta (pi'tā). City in NW Peru, in Piura department, on the Pacific Ocean; shipping port for cotton and hides. 7,177 (1940).

Paititi (pi.tē'tē). See Paytiti.

Paiute (pi'ōt'). Collective term for several North American Indian tribes, sometimes divided into the Northern Paiute of W Nevada and the Southern Paiute of SW Utah, SE Nevada, and NW Arizona. The languages are of the Uto-Aztecan family. The Southern Paiute are often referred to as Digger Indians, from their custom of digging and eating roots. The Northern Paiute are also sometimes referred to as the Paviats. The ghost dance religion, which became famous in the late 19th century, was first formulated among the Paiute. Its originator, Wovoka, was a Paiute Indian.

Paiva (pi'vā), Félix. b. at Caazapá, Paraguay, Feb. 21, 1877— Paraguayan jurist and politician, president (1938-39) of Paraguay.

Paiwan (pi'wān). Malayo-Polynesian-speaking tribe of S Formosa. They are the second largest tribe on the island.

Paixhans (pāk'sanz; French, pek.sān), Henri Joseph. b. at Metz, France, Jan. 22, 1783; d. at Jouy-aux-Arches, near Metz, Aug. 19, 1854. French general of artillery. He invented the Paixhans gun, and published Nouvelle force maritime (1822) and others.

Pajol (pā.zhōl), Claude Pierre, Comte de. b. at Besançon, France, 1772; d. at Paris, 1844. French general. He served with distinction in the campaigns of Napoleon, and was prominent in the revolution of July against Charles X (1830).

Pajon (pā.zhōn), Claude. b. at Romorantin, France, 1626; d. 1685. French Protestant theologian, founder of the liberal theological system named from him Pajonism. He denied all immediate and special interferences by God in either the course of events or the spiritual life of the individual.

Pajou (pā.zhō), Augustin. b. at Paris, Sept. 19, 1730; d. there, May 8, 1809. French sculptor. He is best known for his portrait busts of various notable figures, including Buffon, Pascal, and Descartes.

Pakalla (pāk.kāl'lā). See Kulango.

Pakawa (pāk.kā.wā'). [Also, Pinto.] Tribe of Mexican Indians, now extinct, formerly located on the lower Rio Grande in Texas and Mexico. In 1886 there were only two known survivors. They were also called Pinto Indians by the Spanish, because of their custom of tattooing. Their language belonged to the Coahuiltecan linguistic family.

Pakenham (pak'en.am), Sir Edward Michael. b. in Ireland, April 19, 1878; killed at the battle of New Orleans, Jan. 8, 1815. British general. He served in the Peninsular War, commanded the expedition against New Orleans in 1814, and was defeated by Jackson in the battle of New Orleans.

Pakhat (pak'hî'). See Sunwui.

Pakhoi (pak'hoi'). Seaport in SE China, in the province of Kwangtung, on the Gulf of Tonkin, ab. 280 mi. SW of Canton. It was opened to foreign commerce, as a treaty port, in 1876; now a minor port. 35,000 (1931).

Pakht (pakt, pächt). [Also, Pacht.] In Egyptian mythology, a lioness-headed or cat-headed goddess, having two aspects. In her lion-headed aspect she was depicted with the solar disk and uraeus serpent. As the cat-headed Bast, she carried a sistrum.

Pakington (pak'ing.ton), Sir John Somerset. [Title, 1st Baron Hampton.] b. Feb. 20, 1799; d. April 9, 1830. English politician. He was colonial secretary in 1852, first lord of the admiralty (1858-59, 1866-67), and war secretary (1867-68). He was raised to the peerage as Baron Hampton in 1874.

Pakistan (pak'î.stan, pä.kî.stän'). Independent dominion in Asia, divided in two parts, the largest area being in the NW section of the peninsula of India and the smaller section being in the NE section of the peninsula. The W section of Pakistan is bordered on the W by Iran, on the NW and N by Afghanistan, and on the E by the Union of India and on the S by the Arabian Sea. The E part of Pakistan is bordered on the E, N, and W by the Union of India and on the S by the Bay of Bengal. Pakistan is divided into seven provinces, a federal district, four Baluchistan states, and a tribal area (of the North-West Frontier Province). Pakistan received its constitution on Aug. 15, 1947 under the Indian Independence Act of 1947. The name Pakistan is a coined word (P is for Punjab, A is for the Afghans, and K is for Kashmir). Pakistan is divided into two very dissimilar parts, which are separated from each other by a distance of ab. 700 mi. The E section lies mostly on the flat plains of the delta of the Ganges and Brahmaputra rivers. Here there are very hot, long, and humid summers, and mild, dry winters. This section receives upwards of 80 inches of rainfall a year. The principal occupation of the people is the raising of rice and jute. The W section of Pakistan is composed, from SE to NW, of desert, the flood plain of the Indus River and its tributaries, and the many rugged dry mountain ranges of the W part. The climate is subject to extremes of heat and cold and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty. The population density is much lower than in E Pakistan and the people are farmers or nomadic herders. Irrigation water from the Indus and its tributaries has made available much crop land. Wheat is the most important crop and the area has been known as the "bread basket of India." Barley, millet, maize, potatoes, and many fruits are also raised here. This section exports chromite, salt, hides, and wool. Urdu is the official language of the country. Capital, Karachi; area, 365,907 sq. mi.; pop. 75,635,496 (1951).

Paks (pökhsh). Town and river port in S central Hungary, on the W bank of the Danube River between Dunaföldvár and Mohács, ab. 60 mi. S of Budapest. 12,073 (1948).

Pa-Kua (pä'kwä'). Chinese name of Eight Trigrams.

Pal (pä), Bipin Chandra. b. 1858; d. c.1928. Indian statesman and editor. A militant nationalist organizer and propagandist in foreign countries in the early years of his public career, he was a moderate after 1911, when he accepted the concept of imperial federation for India. Founder of the Indian newspapers New India (1901-05) and Bande Mataram and the magazine Hindu Review, he took a prominent part in the agitation (1916-19) for home rule.

Pal, Jacob. b. at Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 22, 1863; d. in July, 1936. Austrian clinician. He introduced (1886) a method for myelin-sheath stain and advocated (1914) the use of papaverin for the relief of smooth-muscle spasm.

Palace of Honour, The. Poem by Gawain Douglas, written in 1501. It is an imitation of Chaucer's House of Fame.

Palaces of the Caesars (sē'zars). Vast congeries of constructions in Rome, begun by Augustus and added to by successive emperors, occupying the Palatine Hill. Though the buildings are in ruinous condition, the plans have been in large part recovered by excavation, with fragments sufficient for a far-reaching restoration; and many imposing walls and vaults, with interesting wall paintings and graffiti, remain in position.

Palacios (pa.lash'os). Town in SE Texas, on Matagorda Bay; fishing port and resort center, 2,799 (1950).

Palacios y Villafranca (pä.lä'thyös ē. bë.lä.íráng.kä), Los. See Los Palacios y Villafranca.

Palacio Valdés (pä.lä'thyö bäl.däs'), Armando. b. in Asturias, Spain, 1853; d. at Madrid, Feb. 3, 1938. Spanish regional novelist and short-story writer, who wrote not only of his native Asturias but of Andalusia and Valencia as well. He had a delicate and humorous style and excelled in depicting contrasting types of women. Introduced by William Dean Howells to the American public, he was, for a time, one of the most widely read foreign authors in the U.S. For many years his novel José (1885) was a favorite in American colleges. Marta y María (1893) is his masterpiece. Riverita (1889), Marimón (1887), and El Sacerdote Octavio abound in autobiographical material. Among his other works are La Herma de San Sulpicio (1889), La Fé (1892), and Sinfonia pastoral (1932).

Palacký (pä.läts.kö), František. b. at Hodslavice, near Nový Jičín, in Moravia, June 14, 1793; d. May 26, 1876. Czech historian, president of the Slavic congress in 1848. He was parliamentary leader of the autonomist Czech party. His chief work is a History of Bohemia (5 vols., 1836-67). He also wrote various other works on Bohemian history and literature.

Paladilhe (pä.lä.dëy'), Émile. b. at Montpellier, France, June 3, 1844; d. at Paris, Jan. 8, 1926. French composer. He produced Suzanne, an opéra comique (1878), Diana (1885), the music for Sardou's drama Patrie (1886), and others.

Paladines (pä.lä.dën), Louis Jean Baptiste d'Aurelle de. See Aurelle de Paladines, Jean Louis Baptiste d'.

Paladius (pä.lä'di.us). fl. probably in the 5th century. Greek medical writer.

Pala d'Oro (pä.lä.dö'rö). Retable of the high altar of Saint Mark's in Venice, probably the finest existing specimen of Byzantine metal work. It was commenced at Constantinople in 976, brought to Venice in 1105, and rearranged and enlarged in the 13th and 14th centuries and later.

Palaemon (pä.lë'mon). In Greek mythology, a sea divinity into which Melicertes was metamorphosed when Ino, his mother, fleeing from her husband, Athamus, leaped into the sea with the child Melicertes in her arms.

Palaemongoloid (pä.lë.mon'gö.löid, -mong-'). See Southern Mongoloid.

Palaеologus (pä.lä'öl'ö.gus). [Also, Palaеoloğus.] Byzantine family which furnished the rulers of the Byzantine Empire during nearly the whole period from the accession of Michael in 1261 until the death of Constantine in 1453.

Palafox y Melzi (pä.lä.föks' ē mel'thä), José de. [Title, Duke of Saragossa.] b. 1783; d. Feb. 16, 1847. Spanish general, captain-general of Aragon, and commander in the defense of Saragossa against the French in 1808.

Palafox y Mendoza (pä.lä.föks' ē men.dö'thä), Juan de. b. at Fitero, in Navarre, Spain, June 24, 1613; d. at Osma, in Castile, Spain, Oct. 1, 1659. Spanish prelate, administrator, and author. He was counselor of the Indies, was consecrated bishop of Puebla de los Angeles, Mexico, in December, 1639, and at the same time was made viceroy-general of New Spain. In the latter capacity he had a dispute with the viceroy Escalona, and by order of the king succeeded him as viceroy (June-November, 1642). His policy toward the Indians was charitable but, owing to quarrels with the Jesuits, he was deposed in 1647, and in 1649 returned to Spain. In 1653 he was made bishop of Osma, in Castile. He published numerous historical, judicial, and theological works.

Palaihnihan (pā.lī'ni.han). [Also, Pit River Indians.] Group of North American Indian tribes, comprising the eastern branch of the Shastan linguistic stock, and formerly occupying most of the Pit River valley in N^W California. Palaihnihan is what the anthropologist Alfred Louis Kroeber calls "an old book name" based on a Klamath-Mo'loc term for these people, meaning mountaineers.

Palais (pā.lē). See Le Palais.

Palamas (pā.l'a.mās), Gregorius. fl. c1350. Greek archbishop of Salonika, leader of the Palamites.

Palamedes (pā.l'a.mē'dēz). In Greek legend, one of the Greek warriors in the expedition against Troy. He was killed by the Greeks through the machinations of Odysseus, who contrived that he should appear to have betrayed the Greeks for gold.

Palamites (pā.l'a.mits). [Also: Euchites, Hesychasts, Massalians, Umbilicani.] Followers of Gregorius Palamas, a monk of Mount Athos in the 14th century. Simeon, abbot of a monastery at Constantinople in the 11th century, had taught that by fasting, prayer, and contemplation, with concentration of thought on the navel, the heart and spirit would be seen within, luminous with a visible light. This light was believed to be uncreated, and the same which was seen at Christ's transfiguration, and was known accordingly as the "uncreated light of Mount Tabor." The doctrine was more carefully formulated and defended by Palamas, who taught that there exists a divine light, eternal and uncreated, which is not the substance or essence of deity, but God's activity or operation. The Palamites were favored by the Byzantine emperor John VI (John Cantacuzenus), and their doctrine was confirmed (1351) by a council at Constantinople. They were called by their opponents Euchites, Massalians, Hesychasts, and Umbilicani.

Palamon and Arcite (pā.l'a.mon; ā.r'sit). Two noble youths the story of whose love for Emilia has been told by Chaucer in the Knight's Tale (derived from Boccaccio's Teseida), by Dryden in a version of The Knight's Tale called Palamon and Arcite, by Fletcher and another (perhaps Shakespeare) in a play called The Two Noble Kinsmen (1634), and by others. Richard Edwar is produced a play entitled Palamon and Arcite at Christ Church Hall, Oxford, in 1595, in honor of Queen Elizabeth's visit there.

Palanan (pā.lā'nān). Village in Isabela province, NE Luzon, Philippine Islands. Here the Philippine leader Aguinaldo was captured by General Frederick Funston on March 23, 1901.

Palanpur (pā.lān.pōr). [Also, Pahlanpur.] Former native state now incorporated into Bombay state, Union of India, ab. 83 mi. N of Ahmedabad: cattle grazing and cotton growing. Area, ab. 1,794 sq. mi.; pop. 315,555 (1911).

Palanpur. [Also, Pahlanpur.] City in N Bombay state, Union of India, former capital of Palanpur, situated ab. 80 mi. N of the city of Ahmedabad: trading center. 21,643 (1941).

Palaprat (pā.lā.prā), Jean. [Title, Sieur de Bigot.] b. at Toulouse, France, 1650; d. at Paris, Oct. 14, 1721. French dramatist, collaborator with Bruyères.

Palatinate (pā.lā.tī.nāt). See under Rhineland-Palatinate.

Palatine (pā.lā.tin). Village in NE Illinois, NW of Chicago: residential suburb. 4,079 (1950).

Palatine Hill. [Italian, Monte Palatino (pā.lā.tē'nō); Latin, Mons Palatinus (pā.lā.tī'nus).] One of the seven hills of Rome, situated SE of the Capitoline and N by NE of the Aventine. It borders on the Roman Forum, is the traditional seat of the city founded by Romulus, was the seat of private and later of imperial residences, and contains many antiquities.

Palatka (pā.lā'tka). City in N Florida, county seat of Putnam County, on the St. John's River: shipping point for citrus fruit; lumbering and woodworking industries. 9,176 (1950).

Palau (pā.lau'). [Also, Pelew.] Island group in the W Pacific Ocean, part of the Caroline Islands, ab. 560 mi. E of the Philippines. There are upwards of 100 land areas in the group, but only nine of any importance from the standpoint of size. The Palau group was the site of the chief Japanese naval base for the Caroline Islands during World War II, and fell to U.S. forces in 1944 only after bitter fighting. Area, 188 sq. mi.; pop. 5,990 (1950).

Palauing (pā.lou'ng). Mon-Khmer-speaking, Buddhist people dwelling in the N part of Shan State, Burma, between the Salween and Irrawaddy rivers.

Palawan (pā.lā.wān). [Former name, Paragua.] Province of the Philippines, in the W part of the group, including Palawan and more than 500 other islands, the most important of which are the Calamianes on the N, the Cagayanes and Cuyos groups and Dumaran on the E, and Balabac and adjacent islands on the S. The principal harbors are Puerto Princesa on the E coast, and Port Barton on the NW coast. A mountain range of considerable altitude extends through the island from NE to SW. The loftiest peaks are Cleopatra's Needle (5,226 ft.), Gantung (5,832 ft.), Victoria (5,666 ft.), and Mantalingajan (6,839 ft.). The mountains are covered with forests which furnish valuable tropical woods. Pineapples, sweet potatoes, nutmegs, rice, and tobacco are produced. Cattle, goats, and fowls are raised. Capital, Puerto Princesa; area, 5,693 sq. mi.; pop. 106,269 (1948).

Palawan. Island in the W part of the Philippines, included in the province of Palawan. Length, ab. 283 mi.; area, ab. 4,550 sq. mi.

Palazzolo Areide (pā.lāt.tō'lō ā.krā'zē.dā). [Ancient name, Acrae.] Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Siracusa, ab. 20 mi. W of Syracuse: marketing center of an agricultural district. It contains remains of an ancient Greek theater and burial ground. Most of the town was rebuilt after the earthquake of 1693. Pop. of commune, 11,584 (1936); of town, 11,387 (1936).

Palazzolo sull'Oglio (sō.lō'lō'yō). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Brescia, on the Oglio River between Brescia and Bergamo: a manufacturing town, with construction, metal, chemical, and textile industries. Pop. of commune, 10,667 (1936); of town, 6,600 (1936).

Palazzo Vecchio (pā.lāt.tō'vēc'kyō). See under Florence, Italy.

Paldiski (pā.l'dē.skē). [English, Baltic Port; German, Baltischport; Russian, formerly, Baltiski, Baltiski Port.] Small seaport in Estonia, on the Gulf of Finland, ab. 25 mi. W of Tallin; naval base.

Pale (pāl), English. In Irish history, that part of Ireland in which English law was acknowledged, and within which the dominion of the English was restricted, for some centuries after the conquests of Henry II. John distributed the part of Ireland then subject to England into 12 counties palatine, and this region became subsequently known as the Pale, but the limits varied at different times.

Paleario (pā.lā.ā'r'yō), Aonio. [Also: Antonio della Paglia (or degli Pagliaricci); Latinized, Aonius Palearius.] b. at Veroli, Italy, c1500; executed at Rome, in July, 1570. Italian reformer and humanist, arrested by the Inquisition on a charge of heresy, and executed. He published theological works, a didactic poem in Latin, and others.

Pale Horse. In literary allusion, an embodiment of death. The Pale Horse was shown to Saint John (Rev. vi. 8) in association with the death-dealing agents of sword, famine, and plague.

Palemang (pā.lēm.bā'ng). City in the Republic of Indonesia, in E Sumatra. Capital of the province of South Sumatra, it is the largest city and most important commercial center of the island of Sumatra. Although it has some industry, it has been chiefly important as a shipping point for rubber and oil. Its refineries were destroyed during World War II by Dutch technicians in order to keep them out of the hands of the Japanese; since the end of the war they have been restored, and Palemang is once again attaining high rank as a point of oil export. 209,809 (1951).

Palemongoloid (pā.lēm.mon'gō.lōid, -mong'-). See South-ern Mongoloid.

Palenberg (pā.lēn.berk). See Übach-Palenberg.

Palencia (pā.lēn.thā). Province in N Spain, bounded by Santander on the N, Burgos on the E, Valladolid on the S and SW, and León on the W: part of Old Castile. Agriculture is the principal occupation. Capital, Palencia; area, 3,093 sq. mi.; pop. 233,290 (1950).

Palencia. [Ancient name, Pallantia.] City in N Spain, the capital of the province of Palencia, ab. 28 mi. N of Valladolid; railroad shops; metal, cotton, and woolen manufactures and other industries. The Cathedral of San Antolin is a beautiful building in late Gothic style, erected in the period 1361-1516, reconstructed after 1896; it contains a collection of Flemish tapestry and valuable paintings by El Greco and others. 34,283 (1940).

Palencia, Diego Fernández de. See Fernández de Palencia, Diego.

Palenque (pāl'eng'kā). Ruined Maya Indian city and ceremonial center in the Usumacinta valley, Chiapas, Mexico. The ruins consist of a number of temples and palaces, which were built mainly during the 7th and 8th centuries, but were abandoned before the Spanish conquest. The stone sculpture and stucco ornamentation of these buildings is generally regarded as the aesthetic peak of Maya low-relief carving and modeling.

Paleo-Asiatic (pāl'ē.ō.āzhi.āt'ik). See Hyperborean.

Paleocene Period (pāl'ē.ō.sēn, pal'ē-). See table at end of Volume III.

Paleo-Indians (pāl'ē.ō.in'di.anz). Indians who first settled the New World during the Pleistocene period. These Indians were hunters or gatherers rather than agriculturalists and probably lacked some of the more extreme Mongoloid characteristics, such as broad-headedness.

Paleolithic Period (pāl'ē.ō.lith'ik, pal'ē-). [Also, Old Stone Age.] Stage in the development of mankind, falling within the Pleistocene Period, and marked by the early beginnings of the human race; modern man (Homo sapiens) does not appear, if at all, until toward the end of the age; earlier (now extinct) species, living in alternate periods of glaciation and warmth, built rudimentary cultures lasting for thousands of years during this period. The Paleolithic is characterized by the use of chipped stones as implements, at first so vaguely formed as to cause doubt that man's hand fashioned them at all, later carefully and finely done; bone and wood were also used, and basketry was invented. Hunting and the gathering of fruits and berries supplied food to Paleolithic man, and he used fire for cooking. There were no textiles, skins alone being used for clothing. The dog was domesticated some time during this long period. Three stages are recognized: the early or lower, comprising principally the Chellean and Acheulean periods; the middle or Mousterian Period, when Neanderthal Man was dominant; and the late or upper Paleolithic, comprising the Aurignacian, Solutrean, and Magdalenian periods. After the transitional Mesolithic Period, Paleolithic culture was superseded by the Neolithic.

Paléologue (pāl'ē.ō.log, Maurice). [Full name, Georges Maurice Paléologue.] b. at Paris, Jan. 13, 1859; d. there, Nov. 21, 1911. French diplomat and man of letters, remembered for his activities as French ambassador to Russia in the period immediately before World War I. Beginning his diplomatic career in 1880, he returned (1886) to Paris, was minister to Bulgaria (1907-12), headed (1912-14) the political affairs division of the foreign ministry, and was ambassador to Russia (1914-17). He was an aide (1920) to Foreign Minister Millerand before withdrawing from public life. He was elected (1928) to the French Academy. His chief works are La Russie des tsars pendant la Grande Guerre (3 vols., 1921) and a biography of Cavour, Un Grand Réaliste (1926).

Paleologus (pāl'ē.ōl'ō.gus). See Paleaologus.

Paleo-Siberian (pāl'ē.ō.sib'ir'ian, pal'ē-). See Hyperborean.

Paleozoic Era (pāl'ē.ō.zō'ik, pal'ē-). The geological age during which life spread from the sea to the land. See table at end of Vol. III.

Palermo (pāl'er'mō; Italian, pāl'er'mō). Province in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily. Capital, Palermo; area, ab. 1,922 sq. mi.; pop. 890,755 (1936).

Palermo [Latin, Panormus.] City and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, the capital of the province of Palermo, situated on the Gulf of Palermo, at the foot of Monte Pellegrino, on the N coast of Sicily; famous for its beautiful location and its mild climate. Pop. of commune, 411,879 (1936), 501,005 (1951); of city, 339,497 (1936).

Commerce and Industry. The port, active in ancient times and in the early Middle Ages, has been revived in recent decades as a point of export for the agricultural and mineral products of Sicily. It has also some passenger service, and an airport. Industry is less important than trade, especially the trade in citrus fruits and olive oil, but there are foodstuffs, metal, and chemical industries—glass and furniture factories, shipyards, and tuna fisheries.

Architecture. There are a considerable number of megalithic and baroque monuments. The Palazzo Reale, built by Norman kings in the 11th century, contains the Capella Palatina (1132-40), with gold mosaics and marble sculptures, a combination of Arabic, Byzantine, and Norman art. The cathedral, built (1170) by the Normans on the site of a mosque, contains the tombstones of Frederick II, his wife Constance, Roger II, and other dignitaries of various epochs, including those of many archbishops. Other Norman churches are San Cataldo (with Arabic motifs), San Giovanni degli Eremiti, Santa Maria dell'Anunziamento, all of the 12th century; in the rich Sicilian baroque style are the churches of Santa Caterina, Santa Maria della Catena, San Giuseppe dei Teatini, the Church of Gesù, the Church of Pietà and others, mainly of the 16th century. Heavy damage was suffered by many buildings during World War II, and repairs are under way or completed on many; the Church of the Annunciation, Santa Croce, Santa Maria della Vergine, the Palazzo Petero and Ugo, the Saluda, the National Library, and some others were destroyed. Most of the Norman buildings are, however, intact or only lightly damaged, and the cathedral was unharmed.

History. Palermo, founded by the Phoenicians, was a headquarters of Carthaginian power in Sicily in the first Punic War; it was occupied by the Romans in 254. After the downfall of the Roman Empire, it was briefly in the hands of the Ostrogoths, was conquered (535) by the Byzantine general Belisarius, and was taken (833) by the Arabs (Saracens) and made the capital of Sicily. In 1063 the Pisans defeated the Moslem fleet here and in 1072 the Normans conquered the city, which subsequently became the residence of the Norman kings and of Frederick II of Hohenstaufen. The bloody revolt against the French Anjou, known as the Sicilian Vespers, took place here in 1282; afterward, Palermo was under Aragonese (Spanish) rule for centuries. In the Napoleonic era, King Ferdinand IV, deprived of Naples, ruled here; unsuccessful rebellions against the Bourbon government took place here in 1820 and 1848-49; the city was freed by Garibaldi's expedition in 1860 and joined to Italy. In World War II it was entered by Allied forces on July 30, 1943.

Palermo, Gulf of. Bay of the Mediterranean Sea, indenting the N coast of Sicily, on which Palermo is situated.

Pales (pāl'ēz). In old Italian and Roman mythology, a deity, protector of shepherds and flocks, sometimes regarded as a god and equated by the Romans with Pan or Faunus, and sometimes regarded as a goddess and identified with Vesta. The festival of Pales was the Parilia, celebrated April 21, for the increase of flocks.

Pales. Asteroid (No. 49) discovered by Goldschmidt at Paris, Sept. 19, 1857.

Palestine (pāl'es.tin). Country of SW Asia, bordering the Mediterranean Sea on the SE. It is now divided between the states of Israel and Jordan. In ancient geography, Palestine included also lands E of the Jordan River, but the term has most recently been applied to the territory under British mandate from the end of World War I to 1948, lying almost entirely W of the Jordan, and extending S to the Gulf of Aqaba. Land area, 10,156 sq. mi.; pop. 757,182 (1922), including 83,794 Jews; ab. 2,100,000 (1950), including 1,203,195 Jews.

Terrain and Climate. Palestine consists of four principal natural regions: (1) the coastal plain, a fertile lowland bordering the Mediterranean, which is divided into two parts by the projecting mountain mass of Mount Carmel; (2) the hill country of C Palestine, a rugged region of eroded limestone hills, divided into two parts by the Plain of Jezreel; (3) the Jordan valley, a deeply sunken part of the Great Rift Valley, the lower part of which is below sea level (Dead Sea, ab. 1,295 ft. below sea level) and quite dry; and (4) the Negeb, or southern desert region, an area of rocky plains, hills, and mountains. Lying between the Mediterranean and the desert interior of the Arabian peninsula, Palestine is a country of transition. The coast has mild, rather humid winters, and hot summers with relatively high humidity. The lower Jordan valley has virtually a desert climate, with great daily changes of temperature, very hot, dry summers, and cool winters with cold nights and warm days. Rainfall occurs chiefly in the winter half-year; the higher summits may have snow. Irrigation is extensively used in agriculture.

History and Culture. Located between two great and powerful centers of ancient civilization in the Nile Valley (Egypt) and the Tigris-Euphrates valley (Babylonia), Palestine has suffered repeated invasions, and has enjoyed only brief periods of independent development. The Egyptians fought numerous battles against the tribes in this area as early as 2500 B.C., and they dominated Palestine for much of the period c2500 to c1250 B.C. They carried off many of its people, including the Hebrews, into slavery. About 1225 B.C. the Hebrews left Egypt under the leadership of Moses, and reentered their homeland, settling the country as a tribal confederacy of the 12 tribes. Saul established (c1225 B.C.) a Hebrew kingdom which remained united until the death of Solomon (c933 B.C.), when it divided into the larger N state of Israel, and the smaller S state of Judah. For a few centuries these kingdoms had their freedom and independence, but in 722 B.C. Israel was conquered by the Assyrians, and Judah was conquered and Jerusalem destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C.; the Jews were carried off to captivity. After the Persians conquered Babylon and inherited its empire, they permitted the Jews to return to their homeland; however, they never regained their former dominant position, and since the 6th century B.C. Palestine has had a very mixed population. Palestine was a subject area under many empires of the ancient world: the Hellenistic empire of Alexander the Great, Ptolemaic Egypt, the Seleucids, Syrians, Romans, Byzantines, and the Moslems. The country suffered severely at several times from rebellions against foreign rule, notably in the 1st century B.C. (revolt of the Maccabees), in 70 A.D. (when Jerusalem was destroyed by Titus), and in 132-134 A.D. For many centuries the Jews had emigrated from Palestine to other parts of the ancient world, where they enjoyed at least as much freedom, and perhaps greater opportunity, than they found in their homeland. In the early centuries of the Christian era, converts to Christianity were very numerous, with the result that on the eve of the Moslem invasion, the greater part of the population of Palestine was Christian. During the long period of Moslem occupation, Palestine suffered greatly from civil wars and misrule. The Crusaders established a kingdom in the 12th century, but this lasted only about 100 years, and the country reverted to Moslem rule; it was ravaged by the Mongols c1260; fell to Egypt (1291), and to the Ottoman Turks in 1516. As a Turkish province, the country continued to decline in wealth, productivity, and importance. In the 19th century, European powers became interested in conditions in Palestine, and numerous missions and groups migrated thither. In World War I Palestine was held by Turkish and German forces until captured by the British under General Allenby. Palestine was then made a mandated territory of the League of Nations, administered by Great Britain. Under the Balfour Declaration, Britain had committed herself to favor the establishment of a "national home for the Jews" in Palestine, and immigration was much greater after World War I than it had been before. However, Moslem sentiment strongly opposed the influx of immigrants, and in the 1930's, Britain imposed an immigration quota. After World War II the entire Palestine question was submitted to the United Nations, which adopted a partition plan. However, after British forces withdrew in 1948, open warfare between Jewish and Moslem military forces broke out, in which the Jews successfully defended their major centers of colonization, and also occupied all of Galilee and the Negeb. The state of Israel was proclaimed on May 14, 1948; in 1950 the remaining portion of Palestine was annexed by the Kingdom of Jordan. As the "Holy Land" of three great world religions, Judaism, Christianity, and Mohammedanism. Palestine has an importance out of proportion to its small size and meager resources. Its historical monuments and sacred places are visited by large numbers of tourists annually.

Palestine (pal'es.tēn). City in E Texas, county seat of Anderson County. NW of Houston, in an area producing petroleum, fuller's earth, and lignite; processing center for cotton, cottonseed, and dairy products; woodworking and glass industries. It is the site of the Palestine Salt Dome, a noted geological feature, 12,503 (1950).

Palestine (pal'es.tin), United Nations Special Committee on. See United Nations Special Committee on Palestine.

Palestrina (pal'es.trē'nā; Italian, pālās.trē'nā). [Ancient name, Præneste.] Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Latium, in the province of Roma, ab. 22 mi. E of Rome. A very old town, Palestrina was in ancient times a member of the federation of Latin towns but united itself early with Rome. In the Middle Ages, the town was of great strategic importance to the Papacy. The feudal rights rested first with the Colonna, later with the Barberini family. During World War II the ancient temple of Fortuna sustained some damage, as did other Roman structures, and the interior of the cathedral was wrecked. Pop. of commune, 8,305 (1936); of town, 6,517 (1936).

Palestrina, Giovanni Pierluigi da. [Called Priniceps Musicae, meaning "Prince of Music."] b. at Palestrina, near Rome, c1524; d. at Rome, Feb. 2, 1594. Italian composer. He was chapel master at the Lateran, Vatican, and Santa Maria Maggiore at Rome. In accordance with resolutions of the Council of Trent, he composed three masses in 1565, setting the standard of ecclesiastical music. For this he was appointed composer to the pontifical choir. He is considered the first composer who united the art with the science of music, and his works, all sacred except two volumes of madrigals, mark an important epoch in the annals of music. He left between 90 and 100 masses, hymns for the year, about 60 motets, and a number of lamentations and litanies.

Paley (pāl'i), William. b. at Peterborough, England, in July, 1743; d. May 25, 1805. English theologian and philosopher. He graduated at Christ's College, Cambridge, in 1763, took holy orders, and in 1766 was chosen a fellow of his college. He vacated his fellowship by marriage in 1776, and retired to the rectory of Musgrave in Westmorland, which had been conferred on him the year before. He was appointed archdeacon of Carlisle in 1782, became a prebendary of Saint Paul's in 1794, was presented to the subleaneary of Lincoln Cathedral, and in 1795 received the rectory of Bishop-Wearmouth. He published Principles of Moral and Political Philosophy (1785), Horae Paulinae, or the Truth of the Scripture History of Saint Paul (1790), View of the Evidences of Christianity (1794), and Natural Theology (1802).

Palfrey (pōl'fri), John Gorham. b. at Boston, May 2, 1796; d. at Cambridge, Mass., April 26, 1881. American historian and theological writer. He was a Unitarian clergyman, and a professor at Harvard. As a member of Congress from Massachusetts (1847-49), he was active in the antislavery movement. His chief work is History of New England (1858-64).

Palfrey, Prudence. See Prudence Palfrey.

Palghat (pal'gōt'). Town in Malabar district, Madras, Union of India, ab. 70 mi. SE of the city of Calicut; trading center. It commands an important pass in the Western Ghats. 55,163 (1941).

Palgrave (pal'grāv, pōl'), Sir Francis. b. at London, in July, 1783; d. at Hampstead (now part of London), July 6, 1861. English historian. He was the son of a stockbroker named Meyer Cohen, and took his wife's name by royal permission in 1823, when he was admitted to the Church of England. He was called to the bar at the Middle Temple in 1827, and in 1833 was appointed deputy keeper of the public records. He was knighted in 1832. His chief works are Rise and Progress of the English Commonwealth (1832) and History of Normandy and England (4 vols., 1851-64).

Palgrave, Francis Turner. b. at London, Sept. 28, 1824; d. there, Oct. 24, 1897. English poet; son of Sir Francis Palgrave. He was educated at the Charterhouse and at Balliol College, Oxford, and was professor of poetry at Oxford (1855-95). He published Idylls and Songs (1854), Essays on Art (1866), Hymns (1897), and Lyrical Poems (1871), and edited Golden Treasury of Eng- lish Lyrical Poetry (1861) and Treasury of Sacred Song (1889).

Palgrave, William Gifford. b. at London, Jan. 24, 1826; d. at Montevideo, Uruguay, Sept. 30, 1888. English traveler; son of Sir Francis Palgrave. In 1862-63 he traveled extensively in the interior of Arabia, and in 1865 he was employed by the British government to negotiate for the release of prisoners in Ethiopia. Subsequently he held various British consular positions, and from 1884 was minister to Uruguay. He published Narrative of a Year's Journey through Central and Eastern Arabia (1865), Essays on Eastern Questions (1872), Dutch Guiana (1876), and others.

Pali (pāl'ē). [Also, Pallee.] Town formerly in the state of Jodhpur (now incorporated into Rajasthan), Union of India, situated ab. 40 mi. SE of Jodhpur; trading center. 12,356 (1941).

Pali. A Prakrit language. It is said to have been the language of the Buddha. It is extinct today except as the vehicle of the sacred canon of Buddhism (the Pali canon) and as the language of the religious literature of Burma and Siam. It is classified in the middle branch of the Indie group of the Indo-Iranian subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Pallano (pāl'yā'nō), Duke of. Title of Colonna, Fabrizio (1848-1923), and of Colonna, Marc Antonio (1535-84).

Palikau (pāl'ē.kou'). Place in China, between Peiping (Peking) and Tientsin. Here on Sept. 21, 1860, the French and British forces defeated the Chinese.

Palikau (pāl'ē.kā.ō), Charles Guillaume Marie Apollinaire Antoine Cousin-Montauban, Comte de. b. at Paris, June 24, 1796; d. Jan. 8, 1878. French general. He served in Algeria, commanded the expedition against China in 1860, won the victory of Palikau (Sept. 21, 1860); and was premier and minister of war (Aug. 10-Sept. 4, 1870).

Pallilicium (pāl'ilish'ium). Name given by the Romans to the Hyades, and especially to Aldebaran, the brightest of them, because this group of stars set on the day of the Pallia (April 21), originally a festival for the increase of herds, dedicated to Pales, later celebrated as the anniversary of the founding of Rome.

Palinuro (pāl'ē.nō'rō), Cape. [Also, Cape Spartimento; ancient name, Palinurum (pāl'inū'rum).] Promontory on the W coast of Italy, situated in lat. 40°2' N., long. 15°17' E. It was the scene of shipwrecks of Roman fleets in 253 and in 36 a.c., and of the legendary drowning of Palinurus.

Palinurus (pāl'inū'rus). In Greek legend, the helmsman of Aeneas, who fell asleep, fell overboard, and was drowned off the western coast of Italy.

Palisades (pāl'is.ăd'z). Basaltic bluff extending along the W shore of the Hudson River in the states of New Jersey and New York. It commences opposite the N part of Manhattan, and continues N ab. 15 mi. Height, 200 to 500 ft.

Palisades Interstate Park. Public park created (1910) by acts of the legislatures of New York and New Jersey. It originally comprised the land along the Palisades of the Hudson River, between the top of the cliff and the water, from Fort Lee, in New Jersey, to the N termination of the Palisades in New York. By subsequent legislation the park was extended to include mountain lands along the W side of the Hudson to Newburgh, and from the river W into the Ramapo Mountains.

Palisades Park. Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County; residential suburban community, 9,635 (1950).

Palissy (pāl'sē), Bernard. b. at Chapelle Biron, near Agen, France, probably c1510; d. in the Bastille, Paris, 1589. French potter and enameler. In 1539 he established himself at Saintes, where he married and practiced the business of surveying. In 1553 he chanced to see a glazed cup which suggested experiments with enamels. He at first sought only a white enamel, and for some time failed in his attempts, but at length succeeded. He then tried to produce the various colors of nature. For 16 years he labored in extreme destitution before he succeeded in making the ware in high relief and rustic figurines associated with his name. He embraced the Reformed religion, and was one of the principal founders of the Calvinistic church at Saintes. In 1562 his atelier was raided and devastated as a place of politico-religious meetings. He was arrested and imprisoned at Bordeaux, but was saved from the lot of his coreligionists by Anne de Montmorency (then high constable of France), who interceded with the queen, Catherine de Médicis. Set at liberty, Palissy attached himself to the king, the queen mother Catherine, and Montmorency. The latter brought Palissy to Paris, where he set up his furnaces in the tile-yards (tuileries), where the palace known as the Tuileries was built (in the 19th century, four of his furnaces were discovered under the palace). In 1566 he was commissioned by Catherine with the construction of grottoes and other works in the Tuileries gardens. He was engaged in this work in 1572 when the massacre of Saint Bartholomew occurred. His life was saved by the protection of Queen Catherine herself. In 1573 he opened a course of lectures in natural history, and continued this until 1584. He was among the very first to substitute positive experiment for the explanations of the schoolmen. He also investigated the geology of the Paris basin, and formed the first cabinet of natural history in France. In 1588 he was arrested and thrown into the Bastille, and died there. His writings were published between 1557 and 1580.

Palitana (pāl'i.tā'na). Former state in W India, now merged into Saurashtra, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. SW of Ahmedabad; cotton growing and dairying. Area, ab. 300 sq. mi.; pop. 76,432 (1941).

Palitana. Town in Saurashtra, Union of India. On a hill (called Sutrniya, or Satrunja or Satrunjaya) just outside the town proper is one of the remarkable Jain temple communities. All of the temples (there are hundreds) are characterized by their pagoda-towers, here in general quadrangular, steeply pyramidal with bulging sides, and having a bulbous amalaka crowning. The earliest temples date from the 11th century, and the series continues, always of the same type, to the present day. 18,134 (1941).

Palk Bay (pōk). Arm of the Indian Ocean between S Union of India and Ceylon, S of Palk Strait and N of Adam's Bridge. Length, ab. 30 mi.; width, ab. 20 mi.

Palk Strait. Arm of the Bay of Bengal, E of Madras state, Union of India, and W of Ceylon. Length, ab. 70 mi.; width, ab. 40 mi.

Palladio (pāl'ā'di.ō). Andrea. b. at Vicenza, Italy, Nov. 30, 1518; d. at Venice, Aug. 19, 1580. Italian architect. In 1547 he finished the Castello di Udine begun in 1519 by Fontana, who is supposed to have been his master in architecture. He designed the Barbarano, Tione, and other palaces at Vicenza, and the Olympic Theater there. In the neighborhood of Venice are many Palladian edifices, and at Venice he built a Corinthian atrium for the monastery della Carità, the Church of San Giorgio Maggiore, and others. The cathedral of Brescia and the governor's palace are attributed to him. At Padua he built the Palazzo Aldighelli casa Adriani. According to Letrouilly, the only work of Palladio at Rome was an altar in the long hall of the hospital of San Spirito. He published Le Antichità di Roma (1554), Illustrations to Caesar's Commentaries (1575), I Quattro Libri dell' Architettura (Venice, 1570), and others. His style was known as the Palladian, and was long considered the most highly perfected.

Palladium (pāl'ā'di.ūm). In Greek religion, an image of Pallas Athena, on which depended the safety of the city which harbored it. In Greek legend, it was sent by Zeus to Troy. As long as it stood unharmed, Troy could not be taken; after the Greeks stole it, however, Troy fell to them. In Roman legend, Aeneas rescued the sacred image from the burning city of Troy, took it to Italy, and it became established at Rome. It is said to have saved Rome from the sack of the Gauls in 390 a.c. Many cities in both Greece and Italy claimed and disputed the possession of the original.

Palladius (pāl'ā'di.us). b. in Galatia, Asia Minor, probably in 368 a.d.; d. c431. Bishop of Helenopolis (in Bithynia), author of a historical work, The Lausiac History. He should not be confused with his contemporary, Saint Palladius.

Palladius, Saint. d. probably after 431. Missionary of the early Church, usually considered to have been first bishop of Ireland. Presumably a Briton by birth, he is said to have been a deacon of Rome, whence he was sent (431) by Pope Celestine to the Christian Scots ("in Scotiam"), which is understood to have meant the Irish, as their bishop. Some claim he was also a missionary to Scotland, where his feast is honored on July 6.

Palladius, Rutilius Taurus Aemilianus. fl. in the 4th or 5th century. Roman writer, author of a work on agriculture (De re rustica).

Pal Lahara (pāl la.hā'ra). Former state, now incorporated into Orissa. Union of India, situated ab. 210 mi. SW of Calcutta. Area, ab. 450 sq. mi.; pop. 34,130 (1941).

Pall-in (pāl'in), Georges. b. at Liancourt, Oise, France, March 20, 1847; d. 1923. French financier and author; governor (1898 et seq.) of the Bank of France.

Pallantia (pāl'an'sha). Ancient name of Palencia.

Pallas (pāl'ās). In Greek mythology, a title of the goddess Athena, in reference to her having killed a Titan or giant named Pallas in the war between the gods and the giants.

Pallas. One of the asteroids revolving between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, discovered (the second in the order of time) by H. W. M. Olbers at Bremen, March 28, 1802. It has a period of 4.61 years. It is about 300 mi. in diameter, exceeded among asteroids only by Ceres.

Pallas (pāl'ās), Peter Simon. b. at Berlin, Sept. 22, 1741; d. there, Sept. 8, 1811. German naturalist and traveler. He made a journey through Russia and Siberia (1768-74), described in Reisen durch verschiedene Provinzen des russischen Reichs (3 vols., 1771-76). He also wrote Spicilegia zoologica (1767-1804), Flora Rossica (1784-88), Sammlungen historischer Nachrichten über die mongolischen Völkerschaften (2 vols., 1776-1802), and various scientific works.

Pallavicino (pāl'lä.vē.chē'nō) or Pallavicini (-chē'nō), Pietro Sforza. b. at Rome, 1607; d. there, June 5, 1667. Roman cardinal. He was the author of History of the Council of Trent (1656-57), an attempt to answer the anti-papal history of the council written by Paolo Sarpi. Cardinal Pallavicino was given the use of much valuable official material, but the effectiveness of his answer to Sarpi has often been questioned.

Pallee (pāl'ē). See Pali.

Pallen (pāl'en), Condé Benoist. b. at St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 5, 1858; d. May 26, 1929. American editor and author. He was managing editor (1904-20) of the Catholic Encyclopedia (16 vols., 1907-14; supplement, 1922) and president (1904-20) of the Encyclopedia Press. He also edited the New Catholic Dictionary (1929). Author of The Philosophy of Literature (1897), New Rubaiyat (1898), Epochs of Literature (1898), The Meaning of the Idylls of the King (1904), Collected Poems (1915), Crucible Island (1919), As Man to Man: the Adventures of a Connuiter (1927), and The King's Coil (1928).

Pallenberg (pāl'en.berk), Max. b. in Austria, 1884; d. in an airplane crash at Karlovy Vary (Carlsbad), Czechoslovakia, June 26, 1934. Austrian comedian. He started acting in light opera, singing with Jeritz, and became Germany's greatest comic actor. In 1928 he achieved fame in the title role of Erwin Piscator's production of The Good Soldier Schweik. His most famous classical role was Tartuffe, which he played all over Germany, and he distinguished himself in Faust at the Salzburg Festival (1934) by playing Mephistopheles as a farcical character.

Pallene (pāl'ē'nē). See Kassandra.

Pallice (pāl'ēs), La. See La Pallice.

Pallis (pāl'ēs), Alexander A. b. at Bombay, India, 1883—. Greek scholar and statesman. He represented Greece at the Constantinople Conference on Displaced Greeks in 1919, and the Greek Red Cross in Constantinople after the Asia Minor disaster in 1922. He was a member of the Greek delegation to the Mixed Committee on Exchange of Populations (1923), governor of Corfu (1925), and Greek government representative on the Refugee Resettlement Committee (1926-30). He was a delegate to the United Nations and a member of its subcommittee on reconstruction of devastated nations in 1946.

Palliser (pāl'is.ēr), Sir William. b. at Dublin, June 18, 1830; d. at London, Feb. 4, 1882. English cavalry officer and inventor. He devised (1862) a method for converting smooth-bore guns into rifles at a fraction of the cost of new guns. Other patents include such devices as the screw-bolt (1862) and a means of chill-casting iron or steel projectiles.

Pall Mall (pāl' inel, pāl' mal'). Street in London, leading from Trafalgar Square to the Green Park, famous for its clubs. In the 18th century, it was known for its taverns, which were the scene of meetings of various literary and convivial societies.

Palm (pālm), Johann Philipp. b. at Schorndorf, Germany, Nov. 17, 1768; d. Aug. 26, 1806. German bookseller, at Nuremberg. He was executed by a military tribunal, under the orders of Napoleon, for the publishing of a pamphlet entitled Deutschland in seiner tiefen Erniedrigung, in which the French emperor and the conduct of the French troops in Germany were attacked.

Palma (pāl'mā). [Also, La Palma.] Northwesternmost of the Canary Islands, in the province of Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Spain, ab. 53 mi. NW of Tenerife. It is traversed by a largely volcanic mountain range; the highest elevation reaches ab. 7,750 ft. The scenery is picturesque. Wine, vegetables, oranges, tobacco, and bananas are cultivated; textiles and cigars are manufactured in home industries. The island was occupied by Alonzo de Lugo in 1491. Capital, Santa Cruz de la Palma; area, ab. 280 sq. mi.; pop. 51,784 (1930).

Palma. [Also, Palma de Majorca (or de Mallorca).] City in the Balearic Islands, Spain, the capital of the province of Baleares, situated on the S coast of the island of Majorca, ab. 162 mi. E of Valencia. It is the chief port of the Balearic Islands, with a lively commerce, particularly in the export of early vegetables, and leather, lace, and embroidery industries. There is a Gothic cathedral built chiefly in the 13th and 14th centuries, but not completely finished until the 17th century. 136,814 (1950).

Palma, Jacopo (or Giacomo). [Called Palma Vecchio, meaning "Palma the Elder."] b. at Serinalta, near Bergamo, Italy, c1480; d. at Venice, Aug. 8, 1528. Venetian painter, notable for his background landscapes and for his portraits of women. He is sometimes classed with (though certainly not the equal of) Giorgione and Titian. Among his pictures are Saint Barbara, at Venice; Santa Conversazione, in the Naples Museum; Visitation and Santa Conversazione, at Vienna; The Three Graces, at Dresden; Judith, in the Uffizi at Florence; and La Schiara, in the Palazzo Barberini at Rome.

Palma, Jacopo (or Giacomo). [Called Palma Giovane, meaning "Palma the Younger."] b. at Venice, c1544; d. there, 1628. Venetian painter; grandnephew of Jacopo Palma (Vecchio). He was distinguished for the freshness of his coloring, and was compared not unfavorably with his contemporaries Tintoretto and Paolo Veronese. However, he became notably careless in his later pictures, and was therefore categorized by the scholar Luigi Lanzi as the last painter of the good and the first of the bad epoch in the Venetian school.

Palma, Ricardo. b. at Lima, Peru, Feb. 7, 1833; d. 1919. Peruvian author. He was a member of the Peruvian congress, and subsequently was connected with the national library: it was mainly through his efforts that it was reopened in 1834, after its destruction by the Chileans. Palma's works include Anales de la Inquisición de Lima (1863), several volumes of poems, romances, and sketches, and, from 1870 almost to the close of his life, a series of major works on the traditions and legends of colonial Peru, including Tradiciones escogidas and Tradiciones peruanas.

Palma, Tomás Estrada. b. near Bayamo, Cuba, July 9, 1835; d. at Santiago, Cuba, Nov. 4, 1908. Cuban statesman, first president (1902-06) of the Cuban republic. He studied law at the University of Seville, fought in the insurgent army in the Ten Years' War (1868-78) between Spain and Cuba, gained the rank of general, and was made president of the provisional republic, but was captured and imprisoned in Spain. After his release he went to Honduras and became postmaster general. Later he settled at Central Valley, N.Y., and established a school for Latin-Americans. He was elected president of Cuba, Feb. 24, 1902, was reelected March 19, 1906, but resigned in September, 1906, when the liberal forces which had backed José Miguel Gómez revolted and the American commissioners sent to negotiate a compromise, W. H. Taft and Robert Bacon, were unable to settle the dispute.

Palma del Río (del rē'ō). Town in S Spain, in the province of Córdoba, at the junction of the Genil and Guadalquivir rivers, ab. 30 mi. SW of Córdoba; marketing center of an orange-growing district. 15,042 (1940).

Palma di Montechiaro (di mōn.tā.kyā'rō). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Agrigento, situated on the S coast of Sicily, SE of Agrigento; agricultural commune; fisheries. Pop. of commune, 15,615 (1936); of town, 15,456 (1936).

Palmaer (pāl'mēr). Knut Wilhelm. b. at Forsvik, Sweden, 1868—. Swedish chemist, known for extensive experimental and theoretical work on metal corrosion.

Palmaria (pāl.mā.rē'ā). Small island at the entrance of the Gulf of Spezia, belonging to the province of Genova, Italy; famous for its black marble.

Palmas (pāl'mās). Cape. Promontory on the Atlantic coast of W Africa, at the SE extremity of Liberia.

Palmas (pāl'mās). Las. See Las Palmas.

Palmas, Río de las. See Santander River, Mexico.

Palma Soriano (pāl'mā sō.ryā'nō). City in SE Cuba, in Oriente province. 15,743 (1943).

Palm Beach (pām). Town in SE Florida, in Palm Beach County, on the Atlantic Ocean N of Miami; winter resort. 3,886 (1950).

Palmblad (pāl'm'blād). Wilhelm Fredrik. b. Dec. 16, 1788; d. Sept. 2, 1852. Swedish author, a member of the romantic school known as the Phosphorists. Among his works is the novel Aurora Königsmark (1846-49). After 1835 he was coeditor of the Biographisk Lexikon.

Palmela (pāl.mā'la). Town and concelho (commune) in C Portugal, in the province of Estremadura and district of Setúbal, ab. 5 mi. NW of Setúbal; wine trade; ruined castle; prehistoric finds have been made in the vicinity. Pop. of concelho, 22,103 (1940); of town, 20,701 (1940).

Palmellas (pāl.mel'az). Tribe of South American Indians, living near the Brazil-Bolivia border. Little is known of their language, but they are generally conceded to be of the Cariban linguistic stock, although isolated geographically from other Cariban groups.

Palmenorden (pāl'men.ōr'den). [Official name, Fruchtbringende Gesellschaft.] German literary and linguistic society organized in 1617 under the name of Fruchtbringende Gesellschaft, in imitation of the Italian Accademia della Crusca. Membership was restricted to the German nobility. It was dissolved in 1680.

Palmer (pāl'mēr). Town (in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in S Massachusetts, in Hampden County, on the Chicopee River ab. 14 mi. NE of Springfield. It has hardware and carpet manufactures. Pop. of town, 9,533 (1950); of village, 3,440 (1950).

Palmer, Albert Marshman. b. July 27, 1838; d. March 7, 1905. American theater manager.

Palmer, Alice Freeman. b. at Colesville, N.Y., Feb. 21, 1855; d. at Paris, Dec. 6, 1902. American educator; wife (married 1887) of George Herbert Palmer. She was professor of history at Wellesley College (1879-81), acting president of Wellesley (1881) and president (1882-87), and dean of the woman's department (nonresident) of the University of Chicago (1892-95). She was elected (1920) to the Hall of Fame for Great Americans.

Palmer, A. Mitchell. [Full name, Alexander Mitchell Palmer.] b. at Moosehead, Pa., May 4, 1872; d. at Washington, D.C., May 11, 1936. American politician. He was a Democratic representative (1909-15) to Congress, alien property custodian (1917-19), and attorney general (1919-21) in Wilson's cabinet. His activity against allegedly subversive persons and groups in the years immediately following World War I, when many liberals and most radicals were suspected of furthering undesirable alien political philosophies, resulted in the notorious Palmer Raids on left-wing organizations, and the deportation of hundreds of aliens. He was mentioned prominently as a possible Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1920.

Palmer, Charles Skeele. b. at Danville, Ill., Aug. 4, 1858; d. Nov. 30, 1939. American chemist, professor (1887-1932) at the University of Colorado. He invented (1900) and patented (1907) a basic method for cracking oils to obtain gasoline, which he sold (1916) to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Palmer, Daniel David. b. near Toronto, Canada, March 7, 1845; d. at Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 20, 1913. Founder of chiropractic, a name suggested by one of his clients (the Rev. Samuel H. Weed of Bloomington, Ill.). He was active in the practice (1883-95) of "magnetic healing" at Burlington, Iowa, and settled (1895) at Davenport, Iowa, where in the same year he made his first attempt at spinal adjustment in a patient. He founded (1898) the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport, and established (1903) the Portland College of Chiropractic in Oregon. He was subsequently associated with the Pacific College of Chiropractic.

Palmer, Edward Henry. b. at Cambridge, England, Aug. 7, 1840; murdered in the desert near Suez, in August, 1882. English explorer and Orientalist. He entered Saint John's College, Cambridge, and was elected fellow in 1867. He joined (1869) the Sinai expedition, and in 1870 explored with Charles Drake the wilderness where the Israelites are believed to have wandered; in 1871 he published the Desert of the Exodus. In 1871 he was appointed professor of Arabic at Cambridge, and in 1876 published a Persian dictionary. In 1882, during the Egyptian nationalist uprising, he accompanied the government expedition into the desert near Suez, where he was murdered.

Palmer, Edwin. b. July 18, 1824; d. Oct. 17, 1895. English classical scholar.

Palmer, Erastus Dow. b. at Pompey, N.Y., April 2, 1817; d. at Albany, N.Y., March 9, 1904. American sculptor.

Palmer, Frederick. b. at Pleasantville, Pa., Jan. 29, 1873—. American war correspondent and writer. He was a correspondent at London (1895-97), during the Greek War (1897), in the Klondike and the Philippines (1897-98), with Admiral Dewey (1899), at the relief of Peiping (1900), in the Russo-Japanese War (1904-05), in the Balkan War (1912), with the British land and naval forces (1914-16), with the British army in France (1914), and with the American forces in Germany and the Pacific (1945). He also served during World War I in the American Expeditionary Forces in France. Author of Going to War in Greece (1897), With Kuroki in Manchuria (1904), America in France (1918), Newton D. Baker—America at War (1931), The Man with a Country (1935), Our Gallant Madness (1937), It Can Be Done This Time (1944), and other works.

Palmer, George Herbert. b. at Boston, March 19, 1842; d. May 7, 1933. American philosopher, scholar, and teacher; husband (married 1887) of Alice Freeman Palmer. He became (1870) a tutor in Greek at Harvard, where he was named (1873) assistant professor of philosophy and served as professor of philosophy (1883-1913). He was also Alford professor of natural religion, moral philosophy, and civil polity (1889-1913). The first volume of his translation of The Odyssey appeared in 1884. Author of The New Education (1885), Self-Cultivation in English (1897), The Antigone of Sophocles (1899), The Field of Ethics (1901), A Study of Self-Sacrifice (1902), The Nature of Goodness (1903), The English Works of George Herbert (3 vols., 1905), The Life of Alice Freeman Palmer (1908), Ethical and Moral Instruction in Schools (1909), The Ideal Teacher (1910), The Problem of Freedom (1911), Intimations of Immortality in the Sonnets of Shakespeare (1912), Trades and Professions (1914), Formative Types in English Poetry (1918), Altruism: Its Nature and Varieties (1919), The Lord's Prayer (1920), and The Autobiography of a Philosopher (1930).

Palmer, Henrietta Eliza Vaughan. Maiden name of Stannard, Henrietta Eliza Vaughan.

Palmer, Horatio Richmond. b. at Sherburne, N.Y., April 26, 1834; d. at Yonkers, N.Y., Nov. 15, 1907. American organist and composer. At Chicago he founded (1866) the magazine Concordia and published The Song Queen (1867) and The Song King (1871). He was appointed (1887) dean of the Chautauqua School of Music.

Palmer, James Croxall. b. at Baltimore, June 29, 1811; d. at Washington, D.C., April 24, 1883. American naval surgeon. He became (1834) an assistant surgeon in the U.S. navy, took part (1835-42) in the Wilkes exploring expedition, served (1857) aboard the steam frigate Niagara (which laid the first Atlantic cable), saw service in the Mexican and Civil wars, and was surgeon general of the navy in 1872-73.

Palmer, James Shedden. b. in New Jersey, Oct. 13, 1810; d. in St. Thomas, West Indies, Dec. 7, 1867. American admiral in the Civil War. He commanded the Ironclads of Farragut's squadron in the passage of the Vicksburg batteries in June, 1862, and was captain of Farragut's flagship when she ran the batteries of Port Hudson in March, 1863.

Palmer, John (Leslie). [Pseudonym with Hilary Aidan St. George Saunders], Francis Beeding. [.] b. 1885; d. 1944. English novelist and critic. He was a staff member (1910-15) of the Saturday Review, drama critic (1916 et seq.) of the Evening Standard, and a member from 1923 until 1939 of the permanent secretariat of the League of Nations. Author of novels including Peter Paragon (1915), The King's Men (1916), The Happy Foot (1922), Looking After Joan (1923), Jennifer (1926), and Timothy (1931). His critical works include The Comedy of Manners, Molière (1930), and a study of Ben Jonson. Under their joint pseudonym he and Saunders wrote many mystery and adventure novels, among them The Seven Sleepers (1925), Death Walks in Eastrepps (1931), and Eleven Were Brave (1941).

Palmer, John McAuley. b. in Kentucky, Sept. 13, 1817; d. at Springfield, Ill., Sept. 25, 1900. American general and politician. He served in the Civil War, was governor of Illinois (1869-73), was elected U.S. senator (1891), and was nominated for the presidency as a "Sound-Money" Democrat (1896).

Palmer, John Williamson. b. at Baltimore, April 4, 1825; d. there, Feb. 26, 1906. American journalist and author. He traveled in the Far East, was Confederate correspondent of the New York Tribune during the Civil War, and later was engaged in general editorial work. He wrote The Golden Dragon; or, Up and Down the Irrawaddy (1856), The New and the Old (1859), After his Kind, By John Coventry (1886), For Charlie's Sake, and Other Lyrics and Ballads (1901), and others. His ballad Stonewall Jackson's Way was popular in the South.

Palmer, Nathaniel Brown. b. at Stonington, Conn., Aug. 8, 1799; d. at San Francisco, June 21, 1877. American sea captain and explorer, noted for his discovery (1820) of the Antarctic Continent, parts of which today bear his name. He took part in the South Sea trade, discovered (1820) the antarctic mainland while captain of the Hero, went (1821) into the region now known as Palmer Peninsula (sometimes Graham Land), aided in the discovery (1822) of the South Orkney Islands, and made another voyage (1829-31) to the Antarctic. He subsequently participated in the New York-New Orleans packet trade and in the clipper trade to China.

Palmer, Ray. b. at Little Compton, R.I., Nov. 12, 1808; d. at Newark, N.J., March 29, 1887. American Congregational clergyman, noted as a hymn writer. He wrote the hymn My Faith looks up to Thee and others.

Palmer, Roger. [Title, Earl of Castlemaine.] b. at Dorset Court, Buckinghamshire, England, Sept. 3, 1634; d. at Oswestry, Shropshire, England, July 21, 1705. English diplomat and writer. He was raised to the Irish peerage after the Restoration to propitiate his wife, Barbara Villiers, who was the mistress of Charles II, when Charles married (1662) Catherine of Braganza. He was accused in the Popish Plot and acquitted. Later, as James II's envoy to Rome, he acted undiplomatically in respect to certain of the king's favorites and thus angered the Pope. He was excluded from the act of indemnity (1690) and was later banished.

Palmer, Sir Roundell. [Title, 1st Earl of Selborne.] b. at Mixture, England, Nov. 27, 1812; d. at Blackmoor, near Petersfield, England, May 4, 1895. English jurist and hymnologist. He was solicitor general (1861-63), attorney general (1863-66), British counsel at the Geneva Court of Arbitration (1871-72), and lord chancellor under Gladstone (1872-74, 1880-85). He published Book of Praise, from the Best English Hymn-writers (1863) and other works.

Palmer, Walter Launt. b. at Albany, N.Y., Aug. 1, 1854; d. April 16, 1932. American painter; son of Erastus

Dow Palmer; a pupil of F. E. Church and of Carolus-Duran.

Palmer, William Waldegrave. [Titles: 2nd Earl of Selborne, Viscount Wolmer.] b. Oct. 17, 1839; d. in England, Feb. 26, 1942. English colonial administrator; son of Roundell Palmer, 1st Earl of Selborne. He was undersecretary of state (1895-1900) for colonies, was appointed (1900) first lord of the admiralty, and served (1905-10) as governor of the Transvaal, and high commissioner for South Africa. During this period he helped organize the administration in the South African colonies leading to the establishment of the Union of South Africa. He was president (1915-16) of the board of agriculture and resigned in opposition to Asquith's compromise program in the Irish question.

Palmerin Romances (pál.má.rén'). The. Series of eight Spanish romances of chivalry. The first, Palmerin de Oliva, the work of a carpenter's daughter in Burgos, printed at Salamanca in 1511, and the sixth, Palmerin de Inglaterra, written by Luis Hurtado (1547), are the most noted. These romances are in imitation of the Amadis romances, and approach them in importance.

Palmer Peninsula (pá'mér). [Also: Graham Land, Palmer Land, Palmer's Land.] Peninsula of Antarctica extending N towards Cape Horn. It is a mountainous, elevated, ice-covered land, with rocky coasts, the most distant part of Antarctica continent from the South Pole. It was named in honor of Nathaniel B. Palmer, who explored the area in 1820-21. Length, abt. 700 mi.

Palmer Raids. See under Palmer, A. Mitchell.

Palmerston (pá'mér.ston), 3rd Viscount. [Title of Henry John Temple; nicknamed Pam.] b. at Broadlands, near Romsey, Hampshire, England, Oct. 20, 1784; d. at Brocket Hall, near Hatfield, Hertfordshire, England, Oct. 18, 1865. English statesman. He belonged to the Irish branch of the Temple family. On April 17, 1802, he succeeded to his father's title. He was educated at Harrow. He became member of Parliament for the pocket borough of Newtown, Isle of Wight, in 1807, and junior lord of the admiralty in the cabinet of William Henry Bentinck, Duke of Portland, in the same year. When Spencer Perceval formed his cabinet in 1809, Palmerston took the noncabinet post of secretary at war, holding that position until 1828 during several changes of cabinet. At this time he was a Tory, a disciple of Pitt, and an advocate of Roman Catholic emancipation. A split in the party occurring after 1822 led Palmerston into the Whig camp, and in 1830 he entered the Whig ministry of Charles Grey as minister of foreign affairs. His activity in this position, which he held until 1841 and then again under Lord John Russell from 1846 to 1851, was very great. He was interested in the policy which established (1831) Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg on the throne of Belgium, and in the maintenance of the Ottoman Empire as a defense against Russia on the Bosphorus and France on the Nile. He supported the constitutional parties in Spain and Portugal against the absolutists and again resisted Russian pressure in Afghanistan. In China he established British power with the occupation of Hong Kong. His high-handed methods in diplomacy caused his policies, especially with regard to France, to be much criticized. He went out of office with the end of the Melbourne administration in 1841, but returned as secretary of the foreign office under Russell in 1846. He sympathized, in general, with the revolutionary ferment on the Continent in 1848 and ardently supported the Italian revolution. These matters naturally brought England into conflict with the other royal powers of Europe, and eventually, after Palmerston's support of David Pacifico against the Greek government, to the alienation of France. Palmerston defended himself ably in Parliament in a famous speech (June, 1850), but he was nevertheless censured by Queen Victoria herself for his arbitrary measures. In 1851 he openly approved the coup d'état of Louis Napoleon (Napoleon III) and was dismissed from the foreign office by Russell. He became (1852) secretary of state for the home office in the coalition cabinet of George Hamilton Gordon, 4th Earl of Aberdeen, and on Feb. 5, 1855, at the age of 71, Palmerston became prime minister, a post he held, except for the interval 1858-59, when Derby held office, until his death. He prosecuted the Crimean War to a victorious conclusion, suppressed fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, mōve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ын, then; ġ, d or ġ; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

the Sepoy Mutiny in India, and, despite a persistent suspicion of Napoleon III, generally supported the French invasion of Italy as leading toward Italian independence. He opposed the Suez Canal plans of Ferdinand de Lesseps as adding further burdens to British diplomacy. Palmerston's formal policy during the American Civil War was always one of neutrality, although the Trent affair and the use of British ports by the Confederates to fit out the Alabama and other commerce raiders brought strained relations with the North. He tried ineffectively to intervene in favor of the Polish revolutionaries in 1863, and in 1864 was balked in his attempt to prevent Prussian aggression against Denmark.

Palmerston. Former name of Darwin, Australia.

Palmerston North. City in New Zealand, an important urban center in the S part of North Island, ab. 75 mi. NE of Wellington. It is on the main railroad lines to Auckland and Napier in the N part of the island, and is the seat of Massey Agricultural College, an affiliate of the University of New Zealand. Pop., with suburbs, 32,908 (1951).

Palmerston (pāl'mēr'ton). Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Carbon County; manufacturing center for zinc, sulphuric acid, and related products. Pop. 6,646 (1950).

Palmetto (pāl'met'ō). City in W Florida, in Manatee County, S of Tampa; packing and shipping point for citrus fruits and vegetables. 4,103 (1950).

"Palmetto State." Nickname of South Carolina.

Palmgren (pāl'mgrān), Selim. b. Feb. 16, 1878—, Finnish pianist and composer. Among his compositions are the operas Daniel Hjort (1910) and Peter Schlemihl; and piano selections, among which are May Night, The River, and Refrain du Berceau. He also composed songs, and choral and orchestral works.

Palmi (pāl'mē). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Reggio di Calabria, situated on the Gulf of Gioia, on the W coast of Calabria, ab. 21 mi. NE of Reggio di Calabria; olive oil and wine trade. It was largely destroyed in the earthquake of 1783, and suffered from several other earthquakes during the 19th and 20th centuries, particularly the one of 1908. Pop. of commune, 18,179 (1936); of town, 13,590 (1936).

Palmieri (pāl'myē'rē), Luigi. b. April 22, 1807; d. Sept. 9, 1896. Italian mathematician and physicist. He was appointed professor of physics at the University of Naples in 1847, and director of the meteorological observatory on Vesuvius in 1848 (an office the duties of which he assumed in 1854). He invented several meteorological instruments, including a seismograph and a rain gauge.

Palmira (pāl'mē'rā). City in W Colombia, in Valle del Cauca department; agricultural produce. 21,235 (1938).

Palmisto Hill (pāl'mē'tō), Battle of. See under Brownsville, Tex.

Palm Springs (pām). City in S California, in Riverside County, SE of Los Angeles, near the San Jacinto Mountains; desert resort community. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 3,434 (1940), 7,660 (1950).

Palm Sunday. Christian holy day celebrated on the Sunday before Easter. It commemorates the entry of Jesus into Jerusalem. In the Roman Catholic and some other churches it is observed by the token acceptance of palm fronds, which may then be formally carried in a procession.

Palmyra (pāl'mī'rā). Borough in SW New Jersey, in Burlington County, near Camden. 5,802 (1950).

Palmyra. Village in W New York, in Wayne County; manufactures of paper boxes and steam packings. The original farm of the Mormon leader Joseph Smith is nearby. 3,034 (1950).

Palmyra. Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Lebanon County; manufactures of shoes, textiles, and boxes; processing plants for meat; limestone quarries. 5,910 (1950).

Palmyra. Atoll of the Line Islands, central Pacific, forming part of the administrative area of the county of Honolulu though it lies some 1,000 mi S of Hawaii; the land area is slightly more than one square mile. The island was annexed by the U.S. in 1912 and in 1939 the building of a U.S. naval air base was authorized. In 1947, by a ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court, the atoll was adjudged to be privately owned.

Palmyra. [In the Bible, Tadmor.] In ancient geography, a city situated on an oasis in the desert E of Syria, said to have been built by Solomon. It early became an important commercial center, rose to prominence in the reign of Hadrian (c130 A.D.), became a Roman colony c212, became practically independent in the reigns of Valerian and Gallienus under Odenathus, and was the capital of an important kingdom. It became formally independent under Zenobia, who was defeated and captured by Aurelian in 272. Palmyra was destroyed in 273. Later it was rebuilt, but is now in ruins. The site is remarkable for its extensive architectural remains, which date for the most part from near the close of the Roman protectorate. The chief monument is the Temple of the Sun, with its impressive enclosure. Almost more striking are the long double lines of colonnaded streets, spanned by triumphal arches.

Paint Hills (pāl'nē). Range of mountains in the S part of the Deccan, Madras state, Union of India, running E and W for ab. 150 mi, and connecting the Eastern and Western Ghats. Highest summits, ab. 7,000 ft.

Palo Alto (pāl'ō al'tō). City in C California, in Santa Clara County, S of San Francisco; the seat of Stanford University. 25,475 (1950).

Palo Alto. Place near the S extremity of Texas, ab. 8 mi. NE of Brownsville. The first battle of the Mexican War was fought here on May 8, 1846. Zachary Taylor, commanding the U.S. troops, had fortified himself on the Rio Grande, opposite Matamoros; Mariano Arista, the Mexican general, maneuvered to cut him off from his base of supplies at Point Isabel, and Taylor attacked him with 2,300 men, the Mexicans having ab. 3,500. The battle was fought mainly with artillery, and the Mexicans were defeated, retiring next day to Resaca de la Palma.

Palo del Colle (pāl'ō del kō'llā). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Bari, ab. 12 mi. SW of Bari; wine and table grapes. There is a cathedral of the 12th century. Pop. of commune, 12,052 (1936); of town, 11,897 (1936).

Palomar (pāl'ō,mār), Mount. Peak in S California, NE of San Diego. On its summit is an observatory operated under the joint auspices of the California Institute of Technology and of the Carnegie Institution. The observatory has a 200-inch reflecting telescope, the largest one ever made. Elevation, 6,126 ft.

Palomino de Castro y Velasco (pāl'ō,mē'nō dā kās'trō ē bāl'ās'kō), Acisclo (or Acislo) Antonio. b. at Bujalance, near Córdoba, Spain, 1653; d. at Madrid, 1726. Spanish painter and writer on art. He published a treatise on painting (El Museo pictórico y escala óptica, 1715-24) and other works.

Palos de la Frontera (pāl'ōs dā lā frōn.tā'rā). [Also: Palos, Palos de Moguer (dā mō'ger'), Puerto Palos.] Town in S Spain, in the province of Huelva, near the mouth of the Río Tinto on the Atlantic Ocean. There is a monument commemorating the fact that Christopher Columbus sailed from here on his first voyage, on Aug. 3, 1492. Pop. ab. 2,000.

Palóu (pāl'ō), Francisco. b. in Majorca, Balearic Islands, c1722; d. in Mexico, c1789. Spanish Franciscan missionary and historian in America. He came (1749) to Mexico with Junipero Serra, served (1750 et seq.) as a missionary in the Sierra Gorda, in what is now Guanajuato, and in 1763 settled at Loreto, then the capital of California, as a member of a group of Franciscans replacing the expelled Jesuits. During a journey (1773) to San Diego he marked the boundary between Upper and Lower California at a site which was used to set off (1848) the Mexican-U.S. border. He explored (1774) the San Francisco peninsula, founded (1776) the mission of San Francisco (Dolores), and was named (1785) president of the College of San Fernando in Mexico. Author of Relación Histórica de la Vida y Apostólicas Tareas del Venerable Padre Fray Junipero Serra (1787).

Palouse (pāl'ōs'). River in NW Idaho and E Washington, a tributary of the Snake River. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Palsgrave (pāl'grāv. pōlz'-), John. b. at London, c1480; d. there, 1554. English scholar. He was appointed teacher of French to the Princess Mary, sister of Henry VIII, before her marriage (1514) to Louis XII of France.

He remained in her service, returning to England with her when she married (1515) Charles Brandon, 1st Duke of Suffolk. He became tutor to the king's bastard son, Henry Fitzroy, Duke of Richmond, in 1525, went to Oxford in 1531, and was presented with the living of St. Dunstan's in the East, London, by Thomas, Archbishop of Crammer, in 1533. He wrote a book containing his method of instruction, a grammar and dictionary combined, entitled, Lesclaircissement de la Langue Francoyse, composé par Maître Jehan Palsgrave, Angloys, Natif de Londres, et Gradue de Paris, in 1530. It is a valuable record of the exact state of the French and English languages at the time. In 1540 he published a translation of a Latin play entitled Acastus, by a Dutch schoolmaster, Willem de Volder (Fullonius).

Paltas (pál'taz). Tribe of South American Indians of the Ecuadorian highlands. They were aboriginally a division of the Jivara, but have now been absorbed into the Quechua-speaking population of the region.

Paltauf (pál'tauf), Richard. b. at Judenburg, Styria, Austria, Feb. 9, 1858; d. at Vienna, April 21, 1924. Austrian pathologist. He described (with C. Sternberg, 1897) lymphogranulomatosis (called Paltauf-Sternberg's lymphogranulomatosis), made studies on the tumors of the carotid glands, on the pathology of the blood, on neoplasms of the skin, and on osteoplastic carcinoma. Among his important achievements in the field of bacteriologic serology is his study on agglutination. He suggested the establishment of an institute at Vienna for vaccination against rabies, also suggested the founding of a serotherapeutic institute. He introduced a modification of Gram's staining method, called Paltauf's stain.

Paltok (pál'tok), Robert. b. probably at Westminster, London, 1697; d. at Lambeth, London, March 23, 1767. English lawyer and author. Author of The Life and Adventures of Peter Wilkins, a Cornish Man (c1751), a romantic story of the Robinson Crusoe type, and the Memoirs of the Life of Parness, a Spanish Lady (1751).

Paltsits (pál'tsits), Victor Hugo. b. at New York, July 12, 1867—. American historian and bibliographer, keeper of manuscripts (1914-41) and chief of the American division (1916-41) at the New York Public Library.

Paludan (pá'lú.dán), Jacob. b. at Copenhagen, Feb. 7, 1896—. Danish author. He made his name with the novel Fugle omkring Fyret (1925; Eng. trans., Birds Around the Light, 1928).

Paludan-Müller (pál'ó.dán.mül'ér), Frederik. b. at Kjetteminde, Fyn, Denmark, Feb. 7, 1899; d. at Copenhagen, Dec. 29, 1876. Danish poet. In 1832 he published a romantic drama Kjærlighed ved Høftet (Love at Court). This was followed by the poem Danserinden (The Dancing Girl, 1833), the lyrical drama Amor og Psyche (1834), the narrative poem Zuleima's Flight (Zuleima's Flight, 1835), and Poesier (Poems), in two volumes, in 1836 and 1838. Subsequent works are the dramatic poems Venus (1841), Dryadens Bryllup (The Dryad's Wedding), and Tithon (Tithonus), both in 1844. His greatest work, Adam Homo, written in ottava rima, appeared from 1841 to 1848. Among his other works are Abels Død (Abel's Death, 1854), the lyric drama Kalamus (1857), Paradisøt (Paradise, 1861), Kain (Cain), Ahasverus (Ahasuerus), and Benedikt fra Nursia. A comedy, Tidene Skifte (The Times Change), and the lyric poem Adonis both date from 1874. He is also the author of two prose works, the allegorical tale Ungdomskilden (The Fountain of Youth, 1865) and the social novel, in three volumes, Ivar Lykkes Historie (The History of Ivar Lykke, 1866-73).

Palus (pá'lus). Latin word for "swamp," "bog," or "gulf"; see the distinguishing element of the name.

Palwal (pul'wal). [Also, Pulwal.] Town in Gurgaon district, Punjab, Union of India, ab. 40 mi. S of Delhi; trading center. 13,606 (1941).

Pam (pam). Nickname of Palmerston, 3rd Viscount.

Pamban Channel or Passage (pám'ban). [Also, Pamben Channel (or Passage).] Strait on the SE coast of the Union of India, connecting the Gulf of Mannar and Palk Strait, and separating Rameswaram island from continental India. Length, ab. 5 mi.

Pame (pám'má). [Also, Pamis.] One of the Otomi group of Mexican Indian tribes in the SE part of San Luis Potosí and adjacent parts of Querétaro and Guanajuato, Mexico.

Pamela (pám'p.lá). Daughter of Basilus and sister of Philoclea, in Sir Philip Sidney's romance Arcadia.

Pamela, or Virtue Rewarded. First of the series of novels written by Samuel Richardson, published in 1740. It is so called from the name of the heroine, an ostentatiously virtuous servant who resists the dishonorable attempts of her master and is finally rewarded by becoming his wife. This so amused Henry Fielding that he was moved to write the history of Joseph Andrews, an equally virtuous servingman and the brother of Pamela, which was begun as a caricature but grew into a work of independent character. Fielding's amusement (and that of some other readers) did not stem from any contempt for virtue as such, but from a suspicion that Pamela's "virtue" is being used thoughtfully and coldly to trap her master into marriage.

Pamili (pám.fe'le), Giambattista. Original name of Pope Innocent X.

Pamiers (pám.yá). Town in S France, in the department of Ariège, on the Ariège River ab. 40 mi. S of Toulouse. The cathedral of Saint Antonin (1658-89) shows a mixture of the Gothic and Renaissance styles; the Church of Notre Dame dates from the 14th century. There are Roman ruins in the vicinity. The trade center of an agricultural region, Pamiers has manufactures of lumber, metalware, flour, and paper. 12,026 (1946).

Pamir (pám'ir). Extensive mountain region in C Asia, in NE Afghanistan, S U.S.S.R., and SW Sinkiang, China. It contains the sources of the Amu Darya. From it radiate the Alai (Trans-Alai), Karakorum, and Hindu Kush Mountains, with peaks rising to nearly 25,000 ft. in elevation. It is the central knot of the Asiatic mountains, and is frequently designated the "roof of the world." Over it passed the ancient commercial highway to China. A large part of the Pamir region was occupied by Russia in 1892.

Pamis (pám'es). See Pame.

Pamisos (pám'és.sós). [Former names: Pirnatza, Dhiopotamo; Latin, Pamisus (pám'is'us).] Chief river in Messenia, Greece. It flows into the Gulf of Messenia W of Kalamata.

Pamlico River (pám'li.kó). See under Tar River.

Pamlicos (pám.le'kós). Tribe of North American Indians, of Algonquian linguistic stock, formerly dwelling along the lower Tar (or Pamlico) River, in North Carolina. They were practically wiped out by smallpox and warfare in the 17th and 18th centuries; the survivors were absorbed into the Tuscaroras.

Pamlico Sound (pám'li.kó). Arm of the Atlantic Ocean E of North Carolina, separated from the Atlantic by low, narrow islands. It communicates with Albemarle Sound on the N by Croatan and Roanoke sounds, and with the Atlantic by Ocracoke, Hatteras, and other inlets. Length, ab. 75 mi.; area, ab. 1,700 sq. mi.

Pampa (pám'pá). City in N Texas, county seat of Gray County, NE of Amarillo; petroleum-refining and cattle-shipping center. 16,583 (1950).

Pampa (pám'pá), La. See La Pampa.

Pampa Aulagas (pám'pá ou.yá'gás). See Poopó.

Pampanga (pám.páng'á). Province of the Philippine Islands, in N central Luzon. It is bounded by Tarlac on the N, Nueva Ecija on the NE, Bulacan on the E and SE, Manila Bay on the S, and Bataan and Zambales on the W. The S part bordering Manila Bay is a broad delta extending somewhat beyond the original coastline. In the W are the Mabanga Mountains, parallel with the Zambales range; in the NE is Mount Arayat (3,867 ft.) and in the NW Mount Pinatubo (5,842 ft.) both extinct volcanoes. The C part of the province is occupied by an intensively cultivated plain, with rice the leading crop. Bananas, sugar cane, and corn are also grown. Capital, San Fernando; area, 827 sq. mi.; pop. 416,583 (1948).

Pampas (pám'paz; Spanish, pám'pás). Name in S South America of various open and grassy plains. Specifically, and in a geographical sense, the Pampas are the great open prairies of C Argentina between the Paraná River and the Atlantic on the E and the dry, elevated regions of the W. The Pampas are contiguous on the N with the Gran Chaco, and on the S they rise into the tablelands of Patagonia. Regarding the Salado River as the N boundary, and the Colorado as the S, the Pampas embrace the provinces of Buenos Aires and Santa Fé, most of Córdoba, portions of Santiago, San Luis, and Mendoza, and the territory of La Pampa. This gives an area of over 300,000 sq. mi. The elevation in Córdoba is 1,200 or 1,300 ft.; thence it falls regularly SE to 40 or 50 ft. near the Atlantic. There are occasional depressions, occupied by saline ponds or marshes. The surface is everywhere open and, where not too dry, very fertile; portions are subject to floods. The name is often extended to the open but hilly lands E of the Paraná River and in Uruguay and S Brazil.

Pampas. Generic term applied to certain South American Indian tribes of the Argentine pampas SW of Buenos Aires, but especially to the Puelches.

Pampas del Sacramento (pám.pás del sák.rí.men.tó). Region of N Peru, between the Huallaga and Ucayali rivers. Much of the surface is free from forest. It was discovered and named by the Jesuit Simon Zara in 1732, and for many years was the seat of flourishing Jesuit missions. There are now few inhabitants except wandering Indians. Length, probably 300 mi.; width, 40 to 100 mi.

Pampeans (pam.pé.ánz). Collective term applied to various of the Indian tribes of the Patagonian and Argentine pampas. Since some are Araucanians, the term is also often used as a synonym for that group.

Pampeluna (pám.pá.lo.ná) or Pampelune (pám.pé.lún). See Pamplona, Spain.

Pamphili (pam.fí.lí), Eusebius. See Eusebius of Caesarea.

Pamphilus of Caesarea (pam.fí.lus; sē.za.ré.a). b. at Beirut (then in Phoenicia); d. 309. Christian writer and teacher of Caesarea. Said to have studied at Alexandria, he was ordained priest at Caesarea, where he wrote and collected a library, encouraging the study of Scripture. He was martyred in the persecutions under Diocletian.

Pamphylia (pam.fí.lí.a). In ancient geography, a mountainous region in Asia Minor, bounded by Pisidia on the N, Cilicia on the E, the Mediterranean Sea on the S, and Lycia on the W. It was successively under the rule of Lydia, Persia, Macedonia, Syria, Pergamum, and Rome.

Pamphylian Gulf (pam.fí.lí.an). [Also, Pamphylian Sea.] Ancient name of Antalya, Gulf of.

Pamphylicus Sinus (pam.fí.lí.kus sín.us). Latin name of Antalya, Gulf of.

Pamplona (pám.pló.ná). Town in N Colombia, in Norte de Santander department, ab. 205 mi. NE of Bogotá, near the Venezuelan border: wood products, minerals, and agricultural produce. 13,126 (1938).

Pamplona. [Also: Pampeluna; Basque, Iruna; French, Pampelune; ancient name, Pompaelo.] City in NE Spain, the capital of the province of Navarra, situated on the Arga River, in a valley in the foothills of the Pyrenees, NW of Saragossa: agricultural trade; woolen, linen, leather, and paper manufactures; copper, lead, and iron smelting establishments; flour mills. Strategically located, it has always been the chief fortress of Navarre; the citadel was constructed (1556-98) by order of Philip II. The cathedral is a late Gothic structure, begun in 1397 by Charles III, with a Corinthian façade of 1783; it contains tombs of various kings of Navarre. 72,483 (1950).

Pamunkey (pa.mung.kí). Tribe of North American Indians of the Algonquian linguistic stock, formerly living along the Pamunkey River in Virginia. It was a principal one of the 30 tribes comprising the Powhatan Confederacy in the 17th century.

Pamunkey River. River in E Virginia, formed by the union of the North Anna and South Anna, and uniting with the Mattaponi at West Point to form the York River. Length, with the South Anna, over 100 mi.

Pan (pán). In Greek mythology, the god of pastures and flocks. The original seat of his worship was in Arcadia, whence it gradually spread over the rest of Greece. He was represented with the head and body of a man; his lower parts were the hind quarters of a goat, of which animal he bore the horns and ears also. He was fond of music and of dancing with the forest nymphs, and was the inventor of the syrinx, or Panpipes, which he made of reeds. Sudden terror (panic) without visible or reasonable cause was attributed to his influence. The Romans identified Pan with their own god Inuus, and sometimes also with Faunus.

Pan (pán). German art and literary quarterly which appeared (1894-1900) at Berlin. Founded and edited for a time by Otto Julius Bierbaum and Julius Meier-Graefe, it was later edited by a board headed by César Fleischel.

Pan (pán), Jacques Mallet du. See Mallet du Pan, Jacques.

Pana (pá.ná). City in C Illinois, in Christian County, ab. 42 mi. SE of Springfield; petroleum refining, dairy products, and production of hot-house roses. 6,178 (1950).

Panaetius (pa.nē.shí.us). b. c180 B.C.; d. c111 B.C. Greek Stoic philosopher of Rhodes, the friend (at Rome) of Laelius and Scipio the Younger. Only fragments of his work, on which Cicero based some of his writing, have survived.

Panagia (pa.ná.gí.á). In the Greek or Orthodox Eastern Church, a title of the Virgin Mary. This title signifies literally "all-holy," an intensive of the epithet "Holy" applied to other saints.

Panagyurishte (pá.ná.gyó.rish.te). Town in S Bulgaria, in the department of Plovdiv, at the S foot of the Sredna Gora in the Balkan Mountains, ab. 35 mi. NW of Plovdiv. 12,015 (1946).

Panama (pán.a.mó, -mā). [Spanish, Panamá (pā.nā.má').] Republic of Central America, occupying the narrow isthmus linking North and South America, and bounded on the W by Costa Rica, on the E by Colombia, on the N by the Caribbean Sea, and on the S by the Pacific Ocean. The territory of the republic is bisected by the Panama Canal, and by the associated administrative area of the Canal Zone, which is under U.S. control; the cities of Colón and Panama are, however, a part of the republic. Much of the interior of Panama is a rugged region of mountains or hills, largely jungle-covered; E of the city of Panama there is an extensive lowland jungle region inhabited chiefly by Indians. In the W, near the Costa Rican border, are numerous high peaks; the highest peak in the country is the volcano Chiriquí, which reaches an elevation of 11,410 ft. The climate is hot and very humid; annual rainfall at Colón is over 125 inches, and at Panama about 70 inches. The Pacific slope has a short dry season (January-March), and for this reason has been more easily developed; the principal center of population extends along the line of the Inter-American Highway (part of the Pan American Highway) from the Costa Rican border to the city of Panama. Subsistence agriculture and cattle raising are the principal activities; bananas, cacao, abaca, and coconuts are grown commercially for export. The Panama Canal brings a considerable revenue to Panama, as many tourists visit the two principal cities en route. Under Spanish rule, Panama was under the viceroyalty of New Granada. It was an unhealthy region, and attracted few settlers, although there was some traffic overland between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. After South America obtained independence from Spain, Panama was a part of Colombia; in 1903 it declared its independence from Colombia, and shortly thereafter granted to the U.S. a permanent lease on the territory of the Canal Zone. The Republic is divided into nine provinces, Bocas del Toro, Chiriquí, Coclé, Colón, Darién, Herrera, Los Santos, Panama, and Veraguas, each governed by a governor appointed by the president. The president is elected by popular vote for a term of four years. Capital, Panama; total area, 28,575 sq. mi.; pop. 501,982 (1950), exclusive of the Canal Zone.

Panama. [Spanish, Panamá.] Province in S Panama, E and W of the Canal Zone, bordering on the Bay of Panama. Capital, Panama; area, 10,446 sq. mi.; pop. 191,534 (1950).

Panama or Panama City. [Spanish, Panamá.] City in S Panama, capital of the Republic of Panama and of Panama province. A port on the Bay of Panama, it is the SE terminus of the Panama Railway and of the highway across the Isthmus. It is the principal commercial city of Panama, and has beverage, shoe, furniture, and pottery industries. It is the seat of the national university, and has an important commercial airport. It was founded in 1519 by Pedrarias, burned by Henry Morgan's bu-caneers in 1671, and rebuilt in its present location in 1673. Pop. 127,407 (1950).

Panama (pan'a.mô, -mâ; Spanish, pā.nā.mā'), Audience of. Spanish court and governing body (audiencia) located at Panamá. As originally established in 1538 (by decree of 1535) it ruled all the Spanish possessions of Central and South America, except Venezuela.

Panama, Bay of. Arm of the Pacific Ocean, S of the Isthmus of Panamá, at the W entrance of the Panama Canal.

Panama, Declaration of. Set of declarations adopted on Oct. 3, 1939, at the first meeting of foreign ministers of the American republics held at Panamá. It established a wide hemispheric "safety belt" in American waters south of the Canadian border and asked non-American belligerent powers to refrain from armed action in the designated zone. It also contained a declaration of continental solidarity.

Panama, Isthmus of. [Also, formerly, Isthmus of Darien.] Isthmus which connects North and South America and separates the Caribbean Sea from the Pacific Ocean. It is traversed by low mountains. Length (to Costa Rica), ab. 420 mi.; width, 30-70 mi. The name Panamá is sometimes used in a more restricted sense for a narrow portion of the isthmus immediately opposite the town of Panamá; and a similar constriction opposite the Gulf of Urubá is often distinguished as the Isthmus of Darien. It is traversed by the Panama Canal from Colón to Balboa.

Panama Canal. Waterway, utilizing locks, that links the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It is capable of taking all but the very largest of existing vessels (specifically, the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth; there is no vessel under the U.S. flag which cannot use the canal). It traverses the Isthmus of Panamá from Cristóbal (on the Atlantic Ocean) to Balboa (on the Pacific Ocean). Its width is at no point less than 300 ft. and its minimum depth is 41 ft. A total of six locks are employed to raise and lower vessels from sea level to the high point of 85 ft. above sea level in Gatun Lake, and thence back to sea level. Because of the twisting of the Isthmus of Panamá at this point the route of the canal is not on an east-west line, but goes generally SE from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Ocean (thus actually placing the Atlantic terminus of the canal some 27 mi. west of the Pacific terminus). The canal occupies territory which has been leased in perpetuity to the U.S. by the republic of Panamá (see Canal Zone), and was built, for all practical purposes, in the period between 1904 and 1914 (the official completion date was set as 1921, but the canal had long been in use by that year; the official cost to that year was $25,812,661 dollars, but this included much work done after 1914. Total cost to 1915, when the canal was formally opened, was approximately 337,000,000 dollars).

Panama Canal Zone. See Canal Zone.

Panama City. City in NW Florida, county seat of Bay County, near the Gulf of Mexico, W of Jacksonville: shipyards; manufactures of paper, lumber, glass, and salt. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 11,610 (1940), 25,814 (1950).

Panama Congress. Congress held at Panamá in 1826, called by the Spanish-American republics for the settlement of various matters pertaining to America in general. The U.S. was not represented in the preliminary meeting, though an invitation was extended; Great Britain sent a delegation. The congress adjourned to 1827, and did not reconvene.

Panama Refining Co. v. Ryan and Amazon Petroleum Corp. v. Ryan, 293 U.S. 388 (1935) (pan'a.mô, -mâ; r'ian; am'a.zon). [Also known as the "Hot Oil Cases."] U.S. Supreme Court decision notable as the first occasion on which the court invalidated a New Deal law, and held unconstitutional a statute on the ground that it endowed the president with a measure of legislative authority. The section of the National Industrial Recovery Act of 1933 in question empowered the president to prohibit the interstate or foreign transportation of oil produced in violation of state-imposed limitations.

Pan-American Conference (pan.a.mer'ik.an). Conference (originally called the Pan-American Congress) at Washington, D.C., 1889-90. It was convened by virtue of an act passed by the U.S. Congress on May 10, 1888, requesting the president to invite the Latin-American governments to join the U.S. in a conference to be held at Washington, in 1889, "for the purpose of discussing and recommending for adoption to their respective governments some plan of arbitration for the settlement of disagreements and disputes that may hereafter arise between them, and for considering questions relating to the improvement of business intercourse and means of direct communication between the said countries, and to encourage such reciprocal commercial relations as will be beneficial to all, and secure more extensive markets for the products of each of the said countries." Later conferences were held at Mexico City (1901-02), Rio de Janeiro (1906), Buenos Aires (1910), Santiago, Chile (1923), Havana (1928), Montevideo (1933), Lima (1938), and Bogotá (1948).

Pan-American Exposition. Exposition of the work of the peoples of North and South America, held at Buffalo, N.Y., in 1901.

Pan American Highway (pan.a.mer'ik.an). Projected international system of highways, which will (upon completion) link the countries of North, South, and Central America. The estimated final length of the system is between 16,000 and 17,000 mi. Although parts of it remain little used, and are often in poor repair, there is now some sort of road to cover the entire route except for a few sections in Central America and the N part of South America. The idea of the highway was first broached in 1923; a formal international agreement to proceed with it was reached 1936. See also Inter-American Highway.

Pan American Union. Official international body composed of the 21 republics of the Western Hemisphere, which maintains its headquarters at Washington, D.C. It was established in 1890 as the International Bureau of American Republics and received its present designation in 1910. On its governing boards are the U.S. secretary of state and the diplomatic representatives at Washington of all the Latin-American nations. The organization arranges Pan-American conferences and promotes hemispherical cultural, commercial, and social exchange.

Panamint Mountains (pan'a.mint). Range of mountains in Inyo County, SE California, bordering Death Valley on the W. Peak elevation, 11,045 ft.

Pananas (pā.nā.nās'). Pawnee Indians; so called by the early Spanish settlers in New Mexico.

Panaria (pa.nā.r'ia; Italian, pā.nā.r'ā) or Panarea (pā.nā.r'ā). [Latin, Eunymus, Hicetes.] One of the Lipari Islands, NE of Lipari.

Panaro (pā.nā.rō). [Latin, Scultena, Scultenaria.] River in Italy, which joins the Po ab. 12 mi. NW of Ferrara. Length, ab. 103 mi.

Panataran (pā'nā.tā.rān'). Chandi. Temple ruins in E Java, including the second largest building on the island, of debated age but essentially from the 14th century A.D. The style of the rich sculptural decorations differs from that of central Java and is related to Chandi Diago art.

Panathenaea (pan.ath.e.nē'a). In ancient Greek religion, the great festival celebrated annually in August at Athens in honor of Athena. There were athletic and musical contests, races, and various games. A chief feature of the celebration was a procession of women to the Acropolis bearing a mast to which was fastened a magnificent peplos which they had embroidered for the goddess. In the procession were also youths and maidens bearing various symbolic implements and leading sacrificial animals, and also chariots and cavalry. The prize given to winners of the various contests was olive oil in amphorae bearing a depiction of the goddess, the olive having been the specific gift of Athena to the people.

Panay Incident (pā.nī'). Sinking of the U.S. river gunboat Panay and the destruction of three American Standard Oil Company tankers on the Yangtze River above Nanking on Dec. 12, 1937, during an attack by Japanese aircraft. The Japanese government admitted its responsibility, made formal apology, and for loss of American life and property paid indemnities amounting to more than two million dollars.

Pancake Day. [Also, Pancake Tuesday.] In the British Isles, Shrove Tuesday. In England especially, the making, tossing, and eating of pancakes is part of the traditional observance of Shrove Tuesday. Olney, England, still features a famous pancake race on Shrove Tuesday for the women of the town, in which a pancake must be tossed in the air and caught successfully in the pan three times during the run.

Pancaste (pan.kas'tē). See Campaspe.

Pañatantra (pān.cha.tān'tra). See Panchatantra.

Pančevo (pān'che.vō). [Hungarian, Pancsova.] City in NE Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Serbia, formerly in the prefecture of Belgrade, situated on the Danube NE of Belgrade. The city belonged to Hungary until 1919. Pop. 30,816 (1948).

Panchala (pān.chā'lā). Name of a country and people of ancient India (in the Mahabharata, in the lower Doab; in Manu, near Kanauj; and according to Wilson, "extending N and W from Delhi, from the foot of the Himalayas to the Chambal").

Panchatantra (pān.cha.tān'tra). [Sanskrit, Pañcatantra.] Sanskrit collection of animal fables, folk tales, and other stories, compiled in the 6th century by an Indian scholar for the moral instruction of the young sons of a king. His materials were of Buddhist origin, and of great antiquity. From a Sanskrit original (now lost) came a Pahlavi translation, c531, entitled Kalilag and Dinnag (names of two jacks who are important in the first section). This was translated into Syriac (c570) and into Arabic (c754) as Kalilah and Dinnah. There were two Hebrew translations in the 13th century, either from the Arabic or the Syriac. The fables and tales of both the Panchatantra and Kalilah and Dinnah became known throughout Europe as the Fables of Bidpai (or Pilpay), which is a French translation of the Arabic Kalilah and Dinnah. The great contribution to the study of the Panchatantra is that of the German Sanskrit scholar Theodor Benfey entitled Pantschatantra: Fünf Bücher indischer Fabeln, Märchen, und Erzählungen (2 vols., 1859). In the introduction to this work Benfey traces the migration of the stories themselves through Oriental and European literature; and copious comparative notes for each tale reveal the importance of the Panchatantra to the science of folklore. Benfey remarks one great difference between the fables of this work and those of Aesop. Aesop's animal characters behave according to their traditional natures (the fox is clever and sly and the like) but in the Panchatantra the animals are merely characters without regard to characterization. The presence of the concept of the transmigration of souls in the tales is advanced by Benfey as proof of the Buddhist origin of the whole.

Panchavati (pān.cha.vā'tē). In Hindu mythology and legend, part of the great southern forest near the sources of the Godavari, to which Rama was advised to retire by the sage Agastya.

Panchen Lama (pān'chen lā'mā). b. at Gumbum, near Sining, Chinghai, China, 1936—. In Tibetan religion, the chief spiritual prelate of Tibet, but in actual fact now better described as the second most important spiritual and political leader (the Dalai Lama is first). The present holder of this title, regarded as the seventh reincarnation of a Mahayana Buddhist deity, was enthroned (1941); he subsequently (1949) declared his allegiance to the Communist-led People's Republic of China.

Panches (pān'chās). South American Indian tribe which inhabited the valleys S of Bogotá and E of the Magdalena River in the Colombian highlands. They were the hereditary enemies of the Chibcha state of the Zipa and, at one time, even invaded its domain. They had the reputation of being cannibals. Formerly their language was thought to be of the Chibchan linguistic stock; but today scholars classify the language of the Panches, called Panche, as itself comprising a group (embracing three dialects) of the southeastern branch of the northwestern division of the Cariban family of languages.

Pancho Villa (pān'chō vē'ya). See Villa, Francisco.
Pancoucke (pān.kōk). b. at Lille, France, Nov. 26, 1736; d. at Paris, Dec. 19, 1798. French publisher, translator, and writer. He bought and expanded the circulation of the Mercur de France and founded (1789) the Moniteur Universel.

Pancoucke, Charles Louis Fleury. b. at Paris, Dec. 23, 1780; d. there, July 12, 1844. French publisher, translator, and writer; son of Charles Joseph Pancoucke.

Pancras (pan'krās, pang'-), Saint. [Latin, Pancratius (pan.krā'shus).] fl. late 3rd century A.D. Child martyr at Rome under Diocletian. He was only 14 at the time of his death, and was subsequently regarded as the patron saint of children.

Pancsova (pōn'chō.vō). Hungarian name of Pančevo.
Pandareos (pan.dār'ē.os). In Greek mythology, a native of Miletus who stole the golden dog made by Hephaestus from the temple of Zeus in Crete, and gave it to Tantalus. For denying its possession Tantalus was buried under Mount Sipylus, and Pandareos was slain. His daughters were brought up by Aphrodite.

Pandarus (pan'dā.rus). In Greek legend, a hero among the Trojans during the siege of Troy, leader of the Lycians. The procurer of this name in medieval romance, and presented by Chaucer, Shakespeare, and others, is not the same character.

Pandataria (pan.dā.tār'ia). [Modern name, Ventotene.] In ancient geography, one of what are now the Pontine Islands, in the Mediterranean Sea W of Naples. It was the place of banishment of Julia, Agrippina, and Octavia.

Pandavas (pān'dā.vaz). In Hindu legend, in the Mahabharata, the five sons of Pandu, comprising one of the family factions who fought for the possession of a kingdom whose capital was near what is now Delhi. The most famous of the Pandava princes were the second and third, Bhima, of great size and strength, and Arjuna, the model hero of the epic. They became deified heroes, and the sites of their exploits became sacred spots, but they receive no actual worship today.

Pandects of Justinian (pan'dekts; jus.tin'i.ān). [Also called The Digest.] Collection of Roman civil law made by the emperor Justinian I in the 6th century, containing decisions or judgments of lawyers, to which the emperor gave the force and authority of law. This compilation, the most important of the body of Roman civil law, consists of 50 books.

Pandemos (pan.dē'mos). Surname of Aphrodite, originally alluding to her function as a civic or social goddess, but later referring to her as goddess of earthly or physical love.

Pandharpur (pun'dar.pōr). [Also, Panderpur (-dēr-).] Town in Sholapur district, Bombay, Union of India, ab. 180 mi. SE of the city of Bombay. It has a temple of Vishnu, and is a trading center. 33,329 (1941).

Pandion (pan'di.on). In Greek legend, a king of Athens; father of Proene and Philomela, the two girls who were transformed, respectively, into swallow and nightingale.

Pandit (pun'dit), Vijaya Lakshmi. b. in Kashmir, 1900—. Indian diplomat and administrator; sister of Jawaharlal Nehru and daughter of Pandit Motilal Nehru. She served as the first woman minister (1937) of an Indian state, the United Provinces, was the leader of the Indian Delegation to the United Nations Peace Conference (1945), was Indian ambassador (1947-49) to Russia, and ambassador (1949-51) to the U.S., and was elected to the parliament (1952).

Pandji (pān'jē). Hero prince of a Javanese story cycle which recounts the trials and adventures through which he and his retainers pass while seeking his predestined bride. The Pandji legend has supplied the theme for many Javanese poems and shadow plays.

Pando (pan'dō). Department in NW Bolivia. Capital, Cobija; area, 32,405 sq. mi.; pop. 19,804 (1950).

Pando, José Manuel. b. 1851; d. 1917. Bolivian army officer and political leader. In the revolutionary uprising of January, 1899, he defeated conservative President Fernández Alonso. As president (1899-1904), he averted war with Brazil by the cession of Acre territory (Treaty of Petropolis, Nov. 17, 1903). He also (1904) formally ceded the coastal province of Atacama to Chile, and moved the capital from Sucre to La Paz.

Pando, Manuel de. See Miraflores, Marquis of.

Pandolfo (pan.dōl'fō). Italian form of Pandulf.

Pandora (pan.dō'ra). In Greek mythology, the first woman. She was created by Hephaestus at the command of Zeus in revenge for the theft of fire from heaven by Prometheus. The gods gave her beauty, cunning, and other attributes fitted to bring misfortune to man. She was given to Epimetheus, who accepted the gift in spite of the warnings of Hephaestus. For Pandora carried a box (or jar) which she was forbidden to open. When her curiosity finally won out, however, out flew all the evils of life. Only one thing remained in the box: Hope.

Pandosa (pān.dō'shā). In ancient geography, a place in Bruttium, Italy, near what is now Cosenza. Here Alexander I, king of Epirus, was defeated and slain (326 B.C.) by the Bruttians.

Pandosto, the Triumph of Time (pān.dōs'tō). Romance by Robert Green, published in 1588. The second title is The History of Dorastus and Fawnia; the later editions give this as the title. Shakespeare based his Winter's Tale on this story; the character of Pandosto was the original of Polixenes, king of Bohemia, in Shakespeare's play.

Pandrosos (pān'drō.sos). In Greek mythology, one of the three daughters of Cecrops, mythical first king of Athens. She had a sanctuary at Athens.

Pandu (pān'dō). In Hindu legend, in the Mahabharata, a brother of Dhritarashtra; king of Hastinapura and father of the five Pandavas or Pandu princes.

Pandulf or Pandulph (pān'dul'f). [Italian, Pandolfo.] b. at Rome; d. there, Sept. 16, 1226. Italian cardinal, remembered as a devoted papal servant in England. He was sent (1211) to England by Pope Innocent III to attempt to negotiate the dispute with King John. This failing, John was excommunicated; in 1213 Pandulf returned to England, this time to receive the king's submission and his acceptance of England as a fief of the Pope. Pandulf supported John throughout the trouble with the barons resulting from Magna Carta and, after John's death, although there were several interruptions in his service in England, became virtual ruler of the kingdom during the minority of Henry III, claiming as papal legate a status superior to that of the regent barons. Eventually, Stephen Langton, archbishop of Canterbury, obtained his recall (1221) by the Pope. Pandulf was bishop of Norwich from 1216, but was not consecrated until 1222.

Paneas (pā.nē'as). See Baniyas.

Paneth (pā'nē't), Friedrich Adolf. b. at Vienna, 1887—. German physical and inorganic chemist. The important lead-mirror test for free radicals is based on his work (1929 et seq.). He pioneered in using radioactive elements as indicators to study reaction mechanisms, and discovered the hydrides of bismuth, polonium, tin, and lead.

Panfyorov (pān'fōr'ōf), Fyodor Ivanovich. b. 1896—Russian novelist, short-story writer, and playwright. His major work is a novel in four volumes (1928-37) intended to demonstrate the benefits of collective farming.

Pangan (pāng'ān'). See Semang.

Pangani (pāng.gā'nē). Seaport in E. Africa, on the Indian Ocean coast in Tanganyika. Pop. ab. 3,000.

Pangasinan (pāng'gā.sē.nān'). Province of the Philippine Islands, in W. central Luzon, S. of Lingayen Gulf. It is bounded on the N. by Lingayen Gulf and La Union, Mountain, and Nueva Vizcaya provinces, on the E. by Nueva Ecija, on the S. by Tarlac and Zambales provinces, and on the W. by the South China Sea. The Agno, Tarlac, and Rosales rivers all flow through the province. Lingayen, an important port of the Philippines, is the capital. Other important towns are San Carlos and Dagupan. Area, 2,021 sq. mi.; pop. 920,491 (1948).

Pangim (pān'zhēn'). See Nova Góa.

Pangloss (pān'glos). Doctor. In Voltaire's Candide, an obstinately optimistic philosopher, the tutor of Candide. His favorite maxim is that "all is for the best in this best of possible worlds."

Pangloss, Doctor. In George Colman the younger's play The Heir-at-Law, a pedantic but gay and amusing prig, the tutor of Dick Dowland.

Pango-Pango (pāng'ō.pāng'ō, pāng'gō.pāng'gō, pāng'gō.pāng'gō). See Pago Pago.

Pangu (pāng'gō). See Pangu.

Pangwe (pāng'gwā). [Also: Fan, Fang, MPangwe, Pahouin, Pangoue.] Bantu-speaking people of SW Cameroon, Rio Muni, and the N. part of the province of Gabon in French Equatorial Africa. They inhabit a large area between the Ogooué and Sanaga rivers and inland from the coast to the Iwido River, a branch of the Ogooué. Their population is estimated at ab. 800,000 (based on I. Dugast, Inventaire ethnique du Sud-Cameroun, 1949). They comprise the Fang, Eton, Bulu, Ewondo, Bene-Mwele, Mvwi, Ntumu, Okak, Mokuk, and other related subgroups. They have some 300 exogamous patrilineal clans, which form the largest political units, while wealthier males serve as village headmen. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal crops are cassava in the S. and plantain in the N.

"Panhandle State." Nickname of West Virginia.

Panhellenius (pān.he.lē'nī.us). In Greek mythology, a surname of Zeus, in reference to his jurisdiction over all Greece.

Pani (pō.nē'). See Pawnee.

Panic. Verse play by Archibald MacLeish, produced and published in 1935.

Panikita (pā.nē.kē'tī). See Panikita.

Panikkar (pā'nēk.kār), Kavalam Madava. b. 1895—. Indian educator, editor, and public administrator, known for his analysis of Indian foreign policy and of the relations between the princely states and the government of India. He was permanent secretary to the chamber of princes (1931 et seq.), foreign minister of Patiala (1933-39), foreign minister of Bikaner (1944-47), and ambassador to China (1948-52). He is the founder and editor of the Hindustan Times. Author of Federal India (1930) and Caste and Democracy (1945). On the problem of Indian foreign policy, he has written The Future of South East Asia (1943) and India and the Indian Ocean (1945).

Panini (pā'nī.nē). Sanskrit grammarian. He is said to have been born at Shalatura in the Gandhara country (in or near what is now Kandahar), NW of Attock on the Indus, and to have lived some time (two to four centuries) before the Christian era. His grammar consists of eight lectures, each divided into four chapters, and each of these into a number of sūtras or aphorisms, the whole number of these being 3,996 or 3,997. It describes, with the minutest detail, every inflection, derivation, composition, and every syntactic usage of its author's speech. To attain greater conciseness an arbitrary symbolical language is coined, the key to which must be mastered in order to make the rules intelligible. The first adhyaya or lecture explains the technical terms and their use. The whole work is, in fact, a sort of grammatical algebra. It is one of the greatest monuments of human intelligence, one of the earliest descriptions of a language, based not on theory but on observation. It has been of great influence on modern West European descriptive linguistics.

Panionia (pān'ō'nī.a). In ancient Greece, a festival convening all Ionians for the worship of Poseidon and the discussion of civil problems.

Panipat (pā'nī.put). [Also, Paniput.] Town in Punjab, Union of India, ab. 56 mi. N. of Delhi. Here, in 1526, a victory was gained by Baber, the Mogul conqueror, over the sultan of Delhi, which laid the foundation of the Mogul Empire; here, in 1556, a victory was gained by Akbar; and here, in January, 1761, the Afghans under Ahmed Shah Durrani defeated the Marhattas and broke their power. 37,837 (1941).

Paniquita (pā.nē.kē'tī). [Also, Panikita.] Dialect of the Paez branch of the inter-Andine division of the Chibchan linguistic stock, once fairly widely spoken in the S. highlands of Colombia. It still survives in a region of the W. slopes of the Cordillera Central. In the 19th century Paniquita was proposed as a linguistic stock in itself to embrace the languages of the Panches, Pijao, and Patagorons, all of which are now classified as Cariban.

Panixer Pass (pā'nīk.s'r). Mountain pass on the border of the cantons of Glarus and Graubünden, Switzerland. It was the scene of the retreat of Suworov's army in October, 1799. Elevation, ab. 7,900 ft.

Panizzi (pā.nēz'ē), Sir Anthony. b. at Brescello, Modena, Italy, Sept. 16, 1797; d. at London, April 8, 1879. British librarian and bibliographer, chief librarian (1856-66) of the British Museum. Implicated in a revolutionary attempt at Modena in 1821, he fled to England in 1823. He was made professor of Italian in University College, London, in 1828, and in 1831 was appointed assistant librarian in the British Museum. In 1837 he became keeper of the printed books, and devised the catalogue. He was made principal librarian in 1856. His construction of the great reading room from his design was finished in 1857. He retired in June, 1866. He was active throughout his life in the cause of a united and independent India.

Panjab (pun'jāb). See Punjab.

Panjabi or Punjabi (pun.jā'lē). Indo-European language spoken by over 13 million people in India, mainly in the Panjab.

Panjiandrum (pan.jan'drum), Grand. See Grand Panjiandrum.

Panjim (puñ.zhēn'). See Nova Gôa.

Panjinad (pun.jinād'). See Stutje.

Pankhurst (pank'hurst), Dame Christabel. b. 1880—. English woman suffrage leader; daughter of Emmeline Pankhurst.

Pankhurst, Emmeline. [Maiden name, Goulden.] b. at Manchester, England, July 14, 1858; d. June 14, 1928. English leader of the militant movement for woman suffrage. She was educated at the École Normale in Paris, and in 1879 married Richard Marsden Pankhurst (d. 1898), a barrister and worker for woman suffrage. In 1903, after failing to obtain support from the regular political parties, she was a founder of the National Women's Social and Political Union, which originated the militant policy. Under her leadership, persuasion by violent action against the House of Commons, window-breaking, and arson were attempted. She was convicted of conspiracy, inciting to violence, and inciting to commit felony, made use several times of the hunger strike while in prison, and was released from prison. The violence was abandoned after the start of World War I, women were granted the vote in 1918.

Pankhurst, Estelle Sylvia. b. at Manchester, England, May 5, 1882—. English feminist and propagandist; daughter of Emmeline Pankhurst. She was founder (1914) of the Workers' Dreadnought, and was frequently imprisoned and fined for her militant suffragist activities. Author of The Suffragette (1912), Save the Mothers (1932), The Life of Emmeline Pankhurst (1935), and Education in Ethiopia (1946).

P'an Ku (pān'gō'). In Chinese mythological cosmology, the first of all living beings; he came from the void and assisted in the creation of the world. He is often portrayed as brandishing a huge axe with which he fashioned the earth.

Panmure (pan'mūr), 2nd Baron. A title of Ramsay, Fox Maule.

Panna (pun'ā). [Also, Punnah.] Former state in India, now incorporated into Vindhya Pradesh, Union of India, situated ab. 130 mi. S of Cawnpore. Area, 2,580 sq. mi.; pop. 231,170 (1941).

Pannekoek (pān'e.kōk), Antonie. b. in Gelderland, Netherlands, Jan. 2, 1873—. Dutch astrophysicist. He is known for his calculations of probable physical conditions in the solar atmosphere.

Pannonhalma (pōn'nōn.hōl'mō'). Village in W Hungary, between Veszprém and Győr. It contains a Benedictine abbey and cathedral church, the oldest and one of the most revered of Hungarian ecclesiastical establishments. The abbey was founded by Prince Geza, the father of Stephen I, in 966. The cathedral, in Romanesque and Gothic style, dates mainly from the 13th century, the monastery buildings from the 17th and 18th centuries.

Pannonia (pa.nō'n.i.a). In ancient geography, a Roman province, bounded by the Danube on the N and E, Moesia and Illyricum on the S, and Noricum on the W. It was made a Roman province by Tiberius, and divided by Trajan into Upper Pannonia in the W and Lower Pannonia in the E.

Pannwitz (pān'vits), Rudolf. b. at Crossen on the Oder, Germany, May 27, 1881—. German poet and philosopher, a disciple of Otto zur Linde, Stefan George, and Nietzsche. He was one of the Charon poets (he and zur Linde founded the magazine). He dedicated his five dramas, called collectively Dionysische Tragödien (1913), to Nietzsche, of whom his preachments, Die Krisis der europäischen Kultur (1917) and Die Deutsche Lehre (1919), are also reminiscent.

Panoan (pi'nō.ān). Linguistic stock comprised of a number of languages and dialects spoken by Indian tribes in the lowlands of Peru, mainly in the Ucayali River valley. The culture of the tribes of this language family is basically similar to that of other tribes inhabiting the tropical forests of South America.

Panompeng (pa.nōm'pēng'). See Pnompenh.

Panopolis (pa.nop'ō.lis). An ancient name of Akhimm.

Panoptes (pan.op'tēz). In Greek legend, an epithet, meaning "all eyes," of the hundred-eyed giant, Argus.

Panormus (pa.nōr'mus). Latin name of Palermo.

Panova (pa'nō.va), Vera. Russian novelist, a member of the young generation of Soviet writers. One of her novels, which has to do with life on a Soviet hospital train in World War II, has been published in English under the title The Train (1948).

Pansa (pan'sa), Gaius (or Caius) Vibius. d. 43 B.C. Roman consul in 43 B.C., the colleague of Hirtius.

Panshan (pān'shān'). Hilly area in NW China, in SW Kansu province, in the high plateau region W of the Tao River valley, site of a huge neolithic cemetery. Much fine prehistoric pottery was recovered there.

Pansy (pan'zi). Pseudonym of Alden, Isabella MacDonald.

Pant (pant). A name of the Blackwater, England, in its upper course.

Pan Tadeusz (pān' tā.de'ōsh). Epic poem (1834) of village life in old Lithuania, by Adam Mickiewicz.

Pantaenus (pan.tē'nus). fl. at the end of the 2nd century A.D. Leader of the catechetical school in Alexandria, and teacher of Clement of Alexandria.

Pantagoros (pān.tā.gō'rōz). See Patangoros.

Pantagruel (pan.tag'rō.el, French, pān.tā.grü.el). King of the Dipsodes and son of Gargantua, in François Rabelais's History of Gargantua and Pantagruel.

Pantaleon (pan.tā.lē.on), Saint. d. 303. Roman physician. Reputedly the son of a pagan father and Christian mother, he was instructed in Christianity but abandoned its practice, becoming physician to the emperor Maximianus. Reconverted to Christianity, he was denounced to Diocletian by his colleagues and finally beheaded.

Pantaleón (pān.tā.lē.ōn), Jacques. Original name of Pope Urban IV.

Pantaleoni (pān'tā.lē.ō'nē), Maffeo. b. at Frascatti, Italy, July 2, 1857; d. at Milan, Italy, Oct. 29, 1921. Italian economist, a member of the so-called mathematical school of economics. He became a member of the Fascist Party. He served as professor at Venice, Bari, Naples, Geneva, Pavia, and Rome. His main work was Principii d'economia pura (1889). He also wrote Bolscevismo italiano (1922).

Pantaloon (pan.ta.lōn'). [French, Pantalon (pān.tā.lōn'); Italian, Pantalone (pān.tā.lō'nā).] Traditional character from Italian folk comedy. He was a stock character in Italian comedy by the middle of the 16th century. He usually appears as a bespectacled, beslipped old man, wearing tight trousers which are a combination of pants and stockings. He plays a buffoon part and is the butt of many jokes.

Pantelleria (pān'tel.lē.rē'ā). [Also: Pantalària (pān'tā.lā.rē'ā), Pantellaria (pān'tel.lā.rē'ā); ancient name, Cosyra, Cossura, Cossyra.] Island in the Mediterranean Sea, between Tunisia and the W tip of Sicily, belonging to the province of Trapani, Italy. The surface is rocky and volcanic. It was used by the Romans as a place of banishment. Heavily fortified during the Fascist regime as a counter-fortress to British Malta, it was subjected to intense naval and air attack by the Allies in World War II; it surrendered on June 11, 1943. Area, ab. 58 sq. mi.; pop. 9,806 (1936).

Pantelleria. [Also: Pantalària, Pantellaria.] Chief town of the Italian island of Pantelleria, situated on the NW coast. Pop. ab. 3,800 (1936).

Panthéon (pan'thē.on, -on). Building at Rome, now the Church of Santa Maria Rotonda, completed by Agrippa in 27 B.C., and consecrated originally to the "divine ancestors" of the Julian family. The lighting of the interior is solely from an open circle, 28 ft. in diameter, at the summit of the dome. The effect is unique and highly imposing. The construction is of concrete, lightly faced with brick, and encrusted (now almost exclusively in the interior) with marble. The dome is practically solid concrete, the familiar system of inset arches being merely one brick deep, and having served as a scaffolding during the erection. Raphael is buried in the Pantheon. It has been proved that the temple never was connected with the baths of Agrippa, as was once believed to have been the case.

Panthéon (pān.tā.ōn). Large classical building at Paris, in the form of a Greek cross 276 by 370 ft., with a central dome 272 ft. high and 75 in diameter. The Corinthian columns of the entrance portico are 81 ft. high. The building was designed by J. G. Soufflot. The pediment is filled with a sculptured group, by David d'Angers, representing France distributing laurels to her deserving children. Its walls are in large part covered with paintings, including a series by Puvis de Chavannes, of events in French history. Clovis built on this spot the Church of Saint Peter and Saint Paul, where he was buried, as were afterward Sainte Clotilde and Sainte Geneviève, from whom it took its later name. This original church was probably destroyed by the Normans in the 9th century. The monks of Saint Victor established their cloister here in 1148, in the papacy of Eugenius III. Their Romanesque church was replaced by a late-Gothic building after 1489. In 1764 the present church was begun under Louis XV, and in 1791 was first set apart for its present purpose (that of a mausoleum for famous Frenchmen), though it has since at times been used as a church.

Pantheon of the British. Westminster Abbey.

Panticapaeum (pan'ti.kā.pē.um). Ancient name of Kerch.

Pantin (pān.tān). Town in N France, in the department of Seine: a northeastern industrial suburb of Paris. It has railroad freight yards and repair shops, and industries including tobacco, electrical equipment, chemical, tanning, and metalworking plants. 36,242 (1946).

Pantomime. Novel by G. B. Stern, published in 1914.

Pánuco (pā'nō.kō). Name given by the Spanish conquerors of Mexico to a region on the Gulf Coast, near the Pánuco River (N Veracruz and S Tamaulipas). It was partly conquered by Hernando Cortés in 1522, and in 1526 was assigned to Nuño de Guzmán. Somewhat later it was limited to 50 Spanish leagues in length and breadth, though Guzmán claimed that it extended westward to the Pacific.

Pánuco River. River in E central Mexico, formed by the confluence of the Moctezuma and Santa María rivers, and flowing E to the Gulf of Mexico at Tampico. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Panurge (pa.nérj; French, pā.nūrzh). Character in François Rabelais's History of Gargantua and Pantagruel. He is a companion whom Pantagruel picks up at Paris. A roguish libertine, he cannot decide whether to marry, and the investigation of the entire problem of marriage occupies entertainingly the latter part of Rabelais's work.

Panyasis (pan.i.ā'sis, pa.ni'ā.sis). fl. in the first half of the 5th century B.C. Greek poet of Halicarnassus; a relative of Herodotus.

Panyushkin (pā.nyōsh'kin), Aleksandr Semenovich. b. at Kuibyshev, Russia, 1905—. Russian diplomat. He entered the foreign ministry in 1938 and was Russian envoy to Chungking, provisional seat of the Chinese government, to conclude a commercial treaty. He served as ambassador to China (1939-44), was recalled and served in the foreign office (1945-47), and was ambassador to the U.S. (1947-52), serving on the Allied Far Eastern Commission. In 1952 he was sent as ambassador to China and also became a member of the central committee of the Communist Party of the U.S.S.R.

Panza (pan'zā; Spanish, pān.thā), Sanchó. See Sanchó Panza.

Panzaleo (pān.sā.lā'ō). [Also: Kito, Quito.] South American Indian tribe, now extinct, which once occupied the site of Quito, Ecuador, and the surrounding area. The language of this tribe was replaced by Quechua during Inca and colonial times; hence it is not known with certainty to which linguistic family it belonged.

Panzer (pān'tsér), Friedrich. b. at Asch (Aš), in Bohemia, Sept. 4, 1870—. German literary historian, especially in the field of legends and sagas. He published Hilde-Gudrun (1901), Märchen, Sage und Dichtung (1905), and two volumes of Studien zur germanischen Sagen-geschichte (1910 et seq.).

Panzer, Georg Wolfgang. b. at Sulzbach, Germany, March 16, 1729; d. at Nuremberg, Germany, July 9, 1804.

German clergyman and bibliographer, noted for researches in the history of the art of printing.

Paola (pā'ō.lā). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Cosenza, situated on the W coast of Calabria, ab. 13 mi. NW of Cosenza. The nearby convent and church of San Francesco di Paola were undamaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 13,918 (1936); of town, 7,021 (1936).

Paola (pā'ō.lā). City in E Kansas, county seat of Miami County. 3,972 (1950).

Paoli (pā'ō.li). Town in S Indiana, county seat of Orange County; agricultural trading center. 2,575 (1950).

Paoli. Unincorporated community in SE Pennsylvania, in Chester County, near Philadelphia: residential community; railroad yards. Here on Sept. 20, 1777, the Americans under Anthony Wayne were surprised and defeated by the British. 3,029 (1950).

Paoli (pā'ō.lē), Cesare. b. at Florence, Italy, Nov. 10, 1840; d. there, Jan. 20, 1902. Italian historian and paleographer.

Paoli, Pasquale. b. at Morosaglia, in Corsica, 1725; d. near London, Feb. 5, 1807. Corsican patriot and general. He became generalissimo and head of the government in rebellion against the Genoese in 1755 and drove the Genoese from the island. In 1768 Genoa, giving up its attempts to conquer the island, sold it to France; and in 1769 Paoli was defeated by superior French forces and fled to England. There he lived for 20 years, a friend among others of Boswell and Johnson. In 1789 he went to France and in 1790 returned to Corsica as a lieutenant general of the revolutionary government. The French methods soon caused him to rebel. He did not get the support he expected from England and when Corsica was subdued and became a department of France, he again went into exile in England.

Paolo (pā'ō.lō), Fra. See Sarpi, Paolo.

Paolo and Francesca (frān.chās'kā). Drama by Stephen Phillips, published in 1899. The theme, the love of Paolo Malatesta for his elder brother's wife, Francesca, is a favorite one in literature and has been used by many writers from Dante onward. It inspired a tone poem by Tchaikowsky.

Paolo Scolari (skō.lā.rē). Original name of Pope Clement III.

Paoting (bou'ŋdŋ). [Also: Paotingfu (bou'ŋdŋ'fō); former name, Tsingyuan.] City in E China, the capital of the province of Hopei, ab. 90 mi. SW of Peiping: important trading center and railroad city. It is the seat of a university. 130,000 (1947).

Paotow (bou'tō). [Also: Paotou, Paotowchen (bou'tō'chen').] City in N China, in the province of Suiyuan, on the Hwang Ho (Yellow River), just N of the Ordos desert: railroad terminus and important trading center between China and Mongolia. 53,228 (1946).

Pápa (pā'pō). City in W Hungary, S of Győr. It has a chateau built in the baroque style for Count Charles Esterházy in 1783. Pop. 21,846 (1948).

Papa (pā'pā). In C and E Polynesia, the goddess of earth and the underworld, and mother of gods, islands, and men. The name is taken from the Polynesian word meaning "a flat surface." In most versions, Papa's husband is Atea ("upper space"), but this varies locally. In the creation stories of some islands, particularly atolls, Papa herself is called Fakahotu ("to-begin-to-form") or Atanua ("dawn").

Papadimitriopoulos (pā'pā.thi'yā'mān.dō'pō.lōs), Ioannis. See Moréas, Jean.

Papago (pap'a.gō, pā'pā.gō). North American Indian tribe, formerly located in N Sonora, Mexico, and in S Arizona, but now confined to a reservation in Arizona. The language is of the Piman group of the Uto-Aztecan family. The Papago, along with the Pima, are considered by scholars in the field to be survivors into the historic period of the Hohokam archaeological culture which flourished and died before the Spanish conquest.

Papagos (pā.pā.gōs), Alexander. b. at Athens, 1883—. Greek general. He was commander in chief of the Greek forces (1940-41) in the war with Italy and Germany, and resigned on the day the Germans entered Athens. He was arrested (1941) by the puppet government but was rescued by guerrillas and managed to elude the Axis forces for over a year. In 1943 he was recaptured and remained in German and Italian prison camps until he was liberated by U.S. troops in 1945. In 1949 he was recalled to service again as commander in chief of Greek forces to wind up the war against the rebels. In 1951 he formed the Greek Rally, a new political party, which was victorious in the September elections; Papagos, however, refused to accept the premiership, since his party did not have a majority and he did not want a coalition government. He became premier in 1952.

Papaloápan (pā'pā.lō.ā'pām). River in SE Mexico flowing E to the Gulf of Mexico in the states of Oaxaca and Veracruz. Length (to headwaters), ab. 300 mi.

Papal States. See States of the Church.

Papal Tyranny in the Reign of King John. Colley Cibber's alteration of Shakespeare's King John, produced in 1745.

Papal Zouaves (zō.āvz'). See Zouaves, Papal.

Papanazes (pā.pā.nā'zāz). South American Indians found on the coast of Brazil at the time of the Portuguese conquest. Little is known of them. Their language belonged to the Tupi-Guarani linguistic stock.

Papandreou (pā.pān.drē'ō). Demetrios. Original name of Damaskinos, Archbishop.

Papandreou, George. b. at Patras, Greece, 1888—. Greek statesman. At first a Venizelist, in 1935 he founded the Democratic-Socialist Party, of which he is still the leader. Exiled (1936-40) by Ioannes Metaxas, he was active in the resistance during the Axis occupation, for which he was imprisoned from 1942 to 1944. Escaping to Egypt, he became in 1944 prime minister, minister of foreign affairs, and minister of war in the government-in-exile. He was subsequently minister of interior (1947) and of national economy (1947), and after 1948 leader of the opposition in the Greek parliament. He was minister of the interior (1950), deputy premier (1950), and minister of economic coordination and vice-premier.

Papantla (pā.pān'tlā). [Full name, Papantla de Olarte (dā.ō.lār'tāl).] Town in SE Mexico, in Veracruz state, ab. 112 mi. NW of Veracruz. Near the town there is an ancient pyramidal structure (teocalli), with other ruins. 6,644 (1940).

Papareschi (pā.pā.rās'kē). Gregorio. Original name of Pope Innocent II.

Paparrhigopoulos (pā'pā.rē.gō'pō.lōs). Constantine. b. at Constantinople, 1815; d. at Athens, April 26, 1891. Greek historian. His chief work is History of the Greek People (1860-74).

Pape (pāp). Eric. b. at San Francisco, Oct. 17, 1870; d. Nov. 7, 1938. American painter and illustrator. He designed the monument at Gloucester, Mass., commemorating the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Papeete (pa.pē'tē, pā.pā.ā'tā). [Also, Papēiti (pā.pā.ē'tē).] Seaport and chief town in Tahiti, Society Islands, ab. 2,300 mi. from Honolulu and ab. 3,600 mi. from San Francisco. It is the capital of French Oceania and the seat of the governor, who is responsible to the French high commissioner for the Pacific at Nouméa, New Caledonia. It has a considerable export trade in copra, vanilla, sugar, phosphates, and mother-of-pearl. 12,428 (1946).

Papen (pā'pen). Franz von. b. at Werl, Germany, Oct. 29, 1879—. German politician. He was military attaché (1915) at Washington, where he engaged in espionage and sabotage activities. In 1915 a brief case, forgotten in the New York 6th Avenue Elevated and taken by a U.S. secret service agent, led to the discovery of the extent of some of his activities, and in December the German government was asked to recall him. He served for the rest of World War I with the Turkish army. He became a member of the Center Party in the Prussian diet, serving there from 1921 to 1932, when he was called by President Paul von Hindenburg to form a German ministry. Von Papen succeeded (May 31, 1932) Heinrich Brüning as reichschancellor and appointed to his cabinet a group of conservative Junkers. Although the Nazis were not in the cabinet, von Papen suspended (June, 1932) the prohibition of the appearance of the Nazi storm troopers in the streets and thus made possible the serious riots that led to the suppression of the Socialists in Prussia and caused a series of parliamentary crises. Eventually von Papen and Alfred Hugenberg prevailed upon the senile Hindenburg to make Adolf Hitler chancellor. Von Papen was vice-chancellor in the Hitler cabinet (Jan. 30, 1933, et seq.) and for a time remained as premier of Prussia. In 1934 he was appointed ambassador to Austria, where he supported the Nazi movement that culminated in the resignation of Kurt Schuschnigg, the appointment of Artur von Seyss-Inquart as chancellor, and the Austro-German union (March, 1938). In April, 1939, von Papen was sent as German ambassador to Turkey, serving there until 1944. He was acquitted on the charge of planning aggressive war by the war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, but was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment by a German denazification court, a sentence revoked by a court of review in 1949.

Papenburg (pā'pen.bürk). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, situated on a canal near the Ems River, ab. 57 mi. W of Bremen. It has machine and glass industries, a lumber and livestock trade, and peat works. Founded in 1631, it is one of the oldest of the settlements in the district stretching along the Dutch border, connected with other similar communities by a network of canals. A concentration camp was established here during the Nazi regime. 15,108 (1950).

Paphian Goddess (pā'fian). In ancient Greek religion, Aphrodite, as goddess of sexual love. The term arose from the worship paid her at her cult center at the city of Paphos, in Cyprus.

Paphlagonia (pāf.lā.gō'n.i.a). In ancient geography, a country in Asia Minor, bounded by the Black Sea on the N, Pontus (separated by the Halys) on the E, Galatia on the S, and Bithynia on the W. The country was semi-independent under Persian and Macedonian rule. It passed later to Pontus, and to Rome in 65 B.C.

Paphnutius (pāf.nū'shi.us). Saint. fl. c.300 A.D. Bishop of Thebes, in Egypt. He attended the Council of Nicea (325), where he was much venerated because of his sanctity and the fact that his right eye had been torn out for the faith under the emperor Maximianus.

Paphos (pā'fos). In ancient geography, the name of two cities in Cyprus. Old Paphos was situated near the SW coast. The celebrated temple of Astarte, or Aphrodite, here was built of unburned brick and wood on a stone foundation measuring 164 by 220 ft. The famous image of the goddess was a baetylus (a conical meteoric stone). The temple stood in a large enclosure whose walls were likewise of sun-dried brick on a massive stone foundation. New Paphos was situated on the W coast 8 or 10 mi. NW of Old Paphos. It was a commercial center.

Pa Pia (pā'pē.ā). Medieval name of Pavia, Italy.

Papias (pā'pi.ās). Saint. fl. c.130 A.D. Early Christian writer, bishop of Hierapolis in Phrygia (Asia Minor), and a friend of Polycarp of Smyrna. He was the author of a work, lost except in fragments, Exposition of the Oracles of the Lord.

Papin (pā'pin; French, pā.pān). Denis. b. at Blois, France, Aug. 22, 1647; d. c.1712. French physicist, an assistant to both Christian Huygens and Robert Boyle in their experiments. In 1679 he demonstrated "Papin's digester," a device for softening bones, similar to the pressure cooker, by which he showed that the boiling point of water was raised or lowered in proportion to the steam pressure. For this he invented the safety valve; he invented as well a pump in which the piston was raised by steam. This work laid the foundation for the development of the steam engine. Among his other inventions were a condensing pump, a steam cannon, and a paddle-wheel boat.

Papineau (pā.pē.nō), Louis Joseph. b. at Montreal, Canada, in October, 1786; d. at Montebello, Quebec, Canada, Sept. 23, 1871. French-Canadian politician. He was elected to the legislative assembly of Lower Canada in 1809, was admitted to the bar in 1811, and was chosen speaker of the house in 1815. A vigorous opponent of the union of Upper and Lower Canada and an advocate of provincial rule, he tried constantly to defeat the efforts of the unionists. He was one of the leaders of the French-Canadian insurrection of 1837. He escaped capture, and resided chiefly in France till 1847, when he returned under the general amnesty of 1840. He was afterward a member of the United Parliament until 1854.

Papini (pā.pē'nē), Giovanni. b. at Florence, Italy, Jan. 9, 1881—. Italian philosopher, at first an atheist, later converted to Roman Catholicism. Author of Pragmatismo (1913), Stronature (1916), L'Uon o Carducci (1918), La Storia di Cristo (1921; Eng. trans., 1923), Italia mia (1939), Figure umane (1940), and Lettere di Celestino VI agli uomini (1947).

Papinian (pā.pī'nian). [Full Latin name, Aemilius Papinianus.] Executed by Caracalla, 212 A.D. Roman jurist, praetorian prefect under Septimius Severus. He was one of the five authorities mentioned in the Valentinian law of citations; his advice was preponderant when the others disagreed. Author of Quaestiones (37 books) and Responsa (19 books); he wrote one legal treatise in Greek.

Papicops (pā.pē.ō'kōz). [Also, Papicos.] Tribe of South American Indians of the region surrounding the junction of the Orinoco and Guaviare rivers, SW Venezuela. Their language comprises a group (embracing several dialects) of the northwestern branch of the northern division of the Arawakan family of languages.

Papirius Cursor (pā.pī'rius kēr'sōr, -sōr), Lucius. Roman consul and dictator, general in the second Samnite War. As dictator he won a victory over the Samnites in 309 B.C.

Papirius Cursor, Lucius. Roman consul and general in the third Samnite War (298-290 B.C.).

Pappenheim (pā.pē'nim). Count Gottfried Heinrich zu. b. at Pappenheim, Bavaria, Germany, May 29, 1594; d. at Leipzig, Germany, Nov. 17, 1632. German Imperialist general in the Thirty Years' War. He became chief of the Pappenheimer Regiment in 1623, suppressed the peasant insurrection in Upper Austria in 1626, took part in the storming of Magdeburg and in the battle of Breitenfeld in 1631, and was fatally wounded at Lützen in 1632.

Pappus (pāp'us). fl. about the beginning of the 4th century A.D. Alexandrian geometer. He wrote a mathematical work, the Collection. This work, which has come down only in part, is a summation of the work of his predecessors and contains digests of much lost in the original.

Paps of Jura (jō'ra). See Jura, Paps of.

Papua (pāp'ū.a). See also New Guinea.

Papua, Territory of. [Former name, British New Guinea.] Australian Pacific territory comprising the SE section of the island of New Guinea, bounded on the N by the Australian-mandated territory of New Guinea, on the W by Netherlands New Guinea, and on the S and E by the Coral and Solomon seas. From 1888 to 1906 the area was a British colony, with the costs of administration borne jointly first by three of the Australian colonies and then, after 1901, by the new Commonwealth of Australia. Finally in 1906, after long negotiations, the colony was transferred to Australia and was given the name Territory of Papua. Parts of it were occupied by the Japanese during World War II and in 1945 a provisional administration of Papua-New Guinea was set up to govern Papua and the Australian-mandated territory of New Guinea to the N. Included in the territory are the Louisiade, Trobriand, and d'Entrecasteaux and Woodlark Island groups E and SE of the island. The area is largely undeveloped but it is believed to possess great mineral resources. Two copper fields and a gold mine have already been proved and have been worked to a small degree. Copra and rubber are the chief exports. Government is in the hands of an administrator appointed by the Commonwealth of Australia. Capital, Port Moresby; area, 93,540 sq. mi.; pop. 4,380 non-native, 368,560 indigenous (est. 1950).

Papuan (pāp'ū.an). Name tentatively given to a number of languages spoken in most of New Guinea and a few surrounding islands, including parts of the Solomons. So far as is now known, their principal common characteristic is the negative one that they seem not to belong to the Malayo-Polynesian family. They differ greatly among themselves, and have been relatively little studied, so that further research will probably bring about some reclassification.

Paquebôt "Tenacity" (pāk.bōt tā.nā.sē.tē), Le. Play (1923; Eng. trans., The Steamer Tenacity, 1921) by Charles Villrac.

Paquet (pā.ket'), Alfons. b. at Wiesbaden, Germany, Jan. 26, 1881—. German prose writer and poet. His experiences as a world traveler are reflected in all of his many writings. Lieder und Gesänge (1902) has a background of London; Auf Erden (1906), of America. Kamerad Fleming (1911) is a Parisian novel. He was written of his travels in such other works as Südsibirien und die Nordwest-Mongolei (1909), Li oder Im neuen Osten (1912), Die jüdischen Kolonien in Palästina (1915), Delphische Wanderung (1922), and Der Rhein, eine Reise (1915).

Paquita (pā.kē.tā). See Francisco de Asís, María Fernando.

Pará (pā.rā'). See also Pará River; also Belém, Brazil. Par. State in N Brazil, bordering the Atlantic Ocean, British Guiana, and Surinam (Dutch Guiana); rubber and hardwood forests. Capital, Belém; area, 458,986 sq. mi.; pop. 1,142,846 (1950).

Parabiago (pā.rā.byā.gō). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, between Milan and Legnano: an industrial commune, with cotton textile and other manufactures. Pop. of commune, 12,365 (1936); of town, 8,453 (1936).

Parabosco (pā.rā.bōs.kō), Girolamo. d. at Venice, c.1557. Italian musician and poet.

Parabrahman (pā.rā.brā'man). [Also, Parabrahm (-brām')] In Hinduism, the supreme cosmic principle.

Paracelsus (par.ā.sē'lus). Poem by Robert Browning, published in 1835-36.

Paracelsus, Philippus Aureolus. [Original name, Theophrastus Bombastus von Hohenheim.] b. at Maria-Einsiedeln, Switzerland, Dec. 17, 1493; d. at Salzburg, Austria, Sept. 23, 1541. German-Swiss physician and alchemist. He entered the University of Basel at the age of 16, but left without a degree, and spent many years in travel and intercourse with distinguished scholars. He lectured on medicine at Basel from 1526 to 1528, when he was driven from the city by the medical corporations, whose methods he had severely criticized. He is important in the history of medicine chiefly on account of the impetus which he gave to the development of pharmaceutical chemistry. He was an opponent of the then-current theory that diseases were caused by imbalance of the humors, or body fluids, holding instead that a disease actually had existence and could be fought by specific remedies. Among the drugs he introduced to medical practice were opium, mercury, sulfur, iron, and arsenic. He was also the author of a visionary and theosophic system of philosophy. The first collective edition of his works appeared at Basel in 1589-91. Among the many legends concerning him is that he kept a small demon in the hilt of his sword.

Paraclet (pā.rā.kle). Hamlet near Nogent-sur-Seine, Aube, France. It takes its name from a religious establishment, of which it was formerly the seat, founded in 1123 by Peter Abelard.

Paradise (par'ādis). Unincorporated community in C California. 4,426 (1950).

Paradise. Fresco by Andrea Orcagna, in the Church of Santa Maria Novella, Florence. Christ and the Virgin are enthroned above great companies of apostles, martyrs, saints, and angels. The companion pieces are The Last Judgment and Hell.

Paradise Lost. Epic poem by John Milton, published in 12 books in 1667. The subject is the fall of man. This is his greatest work, and is generally considered the chief epic in the English language and the poem in which blank verse is used with the most majestic and sonorous effect.

Paradise of Dainty Devices. The. Collection of poems compiled by Richard Edwards and printed in 1576. It was very popular, and went through nine or ten editions before 1606.

Paradise of Fools. In medieval cosmography, that section of Limbo reserved for fools who were not responsible for their behavior.

Paradise Regained. Epic poem by John Milton, in four books published in 1671. The subject is the temptation and redemption of man.

Paradiso (pā.rā.dē.zō). Third part of Dante's Divina Commedia.

Paradiso, Gran. See under Graian Alps.

Paragot (par'a.got), Berzelius Nibbidard, Quixotic hero, the "vagabond" in William John Locke's novel The Beloved Vagabond (1906).

Paragould (par'a.gould), City in NE Arkansas, county seat of Greene County; railroad shops, canneries, cold storage plants, cotton gins, and woodworking plants. 9,668 (1950).

Paragua (pá.rá.gwá), River in C Venezuela, flowing NE to the Caroní River. Length, ab. 435 mi.

Paragua, Former name of Palawan province.

Paraguari (pá.rá.gwá.ré), Department in SW Paraguay; agriculture and pottery manufacture. Capital, Paraguari; area, 1,095 sq. mi.; pop. 144,578 (1950).

Paraguari, City in SW Paraguay, capital of Paraguari department; cattle, cotton, and tobacco; distilleries, potteries, and tanneries. Pop. ab. 8,000.

Paraguassú (pá.rá.gwá.só), Indian wife of the first Portuguese settler in the Brazilian province of Bahia. Daughter of the chief of the Tupinamba tribe, she was given in marriage (c1510) to a shipwrecked Portuguese nobleman, Diogo Alvarez Correa. She is said to have been responsible for the submission of her tribe to the Portuguese.

Paraguay (par'a.gwá, -gwí; Spanish, pá.rá.gwí), [Official name, República del Paraguay.] Republic of S central South America, bounded on the NW by Bolivia, on the NE and E by Brazil, and on the SE, S, and SW by Argentina. It is divided for administrative purposes into 16 departments. The president is elected for a term of five years, and with his cabinet, exercises wide executive powers; the unicameral legislature has 56 members. Capital, Asunción; area, 157,048 sq. mi.; pop. 1,405,627 (1950).

Terrain and Climate. Paraguay is entirely a lowland country; the E portion of the country is a land of rolling forested uplands or hills, traversed by numerous river valleys. SW Paraguay is a broad, flat alluvial lowland bordering the Paraguay and Paraná rivers. W of the Paraguay River is the Chaco region, a vast, level, poorly drained lowland which becomes progressively drier in the W (nearer to the Andes). The climate of Paraguay is tropical in character, with very hot, humid summers, and mild, somewhat less humid winters. Because of its interior location, extremes of temperature may be experienced both in summer and winter.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Most of the population is engaged in subsistence farming and livestock raising; cattle are the principal animals raised. Dried and canned beef, and hides are important exports. Forest resources also supply important exports: quebracho, timber and lumber, and yerba-maté. The major commercial crops are cotton, sugar, tobacco, and citrus fruits. Manufactured goods and non-tropical foodstuffs (chiefly wheat) are imported. The chief industries are those concerned with processing products for export: meat-canning, quebracho-extracting, cotton-processing, and sawmilling industries. There are small domestic market industries. Paraguay has been hampered in its commercial development by an interior location; the railroad connecting it with Buenos Aires is 947 mi. long, and the water route to Buenos Aires, on the Paraguay and Paraná rivers, takes three days. Less than one-half of the national territory is effectively occupied, and this is largely E of the Paraguay River; the Chaco region is mostly wilderness.

History. Asunción was founded c1537 by the Spaniards and became an early center for administration and for the spread of missionary activity throughout the Paraná-Plata basin. The Jesuits were particularly active, and many colonies were founded in the 17th and 18th centuries. In 1776 Asunción was replaced as the capital of the viceroyalty by Buenos Aires. After the wars of independence threw off the Spanish yoke in South America, Paraguay became an independent state (1811); it subsequently became involved in disastrous intrigues culminating in a war with the neighboring countries of Brazil, Argentina, and Uruguay (1865-70). The country was so impoverished and devastated by this conflict that it required many decades to recover. Another conflict occurred in 1932-35 between Paraguay and Bolivia over possession of the Chaco; here Paraguay was victorious, and was awarded the greater part of the contested territory.

Culture and Population. The population is estimated to be about half Indian, the remainder being largely of mixed Spanish and Indian origin. There has been some European immigration during the last century, and Paraguay is noted as the site of several religious colonies which sought refuge there. The Roman Catholic religion is the state religion. There is a university at Asunción.

Paraguayan War (par.a.gwá'an). See Triple Alliance, War of the.

Paraguay River. [Also: Paraguaya; Portuguese, Paraguai (pá.rá.gwí).] River of South America, properly the upper portion of the Paraná. It rises in the tableland of W Brazil, flows S, and unites with the Paraná. It flows successively through Brazil, between Brazil and Bolivia, through N Paraguay, separating the Paraguayan Chaco from the main portion, and finally between Paraguay and Argentina. In Brazil it is bordered by the vast swampy region called the Charaas marshes. The principal tributaries are the São Lourenço (receiving the Cuibá) and Taquari on the E, and the Pilcomayo and Vermejo on the W. Length, ab. 1,600 mi.; with the lower Paraná and Plata, 2,680 mi.; navigable to Asunción for large vessels.

Parahiba or Parahyba (pá.rá.é'ba). Variant spellings of Paraíba, the name of a state and two rivers in Brazil; see also João Pessoa, capital of the state of Paraíba.

Parahitinga (pá'rá.é.téng'ga). See under Paraíba River, in SE Brazil.

Paraíba (pá.rá.é'ba). [Also: Parahiba, Parahyba.] State in E Brazil, bounded on the E by the Atlantic Ocean, and on the S by Pernambuco state. Capital, João Pessoa; area, 21,731 sq. mi.; pop. 1,730,784 (1950).

Paraíba River. [Also: Parahiba, Parahyba, Paraíba (or Parahiba or Parahyba) do Norte.] River in the state of Paraíba, NE Brazil, flowing NE to the Atlantic Ocean. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Paraíba River. [Also: Parahiba, Parahyba, Paraíba (or Parahiba or Parahyba) do Sul.] River in SE Brazil, which rises in the state of São Paulo, separates Minas Gerais from Rio de Janeiro state, and flows NE into the Atlantic NE of Rio de Janeiro city. It is also called the Parahitinga in its upper course. Length, 658 mi.

Paraíso (pá.rá.é'só), El. See El Paraíso.

Parallel Lives. Formal title of the chief work of Plutarch, consisting of biographies of 23 Romans and 23 Greeks, arranged in pairs (one Greek and one Roman), and four separate biographies. The arrangement as we have it is probably not as in the original; some biographies have been lost. The comparisons at the end of each pair (some of these are missing) are perhaps not by Plutarch. Various writers, including Shakespeare, have drawn upon Plutarch's work; the translation by Sir Thomas North (1579, 1595, 1603) has been the most influential.

Paramaribo (par.a.mar'ibó). City in N Surinam (Dutch Guiana), on the Surinam River; capital of Surinam; important commerce; exports sugar, rum, molasses, cotton, and bauxite. It was founded by the French c1600. Pop. ab. 78,003 (1950).

Paramats (pá.rá.mats). Buddhist sect founded in Burma at the beginning of the 20th century. The Paramats reject the worship of images and pray only to the Nyan-daw, the godlike wisdom, which abides like a mountain of fire in the heavens, invisible to men and disinterested in human affairs. Buddha is regarded as an incarnation of the Nyan-daw. The Paramats give no alms and say their prayers in the jungle or open fields, not in the pagodas.

Paramatman (pá.rá.mát'man). In Hinduism, the supreme psychic aspect of the universe, paralleling Brahman, the cosmic aspect.

Paramatta (par.a.mat'a). See Paramatta.

Paramé (pá.rá.má). Town in NW France, in the department of Ille-et-Vilaine, on the English Channel immediately E of St-Malo; seaside resort. It suffered some damage in World War II. 6,589 (1946).

Paramino (pá.rá.mi.nó), John Francis. b. at Boston, Dec. 25, 1888—d. American sculptor. His work includes a bust of John Adams in the Hall of Fame at New York University, the Declaration of Independence monument on Boston Common, and the World War I memorial at Yarmouth, Mass. He is the author of Sculpture as a Method of Expression (1945).

Paramount (par'á.məunt). [Former name, Hynes.] Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County, ab. 13 mi. SE of downtown Los Angeles. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban areas; the last official enumeration was 2,965 (1940).

Paramus (pa.ram'us). Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County: residential suburb; truck gardening, 6,268 (1950).

Paramushir (pá'ra.mō.shir). [Also: Poromushir; Japanese, Paramushiro (pá.rā.mō.shē.rō).] One of the larger islands in the N part of the Kurile group, just S of Kamchatka. Formerly under Japanese rule, it became part of the U.S.S.R. in 1945. It has fisheries and a fish-canning industry. During World War II the Japanese naval and air base on the island was bombed several times by Allied planes.

Paran (pá'ran, pá'r'an). In Biblical geography, a wilderness S of Palestine and N of Sinai. It was the scene of the wanderings of the Israelites before they entered Canaan.

Paraná (pá.rā.ná'). [Also: Bajada del Paraná; form name, Bajada de Santa Fé.] City in NE Argentina, capital of Entre Ríos province, ab. 240 mi. NW of Buenos Aires: river port, railway terminus, and seat of a university. It exports wheat and beef, and has an active commerce. It was founded in 1730 and was the capital of Argentina from 1853 to 1862. Pop. 84,153 (1947).

Paraná (pá.rā.ná'). State in S Brazil, bounded on the NW by the Paraná River. Capital, Curitiba; area, 77,502 sq. mi.; pop. 2,149,509 (1950).

Paraná, Marquis of. Title of Carneiro Leão, Honório Hermeto.

Paranaguá (pá'ra.na.gwá'). Chief seaport in the state of Paraná, in SE Brazil: maté, wood products, coffee, bananas, maize, potatoes, and earthenware. 16,046 (1950).

Paranaguá, Marquis of. Title of Villela Barboza, Francisco.

Paranaíba (pá'ra.na.ē'ba). [Also: Paranahiba, Paranahyba.] River in SE Brazil, one of the chief headstreams flowing SE to the Paraná. It forms part of the boundary between the states of Goiás and Minas Gerais. Length, ab. 530 mi.

Parapanema (pá'ra.na.pa.ná'ma). [Also: Parapanapema (pá'ra.na.pa.ná'mé).] River in SE Brazil, between the states of São Paulo and Paraná, flowing W to the Paraná River. Length, ab. 470 mi.

Paraná River (pá.rā.ná', pá.rā.ná'). River of South America, flowing into the Plata, which forms the estuary of the Paraná and Uruguay. It may be divided physically into the Upper and Lower Paraná. The latter is properly a continuation of the Paraguay, with a general southerly course, entirely in Argentina, and its principal W affluent is the Salado. The Paraná is formed by the junction of the Rio Grande and Paranaíba in SE Brazil. It receives several large Brazilian rivers (the Tietê, Parapanema, and Ivaí), flows S between Brazil and Paraguay, turns W between Paraguay and Argentina, and by its junction with the Paraguay forms the Lower Paraná. The C part is obstructed by rapids and falls, the highest being the Guayrá Falls or Sete Quedas. Length of the Upper Paraná, ab. 1,200 mi. (or, with the Parapanema, 1,730 mi.); navigable to the rapids (ab. 150 mi.). Length of the Lower Paraná, 850 mi. (or, with the Plata, 1,080 mi.); entirely navigable. Total length, ab. 2,800 mi.

Pará River (pa.rá'). River in NE Brazil, physically the estuary of the Tocantins, but receiving a large amount of water from the Amazon through a network of narrow channels on the S side of the island of Marajó. It is therefore commonly called one of the mouths of the Amazon. Width, where it enters the Atlantic, 40 mi.; length, ab. 200 mi.

Parashurama (pá'ra.shō.rā'ma). In Hindu mythology, the first of the three Ramas, and the sixth avatar or incarnation of Vishnu. Literally, the word means "Rama with the ax." Vishnu appeared in this incarnation to repress the tyranny of the Kshatriyas, or military caste. He typifies the Brahmins in their contests with the Kshatriya. In the Mahabharata he instructs Arjuna in the use of arms, fights against his enemy Bhishma, and attends a war council of the Kauravas. In the Ramayana, Parashurama, aggrieved because Ramachandra (the seventh avatar) had broken the bow of Shiva, challenges him to a trial of strength, and is defeated by him.

Parasitaster, or the Fawn (par'á.sit.as'tér). Play by John Marston, acted (c1604) at Blackfriars, London, and printed in 1606.

Paravilhanas (pá.rā.vē.yā'naz). [Also, Paraviyanas.] Tribe of South American Indians of Brazil, located in the region of the upper Rio Branco. They are now almost extinct. Their language is one of 16 related languages belonging to the Koraima group of the central branch of the northern division of the Cariban family of languages.

Paray-le-Monial (pá.rā.le.mo.nyāl). Town in C France, in the department of Saône-et-Loire, ab. 33 mi. NW of Mâcon. It is noted as a place of pilgrimage, having been the home of the nun Marguerite Marie Aloiue who testified (1653) to visions concerning the Sacred Heart. Pop. 7,770 (1946).

Parcae (pár'sē). Three Fates of Roman mythology. Originally there was one (named Parca), a birth goddess who decided the destiny of the newborn. She was early equated with the Greek Moirae, and thus the concept became tripartite.

Parc des Laurotes (pärk dā lō.rānt.tēd'). See Laurotes, Parc des.

Parcel dos Abrohos (par.sél' dōs ā.brō'lyōs). See Abrohos.

Parchim (pär'chīm). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, on the Elde River ab. 24 mi. SE of Schwerin: livestock, vegetable, grain, and lumber markets. 19,448 (1946).

Pardo (pär'dō), Manuel. b. at Lima, Peru, Aug. 12, 1834; assassinated there, Nov. 16, 1878. Peruvian statesman; father of José Pardo y Barreda. He was a banker, and was minister of the treasury (1866-68) under José Balta. From Aug. 2, 1872, to Aug. 2, 1876, he was president of Peru, the first civilian to attain this position. During his administration Peru and Bolivia signed a mutual defense pact (Treaty of Lima, 1873), which later involved Peru in the War of the Pacific.

Pardo Bazán de Quiroga (pär'dō.bā.thān' dā kē.rō'gā), Emilia. b. in Galicia, Spain, 1852; d. at Madrid, May 12, 1921. Spanish novelist, short-story writer, and critic. She introduced the naturalism of Zola into Spain with the publication of her essay La Cuestión palpitante, but defended a modified naturalism or Spanish realism which is best exemplified in her regional novels, Los Pazos de Ulloa, La Madre naturaleza, La Tribuna, Insolación, and Morriña. Generally considered to be the greatest Spanish woman writer of modern times, she was gifted with a keen critical sense expressed so aggressively that it involved her repeatedly in heated controversies.

Pardoe (pär'dō), Julia. b. at Beverley, Yorkshire, England, 1806; d. Nov. 26, 1862. English historical and miscellaneous writer.

Pardon de Ploërmel (pär.dōn dē plo.er.mel), Le. French title of Dinorah.

Pardoner's Tale, The. One of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, an exemplum on avarice. The plot is found in ancient Eastern tales.

Pardo y Barreda (pär'dō ē bār.rā'thā), José. b. Feb. 24, 1864; d. a Lima, Peru, Aug. 4, 1947. Peruvian politician, president (1904-08, 1915-19) of Peru; son of Manuel Pardo.

Pardubice (pär'dō.bi.tse). Kraj (region) of Czechoslovakia, in E Bohemia. Capital, Pardubice; area, ab. 1,633 sq. mi.; pop. 422,950 (1947).

Pardubice. [German, Pardubitz (pär'dō.bits).] City in Czechoslovakia, capital of the kraj (region) of Pardubice, in E Bohemia, on the Labe (Elbe) River, at the point where it turns westward, ab. 60 mi. E of Prague. It has a number of old buildings, among them a church from the 13th-16th centuries and the former imperial castle. The city has metal, paper, shoe, and sugar manufactures, breweries, flour and lumber mills, and a petroleum refinery. Pop., including suburbs, 44,337 (1947).

Paré (pá.rā), Ambroise. b. at Laval, Mayenne, France, c1517; d. at Paris, Dec. 22, 1590. French surgeon, the founder of scientific surgery in France. He was an army surgeon and royal physician of Henry II, Francis II,

Charles IX, and Henry III. He introduced improvements in the treatment of gunshot wounds and the use of ligatures, among others, eliminating thereby the wholesale use of cauterization of wounds to seal off blood vessels. His works were published in 1561.

Parecí (pá.rá.sé'). See Parecí.
Parecis (pá.re.sés'), Campos dos. See Campos dos Parecis.

Parecis, Serra dos. Name given to the SW edge of the Brazilian plateau (Campos dos Parecis), in W Brazil, where it faces the Guaporé River.

Paredes (pá.rá.nás), Count of. A title of Cerda, Tomás Antonio Manrique de la.

Paredes, José Gregorio. b. at Lima, Peru, 1779; d. there, Dec. 16, 1839. Peruvian mathematician, best known for his Almanacs (1810-39).

Paredes, Mariano. b. c1800; d. at Granada, Nicaragua, Dec. 2, 1856. Guatemalan general and politician, president of Guatemala (Jan. 1, 1849-Jan. 1, 1852).

Paredes y Arrillaga (pá.rá.nás ē ār.rē.yá'gá), Mariano. b. at Mexico City, Jan. 6, 1797; d. there, in September, 1849. Mexican general and politician. He led the revolution (1845) against José Joaquín Herrera, and after the overthrow of the latter was elected president ad interim, Jan. 3, 1846, serving until July 28, when he was forced to resign. During this period the war with the U.S. began; the republic was practically in a condition of anarchy. He became an exile in 1847.

Paraja (pá.rē'ná), Juan de. b. at Seville, Spain, c1606; d. at Madrid, 1670. Spanish painter, a pupil and originally a slave of Velásquez. He was most successful in portraits. Velásquez freed him, but he remained in his service. The portrait of him by Velásquez represents a mulatto.

Parenis (pá.rē.néz'). [Also, Parenas (-náz').] Tribe of South American Indians of Venezuela, located on the Orinoco River. Their language belongs to the Orinoco group of the northern Amazon division of the Arawanak family of languages.

Parente (pá.ren'tá), Bento Maciel. See Maciel Parente, Bento.

Parentintins (pá'ren.tēn.tēnz'). [Also, Cawahib.] Tribe of South American Indians of the Amazon valley, since 1922 located in the Madeira River region. They are remnants of one of the six tribes into which the old Cawahib people split up in the 19th century, probably under pressure from their hostile Mundurucu neighbors. They have always been reported as a fierce people, living by hunting, fishing, and pillaging. They call themselves Cawahib (meaning "wasp"); but they are now commonly designated as Parentintin (meaning "fetid"), the name given them by their enemies. Their language, called Parentintin, is a pure Tupi language, belonging to the Cawahib group of the Tapajoz division of the southern Amazon branch of the Tupi family of languages.

Parentucelli (pá'ren.tó.chel'lé), Tommasso. Original name of Pope Nicholas V.

Parépa-Rosa (pa.rá'pá.ró'za), Madame Euphrosyne. [Maiden name, Parépa de Boyescu.] b. at Edinburgh, May 7, 1836; d. at London, Jan. 21, 1874. English soprano singer in oratorio and opera.

Pares (párz), Sir Bernard. b. in Surrey, England, March 1, 1867; d. at New York, April 17, 1949. English writer and lecturer, a specialist in Russian studies. He first visited Russia in 1897, studying the language and attending lectures at the University of Moscow until, a couple of years later, that institution was closed by the government as an aftermath of political demonstrations by its students. Pares returned to England, but visited Russia for several months in 1904 and every year thereafter through 1914. He reported the proceedings of the first Duma in 1906 for London newspapers, and in 1907 published Russia and Reform. In 1909 he arranged a visit to England by members of the third Duma, and in 1912 headed a party of English parliamentary, military, naval, business, and religious leaders who visited Russia. On his initiative a School of Russian Studies was established at the University of Liverpool in 1907, of which he was secretary until 1917; he also held the chair of professor of Russian history, language, and literature at that university (1908-17) and a like professorship at the University of London (1919-36). During World War I he was for a time a British military observer with the Russian army; after the abdication of the Czar he favored the provisional government, denounced Lenin and other Bolsheviks as German agents, undertook a mission to Admiral Kolchak, and after that counterrevolutionary leader's defeat, was barred from Russia. He had been knighted before setting out to join Kolchak in 1919. In 1922 he established the School of Slavonic and East European Studies, which he directed until 1926. In 1936 the Soviet authorities permitted him to visit that country, and in his book Moscow Admits a Critic (1936) he advocated a friendly view of the Soviet regime; he was, however, vehemently attacked in the government-controlled press because he wrote that the leaders of that country were no longer promoting communism. In 1943, during World War II, he advanced the theory, later widely adopted, that Russian nationalism, rather than world revolution, dominated Soviet policy. Lecturing in the U.S. and Canada in 1943, he was startled by predictions of a third World War, and said that the British people would not support "such criminal foolishness." Pares's death occurred during a later lecture tour of American colleges. In addition to the books already named, he was the author of Day by Day With the Russian Army (1916), History of Russia (1926), My Russian Memoirs (1931), The Fall of the Russian Monarchy (1939), and Russia and the Peace (1944).

Paressi (pá.rá.sé'). [Also, Parecí.] South American Indian tribe, once numerous but now nearly extinct, which inhabited a considerable area in Mato Grosso, Brazil. The Paressi language belongs to the Arawanak stock and is one of the southernmost representatives of this widespread language family.

Pareto (pá.rá'tō), Vilfredo. b. at Paris, July 15, 1848; d. at Lausanne, Switzerland, Aug. 19, 1923. Italian economist and sociologist. Although educated in mathematics and physical sciences, and with some 20 years experience as a practicing engineer, he turned to economic, political, and sociological considerations later in life to write a systematic theory of mind and society. A member of the so-called mathematical school of economics, he exerted considerable influence on the basic ideas of Fascism. He served as professor (1894 et seq.) at the University of Lausanne. His most important work was Trattato di sociologia generale (2 vols., 1916; Eng. trans., Mind and Society, 4 vols., 1935). Author of Cours d'économie politique (Course on Political Economics, 1896-97), Les Systèmes socialistes (The Socialist Systems, 1902), and Manuale di economia politica (Manual on Political Economics, 1906).

Paria (pá'ryä), Gulf of. [Spanish, Golfo de Paria.] Arm of the Caribbean Sea, between Venezuela and Trinidad. It is said to have been called by Columbus the Gulf of Pearls, as the adjacent coast was called the Pearl Coast. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Pariahs (pá.rí'az, parí'az). Low caste of Hindus in S India. They are lower than the regular castes of the Brahmanical system, by whom they are shunned as unclean, yet superior to some other castes in the Tamil country, where they constitute a considerable part of the population. The Pariahs have been commonly employed as laborers by the agricultural class, or as servants to Europeans. They were never outcastes (that is to say, utterly without caste), but popular 19th-century usage among Europeans equated them with the outcastes. Members of the Pariah group still undergo some discrimination in many areas, but official abolishment of castes has greatly increased their opportunities in all fields.

Parian Chronicle (pári'an). See under Arundel (or Oxford) Marbles.

Pariani (pá.rí.yá'né), Alberto. b. at Milan, Italy, in December, 1876— . Italian soldier. He became (1927) military adviser to the Albanian army, serving until 1933. He served (October, 1936-April, 1939) as Italian undersecretary of war and head of the general staff. On trial (1945) for Fascist activities, he was acquitted (1947).

Paria Peninsula (pá'ryä). Peninsula in NE Venezuela, between the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Paria, opposite Trinidad.

Parieu (pá'ryé), Marie Louis Pierre Félix Esquiro de. b. at Aurillac, France, April 13, 1815; d. April 9, 1893.

French political economist and politician. He was minister of instruction (1849-51).

Parilia (pa.ril'i.a). See under Pales.

Parima (pā.rē'mā). Mythical lake long supposed to exist in the N part of South America. At first it was associated with a lake in Colombia and the ceremonies of El Dorado, the gilded king. Later, when the search for the city of the gilded king proved fruitless, geographers clung still to their belief in the lake. Maps of the 18th century, and even some later ones, represented Parima as a large body of water in Guiana. The name has been retained for mountains in the same region.

Parima, Sierra. [Also: Parime (pa.rē'mē); in Brazil, Serra Parima.] Mountains on the border of S Venezuela and N Brazil, between the upper Orinoco and its branch the Ventuario. Their true nature is little known, and they are perhaps edges of a high plateau, though some points are said to exceed 5,000 ft. in altitude. The Orinoco rises here. The name is sometimes extended to all the highland region on the frontiers of Venezuela and Brazil and in British Guiana, thus including the Serra Pacaraima.

Parinacota (pā.rē.nā.kō'tā). Volcanic mountain in extreme N Chile, near Bolivia. Elevation, ab. 20,768 ft.

Parini (pā.rē'nē), Giuseppe, b. at Bossio, near Milan, Italy, May 22, 1729; d. at Milan, Aug. 15, 1799. Italian poet. He published a number of extremely graceful and witty odes and satirical poems.

Paris (par'is). City in W Arkansas, a county seat (with Booneville) of Logan County, in a coal-mining region. 3,731 (1950).

Paris (par'is; French, pā.rē). [Latin: Lutecia (or Lutetia) Parisiorum, later, Parisi (par.iz'i).] City in N France, in the department of Seine, the capital of the French Republic, situated in the Paris basin, or Ile de France, on both banks of the Seine River shortly below its juncture with the Marne River. It is the largest city in France, the only city in France with a population of more than one million, and the third largest city in Europe. The city limits are narrowly drawn and many populous suburbs are separate municipalities, so that the metropolitan region of greater Paris has twice the number of inhabitants of Paris proper, amounting to about one eighth of the total population of France. The relative importance of Paris within France is greater than that of any other capital in Europe. Geographically only the center of N France, Paris is not only the political and administrative capital of a strongly centralized country, but the country's intellectual and artistic center, the focal point of its commercial and industrial activity, and the hub of the French railroad and canal system. It is the seat of many international bodies, the style and fashion center of the world, and has a tourist trade of tremendous importance. The outward charm of Paris is unequalled. The medieval cell, from which the city grew, consists of the Ile de St.-Louis and the adjacent Ile de la Cité, small islands in the Seine. On them or facing them are such buildings as the Cathedral of Notre Dame (1163-1250, with later additions), one of the masterpieces of Gothic art; the Sainte-Chapelle (built 1246-48 by Louis IX), a small but exquisite Gothic building; the famous prison of the Conciergerie, the Palais de Justice, the Hôtel de Ville, and the churches of Saint-Gervais, Saint-Germain-d'Auxerrois, and Saint-Severin. Westward from this point to the height of the Palais de Chailot and the Eiffel Tower, the banks of the Seine are flanked by tree-lined quays and remarkable buildings. The center of royal and imperial Paris, as it developed from the reign of Henry IV until the time of Napoleon I, is the stretch from the Louvre to the Arc de Triomphe, including the Tuileries, the Place de la Concorde, and the Avenue des Champs Élysées. The Latin Quarter, on the left bank of the Seine, is known for its academic institutions, such as the University of Paris (which includes the Sorbonne), a center of scholarship since the Middle Ages, the schools of art, medicine, and mining, the observatory, and the military academy. The music and art conservatory is situated in another part of the city. The contributions to the arts and sciences which have emanated from these institutions are innumerable. In the commercial district on the right bank of the Seine are the leading stores and business establishments, the Halles Centrales (central produce market), the Bourse, and the Bank of France, and also the Opéra and the Bibliothèque Nationale. Some of the broad business streets, such as the Boulevard Haussmann, were laid out as late as the 19th century, while in the vicinity of the Seine and on the left bank stand numerous houses dating from the medieval and Renaissance periods. Paris is a city of churches and of art collections. The oldest church is the Church of Saint-Germain-des-Prés, in the Romanesque style of the 11th century. Likewise on the left bank are the Church of Saint-Étienne-du-Mont, dating from the 16th century, and the Church of Saint-Sulpice, a classical building dating from the 17th and 18th centuries. The churches of Saint-Eustache and Saint-Gervais-Saint-Protais, mixtures of the Gothic with the Renaissance and classical styles respectively, are located on the right bank. On the highest hill of Paris rises the Basilica of the Sacré Cœur, built in Romano-Byzantine style in the late 19th century. Paris is the seat of an archbishop. Among the art collections, those of the Louvre are outstanding, both sculpture and painting being represented by exquisite examples from all centuries, schools, and styles of artistic endeavor. The Musée de Cluny is outstanding in the specialized field of medieval art. Others are the Luxembourg, Guimet, Galliera, Jacquemart-André, Carnavalet, and Rodin museums. Paris is an international center of the arts and the sciences. The contributions in the fields of mathematics, physics, chemistry, medicine, and historical, archaeological, and sociological scholarship which come from Paris are of the first order. Since the Middle Ages the city has also been an important center of Catholic theology. Its importance in music during the 18th and 19th centuries was great though not unchallenged; in literature, in sculpture, and in painting it has always been considered outstanding. An ancient Gallic and Roman settlement, Paris became the capital of the Frankish kingdom in 508. It began its great development largely under Philip Augustus and Louis IX (Saint Louis). From that time on, it rose steadily through strife and vicissitudes until its dominance among European cities was assured in the reign of Louis XIV. The eyes of the world were turned upon France in the days of the French Revolution and of Napoleon I (1789-1815), and again in the course of the revolutions of 1830 and 1848. Political instability and even decline notwithstanding, the cultural importance of Paris increased even further in the 19th century. Revolutionary as well as conservative thought found vigorous expression here. Many international expositions and conferences took place here. Paris underwent foreign occupation in 1814, 1815 (anti-Napoleonic coalition), 1870, and in 1947, when it was occupied by Germany and held until the Allied liberation (1944). It barely escaped a similar fate in 1914. (The economic importance of Paris is treated under Seine.) 2,725,374 (1946).

Paris (par'is). City in E Illinois, county seat of Edgar County, ab. 106 mi. SE of Springfield; manufactures of shoes, buses, and brooms. 9,460 (1950).

Paris. [Former name, Hopewell.] City in N Kentucky, county seat of Bourbon County, ab. 34 mi. E of Frankfort, in an agricultural area; shipping center for bluegrass. It is notable for the early manufacture of bourbon whiskey. It was founded in 1789. Pop. 6,912 (1950).

Paris. Town in SW Maine, in Oxford County; manufactures of wood novelties. 4,358 (1950).

Paris. Town in Ontario, Canada, in Brant County, situated on the main highway between Toronto and London, ab. 65 mi. W of Toronto; rail junction; large woolen mill. 5,249 (1951).

Paris. City in NW Tennessee, county seat of Henry County; manufactures of cigars, cosmetics, patent medicines, and shirts; railroad repair shops. It was laid out in 1823. Pop. 8,826 (1950).

Paris. City in E Texas, county seat of Lamar County, ab. 92 mi. NE of Dallas; processing center for long-fibered cotton and other agricultural products. 21,643 (1950).

Paris. [Also, Alexander.] In Greek legend, the second son of Priam, king of Troy, and Hecuba. Before his birth Hecuba dreamed that she had given birth to a firebrand which caused a conflagration of the city. The dream was interpreted to mean that she would give birth to a son who would bring disaster on Troy. Paris was accordingly exposed on Mount Ida, but was nourished by a she-bear, and found and brought up by the same shepherd who had been entrusted with his exposure. His parentage was accidentally discovered, and he was admitted to the household of Priam. He married the river nymph Oenone, and became celebrated far and wide for his beauty and accomplishments. During the nuptials of Peleus and Thetis, Eris (goddess of discord), who alone among the gods was uninvited, threw a golden apple among the marriage guests with the inscription "To the Fairest." A dispute arose between Hera, Aphrodite, and Athena over who should claim it. Zeus ordered Hermes to take the three goddesses to Paris, then still a shepherd tending his flocks on Mount Ida, to judge which was fairest. To influence his decision, Hera offered him power, Athena martial glory, and Aphrodite the most beautiful of women. So he gave the apple to Aphrodite, who in return helped him carry off Helen, the wife of Menelaus. The abduction of Helen from Sparta gave rise to the Trojan War, during which Paris earned somewhat of a reputation for cowardice. He fought against the Greeks to the end, however, killed Achilles, and was himself fatally wounded by Philoctetes with a poisoned arrow at the taking of Troy.

Paris. Character in Shakespeare's tragedy Romeo and Juliet; a young nobleman to whom Capulet betrothed his daughter Juliet against her will.

Paris. Count of. Title of Eudes.

Paris (pà.rés), Bruno Paulin Gaston. b. at Avenay, Marne, France, Aug. 9, 1839; d. at Cannes, France, March 5, 1903. French Romance philologist. From 1872 he occupied a chair of French language and literature at the Collège de France, of which he became administrator in 1895. He was also director of the Romance language department in the École des Hautes Études. His first publication of note was Histoire poétique de Charlemagne (1865). His edition of La Vie de Saint-Alexis (1872) was a landmark in the annals of French philology.

Paris (pà.ré), Comte de. [Title of Louis Philippe Albert d'Orléans.] b. at Paris, Aug. 24, 1838; d. in England, Sept. 8, 1894. Head of the Legitimist Party in France and claimant of the French throne; eldest son of Ferdinand, Duc d'Orléans, and grandson of Louis Philippe. He became heir apparent to the French throne on the death of his father in 1842. He was educated in England, where his mother sought refuge after the overthrow of his grandfather in 1838. In 1862 he served as a captain of U.S. Civil War volunteers on the staff of General G. B. McClellan. He subsequently took up his residence in France, but returned to England on the passage of the expulsion bill of 1886. On the death (1883) of Henri, Comte de Chambord, grandson of Charles X, without issue, he was recognized by the Legitimists as the head of the royal house of France, uniting the claims of the older and the younger (Orléans) line of the house of Bourbon. He published Histoire de la guerre civile en Amérique (1874-87).

Paris, Comte de. [Title of Henri Robert Ferdinand Marie Louis Philippe d'Orléans.] b. at Châteaufort, Nivernais, France, July 5, 1903—, Head of the house of Bourbon-Orléans, who renounced (November, 1947) his claim to the throne of France because he said he had obtained support only from "authoritarian monarchists." He refused support from the newspaper L'Action Française, served (1939) incognito in the French Foreign Legion, and afterwards resided at Lisbon, Portugal.

Paris (par'is), Matthew. b. probably c1200; d. 1259. English chronicler. His surname probably originated in the circumstance that he studied at the University of Paris. He entered the Benedictine monastery of St. Albans in 1217, was present at the nuptials of Henry III and Eleanor of Provence in 1236, and was sent on a mission to the Benedictine monastery of Holm (Trondheim), Norway, in 1248. He became chronicler of St. Albans on the death of Roger of Wendover in 1236. He enjoyed the favor of Henry III, who admitted him to his table and to private conversations during a visit of a week's duration at St. Albans in March, 1257. His chief works are Historia Major (also called Chronica Majora) and Historia Anglorum, which is mainly compiled from the first-mentioned work. The Historia Major is a chronicle of events from the creation of the world to the year 1259. Down to 1235 it is a modified transcription of an earlier work, entitled Floris Historiarum, begun by John de Cella and completed by Roger of Wendover; from 1235 to 1259 it was compiled exclusively from original sources.

Paris, Pact of. See Briand-Kellogg Pact.

Paris, Treaties of. Among the various treaties negotiated or concluded at Paris, the following are the most important: 1. Between Great Britain on one side and France, Spain, and Portugal on the other, Feb. 10, 1763. France ceded to Great Britain Canada, Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton, Mobile, all the territory east of the Mississippi, Dominica, Tobago, St. Vincent, and Grenada; England restored to France Guadeloupe, Martinique, St. Pierre and Miquelon, and Pondichéry, and ceded St. Lucia to her; Spain ceded Florida to Great Britain; England restored Havana to Spain; and France ceded Louisiana to Spain. 2. Between Great Britain on one side and France, Spain, and the U.S. on the other, Sept. 3, 1783. The independence of the U.S. was acknowledged; navigation of the Mississippi was made free to both powers; Minorca and Florida were restored to Spain; the region of the Sénégal in W Africa was granted to France; and mutual restitution was made of conquests in the West Indies. 3. Between France on the one side and Great Britain, Russia, Austria, and Prussia on the other, May 30, 1814; called also the First Peace of Paris. The independence of the Netherlands, Switzerland, and German and Italian states was acknowledged. France was allowed to retain the boundaries of 1792, with some additions, Great Britain was to keep Malta, but to restore all the colonies held by France on Jan. 1, 1792, except Tobago, St. Lucia, and Mauritius, and to restore all the Dutch colonies she held except Ceylon, the Cape of Good Hope, and part of (now British) Guiana. A general congress was to meet at Vienna within two months to complete the arrangements. 4. Between the same parties as the treaty of 1814, on Nov. 20, 1815; called also the Second Peace of Paris. France was reduced nearly to the limits of 1790. Twenty-eight million pounds were to be paid to the Allies for the expenses of the war. The fortresses of the northern frontier were to be occupied by the Allies for five years, and the garrisons paid by France. All works of art requisitioned by Napoleon were to be restored to their owners. 5. Between Russia on one hand and Turkey, Great Britain, France, and Sardinia on the other, March 30, 1856. Russia restored Kars, and ceded part of Bessarabia and the Danube mouth; Sevastopol was restored to Russia; the neutralization of the Black Sea was proclaimed; and Russia abandoned its claim to a protectorate over Christians in Turkey, to whom the sultan was to grant more favorable terms. 6. Between the U.S. and Spain, Dec. 10, 1898. Spain relinquished her sovereignty over Cuba, and ceded Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Philippine Islands to the U.S., receiving from the latter the sum of 20 million dollars.

Paris, University of. See under Paris, France.

Paris Garden. Former establishment for bullbaiting and bearbaiting, on the Banks, London. It is said to have derived its name from one De Paris who built a house there in the reign of Richard II. It was in use at the beginning of Henry VIII's reign, and was afterward fitted up and used for a playhouse also.

Parish-Alvars (par'ish.al'vâr), Elias. b. at Teignmouth, England, c1808; d. at Vienna, Jan. 25, 1849. English composer and harpist. He collected melodies of the Eastern countries which he illustrated in Voyage d'un harpiste en Orient. He was a composer of harp concertos and other music for harp and accompaniment.

Parisian Nights (pa.rizh'ân). Collected essays by Arthur Symonds, published in 1926.

Parisiensis (pa.ris.en'sis), Abbo. Latinized name of Abbon of Paris.

Parisii (pa.ris'i'i). Ancient Gallic tribe occupying a small town called Lutetia on an island in the Seine, at the time of Caesar's conquest of Gaul. They gave their name to the city of Paris.

Parisina (par.i.sē'na). Poem by George Gordon, Lord Byron, published in 1816. An overture for it was composed by William Sterndale Bennett in 1835.

Parisina (pā.rē.zē'nā). Opera by Gaetano Donizetti, first produced at Florence in 1833.

Pariset de La Valette (pā.rē.zō də lā.vā.let), Jean. See La Valette, Jean.

Paris-Soir (pā.rē.swār). Paris daily newspaper, founded in 1923. It was one of the most widely circulated newspapers, with a distribution (c1937) of about 1,750,000. It was published under the German occupation (1940-44) and ceased to appear after the liberation (1944) of France.

Parjanya (pār.jā'yā). In Vedic Hindu mythology, the god of rain. He was a fertility god, causing fruitfulness in plants, animals, and men. Later he became identified with Indra.

Park (pārk). Edwards Amasa. b. at Providence, R.I., Dec. 29, 1808; d. at Andover, Mass., June 4, 1900. American Congregational theologian, professor of sacred rhetoric (1836-47) and of theology (1847-81) at Andover Theological Seminary. He was the leading editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra, and published various memoirs. He was the last important advocate of the New England theology of Jonathan Edwards.

Park, Mungo. b. in Selkirkshire, Scotland, Sept. 10, 1771; d. in Africa, probably in 1806. Scottish explorer in Africa. He visited Benkoelen as assistant surgeon on an East-Indiaman in 1792, contributing on his return a description of eight new Sumatran fishes to the Transactions of the Linnæan Society. As agent of the African Association he undertook in 1795 to explore the course of the Niger River. Leaving Pisanía (now Karantaba) on the Gambia River, in December, 1795, he reached the Niger (being the first European to accomplish that feat) at Ségou in July, 1796, after many adventures, and ascended to Bamako. In 1799 he published a narrative of his journey, entitled Travels in the Interior of Africa. After having practiced for some years as a country surgeon at Peebles, Scotland, he undertook a new expedition to the Niger in 1805. He started from Pisanía in May, 1805, with a company of 35 Europeans and a number of natives, reaching the Niger in August with only seven companions. Sending back his journals and letters from Sansanding on the Niger in November, 1805, he embarked in a canoe, and was drowned near Busa during an attack by the natives.

Park, Roswell. b. at Pomfret, Conn., May 4, 1852; d. Feb. 15, 1914. American surgeon. As surgeon in chief of the Buffalo General Hospital, he was among the surgeons who attended President McKinley after the chief executive was shot by an assassin at Buffalo in 1901.

Park, William Hallock. b. at New York, Dec. 30, 1863; d. there, April 6, 1939. American physician and bacteriologist, an authority on infectious diseases, such as diphtheria, tuberculosis, pneumonia, and poliomyelitis, in relation to public health. He was professor (1897-1937) of bacteriology and hygiene at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, director (1894-1937) of the bureau of laboratories of the New York City health department, and consultant (1914 et seq.) in bacteriology to the New York State department of health.

Park City. City in N Utah, in Summit County: mining of silver, gold, lead, zinc, and copper. 2,254 (1950).

Parke (pārk). John Grubb. b. near Coatesville, Pa., Sept. 22, 1827; d. at Washington, D.C., Dec. 16, 1900. American engineer and army officer. He served (1857-61) as chief astronomer and surveyor for the expedition laying out the U.S.-Canadian northwest boundary. With the Union forces during the Civil War, he saw action at New Bern, Fort Macon, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Vicksburg, and the Battle of the Wilderness. He served (1866-69) with the Northwest Boundary Commission.

Parker (pār'kēr). Alton Brooks. b. at Cortland, N.Y., May 14, 1852; d. at New York, May 10, 1926. American jurist, the "gold candidate" of the Democratic Party in 1904. He was active in state and national Democratic politics. After becoming a justice of the supreme court in the third district, he was appointed to the second division of the court of appeals (1889), to the general term of the first department (1892), and to the appellate division of the supreme court (1896). In 1897 he was elected chief justice of the court of appeals. In 1904, after William Jennings Bryan had been bypassed for the Democratic presidential nomination, he was the choice of the national convention's first ballot. Despite the lack of such a plank in the Democratic platform, Parker affirmed his support of the gold standard. He received 140 electoral votes against 336 for Theodore Roosevelt. After his defeat he resumed his law practice at New York.

Parker, Arthur Caswell. b. at Iroquois, N.Y., April 5, 1881—. American archaeologist and author, and authority on American Indians. He was archaeologist (1905-25) at the New York State Museum, and director (1925-46) of the Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences.

Parker, Cornelia. [Maiden name, Stratton.] b. at Oakland, Calif., Sept. 1, 1885—. American writer and lecturer on social and industrial problems. She investigated, wrote and lectured on, labor problems from 1919 to 1926. Author of An American Idyll (1919), Working with the Working Woman (1922), Ports and Happy Places (1924), Jenny the Jogous (1924), English Summer (1931), German Summer (1932), Wanderer's Circle (1934), and other books. She was editor of The Casual Laborer (1920) by Carleton H. Parker, her husband.

Parker, Dorothy. [Maiden name, Rothschild.] b. at West End, N.J., Aug. 22, 1893—. American writer of satirical verse and short stories. She was a staff member (1916-17) of Vogue, and drama critic (1917-20) of Vanity Fair. Author of Enough Rope (1926), Sunset Gun (1928), Death and Taxes (1931), Not So Deep As a Well (1936), Sunset Guns (1939), and other verse collections. Her volumes of short stories, including Laments for the Living (1930) and After Such Pleasures (1933), have been collected in Here Lies (1939).

Parker, Francis Wayland. b. in Bedford Township, N.H., Oct. 9, 1837; d. March 2, 1902. American educator. He studied in Germany, and upon his return (1875) to the U.S. became superintendent of schools at Quincy, Mass., where he instituted a system of progressive education on Herbartian principles. He was named (1880) supervisor of the Boston schools, and became (1883) principal of the Cook County Normal School at Chicago. In 1899 he founded the Chicago Institute; upon the latter's incorporation (1901) into the University of Chicago as its School of Education, he became its first director.

Parker, George Howard. b. at Philadelphia, Dec. 23, 1864—. American zoologist, professor (1906-35) at Harvard. Author of Biology and Social Problems (1914), The Elementary Nervous System (1919), What Evolution Is (1925), Color Changes in Animals in Relation to Nervous Activity (1936), The World Expands (1946), and other works. He was coauthor of The Evolution of Man (1922), Creation by Evolution (1928), The Problem of Mental Disorder (1934), and others.

Parker, Sir Gilbert. [Full name, Horatio Gilbert George Parker.] b. at Camden East, Addington, Ontario, Canada, Nov. 23, 1862; d. at London, Sept. 6, 1932. Canadian journalist, novelist, dramatist, and poet. He worked on the editorial staff of the Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald, and subsequently lived (1895-1932) in England, but was buried in Canada at his request. He served as Conservative member of Parliament (1900-18) for Gravesend. During World War I he headed British publicity in the U.S. Author of Mrs. Falchion (1893), The Trail of the Sword (1894), When Valmond Came to Pontiac (1895), The Battle of the Strong (1898), A Ladder of Swords (1904), The Weavers (1907), The Judgment House (1913), You Never Know Your Luck (1915), The Money Master (1915), The World For Sale (1916), No Defence (1920), Carnac's Folly (1922), The Power and the Glory (1925), and Tarboe (1927); novels of Pierre and His People (1892), An Adventurer of the North (1895), The Lane That Had No Turning (1900), Northern Lights (1909), and Wild Youth (1919); short-story collections of A Lover's Diary: Songs in Sequence (1894); poetry; History of Old Quebec (1903) with Claude G. Bryan; and The World in Crucible (1915), dealing with World War I. He is best remembered for The Seals of the Mighty (1896), a historical novel of Quebec, and The Right of Way (1901), a psychological novel of dual personality; both were dramatized. His plays include Faust (1888) and The Vendetta (1839).

Parker, Henry Taylor. b. at Boston, April 29, 1867; d. March 30, 1934. American drama and music critic.

fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, plne; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔt, then; d, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or eh;

He was New York correspondent (1892-98, 1901-03), London correspondent (1898-1900), and music and drama critic (1905 et seq.) for the Boston Transcript.

Parker, Herschel Clifford. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., July 9, 1867—. American physicist and mountain climber. He was graduated (1890) from Columbia, where he was professor of physics until 1911. He collaborated in the discovery of helium, and invented the helioscope. He made mountain ascents in Canada and Alaska, and in 1912 was the first to climb the highest peak of Mount McKinley.

Parker, Horatio William. b. at Auburndale, Mass., Sept. 15, 1862; d. at Cedarhurst, N.Y., Dec. 18, 1919. American composer, organist, and teacher. His first work was a cantata, King Trojan, brought out at Munich in 1885. He was organist in a number of churches at New York. In 1894 he was made professor of music at Yale University, a position he held until his death. Among his most important works are Hora Novissima, an oratorio (1893), Saint Christopher (1898), and a concerto for organ and orchestra. Mona, an opera, with libretto by Brian Hooker, received in 1911 the 10,000-dollar prize offered by the directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, for the best opera by an American composer.

Parker, Isaac. b. at Boston, June 17, 1768; d. there, July 25, 1830. American jurist. He was a Federalist member of Congress from Massachusetts (1797-99), and in 1806 was appointed a judge of the supreme court of Massachusetts, of which he was presiding justice from 1814 until his death. He was professor of law at Harvard (1816-27).

Parker, James Cutler Dunn. b. at Boston, June 2, 1828; d. at Brookline, Mass., Nov. 27, 1916. American organist, composer, and teacher. He was organist (1864-91) at Trinity Church, Boston, and taught (1871-97) at the New England Conservatory. Among his compositions are Redemption Hymn, a cantata, The Blind King, and the oratorio The Life of Man.

Parker, John. b. at Lexington, Mass., July 13, 1729; d. Sept. 17, 1775. American Revolutionary soldier. A veteran of the French and Indian Wars, he was a farmer and mechanic as well as captain of a company of minutemen. He and his small force resisted the British at the battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775. Although the precise course of events on this occasion is lost in obscurity, Parker and his men have since become a part of patriotic legend.

Parker, Joseph. b. at Hexham-on-Tyne, Northumberland, England, April 9, 1830; d. at London, Nov. 28, 1902. English Congregational minister and pulpit orator. He was minister of the Cavendish Chapel, Manchester (1858-69), and of the City Temple, London (1869-1902).

Parker, Lawton S. b. at Fairfield, Mich., Aug. 7, 1868—. American portrait painter. He is represented in many museums and public collections.

Parker, Louis Napoleon. b. 1852; d. in Devonshire, England, Sept. 21, 1944. English dramatist and composer; grandson of Isaac Parker.

Parker, Martin. b. probably at London, c1600; d. c1656. English innkeeper, Royalist, and author of broadsides and chapbooks. Author of many ballads, sentimental, comic, and political, of chapbooks such as A True Tale of Robin Hood (1632) and The Nightingale Warbling Forth her Owne Disaster (1632), and of romances such as Guy, Earl of Warwick (1640). He also wrote A History of that renowned Christian Worthy, King Arthur (1660). When the King Enjoys his Own Again (1643) is regarded as his best ballad.

Parker, Matthew. b. at Norwich, England, Aug. 6, 1504; d. at London, May 17, 1575. Archbishop of Canterbury (1559-75). He graduated at Cambridge (Corpus Christi College) in 1525, and was appointed (1533) chaplain to Queen Anne Boleyn. He was selected to preach at Paul's Cross by Thomas Cromwell. In 1545 he was appointed vice-chancellor of Cambridge. On the accession of the Roman Catholic queen Mary Tudor he resigned, and lost all his preferments. He was consecrated archbishop of Canterbury Dec. 17, 1559. As primate he devoted himself to the organization and discipline of the English Church, and was a firm opponent of Puritanism, attempting to find a middle course for the new Anglican Church between the old dispensation and the democratization demanded by such reformers as Peter Wentworth. The revision of the Thirty-nine Articles (1562) was carried out under his direction, as was the publication (1572) of the Bishops' Bible. He did considerable historical research and published editions of early chronicles.

Parker, Sir Peter. b. 1721; d. 1811. English admiral. He served in the Revolutionary War, and made an unsuccessful attack on Fort Moultrie, at Charleston, in 1776. He is best remembered as the lifelong friend of Horatio Nelson, whose early naval career he aided.

Parker, Peter. b. at Framingham, Mass., June 18, 1804; d. Jan. 10, 1888. American medical missionary and diplomat. He became (1834) the first Protestant medical missionary to China. He aided Caleb Cushing in negotiating (1844) the first Sino-U.S. treaty and was named (1845) secretary to the U.S. legation at Canton. He was American commissioner and minister (1855-57) to China.

Parker, Theodore. b. at Lexington, Mass., Aug. 24, 1810; d. at Florence, Italy, May 10, 1860. American clergyman, lecturer, reformer, and author. He studied at the Cambridge Divinity School (1834-36), became a Unitarian clergyman at Roxbury, Mass., in 1837, became the head of an independent rationalistic society at the Melodeon (1846), and later at Music Hall, Boston, and was a conspicuous advocate of the abolition of slavery. Among his works are Discourse on Matters Pertaining to Religion (1842), Sermons on Theism, Atheism, and the Popular Theology (1853), Ten Sermons of Religion (1853), besides a large number of addresses, and Great Americans (this was published after his death).

Parker, Willard. b. in New Hampshire, Sept. 2, 1800; d. at New York, April 25, 1884. American surgeon, professor of surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York (1839-69), and later professor of clinical surgery there.

Parker, William. [Titles: 4th Baron Monteagle, 11th Baron Morley.] b. 1575; d. at Essex, England, 1622. English nobleman, remembered for his prompt action against the Gunpowder Plot. After supporting Roman Catholicism and Essex's rebellion, he became a Protestant (1605). Warned of the Gunpowder Plot by a note from his brother-in-law, Francis Tresham, he reported the letter to Robert Cecil, 1st Earl of Salisbury, who conducted investigations that uncovered the plot. Parker was regarded as the savior of Parliament and was rewarded with a land grant and pension.

Parkesburg (pär'kérz.bérg). [Former names: Neal's Station, Stokelyville, Newport.] City in NW West Virginia, county seat of Wood County, at the confluence of the Ohio and Little Kanawha rivers, ab. 73 mi. SW of Wheeling; manufactures of equipment for petroleum and natural gas wells, garden tools, office furniture, fence and roofing supplies, shoes, glass tableware, milk bottles, corrugated fiber boxes, iron and steel products, silk and rayon textiles, porcelain, vitrolite, and tile products. It was settled c1785 and chartered as a city in 1803. Pop. 29,684 (1950).

Parkes (pärks), Sir Harry Smith. b. at Walsall, England, 1828; d. at Peiping, China, 1885. English diplomat who concluded the treaty with Korea opening that country to British trade (1883). After entering the government service in China (1841), he assisted in concluding the first European treaty with Siam (1855), played an important part in the Canton hostilities (1856), and after the city was taken by storm, became virtual governor of it.

Parkes, Sir Henry. b. at Stoneleigh, Warwickshire, England, May 27, 1815; d. at Sydney, Australia, April 27, 1896. Australian statesman, considered the greatest premier of the Australian colonial period. The son of a small farmer, he had little formal education but did much reading. He became a bone and ivory turner and was active in working-class politics from 1832. He went to Australia in 1839, and in 1848 entered politics as a "radical." He served as premier of New South Wales from 1872 to 1875 and four times subsequently (1877, 1878-83, 1887-89, 1889-91). He finally associated himself with Liberal rather than Lab ur politics. He was identified with the movements for public education, exclusion of the Chinese, and Australian federation.

Parkesburg (pärks'bérg). Borough in SE Pennsylvania. 2,611 (1950).

Park Falls. City in N Wisconsin, in Price County, on the Flambeau River: manufactures of pulp and paper; resort center. 2,924 (1955).

Park Forest. Village in NE Illinois, S of Chicago: residential suburb. 8,138 (1950).

Park Hills. Town in N Kentucky, a residential suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio. 2,577 (1950).

Parkhurst (pärk'hurst), Charles Henry. b. at Framingham, Mass., April 17, 1842; d. Sept. 8, 1933. American clergyman and reformer. In 1891 he became president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime. His exposure of the corruption of the police department of New York City led to its investigation by a committee of the state legislature ("Lexow Committee") and its reorganization, and to the defeat of Tammany Hall at the polls in 1894.

Parkinson (pär'kin.son), James. b. 1755; d. at London, Dec. 21, 1824. English surgeon and paleontologist. He was a pioneer in the study of appendicitis and described (1817) the disease of senility known as shaking palsy or Parkinson's disease. Author of Organic Remains of a Former World (3 vols., 1804, 1808, 1811), Outlines of Oryctology (1822), and others.

Parkinson-Fortescue (pär'kin.son,fôr'tes.kü), Chichester Samuel. See Fortescue, Chichester Samuel.

Parkinson's Ferry (pär'kin.sonz). A former name of Monongahela, Pa.

Parkman (pärk'man), Francis. b. at Boston, Sept. 16, 1823; d. at Jamaica Plain, near Boston, Nov. 8, 1893. American historian. He graduated at Harvard in 1844, and began the study of law, but ultimately abandoned this study in order to devote himself to literature. He was professor of horticulture in the agricultural school of Harvard (1871-72). His historical works include Conspiracy of Pontiac (1851), Pioneers of France in the New World (1865), Jesuits in North America (1867), Discovery of the Great West (1869), The Old Régime in Canada (1874), Saint Francis and New France under Louis XIV (1877), Montcalm and Wolfe (1884), and A Half Century of Conflict (1892). He wrote also The California and Oregon Trail (1849), Vassall Morton, a novel (1856), and Historic Handbook of the Northern Taur (1885).

Park Range. Chain of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado, W of South Park. Peak elevation, Mount Lincoln (14,284 ft.).

Park Rapids. Village in C Minnesota, county seat of Hubbard County, in a dairy region. 3,027 (1950).

Park Ridge. City in NE Illinois, in Cook County: a northwestern residential suburb of Chicago. 16,602 (1950).

Park Ridge. Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County, near Paterson. 3,189 (1950).

Parks (pärks), Mrs. George Richmond. See Robins, Elizabeth.

Parkville (pärk'vil). Unincorporated community in S Pennsylvania: agricultural trading center. 3,299 (1950).

Parley (pär'li), Peter. See Goodrich, Samuel Griswold.

Parliament. See House of Commons and House of Lords.

Parliament, Mad. Great council, named in derision by the adherents of Henry III, held at Oxford, England, in 1258 in order to accommodate the differences which had arisen between the barons and the king, owing to the persistent evasion by the latter of the obligations imposed on the sovereign by Magna Charta. It enacted the Provisions of Oxford, requiring the faithful observance by the king of the Great Charter, and providing for the assembling of a Parliament three times a year, and regular control over the chief justiciar, chancellor, and other high officers.

Parliament Act. [Also called the Veto Bill.] British parliamentary measure designed to limit the power of the House of Lords to reject bills passed by the House of Commons. It was one of the most revolutionary constitutional reforms in the history of the British Parliament. The House of Lords does not possess the power of initiating legislation affecting supply and taxation, and very rarely has exercised its power to originate any other legislation. The exclusive right of instituting money bills is vested in the Commons, and the Commons maintained that such bills cannot be amended by the Lords. But, while abstaining from direct interference with grants of supply, the Lords occasionally rejected, postponed, or amended bills affecting supply and taxation. In 1909 the budget which was adopted by the House of Commons, under the leadership of the Liberal prime minister, Herbert H. Asquith, was rejected by the House of Lords. An election followed (January, 1910), and the Liberal government was returned, although with a reduced majority. It was then decided to reduce the powers of the House of Lords, and a bill was introduced and passed in the House of Commons which provided that money bills should become laws without the consent of the Lords, and that all other bills should become laws, even though rejected by the Lords, if passed by the Commons in three successive sessions within a minimum period of years. To this measure the assent of the Lords was secured, Aug. 10, 1911, after another indecisive general election (December, 1910) and the threat by the Liberals, apparently backed by the new king, George V, to create new peers in sufficient number to carry the bill.

Parliament of Bats. Parliament under Henry VI (1426). When orders were issued prohibiting members of Parliament from carrying swords, they came armed with long staves; when these were forbidden, they resorted to stones and lead plummets.

Parliament of Dunces. [Also: Lacklearning Parliament, Unlearned Parliament.] Parliament convened at Coventry by Henry IV in 1404: so named because all lawyers were excluded from it.

Parliament of Fowls. [Also, Assembly of Fowls.] Poem by Geoffrey Chaucer, mostly taken from Italian sources. Sixteen of the 98 stanzas are from Giovanni Boccaccio's Teseide. It is a poetical abstract of Cicero's Dream of Scipio.

Parliament of Love, The. Play by Philip Massinger, licensed in 1624.

Parliament of Paris (par'is). Chief of the French parliaments; the principal tribunal of justice of the French monarchy, from its origin in the king's council at a very early date to the French Revolution. From 1300 the parliament was constituted in three divisions: the Grand' Chambre, the Chambre des Requetes, and the Chambre des Enquetes.

Parlow (pär'lo), Kathleen. b. at Calgary, Alberta, Canada, 1890—. Canadian violinist. She made her first public appearance at San Francisco, at the age of six. In 1905 she went to London, and later to St. Petersburg, where she studied under Leopold Auer, and subsequently appeared as a virtuoso in many of the large European cities. She made her debut at New York on Dec. 1, 1910.

Parma (pär'ma). Province in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna. Capital, Parma; area, ab. 1,334 sq. mi.; pop. 381,771 (1936).

Parma. [Latin: Parma, Colonia Julia Augusta.] City and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, the capital of the province of Parma, situated between Bologna and Piacenza. Trading center of a fertile grain, wine, and livestock district, it has agricultural markets and a number of agricultural industries; its dairy products are well known, particularly Parmesan cheese. There are also textile and ceramics industries and manufactures of felt hats. It has a university, founded in 1549. Pop. of commune, 71,858 (1936), 123,095 (1951); of city, 60,767 (1936).

Art and Architecture. The Romanesque cathedral (1058-74) has murals (1526-30) by Correggio. Other murals by Correggio are in the Church of San Giovanni Evangelista and in the monastery of San Paolo. The Church of Santa Maria della Steccata, with Renaissance tower, dates from 1521. It suffered only slight damage in World War II, as did most other buildings of interest to tourists; the cathedral was untouched.

History. Parma became a Roman military colony in 183 B.C. and was of great strategic importance because of its location on the Via Emilia. Destroyed by Mark Antony in the civil wars, it was rebuilt by Augustus under the name of Colonia Julia Augusta. In the Middle Ages, it adhered to the Guelph cause, successfully resisting a siege by Emperor Frederick II. From 1346 to 1512 it was under the rule of the Visconti family of Milan, then incorporated into the States of the Church (Papal States) by Pope Julius II; it was given (1545) by Pope Paul III to his son, Pier Luigi Farnese, whose family ruled until 1731. In the 18th and 19th centuries conditions were unstable, with Bourbon, Hapsburg, Napoleonic, and Tuscan rulers succeeding each other; Duke Charles II was dethroned in 1848, his son Charles III assassinated in 1854, his grandson Robert I expelled in 1859. Parma became a part of united Italy in 1860.

Parma. City in NE Ohio, in Cuyahoga County: a southern residential suburb of Cleveland. 28,897 (1950).

Parma, Duchess of. See Margaret of Parma.

Parma, Battle of. See Trebbia, Battle of the.

Parma, Duchy of. [Properly the Duchies of Parma and Piacenza.] Former duchy in N Italy. The duchies of Parma, Piacenza, and Guastalla were given to Napoleon's consort, the Austrian princess Marie Louise, by the Congress of Vienna in 1814-15, and fell to Charles II, Duke of Lucca, in 1847. There was an unsuccessful revolution in 1848-49. The duchy was incorporated with the kingdom of Italy in 1860.

Parma and Piacenza (pyä.chen'tsä), Duke of. Title held by various members of the Farnese family.

Parma Heights. Village in N Ohio, near Parma, S of Cleveland: residential suburb. 3,901 (1950).

Parmenides (pär.men'ides). b. at Elea; fl. c450 B.C. Greek philosopher, head of the Eleatic school. He is believed to have arrived (c450 B.C.) at Athens at the age of 56, which suggests a birthdate of c504 B.C. He wrote his opinions in a didactic poem, Nature. His central thought is the unity and permanence of being; there is no not-being or change. A celebrated dialogue of Plato was named from him.

Parmenio (pär.mē'ni.ō) or Parmenion (pär.mē'ni.ou). b. c400 B.C.; assassinated by order of Alexander, 330 B.C. Macedonian general. He was the leading counselor and general of Philip II and Alexander the Great, and commanded the left wing at the battles of Granicus, Issus, and Arbela. When Parmenio's son Philotas was detected in a plot against Alexander and executed, Alexander realized that the father, although not seriously implicated, would become dangerous if left alive, and Parmenio was killed without trial.

Parmensis (pär.men'sis), Gaius Cassius. See Cassius Parmensis, Gaius.

Parmigiano (pär.mē'ji.nō) or Parmegiano (-mā-), II. [Also: Parmigianino (pär.mē'jā.nē'nō); usual name, meaning "the Parmesan," of Francesco Maria Mazzuola (or Mazzola or Mazzuoli).] b. at Parma, Italy. Jan. 11, 1504; d. at Casalmaggiore, Italy. Aug. 24, 1540. Italian painter. Among his works are Vision of Saint Jerome (National Gallery, London), Madonna with Saint Margaret (Bologna), Madonna del Collo Lungo (Pitti Palace, Florence), and Madonna della Rosa (Dresden Gallery).

Parny (pärn'li), Eleazar. b. at Braintree, Vt., March 13, 1797; d. at New York, Dec. 13, 1874. American dentist, noted for his efforts in organizing dentistry as a recognized profession. He settled (c1821) at New York, where he practiced his profession until his retirement in 1866, and was among the founders (1839) of the first dental organ, the American Journal of Dental Science. He was president (1841-53) of the American Society of Dental Surgeons and served (1866 et seq.) as the first president of the New York College of Dentistry.

Parmoor (pär'mōr), 1st Baron. Title of Cripps, Charles Alfred.

Parnaíba (pär'na.ē'ba). [Also: Parnahiba, Parnahyba.] Seaport in NE Brazil, in the state of Piauí, on the Piauí River near its mouth. 30,900 (1957).

Parnaíba River. [Also: Parnahiba, Parnahyba.] River in NE Brazil, between the states of Maranhão and Piauí, which flows N into the Atlantic near the city of Parnaíba. Length, ab. 900 mi.

Parnassum (pär.nas'um), Gradus ad. See Gradus ad Parnassum.

Parnassus (pär.nas'us). [Also, Liakoura.] Mountain ridge in Greece, ab. 83 mi. NW of Athens, near the ancient Delphi, and situated mainly in ancient Phocis. It was sacred to Apollo, the Muses, Dionysus, and the nymphs, and hence was regarded as the seat of music and poetry. Highest summit, Lycoreia (8,068 ft.).

Parnassus. Painting by Mantegna, in the Louvre, Paris. Mars and Venus stand on a rock arch, with Cupid, who is shooting darts into Vulcan's cave; in the foreground the Muses dance while Apollo makes music, and Mercury stands beside Pegasus.

Parnassus. Fresco by Raphael, in the Stanza della Segnatura of the Vatican, Rome. The subject is the triumph of ancient art under the enlightened and poetic influences of the Renaissance. Apollo and the Muses preside; Homer, Vergil, Dante, Sappho, Anacreon, Petrarch, and Corinna, with Raphael himself, figure with their fellow artists in the attendant company. It is a garden festival of 16th-century Rome.

Parnell (pär.nel', pär.nel), Charles Stewart. b. at Avondale, County Wicklow, Ireland, 1846; d. at Brighton, England, Oct. 6, 1891. Irish statesman. He was the fourth son of John Henry Parnell (whose ancestors emigrated from England to Ireland in the 17th century) and Delia Tudor Stewart, daughter of Admiral Charles Stewart of the U.S. navy. He studied at Magdalene College, Cambridge, without taking a degree, and was elected to Parliament in 1875. He became the first president of the Irish Land League in 1879, visited (1879-80) the U.S. in the interest of the Irish agitation for home rule, and succeeded William Shaw as leader of the Home Rule Party in 1880. He was imprisoned (1881-82) under the Coercion Act. In 1886 William Ewart Gladstone formed a parliamentary alliance with Parnell, and proposed a Home Rule Bill which secured the support of all the Irish members (85), but caused a split in the Liberal Party and restored Robert Gascoyne-Cecil, Marquis of Salisbury, to power. Toward the close of the session of 1887 the London Times sought to discredit Home Rule before the country by publishing a series of articles entitled Parnellism and Crime, in which it tried to connect Parnell with the Phoenix Park murders and other assassinations. In support of its allegations it published a number of letters alleged to have been written by Parnell, which were proved, before a committee appointed by Parliament to investigate the Times charges, to have been forged by one Richard Pigott. Parnell brought suit for libel against the Times, recovering 5,000 pounds in damages. In November, 1890, Captain William Henry O'Shea obtained a grant of divorce from his wife, Parnell (who afterward married Mrs. O'Shea) having figured as the co-respondent in the suit. He was in consequence deposed from the leadership, at the instance of the Liberal leaders, by a majority of his party, but refused to submit, and led a minority until his death.

Parnell, Henry Brooke. [Title, 1st Baron Conington.] b. July 3, 1776; committed suicide, June 8, 1842. British politician, secretary at war (1831-32).

Parnell, Thomas. b. at Dublin, 1797; d. 1718. British writer. He was ordained in 1703, was archdeacon of Clogher in 1706, and was presented to the vicarage of Finglas, near Dublin, in 1716. He was a member of the Scribblers Club and a contributor to both The Spectator and The Guardian. Among his poems are The Hermit, Night-Piece on Death, Hymn to Contentment, and Allegory on Man. He translated Homer's Battle of the Frogs and Mice; he annotated and wrote the prefatory essay to Alexander Pope's Iliad translation.

Parnellite Party (pär.nel'li). In British politics, the Irish Nationalist Party as it came under the leadership of Charles Stewart Parnell c1879. Its only important aim was the securing of home rule for Ireland. In 1885 it became allied for this purpose with the English Liberal Party, and contributed to the Parliamentary majority of the third and fourth Gladstone administrations. After the judgment in the O'Shea case (1890) the party divided, a small fraction of it, called then distinctively the Parnellites, being led by John Redmond, while the great majority of the Nationalists (often called Anti-Parnellites) chose Justin M'Carthy as leader.

Pärnu (pär'nō). [German and Swedish, Pernau; Russian, Pyarnu.] Seaport in SW Estonia, on the Gulf of Riga: machinery and woodworking industries. It has a foreign trade in lumber. It was founded in 1255. Pop. 21,000 (est. 1941).

Parny (pär.nē), Evariste Désiré de Forges, Vicomte de. b. on the Isle of Bourbon (now Réunion), Feb. 6, 1753; d. at Paris, Dec. 5, 1814. French poet. Among his best-known works are Poésies érotiques (1778) and La Guerre des dieux (1790).

Paro (pá'rô). See Beni River.

Parodi (pá.rô.dê), Alexandre. [Pseudonym (as a member of the French Resistance movement), Monsieur X.] b. at Paris, June 1, 1901—. French statesman. He served (1926 et seq.) as an auditor for the Council of State, the chief French administrative court, and in 1939 became director general of the ministry of labor. After the fall of France he served in the French underground, and in 1944 became the delegate of the DeGaulle Free French government to the various Resistance groups. With the liberation of France (1944), he served as organizer of the revived French press and in the provisional governments that preceded the establishment of the Fourth Republic was minister of labor and social security. He was ambassador to Italy (1945-46) and delegate to the United Nations (1946-49). He became (1949) permanent undersecretary of the foreign office.

Parodi, Dominique. b. at Genoa, Italy, May 2, 1870—. French philosopher who served (1919 et seq.) as inspector general of public instruction in France. Author of Le Problème moral et la pensée contemporaine (1939), Traditionnalisme et démocratie (1909), La Philosophie contemporaine en France (1918), and Du positivisme à l'idéalisme (1930).

Paroisse-Pougin (pá.rwás.pô.zhã), François Auguste Arthur. See Pougin, Arthur.

Parolles (pá.rô.lês). Character in Shakespeare's All's Well that Ends Well, a braggart whose poltroonery is humorous and droll.

Paropamisus (par.ô.pam'î.sus, par'ô.pam'î.sus). An ancient name of the Hindu Kush; also the name, still in use, of a range just W of the Hindu Kush, in NW Afghanistan.

Paros (pá'ros). Island of the Cyclades, Greece, in the Aegean Sea W of Naxos. It is composed of a single mountain, famous in ancient times for its white marble. It was unsuccessfully attacked as an ally of Persia by Miltiades after the battle of Marathon in 490 B.C., and later joined the confederacy of Delos. Length, ab. 15 mi.; area, ab. 81 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 9,000.

Paros, Chronicle of. See Chronicle of Paros.

Parquet (pár.kê), Jacques Diel du. See Diel du Parquet, Jacques.

Parr (pár), Catherine. b. at Kendal Castle, Westmorland, England, c1512; d. at Sudeley Castle, Gloucestershire, England, Sept. 7, 1548. Sixth and last wife of Henry VIII, whom he married in 1543. She had been married twice before her marriage to the king. She married Thomas Seymour in 1547.

Parr, Samuel. b. at Harrow, England, Jan. 26, 1747; d. at Hatten, England, March 6, 1825. English scholar. He studied at Harrow, and was at Cambridge for a short time in 1765. From 1767 to 1771 he was chief assistant to Dr. Robert Sumner at Harrow School, and in 1783 was made vicar of Hatten, near Warwick. He was a warm friend of Richard Porson. A determined Whig, he was famous both for the variety of his knowledge and for his dogmatism.

Parr, Samuel Wilson. b. at Granville, Ill., Jan. 21, 1857; d. at Urbana, Ill., May 16, 1931. American chemist, teacher, and inventor. He was professor of chemistry (1891-1926) and later professor emeritus at the University of Illinois. He was an expert on coal and fuel problems, was the inventor of the peroxide bomb (1912), and devised several calorimeters.

Parr, Thomas. [Called "Old Parr."] d. at London, Nov. 14, 1635. English centenarian. He was said to have been born in 1483, and hence would have been 152 years old when he died. W. J. Thoms, the editor of Notes and Queries, examined the evidence and found it untrustworthy, though Parr was certainly very old and was a celebrity for many years before his death.

Parra (párrä), Teresa de la. b. 1895; d. 1936. Venezuelan novelist, long resident in France but noted for her stories based on her Venezuelan childhood. Author of Ifigenia (1924) and Las Memorias de Mamá Blanca (1932).

Parral (pár.räl'). See also Hidalgo del Parral.

Parral. City in C Chile, in Linares province. 10,225 (1943).

Parramatta (par.â.mat'a). [Also, Paramatta.] Town in SE Australia, in New South Wales, on the Parramatta River, ab. 14 mi. NW of Sydney. It has a flourishing fruit trade. With the expansion of Sydney, Parramatta has become a suburb of the larger metropolis. 20,816 (1947).

Parran (par'an), Thomas. b. at St. Leonard, Md., Sept. 28, 1892—. American physician and public health official. He was a staff member (1917-30) and surgeon general (1936-48) of the U.S. Public Health Service, and commissioner (1930-36) of the New York State Department of Health. He was influential in control and eradication of venereal disease, especially by publicity campaigns and direct information. Author of Shadow on the Land (1937) and Plain Words About Venereal Disease (1941).

Parras de la Fuente (párräs dä lä fwen'tä). [Also, Parras.] City in N Mexico, in Coahuila state: wines, brandies, and cotton and flour mills. 15,555 (1940).

Parret (par'et). [Also, Parrett.] River in SW England, in Dorsetshire and Somersetshire, rising in Dorsetshire and flowing NW to the Bristol Channel ab. 6 mi. N of Bridgwater. Length, ab. 35 mi.

Parrhasius (pá.rá.shi.us). b. at Ephesus; fl. c400 B.C. Greek painter, considered one of the greatest of antiquity. The anecdotes of Pliny about all the painters of this time indicate extraordinary realism carried to the point of actual illusion. There were many pen-and-ink sketches by Parrhasius still in existence in the time of Pliny. Among his principal works were The Personification of the Demos of Athens, probably suggested by Aristophanes; a Prometheus, the Hercules at Lindus, the Theues at Athens, afterward on the Capitol at Rome, and a Contest of Ajax and Odysseus for the Weapons of Achilles.

Parri (párrë), Ferruccio. b. at Pinerolo, Italy, Jan. 19, 1890—. Italian statesman. An organizer of anti-Fascist forces after 1924, he was imprisoned (1927-33). He served (June 19, 1945-Nov. 22, 1945) as premier.

Parrington (par'ing.ton), Vernon Louis. b. at Aurora, Ill., Aug. 3, 1871; d. at Winchcomb, Gloucestershire, England, June 16, 1929. American historian and teacher, author of Main Currents in American Thought: An Interpretation of American Literature from the Beginning to 1920 (3 vols., 1927-30). This liberal history of American literature seen against its political, economic, and social background is considered by some the most important American critical work of the period between the two World Wars; it was awarded the 1928 Pulitzer prize in history. Graduating (1893) from Harvard, he served (1893-97) as instructor in English and French at the College of Emporia, was at the University of Oklahoma as instructor in English and modern language (1897-98) and at the University of Washington as assistant professor of English (1908-12) and professor of English (1912-29). Among his other works are The Connecticut Wits (1926) and Sinclair Lewis, Our Own Diogenes (1927).

Parris (par'is), Albion Keith. b. in Maine, Jan. 19, 1788; d. at Portland, Me., Feb. 11, 1857. American politician. He was a member of Congress from Massachusetts (1815-19), governor of Maine (1822-26), and U.S. senator from Maine (1826-28).

Parris, Samuel. b. at London, 1653; d. at Sudbury, Mass., Feb. 27, 1720. American Congregational clergyman, notable in connection with the Salem witchcraft hysteria of 1692-93. He studied at Harvard, without taking a degree, became a merchant at Boston, afterward entered the ministry, and in 1689 became pastor of the church at Danvers (then part of Salem), Mass. In 1692 his daughter and his niece, Abigail Williams, both about 12 years of age, accused Tibuta (a South American slave living with the family as a servant) of bewitching them. He beat Tibuta into confessing herself a witch. The delusion spread, many persons were tried for witchcraft, and in the course of 16 months 20 persons were put to death. He was dismissed by his congregation in 1696 for his share in these judicial murders.

Parrish (par'ish), Anne. b. at Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1760; d. Dec. 26, 1800. American philanthropist, founder (1795) of the House of Industry at Philadelphia, the first U.S. charitable organization for women, which was incorporated in 1815. She also established (1796) what later became known as the Aimwell School (Philadelphia), an institution for aiding needy girls which existed until 1923.

Parrish, Anne. b. at Colorado Springs, Colo., Nov. 12, 1888—. American writer. Author of Pocketful of Poes (1923), Semi-Attached (1924), Tomorrow Morning (1926), Floating Island (1930), Golden Wedding (1936), Pray for a Tomorrow (1941), Poor Child (1945), and other books. Her novel The Perennial Bachelor (1925) received a Harper prize.

Parrish, Maxfield. b. at Philadelphia, July 25, 1870—. American painter and illustrator; son of Stephen Parrish. He was elected an associate of the National Academy of Design in 1905 and a member in 1906; also a fellow of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He developed a style of power in color (he used a particularly distinctive shade of blue) and design which is best shown in his colored illustrations. Among the books he illustrated are Mother Goose in Prose and Knickerbocker's History of New York; he has also done murals, posters, and magazine covers.

Parrish, Stephen. b. at Philadelphia, July 9, 1846; d. May 15, 1938. American landscape painter and etcher; father of Maxfield Parrish. He belonged to the New York Etching Club, and to the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers, London.

Parri Island (par'is). See under Beaufort, S.C.

Parrot (pär'ró), Johann Jakob Friedrich Wilhelm. b. at Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, 1792; d. at Tartu (Dorpat), Estonia, c1840. German traveler in Caucasia, to Ararat, and elsewhere.

Parrott (par'ot), Robert Parker. b. at Lee, N.H., Oct. 5, 1804; d. at Cold Spring, N.Y., Dec. 24, 1877. American inventor, superintendent of the West Point iron and cannon foundry, Cold Spring, N.Y. He invented the Parrott gun, a reinforced cast-iron cannon, used during the Civil War by the Union forces.

Parrott, Ursula. [Full name, Katherine Ursula Parrott; maiden name, Towle.] b. at Boston, March 26, 1902—. American novelist. Author of Ex Wife (1929), Gentleman's Fate (1930), When Summer Returning (1936), Road Leading Somewhere (1941), Storm at Dusk (1943), One More Such Victory (1943), and other novels.

Parry (par'i), Cape. Cape on the N coast of Mackenzie district, Northwest Territories, Canada, projecting into the Arctic Ocean and separating Franklin Bay from Darnley Bay (two inlets of Amundsen Gulf).

Parry, Charles Christopher. b. at Admington, Gloucestershire, England, Aug. 28, 1823; d. at Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 20, 1890. American botanist. The first official botanist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, he made notable botanical surveys of the American West and discovered numerous new plant forms.

Parry, Sir Charles Hubert Hastings. b. at Bournemouth, England, Feb. 27, 1848; d. Oct. 7, 1918. English composer. In 1894 he was appointed director of the Royal College of Music, succeeding Sir George Grove. He was professor of music (1899-1908) at Oxford University, succeeding Sir John Stainer. He was knighted in 1898, and created a baronet in 1902. He is best known for his oratorios, motets, and other sacred and secular choral music; his orchestral and instrumental work has largely been forgotten. Parry's writing was nearly as important as his composition, his work in both fields contributing to the rebirth of English music. He wrote many articles for Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians; his Studies of Great Composers was a pioneer work in popular biography; he also wrote The Evolution of the Art of Music (1896), Style in Musical Art (1911), and others.

Parry, Joseph. b. at Merthyr Tydfil, Wales, May 21, 1841; d. at Penarth, Wales, Feb. 17, 1903. Welsh composer. His works include operas such as Blodwen, Arianwen, and King Arthur, oratorios, cantatas, orchestral compositions, and chamber music.

Parry, Sir William Edward. b. at Bath, England, Dec. 19, 1790; d. at Ems, Germany, July 8, 1855. English navigator and arctic explorer. In 1806 he was midshipman in the frigate Tribune, and in 1808 on the Vanguard in the Baltic. As lieutenant in the Alexander he served at Spitsbergen, on La Hogue, and in the North American station until 1817. He accompanied John Ross's polar expedition, and took command of an expedition himself in May, 1819. He explored and named Barrow Strait, Prince Regent Inlet, and Wellington Sound, reaching Melville Island in September, 1819. By crossing the longitudinal meridian 110° W. he won the 5,000-pound prize offered by Parliament. A narrative of the expedition appeared in 1821. In May, 1821, he started on a second expedition, and in May, 1824, on a third, which were not especially successful. Another expedition (1827), by way of Spitsbergen, was likewise unsuccessful, although he reached lat. 82°45' N., a distance north not again attained for nearly 50 years. From December, 1823, to May, 1829, he was acting hydrographer to the navy.

Parry Sound. County seat of Parry Sound territorial district, Ontario, Canada, situated on the E shore of Georgian Bay, Lake Huron: summer resort; lumbering. It is on the main transcontinental line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 5,183 (1951).

Parsees (pär'séz, pär.séz'). See Parsis.

Parseval (pär'zē.fäl), August von. b. at Frankenthal, Germany, Feb. 5, 1861; d. in Germany, Feb. 23, 1942. German aeronautical engineer, best known as the originator of a type of semirigid airship. These "sausages" were widely used by Germany as artillery observation posts during World War I.

Parshall (pär'shal), Douglas Ewell. b. at New York, Nov. 19, 1899—. American painter. Among his principal works are Marine (Syrause), Troops Entering Arras (Washington, D.C.), and Fiesta at Taos (Kansas City).

Parsifal (pär'si.fäl, -fal; German, pär'zē.fäl) or Parsival (pär'si.val, -vål). Musical drama in three acts by Richard Wagner. The poem was composed by him in 1877, the music in 1879. It was first performed at Bayreuth, July 28, 1882.

Parsis (pär'séz, pär.séz'). [Also, Parsees.] Descendants of those Persians who settled in India about the end of the 7th and the beginning of the 8th century, in order to escape Mohammedan persecution, and who still retain their ancient religion, called Zoroastrianism. Today they are found chiefly in Bombay state and city, and number ab. 114,900. Most of them are highly educated and wealthy; they still hold closely to Zoroastrian beliefs and ritual. They are distinguished, to outsiders especially, by their method of disposal of the dead: bodies are stripped and exposed on high, wall-enclosed platforms, called towers of silence, and left to the vultures, who pick the bones clean in a few hours. Twice a year the dried bones are collected and thrown into a pit where they continue to crumble. By this method the Parsis avoid contaminating fire, air, water, or earth with the decay of death.

"Parson Adams" (ad'amz). See Adams, Abraham.

Parson Austen's Daughter (ös'tenz). Novel by Helen Ashton about the English novelist Jane Austen, published in 1949.

Parsons (pär'sonz). City in SE Kansas, in Labette County, ab. 123 mi. SE of Topeka: stockyards; shipping center for grain and dairy products, 14,750 (1950).

Parsons, Albert Richard. b. at Montgomery, Ala., June 24, 1848; d. Nov. 11, 1887. American anarchist, remembered for his role in the Haymarket trial (1887). Beginning as a printer's devil with the Galveston Daily News, he later served in the Confederate forces during the Civil War. He was active in newspaper work and government service until 1873, when he settled at Chicago, where he joined the Typographical Union and became interested in labor and radical activities. At one time he was identified with the socialists, but in 1883 aligned himself with the anarchists. He became (1884) editor of The Alarm, the weekly organ of the International Working People's Association. He lectured in behalf of this organization and soon became known as an extremist. Taking a hand in the movement for the eight-hour day, he spoke at the Haymarket meeting at Chicago (May 4, 1886) and had left the scene when the bomb explosion took place, killing 11 and wounding many more. Although the bomb-thrower was never identified, Parsons voluntarily gave himself up after seven of his comrades had been seized following a round-up of radicals. The case became a cause célèbre; Parsons, by virtue of his behavior and reputation, and the fact that he was the only native-born American among the accused, became the central figure in the proceedings. He refused to apply for clemency, in the belief that such action would endanger his comrades, and was hanged together with three of them. On June 26, 1893, Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois condemned the trial and pardoned the surviving prisoners, whose sentences had previously been commuted to life imprisonment.

Parsons, Alfred William. b. at Beckington, Somersetshire, England, Dec. 2, 1847; d. at Broadway, Worcester-shire, England, Jan. 16, 1920. English landscape painter and illustrator, who contributed to numerous English and American magazines. He became a member of the Royal Academy in 1911. Among his principal works are The First Frost (1883), In a Cider Country (1886), When Nature Painted All Things Gay (1887), and a series of water-color drawings of the Warwickshire Avon.

Parsons, Charles Lathrop. b. at New Marlboro, Mass., March 23, 1867—. American chemist, known for his work on the atomic weight of beryllium.

Parsons, John Edward. b. at New York, Oct. 21, 1829; d. Jan. 16, 1915. American lawyer, who achieved prominence for his activities in bringing members of the Tweed Ring to justice.

Parsons or Parsons, Robert. b. at Nether Stowey, Somersetshire, England, 1546; d. at Rome, April 15, 1610. English Jesuit. He graduated at Oxford (Balliol College) in 1558, and was subsequently a fellow, bursar, and dean of his college. In 1575 he entered the Society of Jesus at Rome. He intrigued actively against Elizabeth and the Protestants in England until his death, at one time (1581) barely escaping from England. He founded (1588-97) several English seminaries in Spain, while urging a Spanish invasion of England. He served (1597-1610) as rector of the English college at Rome. He published many polemical works.

Parsons, Samuel Holden. b. at Lyme, Conn., May 14, 1737; drowned in Big Beaver River, Ohio, Nov. 17, 1789. American soldier and Revolutionary patriot. Settling (1774) at New London, Conn., he took an active role in the patriot cause and became (1776) a brigadier general and later (1780) a major general in the Continental forces. He was appointed (1785) a commissioner for Indian claims in the Old Northwest, became (1787) a director of the Ohio Company, and was named (1787) the first judge of the Northwest Territory.

Parsons, Theophilus. b. at Byfield, Mass., Feb. 24, 1750; d. at Boston, Oct. 30, 1813. American jurist. He was a member of the Essex Junto (1778) that opposed the adoption of a liberal state constitution and secured its rejection. He was a strong Federalist and a delegate to the state convention that ratified the federal Constitution. He was chief justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts (1806-13).

Parsons, Theophilus. b. at Newburyport, Mass., May 17, 1797; d. Jan. 26, 1832. American legal and religious writer; son of Theophilus Parsons (1750-1813). He published Law of Contracts (1853), Mercantile Law (1856), Maritime Law (1859), Deus Homo (1867), The Infinite and the Finite (1867), and other works on law and on Sweden-borgian doctrine.

Parsons, Thomas William. b. at Boston, Aug. 18, 1819; d. at Scituate, Mass., Sept. 3, 1892. American poet. He translated Dante's Inferno, published Ghetto di Roma (1854); collected poems, among which is "On a Bust of Dante"; The Magnolia (privately printed 1867), The Shade of the Obelisk (1872), and Circum Præcordia (1892).

Parsons, Usher. b. at Alfred, Me., Aug. 18, 1788; d. at Providence, R.I., Dec. 19, 1868. American surgeon. He became (1812) a surgeon's mate in the U.S. navy, in which he served throughout the War of 1812, receiving a silver medal for his outstanding services in treating the wounded and sick at the battle of Lake Erie. He received (1818) his M.D. from Harvard Medical College, was named (1822) professor of anatomy and surgery at Brown University, resigned (1823) his naval commission, helped organize the American Medical Association, and was among the founders of the Rhode Island Hospital.

Parsons, William. [Title, 3rd Earl of Rosse.] b. at York, England, June 17, 1800; d. at Monkstown, Ireland, Oct. 31, 1867. British astronomer. He is especially notable for the reflecting telescope (long the largest in the world) which he erected at Birr Castle, Parsonstown, Ireland, in 1845. The focal length of the telescope is 54 ft.; the diameter of the tube, 6 ft. This telescope helped resolve many problems of the nebulae; it indicated their spiral form and showed that they were composed of individual stars.

Parsons, William Barclay. b. at New York, April 15, 1859; d. there, May 9, 1932. American civil engineer. He was chief engineer of the Rapid Transit Commission of New York City (1894-1905), building the first sections of the Interborough Rapid Transit System and the East River subway tunnels. He was advisory engineer of the Royal Commission on Traffic in London in 1904, a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission (1904-05), and of the board of consulting engineers of the Panama Canal (1905-06), and chief engineer of the Cape Cod Canal (1905-14).

Parsons, William Edward. b. at Akron, Ohio, June 19, 1872; d. Dec. 17, 1939. American architect. As consulting architect to the U.S. government in the Philippines, he designed the Philippine General Hospital, the University of the Philippines, and the Manila Hotel, among others. He also planned civic improvements at Chicago, St. Paul, Buffalo, Phoenix, Pasadena, Palm Beach, San Juan (Puerto Rico), and Washington, D.C. He served (1935) as consulting architect to the Resettlement Administration, and became (1938) an associate professor of architecture at Yale.

Parsons' Cause. In American colonial history, the practice (confined to Virginia) of paying the salaries of clergymen in tobacco, once generally used as a medium of exchange. The annual salary was set (1748) at 17,200 pounds. Subsequently, because of uneven yields and a shaky market structure, the House of Burgesses enacted laws (1755, 1758) commuting tobacco payments to two pence a pound in paper money. The market price of tobacco, however, was then six pence per pound, and the ministers complained they were being mulcted. A royal veto (1759) disallowed the act, and the clergymen undertook lawsuits to recover the difference. The ministers ultimately lost their case on appeal to the Privy Council, but the case is notable for Patrick Henry's defense (1765) of the parish in the suit brought by the Rev. James Maury. Henry's attack on that occasion upon the veto of laws for the public good is sometimes considered as the predecessor of a similar passage in the Declaration of Independence.

Parson's Progress, The. Novel by Compton Mackenzie, published in 1923. The second volume of a trilogy, begun in The Altar Steps (1922) and concluded in The Heavenly Ladder (1924), it deals with the stages in the spiritual development of Mark Lidderdale, an Anglican minister who finally becomes a Roman Catholic priest.

Parson's Tale, The. One of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. A long prose sermon, it may have been taken from the same original as the Agenbite of Inwit; its theme is penitence.

Parsonstown (pär'sonz.toun). See Birr.

Parson Trulliber (trul'ibër). See Trulliber, Parson.

Partabgarh (par.täb'gär). See Pratapgarrh.

Partage de midi (pär.täzh de mä'dë), Le. Poetic drama (1906) by Paul Claudel. Generally neglected by critics until after World War I, it is now considered one of Claudel's most successful plays.

Partanna (pär.tän'na). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Trapani, ab. 38 mi. SW of Palermo, in a wine-growing district. The Chiesa Madre was undamaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 12,714 (1936); of town, 12,459 (1936).

Parthenay (pä.r'te.nä). Town in France, in the department of Deux-Sèvres, on the Thouet River ab. 30 mi. NW of Poitiers. It has medieval ramparts and other old buildings, among them the church of Saint-Laurent from the 12th century. 7,947 (1946).

Parthenia (pä.r'thë'nä). In Sir Philip Sidney's Arcadia, the wife of Argalus. She assumes the armor of a knight to revenge his death upon his slayer Amphilus.

Parthenia. First collection of music for the virginal published (1611) on engraved plates in England. It includes pieces by Orlando Gibbons, William Byrd, and Dr. John Bull.

Parthenia Inviolata (in.vi.ö.lä'tä). Collection of music for the virginal, companion piece to Parthenia. The book contains 20 compositions.

Parthenius (pä.r'thë'nü.s). fl. in the 1st century B.C. Greek poet and grammarian, living at Rome. His only surviving work is a collection of prose tales.

fat, fäte, fär, ask, fär; net, më, hër; pin, plnc; not, nôte, möve, nör; up, lüte, püll; ʒh, then; ǵ, d or j; s, s or sh; t, t or ch;

Parthenon (pär'the.nŏn). Official temple of Athena (as Athena Parthenos, the virgin Athena), at Athens, as protectress of the city and guardian of the Athenian hegemony. It was begun c450 B.C. by Ictinus, under the political direction of Pericles and the artistic presidency of Phidias. The temple is a Doric peripteros of eight by 17 columns, on a stylobate of three steps, measuring on the highest step 161 by 228 ft. Before both pronaos and opisthodomos there is an inner range of six columns. The cella had two interior double-tiered ranges of Doric columns, and behind it there was a large chamber used for a treasury, with four great columns to support its ceiling. The cult-statue in the cella was the famous colossal chryselephantine statue of Athena Parthenos by Phidias. It is thought to have represented the goddess standing, wearing helmet and aegis, with her left hand supporting her spear, and on her extended right holding a Victory. At her feet were her shield and serpent. The entire upper part of the exterior wall of the cella was surrounded by a frieze in low relief, 3 1/4 ft. high, representing an idealized Panathenaic procession, in presence of the Olympian gods. Both pediments were filled with sculpture in the round, the group on the east representing the birth of Athena, that on the west her contest for Athens with Poseidon. The surviving fragments from the pediments and much of the frieze are among the Elgin Marbles in the British Museum, and are considered among the most precious existing sculptures. The metopes of the peristyle entablature bore contests of Greeks with centaurs, Anaxons, and Trojans, in high relief. The ornament of the Parthenon also included a comprehensive scheme of decoration in color. In refinement of design and perfection of execution this structure has never been paralleled. Since 1835 it has not been disputed that the existing Parthenon stands on the foundations of an older temple which, prior to the discovery in 1885 of the old temple of Athena, adjoining the Erechtheum, was believed to be identical with this temple. In 1892 F. C. Penrose sought to establish, nevertheless, the truth of the old theory, basing his argument primarily on a series of architect's laying-out marks inscribed on the southern foundation of the Parthenon. Penrose's temple, assigned to the beginning of the 6th century B.C. was Doric, peripteral, hexastyle, with 16 columns on the flanks, measuring on the highest step 69.8 by 193.1 ft., and thus leaving unoccupied as a peribolos a considerable part of its massive platform. Dörpfeld, however, successfully disputed the English archaeologist's theory, and proved that the older Parthenon was begun after the Persian invasion, that it was never finished, that it was Doric, peripteral, hexastyle, with 19 columns on the flanks, on a stylobate probably of two steps, and that it measured on the edge of the upper step 100.04 by 249.24 ft.

Parthenope (pär'then'ŏ.pē). In Greek mythology, a Siren who was drowned and cast up on the shore of Naples. She had thrown herself into the sea because her singing could not beguile the hero Odysseus.

Parthenope. Asteroid (No. 11) discovered at Naples, May 11, 1850, by De Gasparis.

Parthenope. An ancient name of Naples, Italy.

Parthenopean Republic (pär'the.nŏ.pē'an). Short-lived republic which succeeded the kingdom of Naples in 1799. It was established by aid of the French in January, and was overthrown by the British, Russian, and other forces in June. The Bourbons were restored.

Parthenos (pär'the.nŏs). Surname meaning "virgin," given to several Greek goddesses, as for instance Artemis and Athena. It was also given to Hera in her aspect as maiden.

Parthia (pär'thi.ä). In ancient geography, a country in W Asia, situated E of Media and S of Hyrcania. It was the nucleus of the Parthian Empire.

Parthian Empire (pär'thi.an). Ancient monarchy, comprising a great part of the territories of the first Persian Empire. It extended at its height to the Euphrates River, Caspian Sea, Indus River, and Indian Ocean. It was established by Arsaces, the first king, who overthrew the rule of the Seleucidae c250 B.C., rose to great power under Mithridates I and II, was often at war with Rome, and was overthrown by the new Persian dynasty of the Sassanidae c226 A.D.

Parthians (pär'thi.än). People of ancient Parthia in Asia. It is suggested that they may originally have been Scythians, or that they may have been of Turkoman linguistic stock. They were skilled horsemen and excelled in fighting on horseback with bows and arrows. The expression "a Parthian shot" means a parting shot or, in modern usage, the last word in an argument. This is in allusion to the custom of the ancient Parthians of shooting at an enemy from horseback with the horse turned away as if in flight.

Parthicus (pär'thi.kus). A surname of Trajan.

Partido Dominicano (pär.tē'thŏ. dŏ.mē.nē.kä'nŏ).

Principal political party in the Dominican Republic.

Partido Peronista (pä.rŏ.nē'stä). See Peronista.

Partington (pär'ting.tŏn). Mrs. Humorous character invented by Benjamin Penhallow Shillaber, whose Life and Sayings of Mrs. Partington appeared in 1854.

Partinico (pär.tē.nē'kŏ). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Palermo, ab. 15 mi. SW of Palermo; agricultural commune. Pop. of commune, 22,960 (1936); of town, 22,282 (1936).

Partisan, a Tale of the Revolution, The. Novel by William Gilmore Simms, published in 1835. It initiated the series known as Revolutionary romances. The sequel to The Partisan is Katharine Walton (1851).

Partisan Leader, The. Novel by Nathaniel Beverly, published in 1836, under the pseudonym of Edward William Sidney. Recounting events which supposedly took place in 1849, the novel predicts the Civil War.

Partisan Review. Literary quarterly founded in 1934 and associated with the U.S. Communist Party until 1938, when it became an independent radical publication with mildly Marxist sympathies, dedicated to intellectual freedom. In more recent years it has been vigorously anti-Communist. Contributors have included John Dos Passos, James T. Farrell, Wallace Stevens, Edmund Wilson, T. S. Eliot, and Dwight MacDonald.

Parti Social Français (pär.tē so.syäl frän.sä). See Croix de Feu, Les.

Parti Socialiste (so.syäl.üst). See Socialist Party (of France).

Partitions of Poland (pŏ'land). See Poland, Partitions of.

Partition Treaties. Two treaties made between France, England, and the Netherlands in 1698 and 1700 (the latter on the death of the Bavarian electoral prince) for the settlement of the Spanish succession. By the first, Spain, the Indies, and the Netherlands were given to the Bavarian electoral prince Joseph Ferdinand; Guipúzcoa and the Sicilies to France; and Milan to the Archduke Charles. By the second, Spain, the Indies, and the Netherlands went to the Archduke Charles, and France was to receive the Two Sicilies, Milan (or its equivalent Lorraine), and Guipúzcoa. The treaties were important preliminaries to the War of the Spanish Succession (1701-14).

Parson (pär'tŏn), Arthur. b. at Hudson, N.Y., March 26, 1842; d. March 7, 1914. American landscape painter. Some of his work is owned by the Metropolitan Museum, New York.

Parson, James. b. at Canterbury, England, Feb. 9, 1822; d. at Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 17, 1891. American biographer and miscellaneous author. Among his biographical works are lives of Horace Greeley (1855), Aaron Burr (1857), Andrew Jackson (1860), Benjamin Franklin (1864), Thomas Jefferson (1874), and Voltaire (1881). He also wrote Famous Americans of Recent Times (1867), Noted Women of Europe and America (1883), Captains of Industry (1884 and 1891), and others.

Partridge (pär'trij), Alden. b. at Norwich, Vt., Feb. 12, 1785; d. there, Jan. 17, 1854. American military educator. He attended (1802-05) Dartmouth and was at West Point from 1805 to 1806, subsequently serving on the staff of the U.S. Military Academy, of which he became acting superintendent. In 1817, after his replacement by Major Sylvanus Thayer, he was tried by court-martial, but the sentence was remitted and he resigned (1818) from the army. He organized (1819) a military academy at Norwich, Vt., the forerunner of what is now Norwich University (at Northfield, Vt.), and subsequently established military academies in Pennsylvania,

New Hampshire, Delaware, and Virginia. He is generally reputed to be the founder of the elementary and secondary grade system of military academies.

Partridge, Bellamy. b. at Phelps, N.Y.— American journalist and writer. From 1921 to 1936 he was active as a literary critic and magazine and publishing house editor at New York. His works include Sube Cane (1917), Cousins (1925), Pure and Simple (1934), The Roosevelt Family in America (1936), Horse and Buggy Doctor (1937), Country Lawyer (1939), Big Family (1941), Excuse My Dust (1943), the text for the album of Americana As We Were (1946), Big Freeze (1948), and The Old Oaken Bucket (1949).

Partridge, Sir Bernard. b. at London, Oct. 11, 1861; d. Aug. 9, 1945. English painter and illustrator, noted particularly for his cartoons in Punch, which he joined in 1891. At first a stained-glass designer and decorative painter, he later turned to book illustration and easel painting.

Partridge, Eric Honeywood. b. at Waimata Valley, Gisborne, New Zealand, Feb. 6, 1894—. British literary critic and lexicographer. He was founder and managing director (1927–31) of the Scholarist Press. Author of Eighteenth Century English Romantic Poetry (1924), The Scene is Changed (a novel), Slang To-day and Yesterday: A History and a Study (1933), A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English (1937), The World of Words (1938), A Dictionary of Cliches (1940), A Dictionary of Abbreviations (1943), Usage and Abuse: A Guide to Good English (1947), A Dictionary of the Underworld, British and American (1950), and others.

Partridge, William Ordway. b. at Paris, April 11, 1861; d. May 22, 1930. American sculptor and author. His published works include Art for America (1895), The Song of Life of a Sculptor (1895), Technique of Sculpture (1895), The Angel of Call (1900), Nathan Hale (1902), and The Czar's Gift (1906).

Parts of Holland (hol'and). See Holland, Parts of.

Parts of Kesteven (kes'tē'ven, kes.tē'ven). See Kesteven, Parts of.

Parts of Lindsey (lin'zi). See Lindsey, Parts of.

Parvati (pār'va.tē). [Also: Devi, Durga, Kali, Uma.] In Hindu mythology, the consort and female counterpart of Shiva. As the counterpart of Shiva, she has many names and many aspects. But she is always the great mother goddess of India, creative, and protective or destructive. As Durga she is portrayed as yellow and riding a tiger; Durga is inaccessible to appeal, but protects her devotees from disaster. As Kali she is black, hung round with human heads and skulls, encircled with snakes, and dripping with blood, the terrible mother demanding back the life she has given. Parvati means "mountain-born" and she is so named in reference to her being the daughter of the Himalaya mountains. She is also often called Uma, which means "light." In the Himalayas in the summer little clay images of Parvati are placed in small baskets of growing grain, so that the fertile mother goddess may be moved to increase the crop. Elsewhere in India in the spring ceremonial marriages are held for images of Parvati and Shiva, a ceremony believed to promote both vegetation and offspring.

Parvus (pār'vus). See John of Salisbury.

Parvatis (pa.ris'a.tis). fl. c400 B.C. Daughter of Artaxerxes I (Artaxerxes Longimanus), wife of Darius II, and mother of Artaxerxes II (Artaxerxes Mnemon) and Cyrus the Younger. She was notorious for her crimes, especially those committed in revenge for the failure and death of her son Cyrus, whom she had attempted to aid in usurping the throne.

Parzival (pär'tsi.fäl). Title and legendary hero of the epic poem written c1205 by the German poet Wolfram von Eschenbach, using Chrétien de Troyes's Conte del Graal and also local legend. Parzival is the son of Gamuret, prince of Anjou, and Queen Herzelode of Valois. His father falls in battle, and his mother, to protect him from a like fate, brings him up in the solitude of the forest in ignorance of knightly customs. After many misadventures, however, he arrives at Arthur's court, and ultimately becomes a knight of the Round Table. Afterward, in search of adventures, he rescues Queen Condwiramurs, who becomes his wife, and then arrives at the Castle of the Holy Grail. Here, having neglected certain conditions, he loses the sovereignty of the grail (which it was possible for him to obtain), and leaves the castle in disgrace. The messenger of the grail afterward appears at the court of Arthur and rebukes him, and he is banished from the Round Table. At this open shame he renounces his allegiance to God, and wanders about still in search of the grail. Finally he learns the true nature of God and of the grail, leads a life of abstinence, and becomes again a member of the Round Table. At the Castle of the Grail he is declared to be now worthy to become the sovereign of the grail. See under Perceval.

Pas (pāz, pā). The. See The Pas.

Pasadena (pa.sa.dē'nā). City in S California, in Los Angeles County, ab. 9 mi. NE of downtown Los Angeles; residential suburb of Los Angeles. It is the seat of California Institute of Technology. Noted for an annual celebration called the Tournament of Roses and a New Year's Day football game between Eastern and Western teams held in a stadium called the Rose Bowl. 104,577 (1950).

Pasadena. Town in E Texas, in Harris County, ab. 10 mi. SE of Houston; residential suburban community; petroleum refineries. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 3,436 (1940) to 22,483 (1950).

Pasaje (pā.sā'hā). Río. See Salado, Río, in Argentina.

Pasajes (pā.sā'hās). Town in N Spain, in the province of Guipúzcoa, on the Bay of Biscay E of San Sebastián. It has a well-protected harbor, with fisheries. It is a point of export for wine. In the 16th–18th centuries, Pasajes was the home port of the Basque whalers. 10,024 (1940).

Pasala (pā.sā'lā). See Sissala.

Pasar (pā'sār). Den. See Den Pasar.

Pasargadae (pa.sār'ga.dē). In ancient geography, the earliest capital of the Persians. It has been identified in the ancient site conspicuous in the little valley now called Meshed-Murghab, NE of the ancient Persepolis. Cyrus built here two palaces and founded temples; here he was buried; and his city became a place of pilgrimage and religious instruction for the Persians. The architectural remains, though in ruins, are important.

Pascagoula (pas.ka.gō'la). City in SE Mississippi, county seat of Jackson County, on Mississippi Sound at the mouth of the Pascagoula River; resort and shipbuilding center; packing and shipping point for fish. 10,805 (1950).

Pascagoula River. River in Mississippi which flows into Mississippi Sound ab. 40 mi. SW of Mobile, Ala. Length, to headwaters, ab. 250 mi.

Pascal (pas.kal', pas'kal; French, pās.kāl), Blaise. b. at Clermont-Ferrand, Puy-de-Dôme, France, June 19, 1623; d. at Paris, Aug. 19, 1662. French geometrician, philosopher, and writer. He was educated at Paris and his progress was so rapid that his zeal had to be restrained. Books were denied him for a while, but nevertheless, unaided, he invented geometry anew when 12 years old, and at the age of 17 achieved fame with his Traité des sections coniques (1640). Later on he undertook and carried on successfully the solution of the most difficult problems, and in the course of his research made numerous contributions to the development of mathematics and physics. He was one of the founders of the theory of probability and contributed to the knowledge of differential calculus. He stated the law now known by his name relating to the equilibrium of confined fluids; his barometric experiments to prove that pressure of air decreases with height are basic. That he also became distinguished in literature is perhaps chiefly due to his connection with the celebrated Jansenist monastery of Port Royal. At different times during his early career Pascal had conceived the plan to give himself up as a layman to the service of God. At various times he abandoned his intention for a life of dissipation, from which he was finally redeemed as the result of his escape from an accident (1654). He renounced the world definitely, and embraced the cause of Port Royal. His first literary work within these walls was transmitted from memory by an auditor, and is entitled Entretien sur l'épîcure et Montaigne (1655). He rose to highest literary excellence in setting forth and defending the doctrines of Port Royal against the Jesuits. Between January, 1656, and March, 1657, over his nom de plume, Louis de Montalte, Pascal wrote 18 letters, professedly to a friend in the provinces; hence the epistles are known as Les Provinciales. These letters defending Jansenism are considered classic examples of the use of irony. At the time of his death Pascal was engaged on a work that he was to name Apologie de la religion catholique. The notes he had made for it were subsequently found, but in such a scattered and imperfect condition that it was useless to attempt restoring his plan. They were therefore published in 1670 under the title Pensées de M. Pascal sur la religion et sur quelques autres sujets, qui ont été trouvées après sa mort parmi ses papiers (usually now called simply Pensées). In addition to these works Pascal wrote a Discours sur la condition des grands, Prière pour demander le bon usage des maladies, and finally a limited number of letters, addressed among others to Mademoiselle Charlotte de Roannez in 1657.

Pascal, Jean Louis. b. at Paris, June 4, 1837; d. there, May 17, 1920. French architect, painter, and critic. Exhibiting (1866–82) at the French Salon, he was awarded the Grand Prix de Rome (1878). He is best known for his design of the building for the medical faculty of Bordeaux University and additions to the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris.

Pașcani (păsh.kă'ni). Town in NE Rumania, in the province of Moldavia, on the Siret River ab. 43 mi. W of Iași; agricultural markets. 10,857 (1948).

Pasch (păsh), Moritz. b. at Breslau, Nov. 8, 1843; d. Sept. 20, 1930. German mathematician, who was especially interested in the foundations of geometry and analysis. His works include Vorlesungen über neuere Geometrie (1882), Einleitung in die Differential- und Integralrechnung (1882), Grundlagen der Analysis (1909), and Ursprung der Zahlbegriffe (1930).

Paschal I (pas'kal). [Latin, Paschalis (pas.kă'lis).] d. 692. Antipope. He was a Roman archdeacon elected (687) by a portion of the Roman populace and supported by the exarch of Ravenna.

Paschal I, Saint. [Latin, Paschalis.] d. Feb. 11, 824. Pope from 817 to 824. Defender of Theodore of Studium against the Iconoclasts, he welcomed exiled Greek monks in Rome.

Paschal II. [Latin, Paschalis; original name, Ranieri.] b. at Ravenna, Italy; d. at Rome, Jan. 21, 1118. Pope from 1099 to 1118. He resisted Henry I of England and the emperors Henry IV and Henry V on the investiture question. Finally imprisoned by Henry V, he yielded (1111) the right of investiture to the emperor. After Henry had retired beyond the Alps, the extorted concession was revoked by Paschal, with the consent of a church council, and Henry was excommunicated. The death of Countess Matilda of Tuscany occurred (1115) during Paschal's reign; her lands, willed to the church, were seized by Henry, thus precipitating a long struggle.

Paschal III. [Original name, Guido of Crema.] d. Sept. 20, 1168. Antipope from 1164 to 1168, in opposition to Alexander III.

Pascin (pas'kin), Jules. [Original name, Julius Pincas.] b. at Vidin, Bulgaria, March 31, 1885; d. at Paris, June 1, 1930. American painter, illustrator, and etcher. He spent most of his life in Germany, France, and the U.S., finally becoming a citizen of the last. He worked in his father's business until he was 17, then went to Vienna, Germany, and Paris to paint. His early works were mainly sketches, and were strongly influenced by Cézanne, Toulouse-Lautrec, and the German expressionists, although they were more delicate and sensuous than the prototypes. He traveled to Tunis, London, Spain, and then New York. Later, he returned to Paris, where he illustrated several books, and painted a great deal. His works are now in many important collections in Europe and the U.S.; among them are Nude, Salomé, Creole, Creole Hospital, The Beach, Cuba, Socrates and his Disciples, Two Women, Portrait of André Salmon, M. Sauvage, Luce Joly, and Hermine David, and illustrations for A. Salmon's Venus in Balance, Perrault's Cinderella, and other books.

Pasco (pas'kō). See also Cerro de Pasco.

Pasco (pas'kō). City in SE Washington, county seat of Franklin County: rail division point; freight terminals, grain elevators, and stockyards. An atomic energy plant is nearby. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 3,913 (1940), 10,228 (1950).

Pascoais (păsh.kwă'esh), Teixeira de. [Pseudonym of Joaquim Pereira Teixeira de Vasconcelos.] b. at Gatoão, Portugal, 1879—. Portuguese poet who became (1912) the leader of the group known as Renascença Portuguesa and who has had a considerable influence upon contemporary Portuguese literature. Among his best-known books are Sempre (1897), Vida etérea (1906), Sombra (1907), Maranos (1911), and Painel (1935). He has also written dramas in verse, and biographies.

Pascoli (păs'kō.lē), Giovanni. b. at San Mauro, Italy, 1855; d. 1912. Italian poet. The death motif is often present in his poetry (his concern over death may be accounted for by the murder of his father, a country doctor, who was mysteriously killed when the poet was only 12 years old). Typical of this are Myricae, the first (1891) and still the best of his poetry, Primi Poemetti (1903), Canti di Castelvecchio (1904), and Nuovi Poemetti (1906). Different in tone are Odi ed inni (1906) and Poemi conviviali (1903). He wrote on historical and patriotic subjects in Canzoni di Re Enzo (1908–09), Poemi italici (1911), and Poemi del Risorgimento (1913). Some of his poems have been translated into English: Poems of Giovanni Pascoli (1923, 1927) and Selected Poems of Giovanni Pascoli (1938).

Pascua (păs'kwă), Isla de. Spanish name of Easter Island.

Pas-de-Calais (păd.kă.lē). Department in N France, bounded by the English Channel and Strait of Dover on the W and N, Nord on the NE, and E, and Somme on the S. It corresponds to parts of the former Artois and Picardy. It belonged for a long time to Flanders and, in part, to England. It has frequently been a theater of war, and suffered considerable damage during World Wars I and II. Pas-de-Calais is predominantly an agricultural department. There are, however, important coal mines, iron and steel mills, machine and construction industries, sugar refineries, flour mills, and textile and other manufactures. Boulogne and Calais are the major ports. Capital, Arras; area, 2,607 sq. mi.; pop. 1,168,545 (1946).

Pas de Calais (păd.kă.lē). French name of Dover, Strait of.

Pasdeloup (pă.dlo), Jules Étienne. b. at Paris, Sept. 15, 1819; d. at Fontainebleau, France, Aug. 13, 1887. French conductor. In 1851 he began at Paris a series of low-priced concerts at which contemporary composers were given hearings as well as the classical writers. Given at the Cirque d'Hiver after 1861, they were very popular, but competition from the Colonne and Lamoureux concert groups forced their suspension in 1884.

Pasés (pă'sēz). See Passés.

Pasewalk (pă'ze.vălk). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Pomerania, Prussia, situated on the Üker River ab. 25 mi. NW of Stettin: iron foundries, machine factories, flour mills, and sausage manufactures. There are livestock markets. The Church of Saint Nicholas dates from the 13th–16th centuries; the Church of Mary from the 14th century; the Rathaus (town hall) from 1726. One of the oldest towns in Pomerania, it passed to Sweden in 1648, and to Prussia in 1720. Pop. 10,977 (1946).

Pasha (pă.shă'), Ahmed Djemal. See Djemal Pasha, Ahmed.

Pasha, Baker. See Baker, Valentine.

Pashich (pă'shēch), Nikola. See Pašić, Nikola.

Pasht (păsh't). See Bast.

Pashtunistan (push.tō'nī.stan). See Pushtunistan.

Pašić (pă'shēch), Nikola. [Also, Pashich.] b. at Zaječar, Serbia, 1845; d. at Belgrade, Serbia, 1926. Serbian statesman and founder of the Yugoslav state. He was a member of the Serbian parliament almost continuously after 1878, and served frequently as prime minister (1891–92, 1906–08, 1912–18, 1921–24, 1925–26). He was the leader of the Serbian Radical Party from its founding in 1881 and was exiled (1899–1903) by King Alexander Obrenovich. His anti-Austrian policy in the years before World War I and his possible implication in the assassination of Francis Ferdinand in 1914 intensified the crisis immediately preceding the war. He modeled the Yugoslav state as a delegate to the Paris Peace Conference, but found resistance in the newly formed country from the Croat separatist movement.

Pasig (päs'ig). Suburban municipality in the Philippine Islands, the capital of Rizal province, S central Luzon, situated SE of Manila, 35-497 (1948).

Pasig River. See under Rizal.

Pasing (pä'sing). Former town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, now incorporated into the city of Munich.

Pasini (pä.zë'nö), Alberto. b. near Parma, Italy, 1820; d. at Turin, Italy, Dec. 15, 1899. Italian genre painter. He went to Paris c1840, and became the pupil of E. Isabey and Théodore Rousseau. His subjects were chiefly Oriental.

Pasionaria (pä.syö.nä'ryä), La. Pseudonym of Ibaruri, Dolores.

Pasiphaë (pä.sif'ä.ë). In Greek legend, the daughter of Helios, wife of Minos, king of Crete, and mother of Ariadne. She was enamoured of a white bull given to Minos by Poseidon, and by him became the mother of the Minotaur.

Pasiteles (pä.sit'el.ëz). fl. in the 1st century B.C. Greek sculptor, a native of Magna Graecia, who acquired (c87 B.C.) Roman citizenship when the southern cities were admitted to that privilege. He followed the modern method of elaborating his work in clay, and wrote five books on artistic matters much copied by Pliny. Pasiteles and his school affected a kind of pre-Phidian style. Many pseudo-archaic works are ascribed to them.

Paskevich (pä.s.kyë'vich), Ivan. [Titles, Count of Erivan, Prince of Warsaw.] b. at Poltava, Russia, May 19, 1782; d. at Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 1, 1856. Russian field marshal. He was distinguished in campaigns against Napoleon, conquered Persian Armenia, and stormed Erivan in 1827, and captured Kars in 1823 and Erzurum in 1829. As commander in chief in Poland he captured Warsaw in 1831, and became governor of Poland. He commanded the Russian contingent against the Hungarian revolutionaries in 1849, and the Danube army in 1854 in the Crimean War.

Pasley (pas'li), Sir Charles William. b. at Eskdalemuir, Scotland, Sept. 8, 1780; d. at London, April 19, 1861. English army officer and engineer. He introduced a course in military engineering for noncommissioned officers, first tried at Plymouth and later adopted at Chatham, where he served as director from 1812 until he became a major general in 1841. His publications include Military Instruction (3 vols., 1814-17) and Practical Operations of a Siege (1829-32).

Pašman (päš'män). Yugoslav island in the Adriatic Sea, off the Dalmatian coast, in the federative unit of Croatia. S of the city of Zadar. Area, ab. 23 sq. mi.; pop. 478 (1931).

Paso de Chocolate (pä'sö dä chö.kölä'tä). Pass in NW Chihuahua, Mexico, famous for the atrocities committed there by the Apaches during the 19th and preceding centuries. The last action fought there was in 1852, when nearly all the able-bodied men of the nearby town of Galeana were slain by a force of Indians.

Pasoendan (pä.sön.dän'). Name used in connection with a Sundanese separatist movement after World War II. The Sundanese people of SW Java, the largest cultural minority on that island, have sometimes afforded a favorite recruiting ground for workers and soldiers to the colonial rulers. Whether, as Indonesian Republican spokesmen have claimed, the Sundanese were stirred to enmity of the nascent republic by agitators intent on aiding the return of a Netherlands-controlled colonial regime, or whether a resentment smoldering for centuries was kindled by economic suffering, a Sundanese People's Party (Partai Rakyat Pasoendan), founded at Bandoeng on May 4, 1947, found considerable support, although a majority of the 12 million Sundanese probably sided with the Republic and were, in fact, represented in its government. The movement at once received the protection of the Dutch army, and the colonial government proceeded to add a plebiscite in Sundanese territory. The Republican government claimed that the Netherlands authorities were taking advantage of a local situation to pave the way for the setting up of a puppet government. This interpretation, denied by the authorities, who blamed overzealous individual officials for seeming to sponsor a secessionist movement, was one of the causes of the renewed hostility under which the agreement signed at Lingardjati in March, 1947, broke down a few months later.

Paso Robles (pä'sö rö'blz). See El Paso de Robles.

Pasquale (pä.s.kwä'lä), Don. See Don Pasquale.

Pasquier (pä.kyä'), Étienne. b. at Paris, 1529; d. there, 1615. French jurist and author. His chief work is Recherches sur la France (c1560 & seq.).

Pasquier, Étienne Denis, Duc de. b. at Paris, April 22, 1767; d. there, July 5, 1832. French politician. He served as an official under Napoleon I, was a cabinet minister during the restoration and president of the chamber of peers (1830-48) under Louis Philippe, and received the titular dignity of chancellor in 1837. He published Discours prononcés dans les chambres législatives de 1814-36 (1842), and left a memoir in manuscript, the first volume of which appeared in 1893 under the title of Histoire de mon temps.

Pasquil (pas'kwil). Pseudonym of Nash or Nashe, Thomas.

Pasquin (pas'kwin). [Italian, Pasquino (pä.s.kwë'nö).] Tailor (or a schoolteacher, or a cobbler, or a barber) who lived at Rome about the end of the 15th century, noted for his caustic wit. His name, soon after his death, was transferred to a mutilated statue which had been dug up opposite his shop, on which were posted anonymous lampoons. At the opposite end of the city from the statue, there was an ancient statue of Mars, called by the people Marforio; and gibes and jeers passed upon Pasquin were answered by similar effusions affixed to Marforio. By this effectively anonymous system of thrust and parry the most serious matters were disclosed, and the most distinguished persons attacked and defended.

Pasquin. Dramatic satire by Henry Fielding, published in 1736.

Passage of Honor. [Spanish, Paso Honroso.] Account of a passage at arms which was held against all comers in 1434, at the bridge of Orbigio, near the city of León, during 30 days, at a time when the road was thronged with knights passing for a solemn festival to the neighboring shrine of Santiago. The challenger was Suero de Quiñones, a gentleman of rank, who claimed to be thus emancipated from the service of wearing for a noble lady's sake a chain of iron around his neck every Thursday. The arrangements for this extraordinary tournament were all made under the king's authority. Nine champions (mantenedores) stood with Quiñones. At the end of 30 days it was found that 68 knights had challenged his claim, that 627 encounters had taken place, and that 68 lances had been broken; one knight, an Aragonese, had been killed, and many were wounded, among whom were Quiñones and eight of his nine fellow-champions.

Passages from the Diary of a Late Physician. Collection of short stories by Samuel Warren, first published in Blackwood's Magazine. In 1831 in America (1832 in England) two volumes were published, and in 1838 a third was added.

Passage to India. Poem by Walt Whitman, published (1871) as the title piece of a pamphlet and included in the 1876 edition of Leaves of Grass.

Passage to India. A. Novel (1924) by Edward Morgan Forster, treating sympathetically the racial tensions existing between the Indians and the British in India.

Passaic (pä.sä'ik). City in N New Jersey, in Passaic County, on the Passaic River ab. 11 mi. NW of New York City; notable for the weaving and dyeing of textiles, and for manufactures including chemicals and radio equipment. 57,702 (1950).

Passaic River. River in New Jersey which flows into Newark Bay below Newark. It forms a cataract of 72 ft., with a perpendicular fall of 50 ft., at Paterson. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Passamaquoddy (pas'ä.nä.kwöd'i). North American Indian tribe formerly inhabiting N Maine and New Brunswick. It was one of the tribes in the Abnaki group of Algonquian Indians. About 800 survive today in the Passamaquoddy Bay inlet.

Passamaquoddy Bay. Inlet of the Bay of Fundy, on the border between Maine and New Brunswick, Canada. It receives the St. Croix River. It was the site of a much-discussed power project, which was to use the force of the 30-ft. tides in the bay, but the work was suspended in 1936 because of the failure of Congress to appropriate the necessary funds. Length, ab. 15 mi.

Passaro (päs'sä.rö), Cape. See Passero, Cape.

Passarowitz (piäs'sä.rö.vits). German name of Pozarevac. Passarowitz, Peace of. Treaty concluded at Passarowitz (now Pozarevac), on July 21, 1718, between Turkey on one side and Austria and Venice on the other. Venice ceded the Morea (Peloponnesus) to Turkey; Turkey ceded to Austria part of Bosnia, Oltenia (or Little Wallachia), part of Serbia (including Belgrade), and the Banat of Temesvár (Timisoara).

Passau (piäs'ou). [Latin, Bojodurum, Batava Castra.] City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Lower Bavaria—Upper Palatinate, situated at the junction of the Inn and Ilz rivers with the Danube River. ab. 70 mi. SE of Regensburg, close to the Austrian frontier. It is a river port, with trade in lumber and leather. There are also metal and chemical industries, and breweries. The city is divided by the rivers into four parts, the central part being located on a narrow tongue of land between the Inn and Danube rivers; here is the Dom (cathedral), founded in the 7th century, in its present form consisting of a Gothic (1407-70) and a baroque (1668-78) part. There are various other medieval and baroque churches and other buildings, some of them reconstructed in the 19th century. The medieval castles of Oberhaus and Niederhaus are located between the Danube and Ilz rivers. The population increased in the period 1939-46 by 42 percent. 34,626 (1940), 34,351 (1950).

History. In ancient times a Celtic and a Roman settlement, it became one of the earliest bishoprics north of the Alps, playing a most important role in the Christianization of the area between the Isar and Leitha rivers (and beyond). Emperor Otto III endowed the bishopric with royal prerogatives in 999; the bishops became princes of the empire in the 12th century. The Peace of Passau, forced from the emperor Charles V, was concluded here in 1552. Part of the territory passed to Austria in 1754; the remaining part (including the city itself) to Bavaria in 1803.

Passau, Peace of. [Also, Convention of Passau.] Treaty concluded (July 16, 1552) at Passau, between the elector Maurice of Saxony and King Ferdinand I in behalf of the emperor Charles V. The principal provision was the granting of freedom of religion to the Lutherans. It was a principal step leading to the Peace of Augsburg (1555).

Passavant (pä.sä.vän'), Johann David. b. at Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, Sept. 18, 1787; d. there, Aug. 12, 1861. German art historian and artist. His books include a life of Raphael (1839-55; French ed., 1860), Le Peintre-graveur (1860-64), and others.

Passchendaele (päs'en.dä.le). [Also: Passchendaele, Pasendaele.] Small Belgian commune on a high level piece of ground near Ypres. It was the scene of one of the bloodiest battles on the Western Front in World War I. Constant parries were made by the Germans on one side, and the British and Canadians on the other, in July and August, 1917, and a peak was reached with heavy artillery bombardments in September and October. British troops entered the town on October 30, but were immediately repulsed. Finally, after another week of close fighting, and a famous assault by the 1st and 2nd Canadian brigades, Canadian and British troops controlled the ridge.

Pass Christian (pas kris.chi.an'). City in SE Mississippi, in Harrison County, on the Mississippi Sound: tourist and fishing center; shipping point for oysters and fish. Off its shores was fought the Battle of Pass Christian (Dec. 14, 1814) between British and American warcraft, the last naval engagement of the War of 1812. Pop. 3,383 (1950).

Passenger Cases, 7 Howard 283 (1849). U.S. Supreme Court decision involving the questions of national control over commerce and the power and duty of the state to protect its citizens. Statutes of New York and Massachusetts imposed head taxes upon alien passengers arriving in the ports of those states. The court declared them unconstitutional as illegal interference with foreign commerce. Four justices dissented from the decision. In dissent, Chief Justice Taney said it must "rest with the State to determine whether any particular class or description of persons are likely to produce discontents or insurrection in its territory, or to taint the morals of its citizens, or to bring them contagious diseases, or the evils and burdens of a numerous pauper population."

Passenger to Teheran (te.e'ran', -rān'). Travel-book by V. Sackville-West, published in 1926.

Passero (piäs'sä.rö), Cape. [Also: Passaro; ancient name, Pachynus.] Cape at the SE extremity of Sicily. In a sea fight off this cape, Aug. 11, 1718, the British under Admiral George Byng annihilated the Spanish fleet.

Passés (pä'säz). [Also, Passés.] Tribe of South American Indians of NW Brazil, in the region of the mouth of the Japurá River. They were a peaceable agricultural people, unresisting to white encroachment. Their language is classified in the Yapura division of the Rio Negro group of the northern Amazon branch of the Arawakan family of languages.

Passer (pä.sér), Stève. b. at Sedan, France, 1889—. French dramatist, specializing in a sort of psychological melodrama. His best-known plays are Maison ouverte (1925), L'acheteuse (1930), La Chaîne (1931), and Les Trihéures (1932). Later plays have not repeated his early successes.

Passing of the Third Floor Back, The. Twentieth-century "morality" play (1908) by Jerome K. Jerome.

Passionate Friends, The. Novel by H. G. Wells, published in 1913.

Passionate Pilgrim, A. Title of a collection of stories by Henry James, published in 1875. The title story was originally published in 1871.

Passionate Pilgrim, The. Poetical miscellany, published (1599) by William Jaggard, and attributed by him to William Shakespeare. Of the 21 poems, Shakespeare is known to have written only five; others are by Richard Barnfield, Bartholomew Griffin, Christopher Marlowe, and unknown writers.

Passion Before Death, A. Collection of short stories by James Hanley, published in 1930.

Passion Play. See under Oberammergau.

Passions Spin the Plot. Novel by Vardis Fisher, published in 1934. It is the second panel in the Vidar Hunter tetralogy.

Passo Fundo (pä'sö fön'dö). City in S Brazil, in the state of Rio Grande do Sul. 25,232 (1950).

Passos (pä'sös). City in SE Brazil, in the state of Minas Gerais. 14,307 (1951).

Passos (pä'sos), John (Roderigo) Dos. See Dos Passos, John (Roderigo).

Passover (pas'ö'ver). [Hebrew, Pesach.] Jewish feast commemorating the exodus of the Jews from Egypt. The eight-day observance begins on the 14th of Nisan (March-April), and is marked by the absence of leavened bread from the diet, cakes of an unleavened dough, called matzo, being substituted. On each of the first two nights of the observance a ceremonial meal, called Seder, is served in the home. At the Seder the head of the house reads the story of the Exodus from the Passover Hag-gadah, and various symbolic foods are served in allusion to the hardships endured by the Jews during their captivity in Egypt.

Passow (pä'sö), Franz Ludwig Karl Friedrich. b. at Ludwigslust, Mecklenburg, Germany, Sept. 20, 1786; d. at Breslau, March 11, 1833. German classical philologist and lexicographer, professor at Breslau from 1815. He published a Greek lexicon (1819-24), used by Liddell and Scott as the basis of their dictionary, as well as Elements of the History of Greek and Roman Literature and Art and others.

Passy (pä.së). Former commune in N France, since 1860 a part of Paris, in the SW part of the city.

Passy, Colonel. Pseudonym of Wavrin, André Charles de.

Passy, Frédéric. b. at Paris, May 20, 1822; d. there, June 12, 1912. French economist and author. Between 1860 and 1932 he taught political economy in various schools near and at Paris, and was a member (1881-89) of the Chamber of Deputies. He was one of the founders of the International Peace League in 1867, and of the Interparliamentary Peace Union in 1888, and a member of the committee of the International Peace Bureau at Bern in 1892. In 1901, with J. H. Dunant, he received the Nobel peace prize. He published Mélanges économiques (1857), Leçons d'économie politique (1860-61), Les Machines et leur influence sur le progrès social (1866), L'histoire du travail (1873), La Solidarité du travail et du capital (1875), and Vérités et paradoxes (1894).

Passy, Paul Édouard. b. at Versailles, France, 1859; d. 1941. French philologist. He was an advocate of phonetic spelling and founded the International Phonetic Association. From 1894 he held the adjunct directorship of universal and comparative phonetics in the École Pratique des Hautes Études (1886), Les Sons du français (1887), Étude sur les changements phonétiques (1890), and Elementarbuch des gesprochenen französisch (1893, with F. Beyer).

Pasta (päs'tä), Madame Giuditta. [Maiden name, Negri.] b. at Como, Italy, 1798; d. near Lake Como, Italy, April 1, 1835. Italian opera singer, one of the leading sopranos in Paris and Italy from 1819 to c1835. Vincenzo Bellini wrote La Sonnambula and Norma for her, and Gaetano Donizetti, Gioachino Rossini, and Giovanni Pacini also composed operas as vehicles for her powerful and wide-ranged voice.

Pastaza (päs.tä'sä). [Also, Pastasa.] River in E Ecuador and NE Peru, which flows S to join the Marañón. Length, ab. 430 mi.

Pasternak (päs.tyr.näk'), Boris Leonidovich. b. at Moscow, Feb. 13, 1890—. Russian poet; son of Leonid Osipovich Pasternak. His elliptical, idiosyncratic verse, some of it composed before the Revolution of 1917, is narrow in scope, but possesses great originality. He has also written some remarkable prose and has translated Shelley and Keats, as well as several of Shakespeare's plays. As his work is esoteric and eschews politics, it is condemned by the Soviet critics and viewed with suspicion by Soviet officialdom.

Pasternak, Leonid Osipovich. b. at Odessa, Russia, April 4, 1862—. Russian landscape, genre, and portrait painter and etcher; father of Boris Leonidovich Pasternak. He was a friend of Leo Tolstoy, and painted the author-philosopher and his family several times. In 1905 he was made an academician at Moscow. Among his works are Leo Tolstoy at Yasnaya Polyana, Portrait of Einstein, Study of a Head, The Tolstoy Family, and The Evening before the Examination.

Pasteur (päs.tér', päse-), Louis. b. at Dôle, Jura, France, Dec. 27, 1822; d. at Villeneuve l'Étang, France, Sept. 28, 1895. French chemist and bacteriologist. Educated at Arbois, Besançon, and the École Normale, Paris, he was subsequently professor of physics at Dijon (1848) and Strasbourg (1849 et seq.). He served from 1854 to 1857 as dean and professor of chemistry at Lille, and from 1857 to 1863 as subdirector of the École Normale Supérieure. From 1867 to 1889 he was professor of chemistry at the Sorbonne, and served also (1886 et seq.) as director of the Pasteur Institute, which was established at Paris shortly after the successful vaccination (1885) against hydrophobia of a child who had been bitten by a rabid dog.

Development as Scientist. His early studies (1847-57) on correlations between the crystal morphology, optical activity, and chemical structure of organic substances constituted a landmark in the science of organic chemistry and led him to the conviction that fermentations are caused by living microorganisms. The second phase of his scientific life (1857-76) was devoted to the final overthrow of the theory of spontaneous generation and to the establishment of the germ theory of fermentation. Theoretical concepts such as the biochemical unity of life and the relation between respiration and fermentation, as well as practical applications such as the improvement in the manufacture of vinegar, wine, and beer, and the technique of preservation of food and beverages by controlled heating (pasteurization) followed as a result of these studies. In the third phase of his life, the germ theory of fermentation led him to the germ theory of disease and to the study of the causative agents of silkworm diseases, anthrax, swine erysipelas, fowl cholera, streptococcus and staphylococcus infection, and rabies. He fought to convince the medical world of the importance of his discoveries for the development of aseptic surgery and of general hygiene. He established the theory and practice of immunity and demonstrated the possibility of vaccinating against various diseases with living but attenuated forms of the agents of disease. Prophylactic inoculation against rabies, in particular, brought him an immense popular fame.

Point of View and Beliefs as Scientist. Pasteur had boundless confidence in the power of experimental science to solve all problems of the physicochemical world but denied that it could ever deal with emotional reactions or religious beliefs. Throughout his life he pursued with equal passion abstract theoretical issues and purely practical problems. See Pasteur: The History of a Mind, by E. Duechay (1896, 1920), Life of Pasteur, by René Vallery-Radot (1924), and Louis Pasteur, Free Lance of Science, by René J. Dubos (1950).

Pasteur Institute. Institution founded at Paris in 1886, by international public subscription, for the treatment of hydrophobia by Louis Pasteur's method. It was enabled by later subscriptions to undertake also the treatment of other diseases, the production of serums, and the advancement of biological chemistry. Other Pasteur institutes have been established at Lille, Tunis, Istanbul, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, and elsewhere.

Pastiches et Mélanges (päs.tësh ä mät.länzh). Collected essays and incidental writings (1919) by Marcel Proust.

Pasto (päs'tō). Town in SW Colombia, capital of Nariño department, on a high plateau ab. 100 mi. SW of Popayán. It is an important processing center for an agricultural region; manufactures besides food products include varnish and straw hats. 27,564 (1938).

Paston (päs'ton), John. b. 1421; d. May 21 or 22, 1466. Son of Sir William Paston (1378-1444), remembered chiefly for his lifelong defense of the Paston estate, Caister and others, against attempted encroachments by the dukes of Norfolk and Suffolk.

Paston, Sir Robert. [Title, 1st Earl of Yarmouth.] b. at Ormeau, Norfolk, England, May 29, 1631; d. March 8, 1683. English statesman. He fought in the English Civil War, and traveled on the Continent during the Commonwealth and Protectorate. Upon the Restoration (1660) of Charles II, he was repeatedly elevated in rank and position.

Paston, Sir William. b. at Paston, Norfolk, England, 1378; d. Aug. 13, 1444. Founder of the Paston fortune, the family being known for the Paston Letters, a collection of correspondence between its members, full of information about social life of the time.

Paston, Sir William. [Title, 2nd Earl of Yarmouth.] b. 1652; d. 1732. English courtier; son of Sir Robert Paston. The last of the line of Pastons, Sir William Paston survived all his sons. He married one of the many illegitimate daughters of Charles II. After his death the estate was heavily encumbered with debt and was sold to George, afterwards Baron Anson, who pulled down the old house.

Paston Letters. Series of letters written or received by members of the Paston family, of Paston, Norfolk, England. The series commenced in 1422 and ended in 1509. They are valuable for 15th-century history, and were first published in part by Sir John Fenn in 1787. One of the best editions is by James Gairdner (6 vols., 1904), containing over 1,000 letters and other papers, with notes and other apparatus.

Pastor (päs'tor), Antonio. [Called Tony Pastor.] b. at New York, May 28, 1837; d. at Elmhurst, Long Island, N.Y., Aug. 26, 1908. American actor and theater manager. Joining the stage as a child, he appeared in the roles of ballad singer, clown, minstrel, and low comedian. During the Civil War era he established his Music Hall on Broadway (New York City). He became (1865) a partner in Tony Pastor's Opera House on the Bowery, and from 1881 to 1908 managed a variety house at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, which achieved prominence as Tony Pastor's. Among the stage personalities who were associated with him were Weber and Fields, Nat fat, fâte, fâr, âsk, fâre; net, mē, hēr; pin, pine; not, nôte, môve, nôr; up, lûte, pûll; ʔh, then; ɔ, d or j; ʃ, s or sh; ʒ, t or ch;

Goodwin, Gus Williams, Flo Irwin, and Lillian Russell. He pioneered in developing vaudeville.

Pastoral Symphony, The. Short movement in G. F. Handel's Messiah.

Pastoral Symphony, The. Title of Beethoven's Symphony No. 6 in F major (Opus 68). He added a subtitle, or Recollections of Country Life.

Pastor Fido (pās.tōr' fē.dō), H. [Eng. trans., "The Faithful Shepherd."] Pastoral drama by Giovanni Battista Guarini, played at Turin in 1585, but not printed till 1590. It was composed to celebrate the marriage of a duke of Savoy.

Pastorius (pās.tō'ri.us), Francis Daniel. b. at Sommerhausen, Franconia, Germany, Sept. 26, 1651; d. between Dec. 26, 1719, and Jan. 13, 1720. German lawyer and author, founder of what is now the part of Philadelphia known as Germantown. A lawyer at Windsheim, he became associated (1679 et seq.) with some of William Penn's friends at Frankfort on the Main, became (1683) agent for a group of Frankfort Quakers for whom he closed negotiations at Philadelphia in 1683 for 15,000 acres of Penn's domain, and in the same year laid out the Germantown settlement, of which he was the first mayor. He compiled a primer which was the first school book produced in Pennsylvania and taught school at Germantown from 1701 to the time of his death.

"Pastor Russell" (rus'el). See Russell, Charles Taze.

Pasture (de lap'a.tōr), Mrs. Henry de la. See Lady Clifford.

Pasture (pā.tūr), Roger de la. See Weyden, Roger (or Rogier) van der.

Patagonia (pat.ə.gō'ni.ə). Southernmost portion of South America, including the S portions of Chile and Argentina.

Patagonians (pat.ə.gō'ni.ənz). Indigenous Indian peoples of Patagonia, comprising variously named tribes and groups. Chief among them are the Tehuelche Indians, called the Patagonian giants because of their great stature, which is commonly well over six feet. Tehuelche (which means "southern people") is often used in its merely geographical sense, without reference to ethnographical distinctions. The Tehuelche language probably comprises an independent linguistic stock.

Patala (pā.tā'la). In Hindu mythology, a collective term for the seven subterranean or infernal regions, and also the name of the lowest of these seven regions. Patala is inhabited by various classes of supernatural beings, among them the naqas, or serpents. Patala is not a place of torment. Under it are the hells (narakas), of which Manu enumerates 21 and the Buddhists 120 hell, eight cold, and eight dark, plus 84,000 little minor hells.

Pataliputra (pā'tā.li.pō'tra). Ancient name of Patna, city.

Patān (pā'tān). City in Nepal, a southern suburb of Katmandu. It is famous for its carpet weaving, and is a trading center. 104,928 (1941).

Patangoros (pā.tāng.gō'rōs). [Also: Coronados, Pan-tagoros.] Group of South American Indian tribes formerly inhabiting the dense forests of the Cordillera Central of W. Colombia. They resisted the Spaniards, but many were killed or enslaved, and they disappeared rapidly after the 17th century. The men were tanned for acts of bravery, a custom which gave rise to their being called Coronados. Their language was long regarded as belonging to the Paniquita stock; but today scholars classify the language of the Patangoros as itself comprising a group (embracing five dialects) of the southeastern branch of the northwestern division of the Cariban family of languages.

Patani (pā.tā.nē'). See Pattani.

Patānjali (pā.tān'jā.li). Indian grammarian, author of the Mahabhashya. He was born at Gonarda in the E part of India, and lived for some time in Kashmir. Some scholars maintain he wrote between 140 and 120 B.C., but others place him ab. 25 years after Christ.

Patānjali. Reputed founder of the Yoga system of Hindu philosophy. He is said to have lived in the 4th century A.D., though some equate him with the grammarian of the same name who lived 300 years earlier.

Patapsco (pā.tāp'skō). River in Maryland which flows into Chesapeake Bay ab. 14 mi. SE of Baltimore. Length, ab. 80 mi.

Patara (pat'ar.ə). In ancient geography, a city in Lycia, Asia Minor, situated on the coast in lat. 36°15' N., long. 29°22' E. There are remains of a theater dating from the time of Hadrian.

Patavium (pā.tā'vi.um). Latin name of Padua.

Patawat (pā.tā.wāt). Tribe of North American Indians, formerly living on the lower Mad River, in NW California. They are a small tribe, comprising one of the three divisions of the Wiyot Indians of the California coast, who are sometimes regarded as being the California relatives of the Algonquian linguistic family.

Patay (pā.tā). Village in the department of Loiret, France, ab. 13 mi. NW of Orléans. Here on June 18, 1429, the French under Jean Dunois and Joan of Arc defeated the English.

Patayan (pā.tā.yān'). One of the major patterns of culture in the American Southwest, centering along the lower Colorado River. In contrast to Anasazi, Hohokam, and Mogollón, the other major patterns, the Patayan is characterized by temporary dwellings, trail shrines, cremation, plain buff pottery, and the planting of crops in areas flooded by the river.

Patch (pach), Alexander McCarrell. b. at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Nov. 23, 1889; d. at San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 21, 1945. American military commander. In January, 1943, he assumed command of U.S. troops on Guadalcanal and finished the campaign to eliminate Japanese resistance on that island. He led the Seventh Army in France and Austria in the European campaign of 1944-45.

Patch, Sam. b. in Rhode Island, c1807; killed at Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 13, 1829. American daredevil, noted for leaping from bridges and similar feats. He was killed in an attempt to jump from a height of 125 ft. into the Genesee River at Genesee Falls, in Rochester, N.Y.

Patchogue (pach'ōg). Village in SE New York, in Suffolk County, on Great South Bay, Long Island: resort and fishing center; blue-point oysters are obtained from nearby beds. Manufactures include lace, leather, and wood products; there are flower nurseries in the vicinity. 7,361 (1950).

Patel (pa.tel'), Vallabhbhai Jahverbhāi. b. at Karamsad, Gujarat, India, 1875; d. at Bombay, India, Dec. 15, 1950. Indian statesman; brother of Vitthalbhai Jahverbhāi Patel. Deputy prime minister (1947 et seq.) of India, he successfully integrated more than 500 separate states of India into the Union of India. A prominent nationalist leader since 1916, he was a close associate of Gandhi, president of the India National Congress in 1931, and chairman (1935-42) of the All-India Congress parliamentary committee. He was president (1924-25) of the Ahmedabad municipality but resigned to conduct the Bardoli No-Tax campaign.

